I. INTRODUCTION

1. The present report has been prepared pursuant to paragraph 5 of General Assembly resolution 49/60 of 9 December 1994, in which the Assembly invited the Secretary-General to follow up closely the implementation of the resolution and of the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism annexed thereto and to submit to the Assembly at its fiftieth session a report thereon relating, in particular, to the modalities of implementation of paragraph 10 of the Declaration. 1/

2. By notes dated 3 January 1995, the Secretary-General, in accordance with paragraph 2 of resolution 49/60, informed all States of the adoption of the Declaration. He further invited all States to submit by 30 June 1995 information on the implementation of resolution 49/60 and the Declaration annexed thereto and drew the attention of Member States to paragraphs 10 (a) and (b) of the Declaration.

3. Also in accordance with paragraph 2 of the resolution, the Legal Counsel, by letters dated 3 January 1995, informed relevant specialized agencies and other organizations of the adoption of the Declaration. He further invited them to submit any information they deemed appropriate for inclusion in the report requested by the General Assembly and drew their attention, in particular to paragraphs 10 (a) and (d) of the Declaration.

4. Furthermore, and again in accordance with paragraph 2 of resolution 49/60, the Legal Counsel, by letters dated 21 December 1994, informed the President of the Security Council and the President of the International Court of Justice of the adoption of the Declaration.

5. As at 31 July 1995, replies to the communications referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 above had been received from the Governments of Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Canada, Maldives, Norway, the Syrian Arab Republic and Turkey, as well as from the International Maritime Organization (IMO), the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and the Organization of American States.

6. The present report first addresses, pursuant to paragraph 6 of resolution 49/60, the modalities of implementation of paragraph 10 of the Declaration. It then reproduces the replies received from Governments and international organizations, as listed in paragraph 5 above. It finally indicates in an annex the state, as at 4 July 1995, of signatures and ratifications of, and accessions or successions to, a number of relevant multilateral international conventions.

II. MODALITIES OF IMPLEMENTATION OF PARAGRAPH 10 OF THE DECLARATION ON MEASURES TO ELIMINATE INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM ANNEXED TO RESOLUTION 49/60

7. In paragraph 6 of its resolution 49/60, the General Assembly invited the Secretary-General to report on the modalities of application of paragraph 10 of the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism annexed to the resolution. Paragraph 10 of the Declaration reads as follows:

"10. The Secretary-General should assist in the implementation of the present Declaration by taking, within existing resources, the following practical measures to enhance international cooperation:

"(a) A collection of data on the status and implementation of existing multilateral, regional and bilateral agreements relating to international terrorism, including information on incidents caused by international terrorism and criminal prosecutions and sentencing, based on information received from the depositaries of those agreements and from Member States;

"(b) A compendium of national laws and regulations regarding the prevention and suppression of international terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, based on information received from Member States;

"(c) An analytical review of existing international legal instruments relating to international terrorism, in order to assist States in identifying aspects of this matter that have not been covered by such instruments and could be addressed to develop further a comprehensive legal framework of conventions dealing with international terrorism;

"(d) A review of existing possibilities within the United Nations system for assisting States in organizing workshops and training courses on combating crimes connected with international terrorism."

8. As regards subparagraph (a), the Secretary-General notes that the envisaged collection of data would be based on information received from the depositaries of existing agreements and from Member States. Such information could be sought at regular intervals, for instance, on a biennial basis from all Member States as well as from the depositaries of the multilateral conventions referred to in the annex to the present report and from the depositaries of the regional conventions mentioned in paragraph 12 below.

