Fifty-third session

Agenda item 91 (b)

Macroeconomic policy questions: financing of development, including net transfer of resources between developing and developed countries

High-level international intergovernmental consideration of financing for development: recurring themes and key elements

Note by the Secretary-General

I. Introduction

1. The General Assembly, in its resolution 52/179 of 18 December 1997, decided to convene a resumed session of the Second Committee of the fifty-second session of the Assembly in order to solicit the views of Governments on key elements that might be included in the consideration of the topic of financing for development and on the inputs required from a broad range of stakeholders, including actors both within and outside the United Nations system. In the same resolution, the Assembly also requested the Secretary-General to ensure that the reports containing those views, and requested at the resumed session, were compiled and forwarded to Governments at the fifty-third session of the Assembly. This material was to be accompanied by an index report indicating recurring themes and key elements found in the responses from the stakeholders.

2. The Second Committee met on 19 March 1998 (see A/C.2/52/SR.52). In the light of the discussions at that time, the Secretariat developed an open-ended questionnaire and solicited views of delegations on the structure and form of the questionnaire at a briefing in May 1998. The questionnaire was then sent to a broad range of stakeholders from all regions. In addition, the questionnaire was made available on the Internet and redistributed by various international organizations to their constituencies.

3. Over 180 replies were received by the Secretariat by 15 September 1998. Tables 1 and 2 provide a summary of the distribution of the questionnaire and the responses. The present note presents the recurring themes and key elements that were identified from the replies. Unless they were updated by a reply to the questionnaire, government statements to the Second Committee at its resumed session were also utilized in identifying the themes and key elements.

4. A large amount of information was provided to the Secretariat by stakeholders in responding to the questionnaire. In order to make these inputs available to delegations and to the public at large, all responses have been incorporated in a database that can be found on the Internet at: <http://www.un.org/esa/analysis/ffd.htm>. In addition, the Secretariat has compiled a listing of bibliographic citations to documents and reports provided to the Secretariat during this process, as well as citations to major United Nations system-related documents published since 1996. This listing is available to delegations upon request and is also available on the Internet at the location referred to above.

5. This note is complemented by a second document on the current work of the United Nations system that addresses financing for development.
