Appointment of ad litem judges of the United Nations Dispute Tribunal

Appointment of the judges of the United Nations Appeals Tribunal and of ad litem judges of the United Nations Dispute Tribunal

Report of the Internal Justice Council

I. Introduction

- 1. On 2 March 2009, the General Assembly appointed three full-time judges, three ad litem judges and two half-time judges to the United Nations Dispute Tribunal, and seven judges to the United Nations Appeals Tribunal.
- 2. Effective 1 April 2014, ad litem Judge Jean-François Cousin (France) of the United Nations Dispute Tribunal sitting in Geneva resigned from the Tribunal. The term of office of the position held by Judge Cousin expires on 31 December 2014, subject to extension by the General Assembly.
- 3. Effective 31 December 2013, Judge Jean Courtial (France) of the United Nations Appeals Tribunal resigned from the Tribunal. The term of office of the position held by Judge Courtial expires on 30 June 2019.
- 4. The present report presents the names and curricula vitae of candidates for the vacant positions for consideration by the General Assembly in accordance with the respective Statutes of the Tribunals and prior resolutions of the General Assembly. With respect to the ad litem position in Geneva, the selected candidate would also serve for any extension of the term of office of ad litem judges as may be approved by the Assembly. The procedure leading to that recommendation is set out below.

II. Background

- 5. The current judges of the Dispute Tribunal are Vinod Boolell (Mauritius), full-time judge based in Nairobi; Memooda Ebrahim-Carstens (Botswana), full-time judge based in New York and President of the Tribunal; Alessandra Greceanu (Romania), ad litem judge based in New York; Nkemdilim Amelia Izuako (Nigeria), ad litem judge based in Nairobi; Thomas Laker (Germany), full-time judge based in Geneva; Goolam Hoosen Kader Meeran (United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland), half-time judge; and Coral Shaw (New Zealand), half-time judge.
- 6. The current judges of the Appeals Tribunal are Sophia Adinyira, judge (Ghana); Rosalyn M. Chapman, judge and First Vice-President of the Tribunal (United States of America); Mary Faherty, judge (Ireland); Richard Lussick, judge and President of the Tribunal (Samoa); Louis Maria Simón, judge (Uruguay); Inés Weinberg de Roca, judge and Second Vice-President of the Tribunal (Argentina).
- 7. The Internal Justice Council initially examined the few candidates previously recommended by the Council to the General Assembly who had not been appointed and who were still available. However, the pool was extremely small, which would have made it impossible to present an acceptable choice of good candidates to the Assembly for consideration.
- 8. Accordingly, the Council decided that a full public process, in accordance with paragraph 45 of General Assembly resolution 65/251, should be instituted to identify suitable candidates for presentation to the Assembly. The exercise would also enable the Council to place a reasonable number of candidates on an informal roster so that, if any vacancies were to occur during the remaining terms of office of the current members of the Council, which expire on 12 November 2016, and before the expiry of the regular terms of the serving judges, it would be possible to make recommendations for replacements without a further costly recruitment exercise.
- 9. Advertisements for the vacancies were placed in mid-February 2014 in both online and printed editions of The Economist, Le Monde and Jeune Afrique. No advertisement was placed in The Wall Street Journal Asia Edition, which has advertised prior vacancies, since it would not accept an advertisement stating that female candidates were encouraged to apply. The published advertisement is contained in annex I to the present report.
- 10. A note verbale was sent to all permanent missions to the United Nations in New York and Geneva. Vacancy announcements were also sent for local circulation to all United Nations information centres and United Nations resident coordinators and to all United Nations judicial institutions. In addition, the chief justices of all Member States were informed of the vacancies. Press releases were sent to a range of non-governmental organizations, universities, legal journals, professional associations, other international courts and tribunals and to judges' associations.
- 11. The closing date for the applications was 15 April 2014.
- 12. The Council received applications from 48 different countries. There were a total of 37 applicants from Africa, seven applicants from the Asia and the Pacific, 10 applicants from Eastern Europe, eight applicants from Latin America and the Caribbean and 72 applicants from Western Europe and other States. Of those, 93 were male applicants and 41 were female. Most applicants also expressed interest in being on the roster in the event that a vacancy should arise prior to the expiration of the regular terms of any of the judges during the term of the current members of the Council.