9. With reference to instruments relating to unlawful interference with civil aviation, the Secretary-General has been informed that it is the practice of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) to send once a year to all Contracting States of ICAO a letter requesting information on the implementation of ICAO Assembly resolution A29-5 entitled "Consolidated statement of continuing ICAO policies relating to the safeguarding of international civil aviation against acts of unlawful interference". As for other international conventions referred to in the annex to this report, the Secretary-General notes: (a) that the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation, 1988, obliges States Parties to provide the Secretary-General of IMO, who is the depositary, with any relevant information on offences under the Convention, actions taken to avoid that a ship, its passengers, crew or cargo be unduly detained or delayed and measures taken in relation to the offence or alleged offender; (b) that the Convention on Physical Protection of Nuclear Material requires a State Party to communicate the final outcome of proceedings against an alleged offender to the depositary, namely the Director-General of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), who in turn informs all States thereof; and (c) that the Convention against the Taking of Hostages (in its article 7) and the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Crimes against Internationally Protected Persons (in its article 11) require States Parties, where an alleged offender is prosecuted, to communicate the final outcome of the proceedings to the Secretary-General of the United Nations for transmission to the other States concerned and interested international intergovernmental organizations.

10. The information sent by Member States and depositaries would, in the Secretary-General's intention, be compiled under two main headings, namely "Status and implementation of existing agreements" and "Information on incidents caused by international terrorism and criminal prosecutions and sentencing". The preparation of the relevant document would, wherever appropriate, be coordinated with that of the report of the Secretary-General under the item "Consideration of effective measures to enhance the protection, security and safety of diplomatic and consular missions and representatives". The information gathered would be placed before the General Assembly as part of the documentation relating to the item "Measures to eliminate international terrorism". On this understanding, the Secretary-General would be in a position to carry out the task referred to in subparagraph (a) from within existing resources.

11. As regards subparagraph (b), the Secretary-General notes that the envisaged compendium would be confined to material submitted by Member States. Such material could be requested by circular notes to be sent at regular intervals, for instance every two or three years. Its publication could not be assured from within existing resources if translation costs were involved. The printing costs, on the other hand, could be absorbed if use was made of the Legislative Series, a series which reproduces material in English or French and for which funds are currently appropriated under the regular budget of the United Nations on the basis of two volumes per year. Member States whose official language is not English or French would thus have to undertake responsibility for the translation into one of those languages of the laws and regulations they would wish to submit. Alternatively, they could be invited to provide a summary in English or French of such laws and regulations which would alone be published in the Legislative Series with an indication that the full text is available for consultation in the files of the Codification Division.

12. With regard to subparagraph (c), the envisaged analytical review of existing international instruments relating to international terrorism would, in the intention of the Secretary-General, cover, in addition to the multilateral conventions referred to in the annex to the present report, three regional conventions namely the Convention to Prevent and Punish Acts of Terrorism Taking the Form of Crimes against Persons and Related Extortions that are of International Significance, signed at Washington on 2 February 1971, the European Convention on the Suppression of Terrorism, signed at Strasbourg on 27 January 1972 2/ and the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation's Regional Convention on the Suppression of Terrorism, signed at Kathmandu on 4 November 1987. 3/ The analytical review could also, if deemed appropriate, take into consideration other documents adopted at the international level such as the resolutions adopted by the Economic and Social Council following the Ninth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders. It would be of a strictly descriptive character and would leave it to States to identify aspects of international terrorism not covered by existing instruments. Provided the analytical review were published as part of the documentation under the item entitled "Measures to eliminate international terrorism", it could be prepared and processed from within existing resources.

13. As regards subparagraph (d) to which, as indicated in paragraph 3 above, the Legal Counsel specifically drew the attention of international organizations in his letters dated 3 January 1995, the Secretary-General wishes to refer to the extract from the UNESCO Executive Board document 146 EX/44, reproduced in section IV below, as well as to the last paragraph of the reply of IMO, also reproduced in section IV below.

14. The Secretary-General further wishes to indicate that the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Branch of the United Nations Office at Vienna organizes workshops and training seminars in the field relating to crime prevention and criminal justice. Generally, these are organized for law enforcement officers, prosecutors, investigating judges and corrections officers, and focus on the use and application of United Nations standards and norms in the administration of justice. In recent times, since the resources allocated to these activities in the programme budget are quite limited, a number of such training seminars have been planned, organized and conducted jointly with other United Nations entities such as the United Nations International Drug Control Programme and the Centre for Human Rights, as well as international professional organizations. The Branch also assists Member States by providing advisory services on legislation, policies and strategies for preventing, controlling and combating crime, including terrorism. The nature of the training courses, seminars and advisory services to be offered depends on the results of needs assessments which are carried out in response to requests of Member States.

