Article 15. The Senate of the Community shall meet in Paris at the Palais du Luxembourg. If the need should arise, other meeting places may be put at its disposal subsequently by the Government of the Republic.

The Senate of the Republic shall provide it with the staff necessary for its work; the other legislative assemblies of the member States of the Community shall provide such supplementary staff as it may request.

Article 16. Each year the Scnate of the Community shall propose its working budget to the Executive Council, and the Executive Council shall decide thereon.

The remuneration of its members during sessions shall be determined by the Executive Council.

The Officers of the Senate of the Community shall decide on the use of the appropriations entered in the budget and designate the official responsible for ensuring the certification of expenditures.

TITLE IV

Article 17. The Senate of the Community shall examine bills concerning common economic and financial policy during the session in which they were submitted to it by the President of the Community.

Article 18. The Senate of the Community shall examine the treaties and international agreements referred to it by the President of the Community, which are specified in article 53 of the Constitution and are binding upon the Community.

Article 19. The Senate of the Community, on being convened in case of need in special session, shall be duly notified by the President of the Community and state its opinion with respect to an authorization of a declaration of war.

Article 20. The Senate of the Community shall make enforceable decisions in matters in which it has received a delegation of power from the legislative assemblies of the member States of the Community.

Article 21. The President of the Community, after consultation with the Executive Council, shall submit bills to the Senate of the Community for the revision of constitutional provisions that concern the functioning of the common institutions.

The organic laws of the Community shall be adapted, supplemented or revised in accordance with the same procedure as the constitutional provisions.

Article 22. The Senate of the Community may also be consulted by the President of the Community on all common affairs and, in particular, on the general objectives of the economic, social and cultural development policy of the Community.

Article 23. The Senate of the Community shall have the right to initiate recommendations serving to establish agreement among the legislations of member States.

Article 24. The opinions and recommendations of the Senate of the Community shall be communicated promptly by its President to the President of the Community who shall transmit them to the authorities concerned.

Article 25. The laws providing for the revision of the constitutional or organic provisions relating to the Community, referred to in article 21, and the enforceable decisions provided for by article 20, shall be promulgated, within the time limit of one month and in the same form as the Act respecting the territory of each of the member States concerned. In matters declared urgent by the President of the Community, the time limit for promulgation shall be reduced to eight days.

Article 26. This Ordinance shall be published in the Journal official of the French Republic and of each of the other member States of the Community and shall be enforced as an organic law of the Community.

Done in Paris, 19 December 1958.

Ordinance No. 53-1256 of 19 December 1958 enacting the organic law on the Court of Arbitration of the Community

The President of the Council of Ministers,

Considering the Constitution and, in particular, articles 80, 84 and 92 thereof;

Having heard the "Conseil d'Etat";

Having heard the Council of Ministers.

Orders as follows:

TITLE I

Jurisdiction of the Court

Article 1. The jurisdiction of the Court of Arbitration shall extend to disputes between members of the Community when these disputes refer to the interpretation or application of rules of law binding member States of the Community and based upon the following:

Constitutional provisions that concern the Community;

Organic laws applying these provisions;

Community agreements and other agreements between member States.

Article 2. The jurisdiction of the Court shall also extend to all other categories of disputes placed within its jurisdiction by agreement between the member States of the Community.

Article 3. The Court shall have full jurisdiction within the limits of its competence. It shall decide finally upon every question and every procedural objection raised during the decision of a dispute before it.

It shall have the power to correct situations resulting from court decisions in which it has found errors of law; it may grant damages.

Article 4. The court shall decide disputes concerning the validity of the appointment of delegates of the legislative assemblies of member States of the Community to the Senate of the Community.

These disputes shall be submitted to it by the President of the Community.

Article 5. The President of the Community may submit to the Court for its opinion any question of interpretation of the constitutional provisions that concern the Community, the organic laws applying these provisions and Community agreements.

TITLE II

Membership and organization of the Court

Article 6. The Court of Arbitration shall consist of seven judges appointed for six years by the President of the Community.

The judges shall be eligible for reappointment.

The judges shall be independent and may not be dismissed during their term of office.

Article 7. The following may be appointed judges:

- 1. Members of the courts or administrative tribunals with not less than ten years' seniority in their posts;
- 2. Professors of law faculties who have held their professorships for not less than ten years;
- 3. Persons possessing high judicial qualifications by virtue of the positions they have occupied for at least twenty years.

Article 8. The President of the Community shall choose the President of the Court from among the judges.

Article 9. Before taking office, the judges shall take the oath at a public meeting.

They shall swear to perform their duties well and faithfully and to maintain secrecy concerning their deliberations and decisions.

Article 10. Judges should not perform any political or administrative functions nor engage in any professional occupation.

Membership of a court and teaching are the only positions compatible with the position of judge.

Article 11. During their term of office, judges shall not take a position publicly on questions relating to the competence of the court.

They may not give any advice.

Article 12. The Court itself shall provide for its own discipline.

A judge shall not be prosecuted, sought, arrested, detained or tried for a criminal matter without the authorization of the Court. The Court may, in addition, assign jurisdiction in the matter to a particular court. Article 13. During their term of office, judges shall not be appointed to a public post nor receive any honours.

A judge who is a public official at the time of his appointment shall not take advantage of any discretionary promotion.

Article 14. A judge may resign by letter addressed to the President of the Community. The appointment of his successor, which shall be for a term of six years, shall be made at the latest within a month from the date of resignation. The resignation shall take effect upon the appointment of the successor.

Article 15. The Court shall record, if the occasion should arise, the automatic resignation of any one of its members who has accepted any function or elected office incompatible with his position as a member of the Court, or has suffered a conviction which has become res judicata entailing the deprivation of civil and political rights, or has systematically failed to perform his duties without valid excuse.

He shall be replaced within a week.

Article 16. The rules laid down in article 15 above shall apply to judges who incur a permanent physical incapacity and are definitively prevented from performing their duties.

Article 17. The President of the Community shall establish the meeting place of the Court.

Article 18. The President of the Community in Executive Council shall establish the honours, privileges and salaries of members of the Court.

Article 19. The Court shall have the assistance of a clerk appointed by the President of the Community. The President of the Community shall determine the organization of the clerk's office.

TITLE III

Procedure before the Court

Article 20. Disputes shall be brought before the Court of Arbitration by a request submitted either by a State of the Community or in the name of the Community.

An application for a stay of execution may be made to the Court.

Article 21. Proceedings before the Court of Arbitration shall be in writing and both sides in the case shall be heard.

If a party who has been formally notified fails to reply to a writ in the proceedings within the time limit laid down, the Court may proceed and decide the case.

Article 22. The Court shall not validly take cognizance of any arguments and conclusions except those set forth in the documents of the written proceedings.

These arguments and conclusions may be developed orally before the Court by the representatives of the States concerned.

Article 23. The investigation shall be directed by the Court. The hearings shall be public.

The deliberations shall be secret.

Article 24. The decisions of the Court shall be delivered at a public sitting by not less than five judges.

In the event of a parity of opinion, the President shall have the casting vote.

Article 25. The decisions of the Court shall have the effect of res judicata.

They shall be enforceable throughout the territory of the Community.

They shall not be subject to any appeal, except appeals for correction of a material error and third-party appeals.

Article 26. A request by which a State applies to the Court for redress for loss or damage suffered by one of its nationals and imputed to another State of the Community, shall not be admissible until all the recourse available under the internal law of the latter State has been exhausted, unless the Court specially and by way of exception decides otherwise.

It shall be for the Court to decide, if the case should arise, whether the injury done to a body corporate is to be deemed an injury to a national of the claimant State.

Article 27. The opinions delivered by the Court in application of article 5 of this Ordinance shall not be published and shall be directed solely to the President of the Community.

Article 28. Rules of procedure established by the Court and approved by the President of the Community shall supplement the provisions of this Title, particularly with regard to forms and time limits.

The rules of procedure shall also establish the accelerated procedure applicable to the disputes referred to in article 4 above.

Article 29. This Ordinance shall be published in the Journal official of the French Republic and of each of the other member States of the Community and shall be enforced as an organic law of the Community.

Done in Paris, 19 December 1958.

Ordinance No. 58-1257 of 19 December 1958 enacting the organic law relating to representation of the Parliament of the Republic in the Senate of the Community

The President of the Council of Ministers,

Considering the Constitution and, in particular, articles 76, 85 and 92 thereof;

Having heard the "Conseil d'Etat";

Having heard the Council of Ministers, Orders as follows:

Article 1. The representatives of the Parliament of the Republic in the Senate of the Community shall be chosen as to one half from each of the two Assemblies.

Article 2. The Assemblies shall elect their delegates in the manner provided for this particular purpose by their regulations, without prejudice to the provisions of article 3 below.

Article 3. The elections made in accordance with the preceding article must ensure, for the Parliament as a whole, the representation in an equitable manner of the departments of Algeria, Oasis, Saoura, Guadeloupe, French Guiana, Martinique and Réunion, and of the Overseas Territories whether they have kept their status within the Republic or have expressed their desire to become Overseas Departments in accordance with article 76 of the Constitution.

Article 4. This Ordinance shall be published in the Journal official of the French Republic and shall be enforced as an organic law.

Done in Paris, 19 December 1958.

Note by the Secretary-General transmitting a communication from the Government of the United States of America

The Secretary-General received the following communication dated 2 June 1959 from the Permanent Representative of the United States of America to the United Nations:

"The representative of the United States of America to the United Nations . . . has the honor to refer to resolution 222 (III), adopted by the General Assembly on November 3, 1948. This resolution states that the General Assembly, having regard to the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter, considers that it is essential that the United Nations be informed of any change in the constitutional position and status of any Non-Self-Governing Territory as a result of which the responsible Government concerned thinks it unnecessary to transmit information in respect of that territory under Article 73 e of the Charter. The Members of the United Nations concerned are requested by this resolution to communicate to the Secretary-General, within a maximum period of six months, such information as may be appropriate, including the constitution, legislative act or executive order providing for the government of the territory and the constitutional relationship of the territory to the Government of the metropolitan country.

"Since 1946, the United States has transmitted annually to the Secretary-General information on the Territory of Alaska pursuant to Article 73 e of the Charter. However, on January 3, 1959, Alaska became one of the United States under a constitution taking effect on that date. In the light of this change in the constitutional position and status of Alaska, the United States Government considers it no longer necessary or appropriate to continue to transmit information on Alaska under Article 73 e. Consequently, the United States Government has decided that, with the submission of the annual report for the period July 1, 1957 to June 30, 1958, to which will be appended supplementary material for the additional six months ending January 3, 1959, the date on which Alaska achieved statehood, it will cease to transmit information on

"There are enclosed for the information of the Members of the United Nations the following documents in compliance with the terms of resolution 222 (III) of the General Assembly:

"1. Memorandum by the Government of the United States of America concerning the cessation of transmission of information under Article 73 e of the Charter with regard to Alaska.

- "2. Public Law 85-508, 85th Congress, H.R. 7999, July 7, 1958.
- "3. Admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, Proclamation No. 3269, 24 Fed. Reg. 81 (1959).
 - "4. Text of the Constitution of the State of Alaska."

The documentation referred to above is, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1051 (XI) of 20 February 1957, communicated to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session and is reproduced in the annexes to the present note.

ANNEX I

Memorandum by the Government of the United States of America concerning the cessation of transmission of information under Article 73 e of the Charter with regard to Alaska

Introduction

- 1. The United States Government, pursuant to Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations and in accordance with resolution 66 (I) adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on December 14, 1946, has transmitted to the Secretary-General annually since 1946 information on several territories, including the Territory of Alaska.
- 2. For many years the people of Alaska have enjoyed a high degree of self-government as an Incorporated Territory of the United States. They have been citizens of the United States and have had an elected Territorial Legislature. They have not, however, elected their own Governor, had representation in the United States Senate or voting representation in the United States House of Representatives. On July 7, 1958 Public Law 85-508 was enacted into law providing for the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union on an equal footing with the other States in all respects. The Constitution, written by a Constitutional Convention and adopted by a vote of the people of Alaska in the election held on April 24, 1956, was found by the Congress to be republican in form and in conformity with the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence. The President, on January 3, 1959, proclaimed Alaska admitted to the Union as the fortyninth State.
- 3. With the occurrence of this event, the people of Alaska have attained a full measure of self-government—the same as that enjoyed by the people of all the other forty-eight States of the United States. Accordingly, the Government of the United States has determined under General Assembly resolution 222 (III) that it is no longer necessary for it to submit information on Alaska pursuant to Article 73 e of the Charter.
- 4. Resolution 222 (III), adopted by the General Assembly on November 3, 1948, states that, having regard to the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter, it is essential that the United Nations be informed of any change in the constitutional position and status of any Non-Self-Governing Territory as a result of which the responsible Government concerned thinks it unnecessary to transmit information in respect of that territory under Article 73 e of the Charter. The Members of the United Nations concerned are requested by this resolution to communicate to the Secretary-General, within a maximum period of six months, such information as may be appropriate, including the constitution, legislative act or executive order providing for the government of the territory and the constitutional relationship of the territory to the Government of the metropolitan country.
- 5. As a result of the change in the constitutional position and status of Alaska described in this memorandum, the Government of the United States considers it unnecessary to transmit further information under Article 73 e of the Charter concerning Alaska. The United States Government desires that the United Nations be fully informed of the background of this decision. Accordingly, and in accordance with the terms of resolution 222 (III), this memorandum has been prepared and, together with a copy of the Constitution of the State of Alaska,

Public Law 85-508 and Proclamation No. 3269, is transmitted to the Secretary-General for circulation to the Members of the United Nations for their information.

Constitutional development of Alaska under United States administration

6. Alaska has been administered by the United States since 1867. The Congress early provided for the appointment of a governor and the organization of a government in the District of Alaska with a temporary seat at Sitka. The Act of 6 June 1900 provided that Alaska constitute a civil and judicial district and by the terms of the Act of 7 May 1906 Alaska was empowered to elect a non-voting Delegate to the Congress of the United States. The Act of 24 August 1912 constituted Alaska as an Incorporated Territory and a bicameral legislature was established to convene biennially at the capital, which was fixed at Juneau.

Constitutional development of Alaska United States administration

- 7. Legislation proposing statehood for Alaska was introduced in the Congress of the United States as early as 1916 and many bills have been introduced and congressional investigations held on the subject since then. On March 19, 1955, the Territorial Legislature of Alaska authorized the convening of and election of delegates to a constitutional convention to prepare a constitution for the State of Alaska. The delegates, elected on September 13, 1955, convened at the University of Alaska at College, Alaska, on November 8. The Convention's deliberations were concluded February 5, 1956, when the draft constitution was signed by the delegates. The document was presented on April 24 to the electorate of Alaska, which approved it by a vote of 17,477 to 7,180. In accordance with the terms of ratification of the constitution, a copy was then transmitted to the President for submission to the Congress.
- 8. Several bills providing for changes in Alaska's constitutional status were introduced in the 85th United States Congress. On May 28, 1958, the United States House of Representatives passed H.R. 7999 which the United States Senate passed on June 30. On July 7, 1958, President Eisenhower approved the bill, which became Public Law 85-508, "An Act to provide for the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union".
- 9. On July 16, 1958, the Honorable Mike Stepovich, the last appointed Governor of Alaska, issued a proclamation calling for a primary election for the purpose of nominating candidates for United States Senator and Representative and for certain high state offices and, concurrently, a special election to adopt or reject three propositions as specified in Public Law 85-508. The same proclamation called a general election for the purpose of electing officers from among the candidates chosen in the primary.
- 10. In the special election held on August 26, 1958, Proposition 1: "Shall Alaska immediately be admitted into the Union as a State?" was adopted by 40,452 to 8,010. Proposition 2: "The boundaries of the State of Alaska shall be as prescribed in the Act of Congress approved July 7, 1958, and all claims of this State to any areas of land or sea outside the boundaries so prescribed are hereby irrevocably relinquished to the United States" was adopted by a vote of 40,421 to 7,766. Finally, Proposition 3: "All provisions of the Act of Congress approved July 7, 1958 reserving rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property therein made to the State of Alaska, are consented to fully by said State and its people", was adopted by 40,739 votes to 7,500.
- 11. In the general election of November 25, 1958, the people of Alaska chose two United States Senators and one Representative to serve in the Congress of the United States beginning with the 86th Congress, the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Legislature of Alaska, the Governor and the Secretary of State of Alaska.
- 12. The final step in the process was reached on January 3, 1959, with the issuance of Proclamation No. 3269, 24 Fed. Reg. 81 (1959) by the President certifying that the procedural requirements imposed by the Congress on the State of Alaska to entitle it to admission into the Union had been complied with in all respects, and that admission of the State of Alaska into the Union on an equal footing with the other States of the Union had been accomplished.

Principal features of the Constitution of the State of Alaska

- 13. The Constitution of the State of Alaska, as it became effective with its promulgation by the President of the United States, is similar to that of the other States of the Federal Union. It recognizes that "all political power is inherent in the people" (Article I, Section 2) and establishes a republican form of government. It provides for the division of the powers attributed to the government among executive, legislative and judicial branches. It contains a Declaration of Rights, in which certain fundamental freedoms are guaranteed to the people of the State. It provides for the secrecy of the ballot, for universal adult suffrage, for the enactment of legislation by the initiative and referendum and for the recall of elected public officials.
- 14. The Declaration of Rights, incorporated into the Constitution as Article I, opens with the statement that "This constitution is dedicated to the principles that all persons have a natural right to life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, and the enjoyment of the rewards of their own industry; that all persons are equal and entitled to equal rights, opportunities, and protection under the law . . .". It then goes on to guarantee the enjoyment of civil and political rights regardless of race, color, creed or national origin and provides for the implementation by the legislature of this guarantee. Freedom of religion and speech are likewise assured. The rights of peaceable assembly and petition are recognized. No person may be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, put in jeopardy twice for the same offense, or compelled to be a witness against himself. Excessive bail may not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus may not be suspended unless required by public safety, and the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses and other property against unreasonable searches and seizures may not be violated. Bills of attainder, ex post facto laws, and imprisonment for debt are ruled out.
- 15. Articles II, III, and IV set forth the organization, functions, powers, methods of selection, etc., of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the government. The Governor and Secretary of State, who in the former's absence acts in his place and succeeds to his office in case of vacancy, as well as the bicameral legislature are to be popularly elected. An unusual feature is that Supreme Court justices and Superior Court judges are required to be subject to approval or rejection at the first general election held not more than three years after their appointment.
- 16. Section 1 of Article VII provides for a system of public schools open to all children of the State and free from sectarian control. Section 2 establishes the University of Alaska as the state university. Sections 4 and 5 require the legislature to provide for the promotion and protection of public health and for public welfare, respectively.
- 17. Article VIII reflects the abiding interest of the people of Alaska in the development and conservation of the State's natural resources. Section 1 describes the policy of the State as one designed "to encourage the settlement of its land and the development of its resources by making them available for maximum use consistent with the public interest". In Section 2, the legislature is given authority to "provide for the utilization, development, and conservation of all natural resources belonging to the State, including land and waters, for the maximum benefit of its people".
- 18. Among the general provisions contained in Article XII is one requiring all public officers, before entering upon the duties of their offices, to take an oath to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Alaska...".
- 19. The final article, Article XV, consists of a schedule of measures designed to provide an orderly transition from a territorial to a state form of government. Among these are the continuance in force of all laws in force on the effective date of the constitution until they expire, are amended, or repealed, provision for the first state elections, establishment of the capital of the state at Juneau, and provision for the constitution to take effect immediately upon admission of Alaska into the Union.

Conclusion

20. For the reasons already set forth, the United States Government has decided that, with the entry into force on January 3, 1959, of the Constitution of the State of Alaska, it is no longer necessary or appropriate for the United States to continue to transmit information to the United Nations on Alaska under Article 73 e of the Charter.

ANNEX II

Public Law 85-508, 85th Congress, H.R. 7999, July 7, 1958 (72 Stat. 339)

An Act to provide for the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, subject to the provisions of this Act, and upon issuance of the proclamation required by section 8 (c) of this Act, the State of Alaska is hereby declared to be a State of the United States of America, is declared admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the other States in all respects whatever, and the constitution formed pursuant to the provisions of the Act of the Territorial Legislature of Alaska entitled, "An Act to provide for the holding of a constitutional convention to prepare a constitution for the State of Alaska; to submit the constitution to the people for adoption or rejection; to prepare for the admission of Alaska as a State; to make an appropriation; and setting an effective date", approved March 19, 1955 (Chapter 46, Session Laws of Alaska, 1955), and adopted by a vote of the people of Alaska in the election held on April 24, 1956, is hereby found to be republican in form and in conformity with the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and is hereby accepted, ratified, and confirmed.

Section 2. The State of Alaska shall consist of all the territory, together with the territorial waters appurtenant thereto, now included in the Territory of Alaska.

Section 3. The constitution of the State of Alaska shall always be republican in form and shall not be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence.

Section 4. As a compact with the United States said State and its people do agree and declare that they forever disclaim all right and title to any lands or other property not granted or confirmed to the State or its political subdivisions by or under the authority of this Act, the right or title to which is held by the United States or is subject to disposition by the United States, and to any lands or other property (including fishing rights), the right or title to which may be held by any Indians, Eskimos, or Aleuts (hereinafter called natives) or is held by the United States in trust for said natives; that all such lands or other property, belonging to the United States or which may belong to said natives, shall be and remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the United States until disposed of under its authority, except to such extent as the Congress has prescribed or may hereafter prescribe, and except when held by individual natives in fee without restrictions on alienation: Provided, That nothing contained in this Act shall recognize, deny, enlarge, impair, or otherwise affect any claim against the United States, and any such claim shall be governed by the laws of the United States applicable thereto; and nothing in this Act is intended or shall be construed as a finding, interpretation, or construction by the Congress that any law applicable thereto authorizes, establishes, recognizes, or confirms the validity or invalidity of any such claim, and the determination of the applicability or effect of any law to any such claim shall be unaffected by anything in this Act: And provided further, That no taxes shall be imposed by said State upon any lands or other property now owned or hereafter acquired by the United States or which, as hereinabove set forth, may belong to said natives, except to such extent as the Congress has prescribed or may hereafter prescribe, and except when held by individual natives in fee without restrictions on alienation.

Section 5. The State of Alaska and its political subdivisions, respectively, shall have and retain title to all property, real and personal, title to which is in the Territory of Alaska or any of the subdivisions. Except as provided in section 6 hereof, the United States shall retain title to all property, real and personal, to which it has title, including public lands.

Section 6. (a) For the purposes of furthering the development of and expansion of communities, the State of Alaska is hereby granted and shall be entitled to select, within twenty-five years after the date of the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, from lands within national forests in Alaska which are vacant and unappropriated at the time of their selection not to exceed 400,000 acres of land, and from the other public lands of the United States in Alaska which are vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved at the time of their selection not to exceed another 400,000 acres of land, all of which shall be adjacent to established communities or suitable for prospective community centres and recreational areas. Such lands shall be selected by the State of Alaska with the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture as to national forest lands and with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior as to other public lands: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall affect any valid existing claim, location, or entry under the laws of the United States, whether for homestead, mineral, right-of-way, or other purpose whatsoever, or shall affect the rights of any such owner, claimant, locator, or entryman to the full use and enjoyment of the land so occupied.

- (b) The State of Alaska, in addition to any other grants made in this section, is hereby granted and shall be entitled to select, within twenty-five years after the admission of Alaska into the Union, not to exceed 102,550,000 acres from the public lands of the United States in Alaska which are vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved at the time of their selection: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall affect any valid existing claim, location, or entry under the laws of the United States, whether for homestead, mineral, right-of-way, or other purpose whatsoever, or shall affect the rights of any such owner, claimant, locator, or entryman to the full use and enjoyment of the lands so occupied: And provided further, That no selection hereunder shall be made in the area north and west of the line described in section 10 without approval of the President or his designated representative.
- (c) Block 32, and the structures and improvements thereon, in the city of Juneau are granted to the State of Alaska for any or all of the following purposes or a combination thereof: A residence for the Governor, a State museum, or park and recreational use.
- (d) Block 19, and the structures and improvements thereon, and the interests of the United States in blocks C and 7, and the structures and improvements thereon, in the city of Juneau, are hereby granted to the State of Alaska.
- (e) All real and personal property of the United States situated in the Territory of Alaska which is specifically used for the sole purpose of conservation and protection of the fisheries and wildlife of Alaska, under the provisions of the Alaska game law of July 1, 1943 (57 Stat. 301; 48 U.S.C., secs. 192-211), as amended, and under the provisions of the Alaska commercial fisheries laws of June 26, 1906 (34 Stat. 478; 48 U.S.C., secs. 230-239 and 241-242), and June 6, 1924 (43 Stat. 465; 48 U.S.C., secs. 221-228), as supplemented and amended, shall be transferred and conveyed to the State of Alaska by the appropriate Federal agency: Provided, That the administration and management of the fish and wildlife resources of Alaska shall be retained by the Federal Government under existing laws until the first day of the first calendar year following the expiration of ninety legislative days after the Secretary of the Interior certifies to the Congress that the Alaska State Legislature has made adequate provision for the administration, management, and conservation of said resources in the broad national interest: Provided, That such transfer shall not include lands withdrawn or otherwise set apart as refuges or reservations for the protection of wildlife nor facilities utilized in connection therewith, or in connection with general research activities relating to fisheries or wildlife. Sums of money that are available for apportionment or which the Secretary of the Interior shall have apportioned, as of the date the State of Alaska shall be deemed to be admitted into the Union, for wildlife restoration in the Territory of Alaska, pursuant to section 8 (a) of the Act of September 2, 1937, as amended (16 U.S.C., sec. 669 g-l), and for fish restoration and management in the Territory of Alaska, pursuant to section 12 of the Act of August 9, 1950 (16 U.S.C. sec. 777 k), shall continue to be available for the period, and under the terms and conditions in effect at the time, the apportionments are made. Commencing with the year during which Alaska is admitted into the Union, the Secretary of the Treasury, at the close of each fiscal year, shall pay to the State of Alaska 70 per centum of the net proceeds, as determined by the Secretary of the Interior, derived during such fiscal year from all sales of sealskins or sea-otter skins made in accordance with the provisions of the Act of February 26, 1944 (58 Stat. 100; 16 U.S.C., secs. 631 a-631 q), as supplemented and amended. In arriving at the net proceeds, there shall be deducted from the receipts from all sales all costs to the United States in carrying out the provisions of the Act of February 26, 1944, as supplemented and amended, including, but not limited to, the costs of handling and dressing the skins, the costs of making the sales, and all expenses incurred in the administration of the Pribilof Islands. Nothing in this Act shall be construed as affecting the rights of the United States under the provisions of the Act of February 26, 1944, as supplemented and amended, and the Act of June 28, 1937 (50 Stat. 325), as amended (16 U.S.C., sec. 772 et seq.).

- (f) Five per centum of the proceeds of sale of public lands lying within said State which shall be sold by the United States subsequent to the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to such sales, shall be paid to said State to be used for the support of the public schools within said State.
- (g) Except as provided in subsection (a), all lands granted in quantity to and authorized to be selected by the State of Alaska by this Act shall be selected in such manner as the laws of the State may provide, and in conformity with such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe. All selections shall be made in reasonably compact tracts, taking into account the situation and potential uses of the lands involved, and each tract selected shall contain at least five thousand seven hundred and sixty acres unless isolated from other tracts open to selection. The authority to make selections shall never be alienated or bargained away, in whole or in part, by the State. Upon the revocation of any order of withdrawal in Alaska, the order of revocation shall provide for a period of not less than ninety days before the date on which it otherwise becomes effective, if subsequent to the admission of Alaska into the Union, during which period the State of Alaska shall have a preferred right of selection, subject to the requirements of this Act, except as against prior existing valid rights or as against equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation. Such preferred right of selection shall have precedence over the preferred right of application created by section 4 of the Act of September 27, 1944 (58 Stat. 748; 43 U.S.C., sec. 282), as now or hereafter amended, but not over other preference rights now conferred by law. Where any lands desired by the State are unsurveyed at the time of their selection, the Secretary of the Interior shall survey the exterior boundaries of the area requested without any interior subdivision thereof and shall issue a patent for such selected area in terms of the exterior boundary survey; where any lands desired by the State are surveyed at the time of their selection, the boundaries of the area requested shall conform to the public land subdivisions established by the approval of the survey. All lands duly selected by the State of Alaska pursuant to this Act shall be patented to the State by the Secretary of the Interior. Following the selection of lands by the State and the tentative approval of such selection by the Secretary of the Interior or his designee, but prior to the issuance of final patent, the State is hereby authorized to execute conditional leases and to make conditional sales of such selected lands. As used in this subsection, the words "equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation" include, without limitation, claims of holders of permits issued by the Department of Agriculture on lands eliminated from national forests, whose permits have been terminated only because of such elimination and who own valuable improvements on such lands,
 - (h) Any lease, permit, license, or contract issued under the Mineral Leasing Act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437, 30 U.S.C., sec. 181 and following), as amended, or under the Alaska Coal Leasing Act of October 20, 1914 (38 Stat. 741; 30 U.S.C., sec. 432 and following), as amended, shall have the effect of withdrawing the lands subject thereto from selection by the State of Alaska under this Act, unless such lease, permit, license, or contract is in effect on the date of approval of this Act, and unless an application to select such lands is filed with the Secretary of the Interior within a period of five years after the date of the admission of Alaska into the Union. Such selections shall be made only from lands that are otherwise open to selection under this Act, and shall include the entire area that is subject to each lease, permit, license, or contract involved in the selections. Any patent for lands so selected shall vest in the State of Alaska all right, title and interest of the United States in and to any such lease, permit, license, or contract that remains outstanding on the effective date of the patent, including the right to all rentals, royalties, and other payments accruing after that date under such lease, permit, license or contract, and including any authority that may have been retained by the United States to modify the terms and conditions of such lease, permit, license, or contract: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall affect the continued validity of any such lease, permit, license, or contract or any rights arising thereunder.

- (i) All grants made or confirmed under this Act shall include mineral deposits. The grants of mineral lands to the State of Alaska under subsections (a) and (b) of this section are made upon the express condition that all sales, grants, deeds, or patents for any of the mineral lands so granted shall be subject to and contain a reservation to the State of all the minerals in the lands so sold, granted, deeded, or patented, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same. Mineral deposits in such lands shall be subject to lease by the State as the State legislature may direct: Provided, That any lands or minerals hereafter disposed of contrary to the provisions of this section shall be forfeited to the United States by appropriate proceedings instituted by the Attorney General for that purpose in the United States District Court for the District of Alaska.
- (j) The schools and colleges provided for in this Act shall forever remain under the exclusive control of the State, or its governmental subdivisions, and no part of the proceeds arising from the sale or disposal of any lands granted herein for educational purposes shall be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, college or university.
- (k) Grants previously made to the Territory of Alaska are hereby confirmed and transferred to the State of Alaska upon its admission. Effective upon the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, section 1 of the Act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1214; 48 U.S.C., sec. 353), as amended, and the last sentence of section 35 of the Act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 450; 30 U.S.C., sec. 191), as amended, are repealed and all lands therein reserved under the provisions of section 1 as of the date of this Act shall, upon the admission of said State into the Union, be granted to said State for the purposes for which they were reserved; but such repeal shall not affect any outstanding lease, permit, license, or contract issued under said section 1, as amended, or any rights or powers with respect to such lease, permit, license, or contract, and shall not affect the disposition of the proceeds or income derived prior to such repeal from any lands reserved under said section 1, as amended, or derived thereafter from any disposition of the reserved lands or an interest therein made prior to such repeal.
- (1) The grants provided for in this Act shall be in lieu of the grant of land for purposes of internal improvements made to new States by section 8 of the Act of September 4, 1841 (5 Stat. 455), and sections 2378 and 2379 of the Revised Statutes (43 U.S.C., sec. 857), and in lieu of the swampland grant made by the Act of September 28, 1850 (9 Stat. 520), and section 2479 of the Revised Statutes (43 U.S.C., sec. 982), and in lieu of the grant of thirty thousand acres for each Senator and Representative in Congress made by the Act of July 2, 1862, as amended (12 Stat. 503; 7 U.S.C., secs. 301-308), which grants are hereby declared not to extend to the State of Alaska.
 - (m) The Submerged Lands Act of 1953 (Public Law 31, Eighty-third Congress, first session; 67 Stat. 29) shall be applicable to the State of Alaska and the said State shall have the same rights as do existing States thereunder.

Section 7. Upon enactment of this Act, it shall be the duty of the President of the United States, not later than July 3, 1958, to certify such fact to the Governor of Alaska. Thereupon the Governor, on or after July 3, 1958, and not later than August 1, 1958, shall issue his proclamation for the elections, as hereinafter provided, for officers of all elective offices and in the manner provided for by the constitution of the proposed State of Alaska, but the officers so elected shall in any event include two Senators and one Representative in Congress.

Section 8. (a) The proclamation of the Governor of Alaska required by section 7 shall provide for holding of a primary election and a general election on dates to be fixed by the Governor of Alaska: Provided, That the general election shall not be held later than December 1, 1958, and at such elections the officers required to be elected as provided in section 7 shall be, and officers for other elective offices provided for in the constitution of the proposed State of Alaska may be, chosen by the people. Such elections shall be held, and the qualifications of voters thereat shall be, as prescribed by the constitution of the proposed State of Alaska for the election of members of the proposed State legislature. The returns thereof shall be made and certified in such manner as the constitution of the proposed State of Alaska may prescribe. The Governor of Alaska shall certify the results of said elections to the President of the United States.

- (b) At an election designated by proclamation of the Governor of Alaska, which may be the general election held pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, or a Territorial general election, or a special election, there shall be submitted to the electors qualified to vote in said election, for adoption or rejection, by separate ballot on each, the following propositions:
- "(1) Shall Alaska immediately be admitted into the Union as a State?
- "(2) The boundaries of the State of Alaska shall be as prescribed in the Act of Congress approved (date of approval of this Act) and all claims of this State to any areas of land or sea outside the boundaries so prescribed are hereby irrevocably relinquished to the United States.
- "(3) All provisions of the Act of Congress approved (date of approval of this Act) reserving rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property therein made to the State of Alaska, are consented to fully by said State and its people."

In the event each of the foregoing propositions is adopted at said election by a majority of the legal votes cast on said submission, the proposed constitution of the proposed State of Alaska, ratified by the people at the election held on April 24, 1956, shall be deemed amended accordingly. In the event any one of the foregoing propositions is not adopted at said election by a majority of the legal votes cast on said submission, the provisions of this Act shall thereupon cease to be effective.

The Governor of Alaska is hereby authorized and directed to take such action as may be necessary or appropriate to ensure the submission of said propositions to the people. The return of the votes cast on said propositions shall be made by the election officers directly to the Secretary of Alaska, who shall certify the results of the submission to the Governor. The Governor shall certify the results of said submission, as so ascertained, to the President of the United States.

(c) If the President shall find that the propositions set forth in the preceding subsection have been duly adopted by the people of Alaska, the President, upon certification of the returns of the election of the officers required to be elected as provided in section 7 of this Act, shall thereupon issue his proclamation announcing the results of said election as so ascertained. Upon the issuance of said proclamation by the President, the State of Alaska shall be deemed admitted into the Union as provided in section 1 of this Act.

Until the said State is so admitted into the Union, all of the officers of said Territory, including the Delegate in Congress from said Territory, shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices. Upon the issuance of said proclamation by the President of the United States and the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, the officers elected at said election, and qualified under the provisions of the constitution and laws of said State, shall proceed to exercise all the functions pertaining to their offices in or under or by authority of the government of said State, and officers not required to be elected at said initial election shall be selected or continued in office as provided by the constitution and laws of said State. The Governor of said State shall certify the election of the Senators and Representative in the manner required by law, and the said Senators and Representative shall be entitled to be admitted to seats in Congress and to all the rights and privileges of Senators and Representatives of other States in the Congress of the United States.

(d) Upon admission of the State of Alaska into the Union as herein provided, all of the Territorial laws then in force in the Territory of Alaska shall be and continue in full force and effect throughout said State except as modified or changed by this Act, or by the constitution of the State, or as thereafter modified or changed by the legislature of the State. All of the laws of the United States shall have the same force and effect within said State as elsewhere within the United States. As used in this paragraph, the term "Territorial laws" includes (in addition to laws enacted by the Territorial Legislature of Alaska) all laws or parts thereof enacted by the Congress the validity of which is dependent solely upon the authority of the Congress to provide for the government of Alaska prior to the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, and the term "laws of the United States" includes all laws or parts thereof enacted by the Congress that (1) apply to or within Alaska at the time of the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, (2) are not "Territorial laws" as defined in this paragraph, and (3) are not in conflict with any other provisions of this Act.

Section 9. The State of Alaska upon its admission into the Union shall be entitled to one Representative until the taking effect of the next reapportionment, and such Representative shall be in addition to the membership of the House of Representatives as now prescribed by law: Provided, That such temporary increase in the membership shall not operate to either increase or decrease the permanent membership of the House of Representatives as prescribed in the Act of August 8, 1911 (37 Stat. 13) nor shall such temporary increase affect the basis of apportionment established by the Act of November 15, 1941 (55 Stat. 761; 2 U.S.C., sec. 2 a), for the Eighty-third Congress and each Congress thereafter.

Section 10. (a) The President of the United States is hereby authorized to establish, by Executive order or proclamation, one or more special national defense withdrawals within the exterior boundaries of Alaska, which withdrawal or withdrawals may thereafter be terminated in whole or in part by the President.

- (b) Special national defense withdrawals established under subsection (a) of this section shall be confined to those portions of Alaska that are situated to the north or west of the following line: Beginning at the point where the Porcupine River crosses the international boundary between Alaska and Canada; thence along a line parallel to, and five miles from, the right bank of the main channel of the Porcupine River to its confluence with the Yukon River; thence along a line parallel to, and five miles from, the right bank of the main channel of the Yukon River to its most southerly point of intersection with the meridian of longitude 160 degrees west of Greenwich; thence south to the intersection of said meridian with the Kuskokwim River; thence along a line parallel to, and five miles from the right bank of the Kuskokwim River to the mouth of said river; thence along the shoreline of Kuskokwim Bay to its intersection with the meridian of longitude 162 degrees 30 minutes west of Greenwich; thence south to the intersection of said meridian with the parallel of latitude 57 degrees 30 minutes north; thence east to the intersection of said parallel with the meridian of longitude 156 degrees west of Greenwich; thence south to the intersection of said meridian with the parallel of latitude 50 degrees north.
- (c) Effective upon the issuance of such Executive order or proclamation, exclusive jurisdiction over all special national defense withdrawals established under this section is hereby reserved to the United States, which shall have sole legislative, judicial, and executive power within such withdrawals, except as provided hereinafter. The exclusive jurisdiction so established shall extend to all lands within the exterior boundaries of each such withdrawal, and shall remain in effect with respect to any particular tract or parcel of land only so long as such tract or parcel remains within the exterior boundaries of such a withdrawal. The laws of the State of Alaska shall not apply to areas within any special national defense withdrawal established under this section while such areas remain subject to the exclusive jurisdiction hereby authorized: Provided, however, That such exclusive jurisdiction shall not prevent the execution of any process, civil or criminal, of the State of Alaska, upon any person found within said withdrawals: And provided further, That such exclusive jurisdiction shall not prohibit the State of Alaska from enacting and enforcing all laws necessary to establish voting districts, and the qualification and procedures for voting in all elections.

- (d) During the continuance in effect of any special national defense withdrawal established under this section, or until the Congress otherwise provides, such exclusive jurisdiction shall be exercised within each such withdrawal in accordance with the following provisions of law:
- (1) All laws enacted by the Congress that are of general application to areas under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, including, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, those provisions of title 18, United States Code, that are applicable within the special maritime and territorial jurisdiction of the United States as defined in section 7 of said title, shall apply to all areas within such withdrawals.
- (2) In addition, any areas within the withdrawals that are reserved by Act of Congress or by Executive action for a particular military or civilian use of the United States shall be subject to all laws enacted by the Congress that have application to lands withdrawn for that particular use, and any other areas within the withdrawals shall be subject to all laws enacted by the Congress that are of general application to lands withdrawn for defense purposes of the United States.
- (3) To the extent consistent with the laws described in paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection and with regulations made or other actions taken under their authority, all laws in force within such withdrawals immediately prior to the creation thereof by Executive order or proclamation shall apply within the withdrawals and, for this purpose, are adopted as laws of the United States: Provided, however, That the laws of the State or Territory relating to the organization or powers of municipalities or local political subdivisions, and the laws or ordinances of such municipalities or political subdivisions shall not be adopted as laws of the United States.
- (4) All functions vested in the United States commissioners by the laws described in this subsection shall continue to be performed within the withdrawals by such commissioners.
- (5) All functions vested in any municipal corporation, school district, or other local political subdivision by the laws described in this subsection shall continue to be performed within the withdrawals by such corporation, district, or other subdivision, and the laws of the State or the laws or ordinances of such municipalities or local political subdivision shall remain in full force and effect notwithstanding any withdrawal made under this section.
- (6) All other functions vested in the government of Alaska or in any officer or agency thereof, except judicial functions over which the United States District Court for the District of Alaska is given jurisdiction by this Act or other provisions of law, shall be performed within the withdrawals by such civilian individuals or civilian agencies and in such manner as the President shall from time to time, by Executive order, direct or authorize.
- (7) The United States District Court for the District of Alaska shall have original jurisdiction, without regard to the sum or value of any matter in controversy, over all civil actions arising within such withdrawals under the laws made applicable thereto by this subsection, as well as over all offenses committed within the withdrawals.

(c) Nothing contained in subsection (d) of this section shall be construed as limiting the exclusive jurisdiction established in the United States by subsection (c) of this section or the authority of the Congress to implement such exclusive jurisdiction by appropriate legislation, or as denying to persons now or hereafter residing within any portion of the areas described in subsection (b) of this section the right to vote at all elections held within the political subdivisions as prescribed by the State of Alaska where they respectively reside, or as limiting the jurisdiction conferred on the United States District Court for the District of Alaska by any other provision of law, or as continuing in effect laws relating to the Legislature of the Territory of Alaska. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed as limiting any authority otherwise vested in the Congress or the President.

Section 11. (a) Nothing in this Act shall affect the establishment, or the right, ownership, and authority of the United States in Mount McKinley National Park, as now or hereafter constituted; but exclusive jurisdiction, in all cases, shall be exercised by the United States for the national park, as now or hereafter constituted; saving, however, to the State of Alaska the right to serve civil or criminal process within the limits of the aforesaid park in suits or prosecutions for or on account of rights acquired, obligations incurred, or crimes committed in said State, but outside of said park; and saving further to the said State the right to tax persons and corporations, their franchises and property on the lands included in said park; and saving also to the persons residing now or hereafter in such area the right to vote at all elections held within the respective political subdivisions of their residence in which the park is situated.

(b) Notwithstanding the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, authority is reserved in the United States, subject to the proviso hereinafter set forth, for the exercise by the Congress of the United States of the power of exclusive legislation, as provided by article I, section 8, clause 17, of the Constitution of the United States, in all cases whatsoever over such tracts or parcels of land as, immediately prior to the admission of said State, are owned by the United States and held for military, naval, Air Force, or Coast Guard purposes, including naval petroleum reserve numbered 4, whether such lands were acquired by cession and transfer to the United States by Russia and set aside by Act of Congress or by Executive order or proclamation of the President or the Governor of Alaska for the use of the United States, or were acquired by the United States by purchase, condemnation, donation, exchange, or otherwise: Provided, (i) That the State of Alaska shall always have the right to serve civil or criminal process within the said tracts or parcels of land in suits or prosecutions for or on account of rights acquired, obligations incurred, or crimes committed within the said State but outside of the said tracts or parcels of land; (ii) that the reservation of authority in the United States for the exercise by the Congress of the United States of the power of exclusive legislation over the lands aforesaid shall not operate to prevent such lands from being a part of the State of Alaska, or to prevent the said State from exercising over or upon such lands, concurrently with the United States, any jurisdiction whatsoever which it would have in the absence of such reservation of authority and which is consistent with the laws hereafter enacted by the Congress pursuant to such reservation of authority; and (iii) that such power of exclusive legislation shall rest and remain in the United States only so long as the particular tract or parcel of land involved is owned by the United States and used for military, naval, Air Force or Coast Guard purposes. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to lands within such special national defense withdrawal or withdrawals as may be established pursuant to section 10 of this Act until such lands cease to be subject to the exclusive jurisdiction reserved to the United States by that section.

Section 12. Effective upon the admission of Alaska into the Union-

(a) The analysis of chapter 5 of title 28, United States Code, immediately preceding section 81 of such title, is amended by inserting immediately after and underneath item 81 of such analysis, a new item to be designated as item 81A and to read as follows:

"81A. Alaska";

(b) Title 28, United States Code, is amended by inserting immediately after section 81 thereof a new section, to be designated as section 81A, and to read as follows:

"Section 81A. Alaska

"Alaska constitutes one judicial district.

"Court shall be held at Anchorage, Fairbanks, Juneau, and Nome.";

- (d) The first paragraph of section 373 of title 28, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by striking out the words: "the District Court for the Territory of Alaska,": Provided, That the amendment made by this subsection shall not affect the rights of any judge who may have retired before it takes effect;
- (e) The words "the District Court for the Territory of Alaska," are stricken out wherever they appear in sections 333, 460, 610, 753, 1252, 1291, 1292, and 1346 of title 28, United States Code;
- (f) The first paragraph of section 1252 of title 28, United States Code, is further amended by striking out the word "Alaska," from the clause relating to courts of record;
- (g) Subsection (2) of section 1294 of title 28, United States Code, is repealed and the later subsections of such section are renumbered accordingly;
- (h) Subsection (a) of section 2410 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words: "including the District Court for the Territory of Alaska,";
- (i) Section 3241 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words: "District Court for the Territory of Alaska, the";
- (j) Subsection (e) of section 3401 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words "for Alaska or":
- (k) Section 3771 of title 18, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by striking out from the first paragraph of such section the words: "the Territory of Alaska,";
- (1) Section 3772 of title 18, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by striking out from the first paragraph of such section the words: "the Territory of Alaska,";
- (m) Section 2072 of title 28, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by striking out from the first paragraph of such section the words: "and of the District Court for the Territory of Alaska";
- (n) Subsection (q) of section 376 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words: "the District Court for the Territory of Alaska,": Provided, That the amendment made by this subsection shall not affect the rights under such section 376 of any present or former judge of the District Court for the Territory of Alaska or his survivors;
- (o) The last paragraph of section 1963 of title 28, United States Code, is repealed;
- (p) Section 2201 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words: "and the District Court for the Territory of Alaska"; and
- (q) Section 4 of the Act of July 28, 1950 (64 Stat. 380; 5 U.S.C., sec. 341 b) is amended by striking out the word: "Alaska,".

Section 13. No writ, action, indictment, cause, or proceeding pending in the District Court for the Territory of Alaska on the date when said Territory shall become a State, and no case pending in an appellate court upon appeal from the District Court for the Territory of Alaska at the time said Territory shall become a State, shall abate by the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union, but the same shall be transferred and proceeded with as hereinafter provided.

All civil causes of action and all criminal offenses which shall have arisen or been committed prior to the admission of said State, but as to which no suit, action, or prosecution shall be pending at the date of such admission, shall be subject to prosecution in the appropriate State courts or in the United States District Court for the District of Alaska in like manner, to the same extent, and with like right of appellate review, as if said State had been created and said courts had been established prior to the accrual of said causes of action or the commission of such offenses; and such of said criminal offenses as shall have been committed against the laws of the Territory shall be tried and punished by the appropriate courts of said State, and such as shall have been committed against the laws of the United States shall be tried and punished in the United States District Court for the District of Alaska.

Section 14. All appeals taken from the District Court for the Territory of Alaska to the Supreme Court of the United States or the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, previous to the admission of Alaska as a State, shall be prosecuted to final determination as though this Act had not been passed. All cases in which final judgment has been rendered in such district court, and in which appeals might be had except for the admission of such State, may still be sued out, taken, and prosecuted to the Supreme Court of the United States or the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit under the provisions of then existing law, and there held and determined in the like manner; and in either case, the Supreme Court of the United States, or the United States Court of Appeals, in the event of reversal, shall remand the said cause to either the State supreme court or other final appellate court of said State, or the United States district court for said district, as the case may require: Provided, That the time allowed by existing law for appeals from the district court for said Territory shall not be enlarged thereby.

Section 15. All causes pending or determined in the District Court for the Territory of Alaska at the time of the admission of Alaska as a State which are of such nature as to be within the jurisdiction of a district court of the United States shall be transferred to the United States District Court for the District of Alaska for final disposition and enforcement in the same manner as is now provided by law with reference to the judgments and decrees in existing United States district courts. All other causes pending or determined in the District Court for the Territory of Alaska at the time of the admission of Alaska as a State shall be transferred to the appropriate State court of Alaska. All final judgments and decrees rendered upon such transferred cases in the United States District Court for the District of Alaska may be reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States or by the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in the same manner as is now provided by law with reference to the judgments and decrees in existing United States district courts.

Section 16. Jurisdiction of all cases pending or determined in the District Court for the Territory of Alaska not transferred to the United States District Court for the District of Alaska shall devolve upon and be exercised by the courts of original jurisdiction created by said State, which shall be deemed to be the successor of the District Court for the Territory of Alaska with respect to cases not so transferred and, as such, shall take and retain custody of all records, dockets, journals, and files of such court pertaining to such cases. The files and papers in all cases so transferred to the United States district court, together with a transcript of all book entries to complete the record in such particular cases so transferred, shall be in like manner transferred to said district court.

Section 17. All cases pending in the District Court for the Territory of Alaska at the time said Territory becomes a State not transferred to the United States District Court for the District of Alaska shall be proceeded with and determined by the courts created by said State with the right to prosecute appeals to the appellate courts created by said State, and also with the same right to prosecute appeals or writs of certiorari from the final determination in said causes made by the court of last resort created by such State to the Supreme Court of the United States, as now provided by law for appeals and writs of certiorari from the court of last resort of a State to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Section 18. The provisions of the preceding sections with respect to the termination of the jurisdiction of the District Court for the Territory of Alaska, the continuation of suits, the succession of courts, and the satisfaction of rights of litigants in suits before such courts, shall not be effective until three years after the effective date of this Act, unless the President, by Executive order, shall sooner proclaim that the United States District Court for the District of Alaska, established in accordance with the provisions of this Act, is prepared to assume the functions imposed upon it. During such period of three years or until such Executive order is issued, the United States District Court for the Territory of Alaska shall continue to function as heretofore. The tenure of the judges, the United States attorneys, marshals, and other officers of the United States District Court for the Territory of Alaska shall terminate at such time as that court shall cease to function as provided in this section.

Section 19. The first paragraph of section 2 of the Federal Reserve Act (38 Stat. 251) is amended by striking out the last sentence thereof and inserting in lieu of such sentence the following: "When the State of Alaska is hereafter admitted to the Union the Federal Reserve districts shall be readjusted by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in such manner as to include such State. Every national bank in any State shall, upon commencing business or within ninety days after admission into the Union of the State in which it is located, become a member bank of the Federal Reserve System by subscribing and paying for stock in the Federal Reserve bank of its district in accordance with the provisions of this Act and shall thereupon be an insured bank under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, and failure to do so shall subject such bank to the penalty provided by the sixth paragraph of this section."

Section 20 Section 2 of the Act of October 20, 1914 (38 Stat. 742; 48 U.S.C., sec. 433), is hereby repealed.

Section 21. Nothing contained in this Act shall operate to confer United States nationality, nor to terminate nationality heretofore lawfully acquired, nor restore nationality heretofore lost under any law of the United States or under any treaty to which the United States may have been a party.

Section 22. Section 101 (a) (36) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 170, 8 U.S.C., sec. 1101 (a) (36)) is amended by deleting the word "Alaska,".

Section 23. The first sentence of section 212 (d) (7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 188, 8 U.S.C., sec. 1182 (d) (7)) is amended by deleting the word "Alaska,".

Section 24. Nothing contained in this Act shall be held to repeal, amend, or modify the provisions of section 304 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 237, 8 U.S.C., sec 1404).

Section 25. The first sentence of section 310 (a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 239, 8 U.S.C., sec. 1421 (a)) is amended by deleting the words "District Courts of the United States for the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska" and substituting therefor the words "District Court of the United States for the Territory of Hawaii".

Section 26. Section 344 (d) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 265, 8 U.S.C., sec. 1455 (d)) is amended by deleting the words "in Alaska and".

Section 27. (a) The third proviso in section 27 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, as amended (46 U.S.C., sec. 883), is further amended by striking out the word "excluding" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "including".

(b) Nothing contained in this or any other Act shall be construed as depriving the Federal Maritime Board of the exclusive jurisdiction heretofore conferred on it over common carriers engaged in transportation by water between any port in the State of Alaska and other ports in the United States, its Territories or possessions, or as conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over transportation by water between any such ports.

Section 28. (a) The last sentence of section 9 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide for the leasing of coal lands in the Territory of Alaska, and for other purposes", approved October 20, 1914 (48 U.S.C. 439), is hereby amended to read as follows: "All net profits from operation of Government mines, and all bonuses, royalties, and rentals under leases as herein provided and all other payments received under this Act shall be distributed as follows as soon as practicable after December 31 and June 30 of each year: (1) 90 per centum thereof shall be paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to the State of Alaska for disposition by the legislature thereof; and (2) 10 per centum shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of miscellaneous receipts."

(b) Section 35 of the Act entitled "An Act to promote the mining of coal, phosphate, oil, oil shale, gas, and sodium on the public domain", approved February 25, 1920, as amended (30 U.S.C. 191), is hereby amended by inserting immediately before the colon preceding the first proviso thereof the following: ", and of those from Alaska 52½ per centum thereof shall be paid to the State of Alaska for disposition by the legislature thereof".

Section 29. If any provision of this Act, or any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase, or individual word, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the Act and of the application of any such provision, section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase, or individual word to other persons and circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

Section 30. All Acts or parts of Acts in conflict with the provisions of this Act, whether passed by the legislature of said Territory or by Congress, are hereby repealed.

Approved July 7, 1958.

ANNEX III

(Extract from Federal Register, Tuesday, January 6, 1959)

Proclamation 3269: Admission of the State of Alaska into the Union

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

Whereas the Congress of the United States by the act approved on July 7, 1958 (72 Stat. 339), accepted, ratified, and confirmed the constitution adopted by a vote of the people of Alaska in an election held on April 24, 1956, and provided for the admission of the State of Alaska into the Union on an equal footing with the other States of the Union upon compliance with certain procedural requirements specified in that act; and

Whereas it appears from information before me that a majority of the legal votes cast at an election held on August 26, 1958, were in favor of each of the propositions required to be submitted to the people of Alaska by section 8 (b) of the act of July 7, 1958; and

Whereas it further appears from information before me that a general election was held on November 25, 1958, and that the returns of the general election were made and certified as provided in the act of July 7, 1958; and

Whereas the Acting Governor of Alaska has certified to me the results of the submission to the people of Alaska of the three propositions set forth in section 8 (b) of the act of July 7, 1958, and the results of the general election; and

Whereas I find and announce that the people of Alaska have duly adopted the propositions required to be submitted to them by the Act of July 7, 1958, and have duly elected the officers required to be elected by that act:

Now, THEREFORE, I, Dwight D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, do hereby declare and proclaim that the procedural requirements imposed by the Congress on the State of Alaska to entitle that State to admission into the Union have been complied with in all respects and that admission of the State of Alaska into the Union on an equal footing with the other States of the Union is now accomplished.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington at one minute past noon on this third day of January in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and fifty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-third.

[SEAL]

Dwight D. Eisenhower

By the President:

Christian A. Herter, Acting Secretary of State.

PREAMBLE

We the people of Alaska, grateful to God and to those who founded our nation and pioneered this great land, in order to secure and transmit to succeeding generations our heritage of political, civil, and religious liberty within the Union of States, do ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Alaska.

ARTICLE I

Declaration of Rights

Section 1. This constitution is dedicated to the principles that all persons have a natural right to life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, and the enjoyment of the rewards of their own industry; that all persons are equal and entitled to equal rights, opportunities, and protection under the law; and that all persons have corresponding obligations to the people and to the State.

Section 2. All political power is inherent in the people. All government originates with the people, is founded upon their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the people as a whole

Section 3. No person is to be denied the enjoyment of any civil or political right because of race, color, creed, or national origin. The legislature shall implement this section.

Section 4. No law shall be made respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

Section 5. Every person may freely speak, write, and publish on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right.

Section 6. The right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government shall never be abridged.

Section 7. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law. The right of all persons to fair and just treatment in the course of legislative and executive investigations shall not be infringed.

Section 8. No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the armed forces in time of war or public danger. Indictment may be waived by the accused. In that case the prosecution shall be by information. The grand jury shall consist of at least twelve citizens, a majority of whom concurring may return an indictment. The power of grand juries to investigate and make recommendations concerning the public welfare or safety shall never be suspended.

Section 9. No person shall be put in jeopardy twice for the same offense. No person shall be compelled in any criminal proceeding to be a witness against himself.

Section 10. Treason against the State consists only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

Section 11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of twelve, except that the legislature may provide for a jury of not more than twelve nor less than six in courts not of record. The accused is entitled to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be released on bail, except for capital offenses when the proof is evident or the presumption great; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

Section 12. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted. Penal administration shall be based on the principle of reformation and upon the need for protecting the public.

Section 13. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or actual or imminent invasion, the public safety requires it.

Section 14. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses and other property, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated. No warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

Section 15. No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed. No law impairing the obligation of contracts, and no law making any irrevocable grant of special privileges or immunities shall be passed. No conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate.

Section 16. In civil cases where the amount in controversy exceeds two hundred fifty dollars, the right of trial by a jury of twelve is preserved to the same extent as it existed at common law. The legislature may make provision for a verdict by not less than three-fourths of the jury and, in courts not of record, may provide for a jury of not less than six or more than twelve.

Section 17. There shall be no imprisonment for debt. This section does not prohibit civil arrest of absconding debtors.

Section 18. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation.

Section 19. A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

Section 20. No member of the armed forces shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner or occupant, or in time of war except as prescribed by law. The military shall be in strict subordination to the civil power.

Section 21. The enumeration of rights in this constitution shall not impair or deny others retained by the people.

ARTICLE II

The Legislature

Section 1. The legislative power of the State is vested in a legislature consisting of a senate with a membership of twenty and a house of representatives with a membership of forty.

Section 2. A member of the legislature shall be a qualified voter who has been a resident of Alaska for at least three years and of the district from which elected for at least one year, immediately preceding his filing for office. A senator shall be at least twenty-five years of age and a representative at least twenty-one years of age.

Section 3. Legislators shall be elected at general elections. Their terms begin on the fourth Monday of the January following election unless otherwise provided by law. The term of representatives shall be two years, and the term of senators, four years. One-half of the senators shall be elected every two years.

Section 4. A vacancy in the legislature shall be filled for the unexpired term as provided by law. If no provision is made, the governor shall fill the vacancy by appointment.

Section 5. No legislator may hold any other office or position of profit under the United States or the State. During the term for which elected and for one year thereafter, no legislator may be nominated, elected, or appointed to any other office or position of profit which has been created, or the salary or emoluments of which have been increased, while he was a member. This section shall not prevent any person from seeking or holding the office of governor, secretary of state, or member of Congress. This section shall not apply to employment by or election to a constitutional convention.

Section 6. Legislators may not be held to answer before any other tribunal for any statement made in the exercise of their legislative duties while the legislature is in session. Members attending, going to, or returning from legislative sessions are not subject to civil process and are privileged from arrest except for felony or breach of the peace.

Section 7. Legislators shall receive annual salaries. They may receive a per diem allowance for expenses while in session and are entitled to travel expenses going to and from sessions. Presiding officers may receive additional compensation.

Section 8. The legislature shall convene each year on the fourth Monday in January, but the month and day may be changed by law.

Section 9. Special sessions may be called by the governor or by vote of two-thirds of the legislators. The vote may be conducted by the legislative council or as prescribed by law. At special sessions called by the governor, legislation shall be limited to subjects designated in his proclamation calling the session or to subjects presented by him. Special sessions are limited to thirty days.

Section 10. Neither house may adjourn or recess for longer than three days unless the other concurs. If the two houses cannot agree on the time of adjournment and either house certifies the disagreement to the governor, he may adjourn the legislature.

Section 11. There shall be a legislative council, and the legislature may establish other interim committees. The council and other interim committees may meet between legislative sessions. They may perform duties and employ personnel as provided by the legislature. Their members may receive an allowance for expenses while performing their duties.

Section 12. The houses of each legislature shall adopt uniform rules of procedure. Each house may choose its officers and employees. Each is the judge of the election and qualifications of its members and may expel a member with the concurrence of two-thirds of its members. Each shall keep a journal of its proceedings. A majority of the membership of each house constitutes a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day and may compel attendance of absent members. The legislature shall regulate lobbying.

Section 13. Every bill shall be confined to one subject unless it is an appropriation bill or one codifying, revising, or rearranging existing laws. Bills for appropriations shall be confined to appropriations. The subject of each bill shall be expressed in the title. The enacting clause shall be: "Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Alaska."

Section 14. The legislature shall establish the procedure for enactment of bills into law. No bill may become law unless it has passed three readings in each house on three separate days, except that any bill may be advanced from second to third reading on the same day by concurrence of three-fourths of the house considering it. No bill may become law without an affirmative vote of a majority of the membership of each house. The yeas and nays on final passage shall be entered in the journal.

Section 15. The governor may veto bills passed by the legislature. He may, by veto, strike or reduce items in appropriation bills. He shall return any vetoed bill, with a statement of his objections, to the house of origin.

Section 16. Upon receipt of a veto message, the legislature shall meet immediately in joint session and reconsider passage of the vetoed bill or item. Bills to raise revenue and appropriation bills or items, although vetoed, become law by affirmative vote of three-fourths of the membership of the legislature. Other vetoed bills become law by affirmative vote of two-thirds of the membership of the legislature. The vote on reconsideration of a vetoed bill shall be entered on the journals of both houses.

Section 17. A bill becomes law if, while the legislature is in session, the governor neither signs nor vetoes it within fifteen days, Sundays excepted, after its delivery to him. If the legislature is not in session and the governor neither signs nor vetoes a bill within twenty days, Sundays excepted, after its delivery to him, the bill becomes law.

Section 18. Laws passed by the legislature become effective ninety days after enactment. The legislature may, by concurrence of two-thirds of the membership of each house, provide for another effective date.

Section 19. The legislature shall pass no local or special act if a general act can be made applicable. Whether a general act can be made applicable shall be subject to judicial determination. Local acts necessitating appropriations by a political subdivision may not become effective unless approved by a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon in the subdivision affected.

Section 20. All civil officers of the State are subject to impeachment by the legislature. Impeachment shall originate in the senate and must be approved by a two-thirds vote of its members. The motion for impeachment shall list fully the basis for the proceeding. Trial on impeachment shall be conducted by the house of representatives. A supreme court justice designated by the court shall preside at the trial. Concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the house is required for a judgment of impeachment. The judgment may not extend beyond removal from office, but shall not prevent proceedings in the courts on the same or related charges.

Section 21. The legislature shall establish procedures for suits against the State.

ARTICLE III

The Executive

Section 1. The executive power of the State is vested in the governor.

Section 2. The governor shall be at least thirty years of age and a qualified voter of the State. He shall have been a resident of Alaska at least seven years immediately preceding his filing for office, and he shall have been a citizen of the United States for at least seven years.

Section 3. The governor shall be chosen by the qualified voters of the State at a general election. The candidate receiving the greatest number of votes shall be governor.

Section 4. The term of office of the governor is four years, beginning at noon on the first Monday in December following his election and ending at noon on the first Monday in December four years later.

Section 5. No person who has been elected governor for two full successive terms shall be again eligible to hold that office until one full term has intervened.

Section 6. The governor shall not hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions.

Section 7. There shall be a secretary of state. He shall have the same qualifications as the governor and serve for the same term. He shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law and as may be delegated to him by the governor. Section 8. The secretary of state shall be nominated in the manner provided by law for nominating candidates for other elective offices. In the general election the votes cast for a candidate for governor shall be considered as cast also for the candidate for secretary of state running jointly with him. The candidate whose name appears on the ballot jointly with that of the successful candidate for governor shall be elected secretary of state.

Section 9. In case of the temporary absence of the governor from office, the secretary of state shall serve as acting governor.

Section 10. If the governor-elect dies, resigns, or is disqualified, the secretary of state elected with him shall succeed to the office of governor for the full term. If the governor-elect fails to assume office for any other reason, the secretary of state elected with him shall serve as acting governor, and shall succeed to the office if the governor-elect does not assume his office within six months of the beginning of the term.

Section 11. In case of a vacancy in the office of governor for any reason, the secretary of state shall succeed to the office for the remainder of the term.

Section 12. Whenever for a period of six months, a governor has been continuously absent from office or has been unable to discharge the duties of his office by reason of mental or physical disability, the office shall be deemed vacant. The procedure for determining absence and disability shall be prescribed by law.

Section 13. Provision shall be made by law for succession to the office of governor and for an acting governor in the event that the secretary of state is unable to succeed to the office or act as governor. No election of a secretary of state shall be held except at the time of electing a governor.

Section 14. When the secretary of state succeeds to the office of governor, he shall have the title, powers, duties, and emoluments of that office.

Section 15. The compensation of the governor and the secretary of state shall be prescribed by law and shall not be diminished during their term of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State.

Section 16. The governor shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. He may, by appropriate court action or proceeding brought in the name of the State, enforce compliance with any constitutional or legislative mandate, or restrain violation of any constitutional or legislative power, duty, or right by any officer, department, or agency of the State or any of its political subdivisions. This authority shall not be construed to authorize any action or proceeding against the legislature.

Section 17. Whenever the governor considers it in the public interest, he may convene the legislature, either house, or the two houses in joint session.

Section 18. The governor shall, at the beginning of each session, and may at other times, give the legislature information concerning the affairs of the State and recommend the measures he considers necessary.

Section 19. The governor is commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the State. He may call out these forces to execute the laws, suppress or prevent insurrection or lawless violence, or repel invasion. The governor, as provided by law, shall appoint all general and flag officers of the armed forces of the State, subject to confirmation by a majority of the members of the legislature in joint session. He shall appoint and commission all other officers.

Section 20. The governor may proclaim martial law when the public safety requires it in case of rebellion or actual or imminent invasion. Martial law shall not continue for longer than twenty days without the approval of a majority of the members of the legislature in joint session.

Section 21. Subject to procedure prescribed by law, the governor may grant pardons, commutations, and reprieves, and may suspend and remit fines and forfeitures. This power shall not extend to impeachment. A parole system shall be provided by law.

Section 22. All executive and administrative offices, departments, and agencies of the state government and their respective functions, powers, and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than twenty principal departments, so as to group them as far as practicable according to major purposes. Regulatory, quasi-judicial, and temporary agencies may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Section 23. The governor may make changes in the organization of the executive branch or in the assignment of functions among its units which he considers necessary for efficient administration. Where these changes require the force of law, they shall be set forth in executive orders. The legislature shall have sixty days of a regular session, or a full session if of shorter duration, to disapprove these executive orders. Unless disapproved by resolution concurred in by a majority of the members in joint session, these orders become effective at a date thereafter to be designated by the governor.

Section 25. The head of each principal department shall be a single executive unless otherwise provided by law. He shall be appointed by the governor, subject to confirmation by a majority of the members of the legislature in joint session, and shall serve at the pleasure of the governor, except as otherwise provided in this article with respect to the secretary of state. The heads of all principal departments shall be citizens of the United States.

Section 26. When a board or commission is at the head of a principal department or a regulatory or quasi-judicial agency, its members shall be appointed by the governor, subject to confirmation by a majority of the members of the legislature in joint session, and may be removed as provided by law. They shall be citizens of the United States. The board or commission may appoint a principal executive officer when authorized by law, but the appointment shall be subject to the approval of the governor.

Section 27. The governor may make appointments to fill vacancies occurring during a recess of the legislature, in offices requiring confirmation by the legislature. The duration of such appointments shall be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE IV The Judiciary

Section 1. The judicial power of the State is vested in a supreme court, a superior court, and the courts established by the legislature. The jurisdiction of courts shall be prescribed by law. The courts shall constitute a unified judicial system for operation and administration. Judicial districts shall be established by law.

Section 2. The supreme court shall be the highest court of the State, with final appelate jurisdiction. It shall consist of three justices, one of whom is chief justice. The number of justices may be increased by law upon the request of the supreme court.

Section 3. The superior court shall be the trial court of general jurisdiction and shall consist of five judges. The number of judges may be changed by law.

Section 4. Supreme court justices and superior court judges shall be citizens of the United States and of the State, licensed to practice law in the State, and possessing any additional qualifications prescribed by law. Judges of other courts shall be selected in a manner, for terms, and with qualifications prescribed by law.

Section 5. The governor shall fill any vacancy in an office of supreme court justice or superior court judge by appointing one of two or more persons nominated by the judicial council.

Section 6. Each supreme court justice and superior court judge shall, in the manner provided by law, be subject to approval or rejection on a non-partisan ballot at the first general election held more than three years after his appointment. Thereafter, each supreme court justice shall be subject to approval or rejection in a like manner every tenth year, and each superior court judge, every sixth year.

Section 7. The office of any supreme court justice or superior court judge becomes vacant ninety days after the election at which he is rejected by a majority of those voting on the question, or for which he fails to file his declaration of candidacy to succeed himself.

Section 8. The judicial council shall consist of seven members. Three attorney members shall be appointed for six-year terms by the governing body of the organized state bar. Three non-attorney members shall be appointed for six-year terms by the governer subject to confirmation by a majority of the members of the legislature in joint session. Vacancies shall be filled for the unexpired term in like manner. Appointments shall be made with due consideration to area representation and without regard to political affiliation. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be ex officio the seventh member and chairman of the judicial council. No member of the judicial council, except the chief justice, may hold any other office or position of profit under the United States or the State. The judicial council shall act by concurrence of four or more members and according to rules which it adopts.

Section 9. The judicial council shall conduct studies for improvement of the administration of justice, and make reports and recommendations to the supreme court and to the legislature at intervals of not more than two years. The judicial council shall perform other duties assigned by law.

Section 10. Whenever the judicial council certifies to the governor that a supreme court justice appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent him from performing his judicial duties, the governor shall appoint a board of three persons to inquire into the circumstances, and may on the board's recommendation retire the justice. Whenever a judge of another court appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent him from performing his judicial duties, the judicial council shall recommend to the supreme court that the judge be placed under early retirement. After notice and hearing, the supreme court by majority vote of its members may retire the judge.

Section 11. Justices and judges shall be retired at the age of seventy except as provided in this article. The basis and amount of retirement pay shall be prescribed by law. Retired judges shall render no further service on the bench except for special assignments as provided by court rule.

Section 12. Impeachment of any justice or judge for malfeasance or misfeasance in the performance of his official duties shall be according to procedure prescribed for civil officers.

Section 13. Justices, judges, and members of the judicial council shall receive compensation as prescribed by law. Compensation of justices and judges shall not be diminished during their terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State.

Section 14. Supreme court justices and superior court judges while holding office may not practice law, hold office in a political party, or hold any other office or position of profit under the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions. Any supreme court justice or superior court judge filing for another elective public office for feits his judicial position.

Section 15. The supreme court shall make and promulgate rules governing the administration of all courts. It shall make and promulgate rules governing practice and procedure in civil and criminal cases in all courts. These rules may be changed by the legislature by two-thirds vote of the members elected to each house.

Section 16. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be the administrative head of all courts. He may assign judges from one court or division thereof to another for temporary service. The chief justice shall, with the approval of the supreme court, appoint an administrative director to serve at his pleasure and to supervise the administrative operations of the judicial system.

Article V Suffrage and Elections

Section 1. Every citizen of the United States who is at least nineteen years of age, who meets registration requirements which may be prescribed by law, and who is qualified to vote under this article, may vote in any state or local election. He shall have been, immediately preceding the election, for one year a resident of Alaska and for thirty days a resident of the election district in which he seeks to vote. He shall be able to read or speak the English language as prescribed by law, unless prevented by physical disability. Additional voting qualifications may be prescribed by law for bond issue elections of political subdivisions.

Section 2. No person may vote who has been convicted of a felony involving moral turpitude unless his civil rights have been restored. No person may vote who has been judicially determined to be of unsound mind unless the disability has been removed.

Section 3. Methods of voting, including absentee voting, shall be prescribed by law. Secrecy of voting shall be preserved. The procedure for determining election contests, with right of appeal to the courts, shall be prescribed by law.

Section 4. The legislature may provide a system of permanent registration of voters, and may establish voting precincts within election districts.

Section 5. General elections shall be held on the second Tuesday in October of every even-numbered year, but the month and day may be changed by law.

ARTICLE VI

Legislative Apportionment

Section 1. Members of the house of representatives shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective election districts. Until reapportionment, election districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each district shall be as set forth in Section 1 of Article XIV.

Section 2. Members of the senate shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective senate districts. Senate districts shall be as set forth in Section 2 of Article XIV, subject to changes authorized in this article.

Section 3. The governor shall reapportion the house of representatives immediately following the official reporting of each decennial census of the United States. Reapportionment shall be based upon civilian population within each election district as reported by the census.

Section 4. Reapportionment shall be by the method of equal proportions, except that each election district having the major fraction of the quotient obtained by dividing total civilian population by forty shall have one representative.

Section 5. Should the total civilian population within any election district fall below one-half of the quotient, the district shall be attached to an election district within its senate district, and the reapportionment for the new district shall be determined as provided in Section 4 of this article.

Section 6. The governor may further redistrict by changing the size and area of election districts, subject to the limitations of this article. Each new district so created shall be formed of contiguous and compact territory containing as nearly as practicable a relatively integrated socio-economic area. Each shall contain a population at least equal to the quotient obtained by dividing the total civilian population by forty. Consideration may be given to local government boundaries. Drainage and other geographic features shall be used in describing boundaries wherever possible.

Section 7. The senate districts, described in Section 2 of Article XIV, may be modified to reflect changes in election districts. A district, although modified, shall retain its total number of senators and its approximate perimeter.

Section 8. The governor shall appoint a reapportionment board to act in an advisory capacity to him. It shall consist of five members, none of whom may be public employees or officials. At least one member each shall be appointed from the Southeastern, Southcentral, Central, and Northwestern Senate Districts. Appointments shall be made without regard to political affiliation. Board members shall be compensated.

Section 9. The board shall elect one of its members chairman and may employ temporary assistants. Concurrence of three members is required for a ruling or determination, but a lesser number may conduct hearings or otherwise act for the board.

Section 10. Within ninety days following the official reporting of each decennial census, the board shall submit to the governor a plan for reapportionment and redistricting as provided in this article. Within ninety days after receipt of the plan, the governor shall issue a proclamation of reapportionment and redistricting. An accompanying statement shall explain any change from the plan of the board. The reapportionment and redistricting shall be effective for the election of members of the legislature until after the official reporting of the next decennial census.

Section 11. Any qualified voter may apply to the superior court to compel the governor, by mandamus or otherwise, to perform his reapportionment duties or to correct any error in redistricting or reapportionment. Application to compel the governor to perform his reapportionment duties must be filed within thirty days of the expiration of either of the two ninety-day periods specified in this article. Application to compel correction of any error in redistricting or reapportionment must be filed within thirty days following the proclamation. Original jurisdiction in these matters is hereby vested in the superior court. On appeal, the cause shall be reviewed by the supreme court upon the law and the facts.

ARTICLE VII

Health, Education and Welfare

Section 1. The legislature shall by general law establish and maintain a system of public schools open to all children of the State, and may provide for other public educational institutions. Schools and institutions so established shall be free from sectarian control. No money shall be paid from public funds for the direct benefit of any religious or other private educational institution.

Section 2. The University of Alaska is hereby established as the state university and constituted a body corporate. It shall have title to all real and personal property now or hereafter set aside for or conveyed to it. Its property shall be administered and disposed of according to law.

Section 3. The University of Alaska shall be governed by a board of regents. The regents shall be appointed by the governor, subject to confirmation by a majority of the members of the legislature in joint session. The board shall, in accordance with law, formulate policy and appoint the president of the university. He shall be the executive officer of the board.

Section 4. The legislature shall provide for the promotion and protection of public health.

Section 5. The legislature shall provide for public welfare.

ARTICLE VIII

Natural Resources

Section 1. It is the policy of the State to encourage the settlement of its land and the development of its resources by making them available for maximum use consistent with the public interest.

Section 2. The legislature shall provide for the utilization, development, and conservation of all natural resources belonging to the State, including land and waters, for the maximum benefit of its people.

Section 3. Wherever occurring in their natural state, fish, wildlife, and waters are reserved to the people for common use.

Section 4. Fish, forests, wildlife, grasslands, and all other replenishable resources belonging to the State shall be utilized, developed, and maintained on the sustained yield principle, subject to preferences among beneficial uses.

Section 5. The legislature may provide for facilities, improvements, and services to assure greater utilization, development, reclamation, and settlement of lands, and to assure fuller utilization and development of the fisheries, wildlife, and waters.

