1. Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa

($5,373,000)

Background, mandate and objective

2. The Inter-Agency Mission to West Africa (S/2001/434) recommended the establishment of “a mechanism for systematic and regular consultations among entities of the United Nations system in West Africa for defining and harmonizing national and subregional policies and strategies”. Following a subsequent exchange of letters between the Secretary-General (S/2001/1128) and the Security Council (S/2001/1129), the Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa (UNOWA) was established for an initial period of three years. The mandate of UNOWA was extended for an additional three years through another exchange of letters (S/2004/525 and S/2004/858) and following a midterm review of the performance of UNOWA submitted to the Security Council (S/2004/797). A second midterm review was submitted to the Council in May 2007 (S/2007/294). UNOWA is based at the United Nations Office for West Africa in Dakar.

3. The work of UNOWA has been acknowledged on several occasions, including in the statement of the President of the Security Council (S/PRST/2005/9) made following the debate of the Council on the Secretary-General’s progress report on ways to combat subregional problems in West Africa (S/2005/86). The Council noted “with appreciation the enhanced cooperation among the various United Nations political and peacekeeping missions in the subregion” and encouraged UNOWA “further to promote an integrated and joint subregional approach”. In its presidential statement of 9 August 2006 (S/PRST/2006/38), the Council emphasized the regional dimension of peace and security in West Africa and “encouraged the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa and the United Nations missions in the region to continue their efforts in coordinating United Nations activities to ensure their improved cohesion and maximum efficiency”. At the Council’s request, the Secretary-General submitted on 13 March 2007 a report on cross-border issues in West Africa (S/2007/143), with recommendations for United Nations mission cooperation in the region on those issues.

4. In the annex to his letter of 14 December 2004 (S/2005/16) the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of the intended mandate, functions and activities of UNOWA from 1 January 2005 to 31 December 2007. In his response, the President of the Security Council, in his letter of 11 January 2005 (S/2005/17), indicated that the Council took note of the information and intention contained in the letter of the Secretary-General.

5. As indicated in the mandate attached to the letter from the Secretary-General (S/2005/16), UNOWA is entrusted with the overall mandate of enhancing the contribution of the United Nations towards the achievement of peace and security priorities in West Africa. In the performance of its mandate, UNOWA carries out the following tasks:

(a) Enhancing linkages in the work of the United Nations and other partners in the subregion, by promoting an integrated subregional approach and facilitating coordination and information exchange, with due regard to specific mandates of United Nations organizations as well as peacekeeping operations and peacebuilding support offices;

(b) Liaising with and assisting, as appropriate, the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) and the Mano River Union, in consultation with other subregional organizations and international partners;

(c) Carrying out good offices roles and special assignments in countries of the subregion, on behalf of the Secretary-General, including in the areas of conflict prevention and peacebuilding efforts;

(d) Reporting to Headquarters on key developments of subregional significance;

(e) Carrying out additional tasks assigned by the Secretary-General and the Security Council, including support to the work of the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission and follow-up of the relevant recommendations contained in the report of the June 2004 Security Council mission to West Africa (S/2004/525) and of the Council's recommendations on cross-border issues in West Africa (S/PRST/2004/7).

6. UNOWA collaborates closely with United Nations peace missions in the subregion (the United Nations Integrated Office in Sierra Leone (UNIOSIL), the United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL), the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI) and the United Nations Peacebuilding Support Office in Guinea-Bissau (UNOGBIS)) and with the specialized agencies of the United Nations. The Office facilitates collaboration among missions, as recommended by the Security Council (S/PRST/2004/7) and the Secretary-General, notably in his report on inter-mission cooperation (S/2005/135). In that regard, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa coordinates and chairs quarterly meetings between the heads of peace missions. Those meetings aim at sharing information and perspectives on political developments in the respective mission areas and their regional impact. In addition, UNOWA collaborates with the specialized agencies of the United Nations, especially through the holding of regular inter-institutional discussions on integrated cross-border strategies. In 2008 UNOWA will continue that collaboration, in line with its mandate and activities thus far undertaken.

7. UNOWA also collaborates with United Nations missions in the sharing of assets, notably with a view to maximizing the use of resources, therefore, minimizing costs. In that context, UNOWA shares air assets with other missions and agencies in the subregion. It provides support to United Nations missions transiting in Dakar. The arrangements already established for UNOWA to share staff and assets with the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission will remain fully implemented in 2008.

8. Collaboration between UNOWA and ECOWAS is ongoing. The collaboration defined in a joint workplan includes: good offices and high-level missions; regular meetings between the focal points of both institutions; working group meetings; activities in the field; cooperation through the ECOWAS-European Union troika and the meetings of the international contact groups, on the Mano River Union and Guinea-Bissau, respectively. For 2008, UNOWA is committed to working closely with ECOWAS in the implementation of its New Strategic Vision for Regional Development, adopted at the ECOWAS Heads of State Summit in Abuja on 15 June 2007, and focusing on the concept of a borderless West Africa by 2020. Key areas of cooperation will include: regional peace and security, sustainable development, poverty reduction, respect for human rights and the consolidation of democracy. UNOWA will also work closely to support and assist ECOWAS in the implementation of its new comprehensive Strategic Framework for Conflict Prevention as well as the following ECOWAS Protocols: the Protocol relating to the Mechanism for Conflict Prevention, Management, Resolution, Peacekeeping and Security; the Protocol on Democracy and Good Governance and the Protocol on the Free Movement of Persons and the Right of Residence and Establishment.

9. In 2007, UNOWA has continued to increase awareness of and facilitated concerted and integrated action on subregional challenges considered by the Secretary-General and the Security Council to be the root causes of instability in West Africa. The Office has helped to formulate recommendations and strategies on how to address these issues regionally, notably through national and cross-border collaboration among United Nations entities in the subregion, including United Nations peace missions, and governmental and non-governmental actors. During the course of 2007, UNOWA has, inter alia:

(a) As a follow-up to previous reports prepared by the Office on cross-border issues in West Africa, at the request of the Council and in consultation with the overall United Nations system and its regional partners, including ECOWAS, advised on a new set of recommendations which reflected the developments in the subregion. The recommendations of the Secretary-General to the Council (S/2007/143) called for strengthened attention to good governance, security sector reform, sanctions, cross-border organized crime, rapid urbanization, youth unemployment and irregular migration;

(b) In the context of its work on integrated strategies for border areas, contributed to the implementation of the ECOWAS initiative on borders as zones of peace (“pays frontière”) — especially along the Benin/Nigeria border zone;

(c) Continued to promote and facilitate the implementation of a regional approach to security sector reform in West Africa, also in cooperation with the European Union;

(d) Continued to raise awareness and promote youth employment as a means to reduce instability in the region, notably through the establishment at UNOWA of a Youth Employment Unit for West Africa, to serve as a regional clearinghouse of information and cooperation;

(e) Raised awareness on four security challenges in West Africa and international responses to them, notably: irregular migration, security threats and piracy, the use and effectiveness of sanctions and rapid urbanization;

(f) Continued to facilitate inter-mission cooperation among the United Nations missions in the subregion (UNMIL, UNOCI, UNIOSIL and UNOGBIS), at political (regular meetings of special representatives of the Secretary-General), military (regular meetings of United Nations Force Commanders and Military Advisers) and expert level (regular meetings of officers in charge of human rights, humanitarian, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and gender issues);

(g) Continued to advance cooperation with the ECOWAS Commission through joint activities, meetings and missions aimed at furthering peace and security in the subregion, including on youth, migration and transborder cooperation; and assisted ECOWAS in the formulation of the comprehensive ECOWAS Strategic Framework for the Prevention of Conflict, as examined in Banjul in June 2007;

(h) Contributed to the facilitation of regional cooperation on human rights, humanitarian and gender issues among United Nations peace missions and specialized institutions, Governments, regional organizations and civil society.

