I. FINAL DECLARATION OF THE REGIONAL MEETING FOR AFRICA
OF THE WORLD CONFERENCE ON HUMAN RIGHTS

Tunis Declaration

The Ministers and representatives of the African States meeting at Tunis from 2 to 6 November 1992, in the context of preparations for the World Conference on Human Rights and pursuant to General Assembly resolution 46/116 of 17 December 1991,

Considering the importance of the forthcoming World Conference on Human Rights, which is taking place at a time characterized by major changes on the international scene,

Considering the priority that is increasingly being attached to the protection and promotion of human rights among the concerns of the international community,

Convinced that the dumping of toxic wastes in Africa constitutes a violation of the collective human rights of the populations of Africa,

Noting with satisfaction the advances in standard-setting in the field of human rights and the progress achieved in their implementation throughout the world,

Recognizing, however, the existence of difficulties, both endogenous and exogenous, which are delaying or impeding satisfactory implementation of human rights at the universal level,

Considering that one of the aims of the World Conference on Human Rights is to identify these difficulties and recommend the measures which must be taken nationally and internationally to overcome them,

Aware of the value of the discussions which will take place during the World Conference on Human Rights, and of the impact of its conclusions on the direction of future activities of the United Nations in this sphere,

Desiring to contribute to the success of the World Conference and to ensure that the international community shares African concerns regarding the promotion of human rights and development,

Adopt the present declaration, to be known as the Tunis Declaration, which reflects both their convictions and their expectations:

1. The African States reaffirm their commitment to the principles set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights.

2. The universal nature of human rights is beyond question; their protection and promotion are the duty of all States, regardless of their political, economic or cultural systems.

3. The proper administration of justice and an independent judiciary are crucial to the full realization of human rights. The attainment of these objectives is, however, impossible without substantial investment in the area of the administration of justice. The African States and the international community are, therefore, called upon to allocate more resources to this area.

4. Responsibility for the implementation and promotion of human rights devolves primarily on Governments. The component institutions, organizations and structures of society also play an important role in safeguarding and disseminating these rights; they should therefore be strengthened and encouraged.

5. The observance and promotion of human rights are undeniably a global concern and an objective to the realization of which all States, without exception, are called upon to contribute. However, no ready-made model can be prescribed at the universal level since the historical and cultural realities of each nation and the traditions, standards and values of each people cannot be disregarded.

6. The principle of the indivisibility of human rights is sacrosanct. Civil and political rights cannot be dissociated from economic, social and cultural rights. None of these rights takes precedence over the others.

7. Political freedom when not accompanied by respect for economic, social and cultural rights is precarious. The right to development is inalienable. Human rights, development and international peace are interdependent.

8. Lasting progress towards the implementation of human rights implies, at the national level, effective development policies and, at the international level, more equitable economic relations, as well as a favourable economic environment.

9. Racism, particularly its new forms, extremism and fanaticism, whether of religious or other origin, pose a serious threat to the protection and promotion of universal human rights values. Governments, individuals, groups, institutions and non-governmental organizations are called upon to apply their efforts, take the necessary steps and cooperate in dealing with this threat.

10. Africa, which has chosen the path of democracy, economic reform and the promotion of human rights, in an unfavourable international economic environment, and which finds itself particularly exposed to internal tensions deriving from the failure to meet the basic needs of populations and from the rise of extremism, will nevertheless remain committed to its choices and its responsibilities, and calls upon the international community to do likewise, in particular through an intensification of international solidarity, an adequate increase in development assistance and an appropriate settlement of the debt problem.

11. Africa, which remains committed to respect for individual human rights, also takes this opportunity to reaffirm the importance that it attaches to respect for the collective rights of peoples, particularly the right to determine their own future and to control their own resources. Accordingly, it condemns the persistence of apartheid in South Africa and the gross and systematic violations of human rights due to foreign occupation, particularly in Palestine and in the other occupied Arab territories, including Jerusalem, the armed conflicts in Somalia and the policy of ethnic cleansing in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and reaffirms the right of all peoples to self-determination and free choice of their political and economic systems and institutions, on the basis of respect for national sovereignty and non-interference in the internal affairs of States.

II. RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE REGIONAL MEETING

AFRM/1. The role of Governments in furthering the promotion and protection of human rights

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Emphasizing that States, in adhering to the Charter of the United Nations and adopting the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, have pledged themselves to respect, promote and protect the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all, without distinction as to race, sex, language, religion, nationality or place of origin,

Aware that Governments, and their national institutions, have a primary responsibility to promote and protect all human rights and fundamental freedoms, while at the same time taking the necessary measures to fulfil their obligations as parties to the various international human rights instruments,

Recognizing that Governments, particularly in developing countries, although fully committed to the protection and promotion of human rights, may encounter difficulties in fulfilling their commitments due to the limited financial and material resources at their disposal, and that they should therefore be assisted in their endeavours by the international community,

1. Invites Governments to ensure that their constitutions and other legal instruments incorporate the principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and all the other universally recognized principles, including those contained in the various human rights instruments to which they are parties;

2. Affirms that Governments have a responsibility to ensure such conditions as are necessary for the full enjoyment and promotion of economic, social, cultural, civil and political rights, and particularly for human development, social progress and improved health and educational standards;

3. Encourages Governments, with the assistance of the international community and bearing in mind the interrelationship between development and human rights, to promote all forms of development as a sound foundation for the respect, protection and promotion of human rights and fundamental freedoms;

4. Urges Governments to take all necessary measures to guarantee that the rights proclaimed in the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights as well as other international human rights instruments are respected and enjoyed equally by all persons, regardless of race or conviction;

5. Calls upon Governments, with the assistance and support of the international community, to enhance their national institutions for the protection and promotion of human rights, with particular emphasis on educational programmes and programmes to stimulate public awareness with a view to fostering a better general understanding of human rights;

6. Stresses that respect for, the promotion of and the necessary realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms also require the commitment of all Governments to respect fully the principles contained in the Charter of the United Nations, inter alia the principles of national sovereignty, territorial integrity and non-interference in the internal affairs of States.

AFRM/2. Role of national institutions in the promotion and protection of human rights

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Bearing in mind General Assembly resolution 33/46 of 14 December 1978 setting out the guidelines on the structure and functioning of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, as well as the principles relating to the status of national institutions annexed to Commission on Human Rights resolution 1992/54 of 3 March 1992,

Recalling the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights which, in article 26, requests all States parties to allow the establishment of national institutions entrusted with the promotion and protection of human and peoples' rights and to strengthen relevant existing institutions,

Emphasizing the role of national institutions in the promotion and dissemination of human rights, both individual and collective,

1. Notes with satisfaction the establishment in some African countries of national institutions entrusted with the promotion and protection of human rights;

2. Encourages States to be guided by the principles of General Assembly resolution 33/46 and Commission on Human Rights resolution 1992/54 in establishing, within the framework of their national legislation, national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights;

3. Encourages all States Members of the United Nations, along with the States of the African region, to establish and promote the exchange of information and experience relating to the creation and strengthening of national institutions entrusted with the promotion and protection of human rights;

4. Reaffirms the importance of national institutions in contributing to the democratic process and to the strengthening of the rule of law and in providing, on an advisory basis, views, recommendations, proposals and reports concerning all matters relating to the promotion and protection of human rights, by inter alia:

(a) Advising on the adoption and harmonization of national legislation, regulations and practices with the international human rights instruments;

(b) Providing views, suggestions and recommendations in connection with claims or complaints concerning human rights violations brought to their notice;

(c) Making proposals for practical measures to be taken by Governments and competent authorities to ensure conformity between practice and legal regulations;

(d) Contributing to the preparation of reports to be submitted by States to United Nations organs and committees, in compliance with their treaty obligations;

5. Encourages the national institutions of States of the African region to cooperate with the organizations of the United Nations system, regional institutions and national institutions of other countries with competence in the promotion and protection of human rights;

6. Calls for the strengthening of cooperation between national institutions of the African region;

7. Requests the Secretary-General of the United Nations to consider favourably applications for assistance made by African Member States regarding the creation and strengthening of national institutions within the framework of the United Nations programme of advisory services and technical cooperation in the field of human rights.

