Educational assistance

4. The judges who decide to reside in the host country will be entitled to assistance for the education of dependants, in accordance with terms and conditions identical to those applicable to the United Nations (see administrative issuances ST/AI/2002/1; ST/AI/1999/4; ST/IC/2002/5).

Pension

5. The judges are entitled to a pension benefit, similar to that applicable to Judges of the International Court of Justice and International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea. The following are the principal features:

(a) The pension scheme is non-contributory, i.e., pensions are a direct charge to the budget;

(b) A retirement pension equal to half the annual salary, at the time of retirement, is paid to a judge who has completed a full nine-year term;

(c) A proportional reduction is applied if the judge has not completed a nine-year term, provided the judge has served for at least three years, but no additional pension is paid if the judge has completed more than nine years of service;

(d) A surviving spouse receives 50 per cent of the late judge's pension. If he or she remarries, he or she will receive a final lump-sum benefit equal to twice the amount of the spouse's benefit;

(e) Pensions in payment are revised by the same percentage and at the same date as salary adjustments.

Health insurance

6. Judges will be responsible for their own health insurance. Options would include participation in established United Nations plans.

Travel/relocation costs

(a) A trip from his or her home, at the time of appointment, to the seat of the Court, in connection with the transfer of his or her residence;

(c) A return trip every second calendar year after the year of appointment from the seat of the Court to his or her home at the time of appointment;

(d) A trip upon termination of appointment from the seat of the Court to his or her home at the time of appointment, or to any other place provided that the cost of the trip is not greater than the cost of the trip to his or her home at the time of appointment;

(e) Where the spouse and/or dependent children of the judge reside with him or her at the seat of the Court, the United Nations shall reimburse the travel expenses for trips undertaken in conjunction with the above.

8. For judges who do not reside in the host country, they are entitled to two trips per year from their place of residence to the seat of the Court.¹

9. All travel shall be by business-class airfare between the home country and the seat of the Court by the most direct route.

B. Non-full-time judges

5. Salaries, allowances and benefits

10. Judges who are not required to serve full time at the Court shall be entitled to:

(a) An annual allowance, payable monthly, of one third of the annual remuneration paid to a full-time judge, i.e., one third of €180,000 or €60,000;

(b) A special allowance of €270 for each day that a judge is engaged on the business of the Court;

(c) A subsistence allowance, at the applicable United Nations rate in euros, for each day that a judge attends meetings of the Court at the seat of the Court;

(d) Travel to official meetings of the Court. All travel shall be by business-class airfare between the home country and the seat of the Court by the most direct route.

¹ The Rome Statute does not specifically address the issue of the residence of judges. Article 35 of the Rome Statute provides that full-time judges of the Court “shall be available to serve on that basis from the commencement of their terms of office”. Moreover article 40 provides that judges “required to serve on a full-time basis at the seat of the Court shall not engage in any other occupation of a professional nature”. The question of the residence of full-time judges and their availability to serve on that basis at the seat of the Court is a matter which the Rome Statute has entrusted to the judges. Article 52 sets out the manner in which the Regulations of the Court are to be elaborated and adopted. In considering the issue of the residence of full-time judges, due account should be taken of the relevant provisions of the Rome Statute and the need to ensure that judges best serve the Court efficiently, including by deciding to reside in the host country.
