2400 (XXIII). Report of the International Law Commission

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the International Law Commission on the work of its twentieth session,¹

Recalling its resolutions 1686 (XVI) of 18 December 1961, 1765 (XVII) of 20 November 1962, 1902 (XVIII) of 18 November 1963, 2045 (XX) of 8 December 1965, 2167 (XXI) of 5 December 1966 and 2272 (XXII) of 1 December 1967, by which it recommended that the International Law Commission should continue its work of codification and progressive development of the law of succession of States and Governments and relations between States and inter-governmental organizations, expedite the study of State responsibility, study the most-favoured-nation clause and carry out a review of its programme and methods of work,

Emphasising the need for the further codification and progressive development of international law in order to make it a more effective means of implementing the purposes and principles set forth in Articles 1 and 2 of the Charter of the United Nations and to give increased importance to its role in relations among nations,

Noting with appreciation that the United Nations Office at Geneva organized in July 1968, during the twentieth session of the International Law Commission, a fourth session of the Seminar on International Law and that more scholarships in the Seminar were made available for participants from developing countries,

1. Takes note of the report of the International Law Commission on the work of its twentieth session;

3. Notes with approval the programme and organization of work planned by the International Law Commission, including the preparation, in accordance with article 18 of its Statute, of the new survey of the whole field of international law referred to in paragraph 99 of the Commission's report, but, with respect to the Commission's wish to reserve the possibility of a winter session in 1970, decides to defer a final decision until its twenty-fourth session;

4. Recommends that the International Law Commission should:

(a) Continue its work on succession of States and Governments and relations between States and international organizations, taking into account the views and considerations referred to in General Assembly resolutions 1765 (XVII) and 1902 (XVIII);

(b) Continue its study of the most-favoured-nation clause;

(c) Make every effort to begin substantive work on State responsibility as from its next session, taking into account the views and considerations referred to in General Assembly resolutions 1765 (XVII) and 1902 (XVIII);

5. Expresses the wish that, in conjunction with future sessions of the International Law Commission, other seminars might be organized, which should continue to ensure the participation of an increasing number of nationals of developing countries;

6. Notes that the Secretary-General has under study the questions raised in paragraphs 98 (b) and 98 (c) of the report of the International Law Commission;

Considering that it was not possible for the Special Committee to complete its consideration of the question of defining aggression and of the draft definition before the end of 1968,