AFRM/3. International cooperation to combat xenophobia

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Concerned by the extent of the phenomenon of xenophobia and its adverse effects on the preservation and consolidation of human rights,

Considering that a combination of legal action and economic and social initiatives is required to contain this new scourge,

Referring to Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities resolution 1992/5 of 21 August 1992 recommending that the Commission on Human Rights appoint a thematic special rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination and xenophobia,

1. Reaffirms its commitment to safeguarding the rights and full development of vulnerable groups, including migrant workers and their families and foreign students who are often the target of expressions of xenophobia;

2. Believes that it is incumbent upon the international community in general and the States where xenophobia has manifested itself in particular to take concrete measures urgently to combat xenophobia and ensure its eradication;

3. Supports the recommendation made by the Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities in its resolution 1992/5 that the Commission on Human Rights appoint a thematic special rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination and xenophobia;

4. Recommends that the special rapporteur be entrusted with the task of carrying out a preliminary study of the phenomenon of xenophobia in order to permit a better definition of this scourge and the elaboration of the appropriate measures required for its eradication, and that he submit his findings to the Commission on Human Rights at its fiftieth session.

AFRM/4. International cooperation in the fight against all forms of religious intolerance and extremism

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling that the Charter of the United Nations reaffirms the faith of the international community in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person and in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small,

Recalling also that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights affirms, in article 29, that in the exercise of his rights and freedoms, everyone shall be subject only to such limitations as are determined by law solely for the purpose of securing due recognition and respect for the rights and freedoms of others and meeting the just requirements of morality, public order and the general welfare in a democratic society,

Recognizing that freedom of religious belief and the peaceful expression thereof is a fundamental right of all human beings which is enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion and Belief and other human rights instruments,

Recognizing also the threat posed by movements based on religious intolerance and extremism,

Considering that the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, in article 18, and the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, in article 1, stipulate that the freedom to manifest one's religion or beliefs may be subject only to such limitations as are prescribed by law and are necessary to protect public safety, order, health, or morals or the fundamental rights and freedoms of others,

Emphasizing the principle, contained in the preamble to the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, that it is inadmissible to use religion or belief for ends inconsistent with the Charter of the United Nations, other relevant instruments of the United Nations and the purposes and principles of the Declaration,

Recalling that all religions advocate tolerance, peace and brotherhood,

Considering that extremism and terrorism, whether the pretext be sectarian, ethnic or religious, deny the moral and humanitarian values of peoples and, in particular, fundamental freedom and tolerance,

1. Believes that religious extremism poses a real threat to the security of nations and the stability of their institutions;

2. Calls upon States to secure for their citizens the right of freedom of belief and the peaceful expression thereof;

3. Welcomes the declaration adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity (Dakar, 29 June-1 July 1992) and that of the Tenth Summit of Heads of State or Government of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries (Jakarta, 1-6 September 1992) condemning extremism and terrorism and calling upon all States to observe scrupulously, in their relations, the principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of other States and to respect the principle of good neighbourliness;

4. Urges Member States to take appropriate measures, bearing in mind that each State has an obligation to curb violence resulting from religious intolerance and extremism, to prevent it from spilling over into another country, and to oppose any use of religion for ends incompatible with human rights;

5. Considers that, while effective measures must be taken to put an end to the destructive effects on society of acts of violence perpetrated by religious extremists, measures must also be envisaged to counter, at their roots, all forms of religious intolerance and extremism;

6. Calls upon the Commission on Human Rights to consider the proposal of the Special Rapporteur on religious intolerance concerning the drafting of a binding international instrument on the elimination of intolerance and discrimination based on religion or belief to supplement and develop the standards already set by the international community (E/CN.4/1992/52, para. 191);

7. Also calls upon the Commission on Human Rights to request the Special Rapporteur to include in his next report the specific measures taken by several countries to combat the extremism and fanaticism referred to in his report (E/CN.4/1992/52, para. 186) and to submit proposals on measures to be taken to end this scourge.

AFRM/5. Eradication of apartheid

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Reaffirming the Declaration on Apartheid and its Destructive Consequences in Southern Africa, adopted by consensus on 14 December 1989 by the General Assembly in its resolution S-16/1,

Recalling the second report of the Secretary-General on the progress made in the implementation of the Declaration (A/45/1052), the report of the Special Committee against Apartheid (A/46/22) as well as the reports of the Secretary-General on the coordinated approach by the United Nations system on questions relating to South Africa (A/46/648) and on the concerted and effective measures aimed at eradicating apartheid (A/46/499),

Welcoming the initiative on broad-based negotiations on the eradication of apartheid through peaceful means in order to establish a non-racial, democratic society in South Africa,

Deeply concerned at the continuation of politically motivated violence with the complicity of members of the security forces,