- 13. Applications that did not meet the formal requirements of the vacancy announcements were rejected from further consideration with no exceptions.
- 14. The Council added an extra day to its session in June 2014 in order to discuss each application and the writing samples provided by an overwhelming number of applicants.
- 15. After having reviewed all the applications, the Council decided on 35 candidates who would be invited to take a common written examination to test their legal expertise and drafting ability. Background materials relevant to the written examination (extracts from the Charter of the United Nations, the statute of the Dispute Tribunal; the rules of procedure of the Dispute Tribunal, and the Staff Regulations of the United Nations and Staff Rules), were sent to the candidates on 11 June 2014. At the same time, the Council agreed on a common marking grid to ensure that common assessment standards would be applied.
- 16. The examination was sent to the candidates by e-mail and the candidates were given three hours from the time of opening the e-mail to complete the examination and submit their answers. Thirty-two candidates responded to the invitation and submitted their answers. The Office of Administration of Justice sent the completed examinations to each member of the Council after having eliminated all identifying elements from them so that no Council member would know the name, nationality or gender of the candidate.
- 17. On the basis of the written test, the Council selected 22 applicants to be interviewed for the vacant positions. In order to be selected for the interview, candidates had to display in their examination answers the writing skills and power of judicial analysis necessary for them to serve as excellent judges for the Tribunals.
- 18. As it had done for the previous rounds of judicial appointments, and with the permission of the recommended candidates, the Council, with the assistance of the International Commission of Jurists, approached the relevant domestic bar associations for confirmation of the integrity of each candidate identified in the present report. No negative reports were received on any of the candidates listed below. Written references were also obtained, from two sources, for each candidate.
- 19. The candidates were interviewed in The Hague on the premises of the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia between 15 and 18 July 2014 (one candidate was interviewed by videoconference because of visa problems that prevented his entry into the Netherlands).

III. Mandates of the General Assembly for the selection process

20. In paragraph 37 (b) of resolution 62/228, the General Assembly decided that the Council should provide its views and recommendations to the Assembly on two or three candidates for each vacancy in the United Nations Dispute Tribunal and the United Nations Appeals Tribunal, with due regard to geographical distribution. In paragraph 57 of resolution 63/253, the Assembly decided that for future appointments the Council should not recommend more than one candidate from any one Member State for a judgeship on the United Nations Dispute Tribunal, or more than one candidate from any one Member State for a judgeship on the United Nations Appeals Tribunal.

- 21. In accordance with the above mandates, the Council selected the best three candidates for the vacancy on the Appeals Tribunal, on the basis of experience, drafting ability, legal analysis, geographic distribution and gender for presentation to the General Assembly.
- 22. The Council notes that only seven candidates were considered as qualified to conduct proceedings and question witnesses in French, which was a prerequisite for the Dispute Tribunal vacancy in Geneva. Of those candidates, three were French and three were German nationals. As a result, the Council could not submit three candidates for the consideration of the General Assembly, as the Council has done for the vacancy in the Appeals Tribunal, because it was not possible:
- (a) To recommend a German national since Judge Thomas Laker (Germany) was already a judge of the Dispute Tribunal and article 4.2 of the statute of the Dispute Tribunal provides that "No two judges shall be of the same nationality";
- (b) To recommend more than one French candidate since, in accordance with resolution 63/253, the Council is prohibited from submitting more than one candidate of the same nationality. As a result, only the best French candidate could be recommended to the General Assembly. However, if the Assembly wishes to consider the other French candidates, it may request the Office of Administration of Justice to provide their curricula vitae to it.
- 23. The Council will retain a list of the best candidates who were not recommended, but who could competently fill vacancies in the respective Tribunals, on an informal roster for each Tribunal in the event that a casual vacancy in the Tribunals should arise during the remainder of the term of the current members of the Council. The Council will also place on that roster the candidates who were recommended in the present report but who were not appointed by the General Assembly. The Council emphasizes that the roster will only be used for casual vacancies that arise during the remainder of the terms of office of the current members of the Council.
- 24. Subject to the views of the General Assembly:
- (a) The Council intends to conduct a full public and competitive process for selecting candidates the next time that the regular terms of the judges are nearing their end;
- (b) The Council will contact candidates who have been placed on the roster in order to ascertain if they will be available to fill vacancies before the process noted in subparagraph (a) above is initiated. If they are available, those candidates will not be required to sit for a written examination, but will be called for an interview that would serve to compare them with candidates not on the roster who have sat for the examination and been called for an interview.
- 25. The recommended candidates, as well as those placed on the roster, met the qualifications and experience currently required under the statute of the United Nations Appeals Tribunal and the standards required under the proposed amendments to the statute.

