Agenda item 25 (a)

Operational activities for development: quadrennial comprehensive policy review of operational activities for development of the United Nations system

Report of the Second Committee*

Rapporteur: Ms. Aida Hodžić (Bosnia and Herzegovina)

I. Introduction

1. The Second Committee held a substantive debate on agenda item 25 (see A/67/442, para. 2). Action on sub-item (a) was taken at the 29th and 38th meetings, on 15 November and 14 December 2012. An account of the Committee's consideration of the sub-item is given in the relevant summary records (A/C.2/67/SR.29 and 38).

II. Consideration of draft resolution A/C.2/67/L.14 and the non-paper based thereon

2. At the 29th meeting, on 15 November, the representative of Algeria, on behalf of the Group of 77 and China, introduced a draft resolution entitled "Quadrennial comprehensive policy review" (A/C.2/67/L.14), which read:

"The General Assembly,

"Recalling its resolutions 44/211 of 22 December 1989, 47/199 of 22 December 1992, 50/120 of 20 December 1995, 52/203 of 18 December 1997, 52/12 B of 19 December 1997, 53/192 of 15 December 1998, 56/201 of 21 December 2001, 59/250 of 22 December 2004, 62/208 of 19 December 2007 and 64/289 of 2 July 2010, Economic and Social Council resolutions 2008/2 of 18 July 2008, 2009/1 of 22 July 2009, 2010/22 of 23 July 2010 and 2011/7 of 18 July 2011 and other relevant resolutions,

* The report of the Second Committee on this item will be issued in three parts, under the symbol A/67/442 and Add.1 and 2.

“Reaffirming the importance of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review of operational activities, through which the General Assembly establishes key system-wide policy orientations for the development cooperation and country-level modalities of the United Nations system,

“Reaffirming also the need to strengthen the United Nations with a view to enhancing its coherence and efficiency, as well as its capacity to address effectively, and in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, the full range of development challenges of our time,

“Recalling the commitment of Member States to enhance the relevance, coherence, effectiveness, efficiency, accountability and credibility of the United Nations system as a shared goal and interest,

“Taking note of the efforts made by Member States to enhance their ownership of the development process, including by those countries that volunteered as pilots for the ‘Delivering as one’ initiative,

“Recalling the need to provide the United Nations system with adequate and timely resources with a view to enabling it to carry out its mandates in a coherent, effective and efficient manner,

“Recalling also the role of the Economic and Social Council in providing coordination and guidance to the United Nations system to ensure that those policy orientations are implemented on a system-wide basis in accordance with the present resolution and General Assembly resolutions 48/162 of 20 December 1993, 50/227 of 24 May 1996, 57/270 B of 23 June 2003, 61/16 of 20 November 2006 and 65/285 of 29 June 2011,

“Recalling further the outcomes of the major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic, social and related fields, such as the United Nations Millennium Declaration of 2000, the Monterrey Consensus of the International Conference on Financing for Development of 2002, the Plan of Implementation of the World Summit on Sustainable Development (‘Johannesburg Plan of Implementation’) of 2002, the 2005 World Summit Outcome, and its resolution 60/265 of 30 June 2006 on follow-up to the development outcome of the 2005 World Summit, including the Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed development goals, the outcome document of the high-level plenary meeting of the General Assembly on the Millennium Development Goals of 22 September 2010, the outcome documents of the Fourth United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries of 2011 and the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development of 2012, entitled ‘The future we want’,

“Reaffirming that each country must take primary responsibility for its own development and that the role of national policies and development strategies in the achievement of sustainable development cannot be overemphasized, and recognizing that national efforts should be complemented by supportive global programmes, measures and policies aimed at expanding the development opportunities of developing countries, while taking into account national conditions and ensuring respect for national ownership, strategies and sovereignty,

“Recognizing that development, peace and security and human rights are interlinked and mutually reinforcing, and reaffirming that development is a central goal in itself and that it constitutes a key element of the overarching framework of the United Nations operational activities for development,

“Recognizing also that the private sector and civil society, including non-governmental organizations, can contribute positively to the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and encouraging their further contribution in supporting national development efforts in accordance with national plans and priorities,

“Reiterating that the development of national capacities of programme countries is a central goal of the operational activities of the United Nations system, with a view to eradicating poverty and achieving sustained, inclusive and equitable economic growth and sustainable development, “Recognizing the urgent and specific needs of the least developed countries, landlocked developing countries and small island developing States, “Recognizing also the special needs of Africa,

“Recognizing further the particular and diverse development needs of low- and middle-income countries,

“I. Introduction

“1. Takes note with appreciation of the reports of the Secretary-General on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review of operational activities for development of the United Nations system and the analysis of funding of operational activities for development of the United Nations system for 2010;

“2. Also takes note with appreciation of the relevant reports of the Joint Inspection Unit (JIU);

“3. Reaffirms that the fundamental characteristics of the operational activities for development of the United Nations system should be, inter alia, their universal, voluntary and grant nature, their neutrality and their multilateralism, as well as their ability to respond to the development needs of programme countries in a flexible manner, and that the operational activities are carried out for the benefit of programme countries, at the request of those countries and in accordance with their own policies and priorities for development;

“4. Underscores that there is no ‘one size fits all’ approach to development and that development assistance by the United Nations development system should be able to respond to the varying development needs of programme countries and should be in alignment with their national development plans and strategies in accordance with its mandates;

“5. Recognizes that the strength of the United Nations operational system lies in its legitimacy, at the country level, as a neutral, objective and trusted partner for both programme countries and donor countries;

“6. Stresses that national Governments have the primary responsibility, ownership and leadership with regard to their countries’ development and in coordinating, on the basis of national strategies and priorities, all types of external assistance and cooperation, including those provided by multilateral organizations, in order to effectively integrate such assistance into their development processes;

“7. Emphasizes that the operational activities for development of the United Nations system should be valued and assessed on the basis of their impact on the programme countries as contributions to enhance the capacity of those countries to pursue poverty eradication, sustained economic growth and sustainable development;

“8. Decides that, with the agreement and consent of the host country, the United Nations development system should assist national Governments in creating an enabling environment in which the links and cooperation between national Governments, the United Nations development system, civil society, national non governmental organizations and the private sector that are involved in the development process are strengthened, including, as appropriate, during the United Nations Development Assistance Framework preparation process, with a view to seeking new and innovative solutions to development problems in accordance with national policies and priorities;

“9. Recognizes the important role and comparative advantage of the United Nations development system in supporting national efforts, accelerating progress on the Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed development goals, addressing inequality and supporting those living in or vulnerable to poverty, and advancing integration of the economic, social and environmental pillars of sustainable development;

“10. Stresses the need to make the United Nations development system more relevant, coherent, efficient and effective in its support to developing countries to achieve the internationally agreed development goals, on the basis of their national development priorities and strategies, and stresses also that reform efforts should enhance organizational efficiency and achieve concrete development results;

“11. Requests the United Nations development system to continue its efforts to respond to national development plans, policies and priorities, which constitute the only viable frame of reference for programming operational activities at the country level, on the basis of national leadership, and to pursue full integration of operational activities for development at the country level with national planning and programming, under the leadership of national Governments, at all stages of the process, while ensuring the full involvement of all relevant stakeholders at the national level;

“12. Recognizes that strengthening the role and capacity of the United Nations development system to assist countries in achieving their development goals requires continuing improvement in its effectiveness, efficiency, coherence and impact, along with a significant increase in resources and an expansion of its resource base on a continuous, more predictable and assured basis;

“13. Commits to strengthening the Economic and Social Council within its mandate under the Charter, as a principal organ in the integrated and coordinated follow-up of the outcomes of all major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic, social, environmental and related fields, recognizes its key role in achieving a balanced integration of the three dimensions of sustainable development, and looks forward to the review of the implementation of General Assembly resolution 61/16 of 20 November 2006 on the strengthening of the Council;

“14. Recognizes that the individual United Nations funds, programmes and agencies have specific experience and expertise, derived from, and in line with, their mandates and strategic plans, and stresses, in this regard, that improvement of coordination and coherence at the country level should be undertaken in a manner that recognizes the respective mandates and roles and enhances the effective utilization of resources and the unique expertise of all United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies;

“15. Also recognizes that foreign occupation hinders the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed development goals and has acute, adverse and complex economic, social and environmental consequences, and urges the United Nations development system to strengthen its programmes of assistance to peoples living under foreign occupation through adequate resources and effective operational activities;

“16. Reaffirms the central role of Governments in contributing to the work of the United Nations development system, while recognizing the importance of increasing the capacity of that system to engage in innovative partnerships, at the international level, with new and emerging stakeholders, including civil society, the private sector and foundations;

“17. Stresses the need for the United Nations system to work seamlessly across its entities, funds and programmes and specialized agencies by enhancing coordination within programme countries and building strong linkages within country programmes at the national, regional and global levels;

“18. Recognizes the importance of improving strategic planning as well as of consistent, reliable and comprehensive statistical data and analysis about United Nations operational activities in order to provide an understanding of evolutions and trends contributing to sound policy decisions and to effectively implement the present resolution;

“II. Funding of operational activities of the United Nations for development

“A. General principles

“19. Stresses the need for adequate quantity and quality of funding for operational activities as well as the need to make funding more stable, predictable, effective and efficient;

“20. Also stresses that core resources, because of their untied nature, continue to be the bedrock of the operational activities for development of the United Nations system, and in this regard notes with concern that the share of core contributions to United Nations funds and programmes has declined in recent years, and recognizes the need for Member States and organizations to address, on a continuous basis, the imbalance between core and non-core resources;

“21. Acknowledges efforts by developed countries to increase resources for development, including commitments by some developed countries to increase official development assistance, notes with concern the overall decline in official development assistance in the period from 2008 to 2011, urges donor countries to fulfil all their official development assistance commitments, including the commitments by many developed countries to achieve the target of 0.7 per cent of gross national income for official development assistance by 2015, as well as the target of 0.15 per cent to 0.20 per cent for official development assistance to least developed countries, and urges those developed countries that have not yet done so to make concrete efforts in this regard in accordance with their commitments;

“B. Enhancing overall funding, particularly core resources

“22. Urges donor countries to substantially increase their voluntary contributions to the core regular budgets of the United Nations development system, in particular its funds, programmes and specialized agencies, and to contribute on a multi-year basis, in a sustained and predictable manner;

“23. Requests the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to report to their governing bodies by the end of 2013 on concrete measures taken to broaden the donor base and increase the number of donor countries and other partners making financial contributions to the United Nations development system in order to reduce the reliance of the system on a limited number of donors;

“24. Also requests the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to further improve their capacity to report on and communicate their mandates, needs and results achieved to the general public, including through the use of traditional media, social networks and the Internet, as a means of raising public awareness in favour of increasing core contributions to their regular budgets;

“25. Further requests, in this regard, the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to inform the Economic and Social Council, at its operational activities segment, from 2013 on, of improvements made in communicating to the general public their mandates, needs and results;

“26. Encourages the United Nations funds and programmes to continue to actively engage with the Bretton Woods Institutions, the regional development banks, civil society, the private sector and foundations with a view to diversifying potential sources of core funding for its operational activities for development, in alignment with the core principles of the United Nations development system and with full respect for the national priorities of programme countries;

“27. Invites developing countries to consider contributing to the core regular budgets of the United Nations operational activities for development in a manner consistent with their capacities;

“28. Expresses its deepest concern over the lack of progress in the development and operationalization of the concept of the ‘critical mass’ of core resources, and reiterates its call to the governing bodies of the United Nations funds and programmes to consider, on the basis of concrete proposals to be submitted by the respective United Nations funds and programmes by the end of 2013, the most appropriate process towards arriving at a critical mass of core funding for each fund and programme, according to their individual mandates;

“29. Decides, in this regard, that the concept of a critical mass must include a level of core resources adequate to respond to the needs of the programme countries through programmatic activities, to produce the results expected in strategic plans as well as to finance administrative and managerial costs;

“C. Improving the predictability and quality of resources

“30. Recognizes that the United Nations development system should prioritize the allocation of core regular resources and incentivize the allocation of non-core resources that are more flexible, less earmarked and better aligned with the priorities of programme countries and with the strategic plans of United Nations specialized agencies, funds and programmes;

“31. Notes that the increased use of restrictively earmarked non-core resources reduces the influence of the governing bodies, increases transaction costs and leads to the fragmentation of operational activities for development of the United Nations system and can thus constrain their effectiveness;

“32. Recognizes the need for organizations to attain, on a continuous basis, an adequate balance between core and non-core resources, based on the unique mandate, structure and programmes of individual entities, while noting that some non-core resources may supplement the regular resource base of the United Nations development system to support operational activities for development;

“33. Stresses the need to avoid the use of core resources to subsidize non-core financed activities, as well as the use of core resources to cover costs related to the management of extrabudgetary funds and their programme activities;

“34. Urges Member States making non-core contributions to reduce transaction costs, assign resources, as much as possible, at the beginning of the annual planning period, while ensuring a minimum one-year duration of implementation, streamline and harmonize requirements related to reporting, monitoring and evaluation, and limit earmarking to, at least, a broader, sector-specific level in accordance with national priorities;

“D. Ensuring full cost recovery

“35. Notes with deep concern the non-compliance with paragraphs 116 and 117 of resolution 62/208;

“36. Requests, in this regard, the executive boards of the United Nations funds and programmes and the governing bodies of the specialized agencies, as appropriate, to adopt a decision to implement, by the end of 2013, harmonized differentiated cost recovery rates, with a view to ensuring full cost recovery, and also requests that:

“(a) Cost recovery rates applied to local self-supporting contributions do not exceed 3 per cent;

“(b) Cost recovery rates applied to contributions for the promotion of South-South cooperation and to emergency humanitarian assistance do not exceed 7 per cent;

“(c) A cost recovery rate no greater than 15 per cent is applied to multi-donor trust funds and thematic trust funds;