2. United Nations Peacebuilding Support Office in the Central African Republic

($6,409,900)

Background, mandate and objective

15. Following a series of violent and dramatic mutinies among the country's armed forces in 1996 and 1997, the Security Council decided to establish the United Nations Mission in the Central African Republic (MINURCA) on 15 April 1998. At that time, MINURCA replaced the Inter-African Mission to Monitor the Implementation of the Bangui Agreement (MISAB), an African regional peacekeeping force supported by French military logistic units. During the MINURCA mandate, from April 1998 to February 2000, successful legislative and presidential elections were held in 1998 and 1999, respectively. After the withdrawal of MINURCA, the Secretary-General, in his letter dated 3 December 1999 to the President of the Security Council (S/1999/1235), recommended that the United Nations continue a political presence in the country in order to help its Government address security and developmental challenges. The Council approved the Secretary-General's recommendation (S/1999/1236), which led to the establishment of the United Nations Peacebuilding Support Office in the Central African Republic (BONUCA) on 16 February 2000.

16. The initial mandate of BONUCA was to support the Government's efforts in consolidating peace and national reconciliation and strengthening democratic institutions. The Office was also charged with facilitating the mobilization of international support for the country's reconstruction and economic recovery. Following an attempted coup d'état in May 2001, the BONUCA mandate was strengthened and, in 2003, was reoriented to assist the Government during a transition period after the overthrow of President Patassé's regime by General François Bozizé on 15 March 2003. A constitutional referendum was held in December 2004, followed by multiparty presidential and legislative elections, on 13 March and 8 May 2005, respectively. The 2005 elections ended the transition period.

17. However, despite the 2005 elections, the political environment remains volatile. This is due to lack of a dialogue between the Government and the socio-political actors, weak implementation by the Government of political, economic and security-related reforms provided for by the 2003 Act of National Dialogue, as well as rebel activities carried out by the Front démocratique du peuple centrafricain (FDPC), the Armée populaire pour la restauration de la démocratie (APRD) and the Union des forces démocratiques pour le rassemblement (UFDR) in the northern parts of the country. Furthermore, continued insecurity in the country has resulted in increased human rights violations, impoverishment and displacement of the population, including to neighbouring Cameroon and Chad. Instability in the Darfur region of the Sudan and in eastern Chad, coupled with acts of banditry along the common borders between the countries, has increased the level of insecurity in the Central African Republic and in the subregion as a whole.

18. Nevertheless, the signing of two peace agreements, the first at Sirte, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, on 2 February 2007, between the Government and FDPC and the second at Birao, Central African Republic, on 13 April 2007, between the Government and UFDR, represents a significant step towards peace consolidation and political stabilization of the country. BONUCA and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General play an important role in the peace consolidation process, including through the "Panel of the Wise", a prominent civil society group.

19. In 2007, BONUCA reinforced partnership with the United Nations Resident Coordinator and other heads of the United Nations system entities in the Central African Republic. The Office participated in the Security Management Team and in weekly and ad hoc coordination meetings of the United Nations country team. BONUCA contributed to the review of the Consolidated Appeal Process and to the development of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF) for the period from 2007 to 2011. Further, it participated in a number of field missions jointly organized with the United Nations country team in order to assess the political, security and humanitarian situation, mainly in the country's north-western and north-eastern provinces. The Office contributed to the development of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), World Bank and the African Development Bank national poverty reduction strategy paper placing special emphasis on the country's political and security sectors during the exercise. It should be noted that UNDAF and the poverty reduction strategy paper constitute the comprehensive peacebuilding strategy for the Central African Republic.

20. BONUCA continued to collaborate with subregional organizations, including the Economic Community of Central African States and the Monetary and Economic Community of Central Africa, as well as with the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUC), particularly on the security-related issues.

21. Since its establishment, BONUCA has played a dissuasive role, while supporting Government and other national efforts to strengthen democratic institutions and reinforce national unity and reconciliation. More remains to be done by the international community, both in the area of human rights and in the political arena. At the same time, it is understood that the primary responsibility for achieving long-term political stability rests with the Government of the Central African Republic. Therefore, while peacebuilding is a long-term undertaking, the presence of BONUCA and efforts to consolidate peace and democracy in the country should be limited in time.

22. In 2007, BONUCA helped to reduce tensions between the Government and political parties and trade unions through mediation and the interposition of good offices. The Office's mediation and reconciliation activities have led to the Central African Republic authorities' acceptance to engage in an inclusive dialogue with political and armed opposition and civil society groups. BONUCA continues to facilitate preparations for the inclusive dialogue.

23. BONUCA provided continuous support to the Government's efforts to address institutional reforms and economic development needs. The Office continued to regularly convene a Committee of External Partners, which includes ambassadors of the Security Council members and representatives of the Central African Republic's multilateral partners. The Committee jointly monitored political and economic developments in the country and assisted the Government in establishing an environment conducive to the mobilization of bilateral and multilateral development assistance.

24. The Office provided financial and technical support to national institutions and human rights organizations to strengthen their capacity. BONUCA monitored cases of serious human rights abuses and intervened before judicial authorities advocating the need to observe international human rights norms and combat impunity. 3. United Nations Peacebuilding Support Office in Guinea-Bissau

Background, mandate and objective

32. In its resolution 1216 (1998), the Security Council requested the Secretary-General to make recommendations to the Council on a possible role for the United Nations in the process of peace and reconciliation in Guinea-Bissau. In his letter dated 26 February 1999 to the President of the Security Council (S/1999/232), the Secretary-General proposed the establishment of a United Nations Peacebuilding Support Office in Guinea-Bissau, which became operational in July 1999. As a result of the changing political climate and on subsequent requests by the Government, the mandate of the Office was repeatedly extended. With the completion of the political transition and the full restoration of constitutional order in October 2005, an important element of the UNOGBIS mandate was achieved. However, the Office still had a major role to play in key areas of the consolidation of peace and stability in Guinea-Bissau. To enable UNOGBIS to continue assisting the country to address its post-transitional challenges, as it pursued its difficult peacebuilding process, the mandate of the Office was streamlined and extended for one year until 31 December 2007.

33. Under its revised mandate, and within the framework of a comprehensive peacebuilding strategy, UNOGBIS continued to support efforts to consolidate constitutional rule, enhance political dialogue and promote national reconciliation and respect for the rule of law and human rights. It also helped to strengthen the capacity of national institutions to maintain constitutional order, prevent and manage conflict, consolidate peace and democracy, and encouraged, as well as supported national efforts to reform the security sector, helping also to mobilize international support for those efforts. UNOGBIS worked closely with the United Nations Resident Coordinator and the United Nations country team to strengthen system-wide synergies and complementarities and to mobilize international financial assistance to enable the Government to meet its immediate financial and logistical needs, and to enhance cooperation and coordination with the African Union, ECOWAS, the Community of Portuguese-speaking Countries (CPLP), the International Contact Group and other international partners as well as inter-mission cooperation.

