Recalling its resolution 2205 (XXI) of 17 December 1966, by which it established the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law and defined the object and terms of reference of the Commission, and its previous resolutions concerning the reports of the Commission on the work of its annual sessions,

Reaffirming its conviction that the progressive harmonization and unification of international trade law, in reducing or removing legal obstacles to the flow of international trade, especially those affecting the developing countries, would significantly contribute to universal economic co-operation among all States on a basis of equality and to the elimination of discrimination in international trade and, thereby, to the well-being of all peoples,

Having regard for the need to take into account the different legal systems in harmonizing the rules of international trade law,

Bearing in mind that the Trade and Development Board of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, at its fifteenth session, took note with appreciation<sup>2</sup> of the report of the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law,