“(d) A cost recovery rate of over 20 per cent is applied to programme-specific, country-specific non-core contributions;

“37. Requests specialized agencies and United Nations funds and programmes, as appropriate, to report annually to their respective governing bodies on the collection and use of resources received as cost recovery, including cost-sharing, with a view to ensuring that full cost recovery is achieved and that core resources released are used for programmatic activities;

“38. Expresses its deep concern over the non-compliance with paragraph 37 of resolution 64/289, and reiterates its request that the Secretary-General, from 2013 on, include information on all existing multi-donor trust funds and thematic trust funds, including information on their mandates, performance and governance structures, in the annual report, on financial statistics to the Economic and Social Council, with a view to further improving the participation of Member States in their governance;

“39. Requests United Nations agencies administering multi-donor trust funds to report on the administration of those funds, including information on the mandates, performance and governance structures of the funds, to their respective governing bodies on an annual basis, from 2013 on, in order to ensure better complementarity between funds provided through multi-donor trust funds and funds provided through other funding sources and with a view to further improving the participation of Member States in their governance;

“40. Urges the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to submit for the consideration of their respective governing bodies, by the end of 2013, concrete proposals for the improvement of intergovernmental governance and oversight of programme- and project-specific non-core funding by, inter alia, including in their annual reports an assessment of how such funding is aligned with the strategic plans of the respective organizations;

“III. Strengthening the intergovernmental governance of operational activities of the United Nations for development

“41. Reaffirms the need for continuously enhancing the transparency of the activities of the United Nations System Chief Executives Board for Coordination and of the United Nations Development Group, in particular to ensure their effective interaction with and improve their responsiveness to Member States, while respecting their mandates and working methods, and in this regard requests:

“(a) The Secretary-General, in his capacity as Chair of the Chief Executives Board, to further enhance the quality and quantity of information on the website of the Board and to publish and make available to Member States the inter-agency agreements and decisions of the Board;

“(b) The Secretary-General, in his capacity as the Chair of the Chief Executives Board, to ensure a transparent and balanced approach in its priority-setting, to implement and report on the decisions of relevant intergovernmental bodies and to include appropriate information on the work of the Board in its annual overview report to the Economic and Social Council, which is also studied by the Committee for Programme and Coordination, in order to promote more effective dialogue;

“(c) The Administrator of the United Nations Development Programme, as Chair of the United Nations Development Group, to consult the pertinent intergovernmental multilateral governance structures, including the executive boards and governing councils, the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly, in order to obtain a clear mandate and/or formal authorization before committing the United Nations development system, its resources and policies to specific non-United Nations processes;

“(d) The President of the Economic and Social Council to continue to convene periodic briefings for Member States and the Secretariat following the biannual sessions of the Chief Executives Board, taking into account the need to schedule the briefings within a time frame that permits the full utilization of such opportunities by Member States for an effective dialogue with the Board regarding its activities;

“42. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to strengthen the analytical quality of system-wide reporting on funding for United Nations operational activities for development, including the coverage, timeliness, reliability, quality and comparability of system-wide data, definitions and classifications;

“43. Decides that, with effect from 1 January 2014, the executive boards of the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Population Fund, the United Nations Office for Project Services, the United Nations Children’s Fund and the World Food Programme shall consist of forty-one members, as follows:

- “(a) Ten from the African States;
- “(b) Ten from the Asia-Pacific States;
- “(c) Four from the Eastern European States;
- “(d) Six from the Latin American and Caribbean States;
- “(e) Five from the Western European and other States;
- “(f) Six from contributing countries;

“44. Also decides that the six seats allocated to countries contributing to the core resources shall be distributed as follows:

- “(a) Four seats to be allocated on each executive board to four of the largest providers of voluntary core contributions to the respective fund or programme, to be selected by and from among the top ten such providers;

“(b) Two seats to be allocated on each executive board to two developing countries not members of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development that provide voluntary core contributions to the respective fund or programme, to be selected by and from among the top ten such providers, with due consideration being given to geographical balance;

“45. Further decides that the above allocations should be in accordance with the list provided by the Secretary-General of the average annual voluntary contributions of Member States in the previous three calendar years to the core budgets of each fund and programme and that, in the case of executive boards shared by two or more funds and programmes, the sum of contributions to the core budgets of all agencies sharing the same executive board shall be considered for the purpose of the selection of the seats reserved for the top contributors to core resources;

“46. Decides that a Member State can be selected from only one category at any one time;

“47. Also decides that the Economic and Social Council shall elect members to the executive boards, in accordance with established practice;

“48. Further decides that, in the case of the World Food Programme, seventeen members of the Executive Board representing the different regional groups shall be elected by the Council of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations and the other seventeen by the Economic and Social Council and that the election for the thirty-fifth seat representing a regional group shall rotate every three years from the Council of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations to the Economic and Social Council, starting with the former;

“49. Invites the governing bodies of all the other specialized agencies and United Nations funds and programmes to consider, where appropriate, ways to ensure better geographical representation in their composition and to incentivize the allocation of core resources by, inter alia, considering reserving seats for the top contributors to their core resources and to report to the General Assembly by the end of 2014 on measures taken in that regard, where appropriate;

“50. Requests the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to include in the annual reports submitted to their governing bodies, from 2013 on, information on the criteria for the selection of staff, especially in the Professional and higher categories, as well as on measures taken to secure the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity while ensuring geographical representation and gender balance;

“IV. Contribution of United Nations operational activities to national capacity development and development effectiveness

“A. Capacity-building and development

“51. Recognizes that capacity development and ownership of national development strategies are essential for the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and calls upon United Nations development system organizations to provide further support to the efforts of developing countries to establish and/or maintain effective national institutions and to support the implementation and, as necessary, the devising of national strategies for capacity-building, including policy advisory support, to deal with emerging global challenges;

“52. Emphasizes the need for enhanced capacity-building for sustainable development, and in this regard calls for the strengthening of technical and scientific cooperation, including North-South, South-South and triangular cooperation, and reiterates the importance of human resources development, including training, the exchange of experience and expertise, knowledge transfer and technical assistance for capacity-building, which involves strengthening institutional capacity, including planning, management and monitoring capacities;

“53. Stresses that capacity development is a core function of the United Nations development system and one of the key interrelated principles that must be applied at the country level, and in this regard notes the efforts undertaken by the United Nations Development Group to identify capacity gaps, in particular the 2007 common country assessment/United Nations Development Assistance Framework guidelines and the users’ guide of 2009 and 2010;

“54. Calls upon the United Nations development system to strengthen its focus on developing national capacities for development planning, data collection and analysis, implementation, reporting, monitoring and evaluation, with an emphasis on the effective integration of the economic, environmental and social dimensions of sustainable development, and in this regard recognizes that developing countries must have full access to the mandates and resources of the United Nations development system, including the knowledge base and expertise of all resident and non-resident agencies;

“55. Also calls upon the United Nations development system to further support the capacity-building and capacity development of developing countries, upon their request, and to effectively coordinate and evaluate the impact of external development assistance in line with national development plans and priorities;

“56. Requests the United Nations development system to support the development of specific frameworks aimed at enabling programme countries, upon their request, to design, monitor and evaluate results in the development of their capacities to achieve national development goals and strategies;

“57. Calls upon United Nations organizations to adopt measures that ensure sustainability in capacity-building activities, and reiterates that the United Nations development system should use to the fullest extent possible and strengthen national execution and available national expertise and technologies as the norm in the implementation of operational activities by focusing on national structures and avoiding, wherever possible, the practice of establishing parallel implementation units outside of national and local institutions;

“58. Calls upon the United Nations development system to continue to strengthen national execution bearing in mind the importance of building national capacity, simplifying procedures and aligning them with national procedures;

“59. Stresses the need to attach high priority to substantially increasing procurement from developing countries, in order to promote collective self-reliance, while paying due respect to the principles of international competitive bidding, and in this regard emphasizes the importance for all parts of the United Nations system of setting specific goals for increasing procurement from developing countries;

“60. Emphasizes the importance of technology transfer to developing countries and recalls the provisions on technology transfer, finance, access to information and intellectual property rights agreed on in the Plan of Implementation of the World Summit on Sustainable Development (‘Johannesburg Plan of Implementation’), in particular its call to promote, facilitate and finance, as appropriate, access to and the development, transfer and diffusion of environmentally sound technologies and corresponding know-how, in particular to developing countries, on favourable terms, including on concessional and preferential terms, as mutually agreed, and in this regard urges Member States and the United Nations system to support the promotion and transfer of new and emerging technologies to programme countries;

“61. Stresses that programme countries, in order to meet the internationally agreed development goals, including those contained in the Millennium Declaration, should have access to new and emerging technologies, which requires technology transfer, technical cooperation and the building and nurturing of scientific and technological capacity to participate in the development and adaptation to local conditions of those technologies, and in this regard requests the United Nations development system to strengthen its role of facilitating access by developing countries to new and emerging technologies;

“62. Urges all organizations of the United Nations development system, with the full participation of developing countries, to intensify inter-agency sharing of information at the system-wide level on good practices and experience gained, results achieved, benchmarks and indicators, and monitoring and evaluation criteria concerning their capacity-building and capacity-development activities;

“B. Poverty eradication

“63. Reaffirms that eradicating poverty is one of the greatest global challenges facing the world today, particularly in Africa, in least developed countries, in landlocked developing countries, in small island developing States and in middle-income countries, and underlines the importance of accelerating sustainable, broad-based and inclusive economic growth, including full, productive employment generation and decent work;

“64. Acknowledges that the eradication of poverty through the development of national capacities in developing countries should continue to be a core focus area for the United Nations development system and that its development programmes and projects should attempt to address this greatest global challenge as their underlying objective;

“65. Calls upon the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to consider addressing the root causes of extreme poverty and hunger when designing their overall policy for development for the next four years;

“66. Emphasizes the need to accord the highest priority to poverty eradication within the United Nations development agenda, while stressing the importance of addressing the root causes of poverty and challenges to its eradication through integrated, coordinated and coherent strategies at the national, intergovernmental and inter-agency levels;

“67. Calls upon the specialized agencies and the United Nations funds and programmes to support Member States, upon their request, in addressing the challenges of poverty eradication by promoting, inter alia, pro-poor growth, employment generation, productive capacities, social protection and productive inclusion;

“68. Calls upon the United Nations development system to promote the development of sector-wide education policies and to contribute to international advocacy for eradicating poverty, including through the improvement of education and vocational training;

“69. Encourages the United Nations development system to share good practices of programmes and policies which address inequalities for the benefit of those living in poverty and promote their active participation in the design and implementation of such programmes and policies, with the aim of accelerating progress towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals and informing the discussions on the way forward after 2015;

“C. South-South cooperation and development of national capacities

“70. Reaffirms its view of South-South cooperation as a manifestation of solidarity among peoples and countries of the South that contributes to their national well-being, their national and collective self-reliance and the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and that South-South cooperation and its agenda have to be set by countries of the South and should continue to be guided by the principles of respect for national sovereignty, national ownership and independence, equality, non-conditionality, non-interference in domestic affairs and mutual benefit;

“71. Reaffirms the increased importance of South-South cooperation, and in this regard calls upon the funds, programmes, specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations system to mainstream support to South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation into the regular country-level programming of operational activities for development, to strengthen support mechanisms at the global and regional levels, including drawing upon the knowledge networks of global entities and the capacities of the regional commissions and the United Nations development system regional teams, and to help developing countries, at their request and with their ownership and leadership, to develop capacities to maximize the benefits and impact of South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation in order to achieve their national goals, with special emphasis on the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals;

“72. Calls upon donors and other stakeholders, upon request, to strengthen their support for South-South cooperation, including triangular cooperation, especially by mobilizing financial resources on a sustainable basis and by providing technical assistance;

“73. Requests the United Nations development system to intensify its information-sharing and reporting on support to and results achieved through South-South cooperation, including triangular cooperation;

“74. Stresses the importance of strengthening the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation, and calls upon the United Nations development system to provide the Office with further support to enable it to fulfil its mandate;

“75. Requests the Secretary-General to present a proposal for improving the United Nations institutional arrangements in terms of overall system-wide policy frameworks, governance, coordination, structures, mechanisms and dedicated resources, including a proposal for funding of the system-wide coordination, advocacy and mainstreaming activities of the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation, in the context of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2014-2015, through the use of a grant arrangement;

“76. Requests the Administrator of the United Nations Development Programme to take measures to avoid the reduction of the amount allocated annually to the fixed line for South-South cooperation under the programming arrangements of the United Nations Development Programme;

“77. Requests the heads of the specialized agencies, the United Nations funds and programmes and the regional commissions to pay special attention to the implementation of South-South cooperation projects managed or supported by the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation, regardless of their financial scale;

“D. Gender equality and women’s empowerment

“78. Welcomes the full operationalization of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), notes that its establishment and the conduct of its work should lead to more effective coordination, coherence and gender mainstreaming across the United Nations, and recognizes its role of assisting Member States and the United Nations system in progressing more effectively and efficiently towards the goals of achieving gender equality and the empowerment of women;

“79. Requests the organizations of the United Nations development system to substantially increase the investment in and focus on outcomes and outputs relating to gender equality and the empowerment of women in United Nations development framework programmes, such as the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, including through the full and effective implementation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework guidelines on gender equality and the empowerment of women;

“80. Reiterates its call upon the organizations of the United Nations development system, within their organizational mandates, to mainstream a gender perspective and to pursue gender equality and the empowerment of women in their country programmes, planning instruments and sector-wide programmes and to articulate specific country-level goals and targets in this field in accordance with national development strategies;

“81. Urges the organizations of the United Nations development system to strengthen the coordination of gender-responsive operational activities through existing coordination mechanisms at the country level and in partnership, where appropriate, with other relevant entities and national partners;