34. To fulfil those objectives, UNOGBIS worked constructively with a cross section of Guinea-Bissau society to promote constructive dialogue, reconciliation and reconstruction to the country. The Office has played a pivotal role in ensuring that the political crisis involving the President, the Parliament and the three major parties, which led to the change of government in March 2007, was solved through the proper constitutional channels, upholding the spirit of the rule of law. At the same time, UNOGBIS remained engaged in preventing a further stalling of the much needed security sector reform process by calling on the relevant national authorities to implement measures to make the security sector reform operational, while impressing upon donors the need to provide technical and material assistance for the project to succeed. Similarly, in its regular contacts with the Government, UNOGBIS has continued to stress the need to ensure practices of good governance, which would increase the confidence of international partners in the Government's ability to meet its 2007 goals, a factor that remains essential to sustainable economic and socio-political stability, as well as for the preparations for the 2008 elections.

35. In 2007, UNOGBIS has continued to collaborate with the United Nations country team in Guinea-Bissau, resulting in the effective alignment of peace consolidation and socio-economic development efforts in that country. The United Nations comprehensive peacebuilding strategy for Guinea-Bissau has been revised and harmonized with the United Nations country team goals for the country. Most of the UNOGBIS peacebuilding activities are undertaken in consultation with relevant United Nations country team agencies, notably the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). Planning and preparations for the contribution of UNOGBIS to the 2008 elections will be done in close cooperation with UNDP, which is the lead agency on that activity.

36. UNOGBIS has increased its efforts to combat drug trafficking in Guinea-Bissau by working closely with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime. It signed a memorandum of understanding with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime for the secondment of an expert to UNOGBIS for eight months to prepare a country strategy to combat drug trafficking in Guinea-Bissau. This programme will receive support from the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime regional office in Dakar. As part of its ongoing effort to control small arms, UNOGBIS is collaborating with the Office of Disarmament Affairs. The two-year project of the National Commission to Combat the Proliferation of Small Arms and Light Weapons, was reviewed by an Office of Disarmament Affairs mission in May 2007, and has been extended for an additional three years (2007-2010). In addition, UNOGBIS initiated contacts with the Department of Political Affairs Mediation Support Unit and the Peacebuilding Support Office to seek support for implementing its mandated tasks to overcome various risks and challenges faced in Guinea-Bissau.

37. During 2007, UNOGBIS has continued to play a critical role in assisting national authorities and other key stakeholders to create a political environment conducive to the preparations for successful elections in 2008, this includes: (a) the promotion of political dialogue; (b) the facilitation of the implementation of the security sector reform strategy; and (c) the engagement of the international community towards providing technical and financial assistance for the country's socio-economic rehabilitation.

38. UNOGBIS uses its good offices and discreet mediation activities to support the initiatives of national stakeholders to defuse tensions. The Office's constant collaboration with external partners such as the ECOWAS, CPLP and the International Contact Group on Guinea-Bissau, as well as its advocacy efforts for Guinea-Bissau before the diplomatic community, continue to enhance the development of an integrated approach to peacebuilding initiatives within the framework of the United Nations peacebuilding strategy for Guinea-Bissau.

39. UNOGBIS contributes to the institutionalization of peace through, inter alia, the enhancement of constructive political dialogue as a conflict prevention/conflict management mechanism. To that end, the mission continues, in close collaboration with the Netherlands Development Organization, its training activities aimed at strengthening the role of Parliament as a forum for constructive political dialogue and peaceful conflict management. This programme has a component in leadership, conflict transformation and negotiation skills training for parliamentarians, as well as a module to enhance the role of female parliamentarians in promoting sustainable development. This also includes a training-of-trainers programme on conflict management, aimed at national actors with the potential to facilitate further capacity development in that area. In addition, UNOGBIS has organized a series of workshops with legislative leaders on existing legislation and on amnesty and other issues of justice such as impunity and the rule of law.

40. Furthermore, UNOGBIS has initiated a training programme for journalists, focusing on practical skills, ethics and peacebuilding issues so as to enable the local media to operate more effectively and to uphold the values of impartiality in reporting. The Office has also continued with various radio programmes to discuss subjects of national relevance, in order to broaden public participation in discussing and understanding key socio-economic and political issues.

41. UNOGBIS assisted the national authorities and other stakeholders to: (a) generate the political will to undertake concrete actions towards the implementation of security sector reform on the understanding that without it, stability and sustainable development would be compromised; (b) formulate a plan of action for the implementation of the security sector reform strategy document, which includes a monitoring and evaluation framework to oversee its implementation; (c) activate a clear coordination mechanism for its effective implementation; and (d) persuade international partners to support the implementation of the security sector reform strategy. The framework for the implementation of the strategy provides for an inter-ministerial security sector reform committee and a streamlined steering and technical coordination committee, which is in charge of formulating the plan of action that will subsequently be submitted to international partners for funding support.

42. Furthermore, considerable progress has been achieved in combating the proliferation of small arms and light weapons, since the establishment of the National Commission, comprised of representatives of the main State stakeholders, civil society organizations, the war veterans association, ECOWAS and UNOGBIS. The work of the National Commission is initially supported jointly by ECOWAS and the United Nations.

43. UNOGBIS has used its good offices to encourage the national authorities to send positive signals of commitment to and engagement in peaceful dialogue, good governance, respect for human rights and the rule of law, security sector reform and the reform of the public sector. UNOGBIS has continued to advocate, before the country's development partners, for increased financial assistance to Guinea-Bissau, emphasizing the need to support political and socio-economic stability. In that connection, UNOGBIS works closely with UNDP, the Bretton Woods institutions, the European Union and other partners, to ensure support to the security sector reform and the poverty reduction strategy paper, as well as for the successful preparation and holding of elections in 2008.

44. The objective, expected accomplishments and indicators of achievement of UNOGBIS are presented below.

47. It is proposed to establish a position of Finance Assistant (Field Service) to strengthen the finance capacity in the mission and improve the budget preparation process and coordination with UNDP, on which UNOGBIS relies for disbursement of funds. The recruitment of a Finance Assistant with proven experience in finance and budgetary matters would provide effective support to the Administrative Officer who oversees all administrative activities of the mission (personnel, procurement, finance and budget). The current arrangement of tasking a United Nations Volunteer for these functions has proved inadequate. Accordingly, one United Nations Volunteer position will no longer be required.

48. Further, it is proposed to abolish one position of a Liaison Officer (National Officer). The functions of the position, as may be necessary, would be met by reallocation of tasks within existing staff resources.

4. United Nations Political Office for Somalia

($7,841,600)

Background, mandate and objective

49. The United Nations Political Office for Somalia (UNPOS) was established on 15 April 1995 pursuant to an exchange of letters between the Secretary-General (S/1995/231, S/1995/322 and S/1995/451) and the President of the Security Council (S/1995/452), in order to assist the Secretary-General's efforts to advance the cause of peace and reconciliation in Somalia through contacts with Somali leaders, civic organizations and the States and organizations concerned.

50. The mandate of UNPOS was extended in November 2005 for the period 2006-2007 on the basis of a request contained in a letter dated 16 November 2005 from the Secretary-General to the President of the Security Council (S/2005/729), and the latter's reply of 21 November 2005 (S/2005/730).