Section 6. Lands and interests therein, including submerged and tidal lands, possessed or acquired by the State, and not used or intended exclusively for governmental purposes, constitute the state public domain. The legislature shall provide for the selection of lands granted to the State by the United States, and for the administration of the state public domain.

Section 7. The legislature may provide for the acquisition of sites, objects, and areas of natural beauty or of historic, cultural, recreational, or scientific value. It may reserve them from the public domain and provide for their administration and preservation for the use, enjoyment, and welfare of the people.

Section 8. The legislature may provide for the leasing of, and the issuance of permits for exploration of, any part of the public domain or interest therein, subject to reasonable concurrent uses. Leases and permits shall provide, among other conditions, for payment by the party at fault for damage or injury arising from noncompliance with terms governing concurrent use, and for forfeiture in the event of breach of conditions.

Section 9. Subject to the provisions of this section, the legislature may provide for the sale or grant of state lands, or interests therein, and establish sales procedures. All sales or grants shall contain such reservations to the State of all resources amay be required by Congress or the State and shall provide for access to these resources. Reservation of access shall not unnecessarily impair the owners' use, prevent the control of trespass, or preclude compensation for damage.

Section 10. No disposals or leases of state lands, or interests therein, shall be made without prior public notice and other safeguards of the public interest as may be prescribed by law.

Section 11. Discovery and appropriation shall be the basis for establishing a right in those minerals reserved to the State which, upon the date of ratification of this constitution by the people of Alaska, were subject to location under the federal mining laws. Prior discovery, location, and filing, as prescribed by law, shall establish a prior right to these minerals and also a prior right to permits, leases, and transferable licenses for their extraction. Continuation of these rights shall depend upon the performance of annual labor, or the payment of fees, rents, or royalties, or upon other requirements as may be prescribed by law. Surface uses of land by a mineral claimant shall be limited to those necessary for the extraction or basic processing of the mineral deposits, or for both. Discovery and appropriation shall initiate a right, subject to further requirements of law, to patent of mineral lands if authorized by the State and not prohibited by Congress. The provisions of this section shall apply to all other minerals reserved to the State which by law are declared subject to appropriation.

Section 12. The legislature shall provide for the issuance, types and terms of leases for coal, oil, gas, oil shale, sodium, phosphate, potash, sulfur, pumice, and other minerals as may be prescribed by law. Leases and permits giving the exclusive right of exploration for these minerals for specific periods and areas, subject to reasonable concurrent exploration as to different classes of minerals, may be authorized by law. Like leases and permits giving the exclusive right of prospecting by geophysical, geochemical, and similar methods for all minerals may also be authorized by law.

Section 13. All surface and subsurface waters reserved to the people for common use, except mineral and medicinal waters, are subject to appropriation. Priority of appropriation shall give prior right. Except for public water supply, an appropriation of water shall be limited to stated purposes and subject to preferences among beneficial uses, concurrent or otherwise, as prescribed by law, and to the general reservation of fish and wildlife.

Section 14. Free access to the navigable or public waters of the State, as defined by the legislature, shall not be denied any citizen of the United States or resident of the State, except that the legislature may by general law regulate and limit such access for other beneficial uses or public purposes.

Section 15. No exclusive right or special privilege of fishery shall be created or authorized in the natural waters of the State.

Section 16. No person shall be involuntarily divested of his right to the use of waters, his interests in lands, or improvements affecting either, except for a superior beneficial use or public purpose and then only with just compensation and by operation of law

Section 17. Laws and regulations governing the use or disposal of natural resources shall apply equally to all persons similarly situated with reference to the subject matter and purpose to be served by the law or regulation.

Section 18. Proceedings in eminent domain may be undertaken for private ways of necessity to permit essential access for extraction or utilization of resources. Just compensation shall be made for property taken or for resultant damages to other property rights.

ARTICLE IX

Finance and Taxation

Section 1. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered. This power shall not be suspended or contracted away, except as provided in this article.

Section 2. The lands and other property belonging to citizens of the United States residing without the State shall never be taxed at a higher rate than the lands and other property belonging to the residents of the State.

Section 3. Standards for appraisal of all property assessed by the State or its political subdivisions shall be prescribed by law.

Section 4. The real and personal property of the State or its political subdivisions shall be exempt from taxation under conditions and exceptions which may be provided by law. All, or any portion of, property used exclusively for non-profit religious, charitable, cemetery, or educational purposes, as defined by law, shall be exempt from taxation. Other exemptions of like or different kind may be granted by general law. All valid existing exemptions shall be retained until otherwise provided by law.

Section 5. Private leaseholds, contracts, or interests in land or property owned or held by the United States, the State, or its political subdivisions, shall be taxable to the extent of the interests.

Section 6. No tax shall be levied, or appropriation of public money made, or public property transferred, nor shall the public credit be used, except for a public purpose.

Section 7. The proceeds of any state tax or license shall not be dedicated to any special purpose, except when required by the federal government for state participation in federal programs. This provision shall not prohibit the continuance of any dedication for special purposes existing upon the date of ratification of this constitution by the people of Alaska.

Section 8. No state debt shall be contracted unless authorized by law for capital improvements and ratified by a majority of the qualified voters of the State who vote on the question. The State may, as provided by law and without ratification, contract debt for the purpose of repelling invasion, suppressing insurrection, defending the State in war, meeting natural disasters, or redeeming indebtedness outstanding at the time this constitution becomes effective.

Section 9. No debt shall be contracted by any political subdivision of the State, unless authorized for capital improvements by its governing body and ratified by a majority vote of those qualified to vote and voting on the question.

Section 10. The State and its political subdivisions may borrow money to meet appropriations for any fiscal year in anticipation of the collection of the revenues for that year, but all debt so contracted shall be paid before the end of the next fiscal year.

Section 11. The restrictions on contracting debt do not apply to debt incurred through the issuance of revenue bonds by a public enterprise or public corporation of the State or a political subdivision, when the only security is the revenues of the enterprise or corporation. The restrictions do not apply to indebtedness to be paid from special assessments on the benefited property, nor do they apply to refunding indebtedness of the State or its political subdivisions.

Section 12. The governor shall submit to the legislature, at a time fixed by law, a budget for the next fiscal year setting forth all proposed expenditures and anticipated income of all departments, offices, and agencies of the State. The governor, at the same time, shall submit a general appropriation bill to authorize the proposed expenditures, and a bill or bills covering recommendations in the budget for new or additional revenues.

Section 13. No money shall be withdrawn from the treasury, except in accordance with appropriations made by law. No obligation for the payment of money shall be incurred except as authorized by law. Unobligated appropriations outstanding at the end of the period of time specified by law shall be void.

Section 14. The legislature shall appoint an auditor to serve at its pleasure. He shall be a certified public accountant. The auditor shall conduct post-audits as prescribed by law and shall report to the legislature and to the governor.

ARTICLE X

Local Government

Section 1. The purpose of this article is to provide for maximum local self-government with a minimum of local government units, and to prevent duplication of tax-levying jurisdictions. A liberal construction shall be given to the powers of local government units.

Section 2. All local government powers shall be vested in boroughs and cities. The State may delegate taxing powers to organized boroughs and cities only.

Section 3. The entire State shall be divided into boroughs, organized or unorganized. They shall be established in a manner and according to standards provided by law. The standards shall include population, geography, economy, transportation, and other factors. Each borough shall embrace an area and population with common interests to the maximum degree possible. The legislature shall classify boroughs and prescribe their powers and functions. Methods by which boroughs may be organized, incorporated, merged, consolidated, reclassified, or dissolved shall be prescribed by law.

Section 4. The governing body of the organized borough shall be the assembly, and its composition shall be established by law or charter. Each city of the first class, and each city of any other class designated by law, shall be represented on the assembly by one or more members of its council. The other members of the assembly shall be elected from and by the qualified voters resident outside such cities.

Section 5. Service areas to provide special services within an organized borough may be established, altered, or abolished by the assembly, subject to the provisions of law or charter. A new service area shall not be established if, consistent with the purposes of this article, the new service can be provided by an existing service area, by incorporation as a city, or by annexation to a city. The assembly may authorize the levying of taxes, charges, or assessments within a service area to finance the special services.

Section 6. The legislature shall provide for the performance of services it deems necessary or advisable in unorganized boroughs, allowing for maximum local participation and responsibility. It may exercise any power or function in an unorganized borough which the assembly may exercise in an organized borough.

Section 7. Cities shall be incorporated in a manner prescribed by law, and shall be a part of the borough in which they are located. Cities shall have the powers and functions conferred by law or charter. They may be merged, consolidated, classified, reclassified, or dissolved in the manner provided by law.

Section 8. The governing body of a city shall be the council.

Section 9. The qualified voters of any borough of the first class or city of the first class may adopt, amend, or repeal a home rule charter in a manner provided by law. In the absence of such legislation, the governing body of a borough or city of the first class shall provide the procedure for the preparation and adoption or rejection of the charter. All charters, or parts or amendments of charters, shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the borough or city, and shall become effective if approved by a majority of those who vote on the specific question.

Section 10. The legislature may extend home rule to other boroughs and cities.

Section 11. A home rule borough or city may exercise all legislative powers not prohibited by law or by charter.

Section 12. A local boundary commission or board shall be established by law in the executive branch of the state government. The commission or board may consider any proposed local government boundary change. It may present proposed changes to the legislature during the first ten days of any regular session. The change shall become effective forty-five days after presentation or at the end of the session, whichever is earlier, unless disapproved by a resolution concurred in by a majority of the members of each house. The commission or board, subject to law, may establish procedures whereby boundaries may be adjusted by local action.

Section 13. Agreements, including those for co-operative or joint administration of any functions or powers, may be made by any local government with any other local government, with the State, or with the United States, unless otherwise provided by law or charter. A city may transfer to the borough in which it is located any of its powers or functions unless prohibited by law or charter, and may in like manner revoke the transfer.

Section 14. An agency shall be established by law in the executive branch of the state government to advise and assist local governments. It shall review their activities, collect and publish local government information, and perform other duties prescribed by law.

Section 15. Special service districts existing at the time a borough is organized shall be integrated with the government of the borough as provided by law.

ARTICLE XI

Initiative, Referendum, and Recall

Section 1. The people may propose and enact laws by the initiative, and approve or reject acts of the legislature by the referendum.

Section 2. An initiative or referendum is proposed by an application containing the bill to be initiated or the act to be referred. The application shall be signed by not less than one hundred qualified voters as sponsors, and shall be filed with the secretary of state. If he finds it in proper form he shall so certify. Denial of certification shall be subject to judicial review.

Section 3. After certification of the application, a petition containing a summary of the subject matter shall be prepared by the secretary of state for circulation by the sponsors. If signed by qualified voters, equal in number to ten per cent of those who voted in the preceding general election and resident in at least two-thirds of the election districts of the State, it may be filed with the secretary of state.

Section 4. An initiative petition may be filed at any time. The secretary of state shall prepare a ballot title and proposition summarizing the proposed law, and shall place them on the ballot for the first statewide election held more than one hundred twenty days after adjournment of the legislative session following the filing. If, before the election, substantially the same measure has been enacted, the petition is void.

Section 5. A referendum petition may be filed only within ninety days after adjournment of the legislative session at which the act was passed. The secretary of state shall prepare a ballot title and proposition summarizing the act and shall place them on the ballot for the first statewide election held more than one hundred eighty days after adjournment of that session.

Section 6. If a majority of the votes cast on the proposition favor its adoption, the initiated measure is enacted. If a majority of the votes cast on the proposition favor the rejection of an act referred, it is rejected. The secretary of state shall certify the election returns. An initiated law becomes effective ninety days after certification, is not subject to veto, and may not be repealed by the legislature within two years of its effective date. It may be amended at any time. An act rejected by referendum is void thirty days after certification. Additional procedures for the initiative and referendum may be prescribed by law.

Section 7. The initiative shall not be used to dedicate revenues, make or repeal appropriations, create courts, define the jurisdiction of courts or prescribe their rules, or enact local or special legislation. The referendum shall not be applied to dedications of revenue, to appropriations, to local or special legislation, or to laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety.

Section 8. All elected public officials in the State, except judicial officers, are subject to recall by the voters of the State or political subdivision from which elected. Procedures and grounds for recall shall be prescribed by the legislature.

ARTICLE XII

General Provisions

Section 1. The State of Alaska shall consist of all the territory, together with the territorial waters appurtenant thereto, included in the Territory of Alaska upon the date of ratification of this constitution by the people of Alaska.

Section 2. The State and its political subdivisions may cooperate with the United States and its territories, and with other states and their political subdivisions on matters of common interest. The respective legislative bodies may make appropriations for this purpose.

Section 3. Service in the armed forces of the United States or of the State is not an office or position of profit as the term is used in this constitution.

Section 4. No person who advocates, or who aids or belongs to any party or organization or association which advocates, the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States or of the State shall be qualified to hold any public office of trust or profit under this constitution.

Section 5. All public officers, before entering upon the duties of their offices, shall take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Alaska, and that I will faithfully discharge my duties as to the best of my ability." The legislature may prescribe further oaths or affirmations.

Section 6. The legislature shall establish a system under which the merit principle will govern the employment of persons by the State.

Section 7. Membership in employee retirement systems of the State or its political subdivisions shall constitute a contractual relationship. Accrued benefits of these systems shall not be diminished or impaired.

Section 8. The enumeration of specified powers in this constitution shall not be construed as limiting the powers of the Section 9. The provisions of this constitution shall be construed to be self-executing whenever possible.

Section 10. Titles and subtitles shall not be used in construing this constitution. Personal pronouns used in this constitution shall be construed as including either sex.

Section 11. As used in this constitution, the terms "by law" and "by the legislature," or variations of these terms, are used interchangeably when related to law-making powers. Unless clearly inapplicable, the law-making powers assigned to the legislature may be exercised by the people through the initiative, subject to the limitations of Article XI.

Section 12. The State of Alaska and its people forever disclaim all right and title in or to any property belonging to the United States, or subject to its disposition, and not granted or confirmed to the State or its political subdivisions, by or under the act admitting Alaska to the Union. The State and its people further disclaim all right or title in or to any property, including fishing rights, the right or title to which may be held by or for any Indian, Eskimo, or Aleut, or community thereof, as that right or title is defined in the act of admission. The State and its people agree that, unless otherwise provided by Congress, the property, as described in this section, shall remain subject to the absolute disposition of the United States. They further agree that no taxes will be imposed upon any such property, until otherwise provided by the Congress. This tax exemption shall not apply to property held by individuals in fee without restrictions on alienation.

Section 13. All provisions of the act admitting Alaska to the Union which reserve rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property, are consented to fully by the State and its people.

ARTICLE XIII

Amendment and Revision

Section 1. Amendments to this constitution may be proposed by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature. The secretary of state shall prepare a ballot title and proposition summarizing each proposed amendment, and shall place them on the ballot for the next statewide election. If a majority of the votes cast on the proposition favor the amendment, it shall be adopted. Unless otherwise provided in the amendment, it becomes effective thirty days after the certification of the election returns by the secretary of state.

Section 2. The legislature may call constitutional conventions at any time.

Section 3. If during any ten-year period a constitutional convention has not been held, the secretary of state shall place on the ballot for the next general election the question: "Shall there be a Constitutional Convention?" If a majority of the votes cast on the question are in the negative, the question need not be placed on the ballot until the end of the next ten-year period. If a majority of the votes cast on the question are in the affirmative, delegates to the convention shall be chosen at the next regular statewide election, unless the legislature provides for the election of the delegates at a special election. The secretary of state shall issue the call for the convention. Unless other provisions have been made by law, the call shall conform as nearly as possible to the act calling the Alaska Constitutional Convention of 1955, including, but not limited to, number of members, districts, election and certification of delegates, and submission and ratification of revisions and ordinances. The appropriation provisions of the call shall be self-executing and shall constitute a first claim on the state treasury.

Section 4. Constitutional conventions shall have plenary power to amend or revise the constitution, subject only to ratification by the people. No call for a constitutional convention shall limit these powers of the convention.

ARTICLE XIV

ARTICLE XV

Schedule of Transitional Measures

To provide an orderly transition from a territorial to a state form of government, it is declared and ordained:

Section. 1. All laws in force in the Territory of Alaska on the effective date of this constitution and consistent therewith shall continue in force until they expire by their own limitation, are amended, or repealed.

Section 2. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, all rights, titles, actions, suits, contracts, and liabilities and all civil, criminal, or administrative proceedings shall continue unaffected by the change from territorial to state government, and the State shall be the legal successor to the Territory in these matters.

Section 3. Cities, school districts, health districts, public utility districts, and other local subdivisions of government existing on the effective date of this constitution shall continue to exercise their powers and functions under existing law, pending enactment of legislation to carry out the provisions of this constitution. New local subdivisions of government shall be created only in accordance with this constitution.

Section 4. All officers of the Territory, or under its laws, on the effective date of this constitution shall continue to perform the duties of their offices in a manner consistent with this constitution until they are superseded by officers of the State.

Section 5. Residence, citizenship, or other qualifications under the Territory may be used toward the fulfillment of corresponding qualifications required by this constitution.

Section 6. When the people of the Territory ratify this constitution and it is approved by the duly constituted authority of the United States, the governor of the Territory shall, within thirty days after receipt of the official notification of such approval, issue a proclamation and take necessary measures to hold primary and general elections for all state elective offices provided for by this constitution.

Section 7. The primary election shall take place not less than forty nor more than ninety days after the proclamation by the governor of the Territory. The general election shall take place not less than ninety days after the primary election. The elections shall be governed by this constitution and by applicable territorial laws.

Section 8. The officers to be elected at the first general election shall include two senators and one representative to serve in the Congress of the United States, unless senators and a representative have been previously elected and seated. One senator shall be elected for the long term and one senator for the short term, each term to expire on the third day of January in an odd-numbered year to be determined by authority of the United States. The term of the representative shall expire on the third day of January in the odd-numbered year immediately following his assuming office. If the first representative is elected in an even-numbered year to take office in that year, a representative shall be elected at the same time to fill the full term commencing on the third day of January of the following year, and the same person may be elected for both terms.

Section 9. The first governor and secretary of state shall hold office for a term beginning with the day on which they assume office and ending at noon on the first Monday in December of the even-numbered year following the next presidential election. This term shall count as a full term for purposes of determining eligibility for reelection only if it is four years or more in duration.

Section 10. At the first state general election, one senator shall be chosen for a two-year term from each of the following senate districts, described in Section 2 of Article XIV: A, B, D, E, G, I, J, L, N, and O. At the same election, one senator shall be chosen for a four-year term from each of the following senate districts, described in Section 2 of Article XIV: A, C, E, F, H, J, K, M, N, and P.

Section 11. The first state legislators shall hold office for a term beginning with the day on which they assume office and ending at noon on the fourth Monday in January after the next general election, except that senators elected for four-year terms shall serve an additional two years thereafter. If the first general election is held in an even-numbered year, it shall be deemed to be the general election for that year.

Section 12. The returns of the first general election shall be made, canvassed, and certified in the manner prescribed by law. The governor of the Territory shall certify the results to the President of the United States.

Section 13. When the President of the United States issues a proclamation announcing the results of the election, and the State has been admitted into the Union, the officers elected and qualified shall assume office.

Section 14. The governor shall call a special session of the first state legislature within thirty days after the presidential proclamation unless a regular session of the legislature falls within that period. The special session shall not be limited as to duration.

Section 15. The provisions of Section 5 of Article II shall not prohibit any member of the first state legislature from holding any office or position created during his first term.

Section 16. The first members of the judicial council shall, notwithstanding Section 8 of Article IV, be appointed for terms as follows: three attorney members for one, three, and five years respectively, and three non-attorney members for two, four, and six years respectively. The six members so appointed shall, in accordance with Section 5 of Article IV, submit to the governor nominations to fill the initial vacancies on the superior court and the supreme court, including the office of chief justice. After the initial vacancies on the superior and supreme courts are filled, the chief justice shall assume his seat on the judicial council.

Section 17. Until the courts provided for in Article IV are organized, the courts, their jurisdiction, and the judicial system shall remain as constituted on the date of admission unless otherwise provided by law. When the state courts are organized, new actions shall be commenced and filed therein, and all causes, other than those under the jurisdiction of the United States, pending in the courts existing on the date of admission, shall be transferred to the proper state court as though commenced, filed, or lodged in those courts in the first instance, except as otherwise provided by law.

Section 18. The debts and liabilities of the Territory of Alaska shall be assumed and paid by the State, and debts owed to the Territory shall be collected by the State. Assets and records of the Territory shall become the property of the State.

Section 19. The first reapportionment of the house of representatives shall be made immediately following the official reporting of the 1960 decennial census, or after the first regular legislative session if the session occurs thereafter, notwithstanding the provision as to time contained in Section 3 of Article VI. All other provisions of Article VI shall apply in the first reapportionment.

Section 20. The capital of the State of Alaska shall be at Juneau.

Section 21. The seal of the Territory, substituting the word "State" for "Territory," shall be the seal of the State.

Section 22. The flag of the Territory shall be the flag of the State.

Section 23. Citizens who legally voted in the general election of November 4, 1924, and who meet the residence requirements for voting, shall be entitled to vote notwithstanding the provisions of Section 1 of Article V.

Section 24. Ordinance No. 1 on ratification of the constitution, Ordinance No. 2 on the Alaska-Tennessee Plan, and Ordinance No. 3 on the abolition of fish traps, adopted by the Alaska Constitutional Convention and appended to this constitution, shall be submitted to the voters and if ratified shall become effective as provided in each ordinance.

Section 25. This constitution shall take effect immediately upon the admission of Alaska into the Union as a state.

Agreed upon by the delegates in Constitutional Convention assembled at the University of Alaska, this fifth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifty-six, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and eightieth.

Wm. A. Egan President of the Convention

Ordinance No. 1

Ratification of Constitution

Section 1. The Constitution for the State of Alaska agreed upon by the delegates to the Alaska Constitutional Convention on February 5, 1956, shall be submitted to the voters of Alaska for ratification or rejection at the territorial primary election to be Feld on April 24, 1956. The election shall be conducted according to existing laws regulating primary elections so far as applicable

Section 2. Each elector who offers to vote upon this constitution shall be given a ballot by the election judges which will be separate from the ballot on which candidates in the primary election are listed. Each of the propositions offered by the Alaska Constitutional Convention shall be set forth separately, but on the same ballot form. The first proposition shall be as follows:

"Shall the Constitution for the State of Alaska prepared and agreed upon by the Alaska Constitutional Convention be adopted?"

No □

Section 3. The returns of this election shall be made to the governor of the Territory of Alaska, and shall be canvassed in substantially the manner provided by law for territorial elections.

Section 4. If a majority of the votes cast on the proposition favor the constitution, then the constitution shall be deemed to be ratified by the people of Alaska to become effective as provided in the constitution.

Section 5. Upon ratification of the constitution, the governor of the Territory shall forthwith transmit a certified copy of the constitution to the President of the United States for submission to the Congress, together with a statement of the votes cast for and against ratification.

Ordinance No. 2 Alaska-Tennessee Plan

Section 1. The election of senators and a representative to serve in the Congress of the United States being necessary and proper to prepare for the admission of Alaska as a state of the Union, the following sections are hereby ordained, pursuant to Chapter 46, SLA 1955:

Section 2. Each elector who offers to vote upon the ratification of the constitution may, upon the same ballot, vote on a second proposition, which shall be as follows:

"Shall Ordinance Number Two (Alaska-Tennessee Plan) of the Alaska Constitutional Convention, calling for the immediate election of two United States Senators and one United States Representative, be adopted?"

Yes 🗌

No □

Section 3. Upon ratification of the constitution by the people of Alaska and separate approval of this ordinance by a majority of all votes cast for and against it, the remainder of this ordinance shall become effective.

Section 4. Two United States senators and one United States representative shall be chosen at the 1956 general election.

Section 5. One senator shall be chosen for the regular term expiring on January 3, 1963, and the other for an initial short term expiring on January 3, 1961, unless when they are seated the Senate prescribes other expiration dates. The representative shall be chosen for the regular term of two years expiring January 3, 1959.

Section 6. Candidates for senators and representative shall have the qualifications prescribed in the Constitution of the United States and shall be qualified voters of Alaska.

Section 7. Until the admission of Alaska as a state, the senators and representative may also hold or be nominated and elected to other offices of the United States or of the Territory of Alaska, provided that no person may receive compensation for more than one office.

Section 8. Except as provided herein, the laws of the Territory governing elections to the office of Delegate to Congress shall, to the extent applicable, govern the election of the senators and representative. Territorial and other officials shall perform their duties with reference to this election accordingly.

Section 9. Persons not representing any political party may become independent candidates for the offices of senator or representative by filing applications in the manner provided in Section 38-5-10, ACLA 1949, in so far as applicable. Applications must be filed in the office of the director of finance of the Territory on or before June 30, 1956.

Section 10. Party nominations for senators and representative shall, for this election only, be made by party conventions in the manner prescribed in Section 38-4-11, ACLA 1949, for filling a vacancy in a party nomination occurring after a primary election. The names of the candidates nominated shall be certified by the chairman and secretary of the central committee of each political party to the director of finance of the Territory on or before June 30, 1956.

Section 11. The director of finance shall certify the names of all candidates for senators and representative to the clerks of court by July 15, 1956. The clerks of court shall cause the names to be printed on the official ballot for the general election. Independent candidates shall be identified as provided in Section 38-5-10, ACLA 1949. Candidates nominated at party conventions shall be identified with appropriate party designations as is provided by law for nominations at primary elections.

Section 12. The ballot form shall group separately the candidates seeking the regular senate term, those seeking the short senate term, and candidates for representative. The candidate for each office receiving the largest number of votes cast for that office shall be elected.

Section 13. The duties and emoluments of the offices of senator and representative shall be as prescribed by law.

Section 14. The president of the Alaska Constitutional Convention, or a person designated by him, may assist in carrying out the purposes of this ordinance. The unexpended and un-obligated funds appropriated to the Alaska Constitutional Convention by Chapter 46, SLA 1955, may be used to defray expenses attributable to the referendum and the election required by this ordinance.

Section 15. If the Congress of the United States seats the senators and representative elected pursuant to this ordinance and approves the constitution before the first election of state officers, then Section 25 of Article XV shall be void and shall be replaced by the following:

"The provisions of the constitution applicable to the first election of state officers shall take effect immediately upon the admission of Alaska into the Union as a state. The remainder of the constitution shall take effect when the elected governor takes office".

ORDINANCE No. 3 Abolition of fish traps

Section 1. Each elector who offers to vote upon the ratification of the constitution may, upon the same ballot, vote on a third proposition, which shall be as follows:

"Shall Ordinance Number Three of the Alaska Constitutional Convention, prohibiting the use of fish traps for the taking of salmon for commercial purposes in the coastal waters of the State, be adopted?"

Section 2. If the constitution shall be adopted by the electors and if a majority of all the votes cast for and against this ordinance favor its adoption, then the following shall become operative upon the effective date of the constitution:

Yes 🗌

No 🗌

"As a matter of immediate public necessity, to relieve economic distress among individual fishermen and those dependent upon them for a livelihood, to conserve the rapidly dwindling supply of salmon in Alaska, to insure fair competition among those engaged in commercial fishing, and to make manifest the will of the people of Alaska, the use of fish traps for the taking of salmon for commercial purposes is hereby prohibited in all the coastal waters of the State."

Scholarships offered to students from Non-Self-Governing Territories under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) 91

Introduction

- 1. In resolution 845 (IX) of 22 November 1954, the General Assembly invited Member States to extend generously to the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories their offers of facilities not only for study and training of university standard but, in the first place, for study at the post-primary level as well as technical and vocational training of immediate practical value. The General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to establish a simple procedure for bringing to the attention of the Administering Members offers and applications made through the United Nations and the specialized agencies and for transmitting the applications to the offering States concerned, together with any observations of the Administering Members. Moreover, the General Assembly invited the Administering Members to give appropriate publicity in Territories under their administration to offers of study and training facilities and to take such other measures as would ensure that the greatest advantage is taken of the offers.
- 2. The present report is submitted in compliance with paragraph 8 of the above resolution, and with resolutions 931 (X) of 8 November 1955, 1154 (XII) of 26 November 1957, and 1331 (XIII) of 12 December 1958. In the operative part of the latter resolution, the General Assembly, inter alia: (1) reaffirmed its resolution 1154
- (XII) of 26 November 1957, and invited the Administering Members to take all necessary measures consistent with the interests and needs of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and their peoples to ensure that scholarships and training facilities offered by Member States may be utilized by inhabitants of those Territories, and to render every assistance to those persons who have applied for, or have been granted scholarships or fellowships, particularly with regard to facilitating their travel formalities; (2) requested the Member States offering scholarships to take into account the necessity of furnishing complete information about the scholarships offered, and, whenever possible, the need to provide travel funds to prospective students; (3) requested the Secretary-General to include, in his future reports, detailed information concerning the actual use of scholarships and training facilities offered by Member States for the education of the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories.
- 3. The present report supplements the information supplied to the General Assembly at its previous sessions³ and gives a review of problems in connexion with the actual use of scholarships offered by Member States under resolution 845 (IX) as well as progress achieved in the implementation of the resolutions subsequently adopted by the General Assembly on the subject.

4. In addition, the report gives, as in previous years, information on offers and awards of scholarships made to students from Non-Self-Governing Territories under national and regional schemes.

I. Offers

- 5. A detailed description of the scholarships offered by eighteen Member States up to 18 November 1958 was presented to the General Assembly at its thirteenth session. Since that date the following offers have been made.
- 6. By a note dated 22 May 1959, the Permanent Representative of Yugoslavia informed the Secretary-General that the Government of the Federal People's Republic of Yugoslavia was offering ten scholarships for university studies to students from Non-Self-Governing Territories under resolution 845 (IX), beginning in October of the school year 1959-1960. It may be recalled in this connexion that the Government of Yugoslavia had offered ten scholarships on 15 July 1955.
- 7. By a note dated 4 March 1959, the Permanent Representative of Italy informed the Secretary-General that the Government of Italy was offering ten scholarships to students from Trust and Non-Self-Governing Territories for the academic year 1959-1960. The scholarships were available for attendance at courses in all Italian universities and institutes of higher education during the academic year and might be renewed when the academic performance of the candidate justified such renewal. The grant would include: (a) a monthly allowance of 60,000 Italian lire (approximately $100) for the duration of the academic year (1 November 1959 to 30 June 1960); (b) reimbursement of travelling expenses from the country of origin to Italy (c) payment of university taxes and fees; (d) assistance in procuring board and lodging; and (e) payment of travelling expenses from Italy to the country of origin. For candidates wishing to take preparatory courses in the Italian language prior to the beginning of the academic year, a special three-month course of Italian for foreigners sponsored by the Universities of Perugia and Florence or by the Dante Alighieri Society of Rome would be available. Candidates would receive an additional three months allowance for the purpose. Applications for these scholarships were to be submitted not later than 15 July
- 8. A consolidated list of the scholarships made available by twenty Member States since the initiation of the scholarships scheme appears in the annex to this report. The list incorporates improvements announced during the year under review in the terms of offers previously made by the Governments of Brazil, Greece and Romania.
- 9. By a letter dated 24 February 1959, the Permanent Mission of Denmark forwarded the following observations received from the Danish Ministry of Foreign Affairs:
 - "The Danish authorities would welcome an increased participation by students from Non-Self-

- Governing Territories in courses and seminars in Denmark financed by a special Danish contribution to E.P.T.A. (Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance), i.e. the contribution to be paid in training facilities. The competent Danish authorities would also welcome proposals to arrange special courses for students from Non-Self-Governing Territories within the framework of the E.P.T.A. programme. However, at this time Denmark is unable to provide special training facilities in addition to those financed by the Danish contributions to E.P.T.A. and the Special Fund".
- 10. The General Assembly, in the course of its consideration of the Secretary-General's previous reports, had been aware of the limitations of the scholarships offered under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX). The principal difficulty remains that the response to the General Assembly's call for offers of facilities has not, by and large, been commensurate with the expectations created in the minds of students in the Non-Self-Governing Territories. Some of the scholarships which have been offered so far do not always provide for such essential items as transportation and living expenses. Some require higher qualifications than could be expected from the great majority of applicants in Non-Self-Governing Territories.
- 11. In addition, there are two problems of a procedural and administrative character which limit the actual use of some of the scholarships to students from Non-Self-Governing Territories. In the first place, since many of the scholarships are offered for a specific academic year with a fixed date for the receipt of applications and for the arrival of successful candidates in the host country, the waiting period involved between the transmission of applications for observations to the Administering Member concerned and the subsequent transmission of applications to the offering States tends to put applicants at some disadvantage. In the second place, there have been instances of difficulties encountered in connexion with travel documents resulting in the failure of successful candidates to make use of scholarships actually awarded them.
- 12. At its three previous sessions the General Assembly had sought to improve this situation. Thus, at its eleventh session the General Assembly adopted resolution 1050 (XI) by which it urged Members of the United Nations to offer increased facilities and to simplify conditions for the granting of scholarships and any other form of assistance to further the educational advancement of the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories, and reiterated its invitation to the Administering Members to permit the greatest possible advantage to be taken of such facilities and assistance. At its twelfth session, in resolution 1154 (XII), the General Assembly requested the Administering Members submitting observations on the qualifications of candidates and Members which offer facilities to consider the applications with all possible speed. Reference has already been made to the operative part of resolution 1331 (XIII) adopted by the General Assembly at its thirteenth session.

II. AWARDS OF SCHOLARSHIPS AND USE MADE OF THE AWARDS

13. By a note dated 11 June 1959, the Secretary-General drew the attention of the offering States to the above-mentioned resolutions of the General Assembly, including resolution 931 (X), and requested information regarding the extent to which use had been made of the scholarships offered by the Governments concerned. The Secretary-General further inquired whether the scholarships as originally offered, including those which remain unused, were still available. The purpose of this inquiry was to enable him to supply prospective applicants with up-to-date information and thus avoid inviting applications for scholarships in cases where the original offer may have been exhausted or the period for which the offer was valid may have expired.

- 14. Replies were received from the following offering States: Burma, Mexico, Poland, Greece, India, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Turkey and Ghana.
- 15. By a note dated 19 June 1959, the Permanent Representative of Mexico informed the Secretary-General that the Government of the Union of Burma had awarded scholarships to Mr. J. H. S. Wanyanga and Mr. A. O. Onyango, both of Kenya, and to Mr. O. O. Osinowo and Mr. Akin Williams, both of Nigeria, to study at the University of Rangoon.
- 16. By a note dated 30 June 1959, the Permanent Representative of Mexico informed the Secretary-General that the conditions which govern the granting of scholarships by the Government of Mexico to students from Trust and Non-Self-Governing Territories remain unchanged. Ten scholarships were offered in 1956.
- 17. The Government of Poland had, in 1956 and 1957, granted scholarships to: Mr. T. A. Seneadze of the former Gold Coast; Mr. M. O. K. Amunikoro and Mr. O. Ayorinde, both of Nigeria; Mr. G. G. Kukada and Mr. W. N. Y. Makwakwa, both of Nyasaland. By a note dated July 1959, the Permanent Mission of Poland informed the Secretary-General that Mr. Seneadze was studying the Polish language, required before entering a Polish university; that Messrs. Amunikoro, Makwakwa⁵ and Ayorinde had not informed the Polish Government of their plans to arrive in Poland; that Mr. Kukada had given up the fellowship. The Mission further stated that at the present time the Polish Government was making efforts to finalize the use of all scholarships awarded during the tenth session of the General Assembly.
- 18. By a note dated 22 July 1959, the Permanent Representative of Greece informed the Secretary-General that the scholarships offered by the Royal Government of Greece under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) to students from Non-Self-Governing Territories had not been utilized up to the present time, owing to the lack of adequate qualifications on the part of candidates. Although the two scholarships offered by the Government of Greece in 1956 were still available, the Greek authorities did not consider it possible, as in the past, to furnish travel funds for candidates as recommended in paragraph 3 of General Assembly resolution 1331 (XIII). They had, however, decided to increase the annual subsidy to the beneficiaries from 14,000 drachmas ($480) to 16,800 drachmas ($560), which represented a considerable improvement in the terms offered to candidates.
- 19. By a note dated 23 July 1959, the Permanent Representative of India transmitted a statement to the Secretary-General showing the number of scholarships offered by the Government of India to, and utilized by, students from Non-Self-Governing Territories during the year 1958-1959. Of seventy-two scholarships offered, fifty-four were utilized. These were awarded to students from Kenya, Uganda, Zanzibar, Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, British West Indies (including British Guiana, Trinidad and Jamaica), Aden, Fiji, Mauritius, Nigeria and Madagascar. The Permanent Representative recalled "that these scholarships were offered by the Government of India under their own National Scheme and not with reference to any resolution adopted by the General Assembly".

- 20. By a note dated 4 August 1959, the Permanent Mission of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics informed the Secretary-General that the Government of the USSR had granted fellowships for study at higher educational institutions of the Soviet Union in the academic year 1958-1959 to: Mr. S. Omor Okullo of Uganda to study at the Moscow Institute of Civil Engineering; Mr. Albert Bwalia Mambwe of Northern Rhodesia to study at the Moscow Institute of Medicine; and Mr. J. Theuri of Kenya to study at the M.V. Lomonosov State University at Moscow. Mr. Okullo had arrived in the USSR and had begun a preparatory Russian language course. As Mr. Mambwe was unable to obtain a passport to travel to the USSR in time for the beginning of the academic year, his fellowship would be made available to him in the academic year 1959-1960. Mr. Theuri did not avail himself of the fellowship awarded to him, as he was continuing his studies in India. The Permanent Mission stated that at the present time all the fellowships offered by the Government of the USSR in response to the General Assembly resolution in the matter had been allocated.
- 21. By a note dated 6 August 1959, the Permanent Mission of the People's Republic of Romania informed the Secretary-General that the Government of Romania had decided to increase the number of scholarships offered to students from Trust and Non-Self-Governing Territories from five to twenty, beginning in 1959. The scholarships would be granted for the faculties of mathematics, petroleum, agronomy, chemistry, medicine and Romanian philology. The students would receive 1,000 lei per month during the entire period of their studies, and at the end of their studies the Romanian Government would defray the cost of their return passage to their countries. As regards the three scholarships for the study of medicine awarded by the Romanian Government in 1958, the Permanent Mission stated that they had not been utilized on account of the refusal of the Administering Members to grant the candidates permits to leave the Territories.
- 22. By a note dated 7 August 1959, the Permanent Mission of Czechoslovakia reviewed twenty scholarships granted to and used by students from Non-Self-Governing Territories up to 30 July 1959. According to this note, three students, one each from Madagascar, Nigeria and British Somaliland, were granted scholarships during the academic year 1957-1958. Seventeen students six from Senegal, two from the Ivory Coast, two from Dahomey, one from Madagascar, five from Nigeria, one from British Somaliland were granted scholarships during the academic year 1958-1959. The sixty-two applications received for the academic year 1959/1960 include two from Dahomey, nine from Gabon, one from Central Congo, fifteen from the Ivory Coast, two from Madagascar, one from Senegal, ten from Nigeria, three from Kenya and four from Nyasaland.
- 23. By a note dated 14 August 1959, the Permanent Mission of Turkey announced new changes introduced by the Turkish Ministry of National Education relating to the terms of the scholarships offered by the Government of Turkey. According to this note, a monthly subsidy of 175 Turkish liras would be granted to each scholarship holder for the duration of the scholarship, plus 50 Turkish liras per year for various expenses. Other expenses, such as clothing and return travel expenses, would be assumed by the beneficiary concerned. (It may be recalled in this connexion that by a note dated 23 August 1957, the Permanent Mission of Turkey had stated that the recipients of scholarships would receive a monthly cash subsidy of 125 Turkish liras for maintenance for the duration of the scholarships; they would be granted 200 Turkish liras a year for clothing, plus 200 liras every two years for an overcoat, and from thirty to 100 liras for books; and the Turkish authorities would pay tuition fees and medical care.)

24. By a note dated 27 August 1959, the Permanent Representative of Ghana informed the Secretary-General that the Government of Ghana had awarded scholarships to Mr. Robert N. O. Onger and Mr. Lucas Bwire, both of Kenya, to study civil engineering and accountancy respectively at the Kumasi College of Technology.

25. At the 202nd meeting of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories, on 14 May 1959, the representative of Brazil announced that the Brazilian Government had decided to defray the travelling expenses of two students from Non-Self-Governing Territories to whom the two scholarships might be awarded. These scholarships had been offered in 1957 under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) and had not so far been used.

26. At the same meeting, the representative of the United States announced the fellowships and training facilities being provided by the United States to students from Non-Self-Governing Territories under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX). The announcement was confirmed by a note, dated 26 May 1959, according to which nineteen fellowships, granted under the Exchange of Persons Program of the International Educational Exchange Service of the Department of State, were taken up during the academic year 1958-1959 and thirty fellowships were expected to be granted during the academic year 1959-1960 to students from the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, Kenya, Uganda, Zanzibar and Nigeria. In addition, travel grants financed under the Fulbright Act had been made in the 1958-1959 school year to fifteen students from Non-Self-Governing Territories who had obtained scholarships from other sources. Twenty-one travel grants were anticipated for the academic year 1959-1960. The International Cooperation Administration of the United States was training inhabitants from Non-Self-Governing Territories in the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and in other parts of the world. In the fiscal year 1959, twenty-four persons from Kenya, Uganda, the Federation of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland, and Nigeria were receiving training in the United States. Such training was usually in institutions of higher learning and, in conjunction with this training, the participants are afforded an opportunity to see the practical application of their academic training in several parts of the country. Under the terms of an agreement between the Government of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the International Cooperation Administration, between 150 and 200 trainees from the Caribbean area were being given technical training of a practical nature in Puerto Rico. This programme, which was designed to strengthen and supplement training facilities in the area, includes trades and industrial education, vocational teacher training in extension practices for community education, home economics, co-operatives, social work, community education, public health and so forth. The trainee grants provided for the payment of all tuition fees, a subsistence allowance of $240 per month per trainee, and an allowance to cover the purchase of books and materials. Transportation to and from the place of training was paid by the local Governments, but the International Cooperation Administration furnished transportation within Puerto Rico. In addition to the training in Puerto Rico, sixty-four trainees from the Caribbean Territories were being trained in the United States in 1959. Specific information concerning the scholarships or grants referred to above can best be obtained from the American diplomatic or consular establishment within whose jurisdiction the Territory lies.

III. PROCEDURE, APPLICATION AND PUBLICITY

27. During the period under review offers of facilities for study and training were handled according to the established procedure. Offers extended within the framework of General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) were communicated to the Administering Members concerned for appropriate publicity in the Territories under their administration and to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for publication in Study Abroad.

28. In a letter dated 31 October 1958, the Permanent Mission of the United Kingdom made the following comments in connexion with the difficulty encountered in giving publicity in the Territories to certain offers:

"A certain amount of difficulty has been encountered by the Colonial Office and territorial Governments in connexion with the United Nations programme of study and training facilities for students from Non-Self-Governing Territories under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) of 22 November 1954. Although in many cases the information which the United Nations Secretariat passes on to us from the donor Governments about the facilities which they offer is most comprehensive, and for this we are most grateful to the Secretariat and to the Governments concerned, in a few recent cases it has been insufficient as a basis for advertising in the Territories the facilities concerned. We have, therefore, been in the habit of seeking this additional information directly from the Government concerned since, as is known, it is our view that particular offers can usually be best pursued by direct Government-to-Government negotiations of this kind.

"The information which we have sought in this way is factual and will be useful to every prospective applicant in every Territory under the United Kingdom administration. I believe that similar information will be also useful to students in other Territories. We have wondered, therefore, whether the Secretariat would feel able to secure from the donor Governments all the necessary information as soon as it receives notification of the offers and then pass it on to us and to the other Administering Members.

"The United Nations Secretariat is naturally aware of the kind of detailed information required, i.e., the year or years for which the offer is open; the precise conditions of the award, including the extent of the incidental expenses which are covered by it; the minimum qualifications required from applicants; the field and duration of the study facilities offered, the nature of the courses offered, and any degrees to which they may lead. In most cases this information is already provided, but, where it is not, it will save a good deal of time in securing applications for the scholarships if it is sought by the Secretariat as soon as offers are communicated."

29. Even so, the scholarships made available under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) have been well publicized from the outset in the great majority of the Territories under United Kingdom administration, and it is evident from the growing number of inquiries and applications that have recently been received from almost all Non-Self-Governing Territories in Africa that information about the scholarship scheme is becoming even more widely diffused. As a result, the steadily increasing number of applications has already outstripped the number of scholarships made available so far. For example, during the period under review 262 applications—247 from Territories under United Kingdom administration; 12 from the Belgian Congo and 3 from Territories under French administration — were received directly by the Secretary-General and were forwarded to the Administering Members concerned for observations. Observations on thirty-nine applications were received from the United Kingdom Government. Of the total applications, 190 were forwarded to the offering States. The remaining 72 applications are being withheld pending the receipt of observations or the lapse of reasonable time.

30. In addition, over 900 inquiries and preliminary applications for scholarships were received from students seeking financial aid and other assistance from the United Nations to enable them to continue their studies overseas. Some apply for scholarships in countries which have not yet extended facilities under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX), or apply for fields of studies which are not provided for by the countries which have offered such facilities. Appropriate advice and suggestions continue to be given by the Secretariat in cases where the existing facilities do not meet the individual applicant's needs and aspirations.

IV. Information concerning scholarships made available to the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories under national and regional arrangements

A. Scholarship holders from Papua studying in Australia

31. As at 30 June 1958, 245 European, 29 mixed race and 50 indigenous children were studying in Australia on scholarships provided by the Administration of the Territory of Papua. An allowance of £145 per year, plus an annual return fare, was paid in respect of non-indigenous children. Provision was also made whereby selected children might receive in addition up to £200 per year, subject to a means test. The Administration's scholarship scheme for indigenous children provided for full cost of education in Australian schools, including board, tuition, fares, clothing, equipment and incidental expenses.⁶

- B. Scholarship holders from Non-Self-Governing Territories under French administration studying in France
- 32. At 1 January 1957, 2,515 scholarship holders, including 432 girls, from Territories under French administration were attending educational institutions in Metropolitan France.⁷

C. Scholarship holders from Territories under the administration of New Zealand

33. Eleven new scholarships were granted to pupils from the Cook Islands to commence their studies during the 1958 school year in New Zealand. These new scholarships brought the total awards made, since the beginning of the government scholarship scheme in 1946, to sixty-seven. Four girls and two boys from the Tokelau Islands were awarded scholarships in 1957 to study in Western Samoa.

D. Scholarship holders and private students studying in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland during the academic year 1958-1959¹⁰

34. Several scholarships and other awards, tenable at universities, colleges and other institutions in the United Kingdom and in other Commonwealth countries, were offered to suitably qualified candidates by the various Governments in the Territories under United Kingdom administration during 1958-1959.¹¹

Introduction

- 1. In response to General Assembly resolution 1153 (XII) of 26 November 1957 the Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly at its thirteenth session a report on the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community. 14 The introduction to the report briefly summarized the opinions voiced by Members on the effects which the European Economic Community (EEC) may have on the economic progress of the Territories. The opinions summarized were those expressed by Members in the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories and in the Fourth Committee as well as during discussions held by the Contracting Parties to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).15 The report further discussed the possible impact of the association on the foreign trade of the associated Non-Self-Governing Territories; development and investment policies; tariff protection; and the possible impact of the European Economic Community on the non-associated Territories.
- 2. The report pointed to the difficulty of a general evaluation of the impact of the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC in view of the terms of reference of the study which, in accordance with resolution 1153 (XII), was limited to the treatment of the effect of the association on the economic development of the Territories. A further difficulty at that stage of the preparation of the study (September 1958) was the lack of information on policies to be pursued and on the measures to be taken in regard to this association.

- 3. The report also concluded that it was impossible at that stage to visualize fully the results of the policies which might be developed within the framework of the provisions contained in the Treaty of Rome (Treaty establishing the European Economic Community) dealing with the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories.16
- 4. The attention of members was also drawn to the concern widely expressed during discussions at GATT to the effect that exports to EEC member countries from Non-Self-Governing Territories not associated with the Community might be adversely affected by the preferential treatment given to similar products originating in the associated Territories.
- 5. These as well as other points relating to the impact of the association were raised and discussed during the thirteenth session of the General Assembly when Members either reaffirmed the views advanced on the subject before¹⁷ or raised certain new points. These views can be briefly summarized as follows:
- 6. The association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC should be considered against the background of the obligations assumed by the Administering Members under Chapter XI of the Charter providing for the economic and social advancement of the peoples in the Territories. The failure to consult the inhabitants of the Territories on the association on the one hand, and, on the other, to provide in the Rome Treaty for possible withdrawal of an associated Territory was in contradiction with the principles of the Charter. The association of the Territories with EEC was likely to increase their specialization in the production of primary products for export to EEC. Such specialization concealed the danger of creating an instrument of neo-colonialism forcing the Territories to confine their production to agricultural products. Such development would render them even more economically dependent on EEC. Any new investment brought into the Territories would probably concentrate on the export production of primary products; these investments bring high returns in relation to capital invested and would therefore have a very limited effect on the level of the per caput income in the Territories.

- 7. The consideration of the latter point led to the adoption of General Assembly resolution 1329 (XIII) inviting the Administering Members to examine the advisability of adopting in the Non-Self-Governing Territories an investment policy which would ensure balanced economic development and the progressive increase of the per caput income of the inhabitants of those Territories.
- 8. Further views expressed by some of the Members implied that over-dependence on the export of primary commodities would subject the economy of the Territories to inevitable and recurrent fluctuations of prices of the commodities on the world market while the rate of industrialization in the Territories might be retarded. An association of under-developed Territories with a group of highly industrialized countries was bound to slow down industrialization in the associated Territories and prevent the establishment of a sound economic basis.
- 9. It was further said that import policies of the Territories should be based on world prices and not on prices established by the metropolitan countries. Members of the Community would be able to fix the prices of raw materials purchased from the associated Territories and impose their own prices for the manufactured goods exported by them to the Territories without any danger of competition from other countries. Another possibility was that new investments might tend to favour the development of a single branch of economy and thus increase the lack of balance of the economy of the Territories.
- 10. The European Economic Community was creating a serious handicap to Non-Self-Governing Territories not associated with EEC owing to the fact that the associated Territories enjoying preferential tariffs would become a serious competition to the non-associated Territories and might cause the latter to lose part or all of the EEC market.
- 11. Other members observed that the association of the Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC did not aim at the perpetuation of obsolete relationships or entail the complete integration of Non-Self-Governing Territories in EEC. The solution adopted in the Treaty of Rome was an intermediate course designed to enable the Territories to benefit from the increased prosperity expected to result from the Common Market. An investment policy ensuring the progressive increase of per caput income was advisable and the establishment of the Development Fund might prove beneficial in this connexion. The principles of the Treaty were in complete accordance with the provisions of the Charter and it was at the request of the representatives of some Territories participating in the drafting of the Treaty that acceptance of the association was urged. The criticism directed against the Treaty was inconsistent in that it implied the creation of too favourable conditions for the associated Territories and at the same time described such association as neo-colonialism.

- 12. In further discussion it was observed that the United Nations was not in possession of sufficient information that would enable it to decide whether the association was in conformity with the interests of the inhabitants of the Territories. It was also noted that since the question of the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC was a development having a significant effect on the development of these Territories towards the objectives of Article 73 of the Charter, it should remain a matter of study by the General Assembly.
- 13. As a seguel to this discussion the General Assembly adopted, in December 1958, resolution 1330 (XIII) inviting again the Administering Members concerned to transmit to the Secretary-General information on the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC and requesting the Secretary-General to prepare for the fourteenth session of the General Assembly a report on new developments connected with the association. In the preparation of such report, the Secretary-General was requested to take into account the information to be submitted by the Administering Members and the studies that may be undertaken by the Economic and Social Council, all the regional economic commissions of the United Nations and other international organs.
- 14. The present report is submitted in compliance with this resolution. Its brevity and limitations are caused by the lack of information on the new developments referred to in the resolution. The international bodies just mentioned do not seem to have reported on any new developments which would be pertinent to the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC. The studies of the Economic Commission for Latin America on the Latin American regional market to which reference was made during the discussion at the thirteenth session of the General Assembly had no direct pertinence to the substance of the present report. It may be assumed that the question of information on developments in Territories under French administration has to be viewed in connexion with the communication transmitted by the French Government to the Secretary-General on the cessation of the transmission of information on most of the French Territories since 1957.18
- 15. The points briefly stated as presenting new developments within the meaning of resolution 1330 (XIII) are based in particular on the note from the Commission of the European Economic Community, communicated by the representative of France,19 and on regulation No. 7 of the Commission of the European Economic Community establishing the methods of operation of the Development Fund for Overseas Countries and Territories.20

Trade within the community

- 16. A first reduction by 10 per cent in custom duties and an increase by 10 per cent in quotas with a minimum global quota of 3 per cent of the national output of each product was put into force on 1 January 1959.
- 17. These measures of trade liberalization within the Community apply to associated Non-Self-Governing Territories. The tariff and quota barriers applying to their imports from EEC member countries other than those with which each of them has special relations, have thus been slightly reduced. A similar treatment applies in principle to the exports of the Territories to the Community. However, in view of the fact that their exports include mainly primary products which are not subject to customs duties in some of the member countries of EEC, it seems unlikely that this first step towards trade liberalization will result in an important increase in their exports to the Common Market area. Moreover the reductions in customs duties made for coffee by the Federal Republic of Germany and France and for cocoa by the former were extended to exports of all member countries of GATT. For these products exports of associated Territories did not benefit at this stage from a preferential treatment. The Federal Republic of Germany also tried to compensate for a loss of revenue due to reduction in customs duty for coffee by an increase in internal taxation.

ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANIZATION

- 18. A Department of Overseas Countries and Territories has been established as part of the Administration of the European Economic Community. This Department is divided into four directorates:
- (a) The Directorate of General Questions deals respectively with the right of establishment, the relations with associated countries and Territories, and with international organizations;
- (b) The Directorate of Research is in charge of investigation of conditions in the Territories and general research;
- (c) The Investment Directorate deals with financial and technical operations;
- (d) The Trade Directorate is concerned with liberalization of trade and economic expansion.
- 19. The Department is particularly responsible for the provision of information to the associated Territories on the objects of the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with EEC and informing the Community on the conditions existing in the Territories. As to the latter, the Directorate of Research will survey the economic and social conditions in each of the associated Territories and study the problems of under-development and the remedies now employed or recommended. This information should ensure that action to be taken by the Community in respect of the Territories would be based on full information.

The development fund for overseas countries and territories

- 20. In accordance with the Implementing Convention to the Treaty establishing the Community, a Development Fund for Overseas Countries and Territories has been established by EEC and has already begun its operations.
- 21. According to official statements, assistance given by the Fund will supplement bilateral aid already given by the metropolitan countries and not replace such aid. The contributions of the member states once paid into the Fund become supranational. The Fund intends to promote the regional aspects of development: its action is, therefore, not entirely restricted by the frontiers separating Territories which maintain special relations with different member States of the Community. The purpose of the Fund is to raise the standards of living of the population in the Territories. The development plans intended to achieve this improvement will not originate outside the Territories. It is further stated that the Fund will grant assistance in whatever sector its action is most likely to be useful for the development efforts of the Territories themselves. It will give preference to financ-

- ing of projects making a direct contribution to the harmonious progress of the indigenous population. The assistance provided by the Fund is not limited to financing equipment. The Fund may devote a greater share of its resources to the development of scientific research, education, technical assistance, etc.
- 22. It is also stated that financial aid will be granted particularly to sectors where it will stimulate other action in favour of development. Thus assistance for the financing of infra-structure should stimulate private investment; assistance for general and technical training should facilitate improvement in the productivity of the population; surveys of natural resources might become the basis for programmes of mining development likely to be financed by loans, etc. As a general rule, the urgency of the needs to be satisfied by the projects concerned should be the criterion for the allocation of assistance by the Fund.
- 23. The statutes of the Fund, defining its rules of procedures and methods of operation, have been established by a regulation of the European Economic Commission.
- 24. Under these rules, the projects for which financing by the Fund is requested are submitted to the Commission of EEC by the authorities responsible for each country or Territory. These authorities provide to the Commission all the information required to enable it to assess the economic position of the country or Territory concerned, its development plans and the place of the project in such plans. The Commission studies the projects and, as a general rule, makes an investigation on the spot to obtain further information and expert advice. The Commission considers the impact which the implementation of the project is likely to have on the economic and social development of the recipient country or Territory, in particular on the standard of living of the local population. It is stated that the decision of the Commission will also be influenced by the urgency of the needs to be satisfied by the project; the importance of the recurrent charges which will result from the implementation of the project and the resources available to cover such charges; the yield expected from the equipment to be supplied, and the prospective markets for the new production to be started; the contribution which the project may provide to the increase of the purchasing power of the population and to the development and mobilization of local savings; the influence which the project may have on other developments already made or contemplated in other associated countries and Territories; and the contribution it may provide to a balanced and rational economic development of the geographical area concerned as a whole.
- 25. Approval of the project for financing by the Commission involves a commitment by the Fund to the country or Territory concerned. This commitment is formalized in a financing convention. The exact amount of the commitment is, however, finalized only after approval of the contracts made for the implementation of the project.
- 26. The Commission of EEC has already approved the provision of financial assistance for four projects of a social character concerning the Belgian Congo. These projects are:
- (a) Construction and provision of equipment for a centre of medicine and surgery in Doruma. This project is intended to improve the sanitary equipment in this area in the North of the Belgian Congo. The amount allocated by the Commission on the 1958 investment budget is the equivalent of $400,000.

- (b) Fight against erosion in the extra-customary centre (centre extra-coutumier) of Luluabourg. Erosion is a serious danger to housing, public buildings, and infra-structure in the indigenous community of N'Desha with a population of 47,500. The Commission has allocated to the project $654,000, out of which $400,000 comes from the 1958 investment budget.
- (c) Infra-structure at the extra-customary centre of Ruashi. The project, for which the sum of $400,000 has been allocated, will enable installation in Ruashi of 18,000 Africans, who are actually living in very poor housing in the suburbs of Elisabethville.
- (d) Infra-structure at the extra-customary centre of Stanleyville for which $600,000 have been allocated. The project is intended to provide the infra-structure for a city containing 8,000 housing units, and to achieve particularly an improvement in water supply.

Note by the Secretary-General transmitting a communication from the Government of the United States of America

The Secretary-General received the following communication dated 17 September 1959 from the Permanent Representative of the United States of America to the United Nations:

"The representative of the United States of America to the United Nations . . . has the honor to refer to resolution 222 (III), adopted by the General Assembly on November 3, 1948. This resolution states that the General Assembly, having regard to the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter, considers that it is essential that the United Nations be informed of any change in the constitutional position and status of any Non-Self-Governing Territory as a result of which the responsible Government concerned thinks it unnecessary to transmit information in respect of that territory under Article 73 e of the Charter. The Members of the United Nations concerned are requested by this resolution to communicate to the Secretary-General. within a maximum period of six months, such information as may be appropriate, including the constitution, legislative act or executive order providing for the government of the territory and the constitutional relationship of the territory to the Government of the metropolitan country.

"Since 1946, the United States has transmitted annually to the Secretary-General information on the Territory of Hawaii pursuant to Article 73 e of the Charter. However, on August 21, 1959 Hawaii became one of the United States under a new constitution taking effect on that date. In the light of this change in the constitutional position and status of Hawaii, the United States Government considers it no longer necessary or appropriate to continue to transmit information on Hawaii under Article 73 e. Consequently, the United States Government has decided that, with the submission of information for the period July 1, 1958 to June 30, 1959, it will cease to transmit information on Hawaii.

"There are enclosed for the information of the Members of the United Nations the following documents in compliance with the terms of resolution 222 (III) of the General Assembly:

- "1. Memorandum by the Government of the United States of America concerning the cessation of transmission of information under Article 73 e of the Charter with regard to Hawaii;
- "2. Public Law 86-3, 86th Congress, S.50, March 18, 1959;
- "3. Admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union, Presidential Proclamation No. 3309, August 21, 1959;
- "4. Text of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii."

The documentation referred to above is, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1051 (XI) of 20 February 1957, communicated to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session and is reproduced in the annexes to the present note.

ANNEX I

Memorandum by the Government of the United States of America concerning the cessation of transmission of information under Article 73 e of the Charter with regard to Hawaii

Introduction

- 1. The United States Government, pursuant to Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations and in accordance with resolution 66 (I) adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 14 December 1946, has transmitted to the Secretary-General annually since 1946 information on several territories, including the Territory of Hawaii.
- 2. For many years the people of Hawaii have enjoyed a high degree of self-government as an Incorporated Territory of the United States. They have been citizens of the United States and have had an elected Territorial Legislature. They have had nonvoting representation in the United States House of Representatives but have not elected their own governor nor had representation in the United States Senate.
- 3. On 18 March 1959, Public Law 86-3 was enacted into law providing for the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union on an equal footing with the other States in all respects. The Constitution, adopted by a vote of the people of Hawaii in the election held on 7 November 1950, was found by the Congress to be republican in form and in conformity with the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence. The President on 21 August 1959 proclaimed Hawaii admitted to the Union as the fiftieth State. With the occurrence of this event, the people of Hawaii have attained a full measure of self-government—the same as that enjoyed by the people of all the other forty-nine States of the United States.
- 4. Resolution 222 (III), adopted by the General Assembly on 3 November 1948, states that, having regard to the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter, it is essential that the United Nations be informed of any change in the constitutional position and status of any Non-Self-Governing Territory as a result of which the responsible Government concerned thinks it unnecessary to transmit information in respect of that territory under Article 73 e of the Charter. The Members of the United Nations concerned are requested by this resolution to communicate to the Secretary-General, within a maximum period of six months, such information as may be appropriate, including the constitution, legislative act or executive order providing for the government of the territory and the constitutional relationship of the territory to the Government of the metropolitan country.
- 5. As a result of the change in the constitutional position and status of Hawaii described in this memorandum, the Government of the United States considers it unnecessary to transmit further information under Article 73 e of the Charter concerning Hawaii. The United States Government desires that the United Nations be fully informed of the background of this decision. Accordingly, and in accordance with the terms of resolution 222 (III), this memorandum has been prepared and, together with a copy of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, Public Law 86-3, and Proclamation No. 3309, is transmitted to the Secretary-General for circulation to the Members of the United Nations for their information.

Constitutional development of Hawaii under United States administration

6. Hawaii has been administered by the United States since 1898. As early as 1900, Congress passed an Organic Act, establishing Hawaii as an incorporated territory in which the Constitution and laws of the United States, which were not locally inapplicable, would have full force and effect. Its inhabitants became citizens of the United States and were given an elected territorial legislature and a non-voting delegate to the Congress of the United States. For years they have exercised their self-government in a manner clearly demonstrating their adherence to the ideals of free government. Their well-developed and prosperous economy has, moreover, permitted them to govern themselves virtually without direct economic assistance from the United States.

Development and adoption of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii

- 7. The first bill providing for statehood for Hawaii was introduced in Congress in 1919. Since then many such bills have been introduced and congressional investigations on the subject have frequently been held. On 7 November 1950, a state constitution, which had been drafted by sixty-three delegates chosen at two special elections early in that year, was ratified by a popular vote of 82,788 to 27,109. While following in general the pattern of the constitutions of other States, it has been acclaimed by the National Municipal League as setting "a new high standard in the writing of a modern State constitution by a convention".
- 8. Early in the current year, the leaders of the 86th Congress of both political parties having pledged their full support to statehood for Hawaii, it became apparent that the obstacles which had previously prevented its entry into the Union had been overcome. Indeed, the statehood bill (S.50) was considered by both Houses of Congress in unusually expeditious fashion and passed with a very large favourable vote. On 11 March, it was approved by the Senate 76 to 15, on 12 March by the House of Representatives 323 to 89. President Eisenhower approved the bill on 18 March, and it became Public Law 86-3, "An Act to provide for the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union".
- 9. On 15 April 1959, the Honorable William Quinn, the last appointed (and first elected) Governor of Hawaii, issued a proclamation calling for a primary election for the purpose of nominating candidates for United States Senator and Representative and for officers of all state elective offices provided for by the Constitution of Hawaii and, concurrently, a special election to adopt or reject three propositions as specified in Public Law 86-3. The same proclamation called a general election for the purpose of electing officers from among the candidates chosen in the primary.
- 10. In the special election held on 27 June 1959, Proposition 1: "Shall Hawaii immediately be admitted into the Union as a State?" was adopted by 132,938 votes to 7,854. Proposition 2: "The boundaries of the State of Hawaii shall be as prescribed in the Act of Congress approved March 18, 1959, and all claims of this State to any areas of land or sea outside the boundaries prescribed are hereby irrevocably relinquished to the United States" was approved by a similar vote, as was Proposition 3: "All provisions of the Act of Congress approved March 18, 1959, reserving rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property therein made to the State of Hawaii are consented to fully by said State and its people." These results were then duly certified by the Governor to the President. In the general election of 28 July 1959, the people of Hawaii chose two United States Senators and one Representative to serve in the Congress of the United States beginning with the 86th Congress, the members of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Legislature of Hawaii, the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor of Hawaii. The results of this election were also certified by the Governor to the President, as provided in the Statehood Act. The final step in the process was reached on 21 August 1959 with the issuance of Proclamation No. 3309 by the President certifying that the procedural requirements imposed by the Congress on the State of Hawaii to entitle it to admission into the Union had been complied with in all respects and that admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union on an equal footing with the other States of the Union had been accomplished.

Principal features of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii

11. The Constitution of the State of Hawaii, as it was accepted, ratified and confirmed by the Congress of the United States in the Statehood Act and became effective with its promulgation by the President, is similar in its principal features to that of other States of the Federal Union. It recognizes that "all political power . . . is inherent in the people" and that "all government is founded on this authority" (Article I, Section 1). It establishes a republican form of government and provides for the division of the powers attributed to the government among executive, legislative and judicial branches. It contains a Bill of Rights, in which certain fundamental freedoms are guaranteed to the people of the State. It provides for the secrecy of the ballot and for universal adult suffrage.

- 12. The Preamble of the Hawaiian Constitution states: "We, the people of the State of Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance, and mindful of our Hawaiian heritage, reaffirm our belief in a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and with an understanding heart toward all the peoples of the earth, do hereby ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Hawaii." The next provision of the Constitution is that "The Constitution of the United States of America is adopted on behalf of the people of the State of Hawaii."
- 13. The Bill of Rights, incorporated into the Constitution as Article I, declares: "All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights. Among these rights are the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the acquiring and possessing of property." It then goes on to guarantee freedom of religion, speech, the press, peaceable assembly and petition for redress of grievances. No person may be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law or denied the enjoyment of his civil rights because of race, religion, sex or ancestry. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures may not be violated. No person shall be put in jeopardy twice for the same offence or compelled in a criminal case to be a witness against himself. Excessive bail may not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused has the right to a speedy and public trial by jury, to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, to be confronted with the witnesses against him, and to have the assistance of counsel. The privilege of writ of habeas corpus may not be suspended unless required by public safety and then only by the legislature or its authority.
- 14. Article II deals with conditions of suffrage and elections. Every United States citizen, twenty years of age or over, resident of Hawaii for at least one year, and able, except for physical disability, to speak, read and write the English or Hawaiian language, is qualified to vote.
- 15. Articles III, IV, and V set forth the organization, functions, powers, methods of selection, etc., of the legislature executive and judiciary, respectively. The Legislature is bicameral, consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, and has legislative power over all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with the Hawaiian or United States Constitution. The members of the upper house are to be popularly elected for four-year terms, those of the lower for two-year terms. The executive power is vested in a popularly elected Governor. In his absence, the Lieutenant-Governor, elected at the same time as the Governor, for the same term and in the same manner, shall act in his stead. Should the office of Governor become vacant, the Lieutenant-Governor would become Governor. The judicial power is vested in a supreme court, circuit courts, and such inferior courts as may be established by the Legislature. The several courts are to have original and appellate jurisdiction as provided by law.
- 16. Article VI deals with the power of taxation and the financing of State expenditures. The following article provides for the organization and powers of the State's political subdivisions.
- 17. In Articles VIII and IX the concern of the Constitution's authors with the social needs of the citizens is reflected. The State is required to provide for the public health and welfare and the establishment of a free non-sectarian public school system and other educational facilities, including a state university, respectively.
- 18. Article X provides for the promotion of the conservation, development and utilization of the State's natural resources.
- 19. Article XII provides specifically for the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining.
- 20. Other articles provide for the State boundaries, capital (Honolulu) and flag, the merit principle in the civil service, the revision and amendment of the Constitution, the apportionment of representative districts, and various transitional and miscellaneous procedures.

Conclusion

21. For the reasons already set forth, the United States Government has decided that, with the entry into force on 21 August 1959 of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, it is no longer necessary or appropriate for the United States to continue to transmit information to the United Nations on Hawaii under Article 73 e of the Charter.

ANNEX II

Public Law 86-3, 86th Congress, S. 50, March 18, 1959

An Act to provide for the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That, subject to the provisions of this Act, and upon issuance of the proclamation required by section 7 (c) of this Act, the State of Hawaii is hereby declared to be a State of the United States of America, is declared admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the other States in all respects whatever, and the constitution formed pursuant to the provisions of the Act of the Territorial Legislature of Hawaii entitled "An Act to provide for a constitutional convention, the adoption of a State constitution, and the forwarding of the same to the Congress of the United States, and appropriating money therefor" approved May 20, 1949 (Act 334, Session Laws of Hawaii, 1949), and adopted by a vote of the people of Hawaii in the election held on November 7, 1950, is hereby found to be republican in form and in conformity with the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence, and is hereby accepted, ratified, and confirmed.

Section 2. The State of Hawaii shall consist of all the islands, together with their appurtenant reefs and territorial waters, included in the Territory of Hawaii on the date of enactment of this Act, except the atoll known as Palmyra Island, together with its appurtenant reefs and territorial waters, but said State shall not be deemed to include the Midway Islands, Johnston Island, Sand Island (offshore from Johnston Island), or Kingman Reef, together with their appurtenant reefs and territorial Section 3. The constitution of the State of Hawaii shall always be republican in form and shall not be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Declaration of Independence.

Section 4. As a compact with the United States relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, shall be adopted as a provision of the Constitution of said State, as provided in section 7, subsection (b) of this Act, subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States, and in no other manner: Provided, That (1) sections 202, 213, 219, 220, 222, 224, and 225 and other provisions relating to administration, and paragraph (2) of section 204, sections 206 and 212, and other provisions relating to the powers and duties of officers other than those charged with the administration of said Act, may be amended in the constitution, or in the manner required for State legislation, but the Hawaiian home-loan fund, the Hawaiian home-operating fund, and the Hawaiian home-development fund shall not be reduced or impaired by any such amendment, whether made in the constitution or in the manner required for State legislation, and the encumbrances authorized to be placed on Hawaiian home lands by officers other than those charged with the administration of said Act, shall not be increased, except with the consent of the United States; (2) that any amendment to increase the benefits to lessees of Hawaiian home lands may be made in the constitution, or in the manner required for State legislation, but the qualifications of lessees shall not be changed except with the consent of the United States; and (3) that all proceeds and income from the "available lands", as defined by said Act, shall be used only in carrying out the provisions of said Act.

Section 5. (a) Except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, the State of Hawaii and its political subdivisions, as the case may be, shall succeed to the title of the Territory of Hawaii and its subdivisions in those lands and other properties in which the Territory and its subdivisions now hold title.

- (b) Except as provided in subsections (c) and (d) of this section, the United States grants to the State of Hawaii, effective upon its admission into the Union, the United States' title to all the public lands and other public property within the boundaries of the State of Hawaii, title to which is held by the United States immediately prior to its admission into the Union. The grant hereby made shall be in lieu of any and all grants provided for new States by provisions of law other than this Act, and such grants shall not extend to the State of Hawaii.
- (c) Any lands and other properties that, on the date Hawaii is admitted into the Union, are set aside pursuant to law for the use of the United States under any (1) Act of Congress, (2) Executive order, (3) proclamation of the President, or (4) proclamation of the Governor of Hawaii shall remain the property of the United States subject only to the limitations, if any, imposed under (1), (2), (3), or (4), as the case may be.
- (d) Any public lands or other public property that is conveyed to the State of Hawaii by subsection (b) of this section but that, immediately prior to the admission of said State into the Union, is controlled by the United States pursuant to permit, license, or permission, written or verbal, from the Territory of Hawaii or any department thereof may, at any time during the five years following the admission of Hawaii into the Union, be set aside by Act of Congress or by Executive order of the President, made pursuant to law, for the use of the United States, and the lands or property so set aside shall, subject only to valid rights then existing, be the property of the United States
- (e) Within five years from the date Hawaii is admitted into the Union, each Federal agency having control over any land or property that is retained by the United States pursuant to subsections (c) and (d) of this section shall report to the President the facts regarding its continued need for such land or property, and if the President determines that the land or property is no longer needed by the United States it shall be conveyed to the State of Hawaii.
- (f) The lands granted to the State of Hawaii by subsection (b) of this section and public lands retained by the United States under subsections (c) and (d) and later conveyed to the State under subsection (e), together with the proceeds from the sale or other disposition of any such lands and the income therefrom, shall be held by said State as a public trust for the support of the public schools and other public educational institutions, for the betterment of the conditions of native Hawaiians, as defined in the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended, for the development of farm and home ownership on as widespread a basis as possible for the making of public improvements, and for the provision of lands for public use. Such lands, proceeds, and income shall be managed and disposed of for one or more of the foregoing purposes in such manner as the constitution and laws of said State may provide, and their use for any other object shall constitute a breach of trust for which suit may be brought by the United States. The schools and other educational institutions supported, in whole or in part, out of such public trust shall forever remain under the exclusive control of said State; and no part of the proceeds or income from the lands granted under this Act shall be used for the support of any sectarian or denominational school, college, or university.
- (g) As used in this Act, the term "lands and other properties" includes public lands and other public property, and the term "public lands and other public property" means, and is limited to, the lands and properties that were ceded to the United States by the Republic of Hawaii under the joint resolution of annexation approved July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. 750), or that have been acquired in exchange for lands or properties so ceded.
- (h) All laws of the United States reserving to the United States the free use or enjoyment of property which vests in or is conveyed to the State of Hawaii or its political subdivisions pursuant to subsection (a), (b), or (e) of this section or reserving the right to alter, amend or repeal laws relating thereto shall cease to be effective upon the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union,

(i) The Submerged Lands Act of 1953 (Public Law 31, Eighty-third Congress, first session; 67 Stat. 29) and the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act of 1953 (Public Law 212, Eighty-third Congress, first session, 67 Stat. 462) shall be applicable to the State of Hawaii, and the said State shall have the same rights as do existing States thereunder.

Section 6. As soon as possible after the enactment of this Act, it shall be the duty of the President of the United States to certify such fact to the Governor of the Territory of Hawaii. Thereupon the Governor of the Territory shall, within thirty days after receipt of the official notification of such approval, issue his proclamation for the elections, as hereinafter provided, for officers of all State elective offices provided for by the constitution of the proposed State of Hawaii, and for two Senators and one Representative in Congress. In the first election of Senators from said State the two senatorial offices shall be separately identified and designated, and no person may be a candidate for both offices. No identification or designation of either of the two senatorial offices, however, shall refer to or be taken to refer to the term of that office, nor shall any such identification or designation in any way impair the privilege of the Senate to determine the class to which each of the Senators elected shall be assigned.

- Section 7. (a) The proclamation of the Governor of Hawaii required by section 6 shall provide for the holding of a primary election and a general election and at such elections the officers required to be elected as provided in section 6 shall be chosen by the people. Such elections shall be held, and the qualifications of voters thereat shall be, as prescribed by the constitution of the proposed State of Hawaii for the election of members of the proposed State legislature. The returns thereof shall be made and certified in such manner as the constitution of the proposed State of Hawaii may prescribe. The Governor of Hawaii shall certify the results of said elections, as so ascertained, to the President of the United States.
- (b) At an election designated by proclamation of the Governor of Hawaii, which may be either the primary or the general election held pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, or a Territorial general election, or a special election, there shall be submitted to the electors qualified to vote in said election, for adoption or rejection, the following propositions:
 - "(1) Shall Hawaii immediately be admitted into the Union as a State?
 - "(2) The boundaries of the State of Hawaii shall be as prescribed in the Act of Congress approved (date of approval of this Act) and all claims of this State to any areas of land or sea outside the boundaries so prescribed are hereby irrevocably relinquished to the United States.
 - "(3) All provisions of the Act of Congress approved (date of approval of this Act) reserving rights or powers to the United States, as well as those prescribing the terms or conditions of the grants of lands or other property therein made to the State of Hawaii are consented to fully by said State and its people."

In the event the foregoing propositions are adopted at said election by a majority of the legal votes cast on said submission, the proposed constitution of the proposed State of Hawaii, ratified by the people at the election held on November 7, 1950, shall be deemed amended as follows: Section 1 of article XIII of said proposed constitution shall be deemed amended so as to contain the language of section 2 of this Act in lieu of any other language; article XI shall be deemed to include the provisions of section 4 of this Act; and section 8 of article XIV shall be deemed amended so as to contain the language of the third proposition above stated in lieu of any other language, and section 10 of article XVI shall be deemed amended by inserting the words "at which officers for all state elective offices provided for by this constitution and two Senators and one Representative in Congress shall be nominated and elected" in lieu of the words "at which officers for all state elective offices provided for by this constitution shall be nominated and elected; but the officers so to be elected shall in any event include two Senators and two Representatives to the Congress, and unless and until otherwise required by law, said Representatives shall be elected at large".