Concerned that the discriminatory laws and the provisions of the Internal Security Act in force permit detention without charge and trial,

Gravely disturbed by the socio-economic inequalities in South Africa and the accumulated negative impact of apartheid on the social, economic and cultural rights of the majority of the people of South Africa,

1. Reaffirms its support for the legitimate struggle of the people of South Africa for the total eradication of apartheid and their right to establish a non-racial and democratic system in accordance with the International Bill of Human Rights;

2. Also reaffirms the international consensus to oppose apartheid and to support the struggle to eradicate apartheid and facilitate the creation of a non-racial, democratic society in South Africa;

3. Urges the South African authorities to repeal the remaining discriminatory apartheid laws and introduce the necessary legal and administrative measures to rectify the socio-economic inequalities;

4. Also urges the South African authorities to expedite the eradication of apartheid and to accede to the International Covenants on Human Rights and the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination;

5. Calls upon the South African authorities to assume effectively their responsibility by maintaining order, putting an end to violence, bringing to justice the perpetrators of acts of violence and protecting all citizens regardless of their political affiliation;

6. Appeals to the international community to mobilize and increase its material and financial assistance to the victims of apartheid in order to redress the socio-economic inequalities;

7. Also appeals to the international community to participate in strengthening the role of humanitarian and human rights groups in extending assistance to the victims of apartheid and in monitoring the situation of human rights in South Africa;

8. Calls upon the United Nations Centre for Human Rights to respond as and when appropriate, as indicated by the Secretary-General, to the needs of the changing situation in South Africa during the period of transition, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 46/79 A adopted by consensus on 13 December 1991.

AFRM/6. Realization of the right to development

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling that the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and the relevant agreements, conventions, resolutions, recommendations and other instruments of the United Nations, the specialized agencies and regional organizations are aimed at the integral development of the human being and the economic, social, political and cultural progress and development of all peoples,

Recalling also the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights and in particular its articles 21, 22 and 24,

Referring to the Declaration on the Right to Development, adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 41/128 of 4 December 1986,

Referring also to the conclusions and recommendations of the Global Consultation on the Realization of the Right to Development as a Human Right (E/CN.4/1990/Rev.1),

Considering that development is a comprehensive economic, social, cultural and political process, which aims at the constant improvement of the well-being of the entire population and of all individuals on the basis of their active, free and meaningful participation,

Considering also that the human person is the central subject of this process and that development is an essential need of every individual and responds, in the same way as all other human rights, to each person's aspirations to ensure the greatest possible freedom and dignity for himself, both as an individual and as a member of the society in which he lives,

Recognizing that indebtedness, the deterioration of terms of trade, monetary instability and inequalities in international economic relations are all factors contributing to unrest and political instability that jeopardize the efforts made by the developing countries to ensure their economic recovery and the promotion of human rights and democracy,

Recognizing also that development can be realized only to the extent that the efforts of States are supported by the efforts of the entire international community,

Recalling that the international community has a duty to fulfil its commitment to eradicate poverty, which is a major obstacle to any effort aimed at sustainable development and the full realization of human rights,

Recalling also that peace, human rights and development are interdependent,

1. Reaffirms that the right to development is an inalienable human right by virtue of which every human person is entitled to participate in, contribute to and enjoy the economic, social, cultural and political development of the society in which he lives;

2. Considers that no model of development is universally applicable to all situations, all countries and all peoples;

3. Invites all States to encourage popular participation in decision-making in order to ensure harmonious and sustainable development and the full realization of all human rights and fundamental freedoms;

4. Notes with satisfaction the considerable efforts made in this regard in Africa notwithstanding the economic and financial difficulties encountered in most of the countries of the region owing to the deterioration of the international economic environment;

5. Considers that the inability of the international community to respond appropriately to the challenge of development has contributed to the social disturbances and religious or ideological extremism which are at the origin of many massive violations of human rights;

6. Calls upon all States Members of the United Nations to cooperate in creating an international, economic and political environment conducive to the realization of the right to development;

7. Encourages the implementation of the Declaration on the Right to Development in order to ensure equality of opportunity for all in their access to education, health services, food, housing and employment;

8. Invites the African Commission on Human Rights to organize, if necessary, expert seminars on the role of the multilateral financial institutions in the realization of the right to development;

9. Invites the Commission on Human Rights to appoint a special rapporteur to examine the status of implementation of the Declaration on the Right to Development, to identify the obstacles encountered and to propose measures to overcome them.