51. In his report of 18 February 2005 (S/2005/89), the Secretary-General informed the Security Council about developments regarding the national reconciliation process in Somalia and provided an update on the security situation as well as humanitarian and development activities of United Nations programmes and agencies in Somalia. He also reported to the Council that the United Nations had been asked by the Transitional Federal Government, the countries of the region and the international donor community to take the lead in coordinating support to implement the agreements reached at the Somali National Reconciliation Conference and foster the establishment of peace and stability in Somalia. The Secretary-General also proposed an expanded role for the United Nations, which includes, inter alia:

- (a) Assisting in fostering reconciliation among Somali parties through dialogue;
- (b) Assisting in the effort to address the issue of "Somaliland";
- (c) Coordinating support for the peace process with Somalia's neighbours and other regional and international partners;
- (d) Chairing the Coordination and Monitoring Committee as well as playing a lead political role in peacebuilding activities in Somalia.

52. In a presidential statement dated 7 March 2005 (S/PRST/2005/11), the Security Council, inter alia, welcomed the efforts of UNPOS and noted the need to expand the United Nations presence as proposed by the Secretary-General. Subsequently, in the context of the action taken by the Council on 7 March 2005, the Secretary-General submitted his budget proposals for 2005 incorporating the proposed expansion of UNPOS to the General Assembly (A/59/534/Add.4).

53. In his report of 16 June 2005 (S/2005/392), the Secretary-General expressed concern regarding the impasse within the Transitional Federal Institutions over, inter alia, the Transitional Federal Government plan to relocate to Somalia and the proposed inclusion of troops from the “frontline States” (Djibouti, Ethiopia and Kenya) in a future African Union/Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD) peace support mission in Somalia. This resulted in the delay of the Transitional Federal Government plan to commence the relocation of the Transitional Federal Institutions to Somalia from mid-February to 13 June 2005.

54. In the presidential statement issued after its discussion on Somalia on 14 July 2005 (S/PRST/2005/32), the Security Council urged the Somali leaders to continue to work towards reconciliation, through inclusive dialogue in accordance with the Transitional Federal Charter. In that context, the Security Council reaffirmed its strong support for the leadership of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Somalia in his efforts in fostering inclusive dialogue among the leaders of the Transitional Federal Institutions. In the presidential statement of 15 March 2006 (S/PRST/2006/11), made following the presentation of the report of the Secretary-General of 21 February 2006 (S/2006/122), that position was reiterated.

55. Pursuant to Security Council resolution 1744 (2007), UNPOS will continue to encourage the Transitional Federal Government and all parties to engage in all inclusive dialogue as well as facilitate in concert with the African Union and the international donor partners the full deployment of African Mission to Somalia (AMISOM). UNPOS will also work in tandem with the various stakeholders both within and outside the region, including IGAD, to promote regional peace and security which is a prerequisite for the achievement of genuine and sustainable peace and stability in Somalia and the wider Horn of Africa.

56. In both resolutions 1744 (2007) and 1772 (2007), the Security Council requested the Secretary-General to continue and intensify his efforts to strengthen the National Reconciliation Congress and, more widely, promote an ongoing all-inclusive political process, including by assisting the Transitional Federal Institutions in delivering both processes and by working with external partners. In its resolution 1772 (2007), the Council also requested the Secretary-General to submit to it further measures to strengthen the ability of UNPOS to fulfil its enhanced role, to consult with the African Union Commission on what further support might be provided to AMISOM, and to continue to develop the existing contingency planning for the possible deployment of a United Nations peacekeeping operation replacing AMISOM.

57. UNPOS continued to support the implementation of the Transitional Federal Charter in close coordination with the Transitional Federal Government, the United Nations country team and the international community. The Office provided political guidance to various partners and stakeholders based on the road map and sequencing chart prepared by the Special Representative. It also supported Somali-owned initiatives on national reconciliation in concert with other members of the international community. UNPOS attended various international meetings on Somalia, including those of the International Contact Group held in Nairobi, Dar-es-Salaam, Cairo and London, the African Union Peace and Security Council, IGAD and the Organization of Islamic Conference, and provided them with political advice and guidance with regards to the implementation of Security Council resolution 1744 (2007) regarding the politics of inclusiveness. It also provided advice and guidance in the area of regional security architecture for the Horn of Africa.

58. UNPOS, in its capacity as Chair of the International Advisory Committee, took the lead in coordinating international support and assistance to the National Governance and Reconciliation Committee as the sole body charged with organizing and managing the National Reconciliation Congress. The International Advisory Committee was established at the request of the Transitional Federal Government to serve as a mechanism to advise the National Governance and Reconciliation Committee during the preparation and the organization of the National Reconciliation Congress. Also in 2007, UNPOS and the United Nations country team have continued to closely cooperate in the mapping out of strategies and programmes within the framework of the Joint Needs Assessment and Reconstruction and Development Programme for Somalia.

59. Because of the security situation, UNPOS could not relocate to Somalia in 2007. However, it has established and made fully operational four of the five envisaged regional offices inside Somalia, including in Baidoa, Mogadishu, Kismayo and Hargeisa and has been undertaking incremental and phased steps for the relocation of UNPOS to Somalia. The initial relocation plan is being hampered by the current unfavourable security situation as well as the lack of progress in fostering an all-inclusive reconciliation process within the framework of the National Reconciliation Congress, which is a key to the advent of lasting and sustainable peace and stability in the country.

60. In the pursuit of its mandate, UNPOS is in daily contact with the Department of Political Affairs for political guidance regarding political developments and options for actions to be taken and as the lead political organization on Somalia, UNPOS has always been working in close cooperation with United Nations system agencies and programmes in Nairobi, including the United Nations Office at Nairobi, the Office of the Resident and Humanitarian Coordinator as well the United Nations country team to provide them with the required political guidance and to enhance the use of comparative advantages and avoid duplication of efforts in the provision of a wide range of support services.

61. At the broader regional level, UNPOS has started working in closer collaboration with the United Nations Mission in the Sudan and the United Nations Mission in Ethiopia and Eritrea to address cross-cutting issues and the regional dimensions of the various conflicts in the Horn of Africa.

62. During 2007, the creation of a framework for obtaining adherence of all parties to the Transitional Federal Charter has been addressed by promoting an all-inclusive approach during the National Reconciliation Conference, holding talks with the different opposition groups with the aim to encourage them to join the peace process during and after the National Reconciliation Conference, by providing together with members of the international community sound advice and guidance to the National Governance and Reconciliation Committee on how to conduct the Conference.

Some provisions of the Transitional Federal Charter has been implemented, including the Transitional Federal Institutions and some specialized commissions such as the Constitutional Commission and the National Reconciliation Commission. Further, the aim of ensuring coherence among the international community has been pursued through the active participation of UNPOS in the meetings of the International Contact Group and regular consultations with countries of the region that have an impact on the Somali warring parties including Egypt, Eritrea and Ethiopia.

63. In addition, UNPOS addressed the issue of strengthening the capacity of the Transitional Federal Institutions to function effectively by implementing directly and through UNDP specific activities including capacity-building support for the strengthening of the judiciary and institutional strengthening for the National Reconciliation Commission. UNPOS is in the process of organizing seminars and workshops on policing standards, the constitution-making process, the participation of women in the decision-making process, as well as study tours on peace and reconciliation mechanisms and security sector reform.

64. In 2008, UNPOS will continue its efforts to promote peace, security and national reconciliation in Somalia and promote regional security in the Horn of Africa.