“82. Welcomes the development of the United Nations System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women, under the leadership of UN-Women, and its adoption by the Chief Executives Board on 13 April 2012, as an accountability framework to be fully implemented by the United Nations system, and calls upon the United Nations system to actively engage in its roll-out;

“83. Requests the Joint Inspection Unit to undertake a system-wide evaluation of the effectiveness, value added and impact of the System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women as a tool for performance monitoring and accountability for submission to the General Assembly at its seventieth session;

“84. Calls upon the United Nations development system to acquire sufficient technical expertise for gender mainstreaming in programme planning and implementation to ensure that gender dimensions are systematically addressed and, in this regard, to draw on the gender expertise available in the United Nations system, including in UN-Women, to assist in the preparation of the United Nations Development Assistance Frameworks and other development programming frameworks;

“85. Requests the organizations of the United Nations development system to ensure that its various existing accountability mechanisms provide for more coherent, accurate and effective monitoring, evaluation and reporting on gender equality results and on the tracking of gender-related resource allocation and expenditure, including through the promotion of the use, where appropriate, of gender markers, and to encourage the use by United Nations country teams of gender accountability mechanisms to assist and improve their performance at the country level;

“86. Encourages the organizations of the United Nations development system to collect, analyse and disseminate comparable data, disaggregated by gender and age, in a regular and systematic manner in order to guide country programming, and to support the preparation of organization-wide and country-level documents, such as the strategic, programmatic and results-based frameworks, and to continue to refine their tools for measuring progress and impact;

“87. Calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system, within their organizational mandates, to further improve their institutional accountability mechanisms and to include intergovernmentally agreed gender equality results and gender-sensitive indicators in their strategic frameworks;

“88. Also calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system to continue efforts to achieve gender balance in appointments within the United Nations system at the central, regional and country levels for positions that affect operational activities for development, including appointments of resident coordinators and other high-level officers, with due regard to the representation of women from programme countries, in particular developing countries, and keeping in mind the principle of equitable geographical representation;

“E. Transition from relief to development

“89. Recognizes that the United Nations development system has a vital role to play in situations of transition from relief to development;

“90. Stresses the need for transitional activities to be undertaken under national ownership, and requests the United Nations development system to contribute in this regard to the development of national capacities at all levels to manage the transition process;

“91. Calls upon donors and countries in a position to do so to provide timely, predictable and sustained financial contributions for the operational activities of the United Nations system for the early recovery and long-term development of countries in transition from relief to development;

“92. Requests the United Nations development system to respond to requests from countries affected by disasters or conflicts that are in transition from relief to development to support their national priorities, while recognizing the differences in these situations;

“93. Recognizes the important role that effective and responsive resident coordinator/humanitarian coordinator systems can play in situations of transition from relief to development;

“94. Calls for further strengthening of the coordination role of the resident coordinator in countries undergoing transition, and in this regard requests the members of the United Nations development system to take immediate steps to fully implement the management and accountability system to enable the resident coordinator to effectively and efficiently coordinate operational activities for development of the United Nations system in countries in situations of transition from relief to development;

“95. Requests the United Nations development system to assign priority to providing adequate and sustained financial and technical support to ensure effective strategic and operational planning and coordination capacity in the offices of resident coordinators in countries in situations of transition from relief to development;

“96. Invites the United Nations development system to take into account, in its assistance to countries emerging from conflict that are on the agenda of the Peacebuilding Commission, the advisory role that the Commission can play in relation to peacebuilding and recovery strategies, with a view to helping countries lay the foundation for their economic and social recovery and development and ensuring national ownership of the peacebuilding process;

“97. Requests the members of the United Nations development system, upon the request of affected countries, to further delegate authority in the areas of programming and allocation of resources to field representatives of United Nations entities, in order to enable the respective entities to respond effectively and efficiently to national needs and priorities in countries in situations of transition from relief to development;

“98. Encourages the United Nations development system to strengthen operational partnerships with other multilateral organizations and other partners working in countries in situations of transition from relief to development, particularly the World Bank, as appropriate;

“V. Improved functioning of the United Nations development system

“A. United Nations Development Assistance Framework

“99. Reaffirms the central role and the importance of the active participation of national Governments during the preparation, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework process, in order to enhance national appropriation and achieve full alignment of operational activities with national priorities, planning and programming;

“100. Requests resident coordinators and United Nations country teams to strengthen consultation with national Governments and relevant stakeholders, including civil society and non-governmental organizations, with the agreement of national Governments, with a view to ensuring that the development and implementation of all United Nations planning and programming documents are fully aligned with national development needs and priorities;

“101. Recognizes that the country-level presence of the United Nations system should be tailored to meet the specific development needs of programme countries, as required to implement national plans, strategies and programmes to be supported by the United Nations development system, and that the United Nations system at the country level should be structured and composed in such a way that it corresponds to ongoing and projected cooperation programmes, in line with the priorities agreed with the national authorities, rather than to the institutional structure of the United Nations system;

“102. Reaffirms the value of the full participation of the specialized agencies, the regional commissions, the Secretariat and other non-resident agencies in the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and other planning and programming processes, in accordance with their mandates, and requests the resident coordinators to proactively seek their participation;

“103. Emphasizes that programme countries should have access to and benefit from the full range of mandates and resources of the United Nations development system, whereby the national Governments should determine which resident and non-resident United Nations organizations will best respond to specific needs and priorities of the individual country, including, in the case of non-resident agencies, through hosting arrangements with resident organizations, as appropriate;

“104. Requests the United Nations development system to take measures, in full consultation with Member States, to simplify and improve the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and agency-specific programming instruments, processes and reporting requirements, including through reducing the workload of national Governments and other partners, decreasing the time necessary for the preparation of relevant documents, ensuring alignment with Government planning cycles, improving the focus on results and promoting better division of labour within the United Nations system at the country level;

“B. Resident coordinator system

“105. Stresses that the resident coordinator system, while managed by the United Nations Development Programme, is owned by the United Nations development system as a whole and that its functioning should be participatory, collegial and accountable, and in this context reaffirms the importance of the implementation of previous resolutions of the General Assembly regarding the United Nations presence at the country level, and reiterates the central role of resident coordinators in making possible the coordination of United Nations operational activities for development at the country level to improve the effectiveness of the response to the national development priorities of programme countries, including through appropriate resources and accountability;

“106. Decides to improve the management of the resident coordinator system by:

“(a) Ensuring that the profiles of the resident coordinators are aligned with the needs and priorities of the countries;

“(b) Ensuring the participation on an equal footing of all United Nations agencies, funds and programmes present in the country, in proposing and nominating candidates for the position of resident coordinator for the consideration of the United Nations development system;

“(c) Achieving diversification in terms of geographical distribution and gender, in line with United Nations values;

“(d) Ensuring appropriate training for potential candidates;

“107. Urges the United Nations development system to continue to provide further financial, technical and organizational support for the resident coordinator system, and, owing to the current financial constraints that the resident coordinator system is facing, requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with the members of the United Nations development system, to submit for the consideration of Member States, by the end of 2013, concrete proposals on modalities for the funding of the resident coordinator system, including through the use of regular budgetary resources of the United Nations, in order to ensure that resident coordinators have the necessary stable and predictable resources to fulfil their mandate effectively, without compromising resources allocated to programmatic activities;

“108. Calls upon all the members of the United Nations development system:

“(a) To fully implement and monitor the implementation of the management and accountability system for the resident coordinator system, including strengthening the firewall and mutual accountability for results;

“(b) To decentralize authority from headquarters to their country-level representatives for making decisions on programmatic and financial matters, as appropriate, related to the programming activities at the country level of their own agencies, funds and programmes;

“(c) To ensure that the offices of the resident coordinators are well equipped and have the necessary management resources to duly respond to the needs of programme countries and to enable the resident coordinators to fulfil their mandates effectively;

“(d) To strengthen coordination with all development partners at the country level, upon the agreement of the national Government, in support of national development plans and priorities;

“(e) To guarantee the appropriate level of resources to ensure staff development so that the United Nations development system has the right mix of capacities and skills, including for high-quality policy and programme advice, and the highest standards of leadership skills, management training and continuous learning to provide effective capacity development and other support in response to national needs and priorities;

“C. ‘Delivering as one’

“109. Takes note of the outcome of the independent evaluation of lessons learned from ‘Delivering as one’, as presented in the note by the Secretary-General;

“110. Recognizes the experience of the voluntary adoption of ‘Delivering as one’ by a number of programme countries as an important initiative for enhancing the coherence, effectiveness and efficiency of the United Nations development system, resulting in closer alignment with national priorities, greater empowerment of national authorities, enhancement of cross-sectoral work and the provision of more policy-oriented strategic support to national development efforts in those countries implementing ‘Delivering as one’;

“111. Emphasizes that the principle of voluntary adoption of the ‘Delivering as one’ and ‘No one size fits all’ approaches should be maintained so that the United Nations system can tailor its approach to partnership with individual programme countries in a way that best suits their national needs, realities, priorities and planning modalities, as well as their achievement of the Millennium Development Goals, other internationally agreed development goals and the United Nations development agenda beyond 2015, in the framework of a holistic and comprehensive concept of development;

“112. Encourages the United Nations development system to provide programme countries that are considering adoption of the ‘Delivering as one’ approach with information on such issues as guidance on programming, monitoring and evaluation, and reporting, funding mechanisms and support to the resident coordinator system with a view to enabling them to take an informed decision on modalities for the delivery of assistance;

“113. Requests the United Nations development system to continue to support all programme countries, regardless of the modality for the delivery of assistance they prefer to adopt, including those that are voluntarily implementing the ‘Delivering as one’ approach, in accordance with their development plans and priorities;

“114. Recognizes that joint programming is a useful tool for promoting greater coherence in the ‘Delivering as one’ countries and a pivotal component of the ‘Delivering as one’ approach, and in this regard encourages the United Nations development system to further strengthen joint programming in programme countries implementing the ‘Delivering as one’ approach;

“115. Emphasizes the importance of sharing information on a voluntary basis regarding the implementation of the pilot initiative on ‘Delivering as one’;

“D. Regional dimensions

“116. Recognizes the contribution of interregional, regional and subregional cooperation to addressing development challenges related to the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals;

“117. Encourages, in this regard, the United Nations development system to strengthen collaboration with regional and subregional intergovernmental organizations and regional banks, as appropriate and consistent with their respective mandates;

“118. Requests the regional commissions to further develop their analytical capacities to support country-level development initiatives at the request of the programme countries, and to support measures for more intensive inter-agency collaboration at the regional and subregional levels;

“119. Urges regional and subregional organizations, including the regional commissions and their subregional offices, to prioritize sustainable development through, inter alia, more efficient and effective capacity-building, development and implementation of regional agreements and arrangements, as appropriate, and exchange of information, best practices and lessons learned;

“120. Recognizes, in regard to the functioning of the United Nations development system, the importance of aligning regional technical support structures and the regional bureaux to provide support to the United Nations country teams, including enhanced technical, programme and administrative support, increasing their collaboration at the regional level, including through co-location, where appropriate and consistent with the needs of the programme countries of the regions concerned, and identifying appropriate mechanisms at the subregional level, where appropriate and in close consultation with the programme countries concerned, to respond to specific challenges that cannot be adequately responded to at the regional hubs;

“121. Requests the funds, programmes, specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations development system at the regional level and the regional commissions to further strengthen cooperation and coordination among themselves and with their respective headquarters, in close consultation with the Governments of the countries concerned and, where appropriate, to include the funds, programmes and specialized agencies that are not represented at the regional level;

“122. Calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system, its regional commissions and other regional and subregional entities, as appropriate and consistent with their mandates, to intensify their cooperation and to adopt more collaborative approaches to support country-level development initiatives at the request of recipient countries and to establish and/or improve mechanisms to promote knowledge-sharing on and compile successful development experiences and best practices, through South-South cooperation or triangular schemes, when appropriate, and by improving mechanisms for access to the technical capacities of the United Nations system at the regional and subregional levels;

“123. Takes note of the assistance provided by the United Nations development system regional teams to United Nations country teams across a range of areas, and requests the United Nations development system regional teams to substantially enhance their support to United Nations country teams in pursuing national development agendas;

“E. Simplification and harmonization of business practices

“124. Requests the United Nations development system funds and programmes and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations to further pursue higher-quality, more effective and cost-efficient support services in all programme countries by reducing the duplication of functions and transaction costs through the consolidation of support services at the country level, while ensuring that efficiency savings are directed towards building national capacities, and to report on concrete achievements in this regard to their respective governing bodies by the end of 2014, and requests the funds and programmes to submit plans in this regard to their executive boards by the end of 2013;

“125. Encourages the United Nations development system to make increased use of national public and private systems for support services, including for procurement, security, information technology, telecommunications, travel and banking, as well as, when appropriate, for planning, reporting and evaluation, and also encourages the United Nations development system to avoid and significantly reduce the number of its parallel project implementation units in programme countries as a means of strengthening national capacities and reducing transaction costs;

“126. Underscores the importance of the use of national professional staff and national consultants, wherever feasible and to the advantage of the programme countries;

“127. Requests the Secretary-General as Chair of the Chief Executives Board, to present a proposal on the common definition of operating costs, including direct and indirect costs, and a common and standardized system of cost control to the executive boards of the funds and programmes by the end of 2014, with a view to their taking a decision on this issue, and in this regard requests the funds and programmes and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations system to establish such a harmonized cost classification system by 2016;

“128. Encourages the United Nations development system to support programme countries that wish to establish common premises for the United Nations development agencies, funds and programmes;

“129. Requests the United Nations development system to prioritize the availability of financial and human resources to further support the effective harmonization and rationalization of business operations, including the option of calculating the amount of programme countries' in-kind contributions and of developing other funding mechanisms in support of innovative and sustainable business solutions supporting the further development and implementation of high-quality, effective and cost-efficient support services, without compromising the allocation of resources to programmatic activities;