In the event the foregoing propositions are not adopted at said election by a majority of the legal votes cast on said submission, the provisions of this Act shall cease to be effective.

The Governor of Hawaii is hereby authorized and directed to take such action as may be necessary or appropriate to insure the submission of said propositions to the people. The return of the votes cast on said propositions shall be made by the election officers directly to the Secretary of Hawaii, who shall certify the results of the submission to the Governor. The Governor shall certify the results of said submission, as so ascertained, to the President of the United States.

(c) If the President shall find that the propositions set forth in the preceding subsection have been duly adopted by the people of Hawaii, the President, upon certification of the returns of the election of the officers required to be elected as provided in section 6 of this Act, shall thereupon issue his proclamation announcing the results of said election as so ascertained. Upon the issuance of said proclamation by the President, the State of Hawaii shall be deemed admitted into the Union as provided in section 1 of this Act.

Until the said State is so admitted into the Union, the persons holding legislative, executive, and judicial office in, under, or by authority of the government of said Territory, and the Delegate in Congress thereof, shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices. Upon the issuance of said proclamation by the President of the United States and the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union, the officers elected at said election, and qualified under the provisions of the constitution and laws of said State, shall proceed to exercise all the functions pertaining to their offices in, under, or by authority of the government of said State, and officers not required to be elected at said initial election shall be selected or continued in office as provided by the constitution and laws of said State. The Governor of said State shall certify the election of the Senators and Representative in the manner required by law, and the said Senators and Representative shall be entitled to be admitted to seats in Congress and to all the rights and privileges of Senators and Representatives of other States in the Congress of the United States.

Section 8. The State of Hawaii upon its admission into the Union shall be entitled to one Representative until the taking effect of the next reapportionment, and such Representative shall be in addition to the membership of the House of Representatives as now prescribed by law: Provided, That such temporary increase in the membership shall not operate to either increase or decrease the permanent membership of the House of Representatives as prescribed in the Act of August 8, 1911 (37 Stat. 13), nor shall such temporary increase affect the basis of apportionment established by the Act of November 15, 1941 (55 Stat. 761; 2 U.S.C., sec. 2a), for the Eighty-third Congress and each Congress thereafter.

Section 9. Effective upon the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union,

- (a) The United States District Court for the District of Hawaii, established by and existing under title 28 of the United States Code, shall thenceforth be a court of the United States with judicial power derived from article III, section 1, of the Constitution of the United States; Provided, however, That the terms of office of the district judges for the district of Hawaii then in office shall terminate upon the effective date of this section and the President, pursuant to sections 133 and 134 of title 28, United States Code, as amended by this Act, shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, two district judges for the said district who shall hold office during good behavior;
- (b) The last paragraph of section 133 of title 28, United States Code, is repealed; and
- (c) Subsection (a) of section 134 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words "Hawaii and". The second sentence of the same section is amended by striking out the words "Hawaii and", "six and", and "respectively".

Section 10. Effective upon the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union the second paragraph of section 451 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out the words "including the district courts of the United States for the districts of Hawaii and Puerto Rico," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "including the United States District for the District of Puerto Rico,".

Section 11. Effective upon the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union:

- (a) The last paragraph of section 501 of title 28, United States Code, is repealed;
- (b) The first sentence of subsection (a) of section 504 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out at the end thereof the words ", except in the district of Hawaii, where the term shall be six years";
- (c) The first sentence of subsection (c) of section 541 of title 28, United States Code, is amended by striking out at the end thereof the words ", except in the district of Hawaii, where the term shall be six years"; and
- (d) Subsection (d) of section 541 of title 28, United States Code, is repealed.

Section 12. No writ, action, indictment, cause, or proceeding pending in any court of the Territory of Hawaii or in the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii shall abate by reason of the admission of said State into the Union, but the same shall be transferred to and proceeded with in such appropriate State courts as shall be established under the constitution of said State, or shall continue in the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii, as the nature of the case may require. And no writ, action, indictment, cause or proceeding shall abate by reason of any change in the courts, but shall be proceeded with in the State or United States courts according to the laws thereof, respectively. And the appropriate State courts shall be the successors of the courts of the Territory as to all cases arising within the limits embraced within the jurisdiction of such courts, respectively, with full power to proceed with the same, and award mesne or final process therein, and all the files, records, indictments, and proceedings relating to any such writ, action, indictment, cause or proceeding shall be transferred to such appropriate State courts and the same shall be proceeded with therein in due course of law.

All civil causes of action and all criminal offenses which shall have arisen or been committed prior to the admission of said State, but as to which no writ, action, indictment or proceeding shall be pending at the date of such admission, shall be subject to prosecution in the appropriate State courts or in the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii in like manner, to the same extent, and with like right of appellate review, as if said State had been created and said State courts had been established prior to the accrual of such causes of action or the commission of such offenses. The admission of said State shall effect no change in the substantive or criminal law governing such causes of action and criminal offenses which shall have arisen or been committed; and such of said criminal offenses as shall have been committed against the laws of the Territory shall be tried and punished by the appropriate courts of said State, and such as shall have been committed against the laws of the United States shall be tried and punished in the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii.

Section 13. Parties shall have the same rights of appeal from and appellate review of final decisions of the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii or the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii in any case finally decided prior to admission of said State into the Union, whether or not an appeal therefrom shall have been perfected prior to such admission, and the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and the Supreme Court of the United States shall have the same jurisdiction therein, as by law provided prior to admission of said State into the Union, and any mandate issued subsequent to the admission of said State shall be to the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii or a court of the State, as may be appropriate. Parties shall have the same rights of appeal from and appellate review of all orders, judgments, and decrees of the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii and of the Supreme Court of the State of Hawaii as successor to the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii, in any such case pending at the time of admission of said State into the Union, and the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and the Supreme Court of the United States shall have the same jurisdiction therein, as by law provided in any case arising subsequent to the admission of said State into the Union.

Section 14. Effective upon the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union,

- (a) Title 28, United States Code, section 1252, is amended by striking out "Hawaii and" from the clause relating to courts of record;
- (b) Title 28, United States Code, section 1293, is amended by striking out the words "First and Ninth Circuits" and by inserting in lieu thereof "First Circuit", and by striking out the words, "supreme courts of Puerto Rico and Hawaii, respectively" and inserting in lieu thereof "supreme court of Puerto Rico":
- (c) Title 28, United States Code, section 1294, as amended, is further amended by striking out paragraph (4) thereof and by renumbering paragraphs (5) and (6) accordingly;
- (d) The first paragraph of section 373 of title 28, United States Code, as amended, is further amended by striking out the words "United States District Courts for the districts of Hawaii or Puerto Rico," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "United States District Court for the District of Puerto Rico."; and by striking out the words "and any justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii"; Provided, That the amendments made by this subsection shall not affect the rights of any judge or justice who may have retired before the effective date of this subsection: And provided further, That service as a judge of the District Court for the Territory of Hawaii or as judge of the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii or as a justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii or as a judge of the circuit courts of the Territory of Hawaii shall be included in computing under section 371, 372, or 373 of title 28, United States Code, the aggregate years of judicial service of any person who is in office as a district judge for the District of Hawaii on the date of enactment of this Act:
- (e) Section 92 of the Act of April 30, 1900 (ch. 339, 31 Stat. 159), as amended, and the Act of May 29, 1928 (ch. 904, 45 Stat. 997), as amended, are repealed;
- (f) Section 86 of the Act approved April 30, 1900 (ch. 339, 31 Stat. 158), as amended, is repealed;
- (g) Section 3771 of title 18, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by striking out from the first paragraph of such section the words "Supreme Courts of Hawaii and Puerto Rico" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Supreme Court of Puerto Rico";
- (h) Section 3772 of title 18, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by striking out from the first paragraph of such section the words "Supreme Courts of Hawaii and Puerto Rico" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Supreme Court of Puerto Rico";
- (i) Section 91 of title 28, United States Code, as heretofore amended, is further amended by inserting after "Kure Island" and before "Baker Island" the words "Palmyra Island"; and
- (j) The Act of June 15, 1950 (64 Stat. 217; 48 U.S.C., sec. 644a), is amended by inserting after "Kure Island" and before "Baker Island" the words "Palmyra Island,".

Section 15. All Territorial laws in force in the Territory of Hawaii at the time of its admission into the Union shall continue in force in the State of Hawaii, except as modified or changed by this Act or by the constitution of the State, and shall be subject to repeal or amendment by the Legislature of the State of Hawaii, except as provided in section 4 of this Act with respect to the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, as amended; and the laws of the United States shall have the same force and effect within the said State as elsewhere within the United States: Provided, That, except as herein otherwise provided, a Territorial law enacted by the Congress shall be terminated two years after the date of admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union or upon the effective date of any law enacted by the State of Hawaii which amends or repeals it, whichever may occur first. As used in this section, the term "Territorial laws" includes (in addition to laws enacted by the Territorial Legislature of Hawaii) all laws or parts thereof enacted by the Congress, the validity of which is dependent solely upon the authority of the Congress to provide for the government of Hawaii prior to its admission into the Union, and the term "laws of the United States" includes all laws or parts thereof enacted by the Congress that (1) apply to or within Hawaii at the time of its admission into the Union, (2) are not "Territorial laws" as defined in this paragraph, and (3) are not in conflict with any other provision of this Act.

Section 16. (a) Notwithstanding the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union, the United States shall continue to have sole and exclusive jurisdiction over the area which may then or thereafter be included in Hawaii National Park, saving, however, to the State of Hawaii the same rights as are reserved to the Territory of Hawaii by section 1 of the Act of April 19, 1930 (46 Stat. 227), and saving, further, to persons then or thereafter residing within such area the right to vote at all elections held within the political subdivisions where they respectively reside. Upon the admission of said State all references to the Territory of Hawaii in said Act or in other laws relating to Hawaii National Park shall be deemed to refer to the State of Hawaii. Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to affect the ownership and control by the United States of any lands or other property within Hawaii National Park which may now belong to, or which may hereafter be acquired by the United States.

· (b) Notwithstanding the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union, authority is reserved in the United States, subject to the proviso hereinafter set forth, for the exercise by the Congress of the United States of the power of exclusive legislation, as provided by article I, section 8, clause 17, of the Constitution of the United States, in all cases whatsoever over such tracts or parcels of land as, immediately prior to the admission of said State, are controlled or owned by the United States and held for Defense or Coast Guard purposes whether such lands were acquired by cession and transfer to the United States by the Republic of Hawaii and set aside by Act of Congress or by Executive order or proclamation of the President or the Governor of Hawaii for the use of the United States, or were acquired by the United States by purchase, condemnation, donation, exchange, or otherwise: Provided, (i) That the State of Hawaii shall always have the right to serve civil or criminal process within the said tracts or parcels of land in suits or prosecutions for or on account of rights acquired, obligations incurred, or crimes committed within the said State but outside of the said tracts or parcels of land; (ii) that the reservation of authority in the United States for the exercise by the Congress of the United States of the power of exclusive legislation over the lands aforesaid shall not operate to prevent such lands from being a part of the State of Hawaii, or to prevent the said State from exercising over or upon such lands, concurrently with the United States, any jurisdiction whatsoever which it would have in the absence of such reservation of authority and which is consistent with the laws hereafter enacted by the Congress pursuant to such reservation of authority; and (iii) that such power of exclusive legislation shall vest and remain in the United States only so long as the particular tract or parcel of land involved is controlled or owned by the United States and used for Defense or Coast Guard purposes: Provided, however, That the United States shall continue to have sole and exclusive jurisdiction over such military installations as have been heretofore or hereafter determined to be critical areas, as delineated by the President of the United States and/or the Secretary of Defense.

Section 17. The next to last sentence of the first paragraph of section 2 of the Federal Reserve Act (38 Stat. 251), as amended by section 19 of the Act of July 7, 1958 (72 Stat. 339, 350), is amended by inserting after the word "Alaska" the words "or Hawaii."

- Section 18. (a) Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed as depriving the Federal Maritime Board of the exclusive jurisdiction heretofore conferred on it over common carriers engaged in transportation by water between any port in the State of Hawaii and other ports in the United States, or possessions, or as conferring on the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over transportation by water between any such ports.
- (b) Effective on the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union.
- (1) The first sentence of section 506 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C., sec. 1156), is amended by inserting before the words "an island possession or island territory", the words "the State of Hawaii, or";
- (2) Section 605 (a) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C., sec. 1175), is amended by inserting before the words "an island possession or island territory", the words "the State of Hawaii, or"; and
- (3) The second paragraph of section 714 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C., sec. 1204), is amended by inserting before the words "an island possession or island territory" the words "the State of Hawaii or".
- Section 19. Nothing contained in this Act shall operate to confer United States nationality, nor to terminate nationality heretofore lawfully acquired, or restore nationality heretofore lost under any law of the United States or under any treaty to which the United States is or was a party.
- Section 20. (a) Section 101 (a) (36) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, (66 Stat. 170, 8 U.S.C., sec. 1101 (a) (36)) is amended by deleting the word "Hawaii,".
- (b) Section 212 (d) (7) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 188, 8 U.S.C. 1182 (d) (7)) is amended by deleting from the first sentence thereof the word "Hawaii," and by deleting the proviso to said first sentence.
- (c) The first sentence of section 310 (a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended (66 Stat. 239, 8 U.S.C. 1421 (a), 73 Stat. 351) is further amended by deleting the words "for the Territory of Hawaii, and".
- (d) Nothing contained in this Act shall be held to repeal, amend, or modify the provisions of section 305 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (66 Stat. 237), 8 U.S.C. 1405).
- Section 21. Effective upon the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union, section 3, subsection (b), of the Act of September 7, 1957 (71 Stat. 629), is amended by substituting the words "State of Hawaii" for the words "Territory of Hawaii".
- Section 22. If any provision of this Act, or any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase, or individual word, or the application thereof in any circumstance is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of the Act and of the application of any such provision, section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase, or individual word in other circumstances shall not be affected thereby.
- Section 23. All Acts or parts of Acts in conflict with the provisions of this Act, whether passed by the legislature of said Territory or by Congress, are hereby repealed.

Approved March 18, 1959.

ANNEX III

(Extract from Federal Register, Tuesday, August 25, 1959)

Proclamation 3309. Admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

Whereas the Congress of the United States by the act approved on March 18, 1959 (73 Stat. 4), accepted, ratified, and confirmed the constitution adopted by a vote of the people of Hawaii in an election held on November 7, 1950, and provided for the admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union on an equal footing with the other States upon compliance with certain procedural requirements specified in that act; and

Whereas it appears from the information before me that a majority of the legal votes cast at an election on June 27, 1959, were in favor of each of the propositions required to be submitted to the people of Hawaii by section 7 (b) of the act of March 18, 1959; and

Whereas it further appears from information before me that a general election was held on July 28, 1959, and that the returns of the general election were made and certified as provided in the act of March 18, 1959; and

Whereas the Governor of Hawaii has certified to me the results of the submission to the people of Hawaii of the three propositions set forth in section 7 (b) of the act of March 18, 1959, and the results of the general election; and

Whereas I find and announce that the people of Hawaii have duly adopted the propositions required to be submitted to them by the act of March 18, 1959, and have duly elected the officers required to be elected by that act:

Now, THEREFORE, I, Dwight D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, do hereby declare and proclaim that the procedural requirements imposed by the Congress on the State of Hawaii to entitle that State to admission into the Union have been complied with in all respects and that admission of the State of Hawaii into the Union on an equal footing with the other States of the Union is now accomplished.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington at four p.m. E.D.T. on this twenty-first day of August in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and fifty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-fourth.

(Seal)

Dwight D. EISENHOWER

By the President:

Christian A. HERTER, Secretary of State.

ANNEX IV

The Constitution of the State of Hawaii

PREAMBLE

We, the people of the State of Hawaii, grateful for Divine Guidance, and mindful of our Hawaiian heritage, reaffirm our belief in a government of the people, by the people and for the people, and with an understanding heart toward all the peoples of the earth, do hereby ordain and establish this constitution for the State of Hawaii.

FEDERAL CONSTITUTION ADOPTED

The Constitution of the United States of America is adopted on behalf of the people of the State of Hawaii.

ARTICLE I

Bill of rights

Section 1. All political power of this State is inherent in the people; and the responsibility for the exercise thereof rests with the people. All government is founded on this authority.

Section 2. All persons are free by nature and are equal in their inherent and inalienable rights. Among these rights are the enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and the acquiring and possessing of property. These rights cannot endure unless the people recognize their corresponding obligations and responsibilities.

Section 3. No law shall be enacted respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Section 4. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor be denied the equal protection of the laws, nor be denied the enjoyment of his civil rights or be discriminated against in the exercise thereof because of race, religion, sex or ancestry.

Section 5. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

Section 6. No citizen shall be disfranchised, or deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to other citizens, unless by the law of the land.

Section 7. No citizen shall be denied enlistment in any military organization of this State nor be segregated therein because of race, religious principles or ancestry.

Section 8. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the armed forces when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy; nor shall any person be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.

Section 9. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishments inflicted.

Section 10. In suits at common law where the value in controversy shall exceed one hundred dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved. The legislature may provide for a verdict by not less than three-fourths of the members of the jury.

Section 11. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, or of such other district to which the prosecution may be removed with the consent of the accused; to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

Section 12. No person shall be disqualified to serve as a juror because of sex.

Section 13. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

The power of suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and the laws or the execution thereof, shall never be exercised except by the legislature, or by authority derived from it to be exercised in such particular cases only as the legislature shall expressly prescribe.

Section 14. The military shall be held in strict subordination to the civil power.

Section 15. A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

Section 16. No soldier or member of the militia shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner or occupant, nor in time of war, except in a manner prescribed by law.

Section 17. There shall be no imprisonment for debt.

Section 18. Private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation.

Section 19. The power of the State to act in the general welfare shall never be impaired by the making of any irrevocable grant of special privileges or immunities.

Section 20. The enumeration of rights and privileges shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

Suffrage and elections

Section 1. Every citizen of the United States, who shall have attained the age of twenty years, have been a resident of this State not less than one year next preceding the election and be a voter registered in accordance with law, shall be qualified to vote in any state or local election. No person shall be qualified to vote unless he is also able, except for physical disability, to speak, read and write the English or Hawaiian language.

Section 2. No person who is non compos mentis and no person convicted of felony, unless pardoned and restored to his civil rights, shall be qualified to vote.

Section 3. No person shall be deemed to have gained or lost residence simply because of his presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States, or while engaged in navigation or while a student at any institution of learning.

Section 4. The legislature shall provide for the registration of voters and for absentee voting; and shall prescribe the method of voting at all elections. Secrecy of voting shall be preserved.

Section 5. General elections shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in all even-numbered years. Special elections may be held in accordance with law. Contested elections shall be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction in such manner as shall be provided by law.

ARTICLE III

The Legislature

Section 1. The legislative power of the State shall be vested in a legislature, which shall consist of two houses, a senate and a house of representatives. Such power shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation not inconsistent with this constitution or the Constitution of the United States.

Section 2. The senate shall be composed of twenty-five members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective senatorial districts. The districts, and the number of senators to be elected from each, shall be as follows:

First senatorial district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as Puna, Hilo and Hamakua, five;

Second senatorial district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as Kau, Kona and Kohala, two;

Third senatorial district: the islands of Maui, Molokai, Lanai and Kahoolawe, five;

Fourth senatorial district: that portion of the island of Oahu lying east and south of Nuuanu Street and Pali Road and the upper ridge of the Koolau Range from the Nuuanu Pali to Makapuu Point and all other islands not specifically enumerated, five:

Fifth senatorial district: that portion of the island of Oahu lying west and north of the fourth senatorial district, five; and Sixth senatorial district: the islands of Kauai and Niihau, three.

Section 3. The house of representatives shall be composed of fifty-one members, who shall be elected by the qualified voters of the respective representative districts. Until the next reapportionment, the representative districts and the number of representatives to be elected from each shall be as set forth in the Schedule.

Section 4. On or before June 1 of the year 1959, and of each tenth year thereafter, the governor shall reapportion the members of the house of representatives in the following manner: The total number of representatives shall first be reapportioned among four basic areas, namely, (1) the island of Hawaii, (2) the islands of Maui, Molokai, Lanai and Kahoolawe, (3) the island of Oahu and all other islands not specifically enumerated, and (4) the islands of Kauai and Niihau, on the basis of the number of voters registered at the last preceding general election in each of such basic areas and computed by the method known as the method of equal proportions, no basic area to receive less than one member. Upon the determination of the total number of representatives to which each basic area is entitled, such total shall be reapportioned among the one or more representative districts within each basic area on the basis of the number of voters registered at the last preceding general election within each of such representative districts and computed by the method known as the method of equal proportions, no representative district to receive less than one member. Upon any reapportionment, should the total number of voters registered in any representative district be less than one-half of the quotient obtained by dividing the total number of voters registered in the State by the total number of members to which the house is entitled, then, as part of such reapportionment, the basic area within which such representative district lies shall be redistricted by the governor in such manner that the total number of voters registered in each new representative district therein shall be more than one-half of such quotient.

The governor shall thereupon issue a proclamation showing the results of such reapportionment, and such reapportionment shall be effective for the election of members to such house for the next five succeeding legislatures.

Original jurisdiction is hereby vested in the supreme court of the State, to be exercised on the application of any registered voter, made within thirty days following the date specified above, to compel, by mandamus or otherwise, the governor to perform the above duty; and made within thirty days following the date of such proclamation, to compel, by mandamus or otherwise, the correction of any error made in such reapportionment.

Section 5. The members of the legislature shall be elected at general elections. The term of office of members of the house of representatives shall be two years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the next general election, and the term of office of members of the senate shall be four years beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election after their election.

Section 6. Any vacancy in the legislature shall be filled for the unexpired term in such manner as may be prescribed by law, or, if no provision be made by law, by appointment by the governor for the unexpired term.

Section 7. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the senate unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years, have been a resident of the State for not less than three years and be a qualified voter of the senatorial district from which he seeks to be elected. No person shall be eligible to serve as a member of the house of representatives unless he shall have attained the age of twenty-five years, have been a resident of the State for not less than three years and be a qualified voter of the representative district from which he seeks to be elected.

Section 8. No member of the legislature shall be held to answer before any other tribunal for any statement made or action taken in the exercise of his legislative functions; and members of the legislature shall, in all cases except felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same.

Section 9. No member of the legislature shall hold any other public office under the State, nor shall he, during the term for which he is elected or appointed, be elected or appointed to any public office or employment which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, by legislative act during such term. The term "public office", for the purposes of this section, shall not include notaries public, reserve police officers or officers of emergency organizations for civilian defense or disaster relief. The legislature may prescribe further disqualifications.

Section 10. The members of the legislature shall receive such salary and allowances as may be prescribed by law, but any increase or decrease in the amount thereof shall not apply to the legislature which enacted the same. No salary shall be payable when the senate alone is convened in special session, or when the legislature convenes in special session pursuant to Section 17 of this article.

Section 11. Regular sessions of the legislature shall be held annually. The governor may convene the legislature, or the senate alone, in special session. All sessions shall be held at the capital of the State. In case the capital shall be unsafe, the governor may direct that any session shall be held at some other place. Regular sessions in odd numbered years shall be known as "general sessions" and regular sessions in even numbered years shall be known as "budget sessions".

At budget sessions the legislature shall be limited to the consideration and enactment of the general appropriations bill for the succeeding fiscal year and bills to authorize proposed capital expenditures, revenue bills necessary therefor, urgency measures deemed necessary in the public interest, bills calling elections, proposed constitutional amendments and bills to provide for the expenses of such session and the special session to be convened thereafter in accordance with the provisions of Section 17 of this article. The legislature may also consider and act upon matters relating to the impeachment or removal of officers. No urgency measure shall be considered unless a statement of facts constituting such urgency shall be set forth in one section thereof and until such section shall have been first approved by each house. The approval of such section and the final passage of such measure in each house shall require a two-thirds vote of all the members to which such house is entitled, taken by ayes and noes and entered upon its journal.

Regular sessions shall commence at 10:00 o'clock a.m., on the third Wednesday in February. General sessions shall be limited to a period of sixty days and budget sessions and special sessions to a period of thirty days, but the governor may extend any session for not more than thirty days. Sundays and holidays shall be excluded in computing the number of days of any session.

Section 12. Neither house shall adjourn during any session of the legislature for more than three days, or sine die, without the consent of the other.

Section 13. Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members and shall have, for misconduct, disorderly behavior or neglect of duty of any member, power to punish such member by censure or, upon a two-thirds vote of all the members to which such house is entitled, by suspension or expulsion of such member. Each house shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and keep a journal. The ayes and noes of the members on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of the members present, be entered upon the journal.

Twenty days after a bill has been referred to a committee in either house, the same may be recalled from such committee by the affirmative vote of one-third of the members to which such house is entitled.

Section 14. A majority of the number of members to which each house is entitled shall constitute a quorum of such house for the conduct of ordinary business, of which quorum a majority vote shall suffice; but the final passage of a bill in each house shall require the vote of a majority of all the members to which such house is entitled, taken by ayes and noes and entered upon its journal. A smaller number than a quorum may adjourn from day to day and may compel the attendance of absent members in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

Section 15. No law shall be passed except by bill. Each law shall embrace but one subject, which shall be expressed in its title. The enacting clause of each law shall be, "Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Hawaii."

Section 16. No bill shall become law unless it shall pass three readings in each house, on separate days. Every bill when passed by the house in which it originated, or in which amendments thereto shall have originated, shall immediately be certified by the presiding officer and clerk and sent to the other house for consideration.

Section 17. Every bill which shall have passed the legislature shall be certified by the presiding officers and clerks of both houses and shall thereupon be presented to the governor. If he approves it, he shall sign it and it shall become law. If the governor does not approve such bill, he may return it, with his objections to the legislature. He may veto any specific item or items in any bill which appropriates money for specific purposes by striking out or reducing the same; but he shall veto other bills, if at all, only as a whole.

The governor shall have ten days to consider bills presented to him ten or more days before the adjournment of the legislature sine die, and if any such bill is neither signed nor returned by the governor within that time, it shall become law in like manner as if he had signed it.

The governor shall have forty-five days, after the adjournment of the legislature sine die, to consider bills presented to him less than ten days before such adjournment, or presented after adjournment, and any such bill shall become law on the forty-fifth day unless the governor by proclamation shall have given ten days' notice to the legislature that he plans to return such bill with his objections on that day. The legislature may convene at or before noon on the forty-fifth day in special session, without call, for the sole purpose of acting upon any such bill returned by the governor. In case the legislature shall fail to so convene, such bill shall not become law. Any such bill may be amended to meet the governor's objections and, if so amended and passed, only one reading being required in each house for such passage, it shall be presented again to the governor, but shall become law only if he shall sign it within ten days after presentation.

Section 18. Upon receipt of a veto message from the governor, each house shall enter the same at large upon its journal and proceed to reconsider the vetoed bill, or the item or items vetoed, and again vote upon such bill, or such item or items, by ayes and noes, which shall be entered upon its journal. If after such reconsideration such bill, or such item or items, shall be approved by a two-thirds vote of all members to which each house is entitled, the same shall become law.

Section 19. Each house may punish by fine, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, any person not a member of either house who shall be guilty of disrespect of such house by any disorderly or contemptuous behavior in its presence or that of any committee thereof; or who shall, on account of the exercise of any legislative function, threaten harm to the body or estate of any of the members of such house; or who shall assault, arrest or detain any witness or other person ordered to attend such house, on his way going to or returning therefrom; or who shall rescue any person arrested by order of such house.

Any person charged with such an offense shall be informed in writing of the charge made against him, and have an opportunity to present evidence and be heard in his own defense.

Section 20. The governor and lieutenant-governor, and any appointive officer for whose removal the consent of the senate is required, may be removed from office upon conviction of impeachment for such causes as may be provided by law.

The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment of the governor and licutenant-governor and the senate the sole power to try such impeachments, and no such officer shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members of the senate. When sitting for that purpose, the members of the senate shall be on oath or affirmation and the chief justice shall preside. Subject to the provisions of this paragraph, the legislature may provide for the manner and procedure of removal by impeachment of such officers.

The legislature shall by law provide for the manner and procedure of removal by impeachment of the appointive officers.

Judgments in cases of impeachment shall not extend beyond removal from office and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the State; but the person convicted may nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law.

ARTICLE IV

The Executive

Section 1. The executive power of the State shall be vested in a governor.

The governor shall be elected by the qualified voters of this State at a general election. The person receiving the highest number of votes shall be the governor. In case of a tie vote, the selection of the governor shall be determined in accordance with law

The term of office of the governor shall begin at noon on the first Monday in December next following his election and end at noon on the first Monday in December, four years thereafter.

No person shall be eligible to the office of governor unless he shall be a qualified voter, have attained the age of thirty-five years and have been a citizen of the United States for twenty years and a resident of this State for five years next preceding his election.

The governor shall not hold any other office or employment of profit under the State or the United States during his term of office.

Section 2. There shall be a lieutenant-governor, who shall have the same qualifications as the governor. He shall be elected at the same time, for the same term, and in the same manner, as the governor. He shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law.

Section 3. The compensation of the governor and of the lieutenant-governor shall be prescribed by law, but shall not be less than eighteen thousand dollars, and twelve thousand dollars, respectively, per annum. Such compensation shall not be increased or diminished for their respective terms, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. When the lieutenant-governor succeeds to the office of governor, he shall receive the compensation for that office.

Section 4. When the office of governor is vacant, the lieutenant-governor shall become governor. In the event of the absence of the governor from the State, or his inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of his office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon the lieutenant-governor during such absence or disability.

When the office of lieutenant-governor is vacant, or in the event of the absence of the lieutenant-governor from the State, or his inability to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of his office, such powers and duties shall devolve upon such officers in such order of succession as may be provided by law.

Section 5. The governor shall be responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. He shall be commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the State and may call out such forces to execute the laws, suppress or prevent insurrection or lawless violence or repel invasion. He shall, at the beginning of each session, and may, at other times, give to the legislature information concerning the affairs of the State and recommend to its consideration such measures as he shall deem expedient.

The governor may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses, subject to regulation by law as to the manner of applying the same. The legislature may, by general law, authorize the governor to grant pardons before conviction, to grant pardons for impeachment and to restore civil rights denied by reason of conviction of offenses by tribunals other than those of this State.

Section 6. All executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and their respective functions, powers and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than twenty principal departments in such manner as to group the same according to major purposes so far as practicable. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor and, unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law, shall be headed by a single executive. Such single executive shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor and he shall hold office for a term to expire at the end of the term for which the governor was elected. The governor may, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, remove such single executive.

Whenever a board, commission or other body shall be the head of a principal department of the state government, the members thereof shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. The term of office and removal of such members shall be as prescribed by law. Such board, commission or other body may appoint a principal executive officer, who, when authorized by law, may be ex officio a voting member thereof, and who may be removed by a majority vote of the members appointed by the governor.

The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint all officers for whose election or appointment provision is not otherwise made by this constitution or by law. The legislature may provide for the suspension or removal for cause, by the governor, of any officer for whose removal the consent of the senate is required by this constitution.

When the senate is not in session and a vacancy occurs in any office, appointment to which requires the confirmation of the senate, the governor may fill the office by granting a commission which shall, unless such appointment is confirmed, expire at the end of the next session of the senate; but the person so appointed shall not be eligible for another interim appointment to such office if the appointment shall have failed of confirmation by the senate.

No person who has been nominated for appointment to any office and whose appointment has not received the consent of the senate shall be eligible to an interim appointment thereafter to such office.

All officers appointed under the provisions of this section shall be citizens of this State and shall have been residents of the State for at least three years next preceding their appointment.

ARTICLE V

The Judiciary

Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in one supreme court, circuit courts, and in such inferior courts as the legislature may from time to time establish. The several courts shall have original and appellate jurisdiction as provided by law.

Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and four associate justices. When necessary, the chief justice shall assign a judge or judges of a circuit court to serve temporarily on the supreme court. In case of a vacancy in the office of chief justice, or if he is ill, absent or otherwise unable to serve, an associate justice designated in accordance with the rules of the supreme court shall serve temporarily in his stead.

Section 3. The governor shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the circuit courts. No nomination shall be sent to the senate, and no interim appointment shall be made when the senate is not in session, until after ten days' public notice by the governor.

No justice or judge shall hold any other office or position of profit under the State or the United States. No person shall be eligible to such office who shall not have been admitted to practice law before the supreme court of this State for at least ten years. Any justice or judge who shall become a candidate for an elective office shall thereby forfeit his office.

The term of office of a justice of the supreme court shall be seven years and that of a judge of a circuit court shall be six years. They shall receive for their services such compensation as may be prescribed by law, which shall not be diminished during their respective terms of office, unless by general law applying to all salaried officers of the State. They shall be retired upon attaining the age of seventy years. They shall be included in any retirement law of the State. They shall be subject to removal from office upon the concurrence of two-thirds of the membership of each house of the legislature, sitting in joint session, for such causes and in such manner as may be provided by law.

Section 4. Whenever a commission or agency, authorized by law for such purpose, shall certify to the governor that any justice of the supreme court or judge of a circuit court appears to be so incapacitated as substantially to prevent him from performing his judicial duties, the governor shall appoint a board of three persons to inquire into the circumstances and on their recommendation the governor may retire the justice or judge from office.

Section 5. The chief justice of the supreme court shall be the administrative head of the courts. He may assign judges from one circuit court to another for temporary service. With the approval of the supreme court he shall appoint an administrative director to serve at his pleasure.

Section 6. The supreme court shall have power to promulgate rules and regulations in all civil and criminal cases for all courts relating to process, practice, procedure and appeals, which shall have the force and effect of law.

ARTICLE VI

Taxation and finance

Section 1. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away.

Section 2. The land and other property belonging to citizens of the United States residing without the State shall never be taxed at a higher rate than the lands and other property belonging to residents thereof.

Section 3. All bonds and other instruments of indebtedness issued by or on behalf of the State or a political subdivision thereof must be authorized by the legislature, and bonds and other instruments of indebtedness of a political subdivision must also be authorized by its governing body.

Sixty million dollars is established as the limit of the funded debt of the State at any time outstanding and unpaid. Bonds and other instruments of indebtedness in excess of such limit may be issued when authorized by a two-thirds vote of all the members to which each house of the legislature is entitled, provided such excess debt, at the time of authorization, would not cause the total of state indebtedness to exceed a sum equal to fifteen percent of the total of assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in the State, as determined by the last tax assessment rolls pursuant to law.

Instruments of indebtedness to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, which shall be payable within one year, and bonds or other instruments of indebtedness to suppress insurrection, to repel invasion, to defend the State in war or to meet emergencies caused by disaster or act of God, may be issued by the State under legislative authorization without regard to any debt limit.

A sum equal to ten percent of the total of the assessed values for tax rate purposes of real property in any political subdivision, as determined by the last tax assessment rolls pursuant to law, is established as the limit of the funded debt of such political subdivision at any time outstanding and unpaid. The aggregate, however, of such debts contracted by any political subdivision during a fiscal year shall not exceed two percent of the total of such assessed values in such political subdivision.

Instruments of indebtedness to meet appropriations for any fiscal period in anticipation of the collection of revenues for such period or to meet casual deficits or failures of revenue, which shall be payable within one year, may be issued by any political subdivision under authorization of law and and of its governing body, without regard to the limits of debt hereinabove provided.

All bonds or other instruments of indebtedness for a term exceeding one year shall be in serial form maturing in substantially equal annual installments, the first installment to mature not later than five years from the date of the issue of such series, and the last installment not later than thirty-five years from the date of such issue. Interest and principal payments shall be a first charge on the general revenues of the State or political subdivision, as the case may be.

The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to indebtedness incurred under revenue bond statutes by a public enterprise of the State or political subdivision, or by a public corporation, when the only security for such indebtedness is the revenues of such enterprise or public corporation, or to indebtedness incurred under special improvement statutes, when the only security for such indebtedness is the properties benefited or improved or the assessments thereon.

Section 4. Within such time prior to the opening of each regular session as may be prescribed by law, the governor shall submit to the legislature a budget setting forth a complete plan of proposed general fund expenditures and anticipated receipts of the State for the ensuing fiscal period, together with such other information as the legislature may require. The budget shall be compiled in two parts, one setting forth all proposed operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal period and the other all capital improvements expenditures proposed to be undertaken during such period. The governor shall also, upon the opening of the session, submit bills to provide for such proposed expenditures and for any recommended additional revenues or borrowings by which the proposed expenditures are to be met. Such bills shall be introduced in the legislature upon the opening of each regular session.

Section 5. No appropriation bill, except bills recommended by the governor for immediate passage, or to cover the expenses of the legislature, shall be passed on final reading until the bill authorizing operating expenditures for the ensuing fiscal period, to be known as the general appropriations bill, shall have been transmitted to the governor.

Section 6. No tax shall be levied or appropriation of public money or property made, nor shall the public credit be used, directly or indirectly, except for a public purpose. No grant shall be made in violation of Section 3 of Article I of this constitution.

Section 7. Provision for the control of the rate of expenditures of appropriated state moneys, and for the reduction of such expenditures under prescribed conditions, shall be made by law.

Section 8. The legislature, by a majority vote of each house in joint session, shall appoint an auditor who shall serve for a period of eight years and thereafter until a successor shall have been appointed. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the members in joint session, may remove the auditor from office at any time for cause. It shall be the duty of the auditor to conduct post-audits of all transactions and of all accounts kept by or for all departments, offices and agencies of the State and its political subdivisions, to certify to the accuracy of all financial statements issued by the respective accounting officers and to report his findings and recommendations to the governor and to the legislature at such times as shall be prescribed by law. He shall also make such additional reports and conduct such other investigations as may be directed by the legislature.

ARTICLE VII

Local government

Section 1. The legislature shall create counties, and may create other political subdivisions within the State, and provide for the government thereof. Each political subdivision shall have and exercise such powers as shall be conferred under general laws.

Section 2. Each political subdivision shall have power to frame and adopt a charter for its own self-government within such limits and under such procedures as may be prescribed by law.

Section 3. The taxing power shall be reserved to the State except so much thereof as may be delegated by the legislature to the political subdivisions, and the legislature shall have the power to apportion state revenues among the several political subdivisions.

Section 4. No law shall be passed mandating any political subdivision to pay any previously accrued claim.

Section 5. This article shall not limit the power of the legislature to enact laws of statewide concern.

ARTICLE VIII

Public health and welfare

Section 1. The State shall provide for the protection and promotion of the public health.

Section 2. The State shall have power to provide for treatment and rehabilitation, as well as domiciliary care, of mentally or physically handicapped persons.

Section 3. The State shall have power to provide assistance for persons unable to maintain a standard of living compatible with decency and health.

Section 4. The State shall have power to provide for, or assist in, slum clearance and the development or rehabilitation of substandard areas, including housing for persons of low income.

Section 5. The State shall have power to conserve and develop its natural beauty, objects and places of historic or cultural interest, sightliness and physical good order, and for that purpose private property shall be subject to reasonable regulation.

Education

Section 1. The State shall provide for the establishment, support and control of a statewide system of public schools free from sectarian control, a state university, public libraries and such other educational institutions as may be deemed desirable, including physical facilities therefor. There shall be no segregation in public educational institutions because of race, religion or ancestry; nor shall public funds be appropriated for the support or benefit of any sectarian or private educational institution.

Section 2. There shall be a board of education, the members of which shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor from panels submitted by local school advisory councils to be established by law. At least part of the membership of the board shall represent geographic subdivisions of the State.

Section 3. The board of education shall have power, in accordance with law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the public school system through its executive officer, the superintendent of public instruction, who shall be appointed by the board and shall be ex officio a voting member thereof.

Section 4. The University of Hawaii is hereby established as the state university and constituted a body corporate. It shall have title to all the real and personal property now or hereafter set aside or conveyed to it, which shall be held in public trust for its purposes, to be administered and disposed of according to law.

Section 5. There shall be a board of regents of the University of Hawaii, the members of which shall be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed by the governor. At least part of the membership of the board shall represent geographic subdivisions of the State. The president of the university and the superintendent of public instruction shall be ex officio voting members of the board. The board shall have power, in accordance with law, to formulate policy, and to exercise control over the university through its executive officer, the president of the university, who shall be appointed by the board.

Conservation and development of resources

Section 1. The legislature shall promote the conservation, development and utilization of agricultural resources, and fish, mineral, forest, water, land, game and other natural resources.

Section 2. The legislature shall vest in one or more executive boards or commissions powers for the management of natural resources owned or controlled by the State, and such powers of disposition thereof as may be authorized by law; but land set aside for public use, other than for a reserve for conservation purposes, need not be placed under the jurisdiction of such a board or commission.

The mandatory provisions of this section shall not apply to the natural resources owned by or under the control of a political subdivision or a department or agency thereof.

Section 3. All fisheries in the sea waters of the State not included in any fish pond or artificial inclosure shall be free to the public, subject to vested rights and the right of the State to regulate the same.

Section 4. The legislative power over the lands owned by or under the control of the State and its political subdivisions shall be exercised only by general laws, except in respect to transfers to or for the use of the State, a political subdivision, or any department or agency thereof.

Section 5. The public lands shall be used for the development of farm and home ownership on as widespread a basis as possible, in accordance with procedures and limitations prescribed by law.

Hawaiian home lands

Section 1. Anything in this constitution to the contrary notwithstanding, the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act, 1920, enacted by the Congress, as the same has been or may be amended prior to the admission of the State, is hereby adopted as a law of the State, subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature, provided that, if and to the extent that the United States shall so require, said law shall be subject to amendment or repeal only with the consent of the United States and in no other manner, provided, further, that, if the United States shall have been provided or shall provide that particular provisions or types of provisions of said Act may be amended in the manner required for ordinary state legislation, such provisions or types of provisions may be so amended. The proceeds and income from Hawaiian home lands shall be used only in accordance with the terms of said Act, and the legislature may, from time to time, make additional sums available for the purposes of said Act by appropriating the same in the manner provided by law.

Section 2. The State and its people do hereby accept, as a compact with the United States, or as conditions or trust provisions imposed by the United States, relating to the management and disposition of the Hawaiian home lands, the requirement that Section 1 hereof be included in this constitution, in whole or in part, it being intended that the Act or Acts of the Congress pertaining thereto shall be definitive of the extent and nature of such compact, conditions or trust provisions, as the case may be. The State and its people do further agree and declare that the spirit of the Hawaiian Homes Commission Act looking to the continuance of the Hawaiian race shall be faithfully carried out.

Organization, collective bargaining

Section 1. Persons in private employment shall have the right to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining.

Section 2. Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize and to present and make known their grievances and proposals to the State, or any political subdivision or any department or agency thereof.

ARTICLE XIII

State boundaries, capital, flag

Section 1. The State of Hawaii shall include the islands and territorial waters heretofore constituting the Territory of Hawaii.

Section 2. Honolulu, on the Island of Oahu, shall be the capital of the State.

Section 3. The Hawaiian flag shall be the flag of the State.

General and miscellaneous provisions

Section 1. The employment of persons in the civil service, as defined by law, of or under the State, shall be governed by the merit principle.

Section 2. Membership in any employees' retirement system of the State or any political subdivision thereof shall be a contractual relationship, the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired.

Section 3. No person who advocates, or who aids or belongs to any party, organization or association which advocates, the overthrow by force or violence of the government of this State or of the United States shall be qualified to hold any public office or employment.

Section 4. All public officers, before entering upon the duties of their respective offices, shall take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, and that I will faithfully discharge my duties as . . . to the best of my ability." The legislature may prescribe further oaths or affirmations.

Section 5. The legislature may provide for co-operation on the part of this State and its political subdivisions with the United States, or other states and territories, or their political subdivisions, in matters affecting the public health, safety and general welfare, and funds may be appropriated to effect such co-operation.

Section 6. The United States shall be vested with or retain title to or an interest in or shall hold the property in the Territory of Hawaii set aside for the use of the United States and remaining so set aside immediately prior to the admission of this State, in all respects as and to the extent set forth in the act or resolution providing for the admission of this State to the Union.

Section 7. Any trust provisions which the Congress shall impose, upon the admission of this State, in respect of the lands patented to the State by the United States or the proceeds and income therefrom, shall be complied with by appropriate legislation.

Section 8. The lands and other property, the final determination and disposition of which shall not have been made by the Congress upon the admission of this State, shall, pending such determination and disposition, continue to be administered in accordance with the laws applicable thereto immediately prior to the admission of this State, except as the Congress may consent to any amendment of said laws, and no provision of this constitution for the exercise of powers or functions other than in accordance with such laws shall, without the consent of the Congress, apply to the lands or property so administered.

Section 9. No taxes shall be imposed by the State upon any lands or other property now owned or hereafter acquired by the United States, except as the same shall become taxable by reason of disposition thereof by the United States or by reason of the consent of the United States to such taxation.

Section 10. All provisions of the act or resolution admitting this State to the Union, or providing for such admission, which reserve to the United States jurisdiction of Hawaii National Park, or the ownership or control of lands within Hawaii National Park, are consented to fully by the State and its people.

Section 11. All those provisions of the act or resolution admitting this State to the Union, or providing for such admission, which reserve to the United States judicial rights or powers are consented to fully by the State and its people; and those provisions of said act or resolution which preserve for the State judicial rights and powers are hereby accepted and adopted, and such rights and powers are hereby assumed, to be exercised and discharged pursuant to this constitution and the laws of the State.

Section 12. Titles and subtitles shall not be used for purposes of construing this constitution.

Whenever any personal pronoun appears in this constitution, it shall be construed to mean either sex.

Section 13. The enumeration in this constitution of specified powers shall not be construed as limitations upon the power of the State to provide for the general welfare of the people.

Section 14. The provisions of this constitution shall be self-executing to the fullest extent that their respective natures permit.

ARTICLE XV

Revision and amendment

Section 1. Revisions of or amendments to this constitution may be proposed by constitutional convention or by the legislature.

Section 2. The legislature may submit to the electorate at any general or special election the question, "Shall there be a convention to propose a revision of or amendments to the Constitution?" If any ten-year period shall elapse during which the question shall not have been submitted, the lieutenant-governor shall certify the question, to be voted on at the first general election following the expiration of such period.

If a majority of the ballots cast upon such question be in the affirmative, delegates to the convention shall be chosen at the next regular election unless the legislature shall provide for the election of delegates at a special election.

Notwithstanding any provision in this constitution to the contrary, other than Section 3 of Article XIV, any qualified voter of the district concerned shall be eligible to membership in the convention.

Unless the legislature shall otherwise provide, there shall be the same number of delegates to such convention, who shall be elected from the same areas, and the convention shall be convened in the same manner, as nearly as practicable, as required for the Hawaii State Constitutional Convention of 1950.

The convention shall determine its own organization and rules of procedure. It shall be the sole judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its members and, by a two-thirds vote, may suspend or remove any member for cause. The governor shall fill any vacancy by appointment of a qualified voter from the district concerned.

The convention shall provide for the time and manner in which the proposed constitutional revision or amendments shall be submitted to a vote of the electorate, but no such revision or amendments shall be effective unless approved at a general election by a majority of all of the votes tallied upon the question, such majority constituting at least thirty-five percent of the total vote cast at such election, or at a special election by a majority of the total vote tallied upon such question, such majority constituting at least thirty-five percent of the total number of registered voters; provided that no constitutional amendment altering this proviso or the representation from any senatorial district in the senate shall become effective unless it shall also be approved by a majority of the votes tallied upon the question in each of a majority of the counties.

The provisions of this section shall be self-executing, but the legislature shall make the necessary appropriations and may enact legislation to facilitate their operation.

Section 3. The legislature may propose amendments to the constitution by adopting the same, in the manner required for legislation, by a two-thirds vote of each house on final reading at any session, after either or both houses shall have given the governor at least ten days' written notice of the final form of the proposed amendment, or, with or without such notice, by a majority vote of each house on final reading at each of two successive sessions.

Upon such adoption, the proposed amendments shall be entered upon the journals, with the ayes and noes, and published once in each of four successive weeks in at least one newspaper of general circulation in each senatorial district wherein such a newspaper is published, within the two months' period immediately preceding the next general election.

At such general election the proposed amendments shall be submitted to the electorate for approval or rejection upon a separate ballot.

The conditions of and requirements for ratification of such proposed amendments shall be the same as provided in Section 2 of this article for ratification at a general election.

Section 4. No proposal for amendment of the constitution adopted in either manner provided by this article shall be subject to veto by the governor.

ARTICLE XVI

Schedule

Representative Districts

Section 1. As provided in Section 3 of Article III, until the next reapportionment the representative districts and the number of members to be elected from each shall be as follows:

First representative district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as Puna, one representative;

Second representative district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as South Hilo, four representatives;

Third representative district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as North Hilo and Hamakua, one representative;

Fourth representative district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as Kau and South Kona and that portion of North Kona, for convenience herein referred to as Keauhou, more particularly described as follows: from a point at the seashore between the lands of Holualoa 1 and 2 and Puapuaa 2 running northeasterly along the boundary of Holualoa 1 and 2 to Puu Laalaau; (2) easterly in a straight line to a point called "Naohueleelua" being the common corner of the lands of Puuanahulu, Kaohe and Keauhou 2nd; (3) southeasterly along the common boundary between Hamakua and North Kona districts to the summit of Mauna Loa; (4) westerly along the common boundary between Kau and North Kona districts to the easterly boundary of South Kona district: (5) northerly and westerly along the boundary between North and South Kona districts to the seashore; and (6) northerly along the seashore to the point of beginning; one representative;

Fifth representative district: that portion of the island of Hawaii known as Kohala and that portion of North Kona not included in the fourth representative district, one representative;

Sixth representative district: the islands of Molokai and Lanai, one representative;

Seventh representative district: the islands of Maui and Kahoolawe, five representatives;

Eighth representative district: that portion of the island of Oahu known as Koolaupoko and Koolauloa, two representatives;

Transitional provisions

Section 2. All laws in force at the time this constitution takes effect and not inconsistent therewith, including, among others, acts of the Congress relating to the lands in the possession, use and control of the Territory of Hawaii, shall be the laws of the State and remain in force, mutatis mutandis, until they expire by their own limitation, or are altered or repealed by the legislature.

Except as otherwise provided by this constitution, all existing writs, actions, suits, proceedings, civil or criminal liabilities, prosecutions, judgments, sentences, orders, decrees, appeals, causes of action, contracts, claims, demands, titles and rights shall continue unaffected notwithstanding the taking effect of this constitution, except that the State shall be the legal successor to the Territory in respect thereof, and may be maintained, enforced or prosecuted, as the case may be, before the appropriate or corresponding tribunals or agencies of or under the State or of the United States, in the name of the State, political subdivision, person or other party entitled to do so, in all respects as fully as could have been done prior to taking effect of this constitution.

Section 3. The debts and liabilities of the Territory shall be assumed and paid by the State, and all debts owed to the Territory shall be collected by the State.

Section 4. All acts of the legislature of the Territory authorizing the issuance of bonds by the Territory or its political subdivisions are approved, subject, however, to amendment or repeal by the legislature, and bonds may be issued by the State and its political subdivisions pursuant to said acts. Whenever in said acts the approval of the President or of the Congress is required, the approval of the governor shall suffice.

Section 5. Except as otherwise provided by this constitution, all executive officers of the Territory or any political subdivision thereof and all judicial officers who may be in office at the time of admission of this State to the Union shall continue to exercise and discharge the powers and duties of their respective offices until their successors shall have qualified in accordance with this constitution or the laws enacted pursuant thereto.

Section 6. Unless otherwise provided by law, the lieutenant-governor shall exercise and discharge the powers and duties of the secretary of the Territory.

Section 7. Requirements as to residence, citizenship or other status or qualifications in or under the State prescribed by this constitution shall be satisfied pro tanto by corresponding residence, citizenship or other status or qualifications in or under the Territory.

Section 8. The provisions of Section 6 of Article IV shall not be mandatory until four years from the date of admission of this State to the Union. The legislature shall within three years from said date allocate and group the executive and administrative offices, departments and instrumentalities of the state government and their respective functions, powers and duties among and within the principal departments pursuant to said section.

If such allocation and grouping shall not have been completed within such period, the governor, within one year thereafter, by executive order, shall make such allocation and grouping.

Section 9. All vested rights in fisheries in the sea waters not included in any fish pond or artificial inclosure shall be condemned to the use of the public upon payment of just compensation, which compensation, when lawfully ascertained, shall be paid out of any money in the treasury of the State not otherwise appropriated.

First officers Procedures

Section 10. In case the people of the Territory ratify this constitution and the same is approved by the duly constituted authority of the United States whose approval thereto may be required, the governor of the Territory shall, within thirty days after receipt of the official notification of such approval, issue a proclamation for primary and final elections, as hereinafter provided, at which officers for all state elective offices provided for by this constitution shall be nominated and elected; but the officers so to be elected shall in any event include two senators and two representatives to the Congress, and unless and until otherwise required by law, said representatives shall be elected at large.

Section 11. Said primary election shall take place not less than sixty nor more than ninety days after said proclamation, and the final election shall take place within forty days after the primary election. Such elections shall be held and the qualifications of voters thereat shall be as prescribed by this constitution and by the laws relating to the election of members of the legislature at primary and general elections. The returns thereof shall be made, canvassed and certified in the manner prescribed by law with respect to the election for the ratification or rejection of this constitution. The governor shall thereupon certify the results thereof to the President.

Section 12. Upon the issuance by the President of a proclamation announcing the results of said election and the admission of this State to the Union, the officers elected and qualified shall proceed to exercise and discharge the powers and duties pertaining to their respective offices.

Section 13. The first governor and lieutenant-governor shall hold office for a term beginning with their election and ending at noon on the first Monday in December following the second general election.

Section 14. The governor of the State and secretary of state shall certify the election of the senators and representatives to the Congress in the manner required by law. For this purpose, the lieutenant-governor of this State shall be deemed secretary of state.

Section 15. The terms of office of the members of the first legislature shall be as follows:

Members of the house of representatives shall hold office for a term beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter.

Members of the senate shall be divided into two classes. The first class shall consist of the following number elected with the highest number of votes from their respective senatorial districts: first district, three; second district, one; third district, two; fourth district, three; fifth district, two; and sixth district, two. Members of the first class shall hold office for a term beginning with their election and ending on the day of the third general election held thereafter. The remaining members elected shall constitute the second class and shall hold office for a term beginning with their election and ending on the day of the second general election held thereafter.

Section 16. Ten days after the admission of this State to the Union, the legislature shall convene in special session.

Section 17. Until otherwise provided by law in accordance with Section 10 of Article III, the salary of members of the legislature shall be as follows: the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars for each general session, the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars for each budget session and the sum of seven hundred and fifty dollars for each special session.

Section 18. Until the legislature shall otherwise provide under Section 3 of Article V, the chief justice, justices of the supreme court and judges of the circuit courts shall receive as compensation for their services the sums of seventeen thousand five hundred dollars, seventeen thousand dollars and fifteen thousand dollars per annum, respectively, which shall, notwithstanding the provisions of Article V of this constitution, be subject to increase or decrease by the first session of the legislature.

This constitution shall take effect and be in full force immediately upon the admission of Hawaii into the Union as a State.

Done in Convention, at Iolani Palace, Honolulu, Hawaii, on the twenty-second day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred fifty, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and seventy-fifth.

Letter dated 29 September 1959 from the representative of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland addressed to the President of the General Assembly

I have the honour to draw your attention to certain observations on the subject of British Honduras which were made in the general debate by the representative of Guatemala on 23 and 25 September²¹ and by the representative of Mexico on 24 September.²²

In order to remove any possible misunderstanding, I wish to make it clear that the territory to which these representatives referred is under the sovereignty of the United Kingdom.

I should be grateful if this letter could be circulated to all Members of the United Nations.

General questions relating to the transmission and examination Note by the Secretary-General

The Secretary-General of the United Nations has received the following communication, dated 28 July 1959, from the Permanent Mission of Spain to the United Nations:

"The Permanent Mission of Spain to the United Nations presents its compliments to the Secretary-General and has the honour to inform him of the following:

"With regard to the statements made at the last meeting of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories concerning the Spanish African Territories, the Permanent Mission of Spain wishes to point out that Spain's position on that question, as stated in document A/C.4/385²³ of 10 November 1958, is that Spain possesses no Non-Self-Governing Territories, since the Territories subject to its sovereignty in Africa are, in accordance with the legislation now in force, considered to be and classified as provinces of Spain.

"The Permanent Mission of Spain has the honour to be, etc."

- 3. The Committee heard general statements on this item from the 968th meeting to the 977th meeting, inclusive.
- 4. At the 967th and 977th meetings, the representatives of Argentina and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland reserved the positions of their Governments with respect to the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas) and the Falkland Islands dependencies. The representative of Chile reserved the position of his Government with regard to the Chilean Antarctic territory, concerning part of which the United Kingdom transmits information as included in the Falkland Islands dependencies. The representatives of Spain and the United Kingdom reserved the positions of their Governments with respect to Gibraltar. The representative of Yemen reserved the position of his Government with respect to the southern part of Yemen and the representative of the United Kingdom reserved the position of his Government in respect of Aden Colony and Protectorate. The representatives of Guatemala and the United Kingdom reserved the position of their Governments in respect of British Honduras (Belize). The representative of Mexico stated that if the status of British Honduras were changed, the right of his Government over part of that Territory would have to be taken into account. The representative of Guatemala stated that his Government had never recognized this claim by Mexico to Belize. The representative of Mexico reaffirmed the position of his Government.
- 5. The representatives of Morocco and France reserved the positions of their Governments in respect of Mauritania. The representative of Morocco also reserved the position of his Government in respect of Saguia-el-Hamra and Ifni under the administration of Spain. The representative of Spain stated that his Government hoped that this matter could be amicably settled by negotiation.
- 6. The representative of Indonesia reserved the position of his Government with respect to sovereignty over, and the transmission of information on, West Irian (Netherlands New Guinea). The representative of the Netherlands reserved the position of his Government with respect to sovereignty over, and the transmission of information on, Netherlands New Guinea (West Irian).
- 7. The position of their Governments was stated by the representative of Australia, in respect of Netherlands New Guinea; by the representatives of Iraq, Lebanon, Morocco and the United Arab Republic in respect of Aden Colony and Protectorate; by the representatives of Guinea, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, the United Arab Republic and Yemen in respect of Mauritania; by the representatives of Guinea, Libya, the United Arab Republic and Yemen in respect of Ifni; by the representatives of Burma, Ceylon, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, Ghana, Guinea, India, Iraq, Lebanon, Liberia, Morocco, Nepal and the United Arab Republic in respect of West Irian (Netherlands New Guinea).
- 8. The representatives of Ceylon, Guinea, Ghana, Liberia and Nepal drew attention to the lack of information on Portuguese territories. The representative of Portugal reserved the position of his Government.

- Progress achieved by the Non-Self-Governing Territories in pursuance of Chapter XI of the Charter
- 9. At the 977th meeting, Ceylon, Ghana, India, Iraq, the United Arab Republic and Yugoslavia submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.622), under the terms of which the General Assembly would request the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories "to examine, in addition to its regular programme of work, the Progress Report at its next session, with a view to ascertaining the progress made by the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the light of the objectives set forth in Chapter XI of the Charter". The Assembly would further request the Committee on Information "to submit its observations and conclusions on the Progress Report to the General Assembly at its fifteenth regular session, in order to assist it in its consideration of the report"; and would request the Committee, "in so doing, to be guided by terms of all relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, in particular resolutions 932 (X) and 1053 (XI), as well as the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter"
- 10. At the 977th meeting, Panama became a co-sponsor of the resolution (A/C.4/L.622/Add.1).
- 11. At the same meeting, the Committee voted on this draft resolution.
- 12. The draft resolution was adopted by 55 votes to 1, with 7 abstentions. Subsequently, the representative of Brazil stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this draft resolution.
- 13. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution I.

Educational and other conditions

- 14. The Committee considered educational and other conditions from the 977th meeting to the 979th meeting inclusive.
- 15. The Committee had before it the resolution on the 1959 report on educational conditions, submitted by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/4111, part one, annex II). This draft resolution proposed that the General Assembly should: (1) approve the report on educational conditions prepared in 1959 by the Committee on Information from Non-Self Governing Territories; (2) invite the Secretary-General to communicate the 1959 report on educational conditions to the Members of the United Nations responsible for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories, to the Economic and Social Council, to the regional economic commissions of the United Nations, to the Trusteeship Council and to the specialized agencies concerned for their consideration; and (3) express its confidence that the Members responsible for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories would bring the report to the attention of the authorities responsible for education in those Territories.
- 16. At the 977th meeting, the Committee voted on this draft resolution, and approved it by 58 votes to none, with 4 abstentions. The Chairman stated that if her delegation had been able to participate in the vote, Cuba would have voted in favour of this draft resolution.
- 17. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution II.

- 18. At the 978th meeting, Romania submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.625) on development of primary education in Non-Self-Governing Territories. Under the provisions of this draft resolution, the General Assembly would: (1) recommend that the Administering Members take all necessary steps to develop the primary education of the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories, to the end that such education may be raised as soon as possible to the level enjoyed by the peoples of the advanced countries; and (2) invite the Administering Members to communicate to the Secretary-General, for the seventeenth session of the General Assembly, information on the measures taken and the progress achieved towards the establishment of universal, free and compulsory primary education, with the aim of eradicating illiteracy among the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories which they administer.
- 19. At the same meeting, the Committee voted on this draft resolution and adopted it by 63 votes to none, with 3 abstentions. Subsequently, the representative of Hungary stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this draft resolution.
- 20. The text approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution III.
- 21. At the 979th meeting, Ceylon and Ethiopia submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.629) on equal treatment in matters relating to education in Non-Self-Governing Territories. Under the terms of this draft resolution, the General Assembly would reaffirm its resolution 328 (IV) of 2 December 1949, urge the Administering Members to intensify their efforts to fulfil the basic objectives of that resolution, and request the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories to pay special attention to this matter and to continue to bring out the salient facts in its annual report on conditions in the Non-Self-Governing Territories.
- 22. At the same meeting, the representative of Venezuela orally proposed an amendment which would add to the preamble the following paragraph:

"Having regard to the fundamental importance of race relations, particularly under modern conditions, for the attainment of the objectives of Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations."

23. The representative of India orally proposed an amendment which would add between operative paragraphs 2 and 3, the following new paragraph:

"Endorses the view expressed by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories that on no ground whatsoever can education on a racial basis be justified."

- 24. The oral amendments proposed by the representatives of Venezuela and India were accepted by the sponsors, which were joined by Liberia as a co-sponsor.
- 25. At the same meeting, the Committee voted on the revised draft resolution (A/C.4/L.629/Rev.1), and adopted it by a roll-call vote of 70 to none, with 2 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Austria, Brazil, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Canada, Ceylon, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Ecuador, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Finland, France, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq,

Australia was present but did not participate in the vote. Subsequently, the representative of Panama stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this draft resolution.

- 29. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution V.
- 30. At the 978th meeting, Guinea submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.623) on the participation of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of the United Nations and of the specialized agencies. The last paragraph of the preamble and the operative part of the draft resolution read as follows:

"Considering that there is no valid reason to exclude from the specialized agencies certain Non-Self-Governing Territories in respect of which the Administering Member States have accepted as a sacred trust the obligation to promote their political, economic and social advancement, in accordance with the political aspirations of their peoples,

- "1. Invites the Administering Members to submit the candidature of the Territories referred to in Article 73 of the Charter to the specialized agencies, with a view to their admission as members, associate members or observers, according to the constitution of the particular agency;
- "2. Specially requests all Member States administering Non-Self-Governing Territories to propose the participation of the latter in the work of the Economic Commission for Africa;
- "3. Re-emphasizes the need for the Administering Members to secure the increased participation of representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories and in the discussion of such matters in the Fourth Committee of the General Assembly;
- "4. Invites the Administering Members to furnish the Secretary-General with a report on the practical measures taken to implement this resolution;
- "5. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session on the progress made."
- 31. At the same meeting, the representative of Guinea orally revised the text: (1) to delete the last paragraph of the preamble; (2) to insert, in operative paragraph 2 after the words "Non-Self-Governing Territories," the words "in Africa"; and (3) to replace, in operative paragraph 3, the words "the need" by "the great advantage", and to delete the word "increased".
- 32. The representative of the United Kingdom orally proposed an amendment to operative paragraph 3 to insert the words "in their delegations" before the words "the increased participation". This amendment was accepted by the representatives of Guinea with the understanding that the actual wording of the English text would be brought into line with the French text suggested by the representative of Guinea.
- 33. Also at the 978th meeting, the Committee voted on the draft resolution (A/C.4/L.623) as orally revised by the sponsor and incorporating the oral amendment proposed by the representative of the United Kingdom.
- (1) The preamble and operative paragraphs 1, 2 and 3, as revised and amended, were adopted by 59 votes to none, with 5 abstentions.
- (2) Operative paragraphs 4 and 5 were adopted by 43 votes to 2, with 14 abstentions.
 - (3) The draft resolution as a whole, as revised and amended, was adopted by a roll-call vote of 60 to none, with 6 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

Against: None.

Abstaining: Australia, Belgium, France, Peru, Portugal, Spain.

Subsequently, the representative of Liberia stated that if her delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this draft resolution.

34. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution VI.

General questions relating to the transmission and examination of information

- 35. On the question of the transmission of information, the Committee had before it a reply of the Government of Guinea (A/C.4/405) to the letter of the Secretary-General of 2 February 1959, and a communication from the Government of Spain (A/C.4/406), concerning the transmission of information under Article 73 e of the Charter.
- 36. The Committee also had before it three communications transmitted to the Secretary-General in accordance with General Assembly resolution 222 (III) of 3 November 1948. By a letter dated 23 March 1959, the Government of France (A/4096 and Add.1) informed the Secretary-General that with regard to information transmitted under Article 73 e: "Except with regard to New Hebrides, where the existence of the condominium created a special situation, the French Government decided to stop transmitting this information as from 1957" and attached documents relating to the status of the various Territories on which information was no longer being transmitted. It also communicated to the Secretary-General information concerning the change in constitutional status of French West Africa, French Equatorial Africa, Madagascar, French Somaliland, the Comoro Archipelago and the New Hebrides.
- 37. By letters dated 2 June 1959 (A/4115) and 17 September 1959 (A/4226), the Government of the United States of America informed the Secretary-General of the change in constitutional status of Alaska and Hawaii, respectively, as a result of which the Government of the United States of America intended to cease to transmit information, and communicated to him the relevant documents.
- 38. The Committee discussed this sub-item from the 981st to the 986th meetings inclusive.
- 39. At the 981st meeting, in response to a question raised by the representative of India, the representative of the United Kingdom stated that his Government acknowledged that, where the transmission of information in respect of a Non-Self-Governing Territory had ceased because of the constitutional considerations referred to in Article 73 e, there was an obligation to resume the transmission of information on such a Territory when constitutional considerations permitted. In view of recent developments, his Government agreed that that applied to Malta for the time being.

- 40. At the same meeting, the representative of Spain stated that Spain had no Non-Self-Governing Territories and the provisions of Chapter XI did not therefore apply to it. However, his Government would transmit to the Secretary-General for information purposes, in accordance with Article 73 e, information concerning all those provinces of Spain which could be of interest to the United Nations. The information would be submitted in due course, but that fact did not affect his Government's position of principle with regard to the provinces in question.
- 41. In reply to statements made at the 977th meeting by various representatives, the representative of Portugal stated that the political and constitutional unity of Portugal was such as to preclude the application of Chapter XI to any part of it.
- 42. At the 981st meeting, Canada, Ghana, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Mexico and Yugoslavia submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.627). Under the terms of this draft resolution, the General Assembly would decide to establish a special committee consisting of six members, to be elected by the Fourth Committee on behalf of the General Assembly-three of whom were to be Members who transmit information and three nonadministering Members—to study the principles which should guide Members in determining whether or not an obligation existed to transmit the information called for in Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations. The draft resolution would also have the General Assembly request the Secretary-General to prepare for the use of this committee an account of the history of this matter, including a summary of the opinions on the subject which have been expressed by Member States in the past and of the relevant legal treatises on the interpretation of the Charter, and invite Member States to submit in writing to the Secretary-General, before 1 May 1960, their views on these principles, in order that the Committee might take them into account.
- 43. At the same meeting Ceylon became a co-sponsor of the draft resolution (A/C.4/L.627/Add.1).
- 44. In accordance with the rule 154 of the rules of procedure, the Committee was informed at the 981st meeting of the financial implications of the proposal contained in this draft resolution (A/C.4/L.627).
- 45. At the same meeting the Committee voted on this draft resolution.
- (1) The first preambular paragraph was adopted by 58 votes to 2, with 8 abstentions.
- (2) The second preambular paragraph was adopted by a roll-call vote of 47 to 9, with 18 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Canada, Ceylon, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Ghana, Greece, Guinea, Haiti, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iraq, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Pakistan, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Thailand, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Arab Republic, United States of America, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia.

Against: Belgium, Chile, France, Honduras, Luxembourg, Peru, Portugal, Spain, Union of South Africa.

Abstaining: Australia, Austria, Brazil, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Finland, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Sweden, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Uruguay.

- (3) The third preambular paragraph was adopted by 60 votes to none, with 13 abstentions.
- (4) The fourth preambular paragraph was adopted by 64 votes to none, with 10 abstentions.
- (5) Operative paragraph 1 was adopted by a roll-call vote of 51 to 9, with 14 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

Against: Australia, Belgium, Chile, France, Luxembourg, Peru, Portugal, Spain, Union of South Africa.

Abstaining: Austria, Brazil, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Finland, Honduras, Italy, Netherlands, Panama, Paraguay, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Uruguay.

- (6) Operative paragraph 2 was adopted by 53 votes to 6, with 14 abstentions.
- (7) Operative paragraph 3 was adopted by 52 votes to 4, with 14 abstentions.
- (8) Operative paragraph 4 was adopted by 54 votes to 3, with 14 abstentions.
- (9) The draft resolution as a whole was adopted by a roll-call vote of 53 to 9, with 12 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

Against: Belgium, Brazil, Chile, France, Honduras, Luxembourg, Peru, Portugal, Union of South Africa.

Abstaining: Australia, Austria, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Italy, Netherlands, Panama, Paraguay, Spain, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

46. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution VII.

- 47. At the 984th meeting, Ghana, India and Yugoslavia submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.624) relating to information on political developments in Non-Self-Governing Territories. Panama subsequently became a co-sponsor (A/C.4/L.624/Add.1). The text of the operative part of this draft resolution read as follows:
 - "1. Endorses the observations of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories, based on its examination of the information transmitted by the Administering Members, that speedy advancement in the functional fields is usually obtained where there is the broadest participation of the inhabitants in political bodies empowered to establish policies and to vote budgets;
 - "2. Requests the Administering Members to do their utmost to mobilize the effective participation of the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories by transferring to them effective power in order to accelerate their social, economic and educational advancement;
 - "3. Considers that the transmission of information on developments in the political field will enable the General Assembly better to assess the information transmitted by the Administering Members concerning educational, social and economic development in the Non-Self-Governing Territories;
 - "4. Reiterates the view that the voluntary transmission of information on political developments in the Non-Self-Governing Territories is fully in accord with the spirit of Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations;
 - "5. Urges the Administering Members concerned to extend their full co-operation in this matter by transmitting information of a political and constitutional character with regard to developments in the Territories under their respective administrations."
- 48. At the same meeting, Iraq submitted an amendment (A/C.4/L.634) which would add to the end of operative paragraph 5 the following: "including the establishment of intermediate time-tables leading to the attainment of self-government by these Territories."
- 49. The representative of Argentina orally proposed that the word "voluntarily" should be inserted before the word "information" in the second paragraph of the preamble and in operative paragraph 5. Subsequently the representative of Uruguay orally proposed that the word "Voluntary" should be included in the title. Both these amendments were accepted by the sponsors.
- 50. At the same meeting the Committee voted on the draft resolution contained in document A/C.4/L.624 and Add.1 and on the amendment thereto (A/C.4/L.634).
- (1) The amendment submitted by Iraq (A/C.4/L.634) was adopted by a roll-call vote of 44 to 7, with 20 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

Abstaining: Austria, Colombia, El Salvador, Greece, Guatemala, Honduras, Norway, Peru, Turkey.

- 51. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution VIII.
- 52. In the course of the discussion of this sub-item, reference was made to the communication from the Government of France. Some Members, while welcoming the constitutional advance, expressed the view that French West Africa, French Equatorial Africa, Madagascar, French Somaliland and the Comoro Archipelago had not yet attained a full measure of self-government and that the political status of these Territories was still in a stage of evolution. Accordingly, they expressed the view that the Assembly, at its present session, should not act on the communication transmitted by the Government of France.
- 53. At the 983rd meeting, the representative of France stated that, owing to constitutional changes which had taken place, it was no longer possible for his Government to transmit information in accordance with Article 73 e of the Charter, except on the New Hebrides.
- 54. At the 982nd meeting, Argentina, Canada, the Federation of Malaya, Honduras, Iraq, Japan, Liberia and Sweden submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.632) on the cessation of transmission of information by the United States of America concerning Alaska and Hawaii. Subsequently, at the 983rd meeting, Nepal became a co-sponsor (A/C.4/L.632/Add.1). By this resolution, the General Assembly would: (1) take note of the opinion of the Government of the United States that, owing to the new constitutional status of Alaska and Hawaii, it was no longer appropriate or necessary for it to transmit information under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations in respect of Alaska and Hawaii; (2) express the opinion that, from the documentation and the explanations provided, the people of Alaska and Hawaii had effectively exercised their right of selfdetermination and had freely chosen their present status; (3) congratulate the United States and the people of Alaska and Hawaii upon the attainment of a full measure of self-government by the people of these two Territories; (4) consider that, owing to the circumstances referred to, the declaration regarding Non-Self-Governing Territories and the provisions established under it in Chapter XI of the Charter could no longer be applied to Alaska and Hawaii; and (5) consider it appropriate that the transmission of information in respect of Alaska and Hawaii under Article 73 e of the Charter should
- 55. At the same meeting, Liberia submitted an amendment (A/C.4/L.633) which would insert immediately after the last paragraph of the preamble the following new paragraph:

"Bearing in mind the competence of the General Assembly to decide whether a Non-Self-Governing Territory has or has not attained a full measure of self-government as referred to in Chapter XI of the Charter".

56. At the 983rd meeting, the representative of Ethiopia orally proposed an amendment to replace, in operative paragraph 3, the words "of these two Territories" by the words "of Alaska and Hawaii". This amendment was accepted by the sponsors.

- 57. At the same meeting the representative of India suggested a drafting change in operative paragraph 2 so that it would read "Expresses the opinion, based on its examination of the documentation and the explanations provided, that the people . . .". This change was also accepted by the sponsors.
- 58. At the 983rd meeting, the Committee voted on the draft resolution (A/C.4/L.632 and Add.1) and the amendment (A/C.4/L.633).
- (1) The amendment submitted by Liberia (A/C.4/L.633) was adopted by a roll-call vote of 41 to 20, with 9 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Ceylon, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Haiti, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Panama, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia. Sudan, Tunisia, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Arab Republic, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, Finland, France, Honduras, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal. Sweden, Turkey, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America.

Abstaining: Argentina, Austria, Costa Rica, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Peru, Thailand, Uruguay. Subsequently, the representative of Ghana stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this amendment. The representative of Spain stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted against this amendment.

- (2) Operative paragraph 1 of the draft resolution (A/C.4/L.632 and Add.1) was adopted by 59 votes to none, with 10 abstentions.
- (3) Operative paragraph 3, as amended, was adopted by 59 votes to none, with 9 abstentions.
- (4) The draft resolution as a whole, as amended, was adopted by a roll-call vote of 52 to none, with 19 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

Against: None.

Abstaining: Albania, Australia, Belgium, Bulgaria, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Czechoslovakia, France, Hungary, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Spain, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of South Africa, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Subsequently the representative of Paraguay stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this draft resolution.

- 59. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution IX.
- 60. At the 985th meeting, Guinea submitted a draft resolution on the attainment of independence by Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/C.4/L.628), the text of which was as follows:

"The General Assembly,

"Considering Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations, and in particular Article 73 a and b, in which the principle is established that the interests of the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories are paramount and that Administering Members shall assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions,

"Recalling that, in its resolutions 566 (VI), 647 (VII) and 744 (VIII), the General Assembly confirmed that the mission of the United Nations with regard to the Non-Self-Governing Territories was to promote their progress towards a status of equality with Member States,

"Considering that in recent years several Non-Self-Governing Territories have attained independence, that certain other Territories will attain it shortly and that the date for its attainment by some Territories has already been set,

"Believing that the preliminary establishment of plans and objectives can assist in speeding up the advancement of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories,

"Considering therefore that it is necessary and desirable to provide for a course of events which will enable other Non-Self-Governing Territories speedily to attain independence,

- "1. Invites Administering Members to submit for the consideration of the General Assembly at its fifteenth session, after consultation with representatives of the peoples, time-tables for the attainment of independence by the Non-Self-Governing Territories;
- "2. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a detailed report on the matter to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session."
- 61. The Committee discussed this draft resolution at its 985th and 986th meetings.
- 62. The representatives of Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, India, Iran, Liberia, Mexico, Morocco, Poland, the United Arab Republic, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Venezuela expressed their support of the objectives of the draft resolution. Several of these representatives, however, appealed to the representative of Guinea to withdraw the draft resolution for the present session, since the Committee had already adopted draft resolution VIII including the amendment submitted by Iraq, the text of which appears in paragraph 48 of the present report.
- 63. At the 986th meeting, the representative of Guinea agreed to withdraw the draft resolution (A/C.4/L.628) for the present session.
- Report of the Secretary-General on new developments connected with the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community
- 64. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 1330 (XIII) of 12 December 1958, the Secretary-

General had prepared a report (A/4197 and Corr.1) on new developments connected with the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community.