15. Furthermore, interregional advisers provide their services free of charge to requesting Governments, in order to assist them in solving urgent and specific problems. In general, a request for assistance from Member States would enable an interregional adviser to undertake an exploratory mission in order to discuss with the appropriate national authorities how to approach the relevant problems.

16. The Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Branch considers its technical assistance programme described above as a matter of priority.

17. In addition, the Secretary-General is currently exploring the possibility of addressing the question of international terrorism in the context of the seminars organized within the framework of the Programme of Assistance in the Teaching, Study, Dissemination and Wider Appreciation of International Law.

III. REPLIES RECEIVED FROM MEMBER STATES

ANTIGUA AND BARBUDA

[Original: English]

[1 May 1995]

1. A Parliamentary democracy in the eastern Caribbean, Antigua and Barbuda is a peaceful island-State known for its sun, sea and sand. There has never been a case of international terrorism within or connected to the State. However, even a peace-loving island-developing State is not completely immune from the heightened social and political tensions and the often attendant criminal elements that currently exist in various parts of the world.

2. To this end, the Government of Antigua and Barbuda has initiated the following measures to assist in the fight against international terrorism:

(a) The Antigua and Barbuda Port Authority, with the assistance of the Coast Guard and Navy personnel of a friendly country, has stepped up its monitoring of ports and waterways in order to prevent transport of weapons within territorial seas;

(b) The newly renovated V. C. Bird International Airport has been furnished with metal detectors to hinder the departure of any would-be airline hijacker;

(c) Authorities are also utilizing trained canines to sniff out narcotics and explosives; and

(d) Eight Caribbean States have formed a Regional Security System (RSS), charged with addressing questions of collective security and defence.

3. Furthermore, on 19 July 1993, the Government of Antigua and Barbuda acceded to the United Nations Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Crimes against Internationally Protected Persons, including Diplomatic Agents.

4. The Government of Antigua and Barbuda attaches great importance to the subject-matter of resolution 49/60 of 9 December 1994 and to the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism.

ARGENTINA

[Original: Spanish]

[29 June 1995]

1. The legislation currently in force in Argentina on the prevention and suppression of international terrorism consists of acts ratifying international multilateral conventions, namely:

- Act No. 18,730/70 (1963 Convention on Offences and Certain Other Acts Committed on Board Aircraft);
- Act No. 19,793/72 (1970 Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft);
- Act No. 20,411/73 (1971 Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Civil Aviation);
- Act No. 22,509/81 (Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Crimes against Internationally Protected Persons, including Diplomatic Agents, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 3166 (XXVIII));
- Act No. 23,956/91 (1979 International Convention against the Taking of Hostages);
- Act No. 23,915/92 (1988 Protocol for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts of Violence at Airports Serving International Civil Aviation);
- Act No. 24,209/93 (1988 Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation).

2. In addition, the Argentine Republic has signed bilateral agreements with the Italian Republic (1992) and the Republic of Turkey (1995) on cooperation against drug trafficking, organized crime and terrorist activities; however, both agreements are still awaiting ratification by the legislature.

3. Lastly, the Argentine Penal Code (title IX, dealing with crimes against national security, and title X, dealing with crimes against public authorities and constitutional order), special criminal laws (Act No. 20,840, as amended by Act No. 21,459 and Act No. 23,077) and other domestic regulations (Decree No. 327/89, which establishes the organizational and operational bases for the development, implementation and follow-up of measures to prevent and suppress the formation or the activities of armed groups) are aimed at preventing and suppressing terrorist activities that are more in the nature of "domestic terrorism" (subversion) than of international terrorism.

MALDIVES

[Original: English]

[20 June 1995]

1. If history and tradition are any guide to judge the human values upheld by any society or country, the Republic of Maldives goes wide of the mark today having experienced the fearful events of 3 November 1988, when 18 hours of a vicious attack on the capital island of the archipelagic country - Male - by a group of terrorists took place. It was the first time in the history of Maldives that a terrorist activity had ever taken place.

2. The aim of this planned attack, it transpired following investigations after the terrorists were beaten back, was to overthrow the legally established Government.