“130. Calls upon the United Nations development system to undertake a study on the feasibility of consolidating the existing learning resources of the United Nations development system in a cost-effective manner, and to submit a report thereon to the General Assembly at its sixty-ninth session;

“F. Results-based management

“131. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report for the next quadrennial comprehensive policy review on improving results-based management in the United Nations development system, with the objective of improving development results as well as organizational effectiveness, in alignment with the national priorities of programme countries;

“132. Requests the Secretary-General to present, for the consideration of Member States, proposals on reporting on system-wide results;

“G. Evaluation of operational activities for development

“133. Welcomes the enhanced coordination and exchange of experience among the United Nations entities engaged in system-wide evaluation, namely the Joint Inspection Unit, the United Nations Evaluation Group, the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, the Office of Internal Oversight Services and the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, also welcomes the establishment of an interim coordination mechanism for system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development of the United Nations coordinated by the Joint Inspection Unit, and calls for the provision of additional resources to the Unit to enable it to perform its functions in an effective manner;

“134. Reaffirms the need to strengthen independent system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development, stresses in this regard that the Joint Inspection Unit is the only entity within the United Nations system with a specific mandate for independent system-wide evaluation, and acknowledges the reforms initiated by the Unit;

“135. Emphasizes that programme countries should have greater ownership and leadership in the evaluation of all forms of assistance, including that provided by the United Nations development system, and requests the United Nations development system to pursue and intensify its efforts to strengthen evaluation capacities in programme countries;

“136. Decides to strengthen the national ownership and leadership of evaluation of operational activities for development at the country level, and in this regard requests the United Nations entities to intensify their efforts to build national capacity in programme countries for the evaluation of operational activities for development, in full consultation with Member States;

“137. Requests the United Nations Evaluation Group, in cooperation with the Joint Inspection Unit, to develop by the end of 2013 a common policy and methodological framework for system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development;

“138. Requests the executive boards of the funds and programmes, and encourages the governing bodies of specialized agencies and other relevant United Nations entities, including the United Nations Evaluation Group, to intensify the use of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and system-wide evaluations in lieu of agency-specific evaluations of operational activities for development, wherever possible, particularly in programme countries adopting the ‘Delivering as one’ approach;

“VI. Follow-up and monitoring

“139. Reaffirms that the governing bodies of the funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system should take appropriate actions for the full implementation of the present resolution, in line with paragraphs 91 and 92 of resolution 56/201;

“140. Underscores the importance of ensuring that the strategic plans of funds and programmes are consistent with and guided by the comprehensive policy review, which establishes the main intergovernmentally agreed parameters of the operational activities for development of the United Nations system;

“141. Emphasizes the importance of the Secretary-General establishing an effective and evidence-based monitoring system for the implementation in the United Nations development system of the resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review;

“142. Requests the Joint Inspection Unit to undertake an independent evaluation of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review process and to submit a report with its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly at its sixty-ninth session;

“143. Emphasizes the need to strengthen the institutional capacity of the United Nations Secretariat to undertake high-quality monitoring, evaluation and reporting on the implementation in the United Nations development system of the resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, as well as the analysis of system-wide funding flows for operational activities for development, in all modalities of development cooperation, including South-South cooperation, with a view to facilitating informed intergovernmental deliberations and decision-making in the General Assembly and the Economic and Social Council;

“144. Requests the Secretary-General to develop, in full consultation with Member States, an evidence-based monitoring and reporting framework for the implementation in the United Nations development system of the resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, anchored in the collection of comprehensive country-level information, data and indicators, and to report on an annual basis to the Economic and Social Council on progress made in the implementation of the resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, and in this regard recognizes the role of the Development Cooperation Forum, as the executive branch of the Economic and Social Council, to assess the progress of the operational activities for development of the United Nations;

“145. Also requests the Secretary-General, in this regard, to conduct biennially a survey among programme country Governments on the relevance, effectiveness and efficiency of the United Nations development system as an input to the monitoring of the implementation of the resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, and also requests the Secretary-General to consolidate the annual reports on the implementation and funding of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review into a single annual publication on operational activities for development of the United Nations system, with the inputs of all funds, programmes, specialized agencies and other relevant United Nations entities, with a view to facilitating informed intergovernmental deliberations at the operational activities segment of the substantive session of the Economic and Social Council;

“146. Invites the Secretary-General to submit a proposal to the General Assembly in the first quarter of 2013 for strengthening the capacity of the United Nations Secretariat for policy review, strategic planning and system-wide statistics, analysis and reporting on funding flows for operational activities for development of the United Nations system, with a view to enhancing the effectiveness of policy guidance and oversight provided by the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council and the Development Cooperation Forum for the United Nations operational activities for development;

“147. Requests the Secretary-General, on the basis of information provided by the funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system, to submit to the Economic and Social Council, at its substantive sessions of 2013, 2014 and 2015, detailed reports on results achieved and measures and processes implemented in follow-up to the present resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review in order to evaluate the implementation of the resolution, with a view to ensuring its full implementation;

“148. Also requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its sixty-eighth session, through the Economic and Social Council, a comprehensive analysis of the implementation of the present resolution in the context of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, inter alia, by making use of relevant documentation, and to make appropriate recommendations.”

3. At its 38th meeting, on 14 December, the Committee had before it a non-paper, in English only, containing the text of a draft resolution entitled “Quadrennial comprehensive policy review”, submitted by the Vice-Chair of the Committee, Modest Jonathan Mero (United Republic of Tanzania), on the basis of informal consultations held on draft resolution A/C.2/67/L.14.
4. At the same meeting, the Secretary of the Committee read out a statement of the programme budget implications of the draft resolution contained in the non-paper (see A/C.2/67/SR.38).
5. Also at the same meeting, before the adoption of the draft resolution, a statement was made by the facilitator, Pio Wennubst (Switzerland) (see A/C.2/67/SR.38).
6. Also at its 38th meeting, the Committee adopted the draft resolution contained in the non-paper, which was subsequently circulated under symbol A/C.2/67/L.64 (see para. 9).
7. After the adoption of the draft resolution, statements were made by the Vice-Chair of the Committee (United Republic of Tanzania) and by the representatives of Norway, Algeria (on behalf of the Group of 77 and China), the United States of America, the European Union, Japan and Australia (also on behalf of Canada and New Zealand) (see A/C.2/67/SR.38).
8. In the light of the adoption of the draft resolution contained in the non-paper, draft resolution A/C.2/67/L.14 was withdrawn by its sponsors.

III. Recommendation of the Second Committee

9. The Second Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

Quadrennial comprehensive policy review

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 44/211 of 22 December 1989, 47/199 of 22 December 1992, 50/120 of 20 December 1995, 52/203 of 18 December 1997, 52/12 B of 19 December 1997, 53/192 of 15 December 1998, 56/201 of 21 December 2001, 59/250 of 22 December 2004, 62/208 of 19 December 2007 and 64/289 of 2 July 2010, Economic and Social Council resolutions 2008/2 of 18 July 2008, 2009/1 of 22 July 2009, 2010/22 of 23 July 2010 and 2011/7 of 18 July 2011, which should be considered as an integral part of the present resolution, and other relevant resolutions,

Reaffirming the importance of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review of operational activities, through which the General Assembly establishes key system-wide policy orientations for the development cooperation and country-level modalities of the United Nations system,

Reaffirming also the need to strengthen the United Nations with a view to enhancing its coherence and efficiency, as well as its capacity to address effectively, and in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, the full range of development challenges of our time,

Recalling the commitment of Member States to enhance the relevance, coherence, effectiveness, efficiency, accountability and credibility of the United Nations system as a shared goal and interest,

Taking note of the efforts made by Member States to enhance the ownership of their own development processes, including by those countries that have voluntarily adopted the “Delivering as one” initiative on a pilot or self-starter basis,

Recalling the need to provide the United Nations system with adequate and timely resources with a view to enabling it to carry out its mandates in a coherent, effective and efficient manner,

Recalling also the role of the Economic and Social Council in providing coordination and guidance to the United Nations system to ensure that those policy orientations are implemented on a system-wide basis in accordance with the present resolution and General Assembly resolutions 48/162 of 20 December 1993, 50/227 of 24 May 1996, 57/270 B of 23 June 2003, 61/16 of 20 November 2006 and 65/285 of 29 June 2011,

Recalling further the outcomes of the major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic, social and related fields, such as the United Nations Millennium Declaration of 2000,¹ the Monterrey Consensus of the International Conference on Financing for Development of 2002,² the Plan of Implementation of the World Summit on Sustainable Development (“Johannesburg Plan of Implementation”) of 2002,³ the 2005 World Summit Outcome,⁴ and its resolution 60/265 of 30 June 2006 on follow-up to the development outcome of the 2005 World Summit, including the Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed development goals, the outcome document of the high-level plenary meeting of the General Assembly on the Millennium Development Goals of 22 September 2010,⁵ the outcome documents of the Fourth United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries of 2011⁶ and the outcome document of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development of 2012, entitled “The future we want”,⁷

Recognizing the vital role played by these conferences and summits in shaping a broad development vision and in identifying commonly agreed objectives which have contributed to our understanding of, and our actions to overcome, the challenges to improving human life in different parts of the world,

Recognizing also the need for the United Nations development system to continue to adapt and respond to evolving challenges and opportunities for development cooperation,

Reaffirming that each country must take primary responsibility for its own development and that the role of national policies and development strategies cannot be overemphasized in the achievement of sustainable development, and recognizing that national efforts should be complemented by supportive global programmes, measures and policies aimed at expanding the development opportunities of developing countries, while taking into account national conditions and ensuring respect for national ownership, strategies and sovereignty,

Recognizing that the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, offer a framework for planning, reviewing and assessing the activities of the United Nations for development,

Recognizing also that development, peace and security and human rights are interlinked and mutually reinforcing, and reaffirming that development is a central goal in itself and that it constitutes a key element of the overarching framework of the United Nations operational activities for development,

Reaffirming the importance of freedom, peace and security, respect for all human rights, including the right to development and the right to an adequate standard of living, including the right to food, the rule of law, gender equality, women’s empowerment and the overall commitment to just and democratic societies for development,

Reaffirming also that gender equality is of fundamental importance for achieving sustained and inclusive economic growth, poverty eradication and sustainable development, in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and United Nations conferences, and that investing in the development of women and girls has a multiplier effect, in particular on productivity, efficiency and sustained and inclusive economic growth, in all sectors of the economy, especially in key areas such as agriculture, industry and services,

Recognizing that the private sector and civil society, including non-governmental organizations, can positively contribute to the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and encouraging their further contribution in supporting national development efforts in accordance with national plans and priorities,

Reiterating the importance of the development of national capacities to eradicate poverty and pursue sustained and equitable economic growth and sustainable development as a central goal of the development cooperation of the United Nations system,

Recognizing the multidimensional challenges of countries affected by natural disasters and conflicts that are in transition from relief to development, while noting that development rarely if ever happens in a linear fashion,

Recognizing also the need to tailor the operational activities of the United Nations to the specific challenges faced by the least developed countries, landlocked developing countries, small island developing States and low- and middle-income countries, as well as the special needs of Africa,

I. Introduction

1. Takes note with appreciation of the reports of the Secretary-General on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review of operational activities for development of the United Nations system⁸ and the analysis of funding of operational activities for development of the United Nations system for 2010;⁹

2. Takes note of the relevant reports of the Joint Inspection Unit;¹⁰

3. Notes the advances that the United Nations development system is making in the implementation of General Assembly resolution 62/208, and calls upon the United Nations system to accelerate its full implementation, taking into account the provisions of the present resolution;

4. Reaffirms that the fundamental characteristics of the operational activities for development of the United Nations system should be, inter alia, their universal, voluntary and grant nature, their neutrality and their multilateralism, as well as their ability to respond to the development needs of programme countries in a flexible manner, and that the operational activities are carried out for the benefit of programme countries, at the request of those countries and in accordance with their own policies and priorities for development;

5. Underscores that there is no “one size fits all” approach to development and that development assistance by the United Nations development system should be able to respond to the varying development needs of programme countries and should be in alignment with their national development plans and strategies in accordance with its mandates;

6. Recognizes that the strength of the United Nations operational system lies in its legitimacy, at the country level, as a neutral, objective and trusted partner for both programme countries and donor countries;

7. Stresses that national Governments have the primary responsibility for their countries' development and for coordinating, on the basis of national strategies and priorities, all types of external assistance, including that provided by multilateral organizations, in order to effectively integrate such assistance into their development processes;

8. Emphasizes that the operational activities for development of the United Nations system should be valued and assessed on the basis of their impact on the programme countries as contributions to enhance the capacity of those countries to pursue poverty eradication, sustained economic growth and sustainable development;

9. Decides that, with the agreement and consent of the host country, the United Nations development system should assist national Governments in creating an enabling environment in which the links and cooperation between national Governments, the United Nations development system, civil society, national non-governmental organizations and the private sector that are involved in the development process are strengthened, including, as appropriate, during the United Nations Development Assistance Framework preparation process, with a view to seeking new and innovative solutions to development problems in accordance with national policies and priorities;

10. Recognizes the important role and comparative advantage of the United Nations development system in supporting national efforts, accelerating progress on the Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed development goals, addressing all development challenges, including inequality, supporting the poor and people in vulnerable situations and advancing the integration of the economic, social and environmental pillars of sustainable development;

11. Stresses the need to make the United Nations development system more relevant, coherent, efficient and effective in its support to developing countries to achieve the internationally agreed development goals, on the basis of their national development priorities and strategies, and also stresses that reform efforts should enhance organizational efficiency, achieve concrete development results and strengthen the system's accountability and transparency to Member States;