65. At the 980th meeting, Burma, Ceylon, Czechoslovakia, Ghana, Indonesia and the United Arab Republic submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.630), the text of which read as follows:

"The General Assembly,

"Referring to its resolution 1330 (XIII) of 12 December 1958,

"Having examined the report of the Secretary-General on the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community,

"Noting with concern that the Administering Members have not yet submitted any information on the possible effects of the association of the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration with the European Economic Community,

"Considering that the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community may have significant effects on the development of these Territories towards the objectives of Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations,

- "1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community;
- "2. Invites again the Administering Members concerned to transmit to the Secretary-General information on the association of the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration with the European Economic Community;
- "3. Requests the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories to devote, at its 1960 session at which it is to deal particularly with the economic development of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, special attention to the question of the association of some Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community and to the effects this association may have on the development of these Territories towards the objectives of Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations;
- "4. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare for the fifteenth session of the General Assembly a report on new developments connected with the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community, taking into account the information to be submitted by the Administering Members and the studies that may be undertaken in this connexion by the Economic and Social Council, the Economic Commission for Africa, the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, the Economic Commission for Latin America and other international organs, in so far as these studies may be relevant to the development of Non-Self-Governing Territories;
- "5. Resolves to resume consideration of this question at its fifteenth session."
- 66. At the same meeting, the representative of Ceylon, on behalf of the sponsors, introduced an oral revision in the third preambular paragraph which would replace the word "any" by the word "sufficient".
- 67. The representative of the Philippines suggested the following changes: (a) in operative paragraph 2, to add the words "more adequate" before the word "information"; (b) in operative paragraph 2, to replace the words "the association" by the words "the possible effects of the association"; (c) in operative paragraph 3, to replace the words "the effects this association may have" by the words "the possible effects of this association"; and (d) in operative paragraph 4, to replace the words "the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories" by the words "the possible effects of the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories". The sponsors accepted suggestions (b), (c) and (d) to qualify the word "association".

- 68. Also at the 980th meeting, the Committee voted on the draft resolution (A/C.4/L.630).
- (1) The word "sufficient" in the third paragraph of the preamble was adopted by 22 votes to 15, with 22 abstentions.
- (2) The third preambular paragraph as a whole was adopted by 32 votes to 16, with 13 abstentions.
- (3) The word "possible" in operative paragraph 2 was adopted by 21 votes to 15, with 29 abstentions.
- (4) The words "the possible effects of this association" in operative paragraph 3 were adopted by 22 votes to 14, with 31 abstentions.
- (5) The words "possible effects of the" in operative paragraph 4 were rejected by 16 votes to 15, with 28 abstentions.
- (6) The draft resolution as a whole, as amended, was adopted by a roll-call vote of 46 to 15, with 7 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Brazil, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Ceylon, Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Ghana, Guatemala, Guinea, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iraq, Japan, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Pakistan, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Thailand, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Arab Republic, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Honduras, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Portugal, Sweden, Turkey, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Abstaining: Canada, Finland, Greece, Ireland, Israel, Norway, Spain.

Subsequently, the representative of Iran stated that if his delegation had been present when the vote was taken, it would have voted in favour of this draft resolution,

69. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution X.

Offers of study and training facilities under resolution 845 (IX) of 22 November 1954: report of the Secretary-General

70. The Committee had before it the report of the Secretary-General (A/4196 and Add.1), submitted in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1331 (XIII) of 12 December 1958. At the 980th meeting, the Committee considered a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.626) submitted by Ceylon, Czechoslovakia and Ghana. Under the terms of this draft resolution, the General Assembly would, inter alia: (1) request all Administering Members which have not done so to give the fullest publicity in the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration to all offers to study and training facilities made by Member States; (2) request the Member States offering scholarships to take into account the necessity of furnishing complete information about the scholarships offered, and, whenever possible, the need to provide travel funds to prospective students; (3) request the Secretary-General to give such assistance as is possible, and as may be sought by the Member States concerned and by the applicants; and (4) request the Secretary-General to prepare for the fifteenth session of the General Assembly a report concerning the actual use of scholarships and training facilities offered by Member States to students from the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

- 71. At the same meeting, the Committee voted on this draft resolution. It was adopted by 61 votes to none, with 5 abstentions.
- 72. The text as approved by the Committee appears in paragraph 73 of the present report as draft resolution XI.

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 855th plenary meeting, on 12 December 1959, the General Assembly adopted draft resolutions I, II, III, IV, V, VI, VII, VIII, IX, X and XI submitted by the Fourth Committee (A/4343, para. 73). For the final texts, see resolutions 1461 (XIV), 1462 (XIV), 1463 (XIV), 1464 (XIV), 1465 (XIV), 1466 (XIV), 1467 (XIV), 1468 (XIV), 1469 (XIV), 1470 (XIV) and 1471 (XIV) respectively, below.

At its 857th plenary meeting, on 12 December 1959, the General Assembly confirmed the election of six States as members of the special committee established under the terms of resolution 1467 (XIV).

Resolutions adopted by the General Assembly

1461 (XIV). Progress achieved by the Non-Self-Governing Territories in pursuance of Chapter XI of the Charter

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 932 (X) of 8 November 1955, in which it expressed the opinion that an examination of the progress achieved in the Non-Self-Governing Territories since the establishment of the United Nations, based on the information received from the Administering Members under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations, would be highly desirable and should make it possible to ascertain the extent to which the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories are advancing towards the attainment of the goals set in Chapter XI of the Charter,

Further recalling its resolution 1053 (XI) of 20 February 1957, in which it invited the Secretary-General, in collaboration with the specialized agencies concerned, to prepare a report on the progress that has taken place in the Non-Self-Governing Territories in those fields on which information has been transmitted, in accordance with the objectives set forth in Chapter XI of the Charter, since the establishment of the United Nations.

1. Expresses its appreciation of the work of the Secretary-General and of the specialized agencies in preparing the report on the progress achieved by the Non-Self-Governing Territories (see A/4196, annex);

- 2. Requests the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories to examine the above-mentioned report at its next session, in addition to its regular programme of work, with a view to ascertaining the progress made by the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the light of the objectives set forth in Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations;
- 3. Further requests the Committee to submit its observations and conclusions on the report to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session, in order to assist the Assembly in its consideration of the report;
- 4. Requests the Committee, in so doing, to be guided by the terms of all relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, in particular resolutions 932 (X) and 1053 (XI), as well as by the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1462 (XIV). Report on educational conditions in Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Considering that, by resolution 445 (V) of 12 December 1950, it approved the special report on educational conditions prepared in 1950 by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/1303/Rev.1, part two) as a brief but considered indication of the importance of educational advancement and of the problems of education still to be faced in the Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Considering that, by resolution 743 (VIII) of 27 November 1953, it approved a further report on education (A/2465, part two) as a supplement to the report approved in 1950,

Considering that, by resolution 1048 (XI) of 20 February 1957, it approved another report on education drawn up in 1956 (A/3127, part two),

Noting the report on educational conditions prepared in 1959 by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/4111, part two),

- 1. Approves the report on educational conditions prepared in 1959 by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories, and considers that it should be studied in conjunction with the reports approved in 1950, 1953 and 1957;
- 2. Invites the Secretary-General to communicate the 1959 report to Member States responsible for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories, to the Economic and Social Council, to the regional economic commissions, to the Trusteeship Council and to the specialized agencies concerned, for their consideration;
- 3. Expresses its confidence that the Members responsible for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories will bring the report to the attention of the authorities responsible for education in those Territories.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1463 (XIV). Development of primary education in Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Recalling the obligations which, under Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations, are incumbent upon Members administering Territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses.

Considering in the spirit of those principles that, in order to develop primary education and to combat illiteracy among the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories, the Administering Members should endeavor to create in those Territories conditions which are not less favourable than those enjoyed by the peoples of the advanced countries,

Reaffirming its resolutions 743 (VIII) of 27 November 1953 and 1049 (XI) of 20 February 1957, by which it recommended, inter alia, the establishment or extension of universal, free and compulsory primary education in the Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Noting, ten years after the adoption of resolution 330 (1V) of 2 December 1949, in which the General Assembly recognized that one of the fundamental problems in Non-Self-Governing Territories is illiteracy, that the progress made in this field has been very slow,

Having noted that, in its report on educational conditions, the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories was obliged to reiterate the view expressed in 1950 that the eradication of illiteracy is a problem of the utmost urgency in the majority of the Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/4111, part two, para. 44),

- 1. Recommends that the Administering Members take all necessary steps to develop the primary education of the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories, to the end that such education may be raised as soon as possible to the level enjoyed by the peoples of the advanced countries;
- 2. Invites the Administering Members to communicate to the Secretary-General, for the seventeenth session of the General Assembly, information on the measures taken and the progress achieved towards the establishment of universal, free and compulsory primary education, with the aim of eradicating illiteracy among the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories which they administer.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1464 (XIV). Equal treatment in matters relating to education in Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 328 (IV) of 2 December 1949 on equal treatment in matters relating to education in Non-Self-Governing Territories, and all other relevant resolutions,

Having regard to the fundamental importance of race relations, particularly under modern conditions, for the attainment of the objectives of Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations,

Having considered the special report submitted by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/4111, part two, paras. 30-38),

Recognizing that some progress has been achieved in equal treatment in matters relating to education in Non-Self-Governing Territories,

- 1. Reaffirms its resolution 328 (IV);
- 2. Urges the Administering Members to intensify their efforts to fulfil the basic objectives of the abovementioned resolution;
- 3. Endorses the view expressed by the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories that on no ground whatsoever can education on a racial basis be justified (ibid., para. 37);
- 4. Requests the committee to pay special attention to this matter and to continue to bring out the salient facts in its annual report on conditions in the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1465 (XIV). Dissemination of information on the United Nations in the Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Recalling the obligations of Member States, enumerated in Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations, which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories towards the inhabitants of these Territories,

Reiterating the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these Territories are paramount,

Considering it necessary that the political, economic, social and educational advancement of these inhabitants, as envisaged in the Charter, should be accelerated,

Recalling the principle underlying the public information activities of the United Nations that the Organization cannot achieve the purposes for which it has been created unless the peoples of the world are informed of its aims and activities,

Considering therefore that it is important that the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories be widely informed concerning the United Nations,

- 1. Requests the Administering Members to adopt necessary measures for the dissemination of information concerning the United Nations among the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories and for this purpose to seek the active support and participation of the organizations representative of these inhabitants;
- 2. Invites the attention of Administering Members to the recommendations contained in paragraph 54 of part two of the 1959 report of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories (A/4111), and requests them to furnish the Secretary-General with information concerning the implementation of the recommendations;
- 3. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare for the fifteenth session of the General Assembly a special report on the present state of the dissemination of information concerning the United Nations in Non-Self-Governing Territories, and on further measures necessary to this end

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1466 (XIV). Participation of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of the United Nations and of the specialized agencies

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 566 (VI) of 18 January 1952, and in particular:

- (a) The first preambular paragraph, in which it noted the Secretary-General's proposal concerning the use of the United Nations to promote by peaceful means the progress of dependent peoples to a position of equality with Member States of the United Nations,
- (b) The fourth preambular paragraph, in which it stated that the direct association of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in the work of the United Nations and of the specialized agencies is an effective means of promoting the progress of the peoples of those Territories towards a position of equality with Member States of the United Nations,
- (c) Operative paragraph 2, in which it commended the use of the special provisions in the constitutions of some of the specialized agencies and of the regional economic commissions of the United Nations permitting the admission of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to those agencies and commissions as associate members, on the proposal of the Administering Member concerned,

Recalling its resolutions 647 (VII) of 10 December 1952 and 744 (VIII) of 27 November 1953, in which it reaffirmed the provisions of the above-mentioned resolution and expressly invited the Member States administering Non-Self-Governing Territories progressively to increase the participation of indigenous representatives from those Territories in the work of the technical organs of the United Nations, including the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories and the specialized agencies, Noting with satisfaction that some Non-Self-Governing Territories are already participating fruitfully in the work of certain specialized agencies and certain regional economic commissions,

- 1. Invites the Administering Members to submit to the specialized agencies the candidature of the Territories referred to in Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations with a view to their admission as members, associate members or observers, according to the constitution of the agency concerned;
- 2. Specially requests all Member States administering Non-Self-Governing Territories in Africa to propose the participation of these Territories in the work of the Economic Commission for Africa;
- 3. Re-emphasizes the great advantage of the Administering Members including in their delegations representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to participate in the work of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories and in the discussion of such matters in the Fourth Committee;
- 4. Invites the Administering Members to furnish the Secretary-General with a report on the practical measures taken to implement the present resolution;
- 5. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session on the progress made.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1467 (XIV). General questions relating to the transmission and examination of information

The General Assembly,

Having regard to the provisions of Chapter XI of the Charter of the United Nations, and in particular to the obligation to transmit information under Article 73 e accepted by Members which have or assume responsibilities for Territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government,

Recalling that, by its resolution 334 (IV) of 2 December 1949, the General Assembly considered that is within its responsibility to express its opinion on the principles which have guided, or may in future guide, the Administering Members in enumerating the Territories for which the obligation exists to transmit information under Article 73 e of the Charter,

Recalling also that, by its resolution 742 (VIII) of 27 November 1953, the General Assembly approved a list of factors to be taken into account in deciding whether a Territory is or is not a Territory whose people have not yet attained a full measure of self-government,

Noting that Member States have expressed differing opinions as to the application of the provisions of Chapter XI to Territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government, including the obligation to transmit the information called for in Article 73 e of the Charter,

1. Considers that it would be desirable for the General Assembly to enumerate the principles which should guide Members in determining whether or not an obligation exists to transmit the information called for in Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations;

- 2. Decides to establish a special committee consisting of six members to be elected by the Fourth Committee on behalf of the General Assembly three of whom shall be Members who transmit information under Article 73 e of the Charter and three non-administering Members to study these principles and to report on the results of its study to the Assembly at its fifteenth session;
- 3. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare for the use of this committee an account of the history of this matter, including a summary of the opinions on the subject which have been expressed by Member States in the past and of the relevant legal treaties on the interpretation of the Charter;
- 4. Invites Member States to submit in writing to the Secretary-General, before 1 May 1960, their views on these principles, in order that the committee may take them into account.

At its 994th meeting, the Fourth Committee, acting in the name of the General Assembly, elected the members of the special committee established under the terms of the above resolution. At its 857th plenary meeting on 12 December 1959 the General Assembly confirmed the election.

The Committee is composed as follows: India, Mexico, Morocco, Netherlands, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and United States of America.

1468 (XIV). VOLUNTARY TRANSMISSION OF INFORMA-TION ON POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS IN NON-SELF GOVERNING TERRITORIES

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 144 (II) of 3 November 1947, 327 (IV) of 2 December 1949, 511 (VI) of 7 December 1951 and 848 (IX) of 22 November 1954 regarding the voluntary transmission of information on political developments in the Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Noting that only some Members responsible for the administration of the Non-Self-Governing Territories voluntarily transmit information on the development of political institutions in those Territories,

Recognizing that the principles and objectives set forth in Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations relate as much to the political advancement of the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories as to their advancement in economic, social and educational fields,

Recalling further that under Article 73 b of the Charter the Administering Members have assumed the obligation to develop self-government in the Non-Self-Governing Territories, with due regard to the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions,

Conscious of the inextricable relationship between developments in the political and functional fields,

- 1. Endorses the observations of the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories, based on its examination of the information transmitted by the Administering Members, that speedy advancement in the functional fields is usually obtained where there is a broadest participation of the inhabitants in political bodies empowered to establish policies and to vote budgets (A/4111, part two, para. 27);
- 2. Requests the Administering Members to do their utmost to mobilize the effective participation of the inhabitants of the Non-Self-Governing Territories by transferring to them effective power in order to accelerate their social, economic and educational advancement;

- 3. Considers that the transmission of information on developments in the political field will enable the General Assembly better to assess the information transmitted by the Administering Members concerning educational, social and economic development in the Non-Self-Governing Territories;
- 4. Reitcrates the view that the voluntary transmission of information on political developments in the Non-Self-Governing Territories is fully in accord with the spirit of Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations;
- 5. Urges the Administering Members concerned to extend their full co-operation in this matter by voluntarily transmitting information of a political and constitutional character with regard to developments in the Territories under their respective administrations, including the establishment of intermediate time-tables leading to the attainment of self-government by these Territories.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1469 (XIV). CESSATION OF THE TRANSMISSION OF INFORMATION UNDER ARTICLE 73 E OF THE CHARTER IN RESPECT OF ALASKA AND HAWAII

The General Assembly,

Recalling that, by resolution 222 (III) of 3 November 1948, the General Assembly, while welcoming any development of self-government in Non-Self-Governing Territories, considered it essential that the United Nations be informed of any change in the constitutional status of any such Territory as a result of which the responsible Government concerned thinks it unnecessary to transmit information in respect of that Territory under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations,

Having received from the Government of the United States of America communications dated 2 June 1959 (A/4115) and 17 September 1959 (A/4226) informing the Secretary-General that Alaska and Hawaii, respectively, have, as a result of their admission into the United States as the forty-ninth and fiftieth States, attained a full measure of self-government and that, as a consequence of this change in their constitutional status, the United States Government would cease to transmit information under Article 73 e of the Charter in respect of Alaska and Hawaii,

Having examined the communications of the Government of the United States of America in the light of the basic principles and objectives embodied in Chapter XI of the Charter and of all the other elements of judgement pertinent to the issue,

Bearing in mind the competence of the General Assembly to decide whether a Non-Self-Governing Territory has or has not attained a full measure of self-government as referred to in Chapter XI of the Charter,

- 1. Takes note of the opinion of the Government of the United States of America that, owing to the new constitutional status of Alaska and Hawaii, it is no longer appropriate or necessary for it to transmit information under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations in respect of Alaska and Hawaii.
- 2. Expresses the opinion, based on its examination of the documentation and the explanations provided, that the people of Alaska and Hawaii have effectively exercised their right to self-determination and have freely chosen their present status;

- 3. Congratulates the United States of America and the people of Alaska and Hawaii upon the attainment of a full measure of self-government by the people of Alaska and Hawaii:
- 4. Considers that, owing to the circumstances mentioned above, the declaration regarding Non-Self-Governing Territories and the provisions established under it in Chapter XI of the Charter can no longer be applied to Alaska and Hawaii;
- 5. Considers it appropriate that the transmission of information in respect of Alaska and Hawaii under Article 73 e of the Charter should cease.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1470 (XIV). Effects of the European Economic Community on the development of certain Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Referring to its resolution 1330 (XIII) of 12 December 1958,

Having examined the report of the Secretary-General on the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community (A/4197),

Noting with concern that the Administering Members have not yet submitted sufficient information on the possible effects of the association of the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration with the European Economic Community,

Considering that the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community may have significant effects on the development of these Territories towards the objectives of Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations,

- 1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community;
- 2. Again invites the Administering Members concerned to transmit to the Secretary-General information on the possible effects of the association of the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration with the European Economic Community;
- 3. Requests the Committee on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories to devote special attention at its 1960 session, at which it is to deal particularly with the economic development of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, to the question of the association of certain Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community and to the possible effects of this association on the development of these Territories towards the objectives of Article 73 of the Charter of the United Nations;
- 4. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare, for the fifteenth session of the General Assembly, a report on new developments connected with the association of Non-Self-Governing Territories with the European Economic Community, taking into account the information to be submitted by the Administering Members and the studies that may be undertaken in this connexion by the Economic and Social Council, the Economic Commission for Africa, the Economic Commission for Europe, the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, the Economic Commission for Latin America and other international organs, in so far as these studies may be relevant to the development of Non-Self-Governing Territories;

5. Resolves to resume consideration of this question at its fifteenth session.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

1471 (XIV). Offers by Member States of Study and training facilities for inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind that most of the Non-Self-Governing Territories do not have sufficient facilities for higher education which would ensure the education of highly qualified indigenous cadres,

Considering the urgent need in the Non-Self-Governing Territories for indigenous personnel who could take over the functions held by those non-indigenous persons who up to now have occupied the most important positions in the administration of those Territories,

Noting with satisfaction the further response to its resolution 845 (IX) of 22 November 1954 inviting Member States to extend offers of facilities for study and training to the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Expressing regret that a great number of the scholarships offered by Member States remain unutilized,

Further expressing regret that some Administering Members do not provide all students who have been accorded scholarships with facilities to leave the Non-Self-Governing Territories in order to take advantage of such scholarships,

Recalling its resolution 845 (IX) inviting the Member States to make scholarships available to qualified students from the Non-Self-Governing Territories,

- 1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on offers of study and training facilities under General Assembly resolution 845 (IX) (A/4196 and Add. 1);
- 2. Reaffirms its resolution 1331 (XIII) of 12 December 1958, and invites the Administering Members to take all necessary measures consistent with the interests and needs of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and their peoples to ensure that scholarships and training facilities offered by Member States may be utilized by the inhabitants of those Territories, and to render every assistance to those persons who have applied for, or have been granted, scholarships or fellowships, particularly with regard to facilitating their travel formalities;
- 3. Requests all Administering Members which have not done so to give the fullest publicity in the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration to all offers of study and training facilities made by Member States;
- 4. Requests the Member States offering scholarships to take into account the necessity of furnishing complete information about the scholarships offered, and, whenever possible, the need to provide travel funds to prospective students;
- 5. Requests the Secretary-General to give such assistance as is possible, and as may be sought by the Member States concerned and by the applicants;
- 6. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare for the fifteenth session of the General Assembly a report concerning the actual use of scholarships and training facilities offered by Member States to students from the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

855th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

Report of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa

LETTER DATED 21 SEPTEMBER 1959 FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE GOOD OFFICES COMMITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA ADDRESSED TO THE SECRETARY-GENERAL

I have the honour to transmit to you herewith the report of the United Nations Good Offices Committee on South West Africa prepared in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1243 (XIII) of 30 October 1958. The report was unanimously adopted by the members of the Good Offices Committee.

The Committee was requested by that resolution to submit its report to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session. I should therefore be grateful to you if you would distribute it to the Members of the United Nations.

(Signed) Charles ARDEN-CLARKE

1. The United Nations Good Offices Committee on South West Africa was established by General Assembly resolution 1143 (XII) of 25 October 1957, in accordance with which the Committee was directed to discuss with the Government of the Union of South Africa a basis for an agreement which would continue to accord to the Territory of South West Africa an international status.

^{*} For the discussion of this item, see Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourteenth Session, Fourth Committee, 890th, 900th, 904th to 932nd, 949th, 950th, 993rd and 994th meetings; and ibid., Plenary meetings, 838th and 857th meetings.

- 2. As a result of its activities prior to the thirteenth session of the General Assembly, the Committee submitted a report (A/3900) in which it gave an account of its discussions with the Government of the Union of South Africa. The report embodied the solutions proposed by the Committee which proved unacceptable to the Government and the solution proposed by the Government which proved unacceptable to the Committee. In the absence of an agreement on any other proposals, the Committee expressed to the General Assembly (a) the opinion that a form of partition might provide a basis for an agreement concerning the Territory of South West Africa, and (b) the hope that the General Assembly would therefore encourage the Government of the Union of South Africa to carry out an investigation of the practicability of partition, on the understanding that if the investigation proved this approach to be practicable the Government would be prepared to submit to the United Nations proposals for the partitioning of the Territory.
- 3. Following the discussion of this report at its thirteenth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 1243 (XIII) of 30 October 1958 by which it decided not to accept the suggestions contained in the report of the Committee that envisaged partition and annexation of any part of the Territory as a basis for the solution of the question of South West Africa; invited the Committee to renew discussions which the Government of the Union of South Africa in order to find a basis for an agreement which would continue to accord to the Mandated Territory of South West Africa as a whole an international status, and which would be in conformity with the purposes and principles of the United Nations; requested the Committee, in the conduct of its work, to bear fully in mind the discussions held at the thirteenth session of the General Assembly; requested the Committee to submit a further report to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session; and requested the Secretary-General to continue to provide the Committee with all necessary staff and facilities.
- 4. During the period under review, Member States were represented on the Committee by the following persons:

Brazil:

Representative: Mr. Vasco T. Leitão da Cunha; Alternate representative: Mr. Carlos Sette Gomes Pereira; United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland: Representative: Sir Charles Noble Arden-Clarke;

United States of America:

Representative: Mr. Walter N. Walmsley; (later): Mr. William Howard Taft III;

Alternate representative: Mr. Benjamin Gerig.

Sir Charles Arden-Clarke continued to hold office as Chairman of the Committee. In accordance with the terms of resolution 1243 (XIII) the Committee was assisted throughout its work by a secretariat appointed by the Secretary-General.

5. The Committee held a series of meetings from 15 to 22 January 1959 with a view to determining the action to be taken by it under General Assembly resolution 1243 (XIII). A letter dated 22 January was then sent by the Chairman to the Minister of External Affairs of the Union of South Africa (see annex I). The letter expressed readiness on the part of the Com-

- mittee to renew discussions with the Government of the Union of South Africa in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1243 (XIII) and invited it to designate a representative or representatives to confer with the Committee at a time and place to be mutually agreed upon.
- 6. The reply of the Government of the Union of South Africa was contained in a letter dated 15 May 1959 from the Union Minister of External Affairs addressed to the Chairman of the Committee (see annex II). The Union Government stated inter alia, that it was still prepared to act in accordance with the spirit which animated the 1957 resolution of the General Assembly establishing the Committee and to collaborate with the Committee on the basis of the terms of reference contained therein. It stood by that resolution and in particular by the recommendation included in the final paragraph of the report of the Committee regarding an investigation of the partition suggestion. If, however, the Committee should feel that it was debarred by the 1958 resolution from giving further consideration to the partition proposal, it was difficult to see what useful purposes could be served by renewing, under the Committee's new and much restricted terms of reference, the discussions which had been initiated in the previous year in such completely different circum-
- 7. The Committee held a further series of meetings on 16 and 17 June 1959 to consider the reply of the Union Government and approved a further letter which was sent by the Chairman on 19 June 1959 to the Union Minister of External Affairs (see annex III). In that letter the Committee stated that its terms of reference under the 1958 resolution were not essentially different from those under the 1957 resolution. It was true that the 1958 resolution specifically ruled out the suggestions which envisaged partition or annexation as a basis for a solution, but the Committee itself had been the first to point out that in bringing such suggestions to the notice of the General Assembly it was laying itself open to the charge of having exceeded its 1957 terms of reference. The Committee went on to state that it was prepared to renew the discussions in the same spirit which had animated it throughout. In view of the assurance of the Union Government's sincere desire to find a mutually acceptable solution to the question, the Committee reiterated the invitation for further discussions contained in the previous letter.
- 8. In a reply dated 15 July 1959 (see annex IV), the Minister of External Affairs of the Union Government, while disagreeing with the view of the Committee that its present terms of reference were not essentially different from those under the 1957 resolution, stated that in accordance with his Government's desire to find a mutually acceptable solution to the South West Africa issue, it was prepared to have representatives available in New York to explore means towards that end
- 9. Renewed discussions with representatives of the Union Government took place between 11 and 21 September in New York, the Union Government being represented by Mr. W. C. Naudé, Under-Secretary for External Affairs and by Mr. B. G. Fourie, Permanent Representative to the United Nations.
- 10. In opening the discussion, the Committee made it clear that it was bound by its 1958 terms of reference and that in consequence partition had been ruled out as a solution, but that there were other possible solutions which merited consideration. In the absense of any proposal from the Union representatives, the Committee pointed out that because of its need to report to the General Assembly within a short space of time detailed negotiations seemed precluded, and suggested that the Union Government and the Committee might agree on the following formula, within the framework of which future negotiations should take place:

- "It is agreed that further talks might be concentrated on the negotiation of some form of agreement to which the United Nations must be a party for the supervision of the administration of South West Africa in a manner which would not impose greater responsibilities on the Union Government or impair the rights enjoyed by it under the Mandate."
- 11. The Union representatives replied that the formula proposed by the Committee was not one to which their Government could subscribe. They stated that their Government's difficulties were the same as those put forward by Union representatives at Pretoria and summarized in paragraphs 38 to 41 of the Committee's previous report (A/3900).
- · 12. Subsequently the Union representatives explained the attitude of their Government as follows:
 - "(1) The Union Government in the spirit of the 'new approach' initiated at the 1957 Assembly, and in view of the terms of the Assembly resolution containing the terms of reference, agreed to meet the Good Offices Committee at Pretoria in 1958, when the whole South West Africa issue was fully discussed in a cordial spirit.
 - "(2) A proposal for the settlement of the issue put forward by the Good Offices Committee was unacceptable to South Africa; likewise, a proposal made by the Union could not be entertained by the Committee, in spite of the fact that in our opinion it went a considerable way towards meeting the attitude taken by the Assembly during past years.
 - "(3) The Union Government did, however, express its willingness to investigate a suggestion regarding a proposed partition of the South West Africa territory. This suggestion was in due course incorporated in the report with a recommendation of the Good Offices Committee.
 - "(4) The Committee's recommendation was rejected by the Fourth Committee and later also by the Assembly, which thereupon reappointed the Committee with new and very much restricted terms of reference.
- "(5) Although the Union Government saw little prospect of finding a solution of the South West Africa issue on the basis of the new and restricted terms of reference, it nevertheless agreed once more to discuss the issue with the reappointed Committee.
- "(6) The attitude of the Union Government was put to the Committee, viz. that the Union Government still stands by its undertaking to investigate the feasibility of the partition proposal as recommended in the concluding paragraphs of the Committee's previous report, such investigation naturally being made in consultation also with the indigenous inhabitants of the Territory. The attitude of the Union Government is in conformity with the spirit of the 'new approach' and of the resolution which was in - 1957 agreed to by a large majority of the Assembly. The Union Government is convinced that this recommendation contained in the Good Offices Committee's report still holds out the best prospects for settling the issue.

- "(7) The Committee's attitude is that it is precluded by the new terms of reference from considering the recommendation contained in last year's report. The Union Government hopes that it will be realized that the interests of the indigenous inhabitants demand that this avenue be explored.
- "(8) As already indicated the Union Government is unable to accept the proposal put forward by the Committee [see para. 10, above]. In its view this proposal would not lead to a solution of the issue.
- ''(9) The Union delegation reminded the Committee that at the 1958 discussions the Union Government reiterated its willingness to enter into an agreement with the three remaining Allied and Associated Powers, from whom South Africa received the Mandate over South West Africa in 1920. That offer still stands. Once again the Committee was precluded from considering this suggested solution of the issue by its restricted terms of reference.
- "(10) In spite of these difficulties, the Union is still willing to continue negotations with the Committee for the purpose of arriving at an arrangement which would be acceptable both to the Union Government and to the United Nations, it being understood that such discussions will be without prejuduce to the juridical position which it has consistently held in regard to this issue."
- 13. Without wishing to comment on all aspects of the Union Government's statement, the Committee reiterated that it was not in a position, in view of the terms of General Assembly resolution 1243 (XIII), to consider proposals relating to partition and explained that its attitude concerning the offer to enter into an agreement with the three Powers remained the same as that set out in paragraph 44 of its previous report. The Committee appreciated that the final paragraph of the Union statement contained an expression of readiness to participate in further negotiations for the purpose of arriving at a mutually acceptable arrangement. After careful consideration however, the Committee expressed the view to the Union representatives that the paragraph in question was not sufficiently precise or encouraging, particularly when read in the context of the whole statement, to provide a framework within which further negotiations could take place with prospects of achieving an agreement acceptable to the United Nations.
- 14. The Union representatives stated that in an effort to meet the point of view of the Committee the Union wished to propose the following text:
 - "It is agreed that further talks with the Union Government should be concentrated on negotiation with the United Nations, through its Good Offices Committee, of some form of settlement regarding South West Africa, which would not impose greater (or more onerous) responsibilities on the Union Government or impair any of the rights conferred upon it by the Mandate in 1920, it being understood that such discussions will be without prejudice to the juridical position taken up by the Union in the past."

- 15. The Committee explained that the new text did not, in its view, improve the position and that it was unable to report it to the General Assembly as an agreed text.
- 16. The Committee, therefore, regrets to inform the General Assembly that it has not succeeded in finding a basis for an agreement under its terms of reference.

Annex I

LETTER DATED 22 JANUARY 1959 FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE GOOD OFFICES COMMITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA ADDRESSED TO THE MINISTER OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

I have the honour to inform you that the members of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa, at a meeting held in New York on 22 January 1959, expressed their readiness to renew discussions with representatives of the Government of the Union of South Africa in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1243 (XIII) of 30 October 1958.

The Committee accordingly invites the Government of the Union of South Africa to designate a representative or representatives to confer with it at a time and place to be agreed upon by the Committee and the Government of the Union of South Africa. The Committee suggests that London would be a suitable place for the renewal of the discussions initiated during 1958, and it would suit the convenience of the members of the Committee if the meeting could be arranged in June.

Annex II

LETTER DATED 15 MAY 1959 FROM THE MINISTER OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA ADDRESSED TO THE CHAIRMAN OF THE GOOD OFFICES COMMITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA

I have the honour to refer to your letter TR. 230 of 22nd January 1959, and to inform you that the invitation contained therein for further discussions with your Committee on the subject of South West Africa has been carefully considered by the Government of the Union of South Africa.

Resolution 1243 (XIII) of October 30th, 1958, in terms of which your invitation is extended, invited the Good Offices Committee to "renew" discussions with the Union Government. The Assembly apparently assumed that the circumstances which existed at the time of the Pretoria discussions sets which existed at the time of the Case. Subsequent events and discussions at the thirteenth Assembly of the United Nations have, as you will agree, materially affected the situation. It is most important that this fact should be fully appreciated, and I therefore take the liberty of briefly reviewing the circumstances which persuaded the Union Government to respond favourably to the invitation to enter into discussions in terms of General Assembly resolution 1143 (XII) adopted the previous year.

As you will recall, it was clearly stated at the time, and repeated during the initial stages of the Fourth Committee's debate, that the Union Government, impressed as it was by the spirit which animated the "new approach", was prepared to regard your Committee's invitation as evidence of a sincere desire on the part of a large number of Member States to undertake a fresh start on the South West African issue, and to see whether, in a spirit of mutual goodwill and understanding, a solution acceptable to all parties could be achieved.

It was in these circumstances that we consented to meet your Committee—on the strict understanding, of course, that participation in the discussions would be without prejudice to the Union's consistently held stand on the juridical aspect of the issue. As further evidence of the Union Government's goodwill, the Committee was invited to come to Pretoria for the talks, which were there conducted in a frank and cordial atmosphere.

You will recall, also, that it was only after several avenues for arriving at an agreement had been explored, that your Committee mentioned the so-called partition proposal, which visualized the partition of South West Africa in such a manner that the northern part of the Territory, which would house the Native peoples, would be placed under the trusteeship of the United Nations, to be administered as an integral part of South Africa, while the rest of the Territory would be annexed to the Union. The Union's representative, as you will remember, expressed the view that this suggestion merited further study, and, after further discussion, it was agreed that your Committee would in its report recommend to the United Nations that the Union Government be requested to investigate the feasibility of such a plan.

In this connexion it is important that I remind you of the specific assurances of which I gave to the Fourth Committee that the wishes of all the inhabitants of the Territory would be taken into account in the course of any investigation undertaken by the Union Government and that we would only put forward to the United Nations a specific proposal in the event of our investigation proving the partition proposal to be a feasible one.

I need hardly remind you and your fellow members of what happened in New York. Almost immediately after the Fourth Committee had convened, a violent attack was launched against the report of your Committee—an attack which was continued for several days. When the Fourth Committee by a large majority decided to hear the evidence of Messrs. Scott and Getzen on the report of your Committee, I was obliged to inform the Fourth Committee that the majority of delegations had clearly come to the meeting determined to wreck the report—and at the same time to wreck the so-called "new approach".

This view was fully borne out by the discussions which ensued after the withdrawal of the Union delegation, when numerous distasteful allegations were made concerning not only the Union's administration of South West Africa, but also the Union's internal affairs. It was clear that there was little if any hope that there would be an objective discussion of the proposals contained in the Good Offices Committee's report. Moreover, the general tone of the ensuing discussion showed that we were correct in our view that the essential elements of conciliation and goodwill had in fact been absent from the beginning of the discussions in the Fourth Committee. Indeed, this unfortunate fact was brought into clear relief when it proved to be impossible to secure a clear majority for even the straightforward proposal to express appreciation of the work done by the Good Offices Committee! In the event, the "new approach" upon which our hopes were built for a solution of the South West African issue, was wrecked by the fairly large majority of the Fourth Committee.

It is true of course that an effort was made to salvage the "new approach". Those delegations who had endeavoured to pursue a realistic and constructive course sought to save the situation by moving for the reappointment of the Good Offices Committee. This they could, however, only achieve by sacrificing what to the Union Government were essential elements in the "new approach", and resolution 1243 (XIII) of October 30th, 1958, therefore emerged from the Assembly inter alia with your Committee's new and much restricted terms of reference. You, and the other two members of the Committee who participated in the frank and friendly discussions at Pretoria, and who were able to acquaint yourselves with the views of the Union Government, will, I am sure, appreciate that the new and restricted terms of reference could not possibly form the basis of an agreement.

The position is that the Union Government is still prepared to act in accordance with the spirit which animated the 1957 resolution, and to collaborate with your Committee on the basis of the terms of reference contained therein. The Union Government stands by the 1957 resolution of the Assembly, and particularly by the recommendation included in the final paragraphs of the report of the Good Offices Committee regarding an investigation of the partition suggestion—a suggestion which, I think you will agree, was never seriously considered by the Fourth Committee.

In this connexion the Union Government has noted with interest that in adopting a resolution on March 13th, 1959, in connexion with the future of the British Cameroons, the General Assembly had no objection to the two principles of partition and annexation.

Should your Committee feel that it is debarred, by the 1958 resolution, from trying to find a solution on the basis of your report to the General Assembly, and therefore from giving further consideration to the partition proposal, it is difficult to see what useful purpose could be served by renewing the discussions which were initiated last year under such completely different circumstances.

In conclusion, I wish once more to assure you and your fellow Committee members of the Union Government's sincere desire to find a mutually acceptable solution of the South West African issue.

Annex III

LETTER DATED 19 JUNE 1959 FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE GOOD OFFICES COMMITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA ADDRESSED TO THE MINISTER OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

I have the honour to refer to your letter of 15 May 1959 regarding the invitation of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa for the renewal of discussions concerning that Territory. Your letter has been given most careful consideration by the Good Offices Committee, which has approved the present reply.

With regard to the expression of the views of your Government on the proceedings of the Fourth Committee on this question during the thirteenth session of the General Assembly, you will, I feel sure, appreciate that it would be quite improper for the Committee to enter into any controversy over the views expressed during those proceedings. Rather it conceives it to be its task, while bearing those discussions fully in mind, to seek by sincere and conciliatory discussions the basis for an agreement concerning the future status of the Territory according to the principles set forth in resolution 1243 (XIII) of the General Assembly.

The Committee wishes to comment, however, on the fifth paragraph of your letter, in which you give an account of the "partition proposal", which might be taken to imply that the Committee had itself proposed that South West Africa should be partitioned and part annexed to the Union. As will be noted from the report of the Committee (A/3900, paragraph 51), and the statement of the Chairman to the Fourth Committee (A/C. 4/PV.745, pp. 7 and 8), the Committee merely expressed the opinion that a form of partition might provide a basis for a solution and the hope that the Union would be encouraged to carry out an investigation.

The Committee has further noted that your Government, while expressing its readiness to collaborate with the Good Offices Committee on the basis of the terms of reference contained in the 1957 resolution, finds it difficult to see what useful purpose could be served by renewing the discussions under the present circumstances. It is the view of the Committee that its terms of reference under the 1958 resolution are not essentially different from those under the 1957 resolution. It is true that the 1958 resolution specifically rules out suggestions that envisage partition or annexation as a basis for a solution, but the Committee itself was the first to point out both in Pretoria and in its report that in bringing them to the notice of the General Assembly it was laying itself open to the charge of having exceeded its 1957 terms of reference.

I wish to assure you that the Committee is prepared to renew the discussions in the same spirit which has animated it throughout. In view of the assurances of the sincere desire of your Government to find a mutually acceptable solution to this question, the Committee has requested me to reiterate the invitation for further discussion contained in my letter of 22 January 1959. Since the time available is now limited by the need to present a report to the forthcoming session of the General Assembly, the Committee would appreciate being informed at an early date whether your Government agrees to the renewal of the discussions and, if so, what date you would suggest.

Annex IV

LETTER DATED 15 JULY 1959 FROM THE MINISTER OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA TO THE CHAIRMAN OF THE GOOD OFFICES COMMITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA

I have the honour to refer to your letter TR 230 of 19th June 1959, in which you enquire whether the Government of the Union of South Africa agrees to the renewal of the discussions with your Committee and if so, to suggest a date.

It is noted that your Committee had given careful consideration to my letter of 15th May last in which I explained fully why the Union Government found it difficult to see what useful purpose could be served by renewing the discussions which were initiated last year under such completely different circumstances. It is further noted that in the view of your Committee the present terms of reference are not essentially different from those under the 1957 resolution—a view with which the Union Government cannot agree. Your letter also leaves me with the impression that your Committee feels that despite the Union Government's views as expressed in my letter of 15th May, there is a possibility that progress can be made through a renewal of the discussions.

As was repeatedly stated both at the Pretoria talks and during the discussions of the Fourth Committee last year, it is the Union Government's desire to find a way out of the impasse which could lead to a mutually acceptable solution of the South West Africa issue. In accordance with that expressed desire the Union Government is prepared to have representatives available in New York to explore, with your Committee, means towards that end. If it would suit the convenience of your Committee it is therefore suggested that the discussions might commence in New York on 11th September 1959.

The Union Government notes that the Good Offices Committee is prepared to renew discussions in the same spirit which animated the Pretoria talks. For my part I should like to assure you that this sentiment also reflects the sincere desire of the Union Government.

DOCUMENT A/C.4/413

Letter dated 29 September 1959 from the Permanent Representative of the Union of South Africa to the United Nations, addressed to the Secretary of the Fourth Committee

Original text: English] [30 September 1959]

It will be recalled that at the 884th meeting of the Fourth Committee, Mr. Louw, the Leader of the South African Delegation, requested that certain articles and correspondence be circulated as official documents.

I enclose herewith the three documents in question and shall be grateful if they can be circulated as official documents of the Fourth Committee.

ENCLOSURES

Copy of a dispatch by the South African Press Association published in the South African newspapers regarding the visit of a group of foreign journalists to Rehoboth, the home of the Beukes family.

Interviewed by a group of foreign correspondents, members of the Rehoboth Advisory Council said that if Mr. Beukes were to speak at the United Nations against the Union Government and the Administration of South West Africa, he would not be doing so on behalf of the Rehoboth community or the Advisory Council.

Hans Beukes's grandfather, Johannes Beukes, who is a member of the Advisory Council, told the journalists:

"I specifically warned him, when the Council sponsored his passport to go to Norway to study, not to allow himself to be influenced to attack the South African Government or the South West African Administration while he was abroad."

He said he wanted Hans to go overseas and qualify so that he "could return to South West Africa and serve his own people". He had also told him that if he acted like Getzen (who is also from South West Africa and who attacked the Union Government at the United Nations) it would make it difficult for other students to get passports for study purposes abroad.

The father of Hans Beukes, Herman Christoffel Beukes, who is chairman of the Rehoboth Civic Association, confirmed that Hans had no authority to speak at the United Nations on behalf of the Rehoboth Advisory Council or the Rehoboth community.

He believed that if Hans went to the United Nations, it would not be to attack South Africa or South West Africa, but to enlist the assistance of the United Nations in enabling him to return to South West Africa after completing his studies in Norway.

"If I knew where he was, I would send him a cable instructing him not to make representations at the United Nations on matters affecting our community, because this is a matter between us, the Government of South Africa and the South West Africa Administration", he said.

Extracts from a news item in the Windhoek Advertiser of 7 August 1959

Beukes says news report wanted to make liar out of son

"Could you please tell me where my son is", said Mr. H. C. Beukes, father of the Rehoboth-born student, Hans Beukes, when he entered the Advertiser office this week. Tears were forming in his eyes ...

Mr. H. C. Beukes, the father of Hans, came to the Advertiser office as result of an article sent by a SAPA reporter to various newspapers.

Mr. Beukes said that his words had been twisted and was written, in his opinion, to make a liar out of his son if he talks overseas.

Only one fact was correct in the article, said Mr. Beukes. He had told the correspondent that if his son now talks against the Government overseas because his passport has been taken away, then he blames the Government because they should not have taken his passport away...

Mr. Beukes said that he had not said that Hans had no authority to speak at the United Nations on behalf of the Rehoboth Community. His father had also not said so ...

Mr. David Friedmann The Editor, SAPA P.O. Box 7766 Johannesburg

Dear Mr. Friedmann,

Thank you for your copy of extracts from the Windhoek Advertiser concerning the interview a number of Foreign Correspondents visiting South West Africa as guests of the Administration had recently with the Beukes family at Rehoboth.

During the 7 years since our Association was formed we have resisted and will continue to resist all efforts to draw us into S. Africa's politics but in the interests of accuracy you might like to know the following facts, which are corroborated by the members of our Association who were invited to South West Africa.

We went to Rehoboth at our request hoping to meet members of the Beukes family, although nothing had been arranged by the Administration. We found Hans Beukes's grandfather by accident when we were looking for members of the Raad who would give us their point of view and while we were talking to him Hans Beukes's father came forward spontaneously to talk to us.

The two members of the Administration who had driven us to Rehoboth took no part in these conversations. Both father and grandfather answered our questions readily and volunteered further information.

Since receiving a copy of the Windhoek Advertiser we have checked our notes of those interviews with the story put out by SAPA. Our notes confirm it as an accurate report of both the Beukes statements to us, which we ourselves cabled overseas.

We should have been happy to have given them to the Windhoek Advertiser if they had approached us. No restrictions were placed on us by the Administration at any time. In fact a visit to Rehoboth had not been included in the original schedule for our visit. It was arranged by the Administration at the last minute at our request.

Very sincerely yours,

DOCUMENT A/C.4/422

Letter dated 18 June 1959 from the Reverend William J. Devenney to the Chairman of the Committee on South West Africa

Note by the Secretariat: The following letter is circulated to members of the Fourth Committee in accordance with a decision taken by the Committee at its 900th meeting. All the footnotes in this document are author's notes.

Would you be so kind as to read the following to the Committee on South West Africa, or at least, see that the members are aware of it. It is impossible that I appear before the Committee, since I am sailing for South West Africa July 1, 1959.

(Signed) Rev. William J. DEVENNEY

TO THE COMMITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA:

Re: Statements concerning Roman Catholic Mission Schools made by Mr. Kerina (Getzen) at the seven hundred and forty-ninth meeting held at Headquarters, New York, on Monday, 6 October 1958 at 3.15 p.m.^{a/} and at the seven hundred and fifty-fifth meeting held at Headquarters, New York, on Thursday, 9 October 1958, at 3.15 p.m.^{b/}

Introduction to the writer:

The Rev. William J. Devenney is a citizen of the United States of America, a B.A. in Philosophy and an M.A. in Anthropology, Manager of the Roman Catholic Elementary School at Luderitz, South West Africa, and a permanent resident of South West Africa since 1953.

Status of the Roman Catholic Elementary School at Luderitz, South West Africa:

Recognized by the Department of Education, South West Africa.

Enrolment: About 120 African and Coloured pupils.

Teachers: Two Coloured (one of them non-Catholic) at the Coloured School; one nun (White) at the African School. (The Government requires that there be a separation of Coloureds and Africans when they attend school; i.e., that there be two different school buildings, one for Coloureds and one for Africans).

Religion: Roman Catholic, but admits and has admitted non-Catholics. No child is forced to become Roman Catholic.

Number of Standards: The Coloured School goes to Standard VI. The African School goes to Standard IV, but could also have had the same as the Coloured School if local parents kept their children in school after Standards II and IV. There must be a certain number of pupils as minimum for each Standard taught.

Languages: Afrikaans is the first language and English the second, for both African and Coloured children.

Textbooks: The same for African and Coloured pupils.

I, the Rev. William J. Devenney, in my capacity as Manager and Spiritual Guide for the Roman Catholic Mission School at Luderitz, South West Africa, defend the Catholic philosophy of education against the inaccurate statements made by one Mr. Kerina (Getzen) on the 6 and 9 October 1958 and published as official records under the symbols A/C.4/PV.749 and A/C.4/PV.755.

Mr. Kerina (Getzen), when he speaks of Roman Catholic Mission Schools, seems to have adopted the practice of dealing in generalities or drawing conclusions from unsubstantiated statements. Furthermore, he has not, to my knowledge, answered the questions put to him by Mr. Rodríguez Fabregat.

The questions of Mr. Rodríguez Fabregat: ^c/

"Referring, in particular, to some of Mr. Kerina's previous statements, I hope I may be forgiven for coming now to another field, which is understandably more familiar to me and nearer to my heart—the field of education and its problems in the Territory. On the hypothesis that, at the very least, a population under Mandate was offered new prospects of intellectual development and progress, I would ask Mr. Kerina to explain and amplify some of the very grave statements he made before this Committee on 6 and 7 October—two days ago—regarding the educational system in the Territory of South West Africa. I should like to know whether this educational system is based roughly on a supposedly religious concept which implies the supremacy of the white, European population over the African population. And I would ask ... in what institution the absurd doctrine he mentioned is taught, the doctrine that whites were created by God and coloured people by the devil, so that I can at least know where I stand with regard to the plan of creation taught by the teachers of the racist Government of the Union of South Africa."

Mr. Kerina answered: d/

"The first statement that I mentioned about the pictures brought to the classroom was made in front of me in the Roman Catholic School which I attended...."

The first statement of Mr. Kerina was: e/

"African children are indoctrinated from a very early age in the theory of white supremacy. This is not done extensively in the schools where there are African teachers and principals, but in schools where there are white teachers and principals this indoctrination is present to a wide extent. The following examples will illustrate something of the nature of this indoctrination.

"In an elementary mission school which I attended, a teacher one day brought two pictures to class—one showing heaven in all its beauty, occupied only by whites, and the other showing the tortures of hell, where all the inhabitants had black skins.

"When I asked her what was the reason for that, she replied that: 'If you behave like an obedient native, after death you would be transformed into a white and admitted into heaven. But if you are an undesirable native, you can only expect to go to hell'."

I could tell another story to contradict Mr. Kerina, but that would be the beginning of an anthology of "Individual Stories". We would establish nothing. What I would like to know is:

- 1. The name of the person who made the statement;
- 2. The year, at least, when the statement was made;
- The Standard Mr. Kerina was in when the statement was made;
- 4. The language in which the statement was made.

d Ibid., p. 17.

 $e/\overline{A/C.4/PV.749}$, pp. 54 and 55.

If such a thing were said, it would be contrary to everything that the Roman Catholic Church teaches. Anyone teaching such absurd doctrine would not only be going contrary to Catholic doctrine, but would be, to say the least, reprimanded by his superior.

I shall not contradict Mr. Kerina's concepts and ideas of Catholic education with my words; I shall use the words of the Head of the Catholic Church which were heard in Vienna by the teachers of twenty countries when they gathered there for the third international congress of the World Union of Catholic Teachers, August 5, 1957. ^f

"... He (the Catholic Teacher) [2] will point out that those faraway people feel as we do, that they too have achievements to point to and can serve as our models in many things. Above all, he will stress the fact that they too have God for their Creator and Father, that they too are included in the love and salvation of Christ and called to his Church. Thus young people will, with all due pride in the history and attainments of their own people and with all love of their country, also have respect and good will, for all other nations. What power there lies in such education against excessive nationalism which lacks that respect and good will, and which is incompatible with Christian thinking. Here too the effect of your school reflects in a precious way the world-wide unity of the Catholic Church..."

Concerning the young nations of Asia and Africa, Pius XII said:

"In Our Christmas message of December 24, 1955, We considered the relation of Europe to the younger, non-European states while discussing ways of securing world peace. These states, We said, should not forget how much they owe to Europe; and Europe should continue to be generous in putting at their disposal those genuine values in which it is rich.

"What We said then you may apply, mutatis mutandis, to the problem of schooling and education. But we should hold it self-evident that those young and, perhaps, still underdeveloped peoples must adopt cultural values organically, that is, just as a living organism absorbs and incorporates what is given to it. They must grow in a way and to a measure that corresponds to the conditions of a young nation, and always in such a manner that psychic and moral growth keep pace with technical, economic, and intellectual advances. The genuine building of culture aims at whole persons oriented to God. This is the task of all those who can influence intellectual development, particularly Catholic teachers."

If, however, these words are of too recent origin, I suggest that Mr. Kerina might read to the Committee the Catholic doctrine concerning Creation, etc., from the Catholic Catechism which he used in school at the time of this alleged attack. If he does not have one, I would be only too glad to send one to the Committee.

Again, Mr. Kerina deliberately attacked the principal of the Roman Catholic School at Doebra with the following statement: by

"However, I also had the opportunity of visiting the Roman Catholic training school centre at Doebra. I visited that area several times because some of my friends who were raised by my own parents were attending school there. I was very shocked one morning in 1952 when I entered the class and listened to the principal, who had arrived from Germany to preside over Doebra, when he saw the first Herero priest who was ordained in South West Africa walking out of the class, probably after careful observation of the educational system. This priest stood up in front of his students. I was just a visitor there; I was not a student there; I never liked it because of the inferiority of the education. He stood before his students and told them, 'Do you know that, no matter how high a black man can be educated, he is always a black man? So don't be convinced when you see one of your fellow men becoming a priest. He is still a black man'. We did not understand why he expected him to change to white, in fact, We were proud that he was black in the first place. Then he went on to say: 'Do you know what? When I arrived at Walvis Bay, at your dock, I looked around the whole surroundings, and the first thing I noticed was a native smell'. He ended there. I walked out of the class and left the whole place, because in fact I was not a student and I did not have any right to express my opinion there.

"These were the statements made on various occasions at all these schools in order to make the African youngsters probably subjective to the whole "apartheid" policy in South West Africa, and unconsciously most of our students have been affected by this whole philosophy. There are times when they would like to resist, but there are times when they are forced not to resist, because they begin to doubt themselves as human beings, part of God's creation."

This, in the words of Mr. Kerina, is not only an illustrative story, but a "whole philosophy". The story has already been denied by the principal of the school he mentioned, but Mr. Kerina has yet to rectify the damage to the Roman Catholic Missions caused by this false statement.

The Pope, in 1951 and again in 1957, referred as follows to the missionary policy of the Catholic Church: $^{1/}$ missionary efforts, namely, that 'the Church should be solidly estalished among other peoples and a Hierarchy given to them chosen from among their own sons' (Encyclical, Evangeli Pracones, 1951). In accordance with this policy the new Churches of Africa are taking their legitimate place in the great Catholic family, while the rest of the faithful who have preceded them in embracing the faith unite with them in brotherly love and welcome them enthusiastically."

"We intend to proceed without hesitation along this way. Those who enter the Church, whatever their origin or their status, must know that they have equal rights within the House of the Lord, where the Law of Christ and the peace of Christ prevail',—Pius XII, Summi Pontificatus, 1939.

"The law of Christ governs the Catholic Church. And Christ reduced all His law to two great commandments: Love God; love your neighbour. The second commandment is the rub. It is at the heart of the error of racism. But in the Church of Christ, the law of Christ must prevail. Negroes, Puerto Ricans, Mexicans, Indians—all peoples and races have equal rights in the Catholic Church no matter what individual Catholic may think about the matter. There is no equivocation here; there is no pussy-footing. The Catholic Church receives all. The Catholic Church must love all. And Pius XII means this when he said:

"In the midst of the disruptive contrasts which divide the human family, may this solemn act (of consecrating bishops from different lands and races) proclaim to all our sons, scattered over the world, that the spirit, the teachings and the work of the Church can never be other than that which the Apostle of the Gentiles preached: "Here is no more Gentile and Jew, no more circumcised and uncircumcised; no one is barbarian, or Scythian, no one is slave or free man; there is nothing but Christ in any of us".'—Pius XII, i/ Encyclical letter, Fidei Donum, April 21, 1957. This letter concerns the condition of the Catholic missions, their problems and urgent needs. It was reported in the Osservatore Romano, April 27, 1957. The text is Latin. The English text is taken from The Pope Speaks, op. cit. (Winter 1957-58), pp. 295-312.

Address given at the consecration of twelve new bishops in 1939. Two were Negroes.

"However, if the above statements are of too recent origin, allow me to point out that:

And now, concerning the following statement by Mr. Kerina: n/

"There are now an African Teachers Organization and a Coloured Teachers Organization. I have cause to believe their activities are carefully regulated by the Government, particularly the Africans. At every annual meeting of the African Teachers Organization, a white government agent or officer must be present and on most occasions he acts as the presiding officer. I do not know how the Coloured Teachers Organization meetings are conducted, but I suspect that government agents are present ..."

There is a Catholic teachers organization and it is for both Africans and Coloureds; this organization is not regulated by the Government and no White Government agent or officer is present at meetings and no Government agent is present to act as presiding officer. I shall present Mr. Kerina's statement to the teachers organization and let the Catholic teachers answer for themselves. They are perfectly able, capable and free to do so.

Again, concerning Mr. Kerina's statement: o/

"... Many families on the farms who wish their children to obtain an education hesitate to send them to the hostel schools because of the poor treatment and abuse they receive there. The diet is extremely poor, in the first place. In most cases, the students must ask their parents to send them money or additional food to supplement the diet..."

Many families send their children to the Roman Catholic hostel schools. Further, many of the children are transported to the hostel and returned to their homes at vacation time at the expense of the mission. And no worthy case is turned away because of lack of money. We subscribe completely to the statement of Pius XI: P/

"Let the missionaries remember that they must follow the same methods with the natives as did the divine Teacher when he was on earth ... how kind and loving Jesus showed himself to infants and little children;—Apropos of this let Us remind you of what We said on another occasion, namely, that all who are interested in health of the inhabitants and minister to the sick, and all who are kind to infants and little children, win the goodwill and affection of all the natives, so readily does the human heart respond to charity and kindness."

The Roman Catholic Missions of South West Africa have been placed under a cloud of suspicion. They have been accused of subscribing to the racist tenet. I hope the foregoing statements concerning Roman Catholic educational policies in South West Africa will correct any misunderstanding that may have arisen as a result of Mr. Kerina's statements.

For the purpose of organization and administration, South West Africa has been divided into two sections. Each section is known as a Vicariate. The following statistics may be of interest to the Committee:

1. The Vicariate of Keetmanshoop:

Boundaries: to the south, the Orange River; to the east, the political boundaries of S.W.A.; to the north, the northern limits of the civil districts of Luderitz, Gibeon, Rehoboth; to the west, the Atlantic Ocean.

Area, sq. miles: 108,146.

Estimated Catholic population: 11,038.

Convents: 18.

Schools: White: none; Indian: none; Coloured: 11; Native: 16.

Pupils: White: none; Indian: none; Coloured: 1,040; Native: 196

Hospitals: 8.

Dispensaries: 16.

Orphanages: White: none; Coloured: none; Native: 1.

Hostels: White: 1; Coloured: 8; Native: 12.

2. The Vicariate of Windhoek:

Boundaries: To the south, southern limits of the civil districts of Gobabis, Windhoek, Karibib, Swakopmund; to the east, Bechuanaland Protectorate; to the north, Portuguese Territory of Angola; to the west, the Atlantic Ocean.

Area, sq. miles: 200,000.

DOCUMENT A /C.4/425

Statements made in South West Africa by Chief Hosea Kutako, Chief Samuel Witbooi, the Reverend Markus
Kooper and other petitioners

Note by the Secretariat: The following statements have been transcribed from the tape-recording made available to the Fourth Committee by petitioners. They are circulated to members of the Fourth Committee in accordance with a decision taken by the Committee at the 907th meeting.

I am Hosea Kutako speaking now and I am saying this: our country, for quite a long time, was under the African people themselves and they traded with Pretoria. Later on, the Germans came and entered into negotiations with us. After a time they started killing people, not directly but in one way or another; sometimes they would say "We thought he was an animal" or "We thought it was stone" or something like that.

After all this, the Hereros realized that these people did not come in peace. They cut off all trade between us and the Union of South Africa; they started killing us. Apparently these people came for war and they then provoked us.

Are you sure that this thing is recording what I am saying?

They also plundered everything; they invaded our land, they took away our land and we had no home. That was what led to war—that is, they came here not in peace but with all their military force to force us into submission and we did not fear them but rose and fought; even without guns or anything we fought them. We fought them without guns or anything and we want to impress upon the world that we did not just give this land as a present to the Germans; we fought for it and it is our land. We shall always claim it back. This is why, even up to this day, we claim it back and this is why, even up to this day, we are appealing to the United Nations.

And then followed a period of slavery when we were really exposed to sufferings and to a lot of hardships. Then the country changed hands and we thought that the country had been taken over by the British people only to realize later on that we were under the Boers. And our suffering continued under the Boers; sometimes we feel that it is even more than we had under the Germans.

That is why I am appealing to the United Nations and to all the nations gathered there to see and to listen to this; we who are suffering have been suffering from German times up to this day.

The dwelling place which was given us by God has been taken away from us and as such today we just like animals who have nowhere to live. So that the United Nations can free us but up to now the United Nations has not done anything to free us. But we shall not give up appealing to the United Nations; we shall continue to petition the United Nations so that they may hear our voice and our cry. This country is ours and it is ours; we never gave it to the Germans as a present and we shall continue to claim it, and we suffer for it even today. We appeal to the United Nations to help us; we appeal to the United Nations to give us the freedom we desire. We are suffering and we have been suffering for a long time. We want freedom.

I wanted to go the the United Nations many years ago but I was not allowed. I applied for a passport to go to the United Nations; it was not granted me. My people applied for passports to go in my place but they were not given passports. Up to now, we have not been allowed to leave for the United Nations.

Just recently, in fact last week, in Aminuis Reserve, I was visited by some officials from Windhoek and I told them this: that this year I want to send six men to the United Nations. And now I have been appealing to the United Nations for many years and the United Nations Organization knows this very well.

And this is what I have to say to the United Nations: I implore the United Nations to give me my freedom this year. I do not want this year to pass. And much of what I have to say and about the conditions in this country has been said by the Reverend Michael Scott. Even that has been said by (Kerina) and the young boy I have just sent, Kozonguizi. They can hear from me. We want the United Nations to help us; we want them to free us.

It is now being said that while I have been petitioning the United Nations for such a long time and even now I have sent people, but the United Nations has not helped me up to now and it is very unlikely that it will ever help me. That is what is being said. But I always say, and I shall always say, that I shall not stop petitioning the United Nations. This is what I had to say.

I am the Chief Hendrick Samuel Witbooi, of the Nama tribe. The first chief has already given his petitions to the United Nations Organization. His name is David Witbooi. He was complaining about freedom in his country. He could not even come together with the people over he was intended to rule. In this land there are three tribes. Those three men were dwelling in this land even before Europeans came to this country. They have been handling together, they have been trading amongst themselves but from ... when ... we were placed under the rule of the Union Government, all form of freedom has disappeared. We have been asking since that time from the Union Government to be given back our freedom but we have not get them until now. We, the indigenous inhabitants of this country, have totally no sort of freedom; we have no freedom of thought, we have no freedom of speech, we have no freedom of religious worship. All in which we are kept is fear. It is why we have approached the United Nations Organization after we hear that it is such a great organization. When we hear about the United Nations Organization, we thought that we will be delivered from the Union Government. We have now a strong application [?].

This Government of the Union has asked us, the inhabitants of this country, to incorporate this country of ours into the Union of South Africa. We have refused totally at all those three times. But the Government is keeping on to incorporate this country into the Union... We have asked our freedom from everything. Now at last the Government has promised us a kind of a government... in the year 1955... That government has been formulated in the Union of South Africa, the form of that government... That government is called the Bantu Authority Act. From 1955 up to now we have refused that form of government. But it has come to 1959... The last time we were together was around 14 April 1959, at Berseba. In that meeting we told the Administration quite straightforwardly ... all the head men, all the Nama head men... but we totally do not want that Bantu Authority Act. We also do not want to accept that Nama tribal fund which is related to the Bantu Act. We have said "It must be buried. Let it never again sound in our ears." Although this Government says that he is not forcing us to accept anything, yet we see that this Government is forcing us, because he is doing so. He has brought that form or system, of Bantu Education Act in this country. If the Government would have do it in the proper way he would have approached us, asking us to give our consent to accept that Bantu Education Act. Or the Government would have weighed... we have to say about the Bantu Authority Act with the customs of this country... We, the Nama chiefs, the Herero chiefs and the Damara chiefs: that is our word and our standpoint.

I am really today grateful to have met such men as these three gentlemen today, because I believe God wants to help us by sending us these three men. How much have we do we desire a chief of this country... to come personally to the country of America! I was once at the office of Mr. Neser asking him to give me the passport to go over to America. I was together with the Hereros. He promised us he would first ask the permission from Dr. Malan, at that time Prime Minister of South Africa. But until today we have been refused and will never be permitted to go over to New York. So this Government, in such a secret way, with the Bantu Authority Act, because it is not with our consent that the Administration of Native Department has gone to the Union Department of Native Affairs. In this country we do not want different systems of education. We, the people of this country, are enough to do the work in this country. But the Union Government is saying in this country that we are asking, demanding, too high sums for our work and that is why they bring those people in this country-which is not right. By so doing our people are pushed backwards. We have understood the United Nations Organization to be a dignified organization, which will see that all the people on the face of this earth will have their rights and freedom. It is therefore all of us, the chiefs of this country, request that this country of ours be placed under the trusteeship of the United Nations Organization; then we believe that we will become free. We can no more move; the pass laws restrict us severely; that is why we have asked this Government to release us from the pass laws. We believe that if this country be placed under the United Nations Organization, our education would be improved. All that our children need is to put the key in the lock and to unlock the door. Teachers who have to taught other children were just taught only as far as Standard II. How can a teacher who has only got Standard II teach other children? This Government has also done a very serious incident, which he did to the Nama people of Hoachanas, because he reject them from their fatherland. That land belongs to that tribe from the times of our kings.

The Rooinasie Nama people are known as the first Nama people ever residing as Nama people in South West Africa. Orlam Nama tribes came later on. I am not speaking only on my behalf and on behalf of the chiefs, but I am speaking on behalf of the whole indigenous peoples of South West Africa. Instead of becoming better, our life situation becomes more worser and worser.

The Government tells me that if Iaccept their Bantu Authority Act I will be given more authority over my people but I realize that by giving me the Bantu Authority Act the Government is destroying even the little rights which I have had so far. Therefore it is my earnest request on behalf of all the indigenous tribes, of all the chiefs, that this Mandate of South West Africa should be placed under the trusteeship of the United Because I believe if South West Africa's Mandate is placed under the trusteeship of the United Nations our rights will be given back to us. The Union Government has ruled South West Africa for thirtynine years as a mandatory, and if I conclude all that this Government has done for us in the thirty years, then I have found nothing. We have no opportunity or rights, no education, we have no political rights, and we see all the people go forward with politics [?]. You have no rights in the house in which you are sleeping.

I speak here, the Reverend Markus Kooper of the A.M.E. (African Methodist Episcopal) Church at Hoachanas. I am grateful for this splendid opportunity to be together here in the field of Hoachanas with men who come from America to hear our complaints and difficulties personally. So I am going to give my brothers the chance to state their personal statements and feelings to the United Nations Organization.

I, Jonas Nakom of Hoachanas, has now been appointed representative of the people of Hoachanas, whose oppressions have become more intense since 29 January 1959, where we until that date have never had any Government officials in our midst. At that date these officials come in seven motor cars under the leadership of the district magistrate of Rehoboth and the Colonel of Police, Dorfling, with fifteen Europeans and twelve native African policemen armed with guns, assagais, bayonets, kieries. We hope that these words will have the attention of the very high officials of the various nations who are gathered at the United Nations.

At that date, within forty-five minutes, we were made to see our blood run down on the ground. We saw our poor minister being thrown on one of the Government's lorries like a thief. This car was originally built for animals and we saw him thrown up there with his wife and his children, without food and without water. And we are expecting these bearers of death to turn up here every minute. We believe we are awaiting their rearrival every day.

I, Johannes Kubas: The Government under whom I am living today, who is boss over me, that is responsible for everything, that Government is my enemy and I do not know. And I am asking for help please. And I am asking for help from the big Powers. I am weaker than a child because I cannot even provide for my children and my wife like a father ought to. Here I am living so badly that I really do not know why I am still alive. If the Lord was not there, then I would have been gone long ago. My life is worse than that of a The dogs of white people live ten times better than I do. And I am asking the Lord that he should today please, please, place South West Africa under the hands of the United Nations. If the United Nations do not help us quickly we will die out like grass that has burnt out. So bad our life is. Our Fathers, please hear us and please help us for what we are asking you. We are feeling very badly. Here we are standing like children whose home have burned off. We are standing here helplessly. We do not have a leader. We have nothing. Our Minister, the person to whom we looked up as a leader, and thought here we have a leader, he has been taken away from us, has been thrown into a truck like a thief and taken away. Him too we want We want him back please in the name of the United Nations. What I can say today, those mothers, those women of us who are pregnant today, those women who have been bruised so much at that day even today there are some of them who are limping. They have been treated so badly they have been bodily assaulted. Even I who am speaking here has been cut in various places with bayonets. At that day my tears ran and I am praying the United Nations to dry my tears for me.

I, Johannes Kooper, is speaking now. I am talking about the treatment we received from the Derm police. We non-Europeans meet the police of the Derm station, then it is just as good if we meet the death itself. If I tell him my difficulties, I am not allowed to open my mouth. And if I keep on telling him what trouble or difficulty I have, that would cost me prison. The first thing that he will do is ask me the pass, the onliest means we are living in this country. They do not ask me where I am living. They ask me about a pass, and if he finds me without a pass I must be arrested and bound and thrown in the lorry. With my best knowledge I know that this country belongs to me and I must go quite freely in this country wherever I want to go.

I am Taseb speaking now. It is our desire that if we could fly to the United Nations Organization and we are waiting from the United Nations very earnestly their help. Hoachanas is our property, the property of our forefathers and we love it. That is why we don't want to move from Hoachanas. We ask the Organization of the World Government to come and see the difficulties we are suffering each. We have refused to accept "Bantu" but the Government have wilfully kept on to write papers—official papers—with the term of Bantu. And we ask the United Nations Organization to remove the Union Government and to place South West Africa under the trusteeship of the United Nations or under another Government.

My name is Reverent Daniel Dausab. I have been waiting all the time upon men who will come from the United Nations Organization. Our difficult life has become more difficult. On the 29 January 1959 people who have absolutely no reason were attacked by the police with guns, bayonets, knives and machine-guns. Even small children were frightened with those knives. Even pregnant women were slain to fall down on the ground.

Even before that, if the police came to Hoachanas without asking any questions, they ran into our houses and just do what he is wanting to do in our houses. He doesn't even ask anything, just ran in to our houses and say he is searching after the beer; but he is actually not searching after the beer. So he did one day in my own house. I am expressing today my wish with greatest pleasure. The main reason why we don't go away from this place is that Hoachanas has been found by our forefathers and they loved it and we, their generations or remnants love it too. We therefore ask the United Nations to deliver us from this slave state life under which we are suffering. We have absolutely no education whatsoever. The onliest thing we are getting is the slavery. I will therefore wait on the help of the United Nations before I die. So that our children inherit Hoachanas as their property and that I also ask the United Nations that the Reverend Michael Scott be bringed back by the Administration of South West Africa.

I am evangelist Jonas Nakom speaking again. What we want to explain to the United Nations Organization is this: it was our wish to come to the United Nations Organization to tell here our feelings; personally and from face to face. The reason why we refuse to be removed from Hoachanas is that we are drinking the same water which our fathers have drinking. The Union Government has absolutely done no improvement to the reserve of Hoachanas; only improvements that the Union Government has done at Hoachanas is that he has stolen our country, or a part of the land of the reserve. We therefore ask that the United Nations would see that we get back that land which was stolen by the Union Government and the Administration of South West Africa.

This is clear that in the next year the books will be introduced and will be introduced into the syllabus of the Government. This is why we know that the Union Government has given us the Bantu Authorities Act, in spite of our refusing to accept it.

All we have said about have we spoken on behalf of the whole tribe of the Hoachanas Reserve and also on behalf of the whole Nama people, and in fact on behalf of the whole non-European tribes of South West Africa. So it would be better for the United Nations Organization not to be hindered by the actions of the delegation of the Union Government, even if Mr. Eric Louw, as he usually did, take his hat, and go out from the United Nations Organization. The South West Africa Administration must be placed under the United Nations Organization.

I have asked for a passport already, so that I could go and tell our people, to tell the people overseas, about our way of life but I was refused that. So I am very glad today that I know that our sorrows will be told to the people at the United Nations through the means of this machine. So I ask with all my heart that those great nations who are gathered there will help us quickly, so that we will be released even this year from the bondage of the Union of South Africa. That is the only way that we will have political rights in our own country. That is the only way our children will have true education, it is the only way our children and our people will be able to make a true living and that is the only way we will be able to put up a life decent homes; the only way in which we will be able to get work under decent and fair conditions so that righteous laws will be made under which we will all benefit. I am giving, on behalf of my people, the mouths to speak to those three men whom I will name to speak on our behalf. Those men are the Reverend Scott, Kozonguizi and Kerina, and we ask them to speak on our behalf without fail.

I am the Reverend Kooper of the A.M.E. church, appointed to the pastoral charge of Hoachanas since 1952, and have been working as a pastor and a minister of the A.M.E. Church since that time in that congregation. Before I go on to give my personal statement about my removal from Hoachanas, I will first give a short history of Hoachanas itself. Hoachanas is a place which was found by the people, Nama people called Rooinasie, about in the year 1900-1700, not 1900, I'm sorry. From that time up to now the generations of Hoachanas Rooinasie people have been residing at Hoachanas. After they came to South West Africa the German Government had a war with the Nama people. Not only with those of Hoachanas, the Rooinasie people, but they had a war with the Witboois and the Hereros in particular and also those people of Orlam Nama people. In this war the Nama people, the Rooinasi, were defeated by the Germans. But prior to the war of 1904, in to the year 1902, the Hoachanas were declared as a Rooinasie reserve by the German Government. And this declaration of the reserve of Hoachanas has never been withdrawn by the German Government even after the war. So when the war was ended, the German officers came to Hoachanas and fetched the people who were at Hoachanas as war prisoners to Windhoek. He gathered the people and told them that although their captain had shed too much blood, he had done his war in a proper way and a righteous way. Therefore his people will not be removed from Hoachanas. They will serve their term of war prison at Windhoek. But after the elapse of that time they will come back again to Hoachanas and retain it as their property, as was the case in before.

When the Union Government came he asked the people to go from Hoachanas. They first asked them to go to Aminuis, the present Herero reserve, but the people refused, all along from that time until up to now. They said that they can not move from Hoachanas because it is their property. It is a misleading statement to say that the German Government has given Hoachanas to some few residents. It is absolutely robbed from any truth that the Union Government now say that Hoachanas is a temporary reserve since 1950, since 1952. But it must be pointed out that there is absolutely no such things as temporary reserves at Hoachanas, that Hoachanas is a temporary reserve. Hoachanas is and has been always the headquarters of the Rooinasie Nama people. The Rooinasie people have the sovereignty rights over the Hoachanas. When the reserve was proclaimed by the German Government it was not proclaimed as 14,000 hectares in extent; it was proclaimed as a 50,000-hectare reserve, by the German Government. And no portion of the 50,000 hectares of land has afterward been sold or given to any white man. But the Union Government has took, in the whole years doing it, a part of that land and giving it to the white people. Now the Union Government is alleging that they took that land because—not that they took the land, but that land belonged to the German Government and because it was belonging to the German Government they took it. But this is absolutely not true. Even all the fathers, all our fathers, the Rooinasie fathers who have died up till 1946, knew nothing about such things that Hoachanas have been a German place or that it had been a temporary reserve. The temporary reserve has come for the first time in 1952. It is at this time. That the United Nations may here understand that whatever the Union delegates may say at the meetings of the United Nations Organization, the fact remains that Hoachanas is our property and anything that will be done to Hoachanas must be done with our consent, the consent of the Rooinasie people. Now the people have refused everything to be removed from Hoachanas.