Related resource requirements have not yet been included in this proposal and will be presented in early 2008 when the above-mentioned assessment, including the determination of total required human resource levels, both substantive and administrative, as well as related non-post requirements for the period 1 January to 31 December 2008, has been completed.

5. United Nations Integrated Office in Sierra Leone

($28,161,700)

Background, mandate and objective

70. The United Nations Integrated Office in Sierra Leone (UNIOSIL) was established by the Security Council in its resolution 1620 (2005) of 31 August 2005, and became operational on 1 January 2006. The mission was extended by the Security Council in its resolution 1734 (2006) until 31 December 2007. UNIOSIL is mandated to achieve the overall objective of consolidating peace in Sierra Leone. It is expected that the Council will consider the extension of UNIOSIL by the end of 2007.

71. In addition to its headquarters in Freetown, UNIOSIL has established regional offices in six districts. These are now fully integrated with UNDP and other relevant United Nations system entities, including the World Food Programme and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

72. Within the framework of its expanded mandate, in 2007, UNIOSIL, in close collaboration with the United Nations country team, donors and other international partners, provided strategic policy direction and coordination of donor and other international support towards enhanced peace consolidation assistance to the Government of Sierra Leone. Such support included financial and technical assistance for the preparations for the 2007 presidential and parliamentary elections; promotion of human rights; policy reviews and programme development in the area of economic recovery and private sector development; security sector threat analysis; activities aimed at gender equality; and youth employment and empowerment efforts. In 2007, UNIOSIL and United Nations system entities jointly formulated and adopted the new United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF) for the period 2008 to 2010.

73. With regard to programme planning and implementation, UNIOSIL coordinated closely with the United Nations country team, the Government of Sierra Leone and other national stakeholders, as well as donors and other international partners, in the collective efforts towards the overarching objective of peace consolidation. In collaboration with the Peacebuilding Commission, UNIOSIL provided substantial support to the Government of Sierra Leone to finalize a priority plan that articulates four critical peacebuilding challenges, including youth employment and empowerment, security and justice sector reform, consolidation of the democratization process, as well as good governance and capacity-building.

74. UNIOSIL will continue to assist the Government of Sierra Leone to further strengthen the capacity of national institutions to address the root causes of the conflict. Paramount to that effort will be the mission's leadership in the coordination of support to address performance gaps in the security and justice sectors, as well as the corrections system; promotion of an enhanced governance reform to improve accountability and transparency, including enhancing anti-corruption efforts. Further efforts will also be made to consolidate democracy building to enhance the fragile stability in the country. The mission will focus greater attention in these areas, alongside supporting a successful transition to, and strengthening of the capacity of, the new administration following the August 2007 presidential and parliamentary elections.

75. In his report on UNIOSIL to the Security Council dated 7 May 2007 (S/2007/257), the Secretary-General informed the Council of his intention to conduct a comprehensive assessment of the role played by UNIOSIL and to submit to the Council his recommendations concerning an exit strategy as well as the future United Nations presence in the country. To that end, an interdepartmental technical assessment mission led by the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and comprising representatives of the Department of Political Affairs, the Peacebuilding Support Office, the United Nations Development Programme and the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights visited Sierra Leone from 15 to 25 October to conduct the assessment and collect the information needed to develop these recommendations. The findings of the assessment mission and the Secretary-General's recommendations concerning the future United Nations presence in Sierra Leone will be set out in the forthcoming report of the Secretary-General, which is scheduled to be released to the Security Council in early December.

76. UNIOSIL will put emphasis on activities that support the implementation of the Compact to address outstanding issues that are central to tackling the root causes of conflict, including building the capacity of the Government and critical national institutions, as well as civil society, gender mainstreaming in various programmes in line with Security Council resolution 1325 (2000). The mission will closely collaborate with the National Human Rights Commission to advocate its public role as the lead national institution for promoting gender equality and women's empowerment and the protection and promotion of human rights. UNIOSIL will also give priority to the development of legal and institutional frameworks and an enhanced legislative reform process to further consolidate peace.

77. Collaboration between UNIOSIL and United Nations system entities in the substantive area will be guided by UNDAF in support of the implementation of initiatives aimed at achieving sustainable growth and overall human development, as well as support for the Government of Sierra Leone in implementing the Compact.

78. In 2008, cross-border issues such as arms trafficking, uncontrolled movement of people, smuggling of precious minerals and drug trafficking will need to be addressed. This will require enhanced inter-mission cooperation and liaison with UNOWA, as well as frequent meetings, consultations and joint initiatives with other United Nations operations in the subregion.

79. UNIOSIL will continue its close cooperation with other United Nations missions and United Nations system entities also in the administrative and logistical area. As a result of this cooperation, in 2008, UNMIL will assume the overall responsibility for the air safety. Following the cost-sharing agreements with WFP and UNDP, UNIOSIL has co-located its staff and facilities in Sierra Leone districts with the respective agencies, thereby reducing the costs for field-based operations to a minimum.

6. United Nations support to the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission

($8,273,200)

Background, mandate and objective

85. The United Nations established the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission (CNMC) to facilitate the implementation of the 10 October 2002 ruling of the International Court of Justice on the Cameroon-Nigeria boundary dispute. It was established as a special political mission in 2004 through exchange of letters between the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council (S/2004/298 and S/2004/299). The mandate of the Mixed Commission includes supporting the demarcation of the land boundary and the maritime boundary, facilitating the withdrawal and transfer of authority along the boundary, addressing the situation of affected populations and making recommendations on confidence-building measures.

86. The Mixed Commission, in coordination with the Department of Political Affairs, works for the promotion of regional stability and enhanced cooperation between Cameroon and Nigeria. The Mixed Commission's programme of work is consistent with Headquarters guiding principles and implemented in consultation with both the Department of Political Affairs and the Department of Field Support.

87. The Mixed Commission secretariat is hosted within the United Nations Office for West Africa in Dakar. Cost-sharing mechanisms range from administrative and logistics support (travel and office management, including information technology and finance) to substantive issues such as public information and human rights. The Mixed Commission also benefits from synergies with UNDP, United Nations partners, the World Bank, and the African Development Bank. UNDP Cameroon and Nigeria provide support — including logistical and administrative — to the Mixed Commission and to the United Nations Observers deployed in their respective countries. Moreover, consultative processes with other United Nations system entities and international organizations have led to strengthening complementarities and synergies between stakeholders in the support of the demarcation of the land boundary and in support of confidence-building measures for the affected populations. United Nations system entities in Cameroon have formulated a joint programme for humanitarian assistance and community-based development in the Lake Chad area. The European Union is supportive to local-community development initiatives both in Bakassi and other areas. The African Development Bank is working on a multinational highway programme between Cameroon and Nigeria.

88. The tasks and responsibilities of the Mixed Commission in 2008 would comprise the completion of activities pertaining to the demarcation of the land boundary; the tripoint of the maritime boundary between Cameroon, Equatorial Guinea and Nigeria; and confidence-building measures and environmental safeguards necessary to ensure the sustainability of good relations of neighbourliness.

89. Following the successful implementation of the four sections of the International Court of Justice ruling (Lake Chad area, land boundary, Bakassi Peninsula and maritime boundary), the Mixed Commission will focus on accelerating the land demarcation exercise and activities addressing the needs of affected populations.

