Committee on the Rights of the Child

Treaty-specific guidelines regarding the form and content of periodic reports to be submitted by States parties under article 44, paragraph 1 (b), of the Convention on the Rights of the Child

Adopted by the Committee at its fifty-fifth session (13 September-1 October 2010)

I. Introduction and purpose of reporting

1. In accordance with article 44 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, each State party undertakes to submit periodic reports on the measures taken to give effect to its undertakings under the Convention. The initial report is due within two years following the entry into force of the Convention for the State party and every five years thereafter. These guidelines apply to periodic reports; States parties which have not yet submitted their initial reports should use the reporting guidelines for initial reports.¹

2. The Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography (OPSC) and the Optional Protocol on the involvement of children in armed conflict (OPAC) require each State party to submit a report on the measures taken to implement the provisions of the respective Optional Protocol.² The initial report under each Optional Protocol is due within two years following the entry into force of the Optional Protocol in the State party. Initial reports under OPSC and OPAC should follow the reporting guidelines specific to each Optional Protocol, as should reports by States parties that have ratified the Optional Protocols but not the Convention.³

3. States parties that have submitted their initial report under the respective Optional Protocol shall include further information relevant to the implementation of the Optional Protocols in reports submitted to the Committee under article 44 of the Convention. The present reporting guidelines include references to the provisions of the Optional Protocols and are intended for States that have submitted their initial reports under the Optional Protocols.

¹ The general guidelines regarding the form and content of initial reports to be submitted by States parties under article 44, paragraph 1 (a), of the Convention (CRC/C/5) were adopted by the Committee at its 22nd meeting (first session) on 15 October 1991.

² Article 12 of OPSC and article 8 of OPAC.

4. States parties to the Convention that have not yet ratified either or both Optional Protocols should also use these reporting guidelines for reporting on the implementation of the Convention and disregard the information requested in relation to the Optional Protocols.

5. The present treaty-specific reporting guidelines are developed in accordance with the harmonized guidelines on reporting to the international human rights treaty bodies and should be applied in conjunction with the preparation and submission of a common core document. The harmonized guidelines on reporting to the international human rights treaty bodies, including on the elaboration of a common core document, were last revised in 2009 (HRI/GEN/2/Rev.6). Together, these two guidelines constitute the basis for harmonized reporting under the Convention on the Rights of the Child and its Optional Protocols. State party reports under the Convention are henceforth constituted of two parts: a common core document and a document that specifically relates to the implementation of the Convention and its Optional Protocols, when applicable (hereinafter referred to as “the treaty-specific report”). The present reporting guidelines, adopted on 1 October 2010, replace those adopted by the Committee on 3 June 2005 (CRC/C/58/Rev.1).

6. States parties should take into account the general guidance and requirements provided in the harmonized guidelines, in particular those concerning the purpose of reporting (paras. 7 to 11), the collection of data and drafting of reports (paras. 12 to 15), periodicity (paras. 16 to 18), the form of reports (paras. 19-23), the content of reports (paras. 24-30) and the reporting process at the national level (para. 45).

II. Common core document

7. The common core document constitutes the first part of any report prepared for the Committee in accordance with the harmonized guidelines and should contain general information about the reporting State, the general framework for the protection and promotion of human rights, as well as information on non-discrimination, equality and effective remedies. The common core document should not exceed 60-80 pages.

8. In general, information that is included in the common core document should not be repeated in the treaty-specific report submitted to the Committee. The State party should aim to update the information contained in the common core document with relevant information in conjunction with the submission of treaty-specific reports. In accordance with paragraph 27 of the harmonized guidelines, the Committee may request that the common core document be updated if it considers that the information it contains is out of date.

9. If States cross-reference the Committee to information provided in the common core document, they should indicate precisely the relevant paragraphs in which such information is provided.

10. The Committee underlines that, should a State party not have submitted a common core document, or if the information in the common core document has not been updated, all relevant information must be included in the treaty-specific document.

III. Treaty-specific report

A. Format and content

11. The present guidelines pertain to the preparation of the second part of reports and apply to periodic reports to the Committee. The treaty-specific report should contain all information relating to the implementation of the Convention and its two Optional Protocols, as applicable. The treaty-specific report should be limited to 60 pages.⁴

12. The Committee emphasizes that, throughout the treaty-specific report, the information provided by the State party regarding the implementation of each provision should make specific reference to the previous recommendations of the Committee under the Convention, and the Optional Protocols if applicable, and include details on how the recommendations have been addressed in practice. Explanations for non-implementation of recommendations or principal obstacles encountered should be provided, as should information on measures envisaged to overcome such obstacles.

13. The treaty-specific report should contain additional information specific to the implementation of the Convention and its Optional Protocols, taking into account the relevant general comments of the Committee, as well as information of a more analytical nature on how laws, legal systems, jurisprudence, the institutional framework, policies and programmes impact on children within the jurisdiction of the State party. General information on the framework for the protection of human rights provided in the common core document should not be repeated.

14. While statistical information should be included in the common core document, the treaty-specific report should include specific data and statistics, disaggregated according to age, sex and other relevant criteria, which are pertinent to the implementation of the provisions of the Convention and the Optional Protocols. States parties should include statistical data as indicated in the annex to the present reporting guidelines. Statistics should be submitted as a separate annex in one of the working languages of the Committee (English, French or Spanish); these will for reasons related to resources not be translated.

15. States may wish to submit separately copies of the legislative, judicial, administrative and other texts referred to in the report, where these are available in a working language of the Committee. These texts will not be reproduced for distribution, but will be made available to the Committee for consultation (HRI/GEN/2/Rev.6, para. 20).

16. The treaty-specific report should cover the period between the consideration of the previous periodic report of the State party and the submission of the current report.

B. Substantive information to be contained in the report

17. The treaty-specific report should provide information according to the clusters of rights identified by the Committee, as identified below. The State party should indicate progress and challenges in achieving full respect for the provisions of the Convention and Optional Protocols, as applicable. In particular, the State party is requested to provide

⁴ The harmonized guidelines provide that initial treaty-specific documents should not exceed 60 pages, and subsequent periodic documents should be limited to 40 pages (HRI/GEN/2/Rev.6, para. 19). However, taking into account that a majority of States parties must include information on the Convention as well as the two Optional Protocols, the Committee will allow an extension of 20 pages in the length of reports.

Any reservation or declaration relating to any article of the Convention or its Optional Protocols by the State party should be explained and its continued maintenance clarified. States parties to the Optional Protocol on the involvement of children in armed conflict that have indicated an age below 18 years in their binding declaration (art. 3) regarding the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into their national forces should indicate whether this minimum age has been raised.

19. In this section, the State party should include relevant and updated information in relation to the Convention and its Optional Protocols, as applicable, in particular on:

States parties to OPAC and OPSC should provide details of relevant penal and other applicable legal provisions for each Optional Protocol;

(b) Whether a comprehensive national strategy and corresponding plan or plans of action for children have been adopted and to what extent these have been implemented and evaluated; and whether and how they form part of the overall development strategy, public policies and relate to specific sectoral strategies and plans. (f) Whether an independent national human rights institution (NHRI) for monitoring implementation has been established and if it receives individual complaints from children or their representatives. States parties to OPAC should indicate whether an NHRI is mandated to monitor military schools and the military, and if voluntary recruitment is permitted below the age of 18 years;