On the 29th, in early morning of the 29th of January the Magistrate of Rehoboth, Mr. Chatwind, accompanied by the colonel and some other officials, about thirty men in number came to Hoachanas and when they came the magistrate called me and told me that they came to remove me from Hoachanas. When he told me that, I asked him whether they came to remove only me or whether they have come to remove all of us. Instead of him, the Colonel, Mr. Dorfling, said that they came to remove me today, but if I want to do so I can tell the others that they too will be removed. But they today come only to remove me. So I turned and I go to my house and I was trying, I was putting on my church uniform. While I was busy putting on my uniform, the people came from their houses to take up the place in front of my house. The say the police will not take me away. That is what they said. They said that I am a minister and I am in no way responsible for their refusal to move from Hoachanas and that it is also not the first time the Government has come with the question of removal to the people of Hoachanas. It is there where the Colonel ordered the police to fight the people. So the police fight the people so that the blood was running down the bodies of the people. I was then fetched and thrown into the lorry.

When I was brought to the lorry I was taken by my right hand by a coloured policeman, Ovambo policeman took my left hand and a sergeant of Rehoboth, Mr. Thomason, was walking behind me. They brought me to the lorry. I was in my full uniform. After I had been removed from Hoachanas I was given to the welfare officer at Tses. He took me to the place which are called Derm. They were trying to unload me there, but as the sun was too hot I said to the two head men which was in his company, "But I have absolutely nothing to give me shade". So they afterwards decided to take me to the place just about three miles from that place and the threw me away there, with my family and all. When we came there, the welfare officer asked me whether I am pleased now. I said to him that I was pleased at Hoachanas and I am not pleased here. So he said: But he was not asking me whether I was pleased at Hoachanas and he further said that is was not the first time he has heard about me. He has already heard a lot of nonsense about me but he is going to treat me bloody good-that is what he said. I don't know what is meant by bloody good treatment. After that, he was angry and thus returned to Tses and then fifteen days later he again came to the same place with two tents. He was-I want to say here that when I was removed from my place here at Hoachanas I had absolutely not a spoonful of mealie meal to quiet my children if they will cry from hunger. Nor have I anything to give them to comfort them, but the welfare officer just threw me away there in the desert and returned to Itzawisis after he became angry, and fifteen days later when he came with those tents he was trying to persuade me to have peace at that place. I told him that I will never get satisfied with that place. He said he had just been told by the Government there at Tses to give satisfaction to the people.

I told him that he may do that but he must do that to the people who have been placed there; but I belonged to Hoachanas and if the government wants to give me satisfaction he must give me that at Hoachanas, because that is my place, where I have been born. That is what the welfare officer told me.

Now, at last, I understand; I have totally no freedom of movement because the welfare officer—the same welfare officer at Tses, because Kranzplatz (Gibeon) falls under him—said that Chief Witbooi and I may not leave our residence. Chief Witbooi may not leave Kranzplatz without his permit, and it must not be known that Tses is about thirty miles from Kranzplatz where the Chief is situated. That means that if the Chief wants to move even to Windhoek north from Kranzplatz, he must first go forty miles south to tell the welfare officer that he wants to go to Windhoek. The Chief, he told me that; the welfare officer told him that he was given that instruction by the chief native commissioner, Mr. Blignaut.

I have been practising religion and therefore I would ask the United Nations Organization that the Union Government would see that I come back to Hoachanas to go on with my work of religion. I have never partaken in the politics. But the Union Government has seen fit to remove me from Hoachanas for reasons which he has not mentioned to me. He just said that I am an illegitimate inhabitant at Hoachanas. But why I am illegitimate inhabitant the South West African Administration has not said. Therefore, I am asking earnestly the United Nations Organization that I be returned to my work at Hoachanas.

Abstaining: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, Greece, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Laos, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Spain, Sweden, Turkey, United States of America.

4. The eleventh request for a hearing (A/C.4/410/Add.1), from Mr. Sherman M. Bull, was granted by the Committee at its 894th meeting, by a roll-call vote of 32 to 2, with 22 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Argentina, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Federation of Malaya, Ghana, Greece, Guinea, Haiti, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Pakistan, Panama, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Thailand, Tunisia, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Abstaining: Australia, Austria, Belgium Canada, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, France, Honduras, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, New Zealand, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Turkey, United States of America.

- 5. At the 900th meeting, on 8 October 1959, the Chairman and the Rapporteur of the Committee on South West Africa introduced the report of that Committee (A/4191).
- 6. At the same meeting, a statement on the question of South West Africa was made by the representative of the Government of the Union of South Africa (A/C.4/421).
- 7. From the 904th to 913th meetings, from 12 to 16 October 1959, seven of the sixteen petitioners granted hearings appeared before the Committee: Mr. Mburumba Kerina addressed the Committee at the 904th meeting, Mr. Jariretundu Kozonguizi at the 904th to 906th meetings, Mr. H. J. Beukes and Mr. Emory F. Bundy at the 906th meeting, and Mr. Sherman M. Bull, Mr. Allard K. Lowenstein and the Reverend Michael Scott at the 907th meeting. The petitioners answered questions put to them by members of the Committee from the 908th to 913th meetings. In connexion with the hearing of petitioners, the Committee had before it a statement made at its 884th meeting by the representative of the Union of South Africa (A/C.4/424), a letter dated 29 September 1959 from the Permanent Representative of the Union of South Africa to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary of the Fourth Committee (A/C.4/413), a letter dated 18 June 1959 from the Reverend William J. Devenney to the Chairman of the Committee on South West Africa

- (A/C.4/422), and statements made by Chief Hosea Kutako, Chief Samuel Witbooi, the Reverend Markus Kooper and other petitioners in South West Africa (A/C.4/425), transcribed from a tape-recording made available to the Fourth Committee by petitioners appearing before the Committee.
- 8. At the 913th meeting, on the conclusion of the hearing of the petitioners, statements were made by the Chairman of the Committee on South West Africa, and by that Committee's Rapporteur (A/C.4/426) in reply to the statement made at the 900th meeting by the representative of the Union of South Africa (A/C.4/421), mentioned in paragraph 6 above.
- 9. The general debate on the item took place from the 914th to 924th meetings, from 19 to 26 October 1959, during the course of which representatives of the Union of South Africa made statements concerning conditions in South West Africa (A/C.4/427) and replied (A/C.4/428) to the statement made by the Rapporteur at the 913th meeting (A/C.4/426).
- 10. The general debate concluded with a statement by the representative of the Union of South Africa (A/C.4/429) outlining his Government's position to the effect that: (a) it intended again to participate in the discussions of the question of South West Africa at the fifteenth session of the General Assembly; (b) the Minister of External Affairs of the Union of South Africa intended to recommend to his Government that it make available to the United Nations the official publications and other official tests listed in his statement at the 900th meeting of the Committee (A/C.4/421); and (c) the Union Government was ready to enter into discussions with an appropriate United Nations ad hoc body which might be appointed after prior consultation with the Government. The representative of the Union of South Africa emphasized that his Government would find it possible to carry out these intentions only within the framework of cooperation and he hoped that further developments would not force it to reassess its attitude.
- 11. During the general debate, and subsequently at the 924th to 932nd meetings, from 26 to 30 October 1959, the Committee considered draft resolutions relating to the following matters:
- I. Petitions and related communications concerning conditions in South West Africa;
 - II. The Hoachanas Native Reserve;
- III. Withdrawal of a passport from Mr. Hans Johannes Beukes;
 - IV. Status of the Territory of South West Africa;
 - V. Question of South West Africa;
- VI. Legal action to ensure the fulfilment of the obligations assumed by the Union of South Africa in respect of the Territory of South West Africa;
- VII. Report of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa.
- 12. A detailed account of the Committee's consideration of these drafts resolutions and of amendments thereto is given below in sections I to VII.
- I. Petitions and related communications concerning conditions in South West Africa
- 13. The Committee had before it a draft resolution proposed by the Committee on South West Africa (A/

- 4191, annex II) concerning petitions and related communications examined by the latter Committee. By this draft resolution, the General Assembly, after noting that the relevant petitions and communications raised questions concerning various aspects of the administration and of conditions in the Territory upon which the Committee on South West Africa had presented a report, would decide to draw the attention of the petitioners to the report and observations of that Committee regarding conditions in the Territory and to the action taken by the General Assembly on that report.
- 14. The draft resolution was adopted by the Fourth Committee at the 924th meeting by 42 votes to 1, with 10 abstentions.
- 15. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution I.

II. The Hoachanas Native Reserve

- 16. A draft resolution concerning developments in this reserve, including in particular the forced removal of the Reverend Markus Kooper and his family from Hoachanas and the impending removal of other Rooinasie Nama inhabitants of the reserve, was proposed by the Committee on South West Africa (A/4191. annex III), which thereby recommended, interalia, that the General Assembly: (1) urge the Union Government to desist from carrying out the removal of other residents of Hoachanas and to arrange for the return of the Reverend Markus Kooper and his family to that reserve; (2) request the Union Government to investigate the claims of the Rooinasie Namas to the original area of Hoachanas, and to take such further steps as might be necessary, in consultation with the territoral Administration and the people concerned, to ensure the recognition and protection of the full rights of the people of Hoachanas and the promotion of their general welfare; and (3) request the Government to inform the United Nations on the measures taken to implement the
- 17. The draft resolution was adopted by the Fourth Committee at the 924th meeting by 46 votes to 1, with 12 abstentions.
- 18. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution II.

III. Withdrawal of a passport from Mr. Hans Johannes Beukes

19. The Committee on South West Africa proposed a draft resolution concerning the withdrawal by the Union Government of a passport granted to Mr. Beukes (A/4191, annex IV). By this draft resolution, the General Assembly after noting, inter alia, that Mr. Hans Beukes had been granted a scholarship by the Norwegian National Union of Students (Norsk Studentsamband) to study for three years at the University of Oslo, would: (1) express the opinion that the withholding or withdrawal of a passport from a qualified South West African student for the purpose of studying abroad was not only a direct interference in the educational and general advancement of an individual but a hindrance to the educational development of the Territory; (2) consider the withdrawal by the Union Government of the passport granted to Mr. Hans Beukes to be an act of administration contrary to the Mandate for South West Africa; and (3) express the hope that the Government would reconsider its decision and that Mr. Hans Beukes would be able to take advantage of the scholarship offered him to study at the University of Oslo.

- 20. At the 923rd meeting, Guatemala submitted an amendment (A/C.4/L.594) proposing that the text of operative paragraph 3 of the draft resolution should be altered to have the General Assembly express the hope that the Government would "reconsider its decision so that Mr. Hans Beukes may take advantage of the scholarship offered him to study at the University of Oslo in circumstances permitting him to maintain normal relations with his family and his country".
- 21. The draft resolution and the amendment were voted on at the 924th meeting as follows:

The Guatemalan amendment was adopted by 54 votes to 1, with 11 abstentions.

The preamble and operative paragraphs 1 and 2 were adopted by 54 votes to 1, with 12 abstentions.

The draft resolution as a whole, as amended, was adopted by 54 votes to 1, with 12 abstentions.

22. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution III.

IV. Status of the Territory of South West Africa

- 23. At the 922nd meeting, Ghana, Liberia, Pakistan, Tunisia and Yugoslavia submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.593), which the Philippines later joined in sponsoring (A/C.4/L.593/Add.1), proposing that the General Assembly: (1) reiterate its twelve previous resolutions to the effect that South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System; and (2) assert that, in the present conditions of political and economic development of the Territory, the normal way of modifying its international status was to place it under the Trusteeship System by means of a trusteeship agreement in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter.
- 24. The draft resolution was adopted at the 926th meeting by 33 votes to 1, with 11 abstentions.
- 25. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution IV.

V. Question of South West Africa

26. At the 927th meeting, Afghanistan, Argentina, Burma, Ceylon, Ethiopia, the Federation of Malaya, India, Indonesia, Iraq, Ireland, Jordan, Lebanon, Libya, Morocco, Nepal, Pakistan, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, the United Arab Republic, Yemen and Yugoslavia submitted a draft resolution concerning the question of South West Africa (A/C.4/L.595), later also jointly sponsored by Venezuela (A/C.4/L.595/Add.1), the text of which read as follows:

"The General Assembly,

"Recalling its previous resolutions in which the Assembly recommended that the Mandated Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System, and repeatedly invited the Government of the Union of South Africa to propose, for the consideration of the General Assembly, a Trusteeship Agreement for South West Africa,

''Considering that, in accordance with Chapter XII of the Charter of the United Nations, all Mandated Territories, with the sole exception of South West Africa, have been placed under the International Trusteeship System,

"Recalling further its resolution 449 A (V) of 13 December 1950, by which the General Assembly accepted the opinion of 11 July 1950 of the International Court of Justice to the effect that:

- "(a) South West Africa is a Territory under the International Mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920.
- "(b) The Union of South Africa continues to have the international obligations stated in Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations and in the Mandate for South West Africa, the supervisory functions to be exercised by the United Nations.
- "(c) That the Union of South Africa acting alone has not the competence to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa,

"Noting with grave concern that the Administration of the Territory, in recent years, has been conducted increasingly in a manner contrary to the Mandate, the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the advisory opinions of the International Court of Justice, and the resolutions of the General Assembly.

"Having received from the Committee on South West Africa the sixth report submitted to it in accordance with its resolution 749 A (VII) of 28 November 1953,

"Noting further the conclusion of the Committee on South West Africa that it is essential to the welfare and security of the peoples of South West Africa that the Administration of the Territory be altered without undue delay.

"Having also heard the statements of petitioners which further corroborate the conclusions and opinions formed by the Committee on South West Africa concerning political, social, economic and educational conditions prevailing in the Territory,

"Considering further that while the former Mandated Territories placed under the trusteeship of the United Nations have rapidly progressed towards independence, the conditions in the Territory of South West Africa present a totally different picture,

- "1. Notes the statement made by the representative of the Union of South Africa at the 924th meeting of the Fourth Committee expressing, inter alia, the Union's readiness to enter into discussions with the United Nations;
- "2. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to enter into negotiations with the United Nations through the Committee on South West Africa, which is authorized under its terms of reference to continue negotiations with the Union, or through any other committee which the General Assembly may appoint, with a view to placing the Mandated Territory under the International Trusteeship System;
- "3. Further requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to formulate immediately for the consideration of the General Assembly proposals which will enable the Mandated Territory of South West Africa to be administered in accordance with the principles and purposes of the Mandate, the supervisory functions being exercised by the United Nations according to the terms and intent of the Charter;

- "4. Approves the report of the Committee on South Africa and commends it to the urgent attention of the Government of the Union of South Africa;
- "5. Requests the Committee on South West Africa to submit to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session a report on its negotiations with the Union Government in addition to the annual report on conditions in the Territory of South West Africa."
- 27. At the 928th meeting, Denmark Finland, and Sweden submitted an alternative draft resolution (A/C.4/L.598), which as later revised and also sponsored by Norway (A/C.4/L.598/Rev.1), read as follows:

"The General Assembly,

- "Recalling its resolution 449 A (V) of 13 December 1950, by which the Assembly accepted the opinion of 11 July 1950 of the International Court of Justice to the effect that:
- ''(a) South West Africa is a Territory under the international Mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920,
- "(b) The Union of South Africa continues to have international obligations stated in Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations and in the Mandate for South West Africa, the supervisory functions to be exercised by the United Nations,
- "(c) That the Union of South Africa acting alone has not the competence to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa,
- "Having received from the Committee on South West Africa the sixth report submitted to it in accordance with its resolution 749 A (VIII) of 28 November 1953,
 - "Having heard the statements of the petitioners,
- ''1. Notes the statement made by the representative of the Union of South Africa at the 924th meeting of the Fourth Committee expressing, inter alia, the Union's readiness to enter into discussions with the United Nations;
- ''2. Invites the Government of the Union of South Africa to enter into negotiations with the United Nations through the Committee on South West Africa, which is authorized under its terms of reference to continue negotiations with the Union, or through any other committee which the General Assembly may appoint;
- "3. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to formulate for the consideration of the fifteenth session of the General Assembly, proposals to the effect that the Mandated Territory of South West Africa should be administered in accordance with the principles and purposes of the Mandate and the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice of 11 July 1950;

- ''4. Approves the report of the Committee on South West Africa, and commends it to the attention of the Government of the Union of South Africa;
- "5. Requests the Committee on South West Africa, or any other committee appointed by the General Assembly, to submit to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session a report on the negotiations with the Union Government."
- 28. At the 931st meeting, Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden withdrew their draft resolution (A/C.4/L.598/Rev.1) and submitted a number of amendments (A/C.4/L.599) to the twenty-three-Power draft resolution (A/C.4/L.595 and Add.1).
- 29. At the same meeting, the sponsors of the twenty-three-Power draft resolution accepted certain of these amendments (A/C.4/L.599, amendments 3 (a), 4 (a) and 5), and accordingly orally revised their draft resolution as follows:
- (a) In operative paragraph 2, the word "Requests" was replaced by the word "Invites";
- (b) In operative paragraph 3, the words 'immediately for the consideration of the General Assembly' were replaced by the words 'for the consideration of the General Assembly at its fifteenth session'; and
- (c) In operative paragraph 5, the words ''or any other committee which may be appointed in pursuance of paragraph 2 of the present resolution'' were inserted after the words ''the Committee on South West Africa'', and the words ''its negotiations'' were replaced by ''the negotiations''.
- 30. The four Powers had also proposed in document A/C.4/L.599 the following additional amendments to the twenty-three-Power draft resolution: the deletion of the words from "which further corroborate" to "the Committee on South West Africa" in the seventh preambular paragraph; the division of the operative part of the draft resolution into two sections, operative paragraph 4 to become paragraph 1 of section A, and operative paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 5 to become paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 4 of section B; the replacing, in operative paragraph 2, of the words from "with a view" to the end of the paragraph by the words "in order to continue to accord to the entire Mandated Territory of South West Africa an international status which would be in conformity with the principles and purposes of the United Nations"; and the replacing, in operative paragraph 3, of the words from "the supervisory functions" to the end of the paragraph by the words "and the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice of 11 July 1950".
- 31. At the 931st meeting, the representative of Mexico orally submitted two drafting amendments to the twenty-three-Power draft resolution: firstly, the insertion of the words "inter alia" in the third preambular paragraph; and secondly, the deletion of the word "Further" at the beginning of operative paragraph 3.
- 32. At the same meeting, the Committee voted on the twenty-three-Power draft resolution (A/C.4/L.595 and Add.1), as orally revised by the sponsors' acceptance of certain of the four-Power amendments (A/C.4/L.599, amendments 3 (a), 4 (a) and 5), and on the further amendments to that draft resolution, as follows:

The four-Power amendment to the seventh preambular paragraph (A/C.4/L.599, amendment 1) was rejected by 48 votes to 22, with 1 abstention.

The four-Power amendment concerning the division of the operative part of the draft resolution into two sections (A/C.4/L.599, amendment 2) was rejected by 46 votes to 23, with 3 abstentions.

The four-Power amendment to operative paragraph 2 (A/C.4/L.599, amendment 3 (b)) was rejected by 44 votes to 20, with 4 abstentions.

The four-Power amendment to operative paragraph 3 (A/C.4/L.599, amendment 4 (\underline{b})) was rejected by 48 votes to 20, with 5 abstentions.

The first preambular paragraph of the twenty-three-Power draft resolution was adopted by 57 votes to 1, with 13 abstentions.

The second preambular paragraph was adopted by 58 votes to 1, with 13 abstentions.

The Mexican oral amendment whereby the words "inter alia" would be inserted in the third preambular paragraph was adopted without objection.

The third preambular paragraph, as thus amended, was adopted by 68 votes to none, with 5 abstentions.

The words "with grave concern" in the fourth preambular paragraph were adopted by a roll-call vote of 52 to 8, with 13 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Bolivia, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Ceylon, Colombia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Haiti, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Jordan, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Thailand, Tunisia, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Arab Republic, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Australia, Belgium, France, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Abstaining: Austria, Brazil, Canada, Chile, China, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Finland, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Turkey.

The fourth preambular paragraph, as a whole, was adopted by 54 votes to 7, with 12 abstentions.

The fifth preambular paragraph was adopted by 64 votes to none, with 5 abstentions.

The sixth preambular paragraph was adopted by 56 votes to 1, with 13 abstentions

The seventh preambular paragraph was adopted by 53 votes to 9, with 10 abstentions.

The eighth preambular paragraph was adopted by 40 votes to 1, with 25 abstentions.

Operative paragraph 1 was adopted unanimously.

The words ''or through any other committee which the General Assembly may appoint'', in operative paragraph 2 were adopted by 59 votes to 10, with 2 abstentions.

The words "with a view to placing the Mandated Territory under the International Trusteeship System", in operative paragraph 2 were adopted by 51 votes to 8, with 10 abstentions.

Operative paragraph 2 as a whole, as orally revised by the sponsors, was adopted by 56 votes to 4, with 11 abstentions.

The Mexican oral amendment calling for the deletion of the word "Further" at the beginning of operative paragraph 3 was adopted without objection.

Operative paragraph 3, as orally revised by the sponsors, and as thus amended, was adopted by 44 votes to 10, with 17 abstentions.

Operative paragraph 4 was adopted by 56 votes to 1, with 10 abstentions.

The words ''or any other committee which may be appointed in pursuance of paragraph 2 of the present resolution'', in operative paragraph 5 as orally revised by the sponsors, were adopted by 58 votes to 10, with 2 abstentions.

The first part of operative paragraph 5, as orally revised by the sponsors, up to and including the words "with the Union Government" was adopted by 68 votes to none, with 4 abstentions.

Operative paragraph 5 as a whole, as orally revised by the sponsors, was adopted by 64 votes to none, with 8 abstentions.

The twenty-three Power draft resolution (A/C.4/L. 595 and Add.1), as a whole, as orally revised by the sponsors and as amended, was adopted by a roll-call vote of 56 to 5, with 12 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Ceylon, Chile, China, Colombia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Haiti, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Jordan, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Thailand, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Arab Republic, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Belgium, France, Portugal, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Abstaining: Australia, Austria, Canada, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Finland, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Spain, Sweden.

33. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution $\mbox{\ensuremath{V}}$

- VI. Legal action to ensure the fulfilment of the obligations assumed by the Union of South Africa in respect of the Territory of South West Africa
- 34. At the 927th meeting, Ethiopia, Ghana, Guinea, Haiti, Liberia, Libya, Morocco, Pakistan, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan, Tunisia and the United Arab Republic submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.596), later also sponsored by Jordan (A/C.4/L.596/Add.1), whereby the General Assembly would draw the attention of Member States to the conclusions of the special report of the Committee on South West Africa (A/3625) covering the legal action open to them to refer any dispute with the Union of South Africa concerning the interpretation or application of the Mandate for South West Africa to the International Court of Justice for adjudication in accordance with article 7 of the Mandate, read in conjunction with Article 37 of the Statute of the Court.
- 35. At the 931st meeting, Colombia and Iran submitted an amendment (A/C.4/L.600) to the draft resolution which would replace the operative paragraph by the following text:
- ''1. Requests the Committee on South West Africa to study further the question of legal action to ensure the fulfilment of the obligations assumed by the Union of South Africa in respect of the Territory of South West Africa, paying particular attention to the types and possibilities of action that may be taken by the United Nations as well as the nature and forms of any proceedings that may be instituted before the International Court of Justice;
- ''2. Decides to place the question of legal action concerning the Mandated Territory of South West Africa as a separate item on the provisional agenda of its fifteenth session.''
- 36. At the 932nd meeting, the amendments submitted by Colombia and Iran (A/C.4/L.600) were withdrawn by the co-sponsors.
- 37. At the same meeting, the draft resolution (A/C. 4/L.596 and Add.1) was adopted by a roll-call vote of 52 to 4, with 17 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Austria, Bolivia, Bulgaria, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cambodia, Ceylon, Chile, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, Federation of Malaya, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Jordan, Lebanon, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Pakistan, Panama, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Thailand, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Arab Republic, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Australia, Portugal, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

Abstaining: Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Colombia, Denmark, Finland, France, Italy, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Paraguay, Peru, Spain, Sweden.

- 38. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution VI.
- VII. Report of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa
- 39. At the 928th meeting, Argentina, Ireland, New Zealand and Norway submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.597) whereby the General Assembly would take note of the report of the Good Offices Committee (A/4224) and express its appreciation to the members of that Committee for their efforts.
- 40. The draft resolution was adopted at the 932nd meeting by 59 votes to 7, with 1 abstention.
- 41. At the same meeting, the representatives of Albania, Bulgaria, the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania, the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics stated that they had voted against the draft resolution.
- 42. The text of the draft resolution is set forth in paragraph 43 of the present report as draft resolution VII.

[9 December 1959]

1. In paragraph 2 of its report (A/4272) on agenda items 38 (a), (b) and (c) the Fourth Committee noted that sub-item (d), namely, the election of three members of the Committee on South West Africa, would be considered at a later stage of the Committee's deliberations and would be dealt with in an addendum to the report.

- 2. By resolution 1061 (XI) of 26 February 1957, the General Assembly decided that the composition of the Committee on South West Africa should be increased to nine members appointed by the Assembly on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee. It also decided that one-third of the membership of the Committee should be renewed by the same procedure annually.
- 3. Of the nine members of the Committee on South West Africa, one was elected by the General Assembly for an indefinite term prior to the adoption of resolution 1061 (XI), and two were appointed by the General Assembly at its eleventh session, three at its twelfth session, and three at its thirteenth session, pursuant to resolution 1061 (XI). Brazil, having been elected prior to the adoption of resolution 1061 (XI), and Ethiopia and Finland, having been appointed by the General Assembly at its eleventh session, were accordingly deemed the three members due to retire from the Committee on South West Africa.
- 4. At its 994th meeting, on 9 December 1959, the Fourth Committee, by a secret ballot, elected Denmark and re-elected Brazil and Ethiopia to fill the vacancies thus created.

Recommendation of the Fourth Committee

5. The Fourth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly that it appoint Brazil, Denmark and Ethiopia as members of the Committee on South West Africa as from 1 January 1960.

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 838th plenary meeting, on 17 November 1959, the General Assembly adopted draft resolutions I, II, III, IV, V, VI and VII submitted by the Fourth Committee (A/4272, para. 43). For the final texts, see resolutions 1356 (XIV), 1357 (XIV), 1358 (XIV), 1359 (XIV), 1360 (XIV), 1361 (XIV) and 1362 (XIV), respectively, below.

At its 857th plenary meeting, on 12 December 1959, the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee, appointed Denmark to replace Finland and reappointed Brazil and Ethiopia as members of the Committee on South West Africa.

Resolutions adopted by the General Assembly

1356 (XIV). PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS RELATING TO SOUTH WEST AFRICA

The General Assembly,

Having accepted the advisory opinion of 11 July 1950 of the International Court of Justice on the question of South West Africa, 1/

Having authorized the Committee on South West Africa, by resolution 749 A (VIII) of 28 November 1953, to examine petitions in accordance with the Mandates procedure of the League of Nations,

1/ International status of South West Africa, Advisory Opinion: I.C.J. Reports 1950, p. 128.

Having received a report (A/4191, part I, sec. III) from the Committee dealing with petitions and related communications from Chief Samuel Witbooi, Chief Hosea Kutako, the Reverend Michael Scott, Mr. Jariretundu Kozonguizi, the Reverend Markus Kooper, Mr. J. Dausab and others in the Hoachanas Native Reserve, Chief P. Keharanyo, Mr. Jacobus Beukes, Messrs. J. G. A. Diergaardt, J. H. Mall, P. Diergaardt and others in the Rehoboth Community, Messrs. Toivo Ja-Toivo and F. Isaacs, Mr. Neville Rubin, and Mr. Hans Beukes,

Noting that these these petitions and communications raise questions concerning various aspects of the administration of the Territory of South West Africa and of conditions in the Territory upon which the Committee has presented a report (A/4191, part II), Decides to draw the attention of the petitioners to the report and observations of its Committee on South West Africa regarding conditions in the Territory, submitted to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session, and to the action taken by the Assembly on this report.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

1357 (XIV). THE HOACHANAS NATIVE RESERVE

The General Assembly,

Having authorized the Committee on South West Africa, by resolution 749 A (VIII) of 28 November 1953, to examine petitions as far as possible in accordance with the Mandates procedure of the League of Nations,

Having received the report (A/4191) from the Committee dealing, inter alia, with its examination of petitions concerning developments in the Hoachanas Native Reserve,

Considering that the original inhabitants of the Territory have an inherent right to continued and unmolested residence on their own land,

Noting that inhabitants of the Hoachanas Native Reserve, survivors of the Red Nation, or Rooinasie Namas, have an inherent right of ownership and possession of their ancestral land at Hoachanas, where they claim an area of 50,000 hectares as recognized by agreement with the German Government, and that former Governor Theodor Leutwein, recording the history of his governorship of German South West Africa from 1894 to 1905, stated: "The next reserve was in Hoachanas, headquarters of the Red Nation. There, in 1902, a total of 50,000 hectares was declared the inalienable property of the tribe", 2

Noting further that the Government of the Union of South Africa reported to the League of Nations in 1923 that it had confirmed the rights of "Natives" on land occupied by them under treaties or agreements with the former German administration.

Noting that the residents of the Hoachanas Native Reserve were ordered by the Government of the Union of South Africa to vacate Hoachanas by 31 December 1956, that the majority refused to leave their traditional land and move, as directed by the Government, to land found by a government commission to be inferior to that of Hoachanas, and that the Administrator of South West Africa consequently obtained a court order in July 1958 for the eviction of one of the Nama residents, the Reverend Markus Kooper, Minister of the African Methodist Episcopal Church,

Recalling that the Committee on South West Africa, in its report to the General Assembly at the thirteenth session (A/3906 and Add.1, para. 119), urged the Union of South Africa to take all steps necessary to ensure that the people of Hoachanas retained their traditional homeland and to investigate their claim to surrounding land,

Recalling further that the General Assembly, by resolution 1245 (XIII) of 30 October 1958, approved the report of the Committee on South West Africa and thereby endorsed the Committee's decision regarding Hoachanas,

Noting with concern that the Government of the Union of South Africa disregarded this decision, and caused the Reverend Markus Kooper and his family to be forcibly removed from Hoachanas on 29 January 1959 to a site approximately 150 miles away, thereby depriving his congregation of their minister, that several residents of the reserve were allegedly injured during the removal, and that the other inhabitants of the reserve were informed by Government officials of their impending removal by force,

Considering with regret that it is the policy of the Mandatory Power to remove the "Native" inhabitants from their lands which they have held as their own in order to make room for "European" settlers, in violation of fundamental human rights and the sacred trust assumed by the Government of the Union of South Africa over the Mandated Territory,

Considering the removal of the inhabitants of Hoachanas for a purpose not in conformity with the Mandate or the Charter of the United Nations to be contrary to the obligation undertaken by the Mandatory Power to promote to the utmost the material and moral well-being and the social progress of the ''Native'' inhabitants of the Territory,

- 1. Urges the Government of the Union of South Africa to desist from carrying out the removal of other residents of the Hoachanas Native Reserve and to arrange for the return of the Reverend Markus Kooper and his family to that reserve;
- 2. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to investigate the claims of the Rooinasie Namas to the original area of Hoachanas, of which only 14,254 hectares are now occupied by them, and to take such further steps as may be necessary, in consultation with the territorial Administration and the people concerned, to ensure the recognition and protection of the full rights of the people of Hoachanas and the promotion of their general welfare;
- 3. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to inform the United Nations on the measures taken to implement to present resolution.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

1358 (XIV). WITHDRAWAL OF A PASSPORT FROM MR. HANS JOHANNES BEUKES

The General Assembly,

Having accepted the advisory opinion of 11 July 1950 of the International Court of Justice on the question of South West Africa,

Having authorized the Committee on South West Africa, by resolution 749 A (VIII) of 28 November 1953, to examine petitions in accordance with the Mandates procedure of the League of Nations,

Having received a report 3/ from the Committee dealing with petitions from Mr. Hans Johannes Beukes, a South West African student, and from Mr. Neville Rubin, President of the National Union of South African Students,

Noting that Mr. Beukes had been granted a scholarship by the Norwegian National Union of Students

^{2/} Theodor Leutwein, Elf Jahre Gouverneur in Deutsch-Südwestafrika, Berlin, 1907, p. 272.

^{3/} See A/4191, part I, sec. III, part II, sec. III, para. 80, and sec. VI, paras. 226 and 227; see also annexes XXIX to XXXII.

(Norsk Studentsamband) to study for three years at the University of Oslo,

Noting further that Mr. Beukes, a second-year student at the University of Cape Town, had been selected for the scholarship by a committee consisting of the Head of the Department of History, a professor of Roman law at that University, and the President of the National Union of South African Students,

Considering that the Government of the Union of South Africa granted Mr. Beukes a passport on 15 June 1959 to enable him to proceed to Norway, and withdrew that passport on 24 June, when Mr. Beukes arrived at the port of embarkation, subjecting Mr. Beukes to a search of his person, luggage and personal correspondence,

Noting the protests made by the South African Press, students of the University of Cape Town, and the Teachers' Educational and Professional Association in the Union of South Africa, as well as other representatives of the public in the Union of South Africa, against the action taken by the Union Government,

Taking into account that there are no facilities for university education in South West Africa and that "non-European" students from the Territory find it increasingly difficult to obtain adequate university education in the Union of South Africa,

- 1. Is of the opinion that the withholding or withdrawal from a qualified South West African student of a passport for the purpose of studying abroad is not only a direct interference in the educational and general advancement of an individual but a hindrance to the educational development of the Territory of South West Africa which was entrusted under the Covenant of the League of Nations to the administration of the Union of South Africa;
- 2. Considers the withdrawal by the Union of South Africa of the passport granted to Mr. Beukes to be an act of administration contrary to the Mandate for South West Africa;
- 3. Expresses the hope that the Government of the Union of South Africa will reconsider its decision so that Mr. Beukes may take advantage of the scholarship offered him to study at the University of Oslo in circumstances permitting him to maintain normal relations with his family and his country.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

1359 (XIV). STATUS OF THE TERRITORY OF SOUTH WEST AFRICA

The General Assembly,

Having recommended, by its resolutions 65 (I) of 14 December 1946, 141 (II) of 1 November 1947, 227 (III) of 26 November 1948, 337 (IV) of 6 December 1949, 449 B (V) of 13 December 1950, 570 B (VI) of 19 January 1952, 749 B (VIII) of 28 November 1953, 852 (IX) of 23 November 1954, 940 (X) of 3 December 1955, 1055 (XI) of 26 February 1957, 1141 (XII) of 25 October 1957 and 1246 (XIII) of 30 October 1958, that the Mandated Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System, and having repeatedly invited the Government of the Union of South Africa to propose, for the consideration of the General Assembly, a trusteeship agreement for South West Africa,

Having accepted, by its resolution 449 A (V) of 13 December 1950, the advisory opinion of 11 July 1950 of the International Court of Justice on the question of South West Africa, 1/

Considering that, in accordance with Chapter XII of the Charter of the United Nations, all Mandated Territories which have not achieved independence have been brought under the International Trusteeship System, with the sole exception of the Territory of South West Africa,

- 1. Reiterates its resolutions 65 (1) of 14 December 1946, 141 (II) of 1 November 1947, 227 (III) of 26 November 1948, 337 (IV) of 6 December 1949, 449 B (V) of 13 December 1950, 570 B (VI) of 19 January 1952, 749 B (VIII) of 28 November 1953, 852 (IX) of 23 November 1954, 940 (X) of 3 December 1955, 1055 (XI) of 26 February 1957, 1141 (XII) of 25 October 1957 and 1246 (XIII) of 30 October 1958, to the effect that the Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System;
- 2. Asserts that, in the present conditions of political and economic development of South West Africa, the normal way of modifying the international status of the Territory is to place it under the International Trusteeship System by means of a trusteeship agreement in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter of the United Nations.

1360 (XIV). QUESTION OF SOUTH WEST AFRICA The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions in which the Assembly recommended that the Mandated Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System and repeatedly invited the Government of the Union of South Africa to propose, for the consideration of the General Assembly, a trusteeship agreement for South West Africa,

Considering that, in accordance with Chapter XII of the Charter of the United Nations, all Mandated Territories, with the sole exception of South West Africa, have been placed under the International Trusteeship System,

Recalling further its resolution 449 A (V) of 13 December 1950, by which the General Assembly accepted the opinion of 11 July 1950 of the International Court of Justice¹/ to the effect, inter alia, that:

- (a) South West Africa is a Territory under the international Mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920,
- (b) The Union of South Africa continues to have the international obligations stated in Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations and in the Mandate for South West Africa, the supervisory functions to be exercised by the United Nations,
- (c) That the Union of South Africa acting alone has not the competence to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa,

Noting with grave concern that the administration of the Territory, in recent years, has been conducted increasingly in a manner contrary to the Mandate, the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the advisory opinions of the International Court of Justice, and the resolutions of the General Assembly,

Having received from the Committee on South West Africa the sixth report (A/4191) submitted in accordance with General Assembly resolution 749 A (VIII) of 28 November 1953,

Noting further the conclusion of the Committee that it is essential to the welfare and security of the peoples of South West Africa that the administration of the Territory be altered without undue delay (A/4191, para. 233),

Having also heard the statements of petitioners which further corroborate the conclusions and opinions formed by the Committee on South West Africa concerning political, social, economic and educational conditions prevailing in the Territory,

Considering further that, while the former Mandated Territories placed under the International Trusteeship System have rapidly progressed towards independence, the conditions in the Territory of South West Africa present a totally different picture,

- 1. Notes the statement made by the representative of the Union of South Africa at the 924th meeting of the Fourth Committee on 26 October 1959 expressing, inter alia, the Union's readiness to enter into discussions with the United Nations;
- 2. Invites the Government of the Union of South Africa to enter into negotiations with the United Nations through the Committee on South West Africa, which is authorized under its terms of reference to continue negotiations with the Union, or through any other committee which the General Assembly may appoint, with a view to placing the Mandated Territory under the International Trusteeship System;
- 3. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to formulate for the consideration of the General Assembly, at its fifteenth session, proposals which will enable the Mandated Territory of South West Africa to be administered in accordance with the principles and purposes of the Mandate, the supervisory functions being exercised by the United Nations according to the terms and intent of the Charter;
- 4. Approves the report of the Committee on South West Africa and commends it to the urgent attention of the Government of the Union of South Africa;
- 5. Requests the Committee on South West Africa, or any other committee which may be appointed in pursuance of paragraph 2 above, to submit to the General Assembly, at its fifteenth session, a report on the negotiations with the Union Government in addition to the annual report on conditions in the Territory of South West Africa.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

1361 (XIV). LEGAL ACTION TO ENSURE THE FUL-FILMENT OF THE OBLIGATIONS ASSUMED BY THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA IN RESPECT OF THE TERRITORY OF SOUTH WEST AFRICA

The General Assembly,

Recalling the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice of 11 July 1950 concerning the international status of South West Africa, 1/

Recalling that, by its resolution 449 A (V) of 13 December 1950, it accepted the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice,

Recalling further that, by its resolution 1142 A (XII) of 25 October 1957, it commended the special report of the Committee on South West Africa (A/3625) on legal action which might be taken for that purpose, and in particular drew the attention of Member States to the legal action provided for in article 7 of the Mandate read with Article 37 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice, Draws the attention of Member States to the conclusions of the special report of the Comittee on South West Africa covering the legal action open to Member States to refer any dispute with the Union of South Africa concerning the interpretation or application of the Mandate for South West Africa to the International Court of Justice for adjudication in accordance with article 7 of the Mandate read in conjunction with Article 37 of the Statute of the Court.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

1362 (XIV). REPORT OF THE GOOD OFFICES COM-MITTEE ON SOUTH WEST AFRICA

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa, (A/4224), prepared in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1243 (XIII) of 30 October 1958,

- 1. Takes note of the report of the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa;
- 2. Expresses its appreciation to the members of the Committee for their efforts.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

Report of the Ethiopian Government on the progress of the negotiations between the Governments of Ethiopia and Italy, with the assistance of the independent person concerning the terms of reference for arbitration as provided in General Assembly resolution 1345 (XIII) of 13 December 1958

[3 December 1959]

- 1. After consideration of the reports submitted by the Governments of Ethiopia and Italy and following the discussions held in the Fourth Committee, the General Assembly adopted, at its thirteenth session, resolution 1345 (XIII) which, in its operative part:
 - (1) Reaffirmed its resolution 1213 (XII);
- (2) Urged the parties once again to intensify their efforts to implement the terms of resolution 1213 (XII);
- (3) Recommended that the two Governments agree on the choice of an independent person within three months and, failing such agreement, invite His Majesty the King of Norway to nominate such independent person;
- (4) Requested the Governments of Ethiopia and Italy to report to the General Assembly at its four-teenth session on the measures taken to give effect to the resolution.
- 2. With a view towards implementing resolution 1213 (XII) of the General Assembly, the Ethiopian Government had proposed on 5 December 1958, a few days prior to the adoption of resolution 1345 (XIII), the names of five prominent jurists, in addition to the five others which it had previously suggested for the role of the independent person. Awaiting what it confidently hoped might be a favourable reply from the Italian Government, the Ethiopian Government, following the adoption of that resolution, refrained from offering yet other proposals for selection. Instead, less than one week before the deadline fixed in resolu-
- * For the discussion of this item, see Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourteenth Session, Fourth Committee, 986th, 990th, 991st and 997th to 1001st meetings; and ibid., Plenary Meetings, 857th meeting.

- tion 1345 (XIII) for agreement between the two parties on the choice of the independent person, the Italian Government came forward with the names of three candidates. In a final attempt to reach some agreement on the selection, the Ethiopian Government proposed three additional names. It proved, however, impossible, under the circumstances, to reach agreement and, in consequence, appointment of the independent person by His Majesty the King of Norway, became, by virtue of the provisions of resolution 1345 (XIII), the procedure to be followed at that stage.
- 3. The appointment, by His Majesty the King of Norway, of His Excellency, Mr. Trygve Lie, as independent person, was communicated to the Ethiopian Government by note of 6 May 1959. The Ethiopian Government offered its facilities for the negotiation, as in the case of the previous discussions. However, out of consideration for the preferences indicated by the Italian Government, the Ethiopian Government did not insist upon its suggestion. Thereupon, agreement was reached that the two parties should meet Mr. Lie in Paris in the latter part of July 1959, to establish contact and to make the necessary arrangements for the negotiation of the compromis to be undertaken with his assistance. It was agreed during this preliminary contact that the negotiation should be held in Oslo. Norway, beginning 3 August 1959.
- 4. In the course of the negotiation in Oslo, the Ethiopian delegation expressed the hope that its draft $\underline{\text{compromis}}^{1}$ might be taken as a working paper, since it was a detailed document and was strictly based on and took fully into account:

- (1) The Trusteeship Agreement providing that the frontiers of the Trust Territory of Somaliland be those fixed by international agreement;
- (2) The Agreement of the parties during the two years of bilateral negotiations that the 1908 Convention 2/should be the basis for the delimitation of the frontier under reference:
- (3) The basic General Assembly resolutions 392 (V) and 1213 (XII) establishing procedures for the delimitation of frontiers and according to which differences arising out of direct bilateral negotiations be resolved by arbitration rather than mediation;
- (4) The generally established principle of arbitration according to which terms of reference shall serve to set out the differences or issues to be referred to the tribunal for settlement.
- 5. However, out of consideration for the preferences expressed, the Ethiopian Government did not insist that its draft compromis be taken as the working paper. Instead, the Italian delegation presented and insisted upon discussion of a new draft compromis replacing the original Italian draft terms of reference which, it may be recalled, had provided that the Tribunal was to "consider the question and give its decision on the basis of all the international conventions relating thereto and of the interests and wellbeing of the populations, in harmony with the principles of the United Nations". 3/The new Italian draft (A/4324, annex I), in going considerably beyond the first proposal, is more intransigent and would appear to have no ostensible basis in the Trusteeship Agreement, in the basic United Nations resolutions or in the agreements reached between the parties during the two years of negotiations.

Contrary to the specific agreements reached during the two years of negotiations, including the recognition of the continuing validity of the basic frontier Convention, the new Italian draft compromis proceeds from the assumption that there is no frontier established by international agreement and that a new boundary is to be drawn up, by delegation to the Tribunal of the power as a "legislator" to create one.

- (1) It would require the Tribunal to ignore the two years of negotiations for the delimitation of the frontier in accordance with the only binding treaty, as well as all points of agreement and of difference resulting from such negotiations and to award exclusively on what the Italian Government alleges to be "the question concerning the frontier".
- (2) It would require that the Tribunal apply international deeds and instruments concluded by Italy with third countries, although most of these treaties are well known as providing for the partition of Ethiopia among the colonial Powers.
- (3) It would give full power to the Tribunal to decide ex aequo et bono, as if there had never been a frontier agreement and "as if the Tribunal were legislator".

These were among the more salient points in the new Italian draft compromis constituting the major elements of opposition to the views advanced by the Ethiopian delegation, opposition which the Italian delegation maintained throughout the Oslo negotiations.

- 6. In pressing its position as reflected in its new draft compromis, the Italian delegation argued that:
- (1) All declarations, whether on principle or otherwise, made by the Italian negotiators during the bilateral negotiations or to the General Assembly when the parties were engaged in bilateral negotiations, were today not binding, since the negotiations in the course of which those declarations were offered were meant to be only exploratory and for the purpose of ascertaining to what extent a general agreement could be reached; however, since general agreement was not attained and the parties had passed the stage of bilateral negotiations, to enter upon arbitration, such Italian statements and reports or agreements made or reached during the negotiations now have no validity whatsoever;
- (2) The agreement of the Italian negotiators to take the 1908 Convention as the basis for the settlement of the frontier delimitation during the two years of negotiation can be disregarded, inasmuch as the negotiations did not arrive at a definitive settlement of such frontier delimitation;
- (3) The 1908 Convention, however valid and controlling over the frontier under reference, can be given no greater force or validity than the agreements concluded by Italy or Ethiopia with third parties, which, as the Italian draft states, have relevancy for "settling the difference";
- (4) In the settlement of this alleged frontier question, the Tribunal must not be restricted to past treaties, still less to one treaty, such as the 1908 Convention. It should rather examine the general situation, including the interest and welfare of the population and the principles of the United Nations, and should determine the boundary line, taking all these considerations into account, for establishing, as "legislator", a new frontier.
- 7. On the other hand, the Ethiopian delegation in Oslo maintained that:

First, when the former Italian colony of Somaliland was placed under the Trusteeship System, it was specifically provided in the Trusteeship Agreement to which Italy is a party, that the frontiers of that Trust Territory shall be those fixed by international agreement, and that, in so far as they are not already delimited by international agreement, they shall be delimited in accordance with the procedure approved by the General Assembly, namely, that of negotiation provided for in General Assembly resolution 392 (V) establishing that approved procedure.

Secondly, for over fifty years, both Italy and Ethiopia have recognized the 1908 Convention as the only valid international agreement governing the frontier under reference. This recognition of the controlling validity of the 1908 Convention, to the exclusion of any and all other considerations, was repeatedly confirmed not only by the Italian delegations to the 1956-1957 negotiations conducted in conformity with the basic resolution 392 (V) of the General Assembly, but also by the reports of the ^{2/} Convention between Italy and Ethiopia for the settlement of the frontier between the Italian possessions of Somalia and the Provinces of the Ethiopian Empire. Signed at Addis Ababa, 16 May 1908.

^{3/} See Official Records of the General Assembly, Thirteenth Session, Annexes, agenda item 41, document A/4030, annex VI, appendix, art. III.

Italian Government to the eleventh (A/3463) and twelfth (A/3754 and Add.1) sessions of the General Assembly. Moreover, regardless of the success or failure of the negotiations, the fact remains that, in diplomatic communications both with the Ethiopian Government and with the League of Nations, the Fascist Government of Italy had formally recognized the 1908 Convention as exclusively establishing the frontier and as providing the criteria according to which the delimitation of the same must take place, that the present Government of Italy could scarcely adopt an attitude less favourable to respect for international agreements and that, in fact, since the war, in communications to the United Nations, the present Italian Government has similarly reaffirmed the controlling criteria established by the 1908 Convention.

Thirdly, as the Trusteeship Agreement and General Assembly resolution 392 (V) make completely clear, the problem is one, not of revising frontiers or of creating new frontiers, but of establishing procedures for delimiting frontiers already fixed by international agreement. Indeed, it is a self-evident proposition as well as one fully borne out by the records of the United Nations in adopting the basic resolutions involved, that that body has no competence to establish the frontiers of any sovereign State, but only to recommend procedures to achieve delimitation of such frontiers.

Fourthly, the basic resolution 392 (V) of the General Assembly laying down the procedures for delimiting the frontiers of the Trust Territory of Somaliland, to the extent not already delimited, specifically provided that the differences left unresolved by the bilateral negotiations should be referred to mediation, and if mediation failed, to arbitration. In other words, it was the differences remaining unresolved in the bilateral negotiations and not those resolved in such negotiations which, by the terms of that resolution, were to be referred to mediation or arbitration. Such a provision is, in fact, quite natural, since one does not seek to resolve by arbitration what has already been resolved by agreement. Consequently, the agreements between the two parties on the controlling validity of the 1908 Convention as the exclusive basis for the settlement of the delimitation of the frontier under reference, the inapplicability of third-party treaties and the exclusion of all other extraneous elements or situations, constitute questions resolved within the meaning of resolution 392 (V) and, therefore, not referable to mediation or arbitration. It is, however, an incontestable fact that, while the two parties did agree, in their bilateral negotiations, to exclude third-party treaties, elements, or situations extraneous to the 1908 Convention and to take that Convention as the only basis for the delimitation of the frontier under reference, they failed to resolve differences concerning the interpretation of the said 1908 Convention. It is, consequently, these unresolved differences which must be referred to arbitral settlement.

Fifthly, resolution 392 (V), in laying down the procedures for the delimitation of the frontier, provided for two methods for the settlement of the differences arising out of the bilateral negotiations. These two methods were, first, mediation and second, arbitration. When, however, it was found necessary to move on from bilateral negotiations to the next appropriate method, the General Assembly, in its resolution 1213 (XII), decided in favour of the procedure of arbitration, although in the order listed in resolution 392 (V), the next procedure, following bilateral negotiation, was mediation. This decision resulted from the fact that the differences which the two parties had failed to resolve in their bilateral negotiations were of a juridical nature, being differences in the interpretation of a treaty, and would, therefore, most appropriately, be settled through juridical methods. Consequently, the Italian position calling for the introduction of certain mediatory and non-juridical elements, such as the interests and welfare of the population and reference to general and vague principles of the United Nations, coupled with rejection of a valid treaty as the basis for the settlement of the frontier delimitation under dispute, would not only appear to constitute an attempt to indulge in frontier revisionism, in fact, in the establishment of a new frontier, but would also be contrary to the basic resolutions 392 (V), 1213 (XII) and 1345 (XIII) of the General Assembly.

Sixthly, by objecting to the inclusion in the compromis of the differences or issues left unresolved in the bilateral negotiations, by insisting on the reference to the Tribunal of what the Italian Government chose to designate as the general frontier question, and by requiring that the Tribunal decide "the question" exacquo et bono as a legislator, the Government of Italy would appear to seek transformation of the arbitral Tribunal into some form of legislative body, and to suppress the concept of arbitration itself, since arbitration without issues to be arbitrated is incomprehensible and is, indeed, a contradiction in terms.

8. From the foregoing, the positions taken by the two delegations in Oslo, can be summarized to be as follows:

Ethiopia maintained that:

- (1) The problem, as defined by the Trusteeship Agreement and the basic General Assembly resolution in the matter, resolution 392 (V), is not that of establishing new frontiers or revising existing frontiers, but solely that of delimiting on the ground the frontiers established by international agreement.
- (2) Before, during and after the bilateral negotiations, Italy had declared, not only to Ethiopia, but also to the League of Nations and the United Nations, that the frontier under reference was established and governed by the 1908 frontier Convention concluded between Ethiopia and Italy.
- (3) Questions resolved in the bilateral negotiations, such as the exclusive validity of the 1908 Convention, inapplicability of third-party treaties and exclusion of all non-conventional elements or situations, cannot be referred to arbitration.
- (4) The differences or issues remaining unresolved in the bilateral negotiations and therefore referable for arbitration are the differences in the interpretation of the 1908 Convention.
- (5) In arbitrating these differences of interpretation of a treaty, the arbitration Tribunal must apply strictly juridical procedures.

Italy claimed on the other hand that:

- (1) It is the general question of the frontier, and not the differences or issues arising out of the bilateral negotiations which must be referred to arbitration.
- (2) In its decision on what the frontier should be, the arbitration Tribunal must take into account all international agreements and deeds, whether or not Ethiopia is a party thereto, as well as the interests and welfare of the population and the principles of the United Nations.
- (3) The arbitration Tribunal, in its decision, should not apply strictly juridical procedures.
- 9. In view of these fundamental differences in the positions of the two parties, the independent person proposed a suspension of the negotiations and resumption in New York late in October or early in November 1959. He explained as the reason for his proposal the necessity of having sufficient time for discussion of the matter with international jurists and for reflection on his part, so as to enable him to prepare a compromis acceptable to the two parties. The parties agreed to the proposal of the independent person and the Oslo negotiations were suspended on 12 August 1959.
- 10. In the period of suspension, the Ethiopian Government took the initiative of inviting the independent person, Mr. Trygve Lie, to come to Addis Ababa to discuss the matter and to explore all possibilities of finding some common ground acceptable to the parties concerned.
- 11. During his stay of three days in Addis Ababa, Mr. Trygve Lie had extensive discussions with the Ethiopian Government, in the course of which he submitted a draft compromis which he had prepared and brought with him from Oslo (A/4325, annex I). Inasmuch as that proposal, in the opinion of the Ethiopian Government, on the one hand, left aside matters of particular importance and, on the other, contained certain provisions that the Ethiopian Government could not agree to without change, its acceptance as a working paper presented problems of particular difficulty for the Ethiopian Government. However, animated by a spirit of conciliation, out of consideration for the great efforts devoted by the independent person towards establishing some basic working document and in the interest of reaching a rapid agreement on the terms of reference, the Ethiopian Government agreed, subject to the right of amendment, to accept Mr. Lie's draft proposal as a working paper and, following discussions in Rome between the independent person and the Italian Government, negotiations on the compromis, with the assistance of the independent person, were resumed in New York on 3 November 1959.
- 12. Having accepted as a working paper the draft compromis prepared by the independent person, the Italian and Ethiopian delegations submitted amendments thereto (A/4325, annexes III and II).
- 13. The Ethiopian Government wishes to testify to the zeal which Mr. Trygve Lie has shown in the difficult task which is his, to assist the two parties in their negotiations, to the great contributions in time and effort and to the objectivity and the constructive approach which he has, at all times, maintained and which are reflected in the draft compromis proposed to the two parties as a working paper.

- 14. His draft is in conformity with the Trusteeship Agreement in recognizing that the task is that of delimiting a frontier already established by international agreement; with the United Nations resolutions as regards competence in such matters; and, to a degree, with the specific agreement of the parties as to what treaty governs the delimitation of the frontier in question, namely, the 1908 frontier Convention. His proposals start from the premise that the problem is one of delimiting on the ground an existing frontier established by international agreement and stipulate in article III that such delimitation on the ground should be effected on the basis of the 1908 Convention.
- 15. Out of appreciation of the efforts of the independent person to assist the parties and sincere desire to reach agreement, the Ethiopian delegation took pains to avoid effecting substantial changes in the draft prepared by Mr. Lie, notwithstanding the existence of the very considerable problems which that proposal raised for the Ethiopian Government. It was, therefore, mainly to a few fundamental points only, such as third-party agreements, reference to undefined principles and the silence of the working paper on the essential differences to be resolved by the Tribunal, that the Ethiopian amendments were directed.
- 16. This general attitude of the Ethiopian delegation is reflected in its amendments to the penultimate paragraph of the preamble and the first part of article III of the independent person's draft, offered for the sole purpose of giving to general principles a somewhat higher degree of precision and to relate them to the provisions of Article 33 of the Charter of the United Nations. Similarly, although the Ethiopian delegation attaches the greatest importance to the specific listing in the terms of reference of the issues to be referred to the Tribunal, it did not insist on the listing in the working paper of unresolved issues, but limited its amendments to the insertion of a phrase to the effect that the Tribunal should not seek to resolve issues already resolved in the bilateral negotiation. A substantive amendment to the draft compromis of the independent person is that related to article IV on evidence. That article, as drafted by the independent person, would admit as evidence third-party treaties to which Ethiopia is not a party, while the Ethiopian amendment would limit evidence from international treaties and agreements to those concluded between the two parties. The rest of the Ethiopian amendments were designed to offer suggestions for clarification and precision through the introduction of some short phrases or clauses, or through changes of some words.
- 17. The Italian amendments, on the other hand, would transform the draft compromis of the independent person, both in substance and in form. In the first place, by deleting the first preambular paragraph recognizing that the frontier had been established by a treaty, and by replacing it by a new paragraph, and, further, by deleting throughout the entire text all references to delimitation on the ground, the Italian amendments would reintroduce the Italian draft compromis submitted in Oslo, according to which the problem was not one of delimiting on the ground an established frontier, but rather, one of establishing a new frontier. Similarly, by changing third-party agreements—for the most part envisaging the partitioning of Ethiopia—into agreements binding on Ethiopia, the Italian amendments would transform the very substance of the draft compromis of the independent person.

- 18. These Italian amendments coupled with the rejection of the references to judicial processes and to the differences to be the object of the arbitration, as proposed in the Ethiopian amendments (although in the latter case, only by inference), constituted the principal obstacles to the reduction, during the negotiations resumed in New York, of the differences between the views of the two delegations.
- 19. In all the discussions, including the resumed negotiations, the Italian Government and its delegation have admitted that the 1908 Convention is a valid treaty regulating the frontier in its entirety. However, of late, they have insisted that, in the delimitation of the frontier, other treaties, including third-party treaties, must, at the same time, be assigned the same value as that given to the 1908 Convention.
- 20. In this connexion, the Ethiopian delegation repeatedly asked the Italian delegation to explain how a frontier regulated in its entirety by a valid convention could, at the same time, be regulated by other treaties, unless such convention has been superseded and invalidated by subsequent treaties—which Italy had never claimed to be the case. However, the Italian delegation refused to give the explanation requested. The comments of the Ethiopian delegation in regard to the Italian amendments are attached to this report as annex V.
- 21. It is a matter of regret that, in view of the approaching date for the parties to report to the General Assembly in conformity with resolution 1345 (XIII), the negotiations could not be continued. Under the circumstances, and in order to allow sufficient time to the two Governments to prepare their reports, it has been agreed between the parties as well as between them and the independent person that the negotiations should not, at this stage, be continued.
- 22. However, from an analysis of the foregoing, it can be affirmed that, while there are still fundamental differences separating the parties in the negotiations, there is no doubt that progress has been made towards the establishment of some common ground on the basis of which, given goodwill, the parties can seek to eliminate their remaining differences.
- 23. The acceptance by the parties of Mr. Lie's draft compromis as a working paper to serve as a basis of discussion is, in the view of the Ethiopian Government, in itself, progress. However, many articles in the draft of the independent person have been accepted by both parties without modification. In addition, the parties have accepted certain views as suggested in the amendments by each side. All these circumstances give the Ethiopian Government sufficient reason to hope that, if the negotiations should be continued with the valuable assistance of the independent person, agreement on a compromis could be reached and delimitation of the frontier on the ground between Ethiopia and the Trust Territory of Somaliland would be achieved through the procedure of arbitration in accordance with resolutions 1213 (XII) and 1345 (XIII) of the General Assembly.

- OBSERVATIONS OF THE ETHIOPIAN DELEGATION ON THE ITALIAN AMENDMENTS TO THE WORKING PAPER PREPARED BY MR. TRYGVE LIE
- 1. I think it appropriate to place on record certain observations in regard to the situation as it exists today, following the exchanges of views concerning the amendments to Your Excellency's working paper.
- 2. At our meeting on Monday morning, there was presented a paper entitled "Views expressed by the Italian delegation on the Ethiopian amendments to the draft compromis presented by Mr. Trygve Lie" (A/4325, annex IV). When we look at that document, we note that, while retaining, it would appear, all its amendments—and I trust that my colleague, Minister Vinci, will correct me if I am in error in this matter—the Italian delegation rejects the Ethiopian amendments with the exception of two editing and grammatical changes proposed by my delegation, and the Ethiopian amendment to article VII. However, since the Italian delegation has, at the same time, maintained its amendment to that same article, the effect has been to nullify the acceptance of the Ethiopian amendment.
- 3. It is, of course, true that the document in question purports to accept Ethiopian amendments on four other points, but, at the same time, it subjects acceptance to contradictory amendments on the Italian side, thereby again nullifying the effect of those conditional acceptances.
- 4. Consequently, I believe that I am correct in stating that the Italian delegation has accepted nothing in the Ethiopian amendments with the exception of two grammatical and editing proposals. In fact, it has explicitly enunciated the points of its rejections, a listing that I should wish to suggest is highly significant in its implications.
- 5. On the contrary, in the important and substantial matters covered in article IX of the working paper, the Ethiopian delegation has accepted the Italian point of view. Furthermore, in the vital question of reserving matters of national jurisdiction, a reservation occurring in a multitude of international agreements, Ethiopia accepted the Italian amendment on this point.
- 6. I shall not take up each of the various rejections interposed by the Italian delegation. Instead, I shall confine myself to a few illustrative remarks. For example, the Italian delegation has formally rejected the short clause in article IV to the effect that the Tribunal must address itself to the task of interpreting the 1908 Convention, yet it must, surely, have some task. Without some such clause, sub-paragraph 1 of that article, for example, becomes quite meaningless, if I may say so—anything whatever becomes relevant, even if it has nothing to do with the frontier.

- 7. Also, in the same connexion, the Italian delegation has rejected even the simple, and I should have thought completely obvious, suggestion with respect to that same article, that, while United Nations records might be resorted to, neither Italy nor Ethiopia should be held to admit as evidence such remarks as third States might have made or might wish to make in the Fourth Committee or elsewhere concerning the frontier. We can admit declarations made by Italy and by Ethiopia in the debates on the question of delimitation of the frontier. No one can compel us to admit statements made by third parties at the United Nations, and, indeed, one might well ask what value such statements would have, even in throwing any light on the questions in any respect. Yet, again, Italy rejects even this obvious proposition.
- 8. Coming now to the rejections by Italy of the few words suggested by Ethiopia in respect of article III of the working paper, I would observe that, at our meeting on last Saturday, I had stated that the Ethiopian delegation had limited itself to the insertion of certain short phrases for the most part, and of a few clauses, not for meeting its essential needs, but either for bringing the text into consonance with agreed points, or, simply, to avoid the total exclusion of matters which were of vital significance. It is in this respect that I wish to refer to the Italian rejection of our amendment relating to points disposed of by agreement between the two Parties.
- 9. It would seem obvious that, unless there are differences, there cannot be and indeed would be no justification for arbitration. The very concept of arbitration is based on, and requires the existence and statement in the compromis of, the differences to which the arbitration relates. Now, as I have just said, our amendments were designed, not to meet our needs, but simply to avoid the total exclusion of essential matters. It was with this particularly conciliatory objective in mind that, in our amendments, we refrained from insisting upon the statement of issues, as we had done in our original proposals, although such a statement is absolutely essential in our opinion, but, merely provided for the exclusion of matters already agreed upon between the negotiating - Parties—a point that would seem obvious in any case. Furthermore, you will all recall that resolution 392 (V) reserves for arbitration those differences left unresolved by these negotiations. Consequently, unless there is a desire to undo what has been accomplished and to delay the solutions of the questions by starting all over again and by ignoring the points of agreement achieved, it would seem that no possible exception could be taken to such an amendment. Yet, the Italian delegation has explicitly rejected even the short clause suggested to this end in article III (c) of the working paper.

- 10. My delegation finds such a rejection completely unreasonable, particularly in view of the extraordinary lengths to which the Ethiopian Government had gone in order to be conciliatory on this fundamental point. Consequently, I must state, on behalf of my delegation and Government that they reaffirm their basic position on this fundamental and ineluctable concept of arbitration.
- 11. The Italian Government, moreover, rejects even the three-word amendment to article III (b) to the effect that the Tribunal must utilize juridical processes, although the Italian delegation said precisely that on 9 December 1957 in the Fourth Committee (735th meeting) in the discussions leading to the General Assembly arbitration resolution 1213 (XII). When this additional rejection is related to the Italian position on issues and points of agreement just referred to it becomes even more compellingly clear that Italy is opposing General Assembly resolutions 1213 (XII) and 1345 (XIII).
- 12. Finally, Italy has specifically rejected the amendment providing for the exclusion of defacto considerations, although, on 3 April 1956, the Italian delegation had stated—and note that this declaration relates not to the negotiations as such, but to the task before the two States—and I quote: "We have to delimit the frontier on the basis of documents and juridical instruments and leave aside everything concerning circumstances or situations defacto." A similar statement appears in the Italian report for that year (A/3463). Be that as it may, I feel compelled to remind my Italian colleague that, by such rejection, the position of his delegation follows that of the Italian Government during the Walwal dispute from which the representatives of present-day Italy have repeatedly claimed to dissociate themselves.

Report of the Italian Government on the measures taken to give effect to General Assembly resolution 1345 (XIII) of 13 December 1958

1. By resolution 1213 (XII), unanimously adopted on 14 December 1957, the General Assembly, considering that it was in the common interest of Ethiopia and the Trust Territory of Somalia that there should be a final settlement of the question of the frontier between the two countries before the Territory became an independent sovereign State in 1960, and having regard to the urgency of the matter, expressed the opinion that a final settlement of the problem could be achieved most expeditiously by a procedure of arbitration. To this end, it recommended the parties to establish an Arbitration Tribunal consisting of three jurists, one appointed by Ethiopia, one by Italy and one by agreement between the jurists so appointed. The task of the Tribunal would be to delimit the frontier in accordance with the "terms of reference" to be agreed upon between the two Governments, with the assistance of an independent person to be appointed by agreement between them.

In the course of 1958, as reported by the Italian Government to the General Assembly in a document of 5 December 1958 (A/4030), the parties reached an agreement on the establishment of the Tribunal, but failed to agree on the adoption of the terms of reference and on the appointment of the independent person.

Consequently, the General Assembly, on 13 December 1958, unanimously adopted resolution 1345 (XIII) by which, after reaffirming its resolution 1213 (XII), urged the parties to further intensify their efforts to implement the terms of resolution 1213 (XII). The General Assembly also recommended that the two Governments agree on the choice of an independent person within three months and, failing such agreement, invite His Majesty the King of Norway to nominate such independent person; and, finally, requested the Governments of Ethiopia and of Italy to report to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session on the measures taken by them to give effect to the resolution.

- 2. In compliance with the foregoing, the Italian Government has now the honour to report to the General Assembly on the steps it has taken to carry out the recommendations contained in resolution 1345 (XIII).
- 3. Within the time limit set by resolution 1345 (XIII). the Ethiopian and Italian Governments exchanged proposals for the appointment of the independent person, but these proposals failed to produce a common choice. Consequently, on 12 March 1958, the Italian Government instructed its Ambassador to Addis Ababa to make arrangements with the Ethiopian Government on the procedure which could be properly followed to contact, jointly or separately, the Norwegian Government in order to ask His Majesty the King of Norway to appoint the independent person. As a result, on 2 April 1958, two notes of the same tenor were presented simultaneously to the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs by the Ethiopian and the Italian Ambassadors to Oslo. By a note dated 6 May 1959, the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs informed that His Majesty the King of Norway, acting upon the invitation of the parties, had appointed Mr. Trygve Lie as the independent person entrusted with the task of performing the functions recommended by resolution 1213 (XII) of the General Assembly.
- 4. Mr. Trygve Lie invited delegations of both parties to meet him in Paris on 21 and 22 July 1959. In the course of separate preliminary talks held on this occasion, he proposed that the two delegations convene in Oslo on 3 August to start negotiations on the terms of reference to be submitted to the Arbitration Tribunal. Having accepted Mr. Lie's proposal, the Italian delegation (which included three representatives of the Somali Government) and the Ethiopian delegation met in Oslo from 3 August to 13 August. In meetings held with the assistance of the independent person, the two delegations stated their positions in respect of the terms of reference.
- 5. To clarify the subsequent developments, it may be recalled that in the period of June-July 1958 the Italian and Ethiopian Governments had exchanged their drafts compromis relating to the terms of reference for the Arbitration Tribunal (A/4030, annexes VI and VII), but had failed to reach an agreement for the reasons set forth by each party in its report to the General Assembly (A/4030, A/4031 and Add.1).
- 6. In the course of the negotiations held in Oslo, the Ethiopian delegation took the view that the draft compromis presented in 1958 by its Government should be taken as the basis for the discussions. It reiterated, in so doing, the basic concept underlying its draft, namely, that the task of the Tribunal should be confined to the interpretation of articles I to IV of the Italo-Ethiopian Convention of 1908, thus ruling out all references to other relevant international deeds. Further, the Ethiopian delegation maintained that the question of the frontier should be considered as one of a purely juridical nature. This position, it was maintained, was supported by a number of arguments such as: the wording of General Assembly resolution 392 (V) which recommended the procedures to be followed for the delimitation of the frontier of the Territory of Somalia; the letter of article 1 of the Trusteeship Agreement ("Its boundaries shall be those - fixed by international agreement"); the fact that resolution 1213 (XII) recommended a procedure of arbitration; and, finally, the fact that the parties themselves have set out the existence of issues and differences which, by the operation of resolutions 392 (V) and 1213 (XII), they have agreed to refer to arbitration by their terms of reference.

- 7. The position taken by the Italian delegation at the Oslo negotiations, on the other hand, was that the terms of reference should not be negotiated solely on the basis of the draft compromis proposed by the Ethiopian Government on 28 July 1958, since the Italian Government had also presented, on 19 June 1958, a draft of its own. Clearly, the Italian draft could not be disregarded as long as the agreed course of the negotiations was to discuss the comparative merits of the two drafts. Otherwise, new proposals should be brought forth. In the view of the Italian delegation, it was not possible, furthermore, to confine the task of the Arbitration Tribunal to the differences that had arisen during the direct bilateral negotiations. In point of fact, these negotiations had come to a close in this preliminary exploratory phase without reaching any practical conclusion, much less a formal agreement, and, looking at the matter from a broader point of view, it seemed clear that the essential goal to reach for all concerned was the attainment of a "final, just, equitable and friendly" solution of the problem of the frontier, as recommended by resolutions 755 (VIII) and 854 (IX) of the General Assembly. In the view of the Italian delegation, the contention that the parties or the Tribunal should confine themselves to the legal interpretation of a document was not substantiated by the very wording of the resolutions. This wording rather seemed to bear witness to the necessity of granting the arbitrators adequate latitude of judgement. This latitude appeared indeed the prerequisite for a final decision that would in all respects achieve the purpose of the General Assembly resolutions. On this particular point, the Italian delegation recalled some pertinent historical precedents relating to the demarcation of boundaries that authoritatively supported its views:
- (1) The Treaty of Lima, entered into by Colombia and Peru in 1904, prescribed that the frontier question pending between the two countries
 - "... shall be resolved taking into account not only the rights and arguments of the law which have been or will be presented, but also the best interests of the High Contracting Parties, reconciling them in such a way that the border line be established in accordance with right and equity".
- (2) The Arbitration Agreement of 1885 between Great Britain and Russia reads as follows:
 - "Il est entendu qu'en traçant cette frontière et en se conformant, autant que possible, à la description de cette ligne dans le présent Protocole, ainsi qu'aux points marqués sur les cartes ci-annexées, lesdits Commissaires tiendront dûment compte des localités et des nécessités et du bien-être des populations locales."
- (3) The Treaty signed in 1938 by Bolivia and Paraguay, to solve the dispute concerning the territory of the Chaco Boreal, granted the arbitrators the power to decide "in their capacity as arbitrators in equity acting ex aequo et bono".

(4) The Treaty of Arbitration concluded in 1908 by Norway and Sweden reads as follows:

"In arriving at their decision, the Commission will take into account ethnographical and historical principles and the state-political interests of each Party (military, strategic, economic and communicational) and the interests of the local population."

In this connexion, the Italian delegation felt that the arbitrators should consider as applicable to the case under examination all resolutions adopted by the General Assembly with regard to the question of the frontier, and not only some of them. As to the expression "by international agreement" appearing in the English texts of resolution 392 (V) and article 1 of the Trusteeship Agreement, the Italian delegation pointed out that the expression had to be interpreted in its general sense and not, as was argued by the Ethiopian delegation, as a mere reference to the 1908 Convention. The fallacy of such an interpretation could easily be proven by comparing the English with the French text, which reads literally par accords internationaux.

In practical reality, however, it could hardly be denied that several references to sections of the frontier still to be delimited could be found in a number of international agreements.

Furthermore, the Italian delegation felt unable to accept the Ethiopian argument according to which the juridical nature of the question was substantiated by General Assembly resolution 1213 (XII) inasmuch as the latter had recommended that the parties avail themselves of the procedure of arbitration, by passing the stage of mediation. The Ethiopian assumption appeared in contradiction with both the official records of the debates on the frontier question in the Fourth Committee during the twelfth and thirteenth sessions and with operative paragraph 1 of resolution 1213 (XII) according to which the General Assembly, considering that the delimitation of the frontier was a matter of urgency, expressed the opinion "that a final settlement can be achieved most expeditiously by a procedure of arbitration".

It is in fact well known that, upon the failure of direct negotiations, the Italian representative, in agreement with the representative of the Somali Government, proposed to the Fourth Committee to move on to the procedure of mediation provided by resolution 392 (V). The proposal, however, was rejected by the Ethiopian representative. It became then necessary for the General Assembly, if it was to overcome the dead-lock brought about by the Ethiopian opposition to the procedure of mediation, to recommend that the parties avail themselves of the arbitration procedure.

Acquiescence to arbitration, prompted solely by the urgency of the matter as stressed by the General Assembly, should, however, not be construed as meaning that the Italian and Somali Governments were agreed that the Tribunal was to be granted only those limited powers which the Ethiopian Government appeared to envisage.

Furthermore, General Assembly resolution 392 (V), by envisaging a possible solution of the problem also through a procedure of mediation, clearly implied that the Tribunal should have recourse to principles of equity as well, in conformity with normally accepted arbitration procedure.

The Italian delegation finally pointed out that it served little purpose to protract a debate on the two draft compromis presented in 1958, which the parties considered mutually unacceptable.

With a view to overcoming this difficulty, and as evidence of the goodwill of the Italian and Somali Governments, the Italian delegation submitted a second draft compromis (annex I). This new draft, which took into consideration, as far as possible, several points of substance and procedure of the Ethiopian draft compromis of 1958, was fully in keeping with the suggestions made by Mr. Trygve Lie to the two delegations at the beginning of the negotiations. Indeed the new text, which had been agreed upon by the Somali Government, included a specific mention of the Italo-Ethiopian Convention of 1908, a point to which the Ethiopian Government attributed particular importance. Moreover, article XI of the new Italian draft-an essential one in so far as it established the provisions relating to the contents of the awardclosely followed, in its substance and form, article VII of the 1958 Ethiopian draft. Finally, the whole conception of the Italian proposal was based on the general principles and model rules on arbitration adopted by the General Assembly at its thirteenth session.

8. When the Italian draft was considered, the Ethiopian delegation let it be known—at the meeting on 12 August 1959—that it had, after consultations and upon instructions from its Government, to reject it.

Consequently, Mr. Trygve Lie, taking stock of the situation, expressed the view that, the negotiations appearing to have come to a standstill, the two delegations and the independent person could agree to adjourn and resume their proceedings in New York in the second half of October 1959.

Mr. Trygve Lie would devote the intervening period to reappraising all the new elements which had emerged in the course of the negotiations, and possibly to drafting, in his capacity as independent person, a draft compromis of his own. He would then submit it to the attention of the two Governments in order to ascertain whether they would be willing to take it as a basis for future discussions.

9. Mr. Lie then proceeded to elaborate a draft compromis (A/4325, annex I) which he presented to the Ethiopian and Italian Governments on 15 and 22 October 1959, respectively, on the occasion of his visit to Addis Ababa and Rome.

The Italian and Ethiopian Governments accepted the draft compromis proposed by Mr. Trygve Lie as a basis of discussion for the two delegations, whose meetings were scheduled to be resumed in New York on 2 November 1959.

10. Negotiations between the two delegations with the assistance of the independent person were held in New York between 2 and 20 November 1959.

During the plenary sessions and the separate meetings that each delegation had with Mr. Trygve Lie, the parties stated their positions with regard to the draft compromis presented by the independent person, and submitted their amendments thereto.

The Italian delegation submitted ten amendments (A/4325, annex III); in turn, the Ethiopian delegation proposed eighteen amendments (ibid., annex II). Subsequently, the Italian delegation put forward its observations on the amendments proposed by the Ethiopian delegation (ibid., annex IV).

11. The Ethiopian delegation, commenting upon its own amendments, pointed out that, in the course of the conversations held in Oslo, the draft compromis proposed in 1958 by its Government had not been discussed in detail, whereas the second draft presented by the Italian delegation had been the subject of detailed study. This circumstance, according to the Ethiopian delegation, had made it impossible to continue the Oslo negotiations. The Ethiopian delegation, after mentioning the difficulties encountered by its Government in accepting the draft compromis proposed by the independent person, stressed that the Ethiopian amendments did not substantially alter the draft itself, with the only exception of its amendment to sub-paragraph 2 of article IV, which ruled out all reference to third-party treaties.