12. Requests the United Nations development system to continue its efforts to respond to national development plans, policies and priorities, which constitute the only viable frame of reference for programming operational activities at the country level, on the basis of national ownership and leadership, and to pursue full integration of operational activities for development at the country level with national planning and programming, under the leadership of national Governments, at all stages of the process, while ensuring the full involvement of all relevant stakeholders, at all levels, as appropriate;

13. Recognizes that strengthening the role and capacity of the United Nations development system to assist countries in achieving their development goals requires continuing improvement in its effectiveness, efficiency, coherence and impact, along with a significant increase in resources and an expansion of its resource base on a continuous, more predictable and assured basis;

14. Also recognizes that sustainable development should be given due consideration by the programmes, funds and specialized agencies of the United Nations system and other relevant entities, such as international financial institutions and the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, in accordance with their respective existing mandates, and in this regard invites them to further enhance the mainstreaming of sustainable development into their respective mandates, programmes, strategies and decision-making processes in support of the efforts of all countries, in particular developing countries, in the achievement of sustainable development;

15. Calls upon the United Nations system to improve the management of facilities and operations by taking into account sustainable development practices, building on existing efforts and promoting cost-effectiveness, in accordance with legislative frameworks, including financial rules and regulations, while maintaining accountability to Member States;

16. Encourages the Secretary-General, through the United Nations System Chief Executives Board for Coordination and the United Nations Development Group, as appropriate, to make efforts to enhance the coherence, effectiveness and efficiency of the United Nations development system;

17. Reaffirms the need for continuously enhancing the transparency of the activities of the United Nations System Chief Executives Board for Coordination and of the United Nations Development Group, in particular to ensure their effective interaction with and improve their responsiveness to Member States, while respecting their working methods, and in this regard requests:

(a) The Secretary-General, in his capacity as Chair of the Chief Executives Board for Coordination, to further enhance the quality and quantity of information on the website of the Board and to publish and make available to Member States the inter-agency agreements and decisions of the Board;

(b) The Secretary-General, in his capacity as Chair of the Chief Executives Board for Coordination, to ensure a transparent approach in priority-setting, to include appropriate information on the work of the Board in its annual overview report to the Economic and Social Council, to be reviewed by the Committee for Programme and Coordination;

(c) The United Nations Development Group to consult the pertinent governing bodies of its constituent agencies on major resource and policy decisions;

(d) The President of the Economic and Social Council to continue to convene periodic briefings for Member States and the Secretariat following the biannual sessions of the Chief Executives Board for Coordination, taking into account the need to schedule the briefings within a time frame that permits the full utilization of opportunities by Member States for an effective dialogue with the Board regarding its activities;

18. Recognizes that the individual United Nations funds, programmes and agencies have specific experience and expertise, derived from and in line with their mandates and strategic plans, and stresses, in this regard, that improvement of coordination and coherence at the country level should be undertaken in a manner that recognizes the respective mandates and roles and enhances the effective utilization of resources and the unique expertise of all United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies;

19. Urges all Member States to pursue full implementation of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and recognizes the positive contribution that these goals can make in providing direction to the operational activities for development of the United Nations system, in accordance with national development efforts and priorities;

20. Reaffirms the central role of Governments in contributing to the work of the United Nations development system, while recognizing the importance of the United Nations development system increasing capacity to engage in results-oriented innovative national, regional and global partnerships, with diverse stakeholders, including international financial institutions, civil society, the private sector and foundations, and encourages the United Nations development system to intensify its collaboration with these stakeholders;

21. Stresses the need for the United Nations system to work consistently across its entities, funds and programmes and specialized agencies by enhancing coordination within programme countries and by building strong linkages within programme countries and between national, regional and global levels;

22. Recognizes the importance of improving strategic planning at the United Nations agency and national levels, as well as of consistent, reliable and comprehensive statistical data and analysis about United Nations operational activities supporting national efforts in order to provide an understanding of evolution and trends contributing to sound policy decisions and to effectively implement the present resolution;

23. Requests the United Nations development system to take into account the needs of persons with disabilities in its operational activities for development, including in the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, and to address the continuing lack of adequate and reliable information on disability and to strengthen coherence and coordination across the United Nations system in this regard;

II. Funding of operational activities of the United Nations for development

A. General principles

24. Stresses the need for adequate quantity and quality of funding for operational activities as well as the need to make funding more predictable, effective and efficient;

25. Emphasizes that increasing financial contributions to the United Nations development system, particularly core resources, is key to achieving the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and in this regard recognizes the mutually reinforcing links between increased effectiveness, efficiency and coherence of the United Nations development system, achieving concrete results in assisting developing countries to eradicate poverty and achieving sustained economic growth and sustainable development through its operational activities for development and the overall resourcing of the United Nations development system;

26. Stresses that core resources, because of their untied nature, continue to be the bedrock of the operational activities for development of the United Nations system, in this regard notes with concern that the share of core contributions to United Nations funds and programmes has declined in recent years, and recognizes the need for organizations to address, on a continuous basis, the imbalance between core and non-core resources;

27. Notes that non-core resources represent an important contribution to the overall resource base of the United Nations development system and complement core resources to support operational activities for development, thus contributing to an increase in total resources, while noting the need to make non-core resources more flexible and aligned with strategic plans and national priorities, and recognizing that non-core resources are not a substitute for core resources;

28. Recognizes that non-core resources pose challenges, in particular restricted earmarked funding such as single-donor project-specific funding, through potentially increasing transaction costs, fragmentation, competition and overlap among entities and providing disincentives for pursuing a United Nations-wide focus, strategic positioning and coherence, and may also potentially distort programme priorities regulated by intergovernmental bodies and processes;

29. Also recognizes the overall positive trends of funding for United Nations operational activities in the period from 1995 to 2010, and notes with concern the decline in official development assistance in 2011 as well as the imbalance between core and non-core resources;

30. Acknowledges the efforts by developed countries to increase resources for development, including commitments by some developed countries to increase official development assistance, calls for the fulfilment of all official development assistance commitments, including the commitments by many developed countries to achieve the target of 0.7 per cent of gross national income for official development assistance by 2015, as well as the target of 0.15 per cent to 0.20 per cent for least developed countries, and urges those developed countries that have not yet done so to make concrete efforts in this regard in accordance with their commitments;

31. Affirms the importance of accountability, transparency and improved results-based management and further harmonized results-based reporting on the work of the United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies, and in nationally owned outcomes, for increased quantity and quality of funding for operational activities;

32. Encourages the funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system to intensify collaboration to achieve more effective use of development resources, as well as their expertise and actions towards strengthening national capacities in accordance with national priorities and development plans;

B. Enhancing overall funding, particularly core resources

33. Urges donor countries and other countries in a position to do so to maintain and substantially increase their voluntary contributions, in a manner consistent with their capacities, to the core regular budgets of the United Nations development system, in particular its funds, programmes and specialized agencies, and to contribute on a multi-year basis, in a sustained and predictable manner;

34. Stresses that funding for operational activities should be aligned with the national priorities and plans of the programme countries as well as the strategic plans, mandates, resource frameworks and priorities of the United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies, and underscores in that regard the need to further strengthen the delivery of results and the results-based frameworks of the funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system and to improve their reporting on outputs and nationally owned outcomes;

35. Requests the United Nations funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies, to report to their governing bodies at the first regular session of 2014 on concrete measures taken to emphasize the importance of broadening the donor base and increasing the number of countries and other partners making financial contributions to the United Nations development system in order to reduce the reliance of the system on a limited number of donors, as well as on progress made in increasing the donor base;

36. Encourages the United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies to further improve their communication to the general public on their mandates and development results, recognizing the important contribution made by those Governments in providing significant core contributions to regular resources of those organizations, and invites the United Nations funds and programmes and specialized agencies to provide information on efforts made in communicating to the general public in their annual reports to the Economic and Social Council from 2013 onwards;

37. Encourages the United Nations funds and programmes to continue to actively engage with the Bretton Woods institutions, the regional development banks, civil society, the private sector and foundations with a view to diversifying potential sources of funding, especially core funding, for their operational activities for development, in alignment with the core principles of the United Nations development system and with full respect for the national priorities of programme countries;

38. Expresses concern over the lack of progress by the governing bodies in the development and operationalization of the concept of the “critical mass” of core resources;

39. Reiterates the potential positive impact of determining the level of “critical mass” of core funding for United Nations development agencies, and requests the funds and programmes to define common principles for the concept of critical mass of core resources, which may include the level of resources adequate to respond to the needs of the programme countries and to produce the results expected in strategic plans, including administrative, management and programme costs, and to present specific proposals to their respective governing bodies by the end of 2013 with a view to decision by 2014;

C. Improving the predictability and quality of resources

40. Recognizes that Member States and the United Nations development system should prioritize the allocation of core regular resources and non-core resources that are more predictable, flexible, less earmarked and better aligned with the priorities of programme countries, including those included in the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, and with the strategic plans and mandates of United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies;

41. Encourages the governing bodies of the United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies, as appropriate, to ensure that all available and projected core and non-core resources are consolidated within an integrated budgetary framework, based on the priorities of their respective strategic plans;

42. Requests that, as a practice, all available and projected financial contributions for operational activities for development of the United Nations system at the country level be consolidated within a common budgetary framework, which would not constitute a legal constraint on the spending authority of resources, and that the framework be used to strengthen the quality of system-wide resource planning in support of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, and also requests the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies, to provide the necessary information on contributions to the resident coordinators upon agreement with programme countries;

43. Stresses the need to avoid the use of core/regular resources to subsidize non-core/extrabudgetary financed activities, including the use of core/regular resources to cover costs related to the management and support of non-core/extrabudgetary funds and their programme activities;

44. Encourages Member States making non-core contributions to reduce transaction costs, assign resources, as much as possible, at the beginning of the annual planning period, while encouraging multi-year duration of implementation of development-related activities, streamline and harmonize requirements related to reporting, monitoring and evaluation and give priority to pooled, thematic and joint funding mechanisms applied at the global, regional and country levels;

45. Acknowledges the ongoing work by the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Population Fund, the United Nations Children's Fund and the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women) towards agency-specific integrated budgets, including harmonization of cost classification, and looks forward to the completion of this work to allow a better alignment of programming and resources in the next generation of strategic plans;

46. Requests, in this regard, the Executive Boards of the funds and programmes and the governing bodies of the specialized agencies, as appropriate, to organize structured dialogues during 2014 on how to finance the development results agreed in the new strategic planning cycle of their respective entities, with a view to making non-core resources more predictable and less restricted/earmarked, broadening the donor base and improving the adequacy and predictability of resource flows;

D. Ensuring full cost recovery

47. Welcomes the decisions of the Executive Boards of the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Population Fund and the United Nations Children's Fund and UN-Women on a harmonized cost classification methodology, in particular with regard to the classification of costs relating to programme activities and to non-programme activities, takes note of the current work being undertaken by the four organizations on a harmonized conceptual framework and calculation methodology for cost recovery rates, and in this regard looks forward to its completion by early 2013;

48. Reaffirms, in this regard, that the guiding principle governing the financing of all non-programme costs should be based on full cost recovery, proportionally, from core and non-core funding sources;

49. Acknowledges the principle of full cost recovery;

50. Also acknowledges that United Nations organizations have different business models and mandates and that this implies that their funding structures differ;

51. Notes with concern that the non-programme costs relating to non-core programme activities continue to draw resources from core resources for programme activities;

52. Urges Member States making non-core contributions to reduce transaction costs and to streamline reporting requirements, where possible;

53. Requests the Executive Boards of the United Nations funds and programmes, and encourages the governing bodies of the specialized agencies, to adopt cost recovery frameworks by 2013, with a view to their full implementation in 2014, based on the guiding principle of full cost recovery, proportionally, from core and non-core resources, and a simple, transparent and harmonized methodology, providing incentives, including through differentiated cost recovery rates, and taking into account different volumes and nature of funds to increase core funding and more predictable, flexible and less earmarked non-core contributions that are aligned with the strategic plans adopted by the respective governing bodies;

54. Requests the United Nations funds and programmes, and urges the specialized agencies, to include estimated amounts to be recovered in their budgets and to report on actual cost recovery amounts as part of their regular financial reporting;

55. Requests the Secretary-General to report on the progress made in the context of his annual report on the funding of operational activities for development, including options for incentive mechanisms for increasing core resources, to be applied at a system-wide level;

56. Requests the United Nations funds and programmes to further pursue reductions in management costs in the effort to minimize the necessary cost recovery rate within the existing budget framework;

III. Contribution of United Nations operational activities to national capacity development and development effectiveness

A. Capacity-building and development

57. Recognizes that capacity development and ownership of national development strategies are essential for the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and calls upon organizations of the United Nations development system to provide further support to the efforts of developing countries, in alignment with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, to establish and/or maintain effective national institutions and to support the implementation and, as necessary, the devising of national strategies for capacity-building, including policy advisory support, to deal with domestic and global challenges;

58. Encourages the United Nations system to promote sustainable development outcomes through strengthening normative and operational linkages within the United Nations system and, in this regard, to direct particular efforts to supporting programme countries, at their request, in building national capacity for inclusive, equitable, participatory, transparent and accountable national development processes, in order to target and empower the poor and people in vulnerable situations;

59. Emphasizes the need for enhanced capacity-building for sustainable development, and in this regard calls for the strengthening of technical and scientific cooperation, including North-South, South-South and triangular cooperation, and reiterates the importance of human resources development, including training, the exchange of experience and expertise, knowledge transfer and technical assistance for capacity-building, which involves strengthening institutional capacities, including planning, management, monitoring and evaluation capacities;

60. Stresses that capacity development is a core function of the United Nations development system and one of the key interrelated principles that must be applied at the country level, and in this regard notes the efforts undertaken by the United Nations development system to identify capacity gaps, in particular the 2010 common country assessment/United Nations Development Assistance Framework guidelines and the 2010 United Nations Development Assistance Framework guidance and support package;

