for the Western Group. The meeting was attended by 909 participants, including 607 delegates from 142 member States, 34 participants from business sector entities, 223 participants from non-governmental organizations and civil society, and 110 participants from United Nations bodies and international organizations. The report of the first meeting of the Preparatory Committee and the documentation for the meeting can be found on the Internet at http://www.itu.int/wsis.

3. The meeting adopted rules of procedure for the Preparatory Committee meetings and arrangements for accreditation. The meeting also adopted, as a whole, a document on principles guiding the preparatory work and the Summit, with some components remaining to be clarified in the future work of the Preparatory Committee.

4. The second and third meetings of the Preparatory Committee will be held in Geneva during February and September 2003, respectively.

5. A series of regional preparatory conferences have been announced in advance of the second meeting of the Preparatory Committee. They are scheduled for Bucharest (7-9 November 2002); Tokyo (13-15 January 2003); and the Dominican Republic (first quarter of 2003). A second preparatory conference is also being considered in the African region, as well as a meeting for the Arab States.