3. But the 18 hours of the mayhem of shooting, killing and destruction to property created by the inhuman terrorists left cruel and everlasting marks on the people of Maldives who had never before experienced any acts of terrorism. These marks, both physical and psychological, are visible even today.

4. The alarming escalation of terrorist activities the world over, compelled the Government to embark on a programme of action to enhance the public awareness on how, where and why terrorism was leading the evils that confront mankind on earth.

5. The Republic of Maldives firmly believes that strong measures have to be taken at the national and international levels to combat the inhuman and dastardly acts of terrorism and terrorists, and those who encourage or assist them in any way.

6. The Government of Maldives, while fully supporting the most important work being carried out by the United Nations and the international community and also at regional levels, has already ratified/acceded to the following legal instruments which form effective countermeasures against terrorism:

1. The Hague Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft, 1970: ratified/acceded to on 1 September 1987.

2. Montreal Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Civil Aviation, 1971: ratified/acceded to on 1 September 1987.

3. Tokyo Convention on Offences and Certain Other Acts Committed on Board Aircraft, 1963: ratified/acceded to on 28 September 1987.

4. New York Convention against the Recruitment, Use, Financing and Training of Mercenaries, 1989: signed on 17 July 1990 and ratified on 11 September 1991.

5. SAARC Regional Convention on Suppression of Terrorism, Kathmandu, 1987: signed on 4 November 1987 and ratified on 28 December 1987.

7. Apart from becoming a party to the above-mentioned conventions, the Government of Maldives also enacted in 1990 a law to prevent terrorism in the country (Law No. 10/90). 5/

SYRIAN ARAB REPUBLIC

[Original: Arabic]

[23 May 1995]

1. The Syrian Arab Republic reiterates that it condemns all acts, methods and practices of terrorism as criminal actions, because they target the lives and property of innocent people and violate the sovereignty and territorial integrity of States. It urges genuine cooperation among all States in the framework of international legitimacy so that the necessary measures may be taken to prevent and combat terrorism and eliminate its causes, and it calls for the formulation of internationally acceptable criteria to differentiate clearly between terrorism, which must be condemned and opposed, and national struggle against foreign occupation, which must be protected and supported.

2. Accordingly, the Syrian Arab Republic welcomed the adoption by the General Assembly of its historic resolution 42/159, which constituted a step forward in the expansion and promotion of effective cooperation in combating terrorism in the framework of international legitimacy and on the basis of the principles enunciated in its paragraph 14, as derived from the Charter of the United Nations and the Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States.

3. The Syrian Arab Republic was also in the forefront in calling for the convening of an international conference to define terrorism, to examine its causes, to eliminate any confusion between terrorism and the struggle of peoples for national liberation from foreign occupation and to study the underlying causes of those acts of violence that may arise from the violation of basic rights and from misery, frustration, grievance and despair. The Syrian Arab Republic believes that the mandate of any working group established should be restricted to preparations for the convening of an international conference to define terrorism and consider means for its elimination. An international convention for the prevention of terrorism may be elaborated in the light of the results of such a conference.

4. As it appreciates the efforts made by the Secretary-General of the United Nations in continuing to solicit the views of Member States with a view to convening the international conference in question, the Syrian Arab Republic bases its position on its desire to protect international legitimacy, the principles of international law and the purposes and principles of the Charter. It is of the view that the General Assembly should consider the item on measures to eliminate international terrorism every two years, in order to review ways and means of strengthening the role of the United Nations and the relevant specialized agencies in combating international terrorism.

TURKEY

[Original: English]

1. Turkey has been one of the prime targets of international terrorism in the past decades. At present PKK, with its violent methods, continues to be a menace detrimental to the promotion of a democratic way of living in the region. The PKK is recognized and classified as a terrorist organization by Western States, and also by the European Parliament and the Council of Europe. Since 1984, indiscriminate violence and terror waged by the PKK have claimed thousands of lives. The United Nations Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism, adopted at the forty-ninth session of the General Assembly, underlines the concern by the international community at the growing and dangerous links between terrorist groups, drug traffickers and their paramilitary gangs which have resorted to all types of violence thus endangering the constitutional order of States and violating basic human rights. This Declaration also emphasizes the desirability of closer cooperation and coordination among States in combating crimes closely connected with terrorism, including drug trafficking, unlawful arms trade, money laundering and smuggling of nuclear and other potentially deadly materials.