61. Calls upon the United Nations development system to strengthen its focus on developing national capacities for development planning, disaggregated data collection and analysis, implementation, reporting, monitoring and evaluation, with an emphasis on the effective integration of the economic, environmental and social dimensions of sustainable development, and in this regard recognizes that the resources of the United Nations development system, including the knowledge base and expertise of all resident and non-resident agencies, should be available for access by developing countries;

62. Also calls upon the United Nations development system to further support the capacity-building and capacity development of developing countries, upon their request, and to effectively coordinate and evaluate the impact of external development assistance in line with national development plans and priorities;

63. Requests the United Nations development system to develop, for the consideration of Member States, a common approach for measuring progress in capacity development, as well to develop specific frameworks aimed at enabling programme countries, upon their request, to design, monitor and evaluate results in the development of their capacities to achieve national development goals and strategies;

64. Calls upon United Nations organizations to adopt measures that ensure sustainability in capacity-building activities, and reiterates that the United Nations development system should use, to the fullest extent possible, and strengthen, national execution/implementation and available national expertise and technologies as the norm in the implementation of operational activities by focusing on national structures and avoiding, wherever possible, the practice of establishing parallel implementation units outside of national and local institutions;

65. Stresses that programme countries, in order to meet the internationally agreed development goals, including those contained in the Millennium Declaration,¹ should have access to new and emerging technologies, which requires technology transfer, technical cooperation and the building and nurturing of scientific and technological capacity to participate in the development and adaptation of these technologies to local conditions, and in this regard urges Member States and the United Nations system to support the promotion and transfer of new and emerging technologies to programme countries;

66. Encourages the United Nations development system to make increased use of national public and private systems for support services, including for procurement, security, information technology, telecommunications, travel and banking, as well as, when appropriate, for planning, reporting and evaluation, and also encourages the United Nations development system to avoid and significantly reduce the number of its parallel project implementation units in programme countries as a means of strengthening national capacities and reducing transaction costs;

67. Recalls paragraph 127 of General Assembly resolution 62/208 on the importance of the use of national professional staff and national consultants, wherever feasible and to the advantage of the programme countries;

68. Urges all organizations of the United Nations development system to intensify inter-agency sharing of information, at the system-wide level, on good practices and experiences gained, results achieved, benchmarks and indicators and monitoring and evaluation criteria concerning their capacity-building and capacity development activities;

B. Poverty eradication

69. Reaffirms that eradicating poverty is the greatest global challenge, and an indispensable requirement for sustainable development in developing countries, particularly in Africa, and underlines the importance of accelerating sustainable, broad-based, inclusive and equitable economic growth for the benefit of all people and the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals;

70. Acknowledges that the eradication of poverty through the development of national capacities in developing countries should continue to be a core area of focus for the United Nations development system, and that its development programmes and projects should attempt to address this greatest global challenge as their underlying objective;

71. Calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system, including the funds, programmes and specialized agencies, in accordance with their mandates, to assign the highest priority to poverty eradication, and stresses that efforts in this area should be scaled up to address the root causes of extreme poverty and hunger;

72. Acknowledges the complexity of the challenge of poverty eradication, emphasizes that, in accelerating poverty eradication, the United Nations development system must be driven by national priorities and operate in an integrated, coordinated and coherent manner, making full use of the interlinked and mutually reinforcing pillars of the United Nations development system, and encourages the use of diverse strategies;

73. Encourages the United Nations development system to share good practices, lessons learned, strategies, programmes and policies, such as capacity-building, employment generation, education, vocational training, rural development and the mobilization of all possible resources, among others, which aim at achieving poverty eradication and promoting the active participation of those living in poverty in the design and implementation of such programmes and policies as mandated by the United Nations development system, with the aim of accelerating progress towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals and informing the process leading to the post-2015 development agenda;

C. South-South cooperation and development of national capacities

74. Reaffirms the increased importance of South-South cooperation, and in this regard calls upon the funds, programmes, specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations system to mainstream support to South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation into the regular country-level programming of operational activities for development, to strengthen support mechanisms at the global and regional levels, including drawing upon the knowledge networks of global entities and the capacities of the regional commissions and the United Nations development system regional teams, and to help developing countries, at their request and with their ownership and leadership, to develop capacities to maximize the benefits and impact of South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation in order to achieve their national goals, with special emphasis on the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals;

75. Requests the United Nations development system to intensify its information-sharing, reporting and evaluation on support to and results achieved through South-South cooperation, including triangular cooperation;

76. Welcomes the fact that the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation continues to facilitate the wide diffusion of and access to information relating to experiences, best practices and potential partners in South-South cooperation on the Web of Information for Development, its electronic databank;

77. Also welcomes the increasing importance of South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation in international development efforts, while stressing the important developmental challenges that all developing countries continue to face, recognizes in this regard the increasing potential of South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation for the achievement of internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and calls upon all countries in a position to do so, as well as other stakeholders, to increase their support for South-South cooperation and triangular cooperation, especially by providing technical assistance and mobilizing financial resources on a sustainable basis;

78. Stresses the importance of strengthening the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation, within the United Nations Development Programme, and calls upon the United Nations development system to provide the Office with further support to enable it to fulfil its mandate;

79. Requests the heads of the specialized agencies, the United Nations funds and programmes and the regional commissions to pay special attention to the implementation of South-South cooperation projects managed or supported by the United Nations Office for South-South Cooperation;

D. Gender equality and women's empowerment

80. Welcomes the establishment and operationalization of UN-Women, noting the importance of its work for more effective and coherent gender mainstreaming across the United Nations and its role in leading, coordinating and promoting accountability of the United Nations system in its work on gender equality and the empowerment of women, as established by its resolution 64/289, and recognizes its role in assisting Member States upon their request;

81. Requests the organizations of the United Nations development system to substantially increase the investment in and focus on outcomes and outputs relating to gender equality and the empowerment of women in United Nations development framework programmes;

82. Calls upon the United Nations development system to consider the role of men and boys in gender mainstreaming policies;

83. Requests the United Nations development system to expand and strengthen the use of the United Nations country team performance indicators for gender equality and the empowerment of women (the "scorecard") as a planning and reporting tool for assessing the effectiveness of gender mainstreaming for use by the country teams in the context of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework;

84. Encourages the United Nations development system to institute greater accountability for gender equality in evaluations conducted by country teams by including gender perspectives in such evaluations;

85. Urges all organizations of the United Nations development system, in particular UN-Women, within their respective mandates, to strengthen the coordination of gender-responsive operational activities through existing coordination mechanisms at the country level and in partnership, where appropriate, with other relevant entities and national stakeholders;

86. Welcomes the development of the United Nations System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women, under the leadership of UN-Women, as an accountability framework to be fully implemented by the United Nations development system;

87. Requests the Joint Inspection Unit to undertake a system-wide evaluation of the effectiveness, value added and impact of the System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women as a tool for performance monitoring and accountability for submission to the General Assembly following its full implementation;

88. Calls upon the United Nations development system to acquire sufficient technical expertise for gender mainstreaming in programme planning and implementation to ensure that gender dimensions are systematically addressed and, in this regard, to draw on the gender expertise available in the United Nations system, including at UN-Women, to assist in the preparation process of the United Nations Development Assistance Frameworks and other development programming frameworks;

89. Requests the United Nations development system, including its agencies, funds and programmes, within their respective organizational mandates and in line with existing rules and regulations, to continue working collaboratively to enhance gender mainstreaming within the United Nations system, including by ensuring that the various existing accountability mechanisms of the United Nations system provide for more coherent, accurate and effective monitoring, evaluation and reporting on gender equality results and on the tracking of gender-related resource allocation and expenditure, including through the promotion of the use, where appropriate, of gender markers, and encouraging the use by United Nations country teams of gender accountability mechanisms to assist and improve their performance at the country level;

90. Encourages the organizations of the United Nations development system to collect, analyse and disseminate comparable data, disaggregated by sex and age, in a regular and systematic manner, in order to guide country programming, and to support the preparation of organization-wide and country-level documents, such as the strategic, programmatic and results-based frameworks, and to continue to refine their tools for measuring progress and impact;

91. Calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system, within their organizational mandates, to further improve their institutional accountability mechanisms and to include intergovernmentally agreed gender equality results and gender-sensitive indicators in their strategic frameworks;

92. Also calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system to continue efforts to achieve gender balance in appointments within the United Nations system at the central, regional and country levels for positions that affect operational activities for development, including appointments of resident coordinators and other high-level posts, with due regard to the representation of women from programme countries, in particular developing countries, and keeping in mind the principle of equitable geographical representation;

E. Transition from relief to development

93. Stresses that the impacts of natural disasters are severely hampering efforts to achieve the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and emphasizes the importance of reducing vulnerabilities to natural disasters;

94. Recognizes that the United Nations development system has a vital role to play in countries affected by natural disasters or conflicts that are in transition from relief to development, while recognizing that this is a complex, non-linear process, and in this regard requests the United Nations development system to respond to requests from countries affected by disasters or conflicts that are in transition from relief to development to support their national priorities, while recognizing the differences in these situations;

95. Stresses the need for transitional activities to be undertaken under national ownership, and requests the United Nations development system to contribute in this regard to the development of national capacities at all levels to manage the transition process;

96. Calls upon donors and countries in a position to do so to provide timely, predictable, flexible and sustained financial contributions for the operational activities of the United Nations system for the early recovery and long-term development of countries in transition from relief to development, and invites Member States to examine their own humanitarian and development financing mechanisms, as appropriate, in order to improve fast and flexible financing for prevention, resilience, preparedness, response and the transition from relief to development;

97. Recognizes the important role that effective and responsive resident coordinator/humanitarian coordinator systems can play in situations of transition from relief to development with a view to planning and delivering humanitarian assistance in ways that are supportive of early recovery, in accordance with their mandates and the priorities of national Governments and upon the request of affected national Governments;

98. Calls upon United Nations humanitarian entities, other relevant humanitarian organizations, development partners, the private sector, donor countries and affected States to enhance cooperation and coordination and to continue to utilize and develop appropriate tools, with a view to planning and delivering humanitarian assistance in ways that are supportive of early recovery as well as of sustainable rehabilitation and reconstruction efforts;

99. Calls for further strengthening of the coordination role of the resident coordinator/humanitarian coordinator, as appropriate, in countries in transition from relief to development so as to enable the resident coordinator to effectively and efficiently coordinate operational activities for development of the United Nations system in countries in situations of transition from relief to development;

100. Requests the United Nations development system to assign priority to providing adequate and sustained financial and technical support to ensure effective strategic and operational planning and coordination capacity in the offices of resident coordinators in countries in situations of transition from relief to development;

101. Invites the United Nations development system to take into account, in its assistance to countries emerging from conflict that are on the agenda of the Peacebuilding Commission, the advisory role that the Commission can play in relation to peacebuilding and recovery strategies, with a view to helping countries lay the foundation for their economic and social recovery and development and ensuring national ownership of the peacebuilding process;

102. Recognizes the need for the United Nations development system, as requested, to support inclusive country-level and country-owned transition from relief to development in countries affected by natural disasters or conflict, based on country-led assessments, and underlines the importance of building strong partnerships by providing aid and managing resources more effectively, and aligning these resources for results, in line with country priorities, and by enhancing transparency, risk management and the use of country systems, strengthening national capacities and timeliness of aid and improving the speed and predictability of funding to achieve better results, while underlining the importance of thorough planning and coordination between the United Nations agencies, funds and programmes and the Secretariat, within their respective mandates, to better respond to the needs and priorities of the affected States;

103. Requests the members of the United Nations development system, upon the request of affected countries, to further delegate authority in the areas of programming and allocation of resources, as appropriate, to field representatives of United Nations entities in order to enable the respective entities to respond effectively and efficiently to national needs and priorities in countries in situations of transition from relief to development;

104. Encourages the United Nations development system to strengthen operational partnerships with other multilateral organizations and other stakeholders working in countries in situations of transition from relief to development, particularly the World Bank, as appropriate;

105. Encourages the United Nations system and the Bretton Woods institutions to continue strengthening their efforts to improve coordination with regard to the transition from relief to development, including, where relevant, the development of joint responses for post-disaster and post-conflict needs assessments, programme planning, implementation and monitoring, in full consultation with affected Member States, including funding mechanisms, in order to deliver more effective support and to lower transaction costs for countries in transition from relief to development;

106. Stresses the importance of strengthening cooperation and coordination among the operational activities for development, humanitarian assistance and peacebuilding efforts of the United Nations system, in accordance with their respective mandates and the national priorities of countries in transition from relief to development, in support of national efforts;

107. Requests the United Nations development system to accelerate progress in deepening coordination between Secretariat entities and members of the United Nations development system, inter alia, through the simplification and harmonization of programming instruments and processes and business practices, with a view to providing effective, efficient and responsive support to national efforts in countries in transition from relief to development;

108. Encourages Member States and relevant United Nations organizations to integrate disaster risk reduction into their respective activities, including measures aimed at restoring and improving services and infrastructure as part of the early recovery and transition phase;

109. Emphasizes that building and strengthening resilience at the local, national and regional levels is critical to reducing the impact of disasters, including by saving lives, reducing suffering, mitigating damage to property and providing a more predictable and effective delivery of assistance and relief, and in this regard, while recognizing that building resilience is a long-term development process, stresses the need for continued investment in preparedness, prevention, mitigation and response capacity;

110. Encourages the international community and relevant United Nations entities, including the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction, the United Nations funds and programmes, as well as the specialized agencies, to give due consideration to prevention, preparedness and disaster risk reduction activities, in particular by supporting national and local efforts in that regard;

111. Emphasizes that the United Nations development system should further leverage its capacities at the regional level to enhance support to countries in transition from relief to development, with a view to preventing the spillover and recurrence of the conflict in the region/subregion;