The Ethiopian delegation stated that it found itself in the necessity of rejecting all but two of the Italian amendments: those concerning article XIII, B and article IX; the latter was, however, declared acceptable with certain reservations. The Ethiopian delegation rejected, in particular, the amendments referring to the use of the term "Somalia" (preamble) and those to article III, to sub-paragraph 2 of article IV, to article VI, A and to article VII, stating that they had been proposed with the intent of establishing a "new frontier".

The Ethiopian delegation declared in conclusion that, in rejecting the Italian amendments, it adhered strictly to the principles laid down in resolutions 392 (V), 1213 (XII) and 1345 (XIII) of the General Assembly.

12. As regards the Italian delegation, in submitting its amendments and in expressing its views on the Ethiopian proposals, it once again reaffirmed its position on the problem of the frontier, namely, that Italy had no direct interest in this issue, it being the exclusive concern of Ethiopia and Somalia, and that it appeared inappropriate and unfounded on the part of Ethiopia to hold Italy responsible for certain acts or initiatives which were solely motivated by its obligations as Administering Power. The Italian delegation also maintained that all resolutions adopted by the General Assembly on this matter had to be taken into consideration and not only those mentioned by the Ethiopian delegation. It was recalled at this point that resolutions 755 (VIII) and 854 (IX) recommended explicitly "a final, just, equitable and friendly settlement of the question of the frontier".

The Italian delegation proceeded then to point out that both the draft presented by it in Oslo and the amendments which it submitted to the draft of the independent person had fully met Ethiopia's fundamental request, namely, that the reference to the 1908 Convention be included in the "terms of reference". The Ethiopian delegation, on its part, by the amendments it proposed to the second paragraph of the preamble, as well as to article III and to subparagraphs 2, 3 and 6 of article IV of Mr. Trygve Lie's draft, stated that it was unable to accept the essential elements of Italy's and Somalia's position (reference to all relevant international agreements and to "acts of the United Nations"). These elements, however, had been included by the independent person in his draft, as a result of an objective and impartial evaluation of all aspects of the problem. Consequently, the Ethiopian claim that the Italian delegation had aimed at altering the substance of the draft compromis submitted by the independent person appeared clearly unfounded.

These amendments had been drafted with the purpose of placing in a proper perspective the two fundamental points contained in Mr. Lie's draft, and which referred to the main rules applicable by the Tribunal, without altering the substance of the proposal contained therein. In so doing, the Italian delegation was aiming at a rearrangement and at a better balance of those basic provisions, in order to facilitate a satisfactory solution both to Ethiopia and Somalia.

As regards the objection raised by the Ethiopian delegation to the use of the term "Somalia" instead of that of "Trust Territory", the Italian delegation clarified that such a change had been introduced only in response to a specific wish expressed by the Somali Government and that, on the other hand, this expression had already been repeatedly used in a number of official documents of the United Nations.

The Italian delegation then submitted its views with regard to the Ethiopian amendments (A/4325, annex IV), stating that:

It would fully accept the amendments appended to the ninth and tenth preambular paragraphs of the draft of Mr. Trygve Lie, and to article VII;

It would also accept the amendment proposed to the second preambular paragraph, supplementing it with the enumeration of all the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly in the matter;

It would further accept amendments to articles I, III and III (a), provided the Ethiopian delegation accepted the Italian amendment relating to the same articles;

The Italian delegation finally expressed the view that the original text proposed by the independent person should be maintained with respect to articles III (b), III (c), sub-paragraphs 2, 3 and 6 of article IV, VI, B, VIII and XIV of the draft compromis.

Mr. Trygve Lie, after reviewing the new elements that had emerged in the course of the negotiations, expressed the opinion that, although the positions of the two parties had drawn nearer, the progress made did not appear sufficient to lead to an agreement. He stated accordingly that he felt his mission had come to an end and announced his intention to report on the conclusion of the negotiations to His Majesty the King of Norway. The contents of the report would also be brought to the attention of the Secretary-General of the United Nations.

- It remained for the parties, in compliance with resolution 1345 (XIII), to submit a report on the negotiations to the General Assembly.
- 13. The Italian Government regrets that, notwithstanding the assistance of so eminent a personality as Mr. Trygve Lie, an agreement could not be reached between the two delegations.

The Italian Government feels, however, it has done all that was in its power, as Administering Authority, to carry out the procedures recommended by resolution 392 (V).

The Italian Government has always based its efforts on the principle that the spirit of resolution 392 (V), and of all the other resolutions subsequently approved by the General Assembly, was that of laying the foundations for a just and satisfactory solution of the problem of the border between Somalia and Ethiopia and as a fundamental prerequisite for good neighbouring relations and mutual respect between the two countries. It believes it has thus faithfully accomplished the tasks deriving from the Trusteeship Agreement.

The Italian Government, interpreting the hopes of the Somali people, is confident that the General Assembly during its present session—which is the last before the end of the Trusteeship Agreement—will take into careful consideration the vital problem of the frontier of Somalia, so that its people, upon the declaration of their independence, will be endowed with an internationally demarcated territory in which they may devote themselves entirely to the peaceful development of their economy and of their democratic institutions.

ANNEXES

Annex I

DRAFT Compromis PRESENTED BY THE ITALIAN DELE-GATION

The Government of the Italian Republic, as the Power entrusted with the trust administration of Somaliland on the one side, and the Imperial Government of Ethiopia on the other side,

Recalling resolution 392 (V) of the General Assembly of the United Nations of 15 December 1950, and all subsequent resolutions adopted by it concerning the question of the frontier between Ethiopia and the Trust Territory of Somaliland,

Pursuant with resolution 1213 (XII) of 14 December 1957, with which the General Assembly of the United Nations recommended that said Governments should submit to an arbitration tribunal the question concerning the frontier between Ethiopia and the Territory of Somaliland, and that they should agree on the choice of an independent person to assist them in determining the terms of reference for the arbitration,

Pursuant with resolution 1345 (XIII) of 13 December 1958, which, reaffirming resolution 1213 (XII), recommended that the two Governments should invite His Majesty the King of Norway to nominate such an independent person,

Whereas His Majesty the King of Norway, on request of the two Governments, has accepted to make the nomination and, to that effect, has appointed Mr. Trygve Lie,

Whereas the two above-mentioned Governments are desirous of settling the difference in the interest and for the welfare of the local populations in accordance with the principles of the United Nations:

Article I

By the present Compromis said Governments establish an Arbitration Tribunal composed of:

Professor Castrén, President;

Mr. F. Bolla, Member;

Professor Radojković, Member.

Article II

The tasks of the Tribunal shall be:

(a) To award on the question concerning the frontier between the Ethiopian Empire and the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian administration;

- (b) Consequently, to determine the boundary line between the Ethiopian Empire and the Territory of Somaliland;
- (c) To deliver its award within six months from the beginning of proceedings;
- (d) To provide directly and with assistance of experts the actual marking, on the ground, of said boundary line.

Article III

For the purposes of delivering its award, the Tribunal shall apply:

- (a) The Convention between Italy and Ethiopia of 16 May 1908 and all relevant international deeds or instruments concluded between the two countries;
- (b) International deeds and instruments concluded by each of the two Parties with third countries, which are relevant for the purpose of settling the difference.

In evaluating said deeds and instruments, the Tribunal may avail itself of officially published international documentation.

The Parties hereto give furthermore to the Tribunal the power to decide ex aequo et bono, as if in the matter in question the Tribunal were legislator.

Article IV

The Tribunal shall give due consideration to any element of evidence produced by each of the two Parties.

The Tribunal shall rule as to admissibility of evidence and as to the probatory value of same.

The Tribunal shall have the power, at any stage of the proceedings, of ordering surveys and appraisals and of ordering, when indispensable, visits to the terrain.

Article V

The two Parties shall appoint to the Tribunal their respective agents who shall act as intermediaries between the Parties and the Tribunal; each Party may provide for its agent the assistance of consultants or experts.

The two Parties, through their respective agents, consultants or experts, may submit to the Tribunal, in writing or verbally, any element they consider useful for the defence of their cause.

Article VI

The proceedings before the Tribunal comprise a written procedure and a discussion.

The written procedure consists of the submission by the agent of each Party to the members of the Tribunal and to the other Party of memoranda and counter memoranda and, if necessary, of rejoinders and counter-rejoinders. Each Party must attach to such papers the documents and pieces of evidence it has mentioned in its favour.

The Tribunal shall fix the terms within which such papers must be submitted.

The discussion consists in the verbal development before the Tribunal of the arguments of the two Parties.

Article VII

The verbal discussion is directed by the President.

After each sitting the minutes relating to it shall be prepared and shall be signed by the President and by the Secretary.

Article VIII

The written procedure having been declared closed by the Tribunal, the Tribunal shall have the power of excluding from the case all acts and documents not yet produced and which either Party may wish to submit without the consent of the other Party. However, the Tribunal shall be free to take into consideration the acts and documents on which the agent, consultants or experts may call the Tribunal's attention, provided they are communicated to the other Party. The latter shall be entitled to ask for an extension of the written procedure in order to be enabled to submit a memorandum in reply.

The Tribunal may, moreover, ask the Parties to produce any act or document and to ask for any explanation it shall deem necessary. In case of a refusal, the Tribunal shall take formal cognizance of it.

Article IX

After the written and verbal procedures have been declared to be closed, the Tribunal, within the limits provided by Article Π (c) shall deliberate on the question.

The proceedings and minutes of said deliberations shall be secret.

Article X

All the arbitrators must participate in the decision.

The award of the Tribunal shall be adopted by majority.

The award shall mention the names of the arbitrators and shall be signed by the President and by the members of the Tribunal. The arbitrators cannot abstain from voting.

The award shall be considered as delivered as soon as it shall have been read at a public sitting before the agents of the Parties, present or properly convened for this purpose.

The award shall be communicated immediately to the Parties.

Article XI

The award of the Arbitration Tribunal shall contain:

- (a) A detailed evaluation by the Tribunal of all evidence and arguments examined;
- (b) The precise and concrete geographical determination of each geographical point and reference points, together with an exact description of the line which shall be used for delimiting the frontier on the ground;
- (c) The enunciation of the detailed reasons on the basis of which the Tribunal has determined each geographical point and reference;
- (d) The geographical description on the map of the line resulting from the joining of said points and references;
- (e) The description of the modalities according to which the Tribunal, assisted by experts, will proceed to the marking on the ground of the above-mentioned line;
- (f) The names of the experts appointed by the Tribunal for marking on the ground, under the direction of the Tribunal, the above-mentioned line.

Article XII

The Tribunal's award shall constitute the final settlement of the frontier question between Ethiopia and Somaliland.

The award shall be binding for the two Parties from the moment it is delivered; it must be executed immediately in good faith.

Article XIII

The language to be used for the written procedure shall be the English language.

Article XIV

Article XV

The two Parties shall be liable, in equal measure, for the expenses necessary for the functioning of the Tribunal, including allowances and fees due to the arbitrators and experts, which shall be fixed by the Tribunal, after consultation with the two Governments.

Each Party shall pay the fees due to its own agents and technical advisers.

Article XVI

The two Parties entrust to Mr. Trygve Lie the task of bringing officially to the knowledge of the Secretary-General of the United Nations the present Compromis.

Article XVII

The present Compromis shall enter into force on the date on which it shall be signed.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned plenipotentiaries, being duly empowered, have signed the present Agreement.

LETTER DATED 25 NOVEMBER 1959 FROM MR. TRYGVE LIE TO THE SECRETARY-GENERAL

New York, 25 November 1959

I have the honour to transmit the draft compromis which I have presented to the Governments of Ethiopia and Italy together with the amendments presented by the two parties to my proposal. I furthermore enclose a document containing the views of the Italian delegation regarding the Ethiopian amendments.

(Signed) Trygve LIE

ANNEXES

Annex I

DRAFT Compromis PRESENTED BY MR. TRYGVE LIE TO THE GOVERNMENTS OF ETHIOPIA AND ITALY

Whereas the Convention of 16 May 1908 between Ethiopia and Italy established a frontier (hereinafter denominated the "frontier") between Ethiopia and the Territory of Italian Somaliland,, now known as the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian administration (hereinafter denominated the "Trust Territory"),

Recalling resolution 392 (V) of the General Assembly of the United Nations of 15 December 1950, and all subsequent resolutions adopted by it concerning the delimitation of the frontier between Ethiopia and the Trust Territory of Somaliland,

Whereas no delimitation on the ground of the frontier has been effected as required by the Convention,

Whereas it has been and is the desire of Ethiopia and of Italy, as the administering Power of the Trust Territory, to establish a delimitation of the frontier on the ground before the Trust Territory shall attain its independence,

Whereas, to this end, Ethiopia and Italy (hereinafter denominated "the High Contracting Parties") had entered into negotiations in order to agree upon a delimitation of the frontier on the ground,

Whereas differences have arisen in the course of such negotiations, which, not having been resolved, have, so far, precluded the successful conclusion of such negotiations,

Whereas the High Contracting Parties are desirous of resolving these differences by a procedure of arbitration,

Whereas, by its resolution 1213 (XII) of 14 December 1957, the General Assembly of the United Nations expressed the opinion that a final settlement can be achieved most expeditiously by a procedure of arbitration, and that the Parties should agree on the choice of an independent person to assist them in determining the terms of reference for the arbitration,

Pursuant with resolution 1345 (XIII) of 13 December 1958, which, reaffirming resolution 1213 (XII), recommended that the two Governments should invite His Majesty the King of Norway to nominate such an independent person,

Whereas His Majesty the King of Norway, on request of the two Governments, has accepted to make the nomination and, to that effect, has appointed Mr. Trygve Lie,

Whereas the two above-mentioned Governments are desirous of settling the difference in accordance with the principles of the United Nations,

Now, therefore, the High Contracting Parties have, to this end, agreed as follows:

Article 1

The High Contracting Parties hereby establish an Arbitration Tribunal (hereinafter denominated the "Tribunal"), consisting of:

Professor Eric Castrén (Finland), President;

Professor Miloš Radojković (Yugoslavia), Member;

Mr. Plinio Bolla (Switzerland), Member.

Article II

The two Parties shall appoint to the Tribunal their respective agents who shall act as intermediaries between the Parties and the Tribunal; each Party may provide for its agent the assistance of consultants or experts.

Article III

The tasks of the Tribunal shall be:

- (a) On the basis of the Convention of 16 May 1908 and in harmony with the principles of the United Nations, to ascertain through interpretation of all the language of the said Convention what, as of 16 May 1908, was the frontier establishing the limits of sovereignty between Ethiopia and the territory now known as the Trust Territory;
- (b) To arrive at and deliver to the High Contracting Parties an award in writing which shall comply with all of the provisions of article V hereof;
- (c) The Tribunal shall undertake or perform no other duties, responsibilities, functions or activities except by written agreement concluded between the High Contracting Parties before the date fixed in article IX hereof.

Article IV

Each High Contracting Party may produce before the Tribunal:

- 1. Evidence of facts or reputed facts which existed or were reputed to exist on or before 16 May 1908;
- 2. International deeds, treaties, agreements or protocols concluded on or before 16 May 1908, which are relevant for the interpretation of articles I to IV of the said Convention of 16 May 1908;
- 3. Evidence of facts which existed subsequent to 16 May 1908, to the extent that they directly clarify or demonstrate the facts which existed or were reputed to exist on or before 16 May 1908;
- 4. Declarations, assertions, statements and representations of or published by the other High Contracting Party, made subsequent to 16 May 1908, purporting to represent the frontier as understood by it;
- 5. Arguments exclusively directed to and concerned with evidence of facts, agreements, declarations, assertions, statements, representations and interpretations produced before or submitted to the Tribunal in accordance with the provisions of this article;
- 6. Resolutions and acts of the United Nations concerning the question of the delimitation of the Somali-Ethiopian frontier.

No evidence or arguments of any nature whatsoever other than those produced before the Tribunal in accordance with the provisions of this article may be produced before or received by the Tribunal, except by written agreement concluded between the High Contracting Parties before the termination of proceedings before the Tribunal.

Article V

- A. The award of the Tribunal shall contain:
- 1. A detailed evaluation of all evidence and arguments produced before or submitted to it;
- 2. A precise and positive geographical determination of each geographical point and reference point, together with an exact description of the line which shall serve for the delimitation of the frontier on the ground set forth in co-ordinates of latitude and longitude reduced to degrees, minutes and seconds;

- 3. The enunciation of the detailed reasons on the basis of which the Tribunal has determined each geographical point and reference;
- 4. The geographical description on the map of the line resulting from the joining of said points and references;
- 5. The description of the modalities according to which the Tribunal, assisted by experts, will proceed to the marking on the ground of the above-mentioned line;
- 6. The names of the experts appointed by the Tribunal for marking on the ground, under the direction of the Tribunal, the above-mentioned line.
- B. Any member of the Tribunal who disagrees in whole or in part with the line provided for in paragraph A 4 of this article may prepare a dissenting opinion setting forth in detail the reasons for his disagreement with respect to said line, and the Tribunal shall communicate any such dissenting opinion to the High Contracting Parties in the manner specified in paragraph C of this article.
- C. The Tribunal shall complete and communicate immediately its award to each of the High Contracting Parties in four copies each, simultaneously.

Article VI

- A. For the purposes of this arbitration, the Amharic, Italian and English texts of the Convention, appended to this Compromis, shall be utilized by the Tribunal. The High Contracting Parties agree that the Amharic and Italian texts of the Convention shall be of equal force and validity before the Tribunal which shall, however, have the right to take also into consideration the English version appended to this Compromis.
- B. For the purposes of articles III through VII of this Compromis, only the maps appended to this Compromis shall be utilized by the Tribunal.

Article VII

The Tribunal shall sit at

Article VIII

- A. The presence of all three members of the Tribunal shall be required for the conduct of proceedings before it and for all of its deliberations.
- B. The proceedings before the Tribunal shall be oral and may be conducted in either the English or French language. The Tribunal shall cause to be prepared authenticated translations into the other language of all evidence produced before it in one of the two languages. A verbatim record shall be maintained of all proceedings before the Tribunal, and authenticated copies shall be established of such verbatim records and of all documents produced as evidence before the Tribunal in accordance with the provisions of article IV hereof.
- C. All proceedings before the Tribunal shall be public, except that each High Contracting Party may require that such proceedings be held confidential and be behind closed doors for a total not to exceed (10) hours for each such High Contracting Party. Each High Contracting Party may require that the confidential character of any evidence or arguments produced or submitted by it before the Tribunal shall be respected by the latter and shall be excluded from publication in the award or in any dissenting opinion.
- D. Each High Contracting Party and each of the three members of the Tribunal may:
- 1. Obtain during each day of proceedings one ten-minute suspension of session;
- 2. Obtain a total of not to exceed ten days of suspension of proceedings.

Article IX

Article X

- A. The deliberation of the three members of the Tribunal amongst themselves shall be secret pending the delivery of the award to the High Contracting Parties.
- B. Decisions on all matters of substance and procedure shall be taken by majority vote of the three members of the Tribunal provided, however, that in the absence of a majority vote for the award of the Tribunal, the decision of the President, together with the line proposed by him to serve as the line required by paragraph A 4 of article V hereof, shall pro tanto prevail.

Article XI

- A. Defore receiving the respective statements, evidence or arguments of the High Contracting Parties, the Tribunal shall draw up rules of procedure consistent with the requirements and provisions of this Compromis.
- B. The rules of procedure to be drawn up by the Tribunal pursuant to paragraph A of this article shall provide that both High Contracting Parties shall, on the same day, set forth before the Tribunal an initial statement of their case, which shall contain a full indication of all evidence invoked or intended to be invoked by them. The representative of Italy shall first present such initial statement. Such initial statement shall be made to the Tribunal not later than

The Tribunal shall be supplied with such secretarial and other services as, in the opinion of the Tribunal, shall be requisite. The honoraria and all expenses of the arbitration shall be shared equally between the High Contracting Parties. The High Contracting Parties shall agree on the honoraria of the members of the Tribunal. All other expenses shall be certified by the President.

Article XIII

A. Each High Contracting Party and each member of the Tribunal may enter objections to the production of or to any evidence on the ground that it is inconsistent with the requirements set out in articles III and IV hereof, or with the rules of procedure established by the Tribunal pursuant to article XI hereof, or with the rules governing proceedings before the Tribunal as set forth herein. In the event that any objections shall be made alleging as basis the provisions of this paragraph A of this article, the proceedings of the Tribunal shall be suspended until a decision shall have been reached by the Tribunal with respect to such objection.

B. Anything in this Compromis to the contrary notwithstanding, all differences which arise involving the interpretation of this Compromis, whether between the High Contracting Parties, between the Tribunal and one or both of the High Contracting Parties, or between any two or more members of the Tribunal, shall be settled by the High Contracting Parties. Each High Contracting Party may enter objections, and each member of the Tribunal may manifest opposition to the taking by the Tribunal of action or to the exercise by it of functions exceeding its jurisdiction, functions or competence as established and determined by this Compromis, or to the admission by the Tribunal of evidence or arguments relating to matters which, according to either of the High Contracting Parties, are within its national jurisdiction as understood by that Party. If any objection is so made or any opposition so manifested, or if any other difference as described in the first sentence of this paragraph or otherwise shall arise involving the interpretation of this Compromis, the Tribunal shall promptly suspend all proceedings and deliberations pending a decision reached in regard thereto by agreement between the High Contracting Parties.

Article XIV

The Tribunal's award shall constitute the final settlement of the frontier question between Ethiopia and Somaliland.

The award shall be binding for the two Parties from the moment it is delivered; it must be executed immediately in good faith.

Article XV

The present Compromis shall enter into force on the date on which it shall be signed.

- 1. By its resolution 1345 (XIII) of 13 December 1958on the question of the frontier between the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian administration and Ethiopia, the General Assembly noted with satisfaction that an arbitration tribunal had been set up to delimit the frontier, but noted with regret that the Governments of Ethiopia and Italy had not so far reached agreement on the terms for the arbitration or on the appointment of an independent person to assist them in formulating the terms of reference. The General Assembly accordingly urged the parties once again to intensify their efforts to find a solution to the question and recommended that the two Governments should agree on the choice of an independent person within three months and, failing such agreement, should invite His Majesty the King of Norway to nominate such a person. Finally, the General Assembly requested the two Governments to report to it at the fourteenth session on the measures taken by them to give effect to the resolution.
- 2. In accordance with the above-mentioned resolution, the General Assembly included the following item in the agenda of its fourteenth session:

"Question of the frontier between the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian administration and Ethiopia: reports of the Governments of Ethiopia and of Italy."

At its 803rd plenary meeting on 22 September 1959, the General Assembly allocated that item to the Fourth Committee

3. When the Fourth Committee began consideration of this question, it had before it not only the reports of the Governments of Ethiopia (A/4323) and Italy (A/4324), but also a letter and accompanying documents (A/4325) which the Secretary-General had received from Mr. Trygve Lie, who had been appointed by His Majesty the King of Norway as the independent person, in pursuance of General Assembly resolution 1345 (XIII). From these reports it emerged that, despite the acceptance by both Governments of a draft compromis prepared by the independent person as a basis for discussion, they had presented certain amendments to it, which were mutually unacceptable. Agreement had not therefore been reached on the terms of reference of the arbitration tribunal.

- 4. At the 986th and 990th meetings of the Fourth Committee on 4 and 7 December, opening statements on this question were made by the representatives of Ethiopia and of Italy and by the Minister of Industry and Commerce of the Government of Somalia. At the 991st meeting on 7 December, Mr. Mohamed Hussen Hamud (Great Somalia League) and Mr. Abubacar Hamoud Socoro (Somali National Union), to whom the Committee had decided at the previous meeting by 19 votes to 7, with 26 abstentions, to grant a hearing, appeared as petitioners.
- 5. The general debate on this item took place from the 997th to the 1001st meetings on 10 and 11 December 1959.
- 6. In the absence of any proposal, the Fourth Committee regrets to inform the General Assembly that it has no draft resolution to recommend.

Agreed statement by Mr. J. N. Foncha, Premier of the Southern Cameroons, and Mr. E. M. L. Endeley, Leader of the Opposition in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly

Coming back to the United Nations after six months, we, the elected leaders of the Government and political parties in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly, have been greatly encouraged, as we were at the thirteenth sesion, by the friendly interest of delegations and their concern for the welfare of our people. We for our part are anxious, by reaching agreement among ourselves as to the next step to be taken, to help the work of the Fourth Committee and still more important to promote the future well-being of our people.

We have had the advantage of discussions with the representatives of African Member States in the United Nations, whose sympathy and help we greatly appreciate, and with our colleagues in the United Kingdom delegation, who share with us the task of interpreting to the Unid Nations the wishes and aspirations of the people of the Southern Cameroons.

We are both of us of course anxious that the Southern Cameroons should attain independence as early as circumstances permit in the form most suited to its circumstances and the wishes of the people. But, since the parties represented in the House of Assembly were not able to agree during recent discussion in the Southern Cameroons on the arrangements for a plebiscite in 1960, we think that it would be wiser to defer consultation with the people for the time being.

Subject therefore to the agreement of the General Assembly, we are agreed as follows:

- (1) There should be no plebiscite in the Southern Cameroons in 1960.
- (2) Pending settlement of its future the Southern Cameroons should continue to be administered under the present Trusteeship Agreement, but separately from Nigeria. We understand that the United Kingdom Government would be prepared to continue to administer it on this basis.

- (3) The separation of the administration of the Southern Cameroons from that of the Federation of Nigeria should be completed not later than the date on which the Federation of Nigeria becomes independent.
- (4) The Administering Authority, in consultation with the Government and Legislature of the Government and Legislature of the Southern Cameroons, should take steps to complete the separation of the administration of the Southern Cameroons from that of the Federation of Nigeria not later than 1 October 1960, the date on which the Federation of Nigeria becomes independent.
- (5) The Administering Authority, in co-operation with the Government and people of the Southern Cameroons, should work towards the achievement of the objectives of the Trusteeship System in accordance with Article 76 b of the United Nations Charter.
- (6) In the light of the above we suggest that the General Assembly should decide to consider this question not later that its sixteenth session with a view to ascertaining the wishes of the people of the Territory in 1962 as to their future.
- (7) We would be agreeable if the General Assembly should recommend that, in agreement with the Administering Authority, the Trusteeship Agreement should be terminated not later than 26 October 1962, in accordance with Article 76 of the United Nations Charter.

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959, which expressed the hope that all concerned in the Territory would endeavour to reach agreement before the opening of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly on the alternatives to be put in the plebiscite in the Southern Cameroons and the qualifications for voting in it,

Noting the statements made by the representative of the Administering Authority, by de Premier of the Southern Cameroons and by the Leader of the Opposition in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly to the effect that no agreement was reache before the fourteenth session of the General Assembly as to the alternatives to be put in the plebiscite, and the qualifications for voting in it,

 $\underline{\text{Noting}}$ the opinions expressed during the debate on this question at the fourteenth session of the General Assembly,

Noting the statements made by the Premier of the Southern Cameroons and by de Leader of the Opposition in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly at the 898th meeting of the Fourth Committee, on 7 October 1959,

- 1. Decides that the arrangements for the plebiscite referred to in General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII) shall begin on 30 September 1960, and that the plebiscite shall be concluded not later than March 1961;
- 2. Recommends that the two questions to be put at the plebiscite should be:
 - "(a) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Federation of Nigeria?
 - "(b) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Republic of the Cameroons?";
- 3. Recommends that only persons born in the Southern Cameroons or one of whose parents was born in the Southern Cameroons should vote in the plebiscite;
- 4. Recommends that the Administering Authority, in consultation with the Government of the Southern Cameroons, take steps to implement the separation of the administration of the Southern Cameroons from that of the Federation of Nigeria not later than 1 October 1960.

Financial implications of the draft resolution submitted by the Fourth Committee in document A/4240 Note by the Secretary-General

- 1. According to the draft resolution adopted by the Fourth Committee at its 903rd meeting (A/4240, para. 12) the arrangements for the plebiscite for the Southern Cameroons referred to in resolution 1350 (XIII) should begin on 30 September 1960, and the plebiscite should be concluded not later than March 1961.
- 2. The General Assembly, in its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959, recommended that in the northern part of the Territory the plebiscite should take place about the middle of November 1959 and that in the southern part of the Territory the plebiscite should be conducted between the beginning of December 1959 and the end of April 1960. On the basis of this resolution the Secretary-General requested \$110,000 for $1959\frac{2}{}$ and \$59,500 for $1960\frac{3}{}$.

3. The financial implications of the draft resolution adopted by the Fourth Committee may be tabulated as follows:

Report of the Fourth Committee

[14 October 1959]

- 1. By its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959 on the future of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, the General Assembly recommended that separate plebiscites be held in the northern and southern parts of that Territory in order to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants of the Territory concerning their future. After making recommendations concerning the holding of the plebiscite in the northern part in November 1959, the General Assembly further recommended that the plebiscite in the southern part should be conducted between the beginning of December 1959 and the end of April 1960 and decided that the two alternatives to be put to the people and the qualifications for voting in the plebiscite there should be considered by the General Assembly at its fourteenth session.
- 2. In accordance with the above-mentioned resolution, the GENERAL Assembly included the following item in the agenda of its fourteenth session:
 - "41. The future of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration:
 - "(a) Organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Territory: question of the two alternatives to be put to the people and the qualifications for voting;
 - "(b) Report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner on the plebiscite in the northern part of the Territory and report of the Trusteeship Council."

At its 803rd plenary meeting, the General Assembly allocated that agenda item to the Fourth Committee.

- 3. At its 883rd meeting, the Fourth Committee decided to consider the organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Territory as the first item of its agenda. At the same meeting it decided without objection to grant requests for hearings before the Committee in connexion with this question submitted by Mr. Namaso N. Mbile on behalf of the Kamerun people's Party and by Mr. Ndeh Ntumazah on behalf of One Kamarun (A/C.4/408, sect. 2 and 3).
- 4. At its 885th meeting, the Committee heard statements by the representative of the United Kingdom, by Mr. J. N. Foncha, Premier of the Southern Cameroons and by Mr. E. M. L. Endeley, Leader of the Opposition in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly, speaking as member of the United Kingdom delegation. From these statements it emerged that the parties concerned had not, as had been hoped by the General Assembly in its resolution 1350 (XIII), been able to reach agreement on the alternatives to be put in the plebiscite and on the qualifications for voting. Mr. Foncha, on behalf of the Kamerun National Democratic Party, expressed the view that the Territory should be separated from Nigeria with a period of continued trusteeship; he therefore considered that that course should be the alternative in the plebiscite to integration with an independent Nigeria; moreover, only persons born in the Southern Cameroons should take part in the plebiscite. Mr. Endeley, on behalf of the Kamerun National Congress, which was in favour of the Southern Cameroons continuing as an autonomous self-governing region in an independent Federation of Nigeria, considered that the alternative to that course should be secession from Nigeria in order to effect reunification with the Cameroons Republic; he also considered that the existing voting qualifications, which included Nigerian and French Cameroonian inhabitants, should be maintained.

- 5. Mr. Mbile (Kamerun People's Party) and Mr. Ntumazah (One Kamerun), appearing as petitioners, made statements at the 885th and 889th meetings respectively. From the 885th to 890th meetings, members of the Committee put questions to the United Kingdom delegation and to the petitioners with a view to clarifying the position of the Cameroonians who had made statements to it.
- 6. At the 890th meeting, Mr. Foncha and Mr. Endeley presented to the Committee a joint written statement (A/C.4/414), in which they stated that they agreed, subject to the agreement of the General Assembly, that there should be no plebiscite in the Southern Cameroons in 1960, and that pending settlement of its future the Southern Cameroons should be administered under the present Trusteeship Agreement, but should be separated from Nigeria not later than 1 October 1960; that the wishes of the people should be ascertained in 1962 and that the Trusteeship Agreement should be terminated not later than 26 October 1962. A procedural discussion arising out of the implications of this statement tool place at the 890th and 891st meetings.
- 7. The general debate on this item took place from the 892nd to the 899th and from the 901st to the 903rd meetings.
- 8. During the 898th meeting, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Libya, Mexico, Morocco, the Sudan, Tunisia, the United Arab Republic and the United States of America submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.591) whereby the General Assembly would: (1) decide that the arrangements for the plebiscite referred to in resolution 1350 (XIII) should begin on 30 September 1960, and that the plebiscite should be concluded not later than March 1961; (2) recommend that the two questions to be put at the plebiscite should be: "(a) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Federation of Nigeria? (b) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Republic of the Cameroons?"; (3) recommend that only persons born in the Southern Cameroons or one of whose parents was born in the Southern Cameroons should vote in the plebiscite; (4) recommend that the Administering Authority, in consultation with the Government of the Southern Cameroons, take steps to implement the separation of the administration of the Southern Cameroons from that of the Federation of Nigeria not later than 1 October 1960.
- 9. Mr. Foncha and Mr. Endeley made further statements in which they accepted this proposal as a compromise.
- 10. Subsequently, Cuba, Iran and Panama associated themselves with the other sponsors of the draft resolution, the preamble of which was revised (A/C.4/L.591/Rev.1).
- 11. The revised draft resolution was put to the vote by parts at the 903rd meeting with the following results:

The preamble was adopted unanimously.

Operative paragraph 1 was adopted by a roll-call vote of 73 to none, with 3 abstentions. The voting was as follows:

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the statement of financial implications (A/C.5/789) which the Secretary-General has submitted in respect of the draft resolution proposed by the Fourth Committee (A/4240, para. 12) regarding the organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration.
- 2. On the basis of the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959, a total amount of $169,500 was included in section 4 of the 1959 supplementary estimates (A/4198) and in section 4 of the initial estimates for 1960 (A/4110) in respect of the two plebiscites in the northern and southern parts of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration. Expenditures during 1959 were estimated at $110,000, with the balance of $59,500 arising in 1960.
- 3. In the light of the proposed postponement of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Territory, the Secretary-General has estimated the total cost of both plebiscites at some $255,100, representing an increase of $85,600 over the estimates previously envisaged. Of this increase, $50,000 relates to salaries and wages, $20,600 relates to travel and subsistence expenditures, and the balance of $15,000 to miscellaneous supplies and services.

4. The Advisory Committee will give detailed consideration to the actual revisions to be made in the 1960 estimates, when such formal revisions are submitted by the Secretary-General after the General Assembly has taken action on the proposal of the Fourth Committee. Meanwhile, the Advisory Committee recommends that the Fifth Committee should advise the General Assembly that the adoption of the draft resolution proposed by the Fourth Committee would result in the expenditure on the two plebiscites, which was previously estimated at $169,500, being increased to an amount not exceeding $255,100.

[Original text: English] [16 October 1959]

- 1. In accordance with rule 154 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the Fifth Committee considered, at its 722nd meeting, held on 16 October 1959, the financial implications of the draft resolution submitted by the Fourth Committed (A/4240, para. 12) concerning the organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration.
- 2. The following documents were before the Fifth Committee:
- (a) A statement (A/C.5/789) in which the Secretary-General estimated at $255,100 the financial implications of the draft resolution of the Fourth Committee, this sum being distributed as follows: 1959: $86,700; 1960: $106,700; 1961: $61,700;
- (b) A related report (A/4242) in which the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions recommended that the Fifth Committee should advise

- the General Assembly that the adoption of the draft resolution would have the effect of increasing the expenditure for the two plebiscites (northern and southern parts of the Trust Territory) from the previous estimate of $169,500 (based on the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959) to an amount not exceeding $255,100.
- 3. The Advisory Committee added (A/4242, para. 4) that it would give detailed consideration to the revisions to be made in the 1960 estimates as soon as the General Assembly had taken action on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee and formal budget revisions had been submitted by the Secretary-General.
- 4. The Fifth Committee decided to inform the General Assembly that the adoption of the draft resolution proposed by the Fourth Committee would result in the expenditure on the two plebiscites, previously estimated at $169,500, being increased to an amount not exceeding $255,100.

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 929th plenary meeting, on 16 October 1959, the General Assembly adopted the draft resolution submitted by the Fourth Committee (A/4240, para. 12). For the final text, see resolution 1352 (XIV), below.

Resolutions adopted by the General Assembly

1352 (XIV). THE FUTURE OF THE TRUST TERRITORY OF THE CAMEROONS UNDER UNITED KINGDOM ADMINISTRATION: ORGANIZATION OF THE PLEBISCITE IN THE SOUTHERN PART OF THE TERRITORY

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959 concerning the future of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, which expressed the hope that all concerned in the Territory would endeavour to reach agreement before the opening of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly on the alternatives to be put in the plebiscite in the Southern Cameroons and the qualifications for voting in it,

Noting the statements made by the representative of the Administering Authority, by the Premier of the Southern Cameroons and by the Leader of the Opposition in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly to the effect that no agreement was reached before the fourteenth session of the General Assembly as to the alternatives to be put in the plebiscite and the qualifications for voting in it, and that a postponement of the plebiscite in the Southern Cameroons to a later date would help to establish more favourable conditions for ascertaining the freely expressed wishes of the population,

Noting the opinions expressed during the debate on this question at the fourteenth session of the General Assembly. 4/

Noting the statements made by the Premier of the Southern Cameroons and by the Leader of the Opposition in the Southern Cameroons House of Assembly at the 898th meeting of the Fourth Committee, on 7 October 1959,

- 1. Decides that the arrangements for the plebiscite referred to in General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII) shall begin on 30 September 1960, and that the plebiscite shall be concluded not later than March 1961;
- 2. Recommends that the two questions to be put at the plebiscite should be:
- "(a) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Federation of Nigeria?
- "(b) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Republic of the Cameroons?";
- 3. Recommends that only persons born in the Southern Cameroons or one of whose parents was born in the Southern Cameroons should vote in the plebiscite;

^{4/} Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourteenth Session, Fourth Committee, 885th to 899th and 901st to 903rd meetings.

4. Recommends that the Administering Authority, in consultation with the Government of the Southern Cameroons, take steps to implement the separation of the administration of the Southern Cameroons from that of the Federation of Nigeria not later than 1 October 1960.

829th plenary meeting, 16 October 1959.

DOCUMENT A/4313

Special report of the Trusteeship Council

[Original text: English] [2 December 1959]

- 1. By resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959, the General Assembly recommended that the Administering Authority, in pursuance of Article 76 b of the Charter of the United Nations, take steps, in consultation with a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, to organize under the supervision of the United Nations, separate plebiscites in the northern and southern parts of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, in order to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants of the Territory concerning their future. With regard to the plebiscite to be held in the northern part of the Territory, the General Assembly further recommended that it should take place about the middle of November 1959 and should be conducted on the basis of the electoral register then being compiled for the elections to the Federal House of Representatives, and that the people should be asked:
 - "(a) Do you wish the Northern Cameroons to be part of the Northern Region of Nigeria when the Federation of Nigeria becomes independent?

"Or

- "(b) Are you in favour of deciding the future of the Northern Cameroons at a later date?"
- 2. In the same resolution, the General Assembly decided to appoint a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner who should exercise, on behalf of the Assembly, all the necessary powers and functions of supervision and who should be assisted by observers and staffs to be appointed by the Secretary-General in consultation with him. It requested the Commissioner to submit to the Trusteeship Council a report in two parts on the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscites, the first part of the report, which should deal with the northern part of the Territory, to be submitted in time for transmission to the General Assembly for consideration before the end of the fourteenth session. Finally, the General Assembly requested the Trusteeship Council to transmit to it the report of the Commissioner, together with any recommendations and observations it considered necessary. On 13 March 1959, the General Assembly elected Mr. Djalal Aboh (Iran) United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner for the Cameroons under United Kingdom Administration.
- 3. In pursuance of the above resolution, the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner submitted to the Trusteeship Council, on 27 November 1959, a report concerning the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscite in the northern part of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration (T/1491 and Corr.1).

- 4. The report was considered by the Trusteeship Council at its 1042nd meeting, held during its tenth special session. After the Council had heard statements by the Commissioner and by the representative of the Administering Authority, a draft resolution was submitted by India, Italy, New Zealand, and the United Arab Republic (T/L.954). Following a discussion, the draft resolution was orally revised by the sponsors and, in its revised form, was unanimously adopted by the Council.
- 5. The text of the resolution appears in annex I to the present report and that of the statement made by the Commissioner before the Council in annex II.

ANNEX I

Trusteeship Council resolution 2007 (S-X) of 2 December 1959

THE FUTURE OF THE TRUST TERRITORY OF THE CAMEROONS UNDER UNITED KINGDOM ADMINISTRATION: REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS PLEBISCITE COMMISSIONER ON THE PLEBISCITE IN THE NORTHERN PART OF THE TERRITORY

[For the text of this resolution, see Official Records of the Trusteeship Council, Tenth Special Session, Supplement No. 1.]

ANNEX II

Statement made by the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner for the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration at the 1042nd meeting of the Trusteeship Council, on 2 December 1959

It is an honour for me to come before the Trusteeship Council today to introduce the first part of the report called for in resolution 1350 (XIII) of the General Assembly, dealing with the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscite in the northern part of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration. The report is contained in document T/1491, dated 25 November 1959.

I have endeavoured to present a faithful and objective account of the various stages of the plebiscite, bearing in mind that it was my duty to present all relevant information to the Trusteeship Council and the General Assembly in a manner as brief and concise as possible. For this reason and also because of the pressure of time, the report includes only the essential facts concerning the plebiscite and the United Nations participation in it, but in a way which I think will give to the Members of the United Nations all the essential data. The annexes containing the full text of the plebiscite legislation and regulations, statutory forms, administrative instructions, both from the Administering Authority and the United Nations, extracts from the Nigerian Press regarding the activities of political parties, and the full text of petitions so far received after polling day, will be issued in a separate document as T/1491/Add.1.

In accordance with the aforementioned resolution of the General Assembly, the Administering Authority was to take steps, in consultation with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, to organize, under the supervision of the United Nations, the plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons. Shortly after I was appointed Plebiscite Commissioner by the General Assembly, consultations began with the United Kingdom Government on the arrangements for the organization of the plebiscite. These consultations were successively held in London with the Colonial Office, in New York with members of the United Kingdom Mission to the United Nations, in Lagos with the Governor-General of Nigeria, as representative of the Administering Authority responsible for the plebiscite, in Kaduna with the Governor of the Northern Region, who had been delegated responsibilities in this regard, and in the Territory with the Plebiscite Administrator. They are described in the appropriate sections of the report.

It should be recalled that the General Assembly recommended, in operative paragraph 2 of resolution 1350 (XIII), that the plebiscite should be conducted on the basis of the electoral register then being compiled for the elections to the Federal House of Representatives. This placed a considerable limitation on the role of the United Nations, and restricted our participation to the other phases of the plebiscite. I felt, however, that in the interest of all parties concerned, I ought to inquire from the Administering Authority how the registration was conducted and thus be in a position to inform the Trusteeship Council and the General Assembly on this very important aspect of the plebiscite.

I asked the Administering Authority for a full report on the conduct and results of the registration, and the information given to me will be found in the section of the report dealing with the organization of the plebiscite by the Administering Authority. While, on the basis of this information, I was satisfied that the registration was conducted in a satisfactory manner, it is my view, none the less, that being so vital a phase of any plebiscite, registration should be carried out under the supervision of the United Nations whenever the participation of the Organization is called for in view of its special responsibilities towards the Territories under the Trusteeship System. Only in this way can the United Nations exercise its supervision of all stages of such consultations, contribute fully to enhance the objectivity and proper fulfilment of each and all steps involved, and report with full and firsthand knowledge on all procedures followed and the results obtained.

Mr. President, I hope you will allow me to make reference in this introduction to certain points contained in the report which, in my view, have a special significance in the over-all consideration of the problem involved in the plebiscite.

In the first place, let me explain that chapter II of the report entitled "The Land, the People and the Government" is intended to facilitate the evaluation of the plebiscite and its results by recalling the main features of the Territory, its population and the system of government. It seems advisable to keep these features in mind because of the special characteristics of the Territory and also because of the fact that, having been administered for so many years as an integral part of the Northern Region of Nigeria, the Northern Cameroons has had until now very little reality as a separate administrative entity. It has been administered in three segments which form part, respectively, of the three large adjoining provinces of Nigeria, Bornu in the north, Adamawa in the centre and Benue in the south, and this explains why these parts of the Territory are called locally for general purposes, Bornu Trust Territory, Adamawa Trust Territory, and Benue Trust Territory. Boundaries with the Northern Region of Nigeria have little significance, if any at all, and groups extend from the Northern Region provinces into the Trust Territory and even beyond, to the Cameroons under French administration. However, there are other tribes which live totally within the Trust Territory and they are for the most part those commonly referred to as "hill pagans", a name which I hesitate to use, except in quotations, and which represent a majority of the population in those sections of the Northern Cameroons administered as part of Adamawa Province.

In the second place, I should like to recall that communications in the Northern Cameroons are poor. The existence of very few all-weather roads within the Territory caused very serious problems for the organization of the plebiscite and also for the supervision exercised by the United Nations team. As the dry season progressed and polling day approached, some of the side roads became passable. Polling stations located in the hills, however, could only be reached on foot. I wish to commend here the efforts of the authorities concerned, and in particular the activity and interest displayed by certain communities in repairing roads which had been rendered impassable by the rains. I had occasion to visit all the districts with the exception of Mambila plateau, which at the time of our stay in the Territory required a trek of no less than five days each way. The United Nations plebiscite staff also travelled extensively, both during the period preceding and on polling day. We were thus able to meet the people and their leaders and see for ourselves the organization of the plebiscite by the Plebiscite Administrator and his staff.

As a third point, I should like to explain that, owing to the close association of the Northern Cameroons with Nigeria, and in particular with the Northern Region, I had to make in the report, inevitably, references to the organization of the Federal and Regional Governments. Information had to be given, also, on political activity which is not restricted to the Northern Cameroons, but which played a significant part in the campaign for the plebiscite.

Fourthly, I should like to reiterate here that polling was conducted throughout the Northern Cameroons in a very peaceful and orderly way. The turn-out of voters was heavy, perhaps much heavier than was generally anticipated. The headquarters staff, the observers and I visited as many polling stations as was possible. Counting of the votes commenced on the evening of 7 November at the headquarters of the various returning officers in the presence of United Nations observers and counting agents appointed by the political parties. I had occasion to observe the counting at Mubi on the evening of 7 November and the morning of 8 November and flew afterwards to headquarters in Yola where returns from all districts were coming in.

The results of the plebiscite are well known. Of the 113,859 votes cast, 70,546 favoured the second alternative and 42,788 favoured the first alternative; 525 votes were rejected. As I had occasion to state in the conclusions of the report now before you, approximately 80 per cent of the estimated number of potential electors and close to 88 per cent of the registered voters participated in the balloting. This means that the greater part of the eligible population took part in the consultation and freely expressed their wishes in respect to the alternatives offered in the plebiscite. I have felt it my duty to inform the Council and the General Assembly of the view, which seemed to be prevalent amongst those who voted for the second alternative, that the plebiscite offered the people an opportunity to register what was in effect a protest against the system of local administration. The introduction of reforms in the system of local government of the Northern Cameroons seems to be long overdue. The last Visiting Mission called attention to this point in paragraph 164 of its report, document T/1426 and Add.1. A greater democratization of the Native Authority, the wider participation in its councils of people who do not belong to the traditional ruling tribes, and the general development of the Northern Cameroons, seem to constitute an ever-growing demand of the people. This is the reason why I did not hesitate to say in the conclusions of my report that one of the reasons why the majority voted in favour of the second alternative was to express the will for a speedy introduction of these reforms.

On the basis of my observations and those of the United Nations plebiscite staff, I was able to state shortly before my departure from the Territory, after the plebiscite, that the operation had been carried out by the Administering Authority with efficiency and impartiality and that the population had expressed their wishes in freedom.

It gives me a great deal of pleasure to inform the Trustee-ship Council of the able and objective manner in which Sir John Dring, the Plebiscite Administrator, and his staff organized and conducted the plebiscite, and of the excellent cooperation that prevailed between his team and ours. Representations that I made personally or through the observers were promptly considered by the Plebiscite Administrator and corrective action followed without delay.

Mr. President, in discharging the responsibilities which the General Assembly entrusted to me I endeavoured to follow the high example set by Ambassador Eduardo Espinosa y Prieto, United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner for Togoland under British Administration, and yourself as United Nations Commissioner for the Supervision of the Elections in Togoland under French Administration. It is my earnest hope that the report which I have the honour to submit to this Council today, will help this body and the General Assembly to evaluate the plebiscite and to take such decisions as may be deemed appropriate. I will, of course, be at your disposal and at the disposal of the members of the Council, should they desire any clarification that I may be in a position to provide.

Finally, may I thank you and the Council for the opportunity that I have been given to present my report.

1. By its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959 on the future of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, the General Assembly recommended that separate plebiscites should be held in the northern and sourthern parts of that Territory in order to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants of the Territory concerning their future. While deciding that arrangements for the plebiscite in the southern part and, in particular, the alternatives to be put to the people and the qualifications for voting in the plebiscite should be considered by it at its fourteenth session, the General Assembly recommended that in the northern part of the Territory the plebiscite should take place about the middle of November 1959, that the people of the northern part of the Territory should be asked:

"(a) Do you wish the Northern Cameroons to be part of the Northern Region of Nigeria when the Federation of Nigeria becomes independent?

"Or

"(b) Are you in favour of deciding the future of the Northern Cameroons at a later date?"

The Assembly also recommended that the plebiscite should be conducted on the basis of the electoral register being compiled for the elections to the Federal House of Representatives. The General Assembly further decided to appoint a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner to exercise on its behalf all the necessary powers and functions of supervision with the assistance of observers and staff to be appointed by the Secretary-General in consultation with him. The Commissioner was requested to submit to the Trusteeship Council the part of the report dealing with the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscite in the northern part of the Territory in time for transmission to the General Assembly for consideration before the end of its fourteenth session. On 13 March 1959, Mr. Djalal Abdoh (Iran) was elected United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner for the Cameroons under United Kingdom Administration.

- 2. In accordance with the above-mentioned resolution, the General Assembly including the following item in the agenda of its fourteenth session:
 - "41. The future of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration:
 - "(a) Organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Territory: question of the two alternatives to be put to the people and the qualifications for voting;
 - "(b) Report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner on the plebiscite in the northern part of the Territory and the report of the Trusteeship Council."

At its 803rd plenary meeting, the General Assembly allocated that agenda item to the Fourth Committee. The Committee has already submitted a report (A/4240) to the General Assembly on the organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Territory.

- 3. The part of the report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner on the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscite in the northern part of the Territory 5/ was submitted in the first instance to the Trusteeship Council, which considered it at its tenth special session and decided by its resolution 2007 (S-X) of 2 December 1959 to forward it to the General Assembly for its consideration. Annexed to the report of the Trusteeship Council on this item (A/4313) are the texts of that resolution and of a statement by the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner.
- 4. In the conclusions of his report, the Commissioner stated that the plebiscite in the northern part of the Cameroons had taken place on 7 November 1959. Almost 88 per cent of the registered voters had cast votes of which 70,546 had favoured the second alternative, 42,788 had favoured the first alternative and 525 had been rejected. Thus, almost 62 per cent of the total votes had been cast in favour of the second alternative. The Commissioner stated that he was satisfied that the plebiscite had been organized and conducted by the Administering Authority with efficiency and impartiality in accordance with the laws and regulations promulgated for the purpose and had been held in an atmosphere of freedom. The Commissioner stated that it would appear that the majority of the voters had made use of the opportunity afforded by the plebiscite to register what was in effect a protest vote against the system of local administration prevailing

- in the Northern Cameroons and that the people desired the introduction of reforms into that system.
- 5. The following requests for hearing were granted by the Committee without objection:
- (a) Request from Mr. Muhammadu Iya Uba on behalf of the Norther Kamerun Democratic Party (A/C.4/408, sect. 1), granted at the 883rd meeting;
- (b) Request from Mr. Bernard-Milord Jazet on behalf of the Comité des réfugiés du Cameroun (A/c.4/408/Add.1), granted at the 894th meeting;
- (c) Request from the Northern People's Congress, Dikwa Division (A/C.4/408/Add.2), granted at the 961st meeting;
- (d) Request from Mr. Ndeh Ntumazah, on behalf of One Kamerun (no document), granted at the 977th meeting.
- Mr. Ntumazah, the only petitioner to appear, made a statement and answered questions put by members of the Committee at the 987th and 988th meetings.
- 6. The United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner made a statement introducing his report and replied to questions put to him by members of the Committee at the 987th, 988th, 989th and 992nd meetings. The representative of the United Kingdom also made statements and replied to questions at the 988th and 989th meetings.
- 7. The general debate was opened at the 988th meeting and continued at the 992nd, 994th and 995th meetings.
- 8. At the 994th meeting, Canada, Denmark, New Zealand and Sweden submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.636), the text of which read as follows:

"The General Assembly,

"Recalling its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959, concerning the future of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, which recommended that a plebiscite should take place in the Northern Cameroons in November 1959 and requested the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner to submit a report on the organization, conduct and results of this plebiscite to the Trusteeship Council in time for consideration by the General Assembly at its fourteenth session,

"Having examined, in consultation with the Administering Authority, the report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner (A/4314 and Add.1) and the report of the Trusteeship Council thereon (A/4313),

"Noting from the report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner that the people of the Northern Cameroons have decided by a substantial majority that they are in favour of deciding their future at a later date,

"Noting further that the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner is satisfied that the plebiscite was conducted in a fair and impartial manner,

"Noting the statement of the representative of the Administering Authority at the 988th meeting of the Fourth Committee, on 5 December 1959, to the effect that urgent action is being taken to introduce reforms in the system of local administration in the Northern Cameroons,

^{5/} T/1491 and Corr.1 and Add.1, subsequently circulated to members of the General Assembly as document A/4314 and Add.1.

[&]quot;Having heard the petitioner,

- "1. Expresses its high appreciation of the work of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and the United Nations staff under his direction;
- "2. Recommends that the Administering Authority, in pursuance of Article 76 b of the Charter of the United Nations, and in consultation with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, organize under United Nations supervision a further plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons, the arrangements for which shall begin on 30 September 1960, and that the plebiscite be concluded not later than March 1961;
- "3. Decides that the two questions to be put at this plebiscite should be:
- "(a) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Republic of the Cameroons?
- "(b) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Federation of Nigeria?;
- "4. Recommends that the plebiscite be conducted on the basis of universal adult suffrage;
- "5. Requests the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner to report to the Trusteeship Council on the organization, conduct and results of this plebiscite in order that the Trusteeship Council may transmit its report to the General Assembly together with any recommendations and observations it considers necessary;
- "6. Recommends that the necessary measures be taken without delay for the further democratization of the system of local government in the northern part of the Trust Territory;
- "7. Recommends that the Administering Authority should initiate without delay the separation of the administration of the Northern Cameroons from that of Nigeria and that this process should be completed by 1 October 1960;
- "8. Requests the Administering Authority to report on the process of separation to the Trusteeship Council at its twenty-sixth session and the Trusteeship Council to submit a report on this matter to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session."
- 9. Iran, Liberia and Tunisia submitted the following amendments (A/C.4/L.637) to the draft resolution:
- "1. Delete from the second preambular paragraph the words 'in consultation with the Administering Authority'.
 - "2. Add the following after operative paragraph 8:
- "'9. Declares that the participation of the Northern Cameroons in the elections in the Federal Legislative Assembly should in no way interfere with or influence the free choice of the people of the Northern Cameroons in deciding their future in the forthcoming plebiscite.'"

- 10. Haiti also submitted an amendment (A/C.4/L.638) to the draft resolution to the effect that the words "the first step being non-participation by the Northern Cameroons in the federal elections of 12 December 1959," should be inserted in operative paragraph 7, following the word "Nigeria".
- 11. At the 995th meeting, the representative of Venezuela submitted an oral amendment whereby the word "further", in operative paragraph 6, would be replaced by the word "effective".
- 12. The representative of Iran submitted oral amendments which provided for:
- (a) The insertion of a final preambular paragraph reading:
 - "Considering that the extremely close date of the elections to the Legislative Assembly of the Federation of Nigeria makes it impossible for the General Assembly to take any decision with regard to the participation or the non-participation of the peoples of the Northern Cameroons in these elections";
- (b) The Addition at the end of operative paragraph 4 of the following phrase:
 - "all those over the age of twenty-one and ordinarily resident in the Northern Cameroons being qualified to vote".
- 13. The representative of India also submitted an oral amendment to the effect that after the words "without delay for" in operative paragraph 6 the words "the further decentralization of governmental functions and" should be inserted in operative paragraph 6, after the words "without delay for".
- 14. At the same meeting, the sponsors of the draft resolution accepted all the oral amendments, as well as the written amendments proposed by Iran, Liberia and Tunisia (A/C.4/L.637) and accordingly submitted a revised text of their proposal, of which Iran and Japan became co-sponsors (A/C.4/L.636/Rev.1). Haiti withdrew its amendment to the original draft resolution (A/C.4/L.638).
- 15. The revised draft resolution was thereupon unanimously adopted by the Committee.

Recommendation of the Fourth Committee

- 16. The Fourth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:
- THE FUTURE OF THE TRUST TERRITORY OF THE CAMEROONS UNDER UNITED KINGDOM ADMINISTRATION: ORGANIZATION OF A FURTHER PLEBISCITE IN THE NORTHERN PART OF THE TERRITORY

Financial implications of the draft resolution submitted by the Fourth Committee in document A/4348

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [10 December 1959]

1. This statement of the financial implications of the draft resolution submitted by the Fourth Committee (A/4348, para. 16) is submitted by the Secretary-

General in accordance with rule 154 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly.

- 2. The draft resolution recommends that the Administering Authority, in consultation with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, organize under United Nations supervision a further plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons, the arrangements for which shall begin on 30 September 1960, and that the plebiscite be concluded not later than March 1961.
- 3. The Secretary-General has not yet had an opportunity to study fully the arrangements required for this plebiscite to be conducted on the basis of universal adult suffrage. However, a preliminary appraisal indicates a total expenditure of the order of $64,000, of which $47,000 would be obligated in 1960 and $17,000 in 1961. This estimate is based on the assumption that, as in the past, the observer strength is recruited from the Secretariat and that, to the extent possible, local facilities including transportation are available on the spot.

4. When detailed plans for the plebiscite called for by the draft resolution are developed, the Secretary-General will submit estimates of these requirements to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for its concurrence, prior to incurring expenditures. The 1960 requirements will be included in the supplementary estimates for that year; the 1961 requirements will be considered by the General Assembly at its fifteenth session and provided for in the budget for 1961.

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 857th plenary meeting, on 12 December 1959, the General Assembly adopted the draft resolution submitted by the Fourth Committee (A/4348, para. 16). For the final text, see resolution 1473 (XIV) below.

Resolution adopted by the General Assembly

1473 (XIV). THE FUTURE OF THE TRUST TERRITORY OF THE CAMEROONS UNDER UNITED KINGDOM ADMINISTRATION: ORGANIZATION OF A FURTHER PLEBISCITE IN THE NORTHERN PART OF THE TERRITORY

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959, concerning the future of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, which recommended that a plebiscite should take place in the Northern Cameroons in November 1959 and requested the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner to submit to the Trusteeship Council in time for consideration by the General Assembly at its fourteenth session a report on the organization, conduct and results of this plebiscite,

Having examined the report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner (A/4314 and Add.1) and the report of the Trusteeship Council thereon (A/4313);

Noting from the report of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner that the people of the Northern Cameroons have decided by a substantial majority that they are in favour of deciding their future at a later date.

Noting further that the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner is satisfied that the plebiscite was conducted in a fair and impartial manner,

Noting the statement made by the representative of the Administering Authority at the 988th meeting of the Fourth Committee, on 5 December 1959, to the effect that urgent action is being taken to introduce reforms in the system of local administration in the Northern Cameroons,

Having heard the petitioner,

Considering that the extremely close date of the elections to the Legislative Assembly of the Federation of Nigeria makes it impossible for the General Assembly to take a decision with regard to the participation or non-participation of the people of the Northern Cameroons in these elections,

- 1. Expresses its high appreciation of the work of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and the United Nations staff under his direction;
- 2. Recommends that the Administering Authority, in pursuance of Article 76 b of the Charter of the United Nations and in consultation with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, organize under United Nations supervision a further plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons, the arrangements for which shall begin on 30 September 1960, and that the plebiscite be concluded not later than March 1961;
- 3. Decides that the two questions to be put at this plebiscite should be:
 - "(a) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Republic of the Cameroons?
 - "(b) Do you wish to achieve independence by joining the independent Federation of Nigeria?";
- 4. Recommends that the plebiscite be conducted on the basis of universal adult suffrage, all those over the age of twenty-one and ordinarily resident in the Northern Cameroons being qualified to vote;
- 5. Requests the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner to report to the Trusteeship Council on the organization, conduct and results of this plebiscite, in order that the Council may transmit its report to the General Assembly together with any recommendations and observations it considers necessary;
- 6. Recommends that the necessary measures should be taken without delay for the further decentralization of governmental functions and the effective democratization of the system of local government in the northern part of the Trust Territory;
- 7. Recommends that the Administering Authority should initiate without delay the separation of the administration of the Northern Cameroons from that of Nigeria and that this process should be completed by 1 October 1960;

8. Requests the Administering Authority to report on the process of separation to the Trusteeship Council at its twenty-sixth session, and requests the Council to submit a report on this matter to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session;

Assembly should in no way interfere with, or influence, the free choice of the people of the Northern Cameroons in deciding their future in the forthcoming plebiscite.

9. Declares that the participation of the Northern Cameroons in the elections to the Federal Legislative

857th plenary meeting, 12 December 1959.

LETTER DATED 27 NOVEMBER 1959 FROM THE UNITED NATIONS PLEBISCITE COMMISSIONER FOR THE CAMEROONS UNDER UNITED KINGDOM ADMINISTRATION TO THE SECRETARY-GENERAL

New York, 27 November 1959

I have the honour to forward herewith part I of the report called for under resolution 1350 (XIII), adopted by the General Assembly on 13 March 1959. This part of my report deals with the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscite which was held in the northern part of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration on 7 November 1959, and I shall be grateful if you would submit it to the Trusteeship Council for its consideration and transmission to the General Assembly.

(Signed) Djalal ABDOH

Chapter I

INTRODUCTION

- 1. On 13 March 1959, the General Assembly of the United Nations adopted resolution 1350 (XIII) (see annex I) in which it recommended that the United Kingdom, in pursuance of Article 76 b of the Charter of the United Nations, take steps, in consultation with a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, to organize, under the supervision of the United Nations, separate plebiscites in the northern and southern parts of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, in order to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants of the Territory concerning their future.
- 2. The General Assembly also decided, in the same resolution, to appoint a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner who would exercise on its behalf all the necessary powers and functions of supervision and who would be assisted by observers and staff to be appointed by the Secretary-General in consultation with him.
- 3. At the 794th plenary meeting of the General Assembly, held on 13 March 1959, I had the honour to be elected United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner for the Cameroons under United Kingdom Administration. In accepting the appointment, I made the following statement at the same meeting:
 - "I should like to express my profound gratitude for the honour which the General Assembly has just bestowed upon my country and upon me, by appointing me to the post of the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner for the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration. I feel this is above all an acknowledgement of the traditional attitude of the Iranian delegation in the work of this Organization and, in particular, its deep interest in the operation of the International Trusteeship System.

"In the resolution concerning the future of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration which has just been adopted, the General Assembly has made a number of recommendations concerning the organization of the plebiscites. Thus, it has recommended that the plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons should take place about the middle of November 1959, and the plebiscite in the Southern Cameroons during the next dry season between the beginning of December 1959 and the end of April 1960. It has also made precise recommendations on the nature of the questions to put to the voters and the voting qualifications in the plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons. No recommendations on similar matters have been made for the Southern Cameroons, but the resolution provides that these matters will be considered at the fourteenth session of the General Assembly.

"In exercising the powers and functions of supervision on behalf of the General Assembly, I shall constantly be guided by the recommendations made by the Assembly as well as any additional decisions it may take at its fourteenth session. I shall endeavour to co-operate with the Administering Authority and the Cameroons authorities in the fullest manner and in a spirit of utmost impartiality.

"In accepting the great honour which has just been bestowed upon me, I am deeply and humbly aware of the heavy responsibilities which accompany it. The future of a million and a half persons will depend on the coming plebiscites. Also at stake will be the prestige of the United Nations. I shall endeavour to the best of my abilities to justify the confidence which the General Assembly has placed in me. In this, I shall be guided by the example of my two illustrious predecessors, Mr. Espinosa y Prieto of Mexico and Mr. Dorsinville of Haiti, who have so ably performed similar functions, the first in the 1956 plebiscite in Togoland under United Kingdom administration, and the second in the 1958 elections in Togoland under French administration." 1/

4. The General Assembly requested the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner to submit to the Trusteeship Council a report in two parts on the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscites, the first part of the report, which would deal with the northern part of the Territory, to be submitted in time for transmission to the General Assembly for consideration before the end of its fourteenth session. The present report, constituting the first part of the report called for by the General Assembly, deals with the organization, conduct and results of the plebiscite which was held on 7 November 1959 in the northern part of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration.

Chapter II

THE LAND, THE PEOPLE AND THE GOVERNMENT

5. In order to facilitate the evaluation of the plebiscite and its results, I have felt that it was necessary to incorporate at the outset of this report, a brief chapter describing the main features of the land, the people and the system of government of the Northern Cameroons. I realize, of course, that conditions in the Territory are well known to members of the Trusteeship Council and the General Assembly and therefore have endeavoured to present, in a summarized form, only those facts concerning the Territory that have a particular significance for the purposes of this report.

TOPOGRAPHY

6. That portion of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration known as the Northern Cameroons, with a total area of 17,500 square miles and a total population of approximately 759,000, is physically divided into two parts, consisting of narrow, triangular strips of land wedged in between the eastern border of the Northern Region of Nigeria and the western border of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under French administration, with a strip of Nigerian territory some 45 miles wide between them. It stretches for a distance of approximately 500 miles from the border of Lake Chad in the north to the Bamenda highlands in the south on the border of the Southern Cameroons, the remainder of the Trust Territory under United Kingdom administration. With a breadth nowhere exceeding 100 miles, the two portions are widest at the northern and southern ends of the Territory, but taper considerably towards the centre and eventually are separated by a gap through which the Benue river system pursues its meandering course from the French Cameroons into Nigeria. The northern portion, comprising the Dikwa Division and the Northern Adamawa Districts, is some 6,900 square miles in area with a total population of some 570,000, while the southern part, comprising the Tigon-Ndoro-Kentsu Districts and the Southern Adamawa Districts, is some 10,600 square miles in area with a total population of approximately 189,000.2/The total area of the Northern Cameroons is slightly greater than that of the Southern Cameroons and the population slightly smaller.

^{2/} Population figures given above are mid-1957 estimates based on the 1952 census. In other chapters of this report, where no break-down estimates were available for 1957, figures of the 1952 census had to be used.

- 7. Much of the Northern Cameroons is mountainous. The Bamenda highlands of the Southern Cameroons continue into the Mambila Plateau at an average height of some 5,000 feet at the south-western corner of Southern Adamawa, with an escarpment descending abruptly to 1,200 feet in the adjacent Gashaka District and with peaks to the north on the Plateau rising to over 7,000 feet. Thereafter mountainous outcrops and short ranges attaining heights of 3,000 feet or more occur throughout the rolling lands of the districts south of the Benue. This type of broken topography continues in the districts north of the Benue, particularly along the eastern border in the Mubi-Michika-Gwoza area. Immediately north of Gwoza, however, an abrupt transformation occurs: the mountainous terrain gives way to a flat, unbroken plain extending at low altitude through the remainder of the Dikwa Division to the southern shores of Lake Chad and merging into the great expanse of flat land in the countries on either side in Nigeria and the French Cameroons.
- 8. For administrative purposes, the northern and southern parts of the Northern Cameroons are grouped into districts forming part of the adjacent provinces of the Northern Region of Nigeria as follows (from south to north):

The Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu Districts: 1,386 square miles with a population of 12,800. These form part of the Wukari Division of the Benue Province, the major part of which, including its capital Makurdi, lies outside Trust Territory.

The Adamawa Districts: 10,965 square miles with a population of 409,100. These are divided into the Southern Adamawa Districts: Verre, Nassarawo, Yelwa, Sugu, Toungo, Gashaka and Mambila, situated south of the Benue River; and the Northern Adamawa Districts: Belel, Zummo, Maiha, Mubi, Uba, Cubunawa and Madagali, located north of the Benue River. Both the Southern and Northern Adamawa Districts make up part of the Adamawa Division (Emirate) of the Adamawa Province of the Northern Region of Nigeria. The divisional headquarters is situated at the provincial capital, Yola, located on the Benue River in Nigerian territory, approximately midway between the northern and southern portions of the Northern Cameroons.

The Dikwa Division: 5,149 square miles with a population of approximately 265,000.3/The districts of this division are Gwoza, Bama, Wologe, Gulumba, Gumsu, Kalabalge and Ngala. This division lies wholly within Trust Territory; its headquarters is at Bama on the border between Trust Territory and Nigeria. It is part of the Bornu Province of the Northern Region of Nigeria with the provincial capital located at Maiduguri, some 45 miles west of Bama.

COMMUNICATIONS

Postal communications

9. Postal communications are poor. There is only a once-weekly mail service between Yola in Nigeria and the postal agencies at Mubi and Jada. Post offices have been constructed at Mubi and Bama but had not yet come into full operation during the plebiscite period. There are postal agencies at Gembu, Gwoza, Jada and Madagali.

Telephonic and telegraphic communications

10. There are no public telephonic or telegraphic services in the Northern Cameroons.

Air services

11. There is no regular air service operating in the Northern Cameroons. The nearest airports are at Yola and Maiduguri in Nigerian territory, through which operates a bi-weekly scheduled service of Nigerian Airways giving access to the central and northern parts of the Territory. There are airstrips at Mubi in the Mubi district of the northern section and at Baissa in the Ndoro district of the southern section of the Territory which may be used by light planes on charter flights, but these lack night-landing and other airport facilities. There is also an airstrip at Beli in Nigerian territory fairly close to and connected by a good road with Jamtari, Karamti and Serti in the Gashaka district of the southern section, as well as one at Takum giving access to Bissaula in the Kentu district at the extreme south-west of the Territory.

Roads

- 12. The Northern Cameroons is not a well-roaded territory. Roads are classified as all-season, these being mainly either trunk (federal) or regional roads, and dry-season, these being Native Authority roads. Because of the difficult terrain there are few allweather roads within the Territory. In the extreme north, where the mountains give way to the wide expanse of land of low relief between Lake Chad and Bama, the heavy clay soils become water-logged in the rainy season and vehicular traffic converts such roads as there are into quagmires of sticky mud, thus quickly rendering them impassable. The only allseason road in this part of the Territory is trunk road A21, which originates at Maiduguri in Nigeria and enters the Trust Territory at Dikwa and then proceeds northward along the western border on an embankment to Ngala just south of Lake Chad and thence into the French Cameroons. Another all-weather trunk road originating in Maiduguri, A4, runs to Bama, thus providing a link with Dikwa. The distance from Bama to Dikwa by these two all-weather roads, which form two sides of a triangle with the apex at Maiduguri, is, however, about 110 miles as compared with the straight line distance—the base of the triangle—of only about 45 miles.
- 13. From Bama, trunk road A4 continues southward to Zara and Kiva, some 10 miles north of Gwoza, but the surface of this stretch of some 40 miles is not up to all-weather standard. From Kiva the surface is again all-weather through Gwoza, Madagali, Gulak, Michika and Uba to Mubi, a distance of about 110 miles. The other roads in the northern section of the Territory are all Native Authority dry-season roads, with the exception of regional road B505 running from Mubi to Burha in the French Cameroons, a distance of about 20 miles.
- 14. Mubi is connected with Jada in the southern section of the Territory by trunk road A4, which runs in through Yola. A ferry service over the Benue at Yola enables crossing of this river. The distance by this road from Mubi to Yola is 124 miles and from Yola to Jada 67 miles or a total distance of 191 miles from Mubi to Jada. This is the only all-weather road link between the northern and southern sections of the Trust Territory.

- 15. In the southern section it is projected that A4 will continue from Jada, through Sugu, Jamtari and Serti to Mayo Selbe at the foot of the Mambila escarpment, up the escarpment to Gembu and thence into the Southern Cameroons. So far, however, only the short length between Jamtari and Serti (some 30 miles) has been completed. The remainder of the existing road along this route, approximately 166 miles, is strictly dry-season.
- 16. Just north of Jada, another trunk road, A14, branches off A4 and continues southward in Nigerian territory to Beli almost on the border of the Trust Territory. The distance from Jada to Beli is about 135 miles. From Beli, regional road B504 turns east into Trust Territory to Jamtari, a distance of 30 miles. Thus, there is an all-weather link between Jada and Jamtari of about 165 miles, most of which runs through Nigerian territory. This link continues to Serti.
- 17. Trunk road A14 continues southward from Beli to Takum, a small town in Nigerian territory about 20 miles from the boundary between Northern and Southern Cameroons. The distance from Beli to Takum is about 90 miles. At about 60 miles on this road from Beli, regional road B553 crosses it going into Trust Territory through Baissa to Abong on the Southern Cameroons border, and so establishing an all-weather link between Beli and Baissa.
- 18. A trunk road (A22) is being constructed from Takum through Bissaula to Komine in the Southern Cameroons. This road will complete the all-weather links between Jada and all the important centres of the southern section of the Territory. There are no other trunk or regional all-season roads in the Territory.
- 19. Because of the axial mountain ranges running along the eastern border of the Northern Cameroons and the numerous lateral spurs, particularly in the southern section, Native Authority dry-season roads, to maintain north-south communications, must frequently cross valley bottoms and ford streams and rivulets or run through low-lying lands. In the wet season, when every stream or rivulet becomes a torrent and the low-lying lands are extensively flooded, these roads become impassable and the great majority of the villages served by them are cut off from communication with the larger centres served by all-season roads, even those within relatively short distances of these centres. This state of affairs continues throughout the rainy season and for some time thereafter until the cessation of the rains allows the streams and rivulets to shrink and the flooded areas to dry off, thus permitting bridges and damaged roads to be repaired and communications to be re-established. It is reported that of the total of 827 miles of Native Authority roads in the Northern Cameroons about three-quarters or 614 miles are dry-season roads and only 213 miles are all-season.

THE PEOPLE

20. The ethnic composition of the population of the Northern Cameroons is highly complex. Up-to-date and complete statistics of the ethnic composition are not available, but the figures given in respect of the 1952 census are as follows:

Trust Territory Districts
Tribe	Bornu	Adamawa	Benue	Tota1
Kanuri	118,100	4,800	-	122,900
Shuwa Arabs	52,300		-	52,300
Fulani	6,300	55,800	100	62,200
Hausa	700	7,500	_	8,200
Other Northern.	78.500	334,400	12,600	425,500
Nigerians	3,500	6,000	100	9,600
Not specified	5,800	600	-	6,400
TOTAL	265,200	409,100	12,800	687,100

- 21. The "Other Northern" group consists largely of semi-Bantu speaking tribes living mainly in mountain villages and commonly referred to as "hill pagans". They constitute a majority in the Adamawa and Benue districts and a substantial proportion of the population in the Bornu districts. They include, in the Northern Adamawa districts, tribes, such as the Beta, Fali, Bude, Higi, Marghi, Njai and Sulcur, while in the Southern Adamawa districts they include the Chamba, Jibu, Koma and Mambila. In the Benue districts they include the Tigon, Ndoro and Kentu. Little or nothing is known of the origin of these tribes. They presumably moved into the hills to escape the slave raids from the Hausa, Kanuri and Fulani States on the plains. Their original culture is characterized by initiation rites, exogamy, the absence of secular chieftainship, the absence of circumcision and a complete lack of clothing or its restriction to leaves or a leather covering or brass and iron ornaments worn over the pubis. Their religion combines belief in the Supreme Being with forms of animism and ancestor worship.
- 22. Although they exhibit a striking similarity of language, customs, social organization and religious belief, each clan asserts that it is separate and independent, and that each group has no connexion with any other. The kindred groups in the area acknowledge a common cult of their founder, to whom annual celebrations are made by the members of the whole group, and at which the chief of the senior kindred group takes precedence as the religious head. As ancestor worship and fetishism are inseparable from their temporal life, this religious head is ipso facto temporal clan chief, even though in practice he cannot exercise much power over the peoples of other kindred groups owing to their inherently independent character and their limited allegiance to him. Their customs do not appear to recognize any political organization wider than the exogamous kindred, and councils and courts, where representatives of different tribes meet and work together with their District Head, are new conceptions to them.
- 23. As education spreads among them and peace gives greater opportunities of visiting and learning from other peoples, their outlook is broadening and more and more individuals are seeking and making openings for themselves outside the narrow confines of their hills. Under the impact of other cultures, particularly of Moslem and to a lesser extent of Christian influence, a profound social and political transformation is taking place. Clothing is being increasingly worn and much interest is being displayed in political organization.
- 24. The Kanuri, who constitute the largest tribal element in the Dikwa Division of the Bornu Province, came originally from Kanem in the Central Sudan. They are of Negro origin, modified by a Tuareg Berber immigration from A.D. 500-800. They entered Bornu about the thirteenth century, conquered the country and intermarried with the Negro population of Bornu. They are still the ruling race in Dikwa. The present Emirate of Dikwa is a small portion of the ancient Kanuri Empire of Bornu. The nineteenth century was a period of intermittent trouble there. In 1808, the Fulani, having conquered the Hausa States of Northern Nigeria, invaded Bornu and had to be repelled and then, after a lull, rivalries among the ruling families led to civil war, with the present El Kanemi dynasty becoming established. Finally, in 1893, the country was overrun by an invader from the Sudan, one Rabeh. He was overthrown in 1900 by the French, who restored the El Kanemi dynasty, which remained in power under the German administration. In 1922, on the assumption of the British mandate for the Cameroons, Dikwa became a separate division of the Bornu Province of Nigeria and a member of the El Kanemi dynasty was installed as Shehu of Dikwa. In 1937, he became Shehu of Bornu and his brother was selected to rule over Dikwa with the title of Emir, leaving the title of Shehu to the head of the family. The present Emir of Dikwa is a member of this dynasty.