2. The Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, adopted at the World Conference on Human Rights, also stresses that "the acts, methods and practices of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations as well as linkage in some countries to drug trafficking are activities aimed at the destruction of human rights, fundamental freedoms and democracy, threatening territorial integrity, security of States and destabilizing legitimately constituted Governments. The international community should take the necessary steps to enhance cooperation to prevent and combat terrorism".

I. INCIDENTS CAUSED BY TERRORISM

A. PKK uses all sorts of terror tactics such as slaying mercilessly schoolteachers and other civilians, including women, the elderly and children, and is also involved in drug trafficking. Some of the attention-striking incidents mentioned below and compiled from the reports of the foreign media, foreign officers and the local Turkish authorities proved that the PKK's involvement in drug trafficking is self-evident:

(1) In January 1992, Bremen police arrested a Turk of Kurdish origin selling drugs. The police found a bunch of keys in his pocket. The keys belonged to an apartment where other Turks of Kurdish origin lived. On the walls of the said apartment were posters of the PKK and its leader Abdullah Öcalan. The police also found some clues that the PKK finances its armed struggle by the heroin trade (SAT-TV, 6 January 1992).

(2) In 1992 a total of 2,069 drug addicts died in Germany. In the same year, police arrested some children aged 10-12 coming from south-eastern Turkey and selling drugs in Hamburg. A child of 8 carrying a firearm confessed that the PKK was using them to sell drugs, since they do not have penal responsibility. The police seized 30 kilograms of heroin from a Kurd who was said to transfer 150,000 deutsche marks to his partners. The estimated figure the PKK earns from the narcotics trade is more than DM 56 million.

(3) The years of intensive police investigation by the Slagelse Police and the Narcotics Section of the National Police in Denmark resulted in solving several armed robberies whose spoils were used to finance narcotics purchases. The police captured Inga Larsen of Denmark who had links with the two Turkish narcotics kingpins living in Denmark: Ali Nazim Sivrikaya and Kara Mehmet Seçilmiş also called "Carlos". During the trial, the close relation between Carlos and PKK was proved. Superintendent Niels Bech of the National Police Force explained that large parts of the profits from the narcotics sales in Denmark have returned to Turkey. "Carlos" even got people to send the money via post to Germany. In one case 140,000 Danish kroner were sent to Mustafa Ağdeve in Turkey who in turn sent kilos of heroin to Europe.

(4) Italian police issued a report which was also handed to German Interpol. The report lists the PKK's involvement in narco-terror case by case.

(5) The German police reports underline the fact that, in 1991, 1,103 kg of heroin were seized by the police and 400 of 735 suspects involved in drug trading incidents were PKK members. In 1992, this ratio mounted to 450/735 and to 300/457 in 1993.

(6) The United States Department of State Bureau of International Narcotic Matters, in its International Narcotics Control Strategy Report (1992) stated that two thirds of the people involved in drug trafficking incidents in Europe are PKK-oriented.

(7) In 1993 the police seized 200 kg of heroin in London and as a result of the investigation it was understood that the drug traders were working for PKK.

(8) Şengül Karacan, captured in Caracas, Venezuela, on 10 November 1993 while carrying 3.5 kg of cocaine, confessed that she was a PKK courier. This incident proves the links of the PKK with the drug cartels even in Latin America.

(9) In a police operation realized in the international waters of the Mediterranean, 3 tons of heroin were seized in the ship "Kısmetim 1" and

Kazım Akkuş, one of the sailors, confessed that the heroin belonged to the PKK and was on route to Europe.

(10) A PKK member, Hakkı Kıtay, captured by the police with 14.5 kg of heroin on 1 September 1993, confessed that he was acting on behalf of the PKK abroad, he was a drug smuggler and was transferring 30 per cent of the income to the PKK.

(11) Hasan Moğlu, arrested by the police on 2 September 1993 in connection with the incident in which 100 kg of heroin were seized in Kapıkule, was found to be a PKK member.