United Nations

Judges of the United Nations Internal Justice System

The United Nations is seeking judges for its internal system for the administration of justice to address employment related disputes. The system includes a first instance United Nations Dispute Tribunal (UNDT) and an appellate instance United Nations Appeals Tribunal (UNAT). The UNDT sits in New York, Nairobi and Geneva and is comprised of 3 full-time judges, 2 half-time judges and 3 ad litem judges. The full-time and half-time judges serve for 7 year terms. The term of office of the ad litem judges expires on 31 December 2014, but may be extended by the General Assembly. The UNAT is comprised of seven judges, with appointments of seven years duration. The United Nations has at present two vacancies: one for an ad litem judge located in Geneva, and one for a judge of the UNAT. The United Nations is therefore inviting applications for:

- 1 ad litem judge for the UNDT in Geneva
- 1 UNAT judge

Although at present there are no other vacancies, the United Nations is also inviting applications for:

- Full-time judges for the UNDT, to be placed on a roster of suitable candidates who may be recommended to the General Assembly for election to serve in New York, Geneva or Nairobi, should a vacancy arise
- Half-time judges for the UNDT (location to be determined), to be placed on a roster of suitable candidates who may be recommended to the General Assembly for election should a vacancy arise
- Judges of the UNAT, for sessions to be held as determined by the rules of the UNAT, to be placed on a roster of suitable candidates who may be recommended to the General Assembly for election should a vacancy arise

Candidates should note that both of the current vacancies have been created by the resignation of serving judges. Under the statutes of the UNDT and UNAT, appointments of judges to fill the resulting vacancies will in the first instance be for the unexpired portion of the term of the judge who has resigned. In the case of the ad litem vacancy, the successful candidate will serve until 31 December 2014 subject to renewal by the General Assembly. In the case of the UNAT vacancy, the successful candidate will serve until 30 June 2019. Candidates for the UNDT ad litem position can request, if they so wish, that they be considered for both the full time and half-time roster.

Persons applying to serve as judges of the Tribunals should be of high moral character. In the case of the UNDT, candidates should have at least 10 years of judicial experience in the field of administrative, employment or labour law, or the equivalent within one or more national jurisdictions. In the case of the UNAT, candidates should have at least 15 years of judicial experience in the field of administrative, employment or labour law or the equivalent within one or more national jurisdictions. Relevant academic qualifications and experience may be taken into account. English and French are the working languages of the United Nations. Candidates should be able to conduct judicial proceedings in either English or French. For the current vacancy for the UNDT ad litem judge in Geneva, fluency in English and French is required.

The Judges shall be appointed by the General Assembly from a list of two or three candidates recommended for each vacancy by the United Nations Internal Justice Council, an independent body established by the General Assembly.

Applications: Interested candidates are invited to submit a cover letter, including the preferred Tribunal(s) and location(s), and curriculum vitae by e-mail to internaljusticecouncil-application@un.org or by facsimile to + 1-212-963-2525, to be received by 15 April 2014. The curriculum vitae must include: the date of birth, nationality, gender, language skills, contact details, including telephone numbers and an e-mail address at which the candidate can be reached through 30 September 2014, as well as a full career and educational profile, an example of a judgement delivered by the candidate, or a legal opinion or other equivalent written work, and the names and e-mail addresses of two senior legal professionals able to attest to the moral character and standing of the candidate.

The UNDT judges are remunerated at a level equivalent to D-2, step IV on the United Nations salary scale. (For indicative purposes, the annual net salary levels at D-2 step IV single rate, including cost of living adjustment, in effect as from 1 January 2014 are as follows: US$ 183,060.90 (New York), US$ 222,521.18 (Geneva) and US$ 155,666.99 (Nairobi)). The UNAT judges receive an honorarium of US$ 2,400 for each case for the principal author, and US$ 600 for each judge signatory.

More information on the system of administration of justice can be found at www.un.org/en/oaj or www.un.org/fr/oaj.