- 25. The Shuwa Arabs, representing an important part of the present population of the Dikwa Division, came into Bornu from the east. Originally nomadic, they are now mostly settled. They still retain, under the Emir of Dikwa and his district heads, the framework of their internal clan government as a survival from the days when they were semi-nomadic herdsmen.
- 26. The Fulani, a pastoral people, possibly of Semitic origin, came into the Territory from Mellevia Bornu. They became Moslems of the Sunni sect. Their customs are in general regulated by Islamic law and tradition, with a considerable substratum of pagan custom and observances, particularly among the nomadic clans, some of which have not embraced Islam. They have intermarried with the various tribes among which they have settled. Their language, Fulfulde, is spoken throughout the Western and Central Sudan, and is the lingua franca of Adamawa.
- 27. The first half of the nineteenth century saw the rise and consolidation of Fulani power in the Adamawa and Benue areas under Modibo Adawa. He dominated an area of some 20,000 square miles and established his capital at Yola. The Conventions of 1902 and 1907 which determined the British and German spheres of influence in this area led to the loss of the greater part of the territory to the Lamido (Emir) of Adamawa and caused continued trouble. Some of this was restored under the British mandate, but more than half of the original Emirate now lies within the French Cameroons.

EDUCATION

28. The precise extent of illiteracy in the Northern Cameroons, that is the inability to read or write any language, is unknown, but was estimated to be between 80 and 90 per cent in 1957. Efforts have been made to extend the scope and efficiency of the adult literacy campaigns. In 1957, there were 446 adult classes, with an enrolment of 10,647 adults. A total of 2,162 literacy certificates was issued during the year, in addition to 6,000 issued in 1955 and 2,562 in 1956. The rapid growth of adult literacy classes has outstripped the supervision available and the Government's policy in 1957 was one of consolidation and improvement of standards, rather than of expansion.

- 29. There is no compulsory education except that in Adamawa and Dikwa, under a Native Authority Order, a parent or guardian may be prosecuted if a child enrolled in a school fails to attend. Native Authority schools do not charge fees; in some cases, mission schools charge a nominal fee. In the Northern Cameroons in 1957, there were 5,167 children in sixty-five primary schools, twenty-five of which were run by voluntary agencies. School texts were in the Hausa, Fulani and Kanuri languages. There were none in the languages of the hill tribes.
- 30. In the Dikwa Emirate, where hill tribes still appear to display a lack of interest in education, the short-term policy is to increase the number of primary schools as fast as the supply of certificated teachers permits, and to provide increased facilities for senior primary education in Bama. In the Adamawa Division, where there is a real and growing demand for boys' education, the first aim is to staff every school properly and then to expand primary education by opening schools where the need is indicated by local education committees and where teachers can be made available. There are only two schools in the Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu districts, one being a Native Authority school and the other a Mission school.
- 31. In Dikwa, the proportion of girls to boys is almost 50 per cent, but in Adamawa and Benue, there is still considerable opposition to girls' education. Women education officers are gradually breaking down the prejudice against the education of girls. Much encouragement has been given to the education of girls by the establishment of girls' schools in Maiduguri and Yola, both outside the Trust Territory. However, they accept girls from the Trust Territory.
- 32. The Northern Cameroons suffers from a lack of trained teachers, a diversity of languages and an acute transport problem, which makes adequate supervision of schools difficult; in future, finance also may be a problem. The Territory has a teacher-training college in Mubi of Grade 3 status, which gives a three-year course to ex-senior primary VI boys. After graduation, these teachers are permitted to teach English. The quality and number of vernacular-trained teachers is improving with each new output from the Mubi Vernacular Teacher-Training Centre. The Roman Catholic Mission also runs a Teacher-Training College in Bazza, Adamawa.
- 33. The Territory is served by three Native Authority senior primary schools in Bama, Jada and Michika. There are no secondary schools in the Territory, but boys from it have access, by competitive examination, to secondary schools in Nigeria. In 1957, there were thirty-three boys from the Trust Territory, both North and South, in these schools.

PRESS AND BROADCASTING

Press

34. No newspapers are published in the Northern Cameroons, but a number of Nigerian papers have limited circulation in the Territory, including the Daily Times, Sunday Times, the West African Pilot and the Daily Service.

Broadcasting

35. The only broadcasting facilities are those of the Nigerian Broadcasting Corporation, which operates inter alia three regional programmes and a national programme. The North Regional Programme broadcast from Kaduna is received in the Northern Cameroons. The bulk of these programmes are broadcast in Hausa, the lingua franca of the Northern Region, but both Kanuri and Fulfulde, the languages most widely spoken in the Northern Cameroons, are also used for news broadcasts. The National Programme, which is heard throughout the Territory, is broadcast in English, though the news is also broadcast in Hausa.

TERRITORIAL GOVERNMENT

- 36. Article 5 of the Trusteeship Agreement for the Territory of the Cameroons under British administration, 4/approved by the General Assembly on 13 December 1946, provides, inter alia that the Administering Authority:
 - "(a) Shall have full powers of legislation, administration and jurisdiction in the Territory and shall administer it in accordance with the Authority's own laws as an integral part of its territory with such modification as may be required by local conditions and subject to the provisions of the United Nations Charter and of this Agreement;
 - "(b) Shall be entitled to constitute the Territory into a customs, fiscal or administrative union or federation with adjacent territories under its sovereignty or control, and to establish common services between such territories and the Territory where such measures are not inconsistent with the basic objectives of the International Trusteeship System and with the terms of this Agreement."
- 37. The Trust Territory has been and is administered as an integral part of the Federation of Nigeria and the structure of government in its legislative, administrative and judicial aspects is determined by the Constitution of Nigeria. The Federation consists of the Northern Region, including the northern section of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, the Eastern Region, the Western Region, the Southern Cameroons and the Federal Territory of Lagos. The Federal Legislature consists of the Governor-General and a House of Representatives almost wholly elected by popular vote in elections separate from those for the Legislative Houses of each of the regions and the Southern Cameroons. Each of the regional governments is administered by a Governor and Executive Council and for each region is a legislature, including a House of Assembly wholly-and in the Northern Region, almost wholly-elected by popular vote. The respective spheres of competence of federal and regional governments are determined by legislative lists. Residual legislative powers are vested in the Regional Legislatures. There is a High Court for the Northern Region and appeals lie to the Federal Supreme Court.
- 38. The Council of Ministers is the principal instrument of policy for Nigeria in matters to which the executive authority of the Federation extends. It consists of the Governor-General, who is President, and not less than eleven members styled ministers, of whom one is styled the Prime Minister. The Governor-General is required to appoint as Prime Minister the member of the House of Representatives who appears to him to be best able to command a majority in that House. The other ministers are appointed from among the members of the House of Representatives on the recommendation of the Prime Minister. Four members of the House of Representatives are elected from Northern Cameroons constituencies, namely North Dikwa, South Dikwa, Northern Adamawa and Southern Adamawa and from a constituency partly in Trust Territory, namely Wukari. The present members representing the Northern Cameroons all belong to the Northern Peoples' Congress (NPC), the majority party in the Northern Region.

- 39. The Northern Regional Executive Council consists of the Governor, who is Resident, one ex-officio member (the Attorney-General of the region) and twenty members appointed by the Northern House of Chiefs and the Northern House of Assembly; one of these is styled Premier and the remainder are appointed by the Governor on the recommendation of the Premier. The Northern Cameroons is now represented on the Executive Council by two members: Malan Abba Habib, Minister of Trade and Industry who was born in Dikwa Emirate and was the first Minister for Northern Cameroons Affairs, and Alhaji Abdullahi Dan Buram Jada, who was born in Adamawa Trust Territory and is now Minister for Northern Cameroons Affairs and for Animal Health and Forestry.
- 40. The Legislature of the Northern Region of Nigeria consists of the Governor of the region and two Legislative Houses, namely the Northern House of Chiefs and the Northern House of Assembly. The Northern House of Chiefs is composed of the Governor, all first-class chiefs, thirty-seven other chiefs, those members of the Executive Council who are members of the House of Assembly, and an adviser on Moslem law. The members of the Northern House of Assembly are one official member (the Attorney-General), 131 elected members and not more than five special members appointed by the Governor to represent interests not otherwise adequately represented.
- 41. One member of the Northern House of Chiefs—the Emir of Dikwa—comes from the Northern Cameroons and the Emirate of another—the Lamido of Adamawa—lies partly in Trust Territory. Five members of the Northern House of Assembly are elected by Northern Cameroonian constituencies, namely, Dikwa North, Dikwa South, Adamawa Northeast, Adamawa South, 5/2 and one from a constituency partly in Trust Territory, namely, the Wukari Division of Benue-Province. 5/2 The present members all belong to the NPC, the majority party in the House of Assembly.
- 42. In addition to the above legislative and executive bodies there was created in 1955 a Consultative Committee for the Northern Cameroons to advise the Executive Council of the Northern Region on the particular needs of the Northern Cameroons and to make recommendations to the Council. It has the duty of keeping the Government informed of Northern Cameroons opinion on regional legislation and through its chairman makes known to the Executive Council its views on proposed legislation or draws attention to the need for new legislation. The Consultative Committee has been constituted a formal Committee of the Executive Council of the Northern Region. Its membership totals sixteen, consisting of the Minister for Northern Cameroons Affairs and for Animal Health and Forestry as chairman, the two members of the House of Chiefs (the Emir of Dikwa and the Lamido of Adamawa), the four Northern Cameroonian members of the House of Representatives, four Northern Cameroonian members of the House of Assembly (the other member resigned on being appointed a Minister), and five special members, including two as representatives of the Ndoro, Kentu and Tigon areas, one Fulani member and one Mambila member to represent the Mambila District.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

- 43. Local government in the Northern Cameroons is the responsibility of Native Authorities, who receive guidance and advice from administrative and departmental officers of the Northern Region Government. The Administering Authority has stated that, generally speaking, where there is a strong tribal consciousness or a long tradition of political organization, the Native Authorities are the traditional executive authority, but where there is no traditional authority possessing executive power over a wider area than the village, the Native Authority system is a new construction rather than an adaptation of native machinery. It is to be emphasized that administrative officers do not govern; their role is to advise and supervise the native administrators at all levels.
- 44. In the Northern Cameroons, the local government institutions are regulated by the Northern Region Native Authority Law 1954 (no. 4 of 1954) and, under section 6 of that law, the Governor, acting within his absolute discretion, may appoint as a Native Authority any chief or other person, any chief associated with a council, any council or any group of persons. The Native Authorities so appointed are as follows:
- (1) Bornu Province, Bama (Dikwa) Division: The Emir of Dikwa in Council;
- (2) Adamawa Province, Adamawa Districts: The Lamido of Adamawa in Council;
- (3) Benue Province, Wukari Division, Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu areas: Tigon District Council, Ndoro Tribal Council and Kentu District Council, forming the United Hills Subordinate Native Authority.
- 45. The Administering Authority has stated that the existing Native Authorities were built up after careful inquiry in each case into the basis of traditional authority. Where chiefs, or chiefs and councils, formed the recognized authority, they became the Native Authority. Where the hereditary principle did not operate, the representatives of the extended families or groups were formed into councils as Native Authorities in such manner as the people desired and given statutory powers. Native Authorities and Native Courts take cognizance of local law and custom, but do not interfere with them except in so far as law and custom are repugnant to natural justice, morality, and humanity, or conflict with the provisions of any ordinance.
- 46. Administrative officers do not interfere in the selection of representatives on the Native Authority Councils. Existing forms of local government range from the hierarchic, which is commonest in the north,

- to the conciliar. The Northern Region Native Authority Law sets out the functions and prescribes the duties of these bodies and thus defines their relationship with the regional government and the legislature. The qualifications required of members are that they should be acceptable to the people over whom the Native Authority has jurisdiction, but power to remove a member exists and this power is exercised in cases of misconduct or ineptitude. Since local government is founded on traditional institutions, the jurisdiction of local government bodies usually conforms to tribal or similar divisions. Amalgamation occurs where it is the wish of the people concerned and is calculated to promote efficiency.
- 47. Powers of Native Authorities in the Northern Cameroons cover a wide range, including the maintenance of law and order.
- 48. The Native Authority for the Adamawa Emirate, of which the Trust Territory within the Adamawa Province (i.e., the Northern and Southern Adamawa districts) forms a part, consists of the Lamido-in-Council; the Council is composed of three traditional Fulani Councillors, three non-Fulani title-holders and District Heads (two of these, Macha and Suju, come from the Trust Territory), six administrative Councillors nominated by the Native Authority, responsible for one or more Native Authority departments, and six Councillors elected by the Adamawa Native Authority Outer Council from among themselves to represent the northern, central and southern areas of the Emirate (three of these come from the Trust Territory) and two members representing special interests. The Native Authority is a policy-making body and it functions through a system of such committees. Day-to-day affairs are dealt with by an executive committee resident at Yola. The full Council meets for a week in each month. Matters are dealt with either in committee, with final approval by the Council, or in full Council.
- 49. The financial powers of the Native Authority are wide and it has almost complete control over its own affairs.
- 50. The Outer Council of the Native Authority, which is an advisory body consisting of thirty-one District Headmen and forty-three representatives elected on a population basis, meets twice a year. Its comments and advice on Emirate affairs are considered by the Native Authority Council.
- 51. At a lower level, local government rests in the hands of twenty-eight district administrations. A District Headman is responsible for each district; he may be an hereditary territorial chief or a career administrator appointed by the Native Authority. He is a full-time, paid administrative official. Each District Headman is responsible to the Native Authority for the administration of his district. He has as assistants subordinate members of various departments and a District Council to advise him. Affairs affecting particular districts are being referred increasingly to the Councils by the Native Authority and the financial powers of some have been increased by granting them authority to retain locally collected fees if they wish to do so for providing certain services, e.g. water supplies, grazing grounds, reading rooms, etc. All District Councils have been formally established under the Native Authority Law 1954, with electoral rules which provide for an elected majority by a system of direct elections.

- 52. The Native Authority of the Dikwa Emirate, which lies wholly within the Trust Territory and comprises the Dikwa Division of Bornu Province with Head-quarters at Bama, is the Emir of Dikwa-in-Council. The Council consists of the District Heads of Bama and Gwozu, the local government secretary, the head veterinary assistant, the manager of the Native Authority schools, the senior dispensary assistant, a legal adviser and one administrative Councillor. Malam Abba Habib, the Minister of Trade and Industry in the Northern Region Government, is also a member.
- 53. The Outer Council has as its chairman one member of the Native Authority. It consists of eight District Heads, twenty-six members of the District Councils, two members of the Bama Town Council and six members nominated by the Native Authority to represent special interests.
- 54. District Councils consist of the Village Heads from districts, members elected by the Village Councils in a proportion of one to every 2,000 people, and three members elected by the Council to represent special interests. District Councils elect the members of the Outer Council, assess taxpayers, approve expenditure of not more than £20 from district funds, but forward proposals for district development. The Feroya District Council has been formally established under the Native Authority Law 1954, with gazetted electoral rules and an elected majority.
- 55. Village Councils are presided over by Village Heads and consist of members elected in a proportion of one to every 300 people. They recommend to the Native Authority, through the District Councils, who should be appointed Village Heads and are generally responsible for assessing taxpayers. They submit proposals to the District Councils for village improvement and are responsible for seeing that Native Authority orders and rules are carried out at village level. The Bama Town Council is presided over by the District Head of Bama and controls limited funds; otherwise, its functions are similar to those of Village Councils.
- 56. That part of the Trust Territory which lies within the Wukari Division of Benue Province, the Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu area, has three small native administrations, the Tigon District Council, the Ndoro Tribal Council and the Kentu District Council, which form part of the Wukari Federated Native Authority. The three Councils have federated to form the United Hills Native Authority, subordinate to the Wukari Federated Native Authority. The United Hills Native Authority consists of sixteen recognized chiefs and twenty-two members elected by secret ballot and together with the other three subordinate Native Authorities (these lie outside Trust Territory) shares the Native Treasury of the Wukari Federation.

A NOTE ON THE NORTHERN SYSTEM

57. In September 1957, a Commission was appointed in Nigeria to inquire into the fears of minorities and the means of allaying them. The Commission's findings are contained in a report by submitted to the United Kingdom Secretary of State for the Colonies on 30 July 1958, which includes a description of the Northern System of administration. Taking into account that the Northern Cameroons has been administered as part of the Northern Region and therefore has shared in the system of government generally referred to as the "Northern System", it seems useful to summarize some of the Committee's observations.

- 58. The Northern Region and, in particular, the northern part of the Northern Region, is part of the area known to historians and geographers as the Western Sudan; this is an area into which, from the beginning of what in Europe would be the Middle Ages until recently, there has been a constantly renewed infiltration of people from the north-east, and it is important that there had arisen among them the idea of a City State-a city with organized control over the population of a territory which might vary considerably in size, but which produced a ruling class and a system of administration even before the coming of Islam. The society resulting from the superimposition of Islam on this civilization was later on influenced and modified, but at the same time preserved and entrenched, by British rule.
- 59. In the Northern Region today, this society has its home in the great Emirates of the northern part of the Region and extends in varying degrees towards the south and east. There is the faith and the law of Islam; there is a tribal grouping, the combination of the Fulani, the Hausa, the Nupe and the Kanuri, all formerly ruling tribes, most of whom have long been adherents of Islam; there is the Hausa language, widely used as a lingua franca; there is a system of administration based on the Emir and a feudal pyramid below him—all these elements fusing to make what may for convenience be called the Northern System.
- 60. There are, however, sections of the population which the Northern System has touched little, round which rather than over which it has flowed, and which have never been absorbed into the System but merely enclosed within it. There are sections of the country where the inhabitants are still "pagan", where the Hausa language is little used and where Islamic law is hardly understood; these areas occur more and more frequently as one moves southward and eastward.
- 61. There is one more aspect of the Northern System to be borne in mind. By the time that British influence, and eventually sovereignty, became established in the country, the doctrine of Indirect Rule was in the process of development; the British Colonial Administrator Lugard, more than any one man—except perhaps Goldie—was responsible for the establishment of that sovereignty and Lugard was the high priest of Indirect Rule. And the Northern System appeared to provide the perfect vehicle for Indirect Rule. When the Protectorate was proclaimed, the Emirs were assured that their religion and customs would not be interfered with; the assurance has been observed with scrupulous fidelity and the whole Northern System until recently has been sheltered from outside influence.
- 62. When the Protectorate was proclaimed, there were areas into which the administration of the Emirs had never been able to penetrate successfully, because of the inaccessible nature of the country or the stubbornness of the inhabitants; there were others in which existing leaders had come to terms and secured comparative immunity from raids by the regular payment of tribute, usually in slaves; there was a third type of area in which no serious attempt had been made to convert the people or to establish a permanent jurisdiction, but which had been regarded as convenient raiding grounds. In the great Emirates themselves, Lugard found established systems of administration with a judicial body of Alkalai and a fiscal system of some complexity. With these administered areas, as well as with the tracts and fragments which had remained outside the Northern System, Lugard had to come to an arrangement, and he adopted different means in each of these kinds of territory.

63. When there was an Emir with centralized authority, it was easy to apply the theory of Indirect Rule; the Emir was given a letter of appointment and it was thus made clear that he was a dependent ruler, subject to the law and to the supreme authority of the Crown; at the same time, British officials were instructed that they must not take the place of the Emirs, but guide and control them in the early years. In such areas, the Emir ruled through District Heads, who were appointed by him and were officials.

64. A mainly pagan area which formed part of an Emirate (as in southern Zaria and southern Illorin), was usually knitted into the System by the appointment of District Heads, usually Fulani or Hausa but sometimes a local traditional chief, and not much change was needed here. This method, however, was scarcely applicable to large areas where there had been no Fulani or Hausa administration, as for example among the Tivs or Jukuns. Here it took sometime to find out where authority had resided, and various experiments were made which were not wholly successful. As in the Eastern Region, authority of the wrong kind was sometimes conferred on the wrong people; but sometimes, as in Igala, it became possible to find a chief with centralized authority over subordinate hereditary chiefs who were heads of clans and who, with the help of traditional or hereditary councils, could operate in the same kind or way as the District Heads of the Fulani territories. There is no uniformity in the methods by which these local difficulties were met; in fact, in the Northern Region, there is an extreme variety and complexity of arrangements for local government. In the Northern Region, for most of the people "government" means "local government", the division of powers between the Regional Government and the local authorities is such that the Emirate constitutes a state within a state.

65. The British officers who succeeded the first administrators under Lugard were scrupulous to observe his promises and the Northern Region has remained behind the protective wall of the Colonial Government as a society singularly unaffected by change in the rest of the world.

66. However, in the last five years, there have been changes which, ten years ago, would have seemed revolutionary. Since 1951, a beginning has been made with elections to a parliamentary system; elections, however, are usually indirect and inthe primary stage often by show of hands. The Emir has become the Emir-in-Council and in most Emirates an elected element has been added to his Council. In some Emirates there is an Advisory Council, which meets to discuss matters referred to it and give an opinion; sometimes the Advisory Council elects members to the Native Authority, that is to say the Emir-in-Council. At the time when the Commission's report was written, twenty-eight out of sixty-four Native Authorities had elected majorities, but in all except Illorin, where it is by secret ballot, election is by indirect voting and show of hands.

EVENTS LEADING TO PLEBISCITE

67. The recent events leading to the decision to hold a plebiscite in the Territory are well known to the members of the Trusteeship Council and the General Assembly. I shall, therefore, only recapitulate them briefly in order to complete the background information needed for a consideration of the plebiscite results.

68. As stated by the United Nations Visiting Mission to Trust Territories in West Africa, 1958, in paragraph 3 of its report on the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, the need for ascertaining the wishes of the peoples of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration had arisen not so much because of their own progress towards the objectives of the International Trusteeship System as because of the imminent attainment of independence by both of their much larger neighbours: the Federation of Nigeria on the one side and the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under French administration on the other. Each of these emergent States had indicated its willingness to have the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration join it if the peoples of the Trust Territory should so desire.

69. After a series of separate discussions with the Southern Cameroons delegates at the Nigeria Constitutional Conference held in London in May-June 1957, the United Kingdom Secretary of State for the Colonies made the following statement, of which the Conference later took note, about the future of the Trust Territory when Nigeria became independent:

"Her Majesty's Government fully recognize their obligations to the Cameroons under the Trusteeship Agreement.

"One of these obligations has been and is to administer the Territory as an integral part of Nigeria. This has, of course, been on the assumption that Nigeria was a dependent territory. When Nigeria becomes an independent country, this arrangement will no longer be possible so the Trusteeship Agreement will in any case have to be reviewed at that stage.

"When Nigeria becomes independent, one possibility would be that the Cameroons should remain part of it. This would involve the termination of the Trusteeship Agreement and would require consultation with the United Nations. I can state quite categorically that there can be no question of obliging the Cameroons to remain part of an independent Nigeria contrary to her own wishes.

"Before Nigeria becomes independent, the people of the north and south sectors of the Cameroons would have to say freely what their wishes were as to their own future. Among the options open to them would be to continue under the Trust administration of the United Kingdom. I must in fairness add the warning that you would not thereby be given the golden key of the Bank of England! But many of the best friends of the Cameroons do not foresee a destiny more likely to promote her happiness and prosperity than in continued association with Nigeria.

"Her Majesty's Government will, of course, pay the very greatest regard to their views, whatever form they may take."

70. In a memorandum submitted by the representative of the United Kingdom to the Trusteeship Council at its twenty-second session on 30 June 1958, ⁸/it was stated that it was necessary to consider what arrangements should be made for the administration of the Trust Territory when Nigeria became independent. These arrangements must involve either the modification or the termination of the present Trusteeship Agreement and it was assumed that the United Nations, as the other principal party to the Trusteeship Agreement, would wish to ascertain, by appropriate means, the facts of the situation and in particular the views of the inhabitants of the Trust Territory.

71. It was stated in that memorandum that the Trust Territory fell naturally into two sections, the North and the South. The northern section had always been administered together with the adjacent provinces of the Northern Region of Nigeria. Its inhabitants were closely connected ethnically with the people of that region. The people of the Southern Cameroons, on the other hand, had no natural connexion, ethnic or otherwise, with those of the North and, in recent years, this section had had a status approximating that of a separate region within the Federation. Both parts of the Trust Territory had shared, in different ways and in accordance with the wishes of their inhabitants, in the political advances made as a result of the 1957 Nigeria Constitutional Conference and neither had fallen behind the Federation in its advance towards self-government and, ultimately, independence.

72. In these circumstances, it was stated, the United Kingdom Government had promised that the inhabitants of both the northern and southern sections of the Trust Territory would be given an opportunity freely to express their own wishes about their future. Attention was drawn to the above-quoted statement of the Secretary of State. The United Kingdom, the memorandum continued, attached great importance to the consultation of the peoples of the northern and southern sections of the Cameroons about their future and therefore proposed that the 1958 United Nations Visiting Mission to the Trust Territories in West Africa should include in its report its views on the method of consultation which should be adopted when the time came for the peoples to express their wishes concerning their future.

73. The Trusteeship Council accordingly, in its resolution 1907 (XXII) of 28 July 1958, defining the terms of reference of the 1958 West African Visiting Mission, requested the Mission to include in its report on the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration its views on the method of consultation which should be adopted when the time came for the peoples of the Territory to express their wishes concerning their future.

74. In reporting the results of the resumed Nigeria Constitutional Conference held in London in September-October 1958 on the subject of Nigerian independence, the representative of the United Kingdom informed the General Assembly at its thirteenth session in November 1958 that the official report 9/ issued at the conclusion of the Conference referred to a statement made by the Secretary of State on behalf of the United Kingdom Government to the effect that, if a resolution was passed by the new Federal Parliament of Nigeria early in 1960 asking for independence, the United Kingdom Government would agree to that request and would introduce a bill into the United Kingdom Parliament to enable Nigeria to become a fully independent country on 1 October 1960. The Federal Prime Minister of Nigeria and the Premiers of the Nigerian Regions had accepted that statement.

75. The decision, the United Kingdom representative stated, vitally affected the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration for, under the terms of the Trusteeship Agreement, the Trust Territory was administered as an integral part of Nigeria. In so far as the Northern Cameroons was concerned, the report of the 1957 Nigeria Constitutional Conference 10/had stated that the delegate from the Northern Cameroons wished to reaffirm the decision taken by the Northern Cameroons in 1953 to remain part of the Northern Region of Nigeria. That region had, by its own wish, not attained self-government as early as the other regions, but had since expressed a desire for selfgovernment early in 1959. The 1958 resumed Conference had recommended that constitutional provision should be made for the Northern Region to become self-governing on 15 March 1959. The Governor of the Northern Region, however, would continue to retain general reserve powers in relation to the Northern Cameroons in order to enable the United Kingdom Government to carry out its responsibilities under the Trusteeship Agreement.

76. The United Kingdom representative considered that it was essential that any action which had to be taken in the United Nations regarding the Trusteeship Agreement should be taken before Nigeria became independent and in co-operation between the United Nations and the Administering Authority. If the Trust Territory obtained independence, under whatever arrangements, and the Trusteeship Agreement was to continue for a short time, it would have to be modified, since his Government could not continue to administer the Territory as an integral part of Nigeria once the United Kingdom had ceased to exercise any powers in Nigeria. In addition to reporting on the method of consultation of the inhabitants when the time came, he hoped the 1958 Visiting Mission would also report on the choice to be put before the voters, on residential qualifications and similar matters. The organization of the consultation was a matter for the Mission to advise upon and for the Trusteeship Council to consider, but his Government felt that it should take the form of a plebiscite supervised by the United Nations as in the case of Togoland under British administration.

77. The 1958 Visiting Mission in its report stated that it felt bound to proceed from the assumption that some form of independence by association with an independent neighbouring country could appropriately constitute the basis for the termination of the Trusteeship Agreement. That assumption, it said, was shared by the political leaders in the Trust Territory itself. It had found little support for the view expressed to the previous visiting missions concerning the union of the northern and southern sections of the Territory as a step towards the eventual evolution of an independent State. The continuation of trusteeship was regarded, even by the one political party for which it had some attraction, only as a transitional step towards the objective of unification and independence.

78. The Mission also felt obliged to take account of another important effect of the circumstances which were peculiar to the Trust Territory. It considered that, in view of its existing situation, any consideration of the future of the Territory must be in terms not of the Territory as a whole but of its northern and southern sections separately. The Cameroons under United Kingdom administration had never been administered as a separate Territory but always as an integral part of Nigeria and, within that framework, it had never been administered as a single part of Nigeria, but always as two. The nature of the various parts and the various peoples of the Cameroons was such that approximately one half of them were administered as part of the "Southern System" and the other half as part of the "Northern System". In the northern half, the political and social authority of the ruling tribes remained predominant; in the southern half, against weaker traditional influences and with longer and closer contact with European administrators, missionaries, traders and planters, newer forms of political, economic and social progress had made greater headway.

79. The Mission felt that in the north-within the context of the "Northern System" and its reliance on the Emirates as a means of local administrationbringing the Northern Cameroons into the fold of Northern Nigeria meant restoring, to a large degree, links of Fulani authority which had been broken by the establishment of the German Kamerun. These relationships had remained strong throughout the years, although they had been increasingly modified by the gradual modernization of the traditional forms of authority through institutional reforms and the development of political party activity. The Mission noted, however, that an important part of the population—the vigorous but less advanced semi-Bantu pagan tribes who had isolated themselves in the hills-had not yet fully made its mark on the political situation in the Northern Cameroons, even though it represented a majority in those parts of the Adamawa Emirate which were under trusteeship.

80. The Mission reported that it found the great majority of the northern governmental and traditional leaders, political party spokesmen, representatives of District Councils, and other persons with views on the matter resigned to the virtual imposition of a plebiscite rather than to a positive acceptance of it. This was not because they had any fear of the result; on the contrary, they had no doubt of a practically unanimous vote in favour of the Northern Cameroons becoming part of Nigeria. The Mission was assured everywhere that the future of the Northern Cameroons as an integral part of Northern Nigeria was in no sense an issue on which public opinion was divided. The representatives of the opposition parties-the United Middle Belt Congress (UMBC) and the Northern Elements Progressive Union (NEPU)-had left no doubt in the Mission's mind that they also supported the conception that the only practical destiny for the northern section of the Territory was to be part of the Northern Region of Nigeria. The principal differences between the UMBC and the Government party-the Northern Peoples' Congress (NPC)—were concerned with matters of internal administration which, the Mission felt, could not affect the status of the Northern Cameroons.

81. The Mission accordingly reported that it had come to the conclusion, on the basis of the facts and opinions known to it—which included the consideration of historical and political development-that there was no difference of opinion on the princ pal question of the future of the Northern Cameroons which would require or justify the holding of a formal consultation on the subject. It stated that it believed it to be manifestly the opinion of the northern population as a whole, as far as it could be expressed at present and in the foreseeable future, that they should become permanently a part of the Northern Region when the Federation of Nigeria attained independence. It therefore recommended that, if the General Assembly would accept such a union as the basis for the termination of the Trusteeship Agreement, no further consultation would need to be held.

82. The question of the future of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration was further considered at the resumed thirteenth session of the General Assembly in February-March 1959 in the light of the Visiting Mission's report. During the general debate, there appeared to be general concurrence with the views of the Visiting Mission that the situation in the two parts of the Territory were different and the two parts should therefore be dealt with separately. In regard to the Northern Cameroons, it appeared to be generally felt, however, that a matter of such importance as the future of the Territory should only be decided on the basis of popular consultation under United Nations supervision. Accordingly, the General Assembly adopted on 13 March 1959 resolution 1350 (XIII) (see annex I), whereby it recommended that separate plebiscites be organized by the Administering Authority in consultation with a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner in the Northern and Southern Cameroons under United Nations supervision in order to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants of the Territory concerning their future.

ORGANIZATION OF PLEBISCITE BY THE ADMINISTERING AUTHORITY

GENERAL.

- 83. In order to give effect to the recommendations in respect of the Northern Cameroons contained in General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII), an Order in Council entitled the Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959, was published in the United Kingdom as Statutory Instrument No. 1304, to come into operation on 5 August 1959. This Order in Council was republished in a supplement to the Nigeria Official Gazette No. 50, vol. 46, 13 August 1959—part B, as L.N. 175 of 1959 (see annex II).
- 84. Article 3 (1) of the Order in Council made provision for the holding of a plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons, i.e., those parts of the Trust Territory that are comprised in the Northern Region of Nigeria, for the purpose of ascertaining which of the following alternatives would be preferred by the people of the Northern Cameroons upon the relinquishment by Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom of their responsibility for the government of the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria, namely:
- (a) That the Northern Cameroons should be part of the Northern Region of Nigeria; or
- (b) That the future of the Northern Cameroons should be decided at a later date.
- 85. The General Assembly recommended, interalia, in operative paragraph 2 of its resolution 1350 (XIII) of 13 March 1959 that the people of the northern part of the Territory should be asked:
 - "(a) Do you wish the Northern Cameroons to be part of the Northern Region of Nigeria when the Federation of Nigeria becomes independent?

- "(b) Are you in favour of deciding the future of the Northern Cameroons at a later date?"
- 86. It will be observed that the wording of the plebiscite questions in the Order in Council departed somewhat from that used in the General Assembly's resolution. In reply to my question about this, I was informed by the then Acting Governor-General, Sir Ralph Grey, in Lagos that the wording of article 3 (1) of the Order in Council had been decided by the legal advisers of the Colonial Office after discussion with the United Kingdom Permanent Mission to the United Nations in New York in order that there should be legal Authority in precise terms for a choice limited to two alternatives. The Governor-General had been advised at the time that there was no obligation on those concerned to put the questions in the plebiscite in the precise language used in the Order in Council. It would be the duty of those concerned to put the alternatives in what they considered the most intelligible terms (and not necessarily in the English language). The Governor-General had been further advised that there seemed on that account to be no reason why the actual text of the questions to be asked should not follow the words of the resolution.
- 87. Although these variations in the wording of the alternatives to be put to the people from that of the resolution did not alter the sense of the questions and the wording on the posters and other publicity material followed substantially that of the resolution, I considered, nevertheless, that it would have been preferable to adhere literally to the wording used in General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII).

REGISTRATION

- 88. In order to give effect to the recommendation in operative paragraph 2 of General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII) that the plebiscite should be conducted on the basis of the Nigerian federal electoral register then being compiled for the elections to the Federal House of Representatives, article 6 (1) of the Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959, provided that "Every person whose name is included in a register of voters prepared under regulations made under section 5 of the Nigeria (Electoral Provisions) Order in Council, 1958, in respect of any area that constitutes a District and who is entitled under such regulations to vote for the purpose of returning a member to the House of Representatives of the Federation of Nigeria shall, subject to the provisions of this Article, be entitled, in that part of the area in which he is registered as being entitled to vote, to cast a vote in favour of one or other of the alternatives specified in paragraph (1) of Article 3 of this Order". A district, in this sense, meant any district established by article 4 of the
- 89. Article 4 of the Order in Council, 1959, provided that for the purposes of the plebiscite the Northern Cameroons should be divided into districts corresponding to the areas in the Northern Cameroons proclaimed to be electoral districts under section 4 of the Nigeria (Electoral Provisions) Order in Council, 1958 (a). These districts were based on the recommendations of the Delimitation Commission. The Plebiscite Order in Council further provided that the electoral district described in the Establishment of Electoral Districts Proclamation, 1958, of the Federation of Nigeria as "Constituency No. 40, Wukari" should be deemed to consist only of the Tigon, Ndoro and Kentu Districts of the Administrative Division of Wukarii.e., only of the districts falling within the Trust Territory—and not of the whole of that Administrative Division.
- 90. The recommendation of the General Assembly that the plebiscite should be conducted on the basis of the electoral register left little room for United Nations participation in this important aspect of the plebiscite. Nevertheless, in the course of discussions in New York with the representatives of the Administering Authority, at the end of May 1959, I suggested that provision should be made for a period directly before the plebiscite took place in which anyone who had failed to register himself previously could do so. Hearings held for this purpose could then be supervised by the United Nations observers who would by then be at their stations in the Territory.
- 91. The representatives of the Administering Authority informed me on 24 June 1959 that they had certain objections to this proposal. In the first place, it was felt that there could be "tremendous practical difficulties reopening the registration system in a large and generally sparsely populated territory with inadequate communications". Secondly, it was considered by the Administering Authority's representatives that the resolution of the General Assembly to have the plebiscite "conducted on the basis of the electoral register at present being compiled for the elections to the Federal House of Representatives" implied finality. They felt that there were insuperable legal obstacles to my proposal, since the electoral register for the federal elections must be compiled according to the law and the law did not provide for any reopening of registration after final lists had been settled. I was further informed that the new register would be posted for public inspection for the statutory period of thirty days from 15 June 1959 and during that period claims and objections might be filed. These would be heard and decided before the end of July, and final lists would be prepared and printed. Even if the law were amended to permit further changes in the register thereafter, the representatives of the Administering Authority considered that there would have to be a repetition of the registration procedure and of the procedure for claims and objections. Moreover, they felt that the United Nations observers would have time to sense before the plebiscite whether there was any dissatisfaction over the registration. However, they suggested that, if I considered some close connexion with registration was needed, one or two observers could be sent out to the Territory to observe the settlement of claims and objections in the main centres. This latter suggestion did not prove practicable.

92. On my arrival in Lagos, Sir Ralph Grey, the Acting Governor-General, was good enough, upon my request, to arrange for me a discussion with the Chairman of the Federal Electoral Commission, Mr. R. E. Wraith, O.B.E., who gave me a full account of the conduct of the registration. I was also furnished a copy of the report on the conduct of the procedure at the hearing of claims and objections. I summarize below the information so obtained.

93. The Nigeria Constitutional Conference held in London in May-June 1957, recommended, in regard to electoral arrangements, that an ad hoc delimitation commission should be appointed by the Governor-General to make recommendations for the division of the Federation of Nigeria into 320 single-member electoral districts of approximately equal population. The commission should not be required to adhere strictly to equality of numbers, but should have regard to physical features, transport facilities, existing local government or Native Authority areas and natural community of interest; it should ensure that no administrative division which was separately represented should lose such representation and that no electoral district should be partly in one region and partly in another.

94. The Delimitation Commission reported that, in arranging constituencies for the Adamawa, Dikwa and Wukari divisions as a whole, it had to consider the unusual situation that two separate parts of Adamawa, the whole of Dikwa and a small portion of the Wukari division were included in the Trust Territory. It allotted eight seats to the whole Adamawa division, and since approximately half the population lived in districts within the Trust Territory, it considered that these districts should be given four seats. These four constituencies lie wholly within the Trust Territory, for while the Commission believed that so far as community of interest was concerned the trusteeship boundary was almost irrelevant and not much noticed by the people who live nearby, it was satisfied that, taking a long view and bearing in mind the interest of the United Nations, it was desirable chiefly for external reasons to have constituencies which did not cross the Trust Territory boundary. In the Wukari division, however, the Commission found it almost impossible to do likewise, since only about 13,000 out of a total of 136,700 people in the division lived in the Trust Territory and there was little or no communication over the mountains with the remainder of the Trust Territory. The Commission saw no alternative but to group these people with the remainder of the Wukari division. No difficulty arose with regard to Dikwa division, because it, unlike the other two, lay wholly within the Trust Territory; Dikwa was allotted three seats, bringing the number of exclusively Trust Territory constituencies to seven.

95. Registration was conducted in the Northern Region over a period of six weeks: from 2 March to 11 April 1959 between the hours of 8.00 a.m. and 2.00 p.m. A senior federal electoral officer was appointed in each province to be responsible for the co-ordination of all activities in his province under the chief federal electoral officer at Kaduna. Under the senior federal electoral officers were a number of registration and senior assistant registration officers, each of the latter being responsible for one constituency and answerable to the registration officer concerned for that constituency. A number of supervisory assistant registration officers and assistant registration officers were also appointed. The latter were responsible for the actual field work. It was necessary to recruit most of the subordinates from amongst the ranks of Native Authority officials. Registration officers were requested to issue a general warning to the junior staff that their personal political opinions must not, in any circumstances, be expressed during the period of registration and that they were not to ask any question designed to elicit the vote or opinion of any person seeking registration.

96. For the purpose of the registration, each constituency was divided into a number of registration areas, each area being so designed as to contain not more than 2,000 potential voters, and so that no person needed to walk more than twelve miles to register. Each area was in turn divided in sub-areas and identified by a registration letter, A, B, C, D, etc., and as electors registered, they were given a registration letter corresponding to the identification letter of the sub-area in which they resided and a number based on the order of application for registration and these were entered on the appropriate registration cards. The names and limits of the registration areas and the addresses of the registration offices were published in the constituency in public places. Notices were also published at each registration office giving the name and limits of the registration area served by the office, the date fixed by the Electoral Commission as the qualifying date for inclusion in the list (1 January 1959), the date for making application and the date by which the preliminary list must be published, together with the times and dates on which the office would be open and the places at which application forms were available.

97. Representatives of each candidate were permitted to be present during registration, should they so desire. For this purpose, parties were requested to submit the names of their agents and indicate the area in which they would operate.

98. Article 4 of the Elections (House of Representatives) Regulations, 1958, provided that every person, subject to certain provisions, should be entitled to be registered as an elector and if so registered to vote at an election, who on the qualifying date was ordinarily resident in Nigeria and was a British subject or a British-protected person of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, and, if ordinarily resident in Northern Nigeria, was a male. No person under allegiance to a foreign Power or State, sentenced to death or imprisonment exceeding six months, and awaiting punishment, adjudged to be a lunatic or disqualified because of corrupt election practices should be entitled to be registered or to vote.

99. Article 19 of the Regulations provided that a person entitled to register should be registered in a constituency in which he was ordinarily resident at the qualifying date and not elsewhere. A person's ordinary residence should be determined by reference to all facts of the case, including the place where he usually lived or which had always or generally been his home or which was the place to which he intended to return. When a person usually slept in one place and had his meals or was employed in another, his place of ordinary residence would be the place where he slept.

100. The Chairman of the Electoral Commission stated that so far as the Commission was concerned its main role was to insist that the "voluntary" principle of registration was observed as embodied in the Electoral Regulations. The Commission insisted that every individual presented himself at an "office" set up in a public place and that the assistant registration officer did not register people in their houses or in any other private place. In practice, in his experience, the Village or Hamlet Head usually came in with voters from his village on a particular day and, to this extent, the registration was organized. This, however, was a purely local arrangement and was not done at the insistence of the Electoral Commission or any of its officers.

101. Actual registration in the Trust Territory by electoral districts was as follows:

Name of constituency	Number of persons registered	Estimated potential electors	Percentage
Trust Territory administered as part of Bornu Province: Dikwa Central Dikwa North Gwoza	. 51,964	61,000	85
Trust Territory administered as part of Adamawa Province Cubunawa-Madagali Adamawa North-East Chamba Adamawa South		78,000	94
Trust Territory administered as part of Benue Province included in Wukari		3,400	99
GRAND TOTAL for all Northern Cameroons	129,549	142,400	91

102. The Chairman of the Electoral Commission informed me that the procedure worked smoothly and with few serious errors. The main point of controversy about registration concerned publicity. In a country like Nigeria, the success of the "voluntary" principle depends greatly on the publicity given to the arrangements. Many people felt that the Commission should have done more than it did. The Commission felt that its publicity should be restrained and limited to the normal channels of press, radio, etc. and that there should be no official attempt to urge or persuade people to register. It believed that the responsibility for urging or persuading people to register lay with the political parties. In the result it probably did not make much difference in the Northern Region, the Chairman said, since local organization under District, Village and Hamlet Heads was good and the percentage of registration was very high.

103. Article 32 of the Elections (House of Representatives) Regulations, 1958, provides for the hearing of claims and objections by revising officers within thirty days of the publication of the preliminary list. Any person qualified to register whose name or address was omitted or inaccurately stated had the right to claim by notice in writing in the prescribed form to have his name and address inserted or corrected. Any person qualified to vote whose name appeared in the preliminary list had the right to object by notice in writing in the prescribed form to the inclusion of any other name in the list for the same registration area.

104. The report on the conduct of the procedure at the hearing of claims and objections in respect of the Northern Cameroons stated that the total number of claims lodged was twenty-six. Of these, twenty-three of the twenty-four in Dikwa North district and the two in Adamawa North-East district were claims for the correction of the list, while one in Dikwa North was a claim for inclusion in the list. All claims were allowed. There were no objections. It was reported that the widest publicity had been given to the opportunity for the lodging of claims and objections: by poster in the vernacular published in public places down to village and hamlet level, and by press and radio.

DATE OF PLEBISCITE

105. The date of the plebiscite was fixed by the Governor-General in accordance with article 3 (2) of the Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959, which provided that "The plebiscite shall be held on a day or days to be fixed by the Governor-General by notice published in the Official Gazette of the Federation of Nigeria and in the Official Gazette of the Northern Region of Nigeria, not being within the period of twenty-eight days after the publication of the notice, and voting for the purpose of the plebiscite shall take place during such hours as may be specified in the notice. By Northern Regional Notice No. 901 of 28 September 1959, published in the Northern Region Gazette No. 50, vol. 8, 1 October 1959, the Governor-General appointed 7 November 1959 as the day for the holding of the plebiscite and specified that voting for this purpose shall take place between the hours of 8.00 a.m. and 5.00 p.m. on that day.

106. The date of the plebiscite was the subject of some discussion with the United Kingdom authorities on the basis of two considerations, namely, (a) the end of the rainy season in the Territory; and (b) the latest date for reporting the results to the General Assembly for discussion during its fourteenth session in order that a decision might be taken by the Assembly well before Nigeria becomes independent on 2 October 1960. Communications were difficult if not impossible in the Territory during the rainy season. At a meeting held in New York on 28 May 1959, it was agreed that the plebiscite had to take place as soon as possible after the rainy season was over, i.e. some time early in November, taking into consideration that the probable closing date of the fourteenth session would be 4 December 1959. I suggested at that meeting that, in view of the limited and difficult communications in the Territory, voting could perhaps be staggered to take place over three to four days and be conducted area by area.

107. I was later informed that Sir John Dring, after touring the Northern Cameroons in May 1959, had concluded that polling could not take place later than 7 November if the results were to be debated by the General Assembly before 4 December 1959.

108. I was informed at a meeting with the United Kingdom Mission in New York on 25 June 1959 that the Governor-General of the Federation of Nigeria had decided to fix 7 November as polling day and his comments in this connexion were conveyed to me in a memorandum from the Mission dated 24 June 1959. The Governor-General informed me that the advice given to him by the Deputy Governor of Northern Nigeria was that "if we have a late rainy season it may be a very uncomfortable plebiscite" if voting is to finish early in November. The Governor-General thought that this comment was amply justified but, because of the undesirability of having to seek an alteration in the programme to which the General Assembly of the United Nations was now committed, he had decided that they must plan for voting to end by 7 November. He was advised that this was the very earliest date by which it would be practicable to complete the voting. If voting was finished by 7 November, all results would be available by 12 November. The need to have the voting finished by 7 November would make it quite impossible to follow my suggestion that the voting should take place over three or four days and should be conducted area by area. For climatic reasons, it would be most unwise to plan for voting to start even earlier than 7 November. Communications, which would be difficult enough in any event, would be more difficult then, and the range of supervision for the observers would be correspondingly reduced. There would be great problems in the preliminary work of publicity and instruction. The people are very unsophisticated and uneducated and could not be expected to comprehend a time-table, although they might understand one general plan for voting that was applicable to all. There are several linguistic groups involved and the difficulty of devising clear and precise instructions intelligible to unsophisticated voters would be increased by the need to translate them into several vernaculars. The Governor-General also thought that the observers would be able to decide on their best line of supervision when they knew the location of the polling booths, and members of the Headquarters staff could be used as supervisors in areas that would otherwise not be visited. He finally informed me that Sir John Dring had recommended that the number of observers be increased from eight to ten. In the light of the reasons given by the Governor-General, I did not press my views as expressed above and accepted the date proposed by the Governor-General.

PRELIMINARY ARRANGEMENTS FOR PLEBISCITE

109. Inasmuch as that part of the Trust Territory known as the Northern Cameroons was being administered as an integral part of the Northern Region of the Federation of Nigeria, the arrangements made by the Administering Authority were necessarily complicated. Ultimate responsibility for holding the plebiscite lay, of course, with the Government of the Administering Authority. More specifically, the Secretary of State for the Colonies was the member of the Government on whom this responsibility fell and through him to the Colonial Office, the department of the Civil Service for which he had responsibility. As soon as practicable, therefore, after my appointment as United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, I established contact with the appropriate Colonial Office officials through the intermediary of the United Kingdom Mission in New York. I also took the opportunity, while in transit through London on 17 July 1959, to have a discussion with a representative of the Colonial Office and with Sir John Dring who had been appointed Plebiscite Administrator and who had earlier visited the Trust Territory concerning the practical details and arrangements for the plebiscite. Finally, I travelled to the Trust Territory via London and held further discussions with Colonial Office officials on 12 October 1959 in connexion with plebiscite matters. The results of these discussions are mentioned under the relevant subject-headings.

Role of Governor-General of Nigeria

110. Over-all direct responsibility for the plebiscite lay with the Governor-General of the Federation, as the representative of the Administering Authority with final on-the-spot responsibility for the administration the The Governor-General was Territory. of empowered by article 5 (1) of the Order in Council to make regulations for the conduct of the plebiscite, all matters incidental and ancillary thereto. In particular, regulations were to be made to make provision for (a) the plebiscite procedure, including the manner in which the votes were to be cast; (b) ascertaining and publishing the result of the voting in each district; (c) the lodging of petitions relating to any dispute concerning the voting and for the time and manner in which such petitions would be heard and determined; (d) giving effect to any directions given by article 9 of the Order in Council; (e) the definition and trial of offences relating to the plebiscite and the imposition of penalties therefor. In accordance with this provision, The Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959 -L.N. 206 of 1959-and The Northern Cameroons Plebiscite (Voting Petitions) Regulations, 1959 -L.N. 207 of 1959-were promulgated by the Governor-General on 17 September 1959. These regulations were of federal-wide application. The first provided for the procedure to be followed at the plebiscite; termination of the plebiscite, counting of the votes, etc.; and plebiscite offences. The second provided for petitioning of the Court, constituted under article 8 of the Order in Council in connexion with complaints of irregularity in the voting procedure; the trial and determination of petitions; the powers of the Court; and offences. The full text of these regulations is appended to this report as annex III.

111. The Governor-General was also empowered under article 7 of the Order-in-Council to appoint the Plebiscite Administrator and to constitute such other offices as he might consider necessary for the purposes of the plebiscite and appoint persons to these offices, exercise disciplinary control over them and dismiss them.

112. Article 11 of the Order in Council required the Governor-General to afford the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and his staff facilities to observe the plebiscite on behalf of the United Nations and provided that representations concerning the conduct of the plebiscite might be made by the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and his staff in a manner to be agreed upon between the Governor-General and the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner.

113. Moreover, article 12 (1) of the Order in Council provided that all expenses properly incurred in respect of the conduct of the plebiscite or otherwise for the purposes of the Order or any regulation made thereunder, including expenses incurred on behalf of the Crown in any legal proceedings arising in connexion with the plebiscite, were to be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the Federation of Nigeria as statutory expenditure.

114. Contact with the Governor-General was also established through the United Kingdom Mission in New York and the discussion of certain matters initiated with him prior to my departure for the Trust Territory. On arrival in West Africa, I paid a special visit to Lagos for further discussions with the Acting Governor-General regarding these and other matters. The results of these discussions are mentioned under the relevant subject-headings.

Role of Governor and Ministries of Northern Nigeria

115. Early in the course of my preliminary discussions with the United Kingdom Mission in New York it became clear that I would have to discuss certain aspects of the practical arrangements for the plebiscite with the Governor and the Ministry for Northern Cameroons Affairs of the Northern Region. I was subsequently informed by the Acting Governor-General at Lagos that the Governor General had formally delegated to the Governor of the Northern Region the practical preparation for the plebiscite while retaining personal responsibility for policy. I therefore paid a special visit to Kaduna (capital of the Northern Region) on my way to the Trust Territory for further discussions with the Governor concerning the practical arrangements for the plebiscite and in order to be briefed regarding the arrangements already made.

116. A directive (P.M.23/312/132) issued from the Office of the Premier of the Northern Region on 3 August 1959, addressed to the Permanent Secretaries of the Ministries of the Northern Region, with copies to the Residents of Adamawa, Benue and Bornu Provinces, stated that most of the staff required for the plebiscite would have to be found from among Government and Native Authority officials of the Region. They would operate under the direction and control of Sir John Dring, the Plebiscite Administrator, and the three assistant administrators who would be provided by the Federal Government.

117. The directive pointed out that polling would take place on 7 November 1959, but that much remained to be done before that date. Accommodation would have to be provided, it said, for the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and his staff as well as for the Plebiscite Administrator and his three assistants. Transport with drivers for sixty-nine returning officers and assistant returning officers would also have to be found and dry-season tracks would have to be made motorable as quickly as possible at the end of the rains. Polling stations would have to be set up, often in very remote places, all materials for the poll transported there, and polling staff trained in their duties. In addition, there was the formidable task of enlightening the public about the plebiscite by the distribution of leaflets and posters, by cinema shows, and by word of mouth. The ministries chiefly concerned with all these operations, the circular said, were the Ministry for Northern Cameroons Affairs, the Ministry of Internal Affairs (Information Division), the Ministry of Education (Adult Education Division), the Ministry of Works, and, because of the help required from Native Authorities, the Ministry for Local Government.

118. The Office of the Premier, the directive continued, asked for the fullest co-operation of all ministries and Native Authorities in releasing for this task such of their headquarters and field staffs as might be required for its successful execution. The great majority would be drawn from field staffs, and the three Residents had been instructed to recruit as they thought best within their provinces. Most of this staff would be required from mid-October-returning officers rather earlier-until about 10 November and the fact must be faced that much normal routine work would have to take second place during that period in order to ensure that the plebiscite be successfully carried out. It was appreciated, the circular concluded, that some officers could not be spared for special duties, even for a short time, but the Office of the Premier hoped that, as the reputation of the Region was involved in the efficient execution of this very formidable task, all ministries and Native Authorities would respond generously and promptly to whatever calls Residents might make upon them.

119. In a second directive (P.M. 23/SIA/134) of 3 August 1959, addressed to the Residents of Adamawa, Bornu and Benue Provinces, with copies to all Permanent Secretaries, from the Office of the Premier of the Northern Region, it was stated that the Governor-

General had delegated to the Governor and ministries of this Region the responsibility for carrying out the practical preparations for the plebiscite and large numbers of Government and Native Authority staff would therefore be actively engaged. It was essential that these officers should observe the strictest impartiality in carrying out any duty directly or indirectly connected with the plebiscite, although there was no objection to their discussing their personal views when off duty. What must be avoided above all, however, was that a plebiscite official, for example a presiding officer or polling officer, should in the course of his duties advocate any particular choice to persons about to vote or should in any other way seek to sway or influence voters in their choice. If any impropriety of this nature occurred, it would be noticed by the observer staff of the United Nations and adversely commented on. Furthermore, should there be a series of such incidents, there would be a grave risk of the observer staff submitting such an unfavourable report that the General Assembly of the United Nations might repudiate the result of the plebiscite on the ground that undue influence had been brought to bear upon the voters.

120. The Regional Government, the circular continued, recognized that its own good name was involved in the successful discharge of the responsibility that it had accepted and the Office of the Premier was therefore insistent that all plebiscite staff must conduct themselves while on duty with scrupulous and manifest impartiality.

121. Residents were instructed to arrange for the sense of this directive to be clearly imparted to all grades of plebiscite staff when they were first appointed and to be emphasized again when they received instruction in their duties.

122. At a later stage in the plebiscite operation, the Office of the Premier had occasion to issue a further circular (P.M.23/SIA/167) of 20 October 1959, addressed to the three Residents with a copy to the Permanent Secretary, Ministry for Northern Cameroons Affairs, on the subject of the rules of conduct for plebiscite staff. Referring to the circular P.M.23/ SIA/134 of 3 August 1959, the new circular stated that, owing to the great difficulty of finding men of the required standard, it had been necessary to recruit some of the indigenous staff from within Trust Territory. It was the Premier's wish, the circular continued, that the need for the exercise of complete impartiality by all plebiscite staff, and in particular by those members of it who came from within Trust Territory, should be reiterated by returning officers and by assistant returning officers in the field throughout the period of the plebiscite so that it would be borne constantly in mind.

Role of Ministers of the Northern Region of Nigeria

123. During the course of my discussions in London with Sir John Dring, Plebiscite Administrator, and Mr. Eastwood of the Colonial Office on 17 July 1959, the question of the extent to which Ministers of the Northern Region of Nigeria might canvass the electorate was raised by Sir John Dring. It was suggested that the precedent of Togoland might be suitably followed. There, it was said, the Governor of the Gold Coast had agreed that Ministers should refrain from attending meetings or rallies in connexion with the plebiscite, but that they could visit the Trust Territory on their normal ministerial duties. Ministers who represented constituencies in Trust Territories were, however, at liberty to express their personal views on the subject of the plebiscite, irrespective of whether their ministries were concerned in the preparations for it or not, although they should try to make it clear that they spoke not as ministers and members of the Government but in their personal capacity as private individuals and members of the House of Assembly. I there stated that arrangements on these lines would be satisfactory for the Northern Cameroons and requested that further information be sent to me in this connexion.

124. At a meeting in New York on 28 July 1959, I inquired of the United Kingdom representative what was the position in this regard and was informed on 28 August that there was nothing to add to what had been explained to me in London on 17 July. Subsequently, in reply to another request for information in this connexion made to the Acting Governor-General in Lagos on 13 October 1959, I was informed by Sir Ralph Grey that the Governor-General had communicated his views to the Governor of the Northern Region in a despatch of 18 June 1959, as follows:

"It is essential that all of us who are charged with any duties in connexion with the plebiscite should be at pains not only to ensure the complete impartiality of the plebiscite but also make the impartiality obvious and unassailable. You may therefore wish to suggest to your Government that Ministers whose departments are called on to help with the preparations for the plebiscite should deny themselves the public expression of partisan views on the matters to be decided as a result of the plebiscite. A Minister, as a representative of the public, would normally have the right to canvass public opinion on matters of public concern, but I think that it would be unwise for a Minister who had authority over a department directly involved in preparations for the plebiscite to exercise this normal right lest it be alleged, even unjustly, that he has improperly influenced the result of the plebiscite through a department for which he is personally responsible."

I expressed satisfaction with this statement of policy made in this connexion by the Governor-General.

Policy of Northern Region Government

125. A public declaration of the policy of the Government of the Northern Region was issued on 16 September 1959 from the Office of the Premier of the Northern Region (P.M.23/S.1/1959). The statement declared that the Regional Government recognized that it should not participate actively in the campaign preceding the Northern Cameroons plebiscite and had therefore laid down the following rules of conduct for the guidance of Ministers, Parliamentary Secretaries, Native Authorities and the staffs of the Regional Government and Native Authorities.

126. Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries, other than those who represent constituencies in Trust Territory, were directed not to attend meetings and rallies held in connexion with the plebiscite. They might, however, visit Trust Territory on ministerial duties and hold private meetings with representatives of their parties.

127. Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries who represented constituencies in Trust Territory would be at liberty to express their personal views on the plebiscite publicly, but in doing so would make it clear that they were speaking as the elected representatives of the people and not as members of the Government.

128. Native Authorities, like the Regional Government, would remain passive during the campaign and Chiefs and Councillors were requested to accept the same restraints as Ministers and Parliamentary Secretaries.

129. Similarly, the staffs of both the Regional Government and Native Authorities, including District and Village Heads and Native Authority police, were requested to maintain an attitude of strict neutrality while carrying out their official duties.

130. The Regional Government had laid down these rules of conduct on its own initiative, the statement concluded, in order to ensure that the plebiscite was held in an atmosphere of freedom and impartiality.

Role of Nigerians and Southern Cameroonians

131. In reply to my request for information as to whether Nigerians and Southern Cameroonians would be permitted to participate in the plebiscite campaign, I was informed by the United Kingdom Mission in New York on 28 August 1959, that action could not be taken to exclude Nigerians and Southern Cameroonians from the Trust Territory unless they broke the law or endangered law and order. This applied to persons from the French Cameroons as well. I was subsequently informed at Lagos that the Governor-General had communicated his views to the Colonial Office as follows:

"I agree that Nigerians and Southern Cameroonians cannot be prevented from entering the Northern Cameroons and expressing their own views, whether or not they belong to any political party, provided they do not break the law or endanger law and order. Equally, having regard to the permitted freedom of movement across the international border, it would not be proper to attempt to stop French Cameroonians coming across provided they were not prohibited immigrants and provided they did not break the law or endanger law and order."

This statement satisfied me that all persons concerned would be given a fair opportunity to participate in the plebiscite political campaign.

PLEBISCITE STAFF: ORGANIZATION, DISPOSITION AND DUTIES

132. For the purposes of the plebiscite, article 4(1) of the Order in Council provided that "the Northern Cameroons shall be divided into Districts corresponding to the areas in the Northern Cameroons proclaimed to be electoral districts under section 4 of the Nigeria (Electoral Provisions) Order in Council, 1958 (a)". There were eight such Districts, corresponding to the eight electoral districts in which voters were registered (see paras. 88-104 above). For the purposes of the plebiscite they were known as "Plebiscite Circles" and were as follows (from North to South):

- A. Trust Territory administered as part of Bornu Province:
- (1) Dikwa North, comprising the administrative districts of Ngala, Karabalge and Gumsu with head-quarters at Dikwa;

- (2) Dikwa Central, comprising the administrative districts of Bama, Gulumba and Wologe with head-quarters at Bama;
- (3) Gwoza, comprising the administrative district of Gwoza with headquarters at Gwoza.
- B. Trust Territory administered as part of Adamawa Province:
- (4) Cubunawa-Madagali, comprising the administrative districts of Madagali and Cubunawa with headquarters at Michika;
- (5) Adamawa North-East, comprising the administrative districts of Uba, Mubi, Maiha, Zummo and Belel with headquarters at Mubi;
- (6) Chamba, comprising the administrative districts of Verre, Nassarawo, Yelwa and Sugu with head-quarters at Jada;
- (7) Adamawa South, comprising the administrative districts of Toungo, Gashaka and Mambila. Because of the difficulties of terrain, this circle was subdivided into two areas: (i) Lowland: Toungo-Gashaka with headquarters at Serti and (ii) Highland: Mambila with headquarters at Gembu.
- C. Trust Territory administered as part of Benue Province:
- (8) Wukari East, comprising the administrative districts of Ndoro, Tigon and Kentu with headquarters at Baissa. Article 4 (2) of the Order in Council stipulated that for the purposes of the plebiscite, "the electoral district described in the Establishment of Electoral Districts Proclamation, 1958, of the Federation of Nigeria as 'Constituency No. 40, Wukari' shall be deemed to consist only of the Tigon, Ndoro and Kentu Districts of the Administrative Division of Wukari and not of the whole of that Administrative Division".
- 133. The organization and disposition of the plebiscite staff of the Administering Authority, totalling 1,522 officers, was based on the distribution of the plebiscite circles as follows:

Plebiscite Administrator (Yola headquarters): Sir John Dring, K.B.E., C.I.E.;

Three assistant plebiscite administrators (Bama, Mubi, Jada): district officers from Federation with a previous knowledge of the Northern Region;

Nine returning officers in charge of plebiscite Circles (Bornu 3; Adamawa 5; Benue 1): expatriate officers mainly from outside Trust Territory;

Sixty-four assistant returning officers with about 5 polling stations each (Bornu 25; Adamawa 35; Benue 4): expatriate or senior service African officers;

One hundred and ten counting officers (approximately Bornu 44; Adamawa 64; Benue 2): missionaries, businessmen, wives of officials, etc.;

Three hundred and thirty-four presiding officers (approximately) in charge of polling stations (Bornu 130; Adamawa 185; Benue 19): local staff;

Three hundred and thirty-four polling officers (approximately) (as above): local staff;

Six hundred and sixty-eight polling marshals (approximately) (2 to each polling station): village heads, pensioners, etc.

- 134. A time-table showing the dates scheduled for the various categories of staff to take up their plebiscite stations and for the various plebiscite operations is given below:
- 15-30 October: briefing of assistant returning officers:
- 20 October: start of week's course for polling officers;
 - 30 October: assistant returning officers in position;
 - 2 November: polling officers in position;
- 2-6 November: physical arrangements at polling stations and training of polling marshals in their duties;
 - 7 November: polling day;
- 7-8 November: counting of votes at plebiscite circle headquarters and publishing of results;
- 8 November onwards: collection of equipment and materials, etc. from polling stations;
 - 17 November: period for lodging of petitions ends.

Plebiscite Administrator

- 135. The actual conduct of the plebiscite was entrusted to a Plebiscite Administrator, Sir John Dring, K.B.E., C.I.E., who was appointed in accordance with the provisions of the Order in Council, article 7 (1) and (2) of which provided that "There shall be a Plebiscite Administrator, who shall, subject to any directions given by the Governor-General under paragraph (1) of Article 9 of this Order, be responsible for the conduct of the plebiscite. The Plebiscite Administrator shall be appointed by the Governor-General in pursuance of instructions given by Her Majesty through a Secretary of State: provided that no person shall be appointed who is a native of Nigeria or who is in the service of the Crown in respect of the government of the Federation of Nigeria or of a Region of Nigeria".
- 136. Article 9 (1) of the Order in Council provided that "The Governor-General may give the Plebiscite Administrator such directions with respect to the exercise of his functions under this Order or any regulations made thereunder as he may consider desirable; and the Plebiscite Administrator shall comply with those directions or shall cause them to be complied with".
- 137. Sir John Dring had a distinguished career in the Indian Political Service. He was also the Plebiscite Administrator in the plebiscite held in the Trust Territory of Togoland under British administration in 1956. Sir John was therefore eminently qualified to undertake responsibility for the conduct of the plebiscite in the Northern Cameroons.
- 138. After a visit to Nigeria and the Trust Territory in May-June 1959 for preliminary consideration of the practical problems involved in the conduct of the plebiscite, the Plebiscite Administrator selected Yola in Nigerian territory as the site of his headquarters. The selection of Yola was for reasons of central position, equidistant from the extreme north and south of the area, the possession of a good aerodrome with scheduled services, telephonic and telegraphic communications with Jos, which is a rail-head, and Kaduna, the regional capital, and good accommodation

- and victualling facilities. No centre in the Trust Territory possessed these advantages.
- 139. The Plebiscite Administrator and his staff were required under article 11 of the Order in Council to afford the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and his staff facilities for observing the plebiscite on behalf of the United Nations.
- 140. Regulation 3 of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959, required the Plebiscite Administrator to cause to be published, on or before the twenty-eighth day before the day of the plebiscite, in every registration area, a notice specifying (a) the day and hours fixed for the poll; (b) the limits of the registration area and an indication of the persons entitled to vote therein; (c) the situation of every polling station in each registration area; (d) the colour allocated by the Plebiscite Administrator to each alternative on which a vote could be cast; (e) the alternatives on which a vote could be cast at the plebiscite.

Staff qualifications

- 141. In my preliminary discussions in New York, in May 1959, with the United Kingdom Mission, I had expressed the view that it would be highly desirable that the staff of the Plebiscite Administrator be recruited from outside of the Trust Territory and of the Federation of Nigeria in order to obviate any accusation that the results of the plebiscite had been influenced by officers of a country directly interested in the outcome, in this case, Nigeria. If this proved impossible or impracticable, I suggested that every effort should be made to have the senior posts on his staff confined to officers from those regions of the Federation not adjoining the Trust Territory. Ifurther suggested that preference should be given to the recruitment of staff from the technical and not from the political departments of the Administration. These views were brought to the notice of the Governor-General and the Plebiscite Administrator.
- 142. In reply to my request for further information in this connexion, the Acting Governor-General informed me in Lagos, on 6 October 1959, that the Plebiscite Administrator had given consideration to my suggestions during his preliminary visit to Nigeria and the Trust Territory. He had concluded that the practical solutions best calculated to ensure the efficient and impartial working of the plebiscite were:
- (1) The senior posts on his staff should be held by expatriates;
- (2) Administrative officers in charge of Trust Territory divisions should be excluded;
- (3) Officers must have some knowledge of the vernacular, of the people and of the administrative organization and system in the Territory;
- (4) Of necessity, because of the remoteness of the areas in which the plebiscite is to be held and the difficulty of access, the majority of the Administrator's staff would have to be drawn from the provinces of which the Trust Territory at present forms part but would mostly be drawn from the technical departments.
- 143. The only possible alternative would have been the whole-sale diversion to this purpose of federal staff. The Federal Public Service is already seriously below strength, with only two out of every three administrative and professional posts filled, and diversion of so large a number of officers to the plebiscite would not only have seriously disrupted the working of ministries in Lagos but would have had serious effects on the country-wide services being provided by the Federal Government. The suggestion that officers from the Western and Eastern Regions might have been used was impracticable because:

- (a) The number of expatriate officers now left in these Regions, due to constitutional changes, is comparatively small;
- (b) Few, if any, of these officers would have a working knowledge of Hausa;
- (c) In the absence of any constitutional authority in the Governor-General to require officers of the Regional Services to be made available for plebiscite duty, they could have served only if their respective Governments had been willing to release them. As those Governments are already hard put to it to maintain public services at an acceptable level, they would not have wished to detach officers, in some cases for long periods, for help with a task that is of no direct concern to the Governments of the Eastern and Western Regions.

Assistant plebiscite administrators

144. Serving directly under the Plebiscite Administrator were three assistant plebiscite administrators. These were appointed in accordance with article 7 (3) of the Order which provided that "The Governor-General may in Her Majesty's name and on Her Majesty's behalf, constitute such other offices as he may consider necessary for the purposes of this Order and any regulations made thereunder, and appoint persons to those offices and exercise disciplinary control over and dismiss persons appointed to those offices". Article 9 (2) of the Order further provided that, subject to article 9 (1), "the Plebiscite Administrator may give the officers appointed under paragraph (3) of article 7 of this Order such directions with respect to the exercise of their functions under this Order or any regulations made thereunder as he shall consider desirable; and those officers shall comply with those directions or shall cause them to be complied with".

145. Three offices of assistant plebiscite administrator were so constituted and Messrs. S. S. Johnston, J. T. Coombes and J. F. R. Bongard were appointed thereto. According to information furnished to me at Lagos by the Acting Governor-General at my request. these three officers were expatriate administrative officers found from the Federal Public Service. They had had previous experience of the Northern Region and could speak Hausa. One was still at the time of his appointment a member of the Northern Region Public Service, but immediately prior to his assignment as assistant plebiscite administrator he had been seconded to the Federal Public Service as Private Secretary to the Governor-General. He remained seconded to the Federal Public Service and would be retiring shortly thereafter from the Public Service.

146. The three assistant plebiscite administrators were respectively responsible for the Plebiscite Circles of Dikwa North, Dikwa Central and Gwoza with headquarters at Bama; Cubanawa-Madagali and Adamawa North-East with headquarters at Mubi; and Chamba, Adamawa South and Wukari East with headquarters at Jada. In the instructions issued to these officers, they were told that they would be responsible to the Plebiscite Administrator for the smooth and successful operation of the plebiscite in their areas in accordance with the provisions of the Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959, and the regulations made thereunder, and, in particular, regulations 4, 7, 10 and 11 of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959. They were also required to brief the returning officers when these latter took up their stations.

147. Regulation 4 (1) provided that "The Plebiscite Administrator shall direct for which area or areas assistant plebiscite administrators, returning officers, assistant returning officers, presiding officers and polling officers shall exercise their functions and he may delegate to assistant plebiscite administrators such power in respect of returning officers, assistant returning officers, presiding officers and polling officers". Regulation 4 (2) stated that, "Subject to any direction of the Plebiscite Administrator, an assistant plebiscite administrator shall have all the powers and may perform any of the duties of the Plebiscite Administrator" and regulation 4 (4) that "An assistant plebiscite administrator shall exercise supervision over the performance of the functions of the returning officers and polling officers in the area in respect of which they are appointed, and subject to any direction of the Plebiscite Administrator and to the provisions of these regulations may give to such officers directions as to the performance of their functions".

148. Specific duties and responsibilities of the assistant plebiscite administrators were defined in regulation 7 which stated that "An assistant plebiscite administrator shall (a) ensure that in each polling station there is a compartment in which voters can cast their votes screened from observation; (b) furnish each presiding officer with such number of ballot boxes and such ballot papers under sealed covers as may be necessary; (c) provide each polling station with instruments for making an official mark on the ballot papers and with pads impregnated with indelible ink of a distinctive colour; (d) provide each polling station with copies of the appropriate part of the register of voters; (e) ensure that a presiding officer shall be in charge of each polling station; (f) cause to be published in each polling station the colour which has been allocated to each alternative on which a vote can be cast at such polling station; and (g) do such other acts and things as may be necessary for conducting the plebiscite in the manner provided in these regulations". Regulation 10 laid down the procedure for the appointment of polling agents of the political parties by the Plebiscite Administrator and regulation 11 gave directions for the preparation of the ballot boxes by the Plebiscite Administrator, in both of which functions the assistant plebiscite administrators were required to act on behalf of the Plebiscite Administrator.

Returning and assistant officers

149. Below the assistant plebiscite administrators were nine returning officers who were in charge of the eight Plebiscite Circles, one returning officer being assigned to each with the exception of Adamawa South which had two. Because of difficulties of terrain this circle had been sub-divided into two areas: a Lowland area comprising the administrative districts of Toungo and Gashaka with headquarters at Serti and a Highland area comprising the administrative district of Mambila with headquarters at Gembu on the Mambila Plateau. One returning officer was assigned to each of these areas.

150. I was informed by the Acting Governor-General in Lagos that the returning officers were all expatriates and were mostly senior departmental officers drawn from the three provinces of which the Northern Cameroons forms a part and nominated for the purpose by the Residents of their respective provinces.

151. The returning officers were responsible to the assistant plebiscite administrators for the conduct of the plebiscite in their assigned circles and were also responsible for the operations of the counting officers after the poll. The specific duties of the returning officers were laid down in regulations 33 to 42 of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959. These regulations provided for the delivery of the sealed ballot boxes, ballot papers, etc., by the presiding officer of a polling station to the returning officer after the poll (regulation 33); the procedure concerning the appointment of counting agents by political parties (regulation 34); the procedure for the counting of votes, including method of counting and settlement of rejected papers, the decision of the returning officer being final (regulations 35-38); method of dealing with the papers after the counting (regulation 39); procedure for a recount (regulation 40); declaration of the result of the voting in respect of each registration area for which he was responsible (regulation 41); and the safe custody of all papers relating to the plebiscite in the registration areas for which he was responsible (regulation 42).

152. Aiding the nine returning officers were sixtyfour assistant returning officers, each being responsible to the returning officer for about five polling stations. They also were Government officers of senior status. I was informed by the Acting Governor-General that some 80 per cent of these officers were expatriates, all but fifteen being drawn from the same sources as the returning officers. It was proposed to have some indigenous Northern Nigerian officers serving as assistant returning officers; these were officers of the Northern Regional Public Service holding posts of administrative or political status (previously known as "Senior Service" posts). Subsequently, other arrangements were made and all assistant returning officers were expatriates. The duties of these officers were defined as the supervision of arrangements in an average of five polling stations and it was emphasized to them that the Plebiscite Administrator set much store on their appointments. They were warned that their duties would involve much travelling on foot and by horse and that the only accommodation available would be unfurnished bush rest houses or zaures. They were required to be on duty for seven days before and for one or two days after polling day.

Presiding and polling officers and polling marshals

153. There were 334 polling stations in the Northern Cameroons for the plebiscite closely following the organization for the federal elections to be held shortly after the plebiscite—in fact, the location of the polling stations was finalized by the senior federal electoral officers, though the actual siting of the stations was done by the returning officers and each polling station was staffed by a presiding officer, a polling officer and two polling marshals, all of whom were recruited locally. Of these 668 presiding and polling officers, some 63 per cent were born in the Trust Territory, while some 59 per cent of the total were employed by the Native Authority of their areas. Four of these polling officers were women. It was necessary that these officers be familiar with the vernacular used by the people using their polling stations as well as Hausa, Fulani or Kanuri and/or English.