AFRM/7. Full realization of economic, social and cultural rights

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights affirms, in its article 22, that everyone, as a member of society, has the right to social security and is entitled to realization, through national effort and international cooperation and in accordance with the organization and resources of each State, of the economic, social and cultural rights indispensable for his dignity and the free development of his personality,

Bearing in mind the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights,

Recalling the Proclamation of Tehran on Human Rights of 13 May 1968, which states in paragraph 13 that since human rights and fundamental freedoms are indivisible, the full realization of civil and political rights is impossible without the enjoyment of economic, social and cultural rights and that lasting progress in the implementation of human rights is dependent upon sound and effective national and international policies of economic and social development,

Recalling also that the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, in article 2, paragraph 1, stipulates that each State party undertakes to take steps, individually and through international assistance and cooperation, especially economic and technical, to the maximum of its available resources, with a view to achieving progressively the full realization of the rights recognized in the Covenant by all appropriate means, including particularly the adoption of legislative measures,

1. Calls for the elaboration by the international community of appropriate legal procedures to protect economic, social and cultural rights and prevent their violation;

2. Invites the Commission on Human Rights to appoint for this purpose special rapporteurs to study in greater depth the situation concerning economic, social and cultural rights and identify the obstacles impeding their realization;

3. Invites these special rapporteurs to take account in particular of the recommendations contained in the final report of the Special Rapporteur on the realization of economic, social and cultural rights (E/CN.4/Sub.2/1992/16) as well as the work accomplished in this respect by the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

AFRM/8. International cooperation to improve the humanitarian situations in Africa

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling that, in adopting the Charter of the United Nations, Member States have reaffirmed their faith in fundamental human rights and in the dignity and worth of the human person, as well as their determination to promote and encourage respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Taking note of General Assembly resolution 46/127 of 17 December 1991, in which the Assembly noted that mass movements of populations were caused by multiple and complex factors, either man-made or natural, ranging from wars and armed conflicts, invasions and aggressions, violations of human rights, forcible expulsions, economic and social factors and natural disasters, to degradation in the environment,

Taking note also of General Assembly resolution 46/182 of 19 December 1991 in which the Assembly proposed the designation by the Secretary-General of a high-level official to act as emergency relief coordinator,

Taking note further of the relevant Commission on Human Rights resolutions on this subject,

Stressing that the humanitarian situation in Africa constitutes an affront to humanity and poses a threat to peace in the region,

Deeply disturbed by the constantly increasing number of refugees and displaced people and by the human suffering of more than six million refugees and internally displaced persons in Africa, millions of whom have already died from starvation, malnutrition, diseases and wars,

Bearing in mind the large number of persons affected by drought and famine in southern and eastern Africa,

Deeply concerned at the increasingly heavy burden being imposed upon African countries with limited resources of their own, and upon the international community as a whole, by sudden displacements of populations,

Aware of the steps taken hitherto by the United Nations and its agencies and subsidiary organs to examine the problem of massive exoduses of refugees and displaced persons in all its aspects, including its root causes,

Aware also of the important role played by the Organization of African Unity in responding to humanitarian situations and of its endeavours to remedy the situation arising therefrom,

1. Commends the African States which are continuing to admit refugees into their territories in spite of their economic difficulties, the limited availability of land and the environmental degradation caused by the presence of numerous refugees, and urges them to continue to pursue generous measures to receive refugees and displaced persons;

2. Stresses the need for international cooperation aimed at assisting the victims of humanitarian situations and averting new outflows through durable solutions to the problems of refugees and displaced persons;

3. Invites all Governments and intergovernmental and humanitarian organizations to intensify their cooperation and assistance within the context of the endeavours of the international community to solve the serious problems resulting from mass exoduses of refugees, internally displaced persons and returnees;

4. Also invites the Secretary-General to intensify his efforts to consolidate and improve the existing humanitarian assistance machinery by ensuring close cooperation and coordination between the bodies concerned;

5. Urges the international community to attach priority and allocate adequate resources to the provision of appropriate assistance for the victims of humanitarian situations in Africa, including victims of drought and famine;

6. Calls upon the international community, in pursuit of the principle of burden sharing, to provide increased and adequate assistance for African countries to enable them to strengthen their capacity to provide the facilities and services required to cater for the needs and well-being of refugees, displaced persons and returnees in their own countries;

7. Requests Governments which have not yet done so to accede to the relevant international and regional instruments on refugees.