112. Requests the United Nations development system to ensure that the profiles of the resident coordinators in countries in transition from relief to development also include the qualifications of a humanitarian coordinator and that appropriate training on coordination and provision of humanitarian assistance is provided;

IV. Improved functioning of the United Nations development system

A. United Nations Development Assistance Framework

113. Reaffirms the central role and the importance of the active and full participation of national Governments during the preparation, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework process, in order to enhance ownership and achieve full alignment of operational activities with national priorities, challenges, planning and programming;

114. Requests resident coordinators and United Nations country teams to strengthen consultation with national Governments and relevant stakeholders, including civil society and non-governmental organizations, in agreement with national Governments, with a view to ensuring that the development and implementation of all United Nations planning and programming documents are fully aligned with national development needs and priorities;

115. Recognizes that the country-level presence of the United Nations development system should be tailored to meet the specific development challenges and needs of programme countries, as required, to implement national plans, strategies and programmes to be supported by the system, in line with the mandates of different entities, and that the work of the United Nations development system at the country level should be fully in line with the priorities agreed with the national authorities;

116. Emphasizes that programme countries should have access to and benefit from the full range of mandates and resources of the United Nations development system, whereby national Governments should determine which resident and non-resident United Nations organizations will best respond to specific needs and priorities of the individual country, including in the case of non-resident agencies through hosting arrangements with resident organizations, as appropriate;

117. Requests the United Nations development system to take measures in full consultation with Member States to further improve the United Nations Development Assistance Framework as a strategic framework and to simplify the United Nations Development Assistance Framework process in order to reduce the workload of national Governments and other stakeholders, decrease the time necessary for the preparation of relevant documents and ensure alignment with Government planning cycles, thus improving the focus on results and promoting better division of labour within the United Nations system at the country level;

118. Encourages the United Nations development system to further strengthen joint programming processes at the country level, where appropriate, as a useful way to promote greater coherence, taking into account the principles of national ownership, alignment with national priorities and the comparative advantage of individual entities of the United Nations system at the country level;

119. Requests the United Nations development system to further simplify and harmonize agency-specific programming instruments and processes in alignment with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework in order to better respond to national priorities, challenges and needs and to reduce transaction costs for national Governments and other stakeholders, and further requests funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies, to consult, inform and discuss with their respective governing bodies progress achieved in this regard by the end of 2013;

120. Encourages the United Nations development system, in line with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and under the leadership of the resident coordinators, to continue promoting better division of labour within the United Nations system at the country level;

121. Calls upon the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies, to carry out any changes required to align their planning and budgeting cycles with the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, including the implementation of midterm reviews, as necessary, and to report to the Economic and Social Council on adjustments made to fit the new comprehensive review cycle at the substantive session of the Council;

B. Resident coordinator system

122. Stresses that the resident coordinator system, while managed by the United Nations Development Programme, is owned by the United Nations development system as a whole and that its functioning should be participatory, collegial and mutually accountable within that system, reaffirms in this context the importance of the implementation of the previous resolutions of the General Assembly regarding the United Nations presence at the country level, and reiterates the central role of the resident coordinators, under the leadership of Governments, in ensuring the coordination of United Nations operational activities for development at the country level, including in the common country assessment and the formulation and implementation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, with a view to improving the effectiveness of the response of the United Nations development system to national development needs, priorities and challenges of programme countries, including through appropriate resources and accountability;

123. Recognizes that resident coordinators, especially in countries with large country teams, complex coordination situations or in situations of complex emergencies, lack the capacity to address equally well all the tasks inherent to their functions, and reiterates therefore the need for the resident coordinator function to be supported by training, preparation, support and the qualifications necessary for the resident coordinators to perform their functions effectively while also ensuring that the profiles of the resident coordinators are aligned with the needs, priorities and challenges of programme countries;

124. Decides to improve the effectiveness of the resident coordinator system, and in this regard requests the United Nations development system to:

(a) Improve the way in which individuals are attracted, selected, trained, appraised and retained within the resident coordinator system, with a view to bringing in and developing high-calibre leaders, working on behalf of and reflecting the full spectrum of the United Nations development system, including non-resident agencies, and to ensure that their profiles enable them to effectively address all the tasks inherent to their functions and are aligned with the needs, priorities and challenges of programme countries;

(b) Achieve diversification in the composition of the resident coordinator system in terms of geographical distribution and gender;

(c) Develop an integrated strategy of training and support to resident coordinators to help them better respond to the needs, priorities and challenges of programme countries and address the demands of the United Nations development system without competing demands;

(d) Ensure the participation of all United Nations agencies, funds and programmes on an equal footing in the process of nominating candidates for the position of resident coordinator;

(e) Strengthen the capacity of the offices of the resident coordinators with a view to enhancing the coherence and effectiveness at the country level through improved access of the resident coordinator offices to the expertise available within the United Nations development system in response to national needs, priorities and challenges;

(f) Ensure that country-level coordination is cost-effective and is based on an efficient resident coordinator office which is flexible and responsive to the development needs, priorities and challenges of programme country Governments;

(g) Find more effective ways of identifying, mobilizing and deploying the assistance necessary to achieve tangible results in programme countries, including through the pooling of the capacities of different entities in the same sectors and at global, regional and national levels, bearing in mind the differentiated needs of programme countries;

(h) Encourage the United Nations Development Programme to appoint country directors, where cost-effective, in agreement with national Governments, to run core United Nations Development Programme activities, including fundraising, so as to ensure that resident coordinators are fully available for their system-wide tasks;

(i) Strengthen coordination with all development stakeholders, including civil society, at the country level, in agreement with the national Governments, in support of national development plans and priorities;

(j) Ensure the appropriate decentralization of authority from headquarters to the country-level representatives of the funds, programmes and specialized agencies, where relevant, for making decisions on programmatic and financial matters, related to the programming activities as agreed with national authorities;

125. Requests the United Nations development system to enhance investment in staff development, including through the provision of the appropriate level of resources, so that the United Nations development system has the right mix of capacities and skills, including for high-quality policy and programme advice, and the highest standards of leadership skills, management training and continuous learning to provide effective capacity development and other support in response to national needs, priorities and challenges, including enhanced emphasis on joint training across agencies;

126. Recognizes that there is a need to enhance the planning and coordination function of the resident coordinator, including through the full exercise of the responsibility and authority of the resident coordinators already provided by the General Assembly under its relevant resolutions, by allowing the resident coordinators to propose to members of United Nations country teams and relevant non-resident agencies, as appropriate, and in full consultation with Governments and with the funds, programmes and specialized agencies, including within the established United Nations Development Assistance Framework development and mid-term review processes:

(a) The amendment of projects and programmes, where required, in order to bring them into line with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, without prejudice to the approval process through the governing bodies;

(b) Amendments to the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, or its action plan, if it is determined that some activities are no longer aligned with the broader strategy of the United Nations development system in response to the national needs, priorities and challenges of the programme country concerned;

127. Also recognizes the benefits of ensuring:

(a) The effective response of the resident coordinator system to the needs, priorities and challenges of programme countries;

(b) The ownership of the resident coordinator system by all members of the United Nations development system;

(c) That resident coordinators are able to effectively address all the tasks inherent to their functions;

(d) That the resident coordinator system is effectively managed under the leadership of the Secretary-General on behalf of the entire United Nations development system, drawing on all the assets of the system in support of national needs, priorities and challenges;

128. Urges the United Nations development system to provide further financial, technical and organizational support for the resident coordinator system, and requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with the members of the United Nations development system, and based on the recent review of existing funding modalities in support of the resident coordinator system called for in Economic and Social Council resolution 2011/7, to submit, for the consideration of the Council and the General Assembly in 2013, concrete proposals on the modalities for the funding of the resident coordinator system in order to ensure that resident coordinators have the necessary stable and predictable resources to fulfil their mandate effectively, without compromising resources allocated to programmatic activities, with due regard for the principle of fairness, which should reflect the direct involvement of each agency, based on the proportion of services used;

129. Requests the United Nations development system, in this regard, to ensure that the funding for the resident coordinator system will not adversely impact on the resources available for development programmes in programme countries, and in this regard requests the United Nations development system to ensure, where possible, that cost savings as a result of joint efforts and coordination between entities of the United Nations development system at the country level will accrue to development programmes;

130. Notes that, in response to the request by Member States contained in paragraph 58 of General Assembly resolution 59/250, the management and accountability system of the United Nations development and resident coordinator system, including the “functional firewall” for the resident coordinator system, has been developed within the United Nations development system in order to provide an accountability framework for resident coordinators to exercise oversight of the design and implementation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, and in this regard calls upon:

(a) The United Nations development system to ensure the full implementation, including the monitoring, of the management and accountability system of the United Nations development and resident coordinator system, including the “functional firewall” for the resident coordinator system, in areas that do not require intergovernmental approval;

(b) The United Nations development system to ensure that resident coordinators, supported by members of the United Nations country teams, are accountable to national authorities for the delivery of results agreed in the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and report to them on the results of the country teams as a whole;

(c) The funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system, where appropriate, to implement the request of the General Assembly, contained in paragraph 37 (c) of its resolution 50/120, that the resident coordinators provide formal input to the regular performance appraisals of all entity representatives who are members of the country team on their contributions to its effective and efficient functioning, and in this regard reiterates the importance of the mutual appraisal between the resident coordinators and the members of the country teams in the performance assessment process;

131. Requests the Secretary-General to regularly assess and report on a comprehensive and quantitative basis on progress in furthering programme and operational coordination at the country level in order to inform annual reporting to the Economic and Social Council on the functioning of the resident coordinator system;

C. “Delivering as one”

132. Notes the outcomes of the intergovernmental conferences on “Delivering as one” held in Maputo (2008), Kigali (2009), Hanoi (2010), Montevideo (2011) and Tirana (2012) as concrete recommendations to further the “Delivering as one” process, and emphasizes the importance of continuing the sharing of information regarding the implementation of “Delivering as one” by Member States and the United Nations system;

133. Takes note of the outcome of the independent evaluation of lessons learned from “Delivering as one”, as presented in the note by the Secretary-General in document A/66/859;

134. Recognizes the achievements and experience in the implementation of “Delivering as one” by a number of pilot programme countries on a voluntary basis as an important contribution for enhancing the coherence, relevance, effectiveness and efficiency of the United Nations development system in those countries, strengthening national ownership and leadership in the operational activities for development of the United Nations system and achieving strategic results, especially on cross-cutting issues, and notes, furthermore, that a number of programme countries have adopted the “Delivering as one” modality on a self-starter basis, and that their experience can positively contribute to enhancing United Nations operational activities at the country level;

135. Also recognizes that the pooled funding mechanisms are important tools in advancing “Delivering as one”, and calls on Member States and United Nations funds and programmes, as appropriate, to contribute financially to assure the extension of these mechanisms in “Delivering as one” countries;

136. Reaffirms that the “no one size fits all” approach and the principle of the voluntary adoption of “Delivering as one” should be maintained so that the United Nations system can tailor its approach to partnership with individual programme countries in a way that best suits their national needs, realities, priorities and planning modalities, as well as their achievement of the Millennium Development Goals, other internationally agreed development goals and the United Nations development agenda beyond 2015;

137. Requests the United Nations development system to identify and address challenges and bottlenecks, in particular at the headquarters level, which have prevented United Nations country teams in “Delivering as one” countries from fully realizing the efficiency gains under the “Delivering as one” approach and to report thereon as part of the annual reporting on the implementation of the present resolution for the consideration of the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly;

138. Also requests the United Nations development system to provide programme countries that are considering adoption of the “Delivering as one” approach with information on issues such as “Delivering as one”-specific joint planning, programming, implementation, monitoring and evaluation, reporting and funding mechanisms, as well as the support provided by the resident coordinator office and the United Nations country team, with a view to enabling them to take an informed decision on modalities for the delivery of assistance;

139. Recognizes that in “Delivering as one” countries a well-supported resident coordinator office, and resident coordinator, that is managed on behalf of the entire United Nations development system, is necessary to ensure United Nations coherence, effectiveness and efficiency at the country level;

140. Requests the United Nations system to build on the best practices and lessons learned in implementing “Delivering as one” by a number of countries and to further consolidate the process by clearly outlining the core elements of each of the “ones”, based on lessons learned, including by formulating standard operational procedures as guidelines for the successful work of the United Nations country teams in “Delivering as one” countries, as well as for other countries that consider joining “Delivering as one”, and to report on this process and standard operating procedures to the Economic and Social Council during its operational activities segment;

141. Requests the United Nations system, including the funds, programmes and specialized agencies, to support programme countries that have adopted the “Delivering as one” approach with an integrated package of support comprising standard operating procedures as well as guidance on “Delivering as one”-specific programming, monitoring and evaluation, reporting, pooled funding mechanisms and support to the resident coordinator system, in line with the management and accountability system of the United Nations development and resident coordinator system, including the “functional firewall” for the resident coordinator system, and the simplification and harmonization of business practices;

142. Emphasizes the need to establish common monitoring, evaluation and reporting mechanisms on the implementation of “Delivering as one” towards greater accountability to Member States and a more results-based generation of “Delivering as one”, and in this regard requests the Secretary-General to come up with proposals for the consideration of Member States;

143. Requests the Secretary-General to include in his annual report options for the review and approval of the common country programme documents of the “Delivering as one” countries, and to make appropriate recommendations for the consideration of the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly by 2013;

D. Regional dimensions

144. Recognizes the contribution of the regional commissions as well as interregional, regional and subregional cooperation to addressing development challenges related to the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals;

145. Encourages, in this regard, the United Nations development system to strengthen collaboration with regional and subregional intergovernmental organizations and regional banks, as appropriate and consistent with their respective mandates;