(12) Turkish security forces seized 120 kg of heroin and 40 kg of hemp seeds (cannabis) in a PKK shelter in south-eastern Turkey.

(13) On 1 August 1994, Remzi Inceören, apprehended in Diyarbakır with 2 kg of heroin, acknowledged that he was selling drugs for the PKK. He also informed the police that some PKK members were cultivating drugs and gave the name of the places where hemp seeds were grown. In further investigation, the police captured 120,000 roots of hemp seeds in the village of Dibek.

IV. REPLIES RECEIVED FROM RELEVANT SPECIALIZED AGENCIES AND OTHER INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION

Extract from Executive Board document 146 EX/44 "Report by the Director-General on the Possible Forms of UNESCO's
Participation in the Endeavours of the International Community to Promote Cooperation in Combating the Danger of Terrorism" 7/

19. UNESCO is already participating in the endeavours of the international community to fight terrorism. Following resolution 5.1 the General Conference adopted at its twenty-seventh session, and, in particular, its paragraph 2.B(e), by which the Director-General is invited to "help foster public awareness of the need to eradicate terrorist acts, methods and practices and their link with drug trafficking, on account of their being activities calculated to destroy human rights, fundamental freedoms, democracy and peace and having detrimental effects on education and culture", the Programme and Budget for 1994-1995 (27 C/5) foresees that studies on various threats to democracy and human rights including terrorism will be carried out in 1995, within the framework of Major Programme V.2.1 on "Peace, Human Rights, Democracy and the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination".

20. The entire programme on education for peace, human rights, democracy and international understanding provides a meaningful contribution to the struggle against the danger of terrorism inasmuch as it promotes thinking and behaviour based on common humanistic and cultural values. UNESCO's activities are now focused on incorporation of these values in all levels and all forms of education. Preparation of practical teaching aids for education for tolerance and non-violence has been foreseen. 8/ The experience of the Associated Schools of UNESCO from 10 countries belonging to various regions of the world has been summarized in a handbook on democratic culture and preparation of brochures on "No to violence" has been initiated in nine countries.

21. The Sector of Communication, Information and Informatics contributes to the struggle against terrorism by its monitoring of press freedom and of attacks against the independence and security of media and journalists, as exemplified in the UNESCO-supported International Freedom of Expression Exchange (IFEX) network and more specifically, by condemnation of terrorist attacks against media and journalists through special communiqués of the Director-General.

22. All UNESCO activities towards a culture of peace also contribute to the elimination of the sources of terrorism. Within the framework of the programme for a culture of peace, UNESCO has launched a series of national programmes. These programmes seek to eradicate a culture of violence and promote reconciliation.

23. Activities undertaken by UNESCO within the framework of the United Nations Year for Tolerance (1995) may also be considered as a contribution towards progressive elimination of causes of terrorism. In conformity with its mandate as lead agency of the United Nations system for the Year of Tolerance, UNESCO has prepared for 1995 a diverse programme of meetings, concerts, broadcasts, festivals, publications and exhibitions. The Year's calendar of events includes regional conferences and the preparation of UNESCO tolerance teaching guide.

24. The Director-General draws the attention of the international community to the barbarous acts of terrorism, qualifying terrorist acts as an assault on human rights, as action endangering peace. He has made on a number of occasions statements condemning acts of terrorism, especially those against intellectuals. The Director-General also denounced situations in which the life of journalists, teachers, scientists and artists is in jeopardy.

25. UNESCO is in the process of elaborating its programmes for 1996-1997 (28 C/5) and its activities for the Fourth Medium-Term Strategy (1996-2001). In this context, some specific measures related to prevention and elimination of terrorism are foreseen, in particular, those linked with the creation of an Observatory for Human Rights. They are also an important part of a follow-up programme to the United Nations Year for Tolerance (1995) and activities foreseen by the Culture of Peace Programme.