AFRM/9. Role and responsibility of individuals, groups, institutions and non-governmental organizations in the protection and promotion of human rights

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling the importance of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenants on Human Rights as basic instruments guiding the efforts of the international community to promote universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Recalling also the final preambular paragraph of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights which states that every individual and every organ of society shall strive by progressive measures, national and international, to secure the universal and effective recognition and observance of human rights and freedoms among the peoples of Member States,

Bearing in mind the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights,

Recognizing the responsibility and obligation of States to protect and promote human rights, and emphasizing the role and responsibility of individuals, groups, institutions and non-governmental organizations in this regard,

1. Reaffirms that it is a primary responsibility of every State to promote and strive for the protection and realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms;

2. Considers that, apart from its obligation to promote and protect the rights enjoyed by individuals, groups and bodies in society, the international community should pay special attention to the responsibility of individuals, groups and bodies to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms;

3. Considers that everyone is subject to the limitations established by the law solely for the purpose of ensuring recognition of and respect for the rights and freedoms of others, as required by morality, public order and the general welfare in a democratic society;

4. Also considers that everyone has obligations towards and within the community, outside of which the free and full development of one's personality is impossible;

5. Further considers that the non-governmental organizations and institutions seeking to promote and protect human rights have an important responsibility to educate and train individuals to respect human rights because education and training are necessary for the promotion of human rights and the prevention of their violation;

6. Reaffirms that no State, individual, group, institution or non-governmental organization has the right to pursue programmes or engage in activities that might jeopardize national achievements in the fields of democracy and human rights;

7. Also reaffirms that the members of the international community should fulfil, jointly and separately, their obligations to promote and foster human rights and fundamental freedoms without distinction as to race, colour, sex, language, religion or political opinion;

8. Calls upon African States to support the ideas contained in the present resolution with a view to their inclusion in the draft declaration on the right and responsibility of individuals, groups and organs of society to promote and protect universally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms which is being prepared by a working group of the Commission on Human Rights.

AFRM/10. Human rights, democracy and development

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming the obligation of Member States with regard to the promotion and protection of human rights,

Taking into account the cultural characteristics and socio-economic situation of the developing countries, particularly the African countries,

Commending the efforts made by African countries to achieve democracy,

Stressing, however, that if these efforts are to be continued, they must be supported by social and economic measures at the national and international levels,

Reaffirming that civil and political rights, as well as economic, social and cultural rights, are interdependent and indivisible and that the realization of one category of these rights should in no way be promoted to the detriment of another category of rights,

Concerned at the difficulties which the African States are encountering in the consolidation of democracy due to the impact of economic adjustment measures on the realization of human rights and development,

Stressing the importance of, and the need for, international cooperation to help the African States overcome these difficulties,

Recommends the following draft resolution to the World Conference on Human Rights for adoption:

"The World Conference on Human Rights,

Noting resolution ... of ... adopted by the Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights (Tunis, 2-6 November 1992),

Recommends the following draft resolution to the General Assembly for adoption:

The General Assembly,

Noting resolution ... of ... adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights,

Recalling the obligation of States Members of the United Nations effectively to ensure that human rights and fundamental freedoms are respected,

Stressing the efforts of the developing countries to achieve democracy and establish the rule of law,

Concerned at the difficulties which the developing countries in Africa are encountering in their efforts to consolidate democracy and effectively ensure respect for human rights due to the application of economic recovery measures,

Alarmed at the effects of the indebtedness of these countries on the realization of economic, social and cultural rights,

1. Urges the international community to help the developing countries to realize their economic, social and cultural rights;
2. Calls upon States, international public financial institutions and other institutions in the United Nations system concerned with development cooperation to study the possibility of alleviating the debt burden of the developing countries;
3. Encourages African States to formulate a national programme to support democracy, with a view to promoting human rights and development, with the financial and logistical support of the international community;
4. Calls upon the Secretary-General to undertake a study of the achievement of the objectives referred to in paragraph 2 of the present resolution with the help of governmental experts and experts from the competent international institutions."

AFRM/11. Role of States in monitoring and strengthening the protection of human rights

The Regional Meeting for Africa of the World Conference on Human Rights,