90. The Mixed Commission expects to complete the field assessment of the land boundary and to contract the execution of the physical demarcation activities (i.e., emplacement of pillars, with quality control and certification for each marker) by the end of 2008.

91. With respect to the Bakassi Peninsula, the withdrawal and transfer of authority from the Zone is expected by 12 June 2008 in compliance with the terms of the Greentree Agreement of 12 June 2006.

92. In 2009, the sole support of cartographers and surveyors (full time), and legal adviser (while actually employed (WAE)) might be needed to supervise the physical demarcation of the boundary.

93. The four sections of the International Court of Justice ruling have now been resolved comprising of the withdrawal and transfer of authority in the Lake Chad area in December 2003; along the land boundary in July 2004; the agreement on the modalities of withdrawal and transfer of authority in the Bakassi Peninsula in June 2006, and the delineation of the maritime boundary, agreed upon in May 2007. All reports by United Nations civilian observers have concluded that the prevailing situation concerning the rights of affected populations is satisfactory. Concerning the demarcation of the land boundary, so far more than 700 kilometres have been demarcated and it is anticipated that the 1,000-kilometre mark will be reached before the end of 2007.

94. By June 2008, Nigeria is to transfer to Cameroon the Zone in the Bakassi Peninsula under its authority, as described in the Greentree Agreement. In addition, further to the conclusion of the execution of the International Court of Justice judgment of 10 October 2002 concerning the maritime boundary between the two countries, the Mixed Commission plans to assist in discussions on the maritime tripoint between Cameroon, Equatorial Guinea and Nigeria.

95. The Mixed Commission continues to support the formulation of confidence-building measures meant at ensuring the security and welfare of the affected population, as well as promoting initiatives in order to enhance trust between the two Governments and their peoples. Key areas identified for action by Governments and their partners entail assistance in food security, education, health, water and basic infrastructure, including the rehabilitation of the Mutengene-Abakaliki road. The Mixed Commission further wishes to encourage environmental projects.

96. The objective, expected accomplishments and indicators of achievement are presented below.

7. International Independent Investigation Commission

($32,068,600)

Background, mandate and objective

100. In its resolution 1595 (2005), the Security Council established an International Independent Investigation Commission, to investigate the assassination of former Lebanese Prime Minister Rafiq Hariri on 14 February 2005. On 15 June 2006, the Security Council adopted resolution 1686 (2006), extending the mandate of the Commission until 15 June 2007, and broadened the mandate by requesting the Commission to provide technical assistance to the Lebanese authorities with regard to their investigations into other attacks perpetrated in Lebanon since 1 October 2004. By its resolution 1748 (2007), the Council further extended the mandate of the Commission until 15 June 2008.

101. In addition, on 30 May 2007, the Security Council adopted resolution 1757 (2007) establishing a Special Tribunal for Lebanon, which is widely expected to start functioning before the expiration of the current mandate of the Commission in June 2008. In that context, as had been the intent of the Commission in the organization of its work to date, the Commission expects to hand over its findings to the Special Tribunal before the expiration of its current mandate. Depending on the date at which the Tribunal shall start functioning, the Commission's operation could be phased out during the course of 2008. However, the precise time at which this will occur is difficult to determine at this stage and therefore provisions are being made for a full year and the Commission stands ready to modify its concept of operations if needed.

102. After a period of increased activity reflected in a substantial increase in staffing level in 2007, as well as in the Commission's regular reports to the Security Council (see S/2007/150 for the most recent report), the intent of the current proposal is one of consolidation and completion of the Commission's mandate.

103. During 2007, the Investigations Division underwent substantial restructuring, to reflect both evolving investigation needs and preparation for handover to the office of the Prosecutor of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon. In addition, four new cases (the assassination of Minister Pierre Gemayel, the Ain Alaq bus bombings and the assassination of Members of Parliament Walid Eido and Antoine Ghanem) were added to the Commission's mandate. To reflect this increased workload and the focus on the investigations, the Legal Advisory Section has now been successfully incorporated into the Investigations Division. The Commission foresees that for the remainder of its mandate, its primary activities will be to pursue its investigations into the Hariri case and 18 other cases dating from October 2004 and to consolidate case narratives, findings to date and finalize recommendations. During 2008, particular emphasis will be placed on forensics work, which is a priority area in the current investigations. The Commission will also continue to elaborate its large and complex data management system, which will be a key component in the successful handover to the Special Tribunal.

104. The Commission is proposing to add posts to its existing structure in the field of security, principally owing to the need to adequately secure the second hotel used to accommodate the Commission's staff, and to the expansion of the Commission's mandate which increases the need for security personnel to provide protection for investigative and other related activities. The security situation in Lebanon remains volatile and the nature of the work of the Commission continues to make it a potential target for attack. In that context, the Commission stresses the need to have adequate security resources available to ensure that it can continue to successfully mitigate existing risks.

105. The Commission expects to continue to enjoy constructive cooperation with several other missions and departments in the United Nations system. As in the past, the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon will continue to provide logistics support and advice particularly on engineering, as and when requested. The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia also continues to provide medical services to the Commission for the duration of its mandate. The Commission also continues to cooperate closely with the Office of the Special Coordinator for Lebanon and with the Department of Political Affairs, the Office of Legal Affairs and the Department of Field Support at United Nations Headquarters.

106. The objective, expected accomplishments and indicators of achievement are presented below.

108. The estimated requirements relating to the International Independent Investigation Commission for the period from 1 January to 31 December 2008 would amount to $32,068,600 net ($37,536,200 gross).

109. The amount requested relates to the provision for salaries and common staff costs ($26,354,400) for a staffing complement of 253 positions; services of experts and consultants ($610,100); official travel ($833,300); and other operational requirements, such as facilities and infrastructure ($654,400) and ground transportation ($1,245,900), communications ($887,100), information technology ($1,049,500), medical ($12,000) and other supplies, services and equipment ($421,900).

110. The total staffing proposed for the Commission for the period from 1 January through 31 December 2008 is 253, as distributed in the table above.

111. The proposed staffing reflects a net increase of 14 posts, comprising eight international staff including a Close Protection Coordinator (P-3), seven Security Officers (Security Service) and six security (Local level) staff to strengthen the security component of the Commission as the security situation in Lebanon and the Middle East region remains very fragile and unpredictable.

112. Currently the Commission occupies two premises as office space and accommodation are co-located within these premises. At present, the Security Section can only provide minimum security coverage to the second of the two premises utilized by the Commission and if the present threat levels and hostile security environment prevails, existing measures that have been put in place by the Security Section will be inadequate. Therefore, the viable proposal taking into account the expanded staffing level and the prevailing hostile security environment for the Commission's work is to increase the positions allocated to the Security Section to enhance the security and safety of the two office premises and the accommodation units housing the staff members. It should be noted that the sensitivity of the Commission's work requires security escort for personnel in all official movements within the mission.

8. United Nations Regional Centre for Preventive Diplomacy for Central Asia

Background, mandate and objective

113. The Secretary-General proposed the establishment of the United Nations Regional Centre for Preventive Diplomacy for Central Asia in his letter of 7 May 2007 to the President of the Security Council (S/2007/279), whose response is contained in his letter of 15 May 2007 (S/2007/280).

The Centre's programme of work is consistent with Headquarters guiding principles, and implemented in consultation with both the Department of Political Affairs and the Department of Field Support.