26. Educational activities no doubt are crucial for UNESCO's efforts aimed at raising public awareness on international terrorism. The Organization may consider elaboration of educational methods, paedagogical approaches and didactic material so as to give new impetus to the condemnation and rejection of international terrorism. The UNESCO Associated Schools Project (ASP), UNESCO Chairs for Peace, Human Rights and Democracy as well as the Associated Universities Project (AUP) may play an important role in these activities. Concrete projects foreseen in the draft 28 C/5 will contribute to prevention of terrorism through school campaigns and measures within the framework of the International Day for Tolerance. Preparation and wide dissemination of a UNESCO Manual on Human Rights Education - to be, in the long run, put at the disposal of all schools of the world - will be an action of special significance for fostering a sense, values and skills of respect for others and for human rights, thus laying international and intercultural foundations for tolerant, non-violent, cooperative behaviour. A Manual on Human Rights for higher education to be published in 1996 will contain a chapter on human rights and terrorism.

27. In planning activities of the Organization to combat and prevent terrorism in the field of education, foremost consideration could be given to the follow-up to the Declaration adopted by the Ministers of Education at the International Conference on Education (ICE) Geneva, October 1994, in which they declared themselves "Deeply concerned by the manifestations of violence, racism, xenophobia, aggressive nationalism and violations of human rights, by religious intolerance, by the upsurge of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations and by the growing gap separating wealthy countries from poor countries, phenomena which threaten the consolidation of peace and democracy both nationally and internationally and which are all obstacles to development".

28. As far as research related to terrorism is concerned, the draft programme (28 C/5) proposes during the 1996-1997 biennium, studies on threats to democracy and on sources of violence, xenophobia and racism, which will contribute to the Organization's efforts to combat terrorism.

29. The draft 28 C/5 proposes the creation of an Observatory for the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms of writers, artists, scientists, educators and journalists. The Observatory will collect information on flagrant violations of rights of intellectuals, attempts to their life, dignity, freedom of expression, creativity and research. For this purpose, it will set up a network in collaboration with the Member States, National Commissions and with relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations. It is understood that all the UNESCO Sectors will contribute to its establishment. The Observatory will also be responsible for the preparation of dossiers and reports on the basis of reliable and verified information. This will enable the Organization to alert public opinion on terrorism. The work of the Sector of Communication, Information and Informatics aimed at protection of freedom of expression and defence of journalists threatened by terrorism will be continued.

30. The Declaration of principles and a programme of action to be elaborated as a follow-up to the United Nations Year for Tolerance (1995) affords an opportunity for the Organization to undertake and to propose concrete actions aimed at the prevention and elimination of terrorism as part of national and international programmes for the promotion of tolerance.

31. Initiated within the framework of the Culture of Peace Programme, pilot projects in El Salvador and Mozambique have prompted interest of other countries. At present, national programmes are under preparation for Burundi, Nicaragua and Congo, in addition to a culture of peace action in Guatemala. The Executive Board may wish to consider recommending initiation of culture of peace programme(s) in certain specific country/regional contexts, known for or prone to risk of terrorism, in order that UNESCO may devise specific modalities of action for possible support to endeavours of the government(s) concerned to combat and prevent terrorism.

IV. CONCLUSIONS

32. Resolutions of the General Assembly and more specifically the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism request inter alia the Specialized Agencies to enhance international cooperation in combating and eliminating terrorism. UNESCO's activities highlighted in this document can be seen as response to these requests and also to General Assembly resolution 46/51 which requested UNESCO, along with IMO, UPU, WTO, and IAEA to consider within their respective spheres of competence what further measures could usefully be taken to combat and eliminate terrorism.

33. In this respect, the principal vocation of UNESCO no doubt is to raise public awareness of the dangers and consequences of terrorism, as well as to contribute within its field of competence to the elimination of the underlying causes. UNESCO's contribution to raising public awareness is not limited to educational and research activities, but also comprises the statements, declarations and appeals by the Director-General to condemn terrorism.

34. In the further elaboration of UNESCO's plan of action on preventing and eliminating terrorism and participating in the endeavours of the international community, two principles must be kept in sight.

(a) This programme should be intersectoral - as all sectors of UNESCO - in particular Education, Culture, Communications, Information and Informatics, Social and Human Sciences as well as the Culture of Peace Programme - should participate.

(b) The plan of action should fully respect the specificity of UNESCO's contribution in conformity with its fields of competence.