146. Requests the regional commissions as well as the funds, programmes, specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations development system at the regional level to further strengthen cooperation and coordination among themselves and with their respective headquarters, in close consultation with the Governments of the countries concerned and, where appropriate, to include the funds, programmes and specialized agencies that are not represented at the regional level;

147. Recognizes, in regard to the functioning of the United Nations development system, the importance of aligning regional technical support structures and the regional bureaux to provide support to the United Nations country teams, including enhanced technical, programme and administrative support, increasing their collaboration at the regional level, including through co-location, where appropriate and consistent with the needs of the programme countries of the regions concerned, and identifying appropriate mechanisms at the subregional level, where appropriate, bearing in mind the existing subregional offices of the regional commissions, in close consultation with the programme countries concerned, to respond to specific challenges that cannot be adequately responded to at the regional hubs;

148. Calls upon the organizations of the United Nations development system, its regional commissions and other regional and subregional entities, as appropriate and consistent with their mandates, to intensify their cooperation and to adopt more collaborative approaches to support country-level development initiatives, at the request of recipient countries, in alignment with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and in close coordination with the resident coordinators and the representatives of the United Nations country teams, to establish and/or improve mechanisms to promote knowledge-sharing on and compile successful development experiences and best practices through South-South cooperation or triangular schemes, when appropriate, by improving mechanisms for access to the technical capacities of the United Nations system at the regional and subregional levels;

149. Takes note of the assistance provided by the United Nations development system at the regional level, across a range of areas, including demand-driven advisory services, and requests the United Nations development system at the regional level to substantially enhance support to United Nations country teams in pursuing national development agendas, in alignment with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and in close coordination with the resident coordinators;

150. Encourages resident coordinators and United Nations country teams to draw more upon the normative support work and policy expertise that exists within the regional commissions, and requests the regional commissions to further develop their analytical capacities to support country-level development initiatives, at the request of the programme countries, and to support measures for more intensive inter-agency collaboration at the regional and subregional levels, and in this regard urges the regional commissions and their subregional offices to prioritize sustainable development initiatives at the country level through, inter alia, more efficient and effective capacity-building, development and implementation of regional agreements and arrangements addressing the regional and subregional dimensions of national development goals and the exchange of information, best practices and lessons learned;

151. Takes note of the technical support functions provided by the United Nations Development Group regional teams to the resident coordinators and the United Nations country teams, including quality assurance of United Nations Development Assistance Frameworks, performance management, troubleshooting in country-specific contexts and other areas of operational support services, and encourages resident coordinators and United Nations country teams to draw more upon this type of support provided by the United Nations Development Group regional teams;

E. Simplification and harmonization of business practices

152. Requests the United Nations development system funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations, to further pursue higher-quality, more effective and cost-efficient support services in all programme countries by reducing the duplication of functions, and administrative and transaction costs through the consolidation of support services at the country level, either by delegating common functions to a lead agency, establishing a common United Nations service centre or, where feasible, outsourcing support services without compromising quality of services, and, within their mandates, ensuring that efficiency savings are used for programme activities with a view to building national capacities, and to report on concrete achievements in this regard to their respective governing bodies by the end of 2014 and annually thereafter, and requests the funds and programmes to submit a joint plan in this regard to their executive boards at their first regular sessions in 2014;

153. Also requests the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations, to further invest in intra-agency rationalization of business operations and to present plans in this regard to their governing bodies by the end of 2013;

154. Further requests the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations system, to develop and conclude inter-agency framework agreements regarding the provision of support services regulating the mutual validity of agreements between United Nations entities and third parties at the country level and to delegate the authority to country teams to establish and manage common services and long-term agreements with third parties through standardized inter-agency agreements without further approval requirements by the end of 2013;

155. Requests the Secretary-General through the High-level Committee on Management and the United Nations Development Group to present plans for the establishment of common support services at the country, regional and headquarters levels, based on a unified set of regulations and rules, policies and procedures, at the country, regional and headquarters levels, in the functional areas of finance, human resources management, procurement, information technology management and other administrative services, for review by the Economic and Social Council and approval by the executive boards of the funds and programmes and the governing bodies of the specialized agencies by end of 2014, with a view to implementation by 2016;

156. Recognizes that more cost-effective, efficient and harmonized procurement practices can help to achieve greater effectiveness and better results, and encourages the United Nations development system to consider options for greater collaboration in procurement at the country, regional and global levels, taking into account the United Nations procurement principles of, inter alia, fairness, integrity, transparency and effective international competition, and in this regard requests the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations system, to address the barriers to greater procurement cooperation and to fully exploit the potential for improved efficiency and effectiveness through increased collaboration, and to redirect efficiency savings, including from economies of scale, into programmes, and to make full use of the existing long-term agreements, develop new ones and implement the guidelines on common procurement at the country level;

157. Encourages the United Nations development system, in compliance with existing relevant legislative frameworks, to make increased use of national public and private systems for support services, including for procurement, security, information technology, telecommunications, travel and banking, as well as, when appropriate, for planning, reporting and evaluation;

158. Also encourages the United Nations development system to avoid and significantly reduce the number of its parallel project implementation units in programme countries as a means of strengthening national capacities and reducing transaction costs;

159. Requests the Secretary-General to present to the executive boards of the funds and programmes, by the beginning of 2014, a proposal on the common definition of operating costs and a common and standardized system of cost control, paying due attention to their different business models, with a view to their taking a decision on this issue;

160. Requests the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies and other entities of the United Nations development system, to consider system-wide interoperability of enterprise resources planning systems, with the objective of harmonizing the electronic processing of internal and external management information, supporting harmonized business processes and practices across the entire United Nations development system in all future investments related to existing or new enterprise resources planning systems, and in this regard requests the Secretary-General to undertake a study to examine the feasibility of establishing interoperability among the existing enterprise resources planning systems of the funds and programmes and to report on progress in achieving full interoperability in 2016 in the context of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review;

161. Requests the United Nations development system to develop a strategy, in consultation with Member States, by the end of 2013, with concrete goals and targets, to support the establishment of common premises in programme countries that wish to adopt them, with due consideration to security conditions as well as cost-effectiveness, and to report on progress in this regard to the Economic and Social Council on a biennial basis, and encourages United Nations country teams to explore all potential savings across the organizations, including the harmonization of business practices in all functional areas and the consolidation of support services;

162. Also requests the United Nations development system to prioritize the availability of financial and human resources, without compromising the allocation of resources to programmatic activities, to further support the effective harmonization and rationalization of business operations, including the option of developing funding mechanisms and other incentives in support of innovative and sustainable business solutions supporting the further development and implementation of high-quality, efficient and cost-effective common support services;

163. Strongly encourages the governing bodies of the specialized agencies and other relevant United Nations entities to review and discuss the provisions in this subsection with a view to promoting their implementation by the respective entities and improving harmonization with funds and programmes;

F. Results-based management

164. Affirms the importance of results-based management as an essential element of accountability that can contribute to improved development outcomes and the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals and the internationally agreed development goals;

165. Acknowledges the work done by agencies and the United Nations development system to improve results tracking and reporting mechanisms, while stressing the need to identify, assess and mitigate risks and address the remaining gaps in planning, management and reporting;

166. Requests the United Nations development system to accelerate work to develop and sustain a results culture at all levels within the funds and programmes, the specialized agencies and other United Nations entities, including by identifying and implementing appropriate incentives for results-based management, removing disincentives for results-based management at all levels and periodically reviewing their results management systems, and to invest in developing capacities and competencies for results-based management;

167. Recognizes progress in improving transparency, and calls for further efforts to ensure coherence and complementarity in the oversight functions, audit and evaluations across the United Nations development system;

168. Requests the Secretary-General to intensify efforts to strengthen and institutionalize results-based management in the United Nations development system, with the objective of improving development results as well as organizational effectiveness, including simplifying, streamlining and harmonizing results-based management systems;

169. Also requests the Secretary-General to articulate and report to the Economic and Social Council at its operational activities segment in 2013, with a view to the implementation, by 2014, of a more robust, coherent and harmonized approach to operational activities for development, focused on results, which would streamline and improve the planning, monitoring, measurement and reporting on system-wide results, and in this regard invites the executive boards of the funds and programmes and the governing bodies of the specialized agencies and other relevant United Nations entities to engage in a focused dialogue on how to balance most effectively the need for reporting on system-wide results at all levels with the current agency-specific reporting requirements, taking into account the challenges in developing results frameworks that demonstrate the United Nations contribution to national development results;

170. Requests the United Nations development system to promote the development of clear and robust results frameworks that demonstrate complete results chains that establish expected results at the output, outcome and impact levels and include measurable indicators with baselines, milestones and targets for monitoring, and in this regard requests the United Nations funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies, to consult Member States during the production of results frameworks of their respective strategic plans, and report annually on implementation from 2014;

171. Also requests the United Nations development system to achieve alignment between results-based management and accountability by the end of 2013, including finding ways to strengthen delivery and reporting on the United Nations system-wide contribution to national development results, and in this regard requests the United Nations development system to ensure increased mutual accountability for results-based management and reporting at the country level;

172. Requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Joint Inspection Unit and Member States, to review results-based management and system-wide results reporting across the United Nations system and to present the review for consideration by the General Assembly in the next quadrennial comprehensive policy review;

G. Evaluation of operational activities for development

173. Emphasizes the importance for organizations of the United Nations development system of having independent, credible and useful evaluation functions, with sufficient resources, and promoting a culture of evaluation that ensures the active use of evaluation findings and recommendations in policy development and improving the functioning of the organizations;

174. Calls upon members of the United Nations development system to further increase institutional and organizational capacity for the evaluation of operational activities for development and to increase training and skills-upgrading in results-based management, monitoring and evaluation methods, as well as to ensure the effective utilization of findings, recommendations and lessons learned in programming and operational decision-making, and requests the funds and programmes and the specialized agencies to develop evaluation plans that are aligned with new strategic plans and are an integrated part of monitoring systems;

175. Emphasizes that programme countries should have greater ownership and leadership of the evaluation of the assistance provided by the United Nations development system, in this regard calls upon members of the United Nations development system to intensify efforts to assist programme countries to strengthen national evaluation capacity in programme countries for the monitoring and evaluation of operational activities for development, and requests the United Nations development system to develop and implement guidelines for further strengthening of national evaluation capacities for operational activities for development, in consultation with programme countries, including defining the responsibilities of different entities;

176. Reaffirms the need to strengthen independent and impartial system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development;

177. Notes, in this regard, the findings and recommendations of the independent review commissioned by the Secretary-General in response to General Assembly resolution 64/289¹¹ on a comprehensive review of the existing institutional framework for the system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development of the United Nations system, and in this regard reaffirms that further strengthening of system-wide evaluation within the United Nations development system should be based on utilizing and enhancing existing mechanisms;

178. Encourages the enhanced coordination and exchange of experience among the United Nations entities engaged in system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development, namely, the Joint Inspection Unit, the United Nations Evaluation Group, the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, the Office of Internal Oversight Services and the Department of Economic and Social Affairs;

179. Notes that the Joint Inspection Unit is the only entity within the United Nations system with a specific mandate for independent system-wide evaluation, and acknowledges the reforms initiated by the Unit;

180. Also notes the development of the norms and standards for evaluation by the United Nations Evaluation Group as a professional network, and encourages the use of these norms and standards in the evaluation functions of United Nations funds, programmes and specialized agencies, as well as in system-wide evaluations of operational activities for development;

181. Requests the Secretary-General to establish an interim coordination mechanism for system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development of the United Nations system composed of the Joint Inspection Unit, the United Nations Evaluation Group, the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and the Office of Internal Oversight Services, and also requests the Secretary-General, through the interim coordination mechanism, to develop a policy for independent system-wide evaluation of operational activities for development of the United Nations system, including submitting a proposal for pilot system-wide evaluations, for discussion at the operational activities segment of the Economic and Social Council in 2013;

182. Requests the funds and programmes, and encourages the specialized agencies and other relevant United Nations entities, to intensify the use and the evaluation of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework and the evaluations of the United Nations system-wide contribution to national development results;

V. Follow-up and monitoring

183. Reaffirms that the governing bodies of the funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system should take appropriate actions for the full implementation of the present resolution, in line with paragraphs 91 and 92 of resolution 56/201;

184. Underscores the importance of ensuring that the strategic plans of funds and programmes are consistent with and guided by the comprehensive policy review, which establishes the main intergovernmentally agreed parameters of the operational activities for development of the United Nations system;

185. Recognizes the major role of the Economic and Social Council, within its Charter mandate, in the overall coordination of funds, programmes and specialized agencies, and in this regard looks forward to its review and assessment of the progress in the implementation of the provisions contained in the present resolution, through the operational activities segment of its annual substantive sessions;

186. Requests the Secretary-General, on the basis of information provided by the funds, programmes and specialized agencies of the United Nations development system, to submit to the Economic and Social Council, at its substantive sessions of 2013, 2014 and 2015, analytical reports on results achieved and measures and processes implemented in follow-up to the present resolution on the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, with a view to ensuring its full implementation;

187. Also requests the Secretary-General to continue to strengthen the analytical quality of system-wide reporting on funding and performance and programme results for United Nations operational activities for development, including the coverage, timeliness, reliability, quality and comparability of system-wide data, definitions and classifications;

188. Further requests the Secretary-General, under the auspices of the Economic and Social Council and in cooperation with United Nations resident coordinators, and in an appropriate and cost-effective manner, to conduct a biennial survey, directed to Governments, on the effectiveness, efficiency and relevance of the United Nations system in order to provide feedback on the strengths and main challenges encountered in their interaction with the United Nations development system, with a view to enabling intergovernmental bodies to address them, and also requests that the results of such surveys be published and made available to Member States;

189. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its seventy-first session, through the Economic and Social Council, a comprehensive analysis of the implementation of the present resolution in the context of the quadrennial comprehensive policy review, inter alia, by making use of relevant documentation, and to make appropriate recommendations.