9. United Nations Integrated Office in Burundi

($32,421,100)

Background, mandate and objective

124. The United Nations Integrated Office in Burundi (BINUB) was established pursuant to Security Council resolution 1719 (2006) for an initial period of one year commencing on 1 January 2007. In accordance with the proposed structure and mandate recommended by the Secretary-General in the addendum to his seventh report on the United Nations Operation in Burundi (ONUB) (S/2006/429/Add.1), BINUB was established to support the Government of Burundi in its efforts towards long-term peace and stability throughout the peace consolidation phase in Burundi, including through ensuring coherence and coordination of the United Nations system entities in Burundi. The mandate extension of BINUB is expected to be considered by the Security Council for another year by the end of 2007.

125. In close coordination with the United Nations system agencies, funds and programmes, the Government and other stakeholders, BINUB has focused, during its initial phase, on the establishment of an overall structure to ensure a cohesive United Nations approach to peace consolidation in Burundi. This has included the development of a United Nations integrated peace consolidation support strategy for the period 2007-2008. The strategy, which was endorsed by the Government on 16 March 2007, provides the overall programmatic framework for implementing Security Council resolution 1719 (2006) and for the activities of the United Nations system in Burundi, which have a direct bearing on peace consolidation during the immediate post-conflict phase. Within this framework, joint programmes in the areas of peace and governance, security sector reform and small arms, and human rights and justice aim to deliver targeted peace consolidation support to help meet the benchmarks and the key objectives of the mandate of the mission.

126. The United Nations presence in Burundi is headed by an Executive Representative of the Secretary-General, who serves as the head of BINUB, the United Nations Resident Coordinator and Humanitarian Coordinator, the UNDP Resident Representative and the Designated Official for Security. The Executive Representative is responsible for integrating United Nations activities and serves as the primary United Nations interlocutor with the Government in all political and development matters. In addition to the office of the Executive Representative, BINUB comprises five substantive sections covering key areas of its mandate, namely: (a) political affairs; (b) peace and governance; (c) security sector reform and small arms; (d) human rights and justice; and (e) public information and communications. BINUB Administration provides the overall logistical and administrative support required.

127. During the first half of 2007, the Government's efforts, with the support of the United Nations, led to an improved relationship with the media and civil society, a commitment to improve governance and the human rights situation, and to fight corruption. During the same period, the Government took measures to improve the judicial system, but both capacity and institutional challenges remain, and are frequently overwhelmed by political events. The global human rights situation in Burundi has improved insofar as widespread violence has ceased. Progress was also made in the process of establishing an independent national human rights commission and the transitional justice mechanisms, starting with the truth and reconciliation commission. It is expected that both the independent national human rights commission and the truth and reconciliation commission will be operational in 2008. However, the level of adherence to human rights principles on the part of uniformed personnel remains low and the issue of violence against women remains a source of concern. No major progress has been made on the Musinga and Gatumba massacres and other sensitive human rights investigations, and the penal and procedural codes are currently stalled at the Parliamentary Law Commission. Nevertheless, the adoption of these drafts would represent a significant step forward in the area of juvenile justice. In relation to the fight against corruption, the newly established Anti-Corruption Brigade has been deployed in four regions of Burundi and the Anti-Corruption Court has been established and is reviewing cases.

128. These positive developments notwithstanding, the overall situation remains fragile and has seen some reversals, which are not unusual in a post-conflict peacebuilding context. One of the key remaining challenges is the stalled implementation of the Comprehensive Ceasefire Agreement of 7 September 2006 between the Government and the last rebel movement (Palipehutu-Forces nationales de libération (FNL), which has distracted Burundians and their partners from focusing on the urgent tasks of national reconciliation and reconstruction.

129. In its continuing pursuit of the objectives outlined in Security Council resolution 1719 (2006), BINUB will endeavour to help Burundi to accomplish some of the following peace consolidation advances which include but are not limited to: (a) improved democratic and accountable governance; (b) greater professionalism and accountability of the security sector as well as public safety; (c) increased respect for human rights particularly of vulnerable groups, women and children;

(d) a transparent and equitable judicial system; (e) greater progress in the fight against impunity and towards national reconciliation; and (f) strengthened coordination and partnership between the Government, the United Nations system in Burundi and international partners for peace consolidation and economic recovery.

133. Additional staff resources are requested for one Humanitarian Affairs Officer (P-4), one Political Affairs Officer (P-3) and one Administrative Assistant (Local level).

134. Currently coordination of humanitarian issues is undertaken by the staff of the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs. With the gradually improving situation, there has been a significant easing of the humanitarian crisis coupled with the fact that the Government of Burundi is taking a more active role in managing the various dimension of humanitarian assistance. It has been determined that the Burundi office of the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs will close by the end of June 2008. However, the Executive Representative of the Secretary-General for Burundi will continue to require support to carry out his functions as United Nations Humanitarian Coordinator. Therefore, provision for six months period, for one Humanitarian Affairs Officer, at the P-4 level is requested, to support the Humanitarian Coordinator in overall policy direction on specific issues related to safeguarding humanitarian principles and ensuring effective delivery of humanitarian assistance and the linkages with other related areas, for example, recovery programmes, peacebuilding, human rights, and so forth, on humanitarian issues related to disasters and emergencies, and capacity-building.

135. Furthermore, in the statement of its President (S/PRST/2007/16) of 30 May 2007, the Security Council encouraged BINUB to work closely with the Peacebuilding Commission and all stakeholders in order to devise a sound strategic framework to foster the commitment of the Government of Burundi and all its partners to the priorities for consolidating peace in Burundi, as well as the development of a strategic framework for peacebuilding, which the Peacebuilding Commission endorsed as part of an integrated peacebuilding strategy for Burundi in June 2007. The Political Affairs Officer (P-3) would assume the important focal point function within BINUB.

136. Provision is also requested for an Administrative Assistant (Local level) to strengthen the activities of the Human Rights and Justice Office in Bujumbura Rurale.

10. United Nations Mission in Nepal

($16,788,600)

Background, mandate and objective

137. By its resolution 1740 (2007), the Security Council decided to establish the United Nations Mission in Nepal (UNMIN) for a period of 12 months, under the leadership of a Special Representative of the Secretary-General. The UNMIN mandate was based on the recommendations of the Secretary-General in his report (S/2007/7), following requests from the Seven-Party Alliance Government and the Communist Party of Nepal (Maoist) for United Nations assistance in support of the peace process. The UNMIN mandate includes the following tasks:

(a) To monitor the management of arms and armed personnel of both sides, in line with the provisions of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement;

(b) To assist the parties through a Joint Monitoring Coordination Committee in implementing the agreement monitoring the management of arms and armed personnel of both sides;

(c) To assist in the monitoring of ceasefire arrangements;

(d) To provide technical assistance to the Election Commission in the planning, preparation and conduct of the election of a Constituent Assembly in a free and fair atmosphere.

138. In addition, an independent team of election monitors appointed by the Secretary-General and reporting to him is reviewing all technical aspects of the electoral process and the conduct of the elections.

139. For the last several years, the Secretary-General has been closely engaged, primarily through the Department of Political Affairs, with key national, regional and international actors in an effort to encourage an early and peaceful resolution of the conflict in Nepal through an inclusive process of national dialogue. On 21 November 2006, the parties signed the Comprehensive Peace Agreement, consolidating earlier agreements and understandings, and declared an end to the war.

