Committee against Torture

List of issues in relation to the second periodic report of Saudi Arabia*

Articles 1 and 4

1. While noting the information provided by the State party indicating that the Royal Decree approving the Convention against Torture has the legal effect of integrating the Convention into the State party's domestic law,¹ that the Code of Criminal Procedure prohibits torture of persons in detention,² and that Royal Decree No. 43 provides criminal penalties for public officials proven to have committed any of the offences provided for in the Decree, including torture,³ the Committee recalls its previous concluding observations (see CAT/C/CR/28/5, paras. 4 (a) and 8 (a))⁴ expressing concern that the State party's domestic law does not explicitly define torture in a manner reflecting article 1 of the Convention, nor does it contain specific criminal penalties for torture. Please indicate whether the State party is taking any measures to expressly incorporate the crime of torture within its domestic law and whether it intends to adopt a Criminal Code or other law that imposes criminal sanctions for torture as defined by the Convention.⁵

2. In the light of the Committee's previous concluding observations (paras. 4 (b) and 8 (b)) and of the serious concern expressed by the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and three special procedure mandate holders of the Human Rights Council, please indicate whether the State party has taken steps to prohibit the imposition by judicial and administrative authorities of corporal punishments, such as flogging and amputation of limbs, which are in breach of the Convention. Please also provide information on any measures taken by the State party to prevent the full implementation of existing judicial sentences involving corporal punishment, such as the sentence of 1,000 lashes, as well as

Article 2⁷

4. In the light of the Committee's previous concluding observations (para. 4 (d)-(e) and 8 (e)) expressing concern about reports of incommunicado pretrial detention, and noting the information provided by the State party in its periodic report,⁸ please provide information on measures taken to ensure that all persons deprived of their liberty benefit in practice from legal safeguards against torture.⁹ In particular:

(a) Please indicate whether any law enforcement or other officials have been subjected to disciplinary or other penalties for failing to provide persons deprived of their liberty with safeguards guaranteed in law, such as the right to contact a family member and to have the assistance of a lawyer of one's choice promptly following deprivation of liberty. Please provide data indicating any officials who have been disciplined or otherwise punished for failing to provide safeguards (including their respective ranks and/or titles), and describe the sanctions administered. (c) Please describe measures taken by the State party to monitor the provision of safeguards by all public officials to persons deprived of their liberty, including whether officials are required to document relevant information in detention registers (including the detainee's name; the date, time and place of the detention; the date and time of admission to the detention facility; the names of all detaining and interrogating authorities; the grounds for the detention; the state of health of the detainee upon admission and any changes

⁶ See list of issues prior to the submission of the second periodic report of Saudi Arabia (CAT/C/SAU/Q/2, annex 9).

⁷ The issues raised under article 2 could also touch on issues raised under other articles of the Convention, including article 16. As stated in paragraph 3 of the Committee's general comment No. 2 (2007) on the implementation of article 2 by States parties, the obligation to prevent torture in article 2 is wide-ranging. The obligations to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment under article 16 (1) are indivisible, interdependent and interrelated. The obligation to prevent such ill-treatment in practice overlaps with and is largely congruent with the obligation to prevent torture. In practice, the definitional threshold between ill-treatment and torture is often not clear. See also chapter V of the same general comment.

(e) Please describe the results of any investigations undertaken by the State party into allegations that persons deprived of their liberty were deprived of safeguards against torture, including:

(i) Allegations referred to by the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention that Mohammad Salih al-Bajadi, a human rights defender and co-founder of the Saudi Civil and Political Rights Association, was denied access to legal counsel of his choice throughout his pretrial detention and his 2013 trial before the Special Criminal Court on charges related to his human rights work;¹³

(ii) Allegations referred to in an urgent appeal by six special procedure mandate holders of the Human Rights Council that Waleed Abu al-Khair, a human rights lawyer and the founder and Director of Monitor of Human Rights in Saudi Arabia, was denied access to his lawyers and family following his April 2014 arrest on charges related to his human rights work.¹⁴

8. Please describe any measures taken to ensure the independence of the Human Rights Commission from the executive branch of government and to bring that Commission into line with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

9. With reference to the Committee's previous recommendations (para. 8 (i)), and noting the information provided in the State party report,¹⁷ please provide additional information on any measures taken to strengthen the independence of the judiciary from the executive branch of the government.
