Action on sub-item (a) was taken at the 34th, 36th and 40th meetings, on 12 November and 9 and 16 December 2003. An account of the Committee's consideration of the sub-item is contained in the relevant summary records (A/C.2/58/SR.34, 36 and 40).

II. Consideration of proposals

A. Draft resolutions A/C.2/58/L.32 and A/C.2/58/L.80

2. At the 34th meeting, on 12 November, the representative of Morocco, on behalf of the States Members of the United Nations that are members of the Group of 77 and China, introduced a draft resolution entitled "International trade and development" (A/C.2/58/L.32), which read:

"The General Assembly,

"Recalling its resolutions 55/182 of 20 December 2000, 56/178 of 21 December 2001 and 57/235 of 20 December 2002 on international trade and development,

* The report of the Committee on this item will be issued in seven parts, under the symbol A/58/481 and Corr.1 and Add.1-6.

“Recalling also the Plan of Action adopted at the tenth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, held in Bangkok from 12 to 19 February 2000, “Reaffirming the role of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development as focal point within the United Nations for the integrated treatment of trade and development and the interrelated issues in the areas of finance, technology, investment and sustainable development,

“Recalling the provisions of the United Nations Millennium Declaration pertaining to trade and related development issues, as well as the outcomes of the International Conference on Financing for Development, held in Monterrey, Mexico, from 18 to 22 March 2002, and the World Summit on Sustainable Development, held in Johannesburg, South Africa, from 26 August to 4 September 2002,

“Recalling also its resolutions 57/250 of 20 December 2002 and 57/270 B of 23 June 2003, in which it invited the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, as well as the Trade and Development Board, to contribute to the implementation and to review the progress made in the implementation of the outcomes of major United Nations conferences and summits and invited the President of the Trade and Development Board to present the outcomes of such reviews to the Economic and Social Council, “Recognizing that, to benefit fully from trade, which in many cases is the single most important external source of development financing, the establishment and enhancement of appropriate institutions and policies in developing countries, as well as in countries with economies in transition, are needed, and that, in this context, enhanced market access, balanced rules and well-targeted, sustainably financed technical assistance and capacity-building programmes for developing countries also play important roles,

“Recognizing also that a fair and substantial share of the benefits from global economic prosperity and the multilateral trading system has not fully accrued to developing countries notwithstanding the fact that they have undertaken significant trade and investment liberalization unilaterally, regionally and multilaterally, both within and outside the context of structural adjustment programmes,

“Recognizing further that the rights of countries over the use and management of their own genetic resources, as well as the protection of the associated traditional knowledge and practices of indigenous communities, must be protected and assured in order to stimulate social and economic development, in accordance with the Johannesburg Declaration on Sustainable Development and the Plan of Implementation of the World Summit on Sustainable Development (‘Johannesburg Plan of Implementation’),

“Taking note of concerns regarding the ramifications of certain security measures with respect to the freer flow of goods and peoples across borders, especially from developing countries, “Expressing its satisfaction with the in-depth review undertaken by the Trade and Development Board at its fiftieth session with respect to developments and issues in the post-Doha work programme of particular concern to developing countries, including the outcome of the Fifth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization, and stressing its important contribution to an understanding of the actions required to help developing countries secure beneficial and meaningful integration into the multilateral trading system,

“Taking note of the report of the Trade and Development Board and the report of the Secretary-General on international trade and development, “Welcoming the proposals made by the developing countries that are members of the World Trade Organization for implementing the work programme of the World Trade Organization, including in the areas of special and differential treatment, implementation-related issues and concerns, agriculture and non-agricultural market access,

“1. Reaffirms the great importance of the multilateral trading system in promoting the objective set out in the Millennium Declaration of ensuring an open, equitable, rule-based, predictable and non-discriminatory multilateral trading system in pursuit of economic growth and development, fairness and a level playing field as well as human development and poverty eradication goals, and reiterates its commitment to achieving that goal;

“2. Reiterates the commitment made at the Fourth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization, held in Doha from 9 to 14 November 2001, to place development at the heart of the Doha work programme and to continue to make positive efforts to ensure that developing countries, especially the least developed among them, secure a share in the growth of world trade commensurate with the needs of their economic development;

“3. Expresses concern about the lack of progress in the Doha negotiations and the lack of any effective and meaningful response to the concerns and interests of developing countries, as manifested by missed deadlines, inadequate treatment of development issues, including special and differential treatment and implementation-related issues and concerns, and unfinished business and imbalances from the Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations, as well as the slow pace of agricultural reform in developed countries;

“4. Also expresses its concern about the setback at the Fifth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization and stresses the importance of redoubling efforts in working towards a successful, timely and development-oriented conclusion of the Doha negotiations no later than 1 January 2005 as set out in the Ministerial Declaration of the Fourth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization (‘Doha Ministerial Declaration’);

“5. Further expresses its concern about the adverse consequences that the setback of the Fifth Ministerial Conference may have for the multilateral trading system, including a possible surge in protectionist measures;

“6. Emphasizes that bilateral and regional trade arrangements should contribute to the multilateral trading system;

“7. Expresses its concern about the adoption of a number of unilateral actions that are not consistent with the rules of the World Trade Organization, harm the exports of all countries, in particular those of developing countries, and have a considerable bearing on the ongoing World Trade Organization negotiations and on the achievement and further enhancement of the development dimension of the trade negotiations;

“8. Considers, in this respect, that the political will and commitment of the major trading partners to address the key development issues promptly and fully and focus on the core trade issues are essential for bringing the negotiations back on track;

“9. Underscores the need for concerted international political will and efforts in addressing the imbalances and inequalities in the process of globalization and in trade negotiations by opening up developed country markets to the export products of particular interest to developing countries;

“10. Stresses the importance of an open, transparent, inclusive and democratic process and of procedures that would allow for active participation by all members and enable them to have the vital interests of their peoples duly reflected in the outcome of trade negotiations;

“11. Also stresses the need to place the interests and concerns of developing countries at the heart of the international trading system and to revive the faith of developing countries in the Doha work programme and, in this regard, calls upon all members of the World Trade Organization, particularly the developed countries, to engage in negotiations with a renewed sense of urgency and purpose and to redouble their efforts to achieve the following:

“(e) The positive consideration of trade-related issues pertaining to the commodity sector in the multilateral trading system, taking account of the work of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development in this area and the report of the Meeting of Eminent Persons on Commodity Issues, prepared in accordance with General Assembly resolution 57/236 of 20 December 2002, and continued work on commodities by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development;

“14. Welcomes the decision adopted by the General Council of the World Trade Organization on the implementation of paragraph 6 of the Doha Declaration on the Agreement on Trade-related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights and Public Health to address the problems faced by countries with insufficient or no manufacturing capacities in the pharmaceutical sector in accessing medicines at affordable prices when combating epidemics of mass gravity, including HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria, and invites all members to work towards an expeditious and permanent solution to the issue by, inter alia, amending the Agreement on Trade-related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights to ensure that the solution will be simple to use, sustainable, predictable and legally secure;