140. On 9 August 2006, the two sides sent identically worded letters to the Secretary-General (S/2006/920, annexes I and II) requesting United Nations assistance in certain aspects of the peace process. Subsequently, the Secretary-General appointed a Personal Representative to assist the parties in forging a consensus on the specifics of the United Nations role in the peace process. The request for United Nations assistance was reaffirmed in a letter dated 16 November 2006 from the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs of Nepal to the Secretary-General (S/2006/920, annex III). In a letter dated 22 November 2006 addressed to the President of the Security Council (S/2006/920), the Secretary-

General proposed to dispatch to Nepal a technical assessment mission and to deploy an advance group of up to 35 monitors for the monitoring of arms and armed personnel and up to 25 electoral personnel. In his statement of 1 December 2006 made on behalf of the Security Council (S/PRST/2006/49), the President of the Council stated that the Council welcomed and expressed support for the proposals of the Secretary-General. Following the completion of the technical assessment mission in Nepal in December 2006, in his aforementioned report to the Security Council (S/2007/7), the Secretary-General proposed the establishment of UNMIN for a period of 12 months to provide the requested support to Nepal's peace process.

141. Despite continuing challenges, a number of important political developments have taken place, which UNMIN has assisted in accordance with its mandated tasks. The parties were able to form an interim Government, on the basis of an interim Constitution. On 14 June 2007, the interim legislature then passed key electoral legislation (the Constituent Assembly Members Election Act) establishing a basis for representation, though whether the proposed formulas will enjoy full support from marginalized communities remains unclear, and the Election Commission made the necessary technical preparations to hold the election on the agreed date of 22 November. However, doubts about a November poll for the Constituent Assembly persisted for a combination of reasons. Chief among these are the lack of unity and political consensus among the eight parties that formed the interim Government on 1 April 2007 and continued difficulties in effectively implementing commitments made in the different agreements to date. In addition, persisting disaffection among marginalized communities about their exclusion from the political process and State structures, despite two agreements reached with the Madhesi People's Rights Forum and with the Nepal Federation of Indigenous Nationalities, as well as the activities of armed groups and communal violence in the Terai region, have contributed significantly to the uncertainty. That situation has additionally limited the ability of the Government to extend its reach and services across the country as quickly as hoped. On that issue, and in relation to the development and promotion of local conflict resolution capacities, UNMIN has been working through its Office of Civil Affairs and with members of the United Nations country team to explore ways to improve delivery of vital local services and support establishment of local mechanisms for dispute resolution. On 5 October, amid a dispute between the Communist Party of Nepal (Maoist) and the other parties over the electoral system and the declaration of a republic, a collective decision was taken to reschedule the 22 November election. A new election date had yet to be fixed.

142. There has been general progress in the area of arms monitoring, including the storage and monitoring of Maoist weapons and the equivalent number of Nepal Army weapons, the quality and regularity of inspections by joint monitoring teams, the experience of the Joint Monitoring Coordination Committee, and the monitoring and inventory of improvised explosive devices by the UNMIN Mine Action Unit. Despite monsoon-related challenges and initial delay, the second phase of the Maoist army verification and registration is now progressing well. Early disagreement between the Maoist army and UNMIN over verification results was successfully overcome, without compromising full adherence to the criteria set out in the Agreement on Monitoring of the Management of Arms and Armies of 8 December 2006. Verification has been completed at four of the seven main cantonment sites. Continued progress will remain heavily dependent on the sustained cooperation of the Maoist army.

143. The UNMIN Electoral Assistance Office has provided electoral advice and assistance to the Election Commission at the national, regional and local levels. The implementation of a countrywide field presence has been strengthened by the arrival of a Deputy Chief Electoral Adviser, an External Project Adviser and an Information Officer. The Office contributed to the work of the Election Commission leading to the adoption of an electoral code of conduct and advised on candidate nomination and selection procedures to meet the requirements of the complex quota system of the electoral legislation. Electoral advisers worked to help to develop a wide array of training materials for voter education and advised on ballot design and printing, plans for the delivery of election materials, counting procedures, and computer applications to support electoral management. Electoral advisers are also providing assistance to the establishment of a national media centre, an election observation liaison unit, and a media monitoring programme. The composition of the electoral advisory team is currently being reviewed in consultation with the Election Commission following the decision to postpone the election. Deployment of the United Nations Volunteers was completed. UNMIN has now also hosted two visits of the independent Electoral Expert Monitoring Team, whose reports should be a helpful source of advice for the Election Commission.

144. The UNMIN Office of Civil Affairs has become close to fully operational, with 31 international and 13 national civil affairs officers deployed across the five regional offices and headquarters. Working in close cooperation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and other United Nations entities, the civil affairs teams produce reports and analysis on a range of issues affecting the peace process and particularly give UNMIN an ability to engage communities outside Kathmandu.

145. The civil affairs teams are also being joined in the UNMIN regional offices by advisers on gender, child protection, and social inclusion to ensure proactive attention to those issues.

146. The Department of Political Affairs maintains close communication with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and his team. This has enabled the Department of Political Affairs to have a close and fairly detailed understanding of developments on the ground and to provide informed, timely guidance on the execution of the mission's mandate.

147. The visits of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to New York to brief the Security Council on the quarterly reports of the Secretary-General to the Council, including the most recent one in October 2007, have afforded leadership of the Department of Political Affairs and their relevant staff to consult in detail with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and provide the necessary support. Visits by Department of Political Affairs (political and electoral) staff to the mission area have been instrumental in helping the mission deal with the considerable substantive and operational challenges of the start-up phase.

148. The Special Representative of the Secretary-General has been given the responsibility of coordinating United Nations system activities that relate to the peace process in the absence of an integrated mission structure. Many de facto areas of operational cooperation have already been undertaken between UNMIN and the United Nations country team, especially as relates to arms monitoring and registration, as well as the work of electoral assistance and civil affairs, and which has been previously detailed in reports of the Secretary-General. The Special Representative of the Secretary-General will be supported in his coordination role primarily by a Coordination Unit designed to work with the Office of the Resident/Humanitarian Coordinator to ensure that United Nations system activities are coherent, focused, and effective in their support to Nepal's peace process. The coordination team will also provide support to the United Nations Peace Fund for Nepal established on 13 March 2007 as a complement to the Nepal Peace Trust Fund and under the same overall governance structure.

149. In accordance with the expectation that UNMIN will be a focused mission of limited duration, UNMIN has prepared a six-month liquidation budget carrying through to July 2008. However, the Security Council, in its resolution 1740 (2007) expressed its intention to be guided by the wishes of the Government of Nepal in deciding on termination or extension of the 12-month mandate of UNMIN. In that respect, the outlook for the mission, given the second postponement of the Constituent Assembly election, previously scheduled for 22 November 2007, depends on a request by the Government of Nepal for mission extension and subsequent decision in the Security Council.

151. The estimated requirements for the period from 1 January to 31 July 2008 would amount to $16,788,600 net ($17,799,300 gross) and comprise requirements of 155 military advisers and 7 police advisers ($892,800), salaries and common staff costs ($8,177,300), and official travel ($30,500), and other operational requirements, such as facilities and infrastructure ($795,300), ground transportation ($404,600), air transportation ($2,705,900), communications ($1,882,200), information technology ($583,300), medical ($227,600) and other supplies, services and equipment ($1,089,200).