35. Apart from developing its own programmes and projects, addressing directly or indirectly the question of terrorism, UNESCO, in close cooperation with the High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Centre for Human Rights may participate in the implementation of the activities assigned to the Secretary-General.

36. Although UNESCO could not be considered as being among the lead agencies in the endeavours of the international community to combat and eliminate international terrorism, the contribution it would be making through the activities summarized above is nevertheless highly relevant in combating international terrorism and its root causes.

[5 May 1995]

1. In respect of the safety of ships and the security of their passengers and crews, the IMO Assembly, by resolution A.548(14) of 20 November 1985, called upon Governments, port authorities and administrations, shipowners, ship operators, shipmasters and crews to take steps to review and, as necessary, strengthen port and on-board security. Measures intended to assist Member Governments to implement this resolution were adopted by the Maritime Safety Committee of IMO in September 1986 (MSC/Circ.443). Thereafter, the Governments of Greece and the United States submitted information on the steps taken by them to implement the measures adopted by the Maritime Safety Committee. 9/

2. Concerning the two international instruments done at Rome on 10 March 1988 under the auspices of IMO, namely the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation and the Protocol for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Fixed Platforms Located on the Continental Shelf, they entered into force on 1 March 1992. At this stage, there are 30 Contracting States to the Convention and 27 to the Protocol.

3. It should be noted that Greece and the United States are parties to the 1988 Convention and Protocol and it is not clear to what extent the above-mentioned measures, which these States adopted in 1987, are in force and still applied by them.

4. With reference to the workshops and training courses which may be organized and financed under the auspices of the United Nations in pursuance of General Assembly resolution 49/6, I wish to inform you that IMO has no funds to contribute but would be pleased, upon request, to be of assistance in connection with issues of relevance to the above-mentioned international instruments and measures adopted by this Organization.

- (20) "In accepting the said Convention, the Government of the United Arab Emirates takes the view that its acceptance of the said Convention does not in any way imply its recognition of Israel, nor does it oblige to apply the provisions of the Convention in respect of the said Country."
- (21) The Convention is ratified "in respect of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Territories under territorial sovereignty of the United Kingdom as well as the British Solomon Islands Protectorate".

Note: By a Note dated 20 November 1990, the Government of the United Kingdom declared that Anguilla has been included under the ratification of the Convention by that Government with effect from 7 November 1990.

- (22) The instrument of ratification by the Government of Venezuela contains the following reservation regarding Articles 4, 7 and 8 of the Convention:

"Venezuela will take into consideration clearly political motives and the circumstances under which offences described in Article 1 of this Convention are committed, in refusing to extradite or prosecute an offender, unless financial extortion or injury to the crew, passengers, or other persons has occurred".

The Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland made the following declaration in a Note dated 6 August 1985 to the Department of State of the Government of the United States:

"The Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland do not regard as valid the reservation made by the Government of the Republic of Venezuela in so far as it purports to limit the obligation under Article 7 of the Convention to submit the case against an offender to the competent authorities of the State for the purpose of prosecution".

With reference to the above declaration by the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Government of Venezuela, in a Note dated 21 November 1985, informed the Department of State of the Government of the United States of the following:

"The reserve made by the Government of Venezuela to Articles 4, 7 and 8 of the Convention is based on the fact that the principle of asylum is contemplated in Article 116 of the Constitution of the Republic of Venezuela. Article 116 reads:

'The Republic grants asylum to any person subject to persecution or which finds itself in danger, for political reasons, within the conditions and requirements established by the laws and norms of international law.'

It is for this reason that the Government of Venezuela considers that in order to protect this right, which would be diminished by the application without limits of the said articles, it was necessary to request the formulation of the declaration contemplated in Art. 2 of the Law approving the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts Against the Security (sic) of Civil Aviation".

The Government of Italy made the following declaration in a Note dated 21 November 1985 to the Department of State of the Government of the United States:

"The Government of Italy does not consider as valid the reservation formulated by the Government of the Republic of Venezuela due to the fact that it may be considered as aiming to limit the obligation under Article 7 of the Convention to submit the case against an offender to the competent authorities of the State for the purpose of prosecution".