154. The polling officers were given a booklet of detailed administrative instructions printed in English, Hausa, Fulani or Kanuri, as appropriate. These instructions were based on the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, explaining in very simple language the duties and responsibilities of polling officers in accordance with regulations 6 and 11 to 33. The full text of these regulations as well as certain of the regulations dealing with plebiscite offences, a list of plebiscite offences and a plan of the proposed lay-out of polling stations, to scale, are given as appendices to the booklet. Polling officers were warned, however, that they should not interpret these regulations themselves but should follow the instructions absolutely. The purpose of the instructions was to explain what had to be done before, during and after polling and how to set about doing these things. The text of the instructions is appended to this report as annex IV.

155. These instructions were also used as the basis of a week's course of training given to polling officers at circle headquarters by returning and assistant returning officers during the month of October. The courses were so timed that the polling officers were able to get to their polling stations several days before polling day in order to organize, under the supervision of assistant returning officers, the erection of polling booths, preparation of polling stations, training of polling marshals, etc. The polling officers were required to train the two polling marshals in their very simple duties. The course of instruction rehearsed very thoroughly the normal voting procedure as well as a number of hypothetical examples of the procedure required to meet special cases and of incorrect procedure. I was able to visit a number of these courses of instruction in progress in different parts of the Territory and was greatly impressed by the thoroughness of the training and the keen interest shown by the trainees. The various United Nations observers also commented on the thoroughness of the training given at the courses in their respective circles and it may safely be said that the general smoothness and efficiency with which polling was conducted on 7 November 1959 was due to excellent training given to the polling officers at those courses.

Transportation and communications

156. Thirty new Land Rovers and one station wagon were made available for the use of the Plebiscite Administrator and his staff. These were allocated to the assistant plebiscite administrators as follows: ten at Bama, seven at Mubi, twelve at Jada and one at Yola headquarters, thus ensuring that each plebiscite circle would have about three of the vehicles for the use of returning officers, assistant returning officers, transport of polling staff, stores, literature, etc. A light plane of the Northern Regional Government was used by the Plebiscite Administrator and the Plebiscite Commissioner on a charter basis.

157. To service the relatively large number of official vehicles used for the plebiscite (Army: 24 Land Rovers; Information Service: 14 vans and some Land Rovers; Plebiscite Administrator: 30 Land Rovers; Plebiscite Commissioner: 23 jeeps), stores of petrol, oil and lubricants were built up at plebiscite circle headquarters under the control of the returning officers.

158. Because of the lack of telephone, radio or telegraph communications in the Northern Cameroons, it was arranged by the Plebiscite Administrator to have Army signal units established at each of the plebiscite circle headquarters at Dikwa, Bama, Gwoza, Michika, Mubi, Jada, Serti, Baissa and Gembu and also at Yola and Maiduguri, to enable the results of the poll to be transmitted to the Plebiscite Administrator as quickly as possible after the close of polling on 7 November. A total of some 150 men, twenty-four Land Rovers and twenty wireless telegraphy sets were involved. This service was established a few days before polling day. It worked very efficiently and was greatly appreciated, my only complaint being that it should have been provided throughout the period during which United Nations observers were in the field to enable me to maintain quick communication with them. As it was, communication prior to the establishment of the Army units could only be maintained by arranging special delivery by jeep or Land Rovers and was relatively slow. In fact, the United Nations observer at Gembu was completely cut off from headquarters until the Army signal unit commenced operating.

PUBLIC ENLIGHTENMENT PROGRAMME

Cinema

159. A programme of public enlightenment was undertaken for the purposes of the plebiscite. The first part of this programme involved the production of a useful film depicting the various aspects and phases of the plebiscite, including the details of the voting procedure, by the Information Division of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of the Northern Region. This film, with commentaries in English, Hausa, Fulani and Kanuri, together with another on various aspects of development of the Northern Region, was shown throughout the Northern Cameroons by means of a fleet of fourteen touring cinema vans. Each van carried at least three of the four language versions of the film as well as copies of the script in English and Hausa to enable commentaries to be given in the vernacular if possible. Each van carried a commentator who could speak Hausa and English and three of whom spoke Kanuri. Written notes were provided for the guidance of the cinema van crews. The vans were sent into the Northern Cameroons during the last fortnight before polling day and their programmes were prepared by the Residents as advised by the Assistant Plebiscite Administrator. The usefulness of this service, however, was greatly limited by the poor condition of many of the village roads. Only the main centres, for the most part, were visited. Further objections were made by certain political parties to the showing of the film on the Northern Region on the ground that it constituted propaganda in favour of the first alternative and could exert undue influence on the voters. I made oral representations to the Plebiscite Administrator concerning this matter and this resulted in the withdrawal of that film a few days before polling day from those areas to which the order could be communicated in time.

Posters and leaflets

160. Publicity was also given to the plebiscite by means of posters and leaflets distributed throughout the Territory. Two leaflets were printed, one stating that a plebiscite was to be held on 7 November 1959 under the supervision of the United Nations, giving the choice of the two alternatives, urging all qualified to do so to vote and describing the voting procedure. The second leaflet contained a series of questions and answers designed to give information on the status of the Northern Cameroons, the plebiscite to determine its future and the voting procedure. The texts of these two leaflets are reproduced in annex V to this report.

161. A total of 50,000 copies of each leaflet was printed in Kanuri (11,000), Shuwa (6,000), Fulani (11,000), Hausa (19,000) and English (3,000) for distribution to the centres of Bama, Mubi and Jada.

162. Two posters were distributed. One exhorted registered persons to vote in the plebiscite and showed the voting procedure, including placing the ballot paper in the white or the orange coloured box, and a series of things not to be done. The other, a smaller poster, depicted a voter about to make his choice of either the white or orange coloured ballot box, stated the choices and indicated the polling stations at which to vote. Some 28,000 copies of each poster were printed, 6,000 in Kanuri, 4,000 in Shuwa, 10,000 in Hausa, 6,000 in Fulani and 1,500 in English for distribution to Bama, Mubi and Jada. These posters are reproduced in annex V to the report.

163. The latter poster was intended to comply with regulation 3 of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959, which required the Plebiscite Administrator, on or before the twenty-eighth day before the day of the plebiscite, to cause to be published in every registration area in such manner as he might think fit a notice specifying (a) the day and hour fixed for the poll; and (b) the limits of the registration area and an indication of the persons entitled to vote therein.

164. The posters and leaflets were delivered by the Information Division to the assistant plebiscite administrators who then arranged a joint publicity campaign with the Ministry of Education staff, adult education organizers and instructors through adult classes and in co-operation with Native Authority district and village heads. In practice, the leaflets and posters were delivered to the returning officers who took responsibility for their distribution. One procedure adopted was for the returning officer to visit the larger population centres in his "Circle" and there to meet with the village heads and as many people as possible from the neighbouring villages-in general, limitations of time and the impassable condition of most of the dry-season village roads made it impossible for the returning or assistant returning officers to visit all the villages within their areas. The returning officer then explained the meaning of the plebiscite, the issues involved and the voting procedure, using the leaflets and the posters as the basis of his explanation. Copies of the leaflets and posters were then distributed to the representatives from each village and they were asked to display them in their respective villages. This method enabled the returning officers to achieve wide coverage, though the extent to which all the people in the remoter villages became well acquainted with the wider issues involved in the plebiscite remained doubtful.

Press and radio

165. I was informed that the Government and Native Authorities had decided to maintain an impartial attitude regarding the plebiscite and would leave propaganda to the political parties and individuals. The Government Information Services, therefore, confined themselves mainly to the issue of releases to the Press and radio of a general and informative nature. In addition, releases by the Northern Regional Daily Press Service covered the visits of members of the Government to the Northern Cameroons in connexion with the plebiscite. These releases were reproduced in the Nigerian Press and repeated over the National and Regional Services of the Nigerian Broadcasting Company. It should be noted, however, that no newspaper is published in the Northern Cameroons nor is there a radio station in the Territory.

VOTING MATERIAL

166. Regulation 7 (b) and (c) of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959, provided that an assistant plebiscite administrator should furnish each presiding officer with such number of ballot boxes and such ballot papers under sealed covers as might be necessary; and provide each polling station with instruments for making an official mark on the ballot papers and with pads impregnated with indelible ink of a distinctive colour.

167. Early in the course of my discussions with the United Kingdom Mission in New York, I raised the question of the voting material to be used in the plebiscite and requested that I be furnished full information concerning this matter. In reply, I was informed on 24 June 1959 that the Governor-General had commented on this question of voting material. He had pointed out that, while it was desirable to avoid confusion in the minds of the people between the plebiscite and the general elections to the Federal Legislature, financial and practical considerations made it quite impossible to avoid using some of the material that had already been ordered for the federal elections in the more remote and inaccessible parts of the country. The mounting of any operation of this kind in such areas required planning many months in advance, but every effort would be made to distinguish the plebiscite from the elections.

Ballot boxes

168. It was stipulated in regulation 8 of the Plebiscite Regulations, 1959, that the ballot boxes should be so constructed that a ballot paper might be put therein by a voter but not be withdrawn by him or by any succeeding voter. Also regulation 11 (1) provided, inter alia, that each ballot box should have the colour assigned to it by the Plebiscite Administrator.

169. The Governor-General, in his above-mentioned comments, stated that it was not then possible, even if it were desirable and financially justifiable, to provide different ballot boxes that would be secure beyond challenge. He therefore intended to ask the Federal Electoral Commission to make its ballot boxes available to the Plebiscite Administrator. At the same time, he supported Sir John Dring's suggestion that plain colours should be used to distinguish between the two boxes to be used in each station, one for each alternative. This suggestion had been made by Sir John Dring on several occasions in the Trust Territory and it had met with general approval.

170. This question was further discussed with Sir John Dring at our meeting in London on 17 July 1959. It was then agreed that coloured ballot boxes should be used and that the colours could be settled locally amongst the leaders of the parties. Subsequently, I noted that the colours white and orange had been selected for the ballot boxes and, on 23 October 1959, I wrote to Sir John Dring requesting information on the procedures followed to choose the colour adopted for each of the alternatives of the plebiscite.

171. In reply to this letter, Sir John Dring said that, during his visit to the Northern Cameroons in June, he had consulted representatives of various parties at Mubi, Michika, Bama and other places and had subsequently had a meeting at Yola on 5 June with representatives of NPC, NEPU and UMBC/AGA (Action Group Alliance). At this meeting, the representatives had agreed on the use of colours instead of symbols for the ballot boxes and had decided on white and yellow for the first and second alternative respectively. This agreement was confirmed in writing on 10 June 1959 and reported in the Daily Times of 23 June. In the preliminary discussions, green, blue and red had been ruled out as being the colours adopted by the NPC, AGA and the National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons (NCNC) respectively. This agreement seemed completely satisfactory to me.

Ballot papers

172. It was stipulated in regulation 9 of the Plebiscite Regulations that every ballot paper should be in a form prescribed by the Plebiscite Administrator and should (a) have a serial number printed or stamped on the back; and (b) be attached to a counterfoil bearing that same serial number.

173. The Governor-General, in his comments mentioned above, had stated that Sir John Dring had proposed the use of metal or plastic discs instead of ballot papers, but this suggestion was later withdrawn at our meeting in London. I was further informed by the United Kingdom Mission on 28 August 1959 that printing of the ballot papers would take place in Nigeria, but at the latest date administratively possible before the polling. It was then suggested that I might wish to have an observer present at the printing, packaging and dispatch to the Territory of the ballot papers. It was further proposed that the design of the ballot paper should be based on that used in the Togoland plebiscite and I was asked to say whether I had any objection to this.

174. In reply, I stated that I had no objection to the use of the Togoland design and requested early information on the printing date in order to ensure that a United Nations observer would be present during the whole operation. Subsequently, on being informed by the United Kingdom Mission that the printing of the ballot papers would take place in Lagos on 7 October 1959, I appointed one of the observers, Mr. Marshall E. Williams, to supervise on my behalf the printing and packaging of the ballot papers and the arrangements for their transportation under conditions that would ensure their security at all times. This observer was given specific instructions to be present at all times during the printing and packaging of the ballot papers and to satisfy himself that the printed ballot papers could not easily be reproduced elsewhere in Nigeria and that they were of a distinctive character; that no papers had been printed prior to his arrival at Lagos; that adequate security measures were taken at the end of a day's printing; that all spoilt and misprinted papers were destroyed in his presence; that all ballot papers were packaged in his presence, each package to be sealed with sealing wax and the wax impressed with an appropriate stamp, stamped with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner's stamp and countersigned by the observer; to supervise the dispatch of the sealed packages under adequate security measures to their respective destinations and to supervise the destruction of the metal printing plates, surplus ballot papers and other printing materials used in the printing of the ballot papers.

175. On my arrival at Lagos on 13 October 1959, Mr. Williams reported to me that his task had been satisfactorily completed. He had satisfied himself that ballot papers had not been printed prior to his arrival: in fact, the federal printer opened in Mr. Williams' presence the instructions, marked "secret", issued to him for the printing of the ballot papers. To ensure the special characteristics of the printed papers, a special text was first printed as a background tint and the actual text of the regular ballot and tendered ballot papers overprinted. The security provisions had been adequate. The printing operation had been conducted after regular working hours by a small and specially selected staff and all printing materials had been safely locked away at the end of each day's work and the keys handed to the observer. The observer supervised the packaging of the appropriate quantities of the ballot papers and the leaden slugs to be used as stamps by the presiding officers at the polling station into nine boxes, one for each of the nine Plebiscite Circles, and the sealing of these packages. Finally, on 12 October 1959, the nine packages were delivered at Lagos Airport to an expatriate assistant superintendent of the Nigerian police for transport to Yola and Maiduguri. Receipts had been obtained acknowledging the safe delivery of the packages to the designated officials at their destination. I was completely satisfied that adequate security measures had been taken in regard to the printing and distribution of the ballot papers.

176. A total of 130,000 ballot papers, in books of 50, 25 and 10 papers, were printed on white paper with a light yellow background and a total of 10,000 tendered ballot papers were printed on blue paper. Specimens of these papers and counterfoils are reproduced in annex VI to this report.

POLLING STATIONS

177. According to regulation 5, the Plebiscite Administrator was required to designate a sufficient number of polling stations in each District (Plebiscite Circle) and allot the voters in the District among such polling stations. It was further required that there should be at least one polling station in respect of each registration area and the voters were to be allotted accordingly, provided that, as far as possible, not more than 500 voters were allotted to any one polling station. The allocation of polling stations followed that decided for the federal elections and the actual siting of the stations was undertaken by the assistant returning officers or, in some cases, initially by the presiding officers and later checked by the assistant returning officers.

178. There was a total of 131 registration areas and 334 polling stations in these registration areas. Regulation 6 (1) stipulated that in respect of each polling station there should be not less than two polling officers, one of whom would be the presiding officer in charge of the station. According to regulation 7, each polling station was required to have a compartment (polling booth) in which voters could cast their votes screened from observation, and to be otherwise provided with the necessary materials and equipment, including ballot papers, boxes, inking pads, etc., required for voting. During their course of training, polling officers were instructed in the construction of polling stations and a plan of a polling station was included in the administrative instructions given to them. According to these instructions, the polling officers were required, on the completion of their training, to proceed to their appointed polling stations, which had already been sited by the returning officers and there see to it that the erection of the station was complete and that it was constructed according to the above-mentioned plan, including facilities for nailing down the ballot boxes.

179. Regulation 7 (f) also required that in each polling station the colour which had been allocated to each alternative should be displayed. Regulation 11 required that each ballot box should have attached to it, with a seal, a notice showing the alternative on which a vote could be cast at the plebiscite, the colour allocated to that alternative and the polling station, registration area and district in which the box was used. The posters, cards and various statutory forms used at the polling stations are reproduced in annex VII to this report.

180. According to the reports received from the United Nations observers, all polling stations were erected in accordance with the regulations and in due time for the plebiscite. Their locations were made known by posters in the villages, and they were adequately equipped. They proved, on the whole, to be quite satisfactory for the purposes of the plebiscite.

Chapter IV

PARTICIPATION IN PLEBISCITE BY POLITICAL PARTIES

PARTIES ACTIVE IN PLEBISCITE

181. Regulation 10 (1) of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959, provided that "Any political party which is accepted by the Plebiscite Administrator as active in the Northern Cameroons at the date of the publication of these regulations"—17 September 1959— "may not later than 10 October 1959 inform the Plebiscite Administrator in writing which of the alternatives on which a vote can be cast is favoured by it".

182. Four political parties accepted by the Plebiscite Administrator as being active in the Northern Cameroons informed him in writing which of the alternatives they favoured. They were:

First alternative: Northern Peoples' Congress;

Second alternative: Northern Elements Progressive Union, United Middle Belt Congress/Action Group Alliance, Northern Kamerun Democratic Party.

183. The following information was furnished to me on my arrival in Kaduna in October by the Ministry for Northern Cameroons Affairs about these parties.

Northern Peoples' Congress (NPC)

This party was formed in 1947 as a party for all northern peoples. Its leader is the present Premier of the Northern Region, Alhaji Sir Ahmadu Bello, Sardauna of Sokoto. There are 112 NPC members in the Northern House of Assembly (out of a total of 135), a large proportion of whom are Native Authority Councillors or employees. The party also has ninety-three members in the Federal House of Assembly and four ministers in the Federal Government. The party stands for established authority and it is from the ranks of established authority, backed by a very large number of the ordinary peasant farmers of the region, that the party draws its support.

In home affairs, the NPC stands for religious toleration, the expansion and improvement of agriculture, expansion of education, and generally the advancement of the people's welfare in all spheres.

In foreign affairs, the NPC believes in a flexible foreign policy founded on:

- (1) Membership of the Commonwealth;
- (2) Closer ties with the United Kingdom;
- (3) Increasing friendship with the United States of America:
- (4) Friendship with all countries respecting Nigeria's sovereignty.

Northern Elements Progressive Union (NEPU)

This party was founded in 1947 in opposition to the NPC. The President is Mallam Aminu Kano, an exschoolteacher, with his headquarters at Kano. He is not himself a member of the Regional House of Assembly, although he has contested elections to that House in the past. There are at present four NEPU members in the House of Assembly.

The NEPU is allied to the National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons (NCNC), the party in power in the Eastern Region, and, like this party, is opposed to the present federal constitution, which it considers places too much emphasis on regional differences and too much power in the hands of regional government. The NEPU stands for a strong central government and the division of the country into a number of states having their own state governments, with limited powers. In its internal policies, the party is socialist in outlook, although it is pledged not to nationalize any enterprise that is established in Nigeria before 1 October 1960.

In the field of foreign affairs, the NEPU holds itself free to establish friendly relations with all countries that recognize Nigeria's sovereign rights, and to maintain good-neighbourly relations with all African States.

The party draws its strength from those who, in their particular environment, are discontented with things as they find them. There are branches all over the Northern Region, although the UMBC/AGA has more attraction for many of those opposed to the existing authority in the Middle Belt area.

United Middle Belt Congress/Action Group Alliance (UMBC/AGA)

This party draws its support principally from the non-Moslem peoples of Adamawa, Bauchi, Benue, Plateau and Southern Zaria. It favours the creation of a special Middle Belt State or Region for these peoples and separation from those Fulani Native Authorities which in a number of cases exercise authority over them. Those educated by Christian missions take a large part in their affairs. Their leader is J. S. Tarka, a Tiv from Benue Province who is a member of the House of Representatives. The party has nine members in the Northern House of Assembly. Since July 1957, they have been in alliance with the Action Group, the party in power in the Western Region.

Northern Kamerun Democratic Party (NKDP)

This party was founded in February 1959 at Yola in Adamawa Province. Its present headquarters is at Mubi in the same province.

Its aims and objectives as expressed in its own manifesto are:

- (a) Creating a Northern Cameroons Region where Cameroonians can express their views on the government of their country;
- (b) Separating the Northern Cameroons from Nigeria and forming a British Cameroons State;
- (c) Creating a House of Assembly and House of Chiefs for their natural rulers, thereby taking an active part in the government of the country;
- (d) To fight for the development of the region educationally, so that prosperity can be raised to a high level;
 - (e) To hasten the progress of the country:
- (f) To speed up the achievement of self-government for the Territory within record time;
- (g) Unification of British Cameroons to form a federal territory;

- (h) Final reunification of the former German Cameroons:
- (i) The membership of the party is open to every adult Cameroonian and strangers domiciled in the Cameroons who by their heart may be enrolled as members:
- (j) Non-interference with Nigerian political parties, but friendship.

The President is Ibrahim Abba and the party claims to have a membership of about 3,000 amongst the Margi, Kilba, Higi, Waga, Fali, Sukur and Bata tribes.

It is understood that there may be a tenuous connexion between the NKDP and the Kamerun National Democratic Party (KNDP) in Southern Cameroons.

184. Political activity before polling day was lively in certain districts such as Chamba, Adamawa North-East and Cubunawa-Madagali, less noticeable in Dikwa North, Dikwa Central, Gwoza and Adamawa South and almost negligible in Tigon, Ndoro and Kentu. However, representatives of all political parties toured the Territory and met with the people. The full impact of party activity on the electorate is difficult to assess due to the fact that the emergence and participation of political parties in the life of the Territory, other than the government party (NPC), are a recent innovation and party allegiances, as distinguished from personal or tribal following, are still in the early stages of development. It is clear, none the less, that political campaigning carried out by the representatives of the political parties had an importance that cannot be minimized. Press reports from federal and regional publications on activities of the political parties which participated in the plebiscite are attached as annex VIII.

APPOINTMENT OF POLLING AGENTS

185. Regulation 10 (2) of the Plebiscite Regulations provided that the Plebiscite Administrator, after consultation with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, inform the party of parties in favour of each alternative that they may appoint polling agents; it specified that not more than two polling agents could be appointed in respect of any one polling station by the political parties in favour of either particular alternative. The appointment was for the purpose of detecting fraud. Regulation 10 (3) of the Plebiscite Regulations stipulated that the secretary of the party or other authorized person was to give the names and addresses of persons so appointed to the appropriate assistant plebiscite administrator not later than fourteen days before the day of the plebiscite.

186. Four parties, as noted in paragraph 182 above, availed themselves of this provision of the regulations and appointed polling agents at various polling stations so that at many polling stations there were agents representing the NPC and one of the opposing parties.

Chapter V

UNITED NATIONS PARTICIPATION IN PLEBISCITE

CONSULTATION WITH THE ADMINISTERING AUTHORITY

187. In operative paragraph 1 of General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII), it was recommended that the Administering Authority take steps, in consultation with a United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner, to organize, under the supervision of the United Nations, separate plebiscites in the northern and southern parts of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration. According to this resolution, the United Nations would have a dual role in the plebiscite: (a) through its Plebiscite Commissioner to consult with the Administering Authority regarding the organization of the plebiscite; (b) to supervise the conduct of the plebiscite operation through its Plebiscite Commissioner, assisted by observers and staff, to whom had been delegated all necessary powers and functions of supervision.

188. The Administering Authority, for its part, provided in article 11 of the Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959 that "The Governor-General, the Plebiscite Administrator, a Special Court and the officers appointed under paragraph (3) of Article 7 of this Order shall afford to the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and all other persons appointed to observe the plebiscite on behalf of the United Nations facilities for the due discharge of their functions, and the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and those other persons may make representations concerning the conduct of the plebiscite to such persons and in such manner as may be agreed between the Governor-General and the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner". The Order in Council, therefore, provided for supervision by the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner and all other persons appointed to observe on behalf of the United Nations in the sense of observing the plebiscite, but did not make specific provision for consultation. Further, article 5 (1) empowered the Governor-General to make regulations for the conduct of the plebiscite, all matters incidental or ancillary thereto, and generally for the purposes of the Order. This article would appear to have given the Governor-General full responsibility for the plebiscite and no provisions were made for consultation with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner. Nevertheless, Article 2 (3) of the Order provided that all functions conferred upon the Governor-General by the Order or any regulation made thereunder should be exercised by him in his discretion. Although, therefore, it was not mandatory that the Governor-General consult with the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner or anyone else, it was within his discretion to do so and, in fact. from the outset close consultation was established between the representatives of the Administering Authority and the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner.

189. The results of my consultations with the United Kingdom Mission in New York, the appropriate staff of the Colonial Office, the Governor-General, the Acting Governor-General, the Governor of the Northern Region and the Plebiscite Administrator concerning the arrangements for the plebiscite have been given in paragraphs 109 to 131 above. It simply remains for me to express my appreciation to the authorities concerned for the full opportunities given to me to express my views regarding these arrangements and to add that this pattern of consultation was continued with the Plebiscite Administrator after I established my headquarters at Yola for the supervision of the plebiscite.

UNITED NATIONS PLEBISCITE STAFF: TRAVEL AND OTHER ARRANGEMENTS

190. Supervision of the plebiscite by United Nations staff was an operation of some complexity involving the purely logistic problems of transportation to an establishment of headquarters and observer staff in the Territory, their maintenance in the field and the provision of transportation and other facilities for undertaking the functions assigned to them. It also involved the less tangible problems of actual supervision which implied considerable co-operation with the Plebiscite Administrator and his staff and the officials of the Regional and Native Administration and raised numerous questions of human relations.

(a) United Nations plebiscite staff

191. The selection and appointment of United Nations plebiscite staff was undertaken by the Secretary-General in consultation with me. The officers so appointed—all United Nations Secretariat personnel—with their designation for the purposes of the plebiscite, are listed below:

Headquarters staff
Title	Station	Name
Principal Secretary	Yola	José Rolz Bennett
Political Affairs Officer	Yola	Copeland K. Robinson
Information Officer	Yola	Allen T. Chang
Administrative Officer	Yola	Robert Bonner
Finance Clerk	Yola	Nello Tordini
Secretary	Yola	Patricia McGee
Secretary	Yola	Mary A. Jemmott

(b) Travel: administrative, financial and transport arrangements

192. Travel as well as administrative, financial and transport arrangements for United Nations plebiscite personnel were handled by Headquarters at New York. These were complex arrangements involving the co-ordination of a number of different parties from New York, Europe and Beirut and their concentration in Yola by the middle of October 1959.

(i) Advance administrative party

193. In order that all necessary arrangements concerning the establishment of a headquarters and the organizing of the preliminaries for the commencement of the operation could be completed before the arrival of the main group, an advance party was sent from New York on 10 September 1959. After discussions at Lagos and Kaduna with officials of the Nigerian Federal and Northern Regional Governments, the party arrived at Yola on 21 September and began making preparations for the operation.

(ii) Establishment of headquarters

194. I have already mentioned that the Plebiscite Administrator, Sir John Dring, had decided to establish his headquarters at Yola, which is outside the boundaries of the Trust Territory. I should have preferred to have been able to make my headquarters within the Trust Territory, but the preliminary investigations indicated that Yola was far more conveniently placed to maintain communications with the two separate parts of the Territory than any centre within the Trust Territory. Another important consideration was the need to be close to the headquarters of the Plebiscite Administrator. I therefore decided to establish my headquarters at Yola. Subsequent experience was to bear out the validity of this decision.

195. Arrangements were made to house myself and my staff in Yola. A house was made available for myself and the Principal Secretary and accommodation in the Catering Rest House was secured for those members of my staff who would be stationed at Yola. An office, conveniently placed in the grounds of my house, was also made available.

(iii) Transportation

196. Twenty-three jeeps and four trailers from the depot of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine at Jerusalem were shipped from Haifa to Lagos. They were then sent by rail to Kaduna under the supervision of a Field Service officer. At Kaduna, drivers were engaged and trained and after the arrival of two more Field Service officers the jeeps left in convoy for Yola. This journey was a hazardous one; the roads had barely recovered from the rainy season and long detours were necessary either because rivers were still impassable or because bridges had been washed away. The Field Service officers are to be congratulated on bringing all the vehicles safely to Yola.

(iv) Housing for observers

197. The Ministry of Northern Cameroons Affairs arranged for government rest houses to be made available to accommodate the observers. The rest houses had recently been renovated and were to be equipped with furniture, linen, crockery, etc. By the time the observers arrived, all but one of the rest houses were in readiness for occupation. The exception was at Sugu, where a swollen river and the state of the road made it impossible to get the equipment through until some days later. Camping equipment was supplied by the Field Operations Service of the Office of General Services of the Secretariat and was shipped from New York. Unfortunately, it was delayed in transit to Yola and arrived at the observers' posts very late. Camping equipment was essential for some observers, particularly for the observer who was stationed at Gembu, which could only be reached after a six-day trek, and in these cases such equipment as was available locally was either bought or borrowed.

(v) Dispersal of observers

198. The main party of observers arrived at Yola on 16 October 1959 with the Principal Secretary who had met them in Kano on my behalf, and arrangements were made to get them to their posts as quickly as possible. Each observer left Yola by jeep, taking with him equipment and supplies. Two reached their posts that night, a further three the following night, 17 October, and three more on 18 October. Of the remaining two, one reached his post, at Sugu, on 20 October, and the other reached Gembu on 27 October. My own arrival at Yola on 19 October with the Principal Secretary (who had rejoined me at Kaduna), the Political Affairs Officer, the Information Officer and my secretary completed the setting for the commencement of the operation.

ACTIVITIES PRIOR TO POLLING DAY

199. Detailed preliminary general instructions were given in written form to the United Nations observers before they departed from New York (see annex IX). These instructions explained the administrative arrangements, the reasons for the holding of the plebiscite as given in General Assembly resolution

1350 (XIII), the organization of the plebiscite by the Administering Authority in accordance with the Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959, and the functions, duties and responsibilities of the United Nations observers.

200. Inter alia, the observers were requested to submit regular routine reports on their activities, the steps being taken in their districts by the Administering Authority for the organization and conduct of the plebiscite, political activity in their districts and any complaints received and action taken thereon. On the basis of these reports and of my own observations during my tours of the Territory and of those of the Principal Secretary and Political Affairs Officer who similarly toured the Territory, I summarize below our activities during the pre-plebiscite period following the arrival of the observers at their stations.

201. Before dealing with the activities in each area, there are a number of general points that can be made. All observers reported that in the early days after taking up their stations, road communications were very poor. Practically all Native Authority dry-season roads had been more or less extensively damaged by the rainy season and, though the rains had recently ceased in most districts, vehicular traffic for more than relatively short distances from their stations was impossible. Road conditions improved progressively and rapidly with the onset of the dry weather and the expeditious repairing of the damaged roads and the construction of jeep tracks by the various Native Authorities, so that, by polling day, most of the polling stations were accessible.

202. In the course of their travelling around their areas, all observers spent as much time as possible speaking to the people and exchanging questions about the plebiscite. In this way, they not only made their presence known to the people but also helped in the process of informing the voters about the plebiscite.

203. All observers paid close attention to the work being done by the officers of the Plebiscite Administration in preparing for the plebiscite. One important aspect of this was the selection and training of polling officers to man the polling stations. The duties of these polling officers undoubtedly were complicated and their training presented a formidable problem. All observers were impressed with the thoroughness of the training programmes. The relative absence of difficulties on polling day reflects great credit on both the officials and on those who trained them.

204. My observers were also more than satisfied with the way in which the other necessary arrangements for the plebiscite were carried out in their areas. All paid a tribute to the fairness and impartiality shown by the officials responsible for the conduct of the plebiscite and to the co-operation and generous assistance they received from them. A brief summary of activities in each area is given below.

(a) Dikwa

205. Observer posts in Dikwa Division were established at Dikwa, Bama and Gwoza. Political activity in this area was only slight. A limited number of meetings was held by the NPC, whose campaign was led by the Minister of Trade, M. Abba Habib, and there were apparently even fewer meetings by parties supporting the second alternative. None of the second alternative parties active in the other parts of the Territory participated in the campaign in the north. The Bornu Youth Movement (BYM), a small party limited in its activities to Bornu Province and with some affiliation with the Action Group, had some of its agents campaigning in the area.

206. The observers felt that there was very little understanding of the broader issues involved in the plebiscite. They found that interest centred on local issues and on dissatisfaction with local administration. Nor did they feel that their efforts to explain the issues added very much to the peoples' understanding. The Emir of Dikwa, in a discussion with an observer, expressed a similar view concerning the lack of understanding of the issues by the people.

207. There was one complaint from the BYM concerning the refusal of the district authorities to allow them to hold a political meeting. An investigation showed that the application had not been made in the proper form. The complainants were advised of the proper procedures and there were no further complaints.

(b) Adamawa North-East

208. Observer posts were established at Michika and at Mubi. Political activity in this area was intense with all parties, the NPC on the one hand and the NKDP, the UMBC/AGA, and the NEPU on the other, actively participating. The campaign was carried into remote areas and was bitterly fought, although fortunately without any untoward incidents. That this was so was in no small way due to the good sense and political maturity of the party leaders, who, at all times, were willing to sit down and discuss their differences with the observers and plebiscite administration officials and were content to let the people pass judgement in a democratic way through the secrecy of the ballot box.

209. On their arrival at their posts, both observers received a number of complaints on various matters from representatives of the parties supporting the second alternative. These complaints were directed against the Native Authority officials, who, it was alleged, were using their positions of authority to influence the people to vote in favour of the first alternative. They also alleged that supporters of the second alternative had been unjustly arrested and imprisoned and that permits to hold political meetings had been unjustly refused or delayed.

210. Investigations by the observers led them to believe that there was some basis for these complaints. When these complaints were brought to my attention, I went to Mubi and Michika and discussed these and other matters with the two observers. Following this discussion, I addressed a letter, dated 25 October 1959, to the Plebiscite Administrator drawing attention to these matters and suggesting certain remedial measures. In my letter, I asked that Native Authority officials should again be told that they should refrain from political activities during the plebiscite. I also expressed my belief that arrests should only be made when absolutely necessary in the interests of the maintenance of law and order and suggested that consideration should be given to releasing on bail those at present in prison until the plebiscite was over. I made the further suggestion that the authority to issue permits should be transferred from the Native Authorities to the British officers. These and other suggestions were designed to ensure that the plebiscite was being conducted in an atmosphere of freedom and impartiality.

211. In his reply, Sir John Dring informed me that the Resident at Yola had again warned Native Authority officials of the "paramount need for them to be and to be seen to be impartial when carrying out their official duties". He added that these officials could not be barred from taking part in political activities in their personal capacities. He also informed me that there was no constitutional authority for vesting the issue of permits in British officials, but that the Resident was instructing district officers to exercise as close supervision as possible over the issue of permits. Concerning the exercise of the powers of arrest, he agreed that arrests should only be made in cases where it was necessary in the interests of law and order and that, to this end, the District Officer at Mubi had been instructed to interview all persons admitted to prison and to take any action he considered necessary to secure accordance with the spirit of my suggestion.

212. I am satisfied that the steps taken by the authorities in response to my representations enabled the political parties to conduct their campaigns without obstruction. That the parties themselves were satisfied is indicated by the marked reduction of complaints.

213. The campaign was fought mainly on local issues. The parties supporting the second alternative organized their campaign skilfully. They made full use of the feeling of dissatisfaction among the people about what they consider to be maladministration by the Native Authority. They also made capital out of the arrests, whether justified or not, in presenting the Native Authority in an unfavourable light.

(c) Adamawa South (Chamba)

214. Observer posts were established at Jada and at Sugu. The observer at Sugu covered the southern part of Chamba as well as the Toungo district further south. Political parties were quite active throughout this area, and, using vehicles and other means of transport, penetrated into most of the outlying villages. The principal party amongst those supporting the second alternative was the NKDP, whose leader appeared to have some ascendancy over the UMBC/AGA and NEPU representatives.

215. The NKDP campaign was skilfully conducted. It directed its appeal to the Chamba people, emphasizing that a vote for the second alternative would free them from non-Chamba control and so pave the way for better roads, more hospitals and schools and better jobs for the Chamba. By playing on such local issues and dissatisfactions with the existing administration, they were able to win wide-spread support, which apparently could not be countered by the NPC, despite a wide-spread and vigorous campaign, also centred on local issues, led by the Minister for Northern Cameroons Affairs.

216. With this emphasis on local issues by all the parties concerned, it was not surprising to find that the people saw the plebiscite in this light and not strictly in terms of the questions they were being asked. The observers found that there was little real understanding of the wider issues involved in the two questions.

217. There were a number of complaints submitted through the observers, almost all from the NKDP. These concerned fears that district and village heads were using, or might use, undue influence and persuade their people to vote for the first alternative, allegations that district heads were refusing to allow political meetings, and allegations concerning the influence of polling officials with known party allegiances. All of these complaints were referred to the Assistant Plebiscite Administrator and were speedily settled on the spot.

218. The complaints concerning undue influence by district and village heads were in all cases too vague to enable them to be investigated closely. Cases of obstruction by district heads of Sugu and Yelwa to political meetings sponsored by the NKDP and associated parties proved to have foundation. These officials were visited by either the Resident from Yola or by the Assistant Plebiscite Administrator and reminded of the Premier's instructions to them to show complete impartiality during the plebiscite, not to engage in political activities in their official capacities and not to refuse permission for political meetings except under the most exceptional circumstances. Except in one case, this had the desired effect and thereafter there were no complaints on this score. The exception was in the Sugu District where a further exception was in the Sugu District where a further visit from the Assistant Plebiscite Administrator was necessary before the matter was satisfactorily settled.

- 219. The complaint against certain polling officers was brought to my attention when I visited Jada. I suggested that the following principles should be used for guidance in selecting and posting polling officers. I subsequently discussed these guiding principles with Sir John Dring, who agreed with them and issued the necessary instructions to his officers:
- (1) All party officials should be debarred from acting as polling officials.
- (2) Because of the impracticability of excluding all persons with known political sympathies, such persons should, as far as possible, be paired with a known sympathizer of the opposite party.
- (3) As far as possible, polling officers with known political sympathies should not be posted to areas in which they had previously been active, or to remote areas where their actions would be less open to public scrutiny than in the bigger centres.
- 220. In accordance with these instructions, three prospective polling officers were dismissed from the training class and postings were worked out. All parties were agreeable to this arrangement. Subsequently, there were three complaints by the NKDP concerning these officials. In one case, the complaint proved to be without foundation and in the other cases, the assistant returning officers spoke to the officials and indicated that they would visit the stations concerned frequently on polling day.

(d) Adamawa South (Toungo and Gashaka)

221. Observer posts were established at Sugu and at Serti. Here it was difficult for the observers to get to polling stations off the main road, but nevertheless contact was made with a high proportion of the people by means of trekkling on foot and by horse. These difficulties probably also accounted for the restricted political activity outside the main centres, such as Toungo and Kogiubaba. Only one such meeting, by the NKDP, was held at Serti and there appeared but little organized activity elsewhere. Neither observer was impressed with the degree of understanding of the issues of the plebiscite. The observer at Serti thought that more should have been done to instruct the people concerning the issues, but he recognized that the continuation of rains until a matter of weeks before polling day and the consequent difficulties in travelling through the area had seriously limited what could be done. Without this necessary understanding he felt that the majority of the people would be influenced by their leaders.

222. No complaints concerning the arrangements for the plebiscite were received from this area, although one group complained of the impossibility of crossing a river to reach their designated polling station. The construction of a bridge solved this problem.

(e) Adamawa South (Mambila)

223. The observer station was at Gembu, which proved to be a six-day trek from Serti, the furthermost point that could be reached by road. From Gembu, the observer visited those villages that could be reached on foot or by horse in the short time available before polling day.

224. Despite the difficult nature of the terrain, both the NPC and the NKDP had agents in the field. The NKDP directed its appeal to the Mambila tribes and to their fear of the Fulani, based on memories of slave-raiding in times past. Local issues again were at the heart of the campaign and some attempt was made to capitalize on the resentment felt by some Fulani cattle owners concerning cattle taxes paid to Yola. The observer felt that there was little understanding of the broader issues of the plebiscite. He thought that more should have been done to enlighten the people and his own efforts to impart the necessary information convinced him that only a lengthy campaign would have any real effect. He felt that the social and political organization of the Mambila people would interfere with a free individual vote and that votes would be cast according to the wishes of the elders, not for any insidious reason, but simply because it has always been the custom of these people to accept the advice of their elders. No complaints concerning the arrangements for the plebiscite were received.

(f) Wukari East (Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu)

225. The observer post was established at Baissa. Campaigning by political parties was very slight in this area, with the NPC, the governing party, showing more activity than their rivals. The observer felt that there was little understanding of the real issues at stake in the plebiscite, and even some confusion, which he thought might have been overcome by a more intensive public enlightenment campaign. He encountered a fear that this area might be transferred to the Southern Cameroons if the second alternative won, an eventuality repugnant to many who felt perfectly satisfied with their present status. No complaints were received concerning the arrangements for the plebiscite.

POLLING DAY AND PLEBISCITE RESULTS

226. Polling took place, as scheduled, on 7 November 1959. The weather was fair and the turn-out of voters was heavy, perhaps much heavier than had been generally anticipated. The rains had by then ceased for some weeks in most areas and the roads had dried out and been repaired, enabling communication to be reestablished with most villages, even with most of those in the more remote and inaccessible areas. In very few cases did voters experience difficulty in getting to the polling stations.

227. Polling was scheduled to commence at 8.00 a.m.; but well in advance of this time, crowds began gathering at the polling stations and by opening time had attained relatively large proportions. There was some shoving and pushing and jostling for position by some of those eager to vote, but the crowds were for the most part good-natured and well-behaved. Voting was orderly and polling was completed in most cases by early afternoon, but, in accordance with the requirements of the plebiscite regulations, polling stations remained open till 5.00 p.m.

228. United Nations observers visited as many polling stations as was physically possible on polling day and their supervision was supplemented by the efforts of headquarters staff. I had flown to Maiduguri the day before and started my visits to polling stations on 7 November in Bama. From there I moved down by car to Gwoza, Michika and Mubi, stopping at all stations located on or near the road. All of the headquarters staff, including the secretarial, administrative and finance staff as well as Field Service officers with the exception of one Field Service officer who was left in charge of headquarters at Yola, were assigned special areas to cover, their activities being co-ordinated with those of the observers so as to have as much as possible of the plebiscite area covered by United Nations staff on polling day. United Nations observers reported that, in general, the polling had been efficiently conducted by the polling officers, who had performed their duties satisfactorily and impartially and in accordance with the provisions of the Plebiscite Regulations. At a few stations, the walls of the polling booths became transparent during certain hours of the day due to the sunlight, but this was corrected by the use of additional straw mats. In some cases, owing to the obstruction of the openings of the ballot boxes, either owing to heavy voting or to the insertion of rolled ballot papers or even registration cards, voters placed their papers on top of the boxes, but this condition was corrected and obviated by more frequent visits to the booths by the polling officers and agents. Some votes were rejected on account of this. At two stations in the Chamba Circle, the presiding officers neglected to stamp all of the ballot papers and a total of 370 papers was later rejected at counting.

229. Few complaints were made on polling day regarding the conduct of the polling. At Dikwa North, a polling marshal was accused of telling people to vote for the second alternative. The United Nations observer reported that this complaint was received too late to take action on it. At Gwoza, there was a complaint against the polling officers, who allegedly had been forcing the people to vote for the first alternative. This complaint had been lodged with the Plebiscite Administration and concerned the Chigide registration area. A delegation of leaders from the area alleged to the United Nations observer that the presiding officer had instructed the people to put their ballots in the white box at the opening of the station and that the polling officers accompanied the voters into the booths and directed them to put their ballots in the white box. The United Nations observer remarked that Chigide was the only mountain area in the Gwoza Circle which had a majority for white (677 to 33)—the other areas voted overwhelmingly for the second alternative. This complaint, it is understood, is being lodged under the provisions of the Northern Cameroons Plebiscite Regulations, 1959.

230. Counting of the votes commenced on the evening of 7 November at the headquarters of the various returning officers in the presence of United Nations observers and counting agents appointed by the political parties. In most cases, counting was completed by the night of 8 November, but in a few cases not before 9 November because of transportation difficulties from the outlying polling stations. Results were announced at a counting centre located in Yola and at the various stations as soon as partial results were known. Large groups gathered and remained well into the night outside many of these places to hear the results. The consolidated results, according to plebiscite circle, are shown below (the results by registration areas are given in annex X of this report).

Dikwa North		7,575		7.197
Dikwa Central		8,891		11,988
Gwoza		3,356		6,773
Cubanawa-Madagali Adamawa North-		4,247		9,818

Mambila	2,745		7,353
		4,997		9,452
Wukari East (Tigon,
Ndoro and Kentu)		3,063		89
TOTAL		42,788		70,546

Rejected votes: 525

231. A total of 113,859 votes was cast in the plebiscite or approximately 88 per cent of the total number of persons registered in the federal electoral register. or 80 per cent of the estimated total number of potential electors in the Northern Cameroons exercised their right to vote in the plebiscite. Approximately 62 per cent of the total votes cast was in favour of the second alternative or a majority in the ratio of 1.65 to 1. A break-down of the results shows that in three circles, Dikwa North, Gashaka-Toungo and Wukari East, there was a majority for the first alternative. but it was a narrow majority in the first two circles: 7,575 v. 7,197 and 2,252 v. 2,099, respectively or a majority by about 650 votes in a total of 19,000. It was only in Wukari East that the majority was relatively substantial: 3,063 v. 89. This circle comprised the administrative districts of Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu at the south-western extremity of the Northern Cameroons. In the other circles, the majority for the second alternative was high: 1.35 to 1 in Dikwa Central, 2 to 1 in Gwoza, 2.3 to 1 in Cubunawa-Madagali, 2.2 to 1 in Adamawa North-East, nearly 2.6 to 1 in Chamba and nearly 2.7 to 1 in Mambila.

PROTEST PERIOD

232. The Nigeria (Northern Cameroons Plebiscite) Order in Council, 1959, provided, inter alia, for the establishment of a Special Court for the purpose of hearing any petitions arising out of the plebiscite. The Special Court was to consist of a judge, appointed by the Governor-General of Nigeria in pursuance of instructions given by Her Majesty through a Secretary of State. Natives of Nigeria and any person serving in the Federation of Nigeria were excluded from appointment. The decisions of this court were to be transmitted to the Plebiscite Administrator, who in considering a dispute concerning the result in a particular district was empowered to declare the result invalid and to arrange for a further opportunity of voting.

233. The Northern Cameroons Plebiscite (Voting Petitions) Regulations, 1959, made under the Order in Council by the Governor-General set out the procedures to be followed in hearing petitions. Petitions could concern:

- (a) Complaints that non-registered persons had voted;
- (b) Complaints that registered voters' votes had been accepted as tendered votes only;
- (c) Complaints that any corrupt or illegal practice, bribery, treating or undue influence had taken place. Petitions were to be lodged, in the appropriate form, with the Plebiscite Administrator at Yola or with the assistant plebiscite administrators at Bama, Mubi and Jada within a period of ten days from the date of the plebiscite. Copies of the petitions were to be sent to the Court and to the United Nations Plebiscite Commissioner.

234. Before I left Yola on 11 November, I asked one observer, Mr. J. A. Miles, to remain behind for the period of ten days to exercise supervision on my behalf during the protest period and to receive any other petitions, and to report on developments immediately after the plebiscite. At the expiry of the period allowed, no voting petitions had been received by the Plebiscite Administrator. I understand that as a result of complaints some prosecutions are pending for offences under the Plebiscite Regulations. A total of five other petitions and communications have been received since polling day from the following: The Branch President, NKDP, Cubunawa District, on behalf of the opposition political parties; the President, NPC, Dikwa Division; the Lamido of Adamawa; Mormoni Bazza and five others on behalf of NPC, Mubi; and the NKDP and One Kamerun. The texts of these communications and petitions are reproduced in annex XI to this report. The first purports to explain on behalf of the opposition parties the reasons why their numbers voted for the second alternative and to indicate the reforms they wished to have introduced. These are matters which fall outside my terms of reference. The next three make allegations against the British Authorities, plebiscite officials and the opposition parties concerning the conduct of the plebiscite. These allegations are for the most part in general terms and, where specific, substantiating evidence is not adduced. The last communication makes an appeal, arising out of the results of the plebiscite, to the Governor-General as the Administering Authority's representative. This communication also falls outside my terms of reference. Copies of these communications have been sent to the Plebiscite Administrator for such action as he might deem appropriate under the provisions of the Plebiscite Regulations.

235. The reaction of the population to the results of the plebiscite seems to have been generally a quiet one. In Dikwa, there were several incidents, as a result of which one person unfortunately was killed. However, when the observer left the Territory, this area was reported to be quiet. No other incidents were reported in any other part of the Territory.

Chapter VI

CONCLUSIONS

236. The plebiscite in the northern part of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, provided for in resolution 1350 (XIII) of the General Assembly, took place on 7 November 1959. A very high proportion (close to 88 per cent) of the registered voters participated in the ballotting. The total number of voters represents approximately 80 per cent of the estimated number of potential electors, which means that the greater part of the eligible population took part in the consultation and freely expressed their wishes in respect to the alternatives offered in the plebiscite.

237. Of the 113,859 votes cast, 70,546 favoured the second alternative, 42,788 favoured the first alternative and 525 were rejected votes. The results indicate that close to 62 per cent of the total votes were cast in favour of the second alternative.

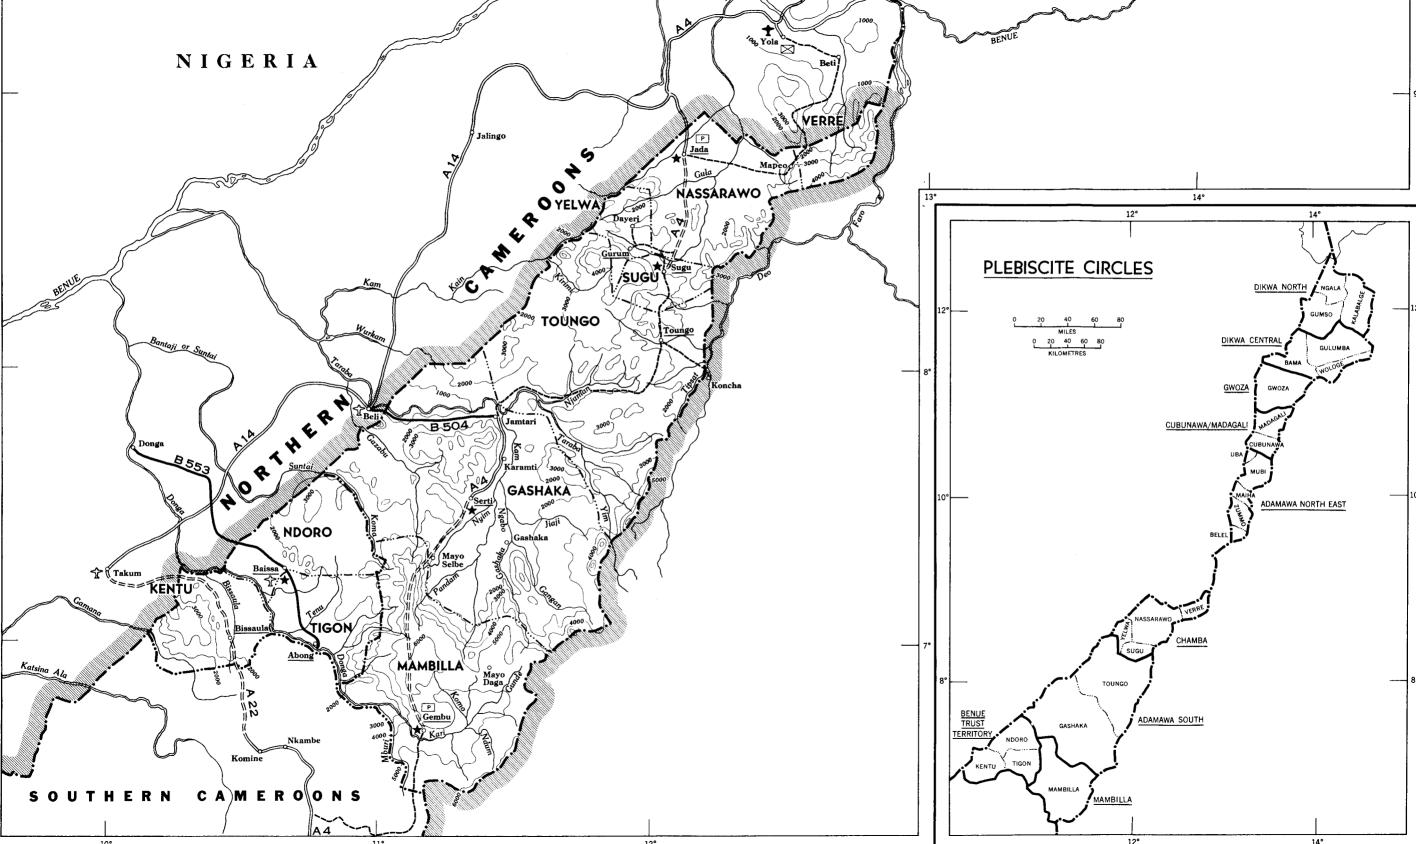

238. An analysis of the voting by districts shows that there was an over-all majority for the first alternative, i.e., a desire that the Northern Cameroons be part of the Northern Region of Nigeria when the Federation of Nigeria becomes independent, only in the Dikwa North Districts of the Dikwa Division, in the Gashaka-Toungo Districts of Adamawa South and in the Tigon-Ndoro-

Kentu area in the south-west. Even in these districts, however, the voting was not consistently in favour of the first alternative except in the Tigon-Ndoro-Kentu area where it was practically unanimous in all fourteen of the registration areas. In the Dikwa North Districts where the over-all majority in favour of the first alternative was only 650 in a total of 19,000 votes cast, eight of the twenty registration areas voted by substantial majorities for the second alternative. In the Gashaka-Toungo Districts, all of the three Toungo Districts voted in favour of the second alternative by relatively large majorities and two of the seven Gashaka Districts by small majorities. Of the grand total of 131 registration areas, fifty, or 38 per cent, had majorities in favour of the first alternative, which also obtained 38 per cent of the total votes cast. It may be said, therefore, that nearly two-thirds of the persons who voted were in favour of deciding the future of the Territory at a later date.

239. I am satisfied that the plebiscite was organized and conducted by the Administering Authority with efficiency and impartiality, in accordance with the laws and regulations promulgated for the purpose, and that it was held in an atmosphere of freedom.

- 240. The people of the Northern Cameroons conducted themselves during the plebiscite in an exemplary manner. It was mainly due to their sense of responsibility and respect for law and order that the plebiscite was successfully carried out.
- 241. The participation of the United Nations in the plebiscite was welcomed by all parties concerned and enhanced the confidence of the people in the impartiality and objectivity of the plebiscite.
- 242. It is now for the Trusteeship Council and the General Assembly to appraise the results of the plebiscite and to make such recommendations and take such decisions as they may deem appropriate in the light of all available relevant information. While appreciating, therefore, that it does not fall within the scope of my terms of reference to attempt such an appraisal, I feel that I would perhaps be failing in my duty were I not to present certain views which, on the basis of my personal observations and that of my staff and observers, seemed to be prevalent amongst those who voted for the second alternative. It would appear that the majority of the voters made use of the opportunity offered by the plebiscite to register what was in effect a protest vote against the system of local administration prevailing in the Northern Cameroons. The information that I gathered in the Territory
- supports the view that the people desire the introduction of reforms in the system of local government—which to them is synonymous with Government—and that one of the reasons why the majority voted in favour of the second alternative was to express the will for a speedy introduction of these reforms.
- 243. I should like to express my deep appreciation to the people of the Territory for the dignity and discipline demonstrated during the plebiscite. I should also like to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation to the Governor-General, the Governor of the Northern Region, the Plebiscite Administrator and his able staff for the successful organization of the plebiscite and to the political parties and their representatives for the contribution which they made to the peaceful and orderly conduct of the plebiscite. I should also like to convey my grateful thanks to the Government of the Northern Region for its co-operation and assistance.
- 244. Finally, I should like to place on record my appreciation and thanks to the able and experienced United Nations staff assigned to me for the purpose of the plebiscite, whose loyalty and devotion to duty contributed so significantly to the success of the task entrusted to me by the General Assembly.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English] [12 August 1959]

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the financial reports and accounts for 1958 and the related reports of the Board of Auditors in respect of the United Nations, United Nations participation in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and the Technical Assistance Board secretariat, the United Nations Suez Canal Clearance Operation and the United Nations Emergency Force (A/4116).
- 2. The Advisory Committee has also considered, and is reporting separately on, the 1958 accounts and related audit reports in respect of the following extra-budgetary programmes of the United Nations: 1/2 the United Nations Children's Fund (A/4113), the United Nations Refugee Fund and other funds administered by the High Commissioner for Refugees (A/4118) and the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (A/4117).2/

^{*}For the discussion of this item, see Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourteenth Session, Fifth Committee, 708th and 718th meetings; and ibid., Plenary Meetings, 838th meeting.

^{1/}In respect of the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency, it has been decided, in consultation with the Advisory Committee, the Board of Auditors and the Agency's Advisory Committee, that a financial liquidation report and accounts will be prepared at the date of liquidation of the Agency (approximately at 31 December 1959) in lieu of the reporting that would otherwise be necessary as at 30 June 1959.

^{2/}For the reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions relating to these programmes see documents A/4154, A/4156 and A/4155, respectively.

3. In reviewing these several accounts and audit reports, the Advisory Committee has looked into total gross expenditures (including unliquidated obligations) in 1958 of the order of some $165 million:

Approximate expenditure (millions of US dollars)

(g) United Nations Refugee Fund and related funds	8.2
(h) United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees	31.8

^{2/}Apart from the expenditures from the assessed budget and from voluntary contributions in respect of the several programmes, there were expenditures, directly charged to the related revenues, of some $2 million in respect of the revenue-producing activities of the United Nations and some $500,000 in respect of the UNICEF Greeting Card Programme.

b/From inception.

c/The amount represents obligations incurred by the United Nations against funds allocated to it, as a participating organization, from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance.

- 4. For its consideration of the accounts in (a) to (e) above, which form the subject of the present report, the Advisory Committee had before it, in addition to the reports of the Board of Auditors, a separate memorandum from the Board touching on a number of points of detail concerning the financial administration of the Organization. Annexed to that memorandum were two special studies which the Board undertook at the request of the Committee, the first relating to the operations of the revenue-producing activities during 1958, and the second giving a detailed review of the administrative and financial procedures and controls that are applied in the Organization to the procurement of goods, supplies and services. The Advisory Committee desires to record its appreciation of the assistance rendered by the Board through the preparation of these useful annexes.
- 5. The Advisory Committee has thoroughly inquired into the facts and circumstances relating to the instances of defalcation and illegal exchange transactions mentioned by the Board in paragraphs 4 and 5 of its report (A/4116, page 27), as well as the losses

- and bad debts which were brought to the Committee's attention in the Board's separate memorandum. The Committee is satisfied that these exceptional cases do not detract from the General efficacy of the financial and other controls that are applied; the Committee has at the same time drawn attention to the need for strengthening any weak points in the chain of controls.
- 6. It will be noted from schedule D to statement I under part II of the accounts (United Nations participation in the Expanded Programme) (ibid., page 38) that, under various trust funds for projects, expenditures totalling some $69,000 were incurred in advance of adequate receipts into the trust funds. The Advisory Committee would underline the need for prudent care in regard to these arrangements in order to safeguard the financial interests of the Organization.
- 7. The Secretary-General has, in paragraph 2 of his financial report under Special Account of the United Nations Emergency Force (ibid., page 51), drawn attention to the unsatisfactory cash position of this Special Account. The Advisory Committee understands that, assuming current patterns of income and expenditure in respect of the General Fund, the Working Capital Fund and the UNEF Special Account, the over-all cash position of the Organization is likely to cause serious concern in the early months of 1960.
- 8. The memorandum of the Board of Auditors and its annexes contain several other points of information and comment, which, in addition to clarifying the expenditure experience in 1958, will prove useful in connexion with the Advisory Committee's mid-year review of 1959 appropriations and detailed examination of the budget estimates for 1960. Furthermore, at various points in the annex on procurement operations attached to the Board's memorandum, it is noted that, in the light of the Board's inquiry and comment. steps have been, or are proposed to be, taken to improve procedures in several respects. The internal review which the Board's study has occasioned is in itself a useful development to which, of course, must be added the valuable advantage of the comment and advice of the Board. The Advisory Committee believes, too, that the detailed discussions which it had with representatives of the Board and of the Secretary-General will help to clarify and strengthen several areas of control.
- 9. There are no other points in the accounts and audit report under review which, in the view of the Advisory Committee, need to be brought to the attention of the General Assembly.

DOCUMENT A/4154

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the financial report and accounts of the United Nations Children's Fund for the year ended 31 December 1958 and the related report of the Board of Auditors (A/4113).

2. The financial position of the Fund on 31 December 1958 was:

[31	July 1939]
	US dollars
Principal of the Fund on 1 January 1958ncome from all sources during 1958	32,761,300 23,007,601
	55,768,901
Expenditure during 1958	22,436,262
Principal of the Fund on 31 December 1958	22 222 639

of which $28,090,084 was committed-allocated by the Executive Board-and $5,242,555 remained unallocated. The principal of the Fund shows an increase of $600,000 as compared with the position at the end of 1957. Income in 1958 increased by $2.3 million, or 11 per cent, over 1957, resulting in large part from an increase of more than $2 million in government contributions. Expenditure also increased in 1958, by some $1.1 million. The unallocated resources of $5.2 million at 31 December 1958 compare with an amount of $3.6 million unallocated at the end of 1957 and $5.7 million at the end of 1956. The Advisory Committee understands that the Executive Board may be requested to approve allocations in 1959 which will exceed income by between $2 to $4 million, thus reducing the level of unallocated resources at the end of that year.

- 3. Allocations unfulfilled at 31 December 1958 of $28.1 million compare with $29.1 million at the end of 1957. The largest component of unfulfilled allocations was in respect of area and country assistance (excluding freight), in the amount of $17.6 million, against which there were outstanding contractual commitments at year-end of $5.5 million.
- 4. In order to encourage long-term planning by Governments, allocations are made on the basis of a plan of operations which may extend over a period of several years. Nevertheless, actual funds set aside for unfulfilled allocations appear to the Advisory Committee to be on the high side in relation to the pace at which projects are implemented. The Advisory Committee is aware that unfulfilled allocations at the end of 1958 included a considerable part of the $11.4 million approved for programme aid only at the September 1958 session of the Executive Board and some $3.8 million representing allocations for the 1959 operational services and administrative expenses. The Executive Board of UNICEF might wish to review the definitions and practical circumstances of allocations with a view to greater flexibility in the planning of programmes, in the co-ordination of these programmes with related activities of the United Nations and interested specialized agencies, and in general financial management.
- 5. Inasmuch as it has been the practice in UNICEF to make allocations only on the basis of funds actually received, the Advisory Committee learns with inter-

- est of the possibility that the Executive Board, at its forthcoming session in September 1959, will make allocations in respect of the administrative and operational services costs for 1960 against resources to be received during the last months of 1959.
- 6. Following the provisions of General Assembly resolution 594 (VI) of 4 February 1952, the Advisory Committee has paid special attention to the administrative practices and expenses of UNICEF operations. Administrative costs rose from $1.45 million in 1957 to $1.50 million in 1958, and the costs of operational services from $1.42 million to $1.56 million. However, as the volume of assistance (and consequently of total expenditure) also increased between the two years, the ratio of administrative costs to total expenditure showed a decrease from 6.89 per cent in 1957 to 6.80 per cent in 1958; the ratio of operational services costs increased nevertheless from 6.76 per cent to 7.08 per cent.
- 7. A realistic appraisal of the administrative overhead of UNICEF operations should take account also of the substantial services and facilities which, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 57 (I) of 11 December 1946, the United Nations furnishes free of charge to the Fund. While it is difficult at this stage to put a monetary value on such services and facilities, the Advisory Committee will study this matter further as part of the broader question of the services and facilities provided to various extrabudgetary activities from the regular budget of the Organization. Such a study would, besides clarifying the administrative needs of extra-budgetary programmes, help towards a meaningful interpretation of the servicing requirements that are reflected in the regular budget.

UNICEF GREETING CARD FUND

- 8. The 1958 financial report relating to the UNICEF Greeting Card Fund shows that the steady progress of the past years has been more than maintained in 1958, with 10.9 million cards sold. The net income of $660,812 in 1958 represents some 56 per cent of gross income, and compares with a net income of $336,965 in 1957.
- 9. The financial experience of the Greeting Card Programme for the last three years is reflected in the following table:

Year	Cards sold2/	Cost per card ab / sold	Net income	Transfer to general resources of UNICEFS
		Cents	US dollars	US dollars
1958.	10,235,966	4.99	660,812	400,000
1957.	7,177,285	5.91	336.965	300,000

b/Cost per card includes staff costs, production costs, sales promotion and other expenses.

c/The balance of net income is used to augment the working capital for the following year's activity.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English] [31 July 1959]

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the financial report and accounts of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) for the year ended 31 December 1958 and the related report of the Board of Auditors (A/4117).
- 2. The income and expenditure experience in 1958 may be summarized as follows:

Income	United States dollars
Contributions from Governments . Contributions from others Miscellaneous income Exchange adjustments	33,928,466 257,372 420,278 427,143
	35,033,259
Expenditure
Relief programme	23,956,783 7,819,284 31,776,067 3,257,192

This surplus income of $3,257,192, together with adjustments for prior years in the amount of $36,519, increased the working capital available to the Agency from $18,906,209 at 1 January 1958 to $22,199,920 at 31 December 1958.

3. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 594 (VI) of 4 February 1952, the Advisory Committee has inquired into a number of administrative and financial matters in UNRWA, including, in particular, the points to which the Board of Auditors has drawn attention in its report.

- 4. As regards the carry-over of unused 1957 budget amounts as additions to the 1958 budget, a point to which the Board refers in paragraph 3 of its report (A/4117, page 24), the Advisory Committee concurs in the Board's view that the authority of the Director for making this transfer may be questionable under the present financial rules of the Agency. The Committee notes that the financial rules are currently being reviewed and that any proposed modifications will be submitted to the Committee in due course for its comment.
- 5. The Advisory Committee understands, in regard to the bonus payments to local staff (ibid., para. 8), that UNRWA plans to review the existing local salary scales, which were established in 1952-1953, with a view to bringing them into line with present conditions. The Committee has inquired into the procedures followed by UNRWA in the establishment and periodic revision of these salary scales, and it trusts that the proposed review will be undertaken in close collaboration with the United Nations Secretariat, some of whose staff members are also located in the Near East.
- 6. In regard to the Board's observations on losses (ibid., para. 11), the Advisory Committee believes that the losses in question, although representing a very small fraction of the total volume of supplies handled annually by the Agency, are substantial enough to suggest the need for strengthening administrative and financial controls in respect of stores and warehousing. Likewise, on ex-gratia payments (ibid., para. 9), somewhat more restrictive interpretation and application of the provisions in this regard might be considered.

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the financial report and accounts of the United Nations Refugee Fund (UNREF) (and other funds administered by the High Commissioner for Refugees) for the year ended 31 December 1958 and the related report of the Board of Auditors (A/4118).
- 2. The consolidated summary operating statement covering all voluntary, restricted and trust funds (Exhibit A) shows the following picture for 1958:
- United States dollars Surplus at 31 December 1957 plus adjustments..... 4,164,511 5,898,310a/ 10,062,821 Contributions and other income . . Less: Obligations incurred: Liquidated by disbursements.... 4,200,735 Unliquidated.....

a/Including $320,393, contributions pledged but not yet received at 31 December 1958 in respect of UNREF.

Agenda item 42 5

3. The Advisory Committee notes with interest that further progress has been made in respect of final financial accounting on UNREF projects. Thus, at 31 March 1959, 237 projects amounting to some $6.9 million out of a total of 700 projects amounting to some $23.5 million, have been reported on for purposes of audit. Of the remaining 463 projects ($16.6 million), final financial reporting is stated to be overdue in respect of 164 projects totalling some $4.8 million (A/4118, page 2). The Committee trusts that the successful efforts made in recent months will be continued and even intensified so as to obtain at an early date final accounting of all projects for which full payment has been made.

4. The Advisory Committee has inquired into the various points raised by the Board of Auditors as well as other matters relating to administrative and financial routine. None of these matters raises any immediate questions for the attention of the General Assembly.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[14 October 1959]

- 1. At its 708th meeting, held on 25 September 1959, the Fifth Committee considered the financial reports and accounts and the reports of the Board of Auditors for the United Nations (A/4116), the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) (A/4115), the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) (A/4117) and the United Nations Refugee Fund (UNREF) (A/4118). The Committee also had before it four reports (A/4153-A/4156) of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in which comments and recommendations were offered on certain points arising from the accounts and the audit reports. The Board of Auditors, the Secretary-General, the Executive Director of UNICEF, the Director of UNRWA and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees were represented during the discussions.
- 2. In connexion with the United Nations accounts, a suggestion was made that it might be useful if, in the future, the Secretary-General could submit a single financial report containing a combined statement of assets and liabilities for all the funds in his custody, with annexes giving the detailed accounts; the representative of the Secretary-General undertook to have the various aspects of the suggestion studied, in consultation with the Advisory Committee. Concern was expressed at the instances cited by the Advisory Committee (A/4153, para. 5) of defalcation, illegal exchange transactions and losses and bad debts. The representative of the Secretary-General assured the Committee that, while the cases were exceptional, the Secretary-General, together with the Board of Auditors and the Advisory Committee, had thoroughly investigated the cases involved and that all possible measures had been taken to safeguard the interests of the Organization.
- 3. In connexion with the UNICEF accounts, the Committee was informed of the action taken by the UNICEF Executive Board at its session in September 1959 in regard to the Advisory Committee's comments (A/4154, paras. 2-5) on the more rapid use of the Fund's resources. Several representatives, in expressing their appreciation of the work of UNICEF, welcomed the actions which had been taken by the Executive Board. The greater volume of allocations to projects would reduce the level of unallocated resources from $5.2 million at the beginning of 1959 to an estimated $1.1 million at the beginning of 1960.

The Board had also decided to extend the procedure for making annual project allocations rather than allocations sometimes covering several years; annual allocations had been in effect for disease-control projects and would now be used for allocations for maternal and child welfare and milk conservation projects. In reply to suggestions that individual contributions to the Fund, as distinct from governmental contributions, might be increased through the organization of national campaigns, the Deputy Executive Director of UNICEF pointed out that it was for Governments to take the appropriate decisions for such campaigns in their own countries; some Governments preferred that their contributions to UNICEF should be drawn from public funds since appeals were made to individuals on behalf of so many other causes. Attention was also given, in the course of the discussion, to the proportion of administrative and operational services costs to the total expenses of the Fund.

4. The Committee wishes to place on record its appreciation of the services rendered to the Organization by the Board of Auditors.

Recommendations of the Fifth Committee

- 5. The results of the voting were as follows: draft resolution I was adopted by 48 votes to none, with 8 abstentions; draft resolution II was adopted unanimously; draft resolution IV was adopted unanimously; draft resolution IV was adopted by 50 votes to none, with 10 abstentions.
- 6. The Fifth Committee therefore decided to recommend to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions:

PART I OF THE SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR 1959

DOCUMENT A/4198

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [11 September 1959]

United States dollar:

- 1. The General Assembly, by resolution 1338 (XIII) of 13 December 1958, voted appropriations for 1959 totalling $60,802,120. The revised estimates submitted herewith cover requirements totalling $61,757,920, an increase of $955,800. Unforeseen and extraordinary expenses authorized under the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII) of 13 December 1958 and included in the increased estimates amount to $615,500. The increased expenditure estimates also include additional requirements totalling $137,500, which will be offset by income of the same amount.
- 2. During 1959, efforts have been made to keep the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions even more currently informed than heretofore on developments affecting or likely to affect the budget. Thus, in addition to those unforeseen and extraordinary expenses incurred, as provided in paragraph 1 of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII), with the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee, the Committee has been provided as soon as possible with details of those unforeseen expenses authorized by the Secretary-General, under paragraph 1 (a) of that resolution, as relating to the maintenance of peace and security or urgent economic rehabilitation. The detailed mid-year review of the estimates carried out with the Advisory Committee further enabled the Secretary-General to acquaint the Committee with the budgetary situation. At the time of the mid-year review, as indicated by the Advisory Committee in its report on the 1960 estimates (A/4170), additional requirements for 1959 of from $750,000 to $1,000,000 were anticipated. The review of requirements made at this time, with the added information available, calls for changes in a number of the specific estimates made in June 1959; nevertheless, the net additional requirements remain of the order indicated.
- 3. In accordance with the wishes of the Advisory Committee and the Fifth Committee, these revised estimates are submitted earlier than has been the case in recent years. They are based on information available at this time, including expenditure figures as at 31 July 1959. Subsequent submissions would be required in the event of further unforeseen requirements or any substantial changes in the bases on which the revised estimates have been made. Specific mention should be made in this connexion of the possibility that, under the provisions of the Staff Regulations, an upward revision of the salary scales for General Service Staff at Headquarters will be called for.

Unforeseen and extraordinary expenses

- 4. As indicated in paragraph 1, the revised estimates include an amount of $615,500 in respect of the following unforeseen and extraordinary expenses authorized under the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII):
- (a) Expenses authorized with the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Ouestions

(i) For the plebiscites in the Cameroons under
United Kingdom administration (section 4).	110,000
(ii) For the comprehensive review of the Joint Staff
Pension System (sections 6 and 8)	27,600
(iii) For commodity conferences (section 1)	3,000
(iv) For the opening of new branch offices of the High Commissioner for Refugees in Morocco and Tunisia (sections 10, 11 and 13)	25,000
(b) Expenses authorized by the Secretary-General u graph 1 (a) of resolution 1339 (XIII)	nder para
(i) For the Conference on the Discontinuance of Nuclear Weapons Tests (section 2)	360,000
(ii) For the United Nations Representative on the Question of Hungary (section 4)	15,300
(iii) For the Good Offices Mission to Cambodia and Thailand (section 4)	9,200
(iv) For the Special Representative of the Secretary-General in Guinea (section 4)	39,300

- 5. Expenses up to $26,100 have also been authorized, under paragraph 1 (b) (i) of resolution 1339 (VIII) for the designation of ad hoc judges for cases before the International Court of Justice.
- 6. Further details of these unforeseen expenses are given in the explanations of the revised estimates for the pertinent sections, and, in respect of the expenses for the pension scheme review and the branch offices of the High Commissioner for Refugees, in subsequent paragraphs of this portion of the report.

Additional expenses offset by income

- 7. The revised estimates provide, inter alia, for two items of increased expenditure totalling $137,500 which will be offset by income of the same amount:
- (a) Television supplies and services. Total requirements of $198,000 are estimated to meet demands from various television outlets; the approved estimate, to be matched by income from the activity, was $80,000. The additional expenditure, $118,000, will be similarly offset by income. In accordance with approved procedures, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions was informed, in May 1959, that an increase in television activities of this order was likely. To provide for expenditures that might arise before the supplementary estimates were approved, the Committee's concurrence was obtained for expenditures not to exceed $80,000 over the approved estimate.
- (b) Branch offices of the High Commissioner for Refugees in Australia and Canada. As indicated in the 1960 budget estimates, (A/4110), a branch office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees has been opened in Australia. Further, a temporary office has been opened in Canada in connexion with the World Refugee Year. There will be reimbursement of $19,500 from the United Nations Refugee Fund in respect of the expenses of these offices.

Main features of the revised estimates

- 8. The estimates for part I (Sessions of the General Assembly, the Councils, Commissions and Committees; pecial meetings and conferences) show an increase of 293,700. The unforeseen and extraordinary expenses rovided for under this part total $363,000. This amounts partially offset by anticipated savings of $69,300 on tems covered by the appropriations, mainly in respect of reduced requirements for the Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation and savings in the provision for the United Nations Conference on the Elimination or Reduction of Future Statelessness.
- 9. The unforeseen and extraordinary expenses covred by the revised estimates for part II (Special misions and related activities) total $173,800. Reductions n estimates for other items, however, total $267,200, to that the revised estimates for part II are $94,400 less han the appropriations. The reductions relate to savings n requirements for several of the special missions under ection 4 ($69,400), a substantially lower estimate under ection 4a in respect of the expenses arising under General Assembly resolution 1237 (ES-III), partially offset by increased requirements for the liquidation expenses of the United Nations Observation Group in Lebanon esulting in a net saving of $164,000, and a reduction in he estimate under section 5 for the United Nations Field Service ($34,800).
- 10. The major feature of the revised estimates for part .II (The Secretariat) is the increase in requirements for common staff costs ($371,200) and travel on home leave ($146,500), where the approved provisions are inadejuate to meet the estimated statutory expenses to be ncurred under the provisions of the Staff Regulations. The estimates for this part are also affected by two items not provided for in the approved estimates: (a) an ipward revision in the salary scales for manual workers it Headquarters ($50,000), and (b) the costs of a charer plane for the visit by the Secretary-General to Africa ($60,000). Savings of $140,700 are foreseen, however, inder section 6, even after allowing for additional temporary assistance requirements for the General Assembly and mission replacements and the increased requirement for manual workers' salaries. These savings, together with some reductions in the estimates for certain travel tems, bring the net additional requirements under part III to $396,000.
- 11. The 1959 appropriations included $9,400 under section 8 for the United Nations share of the estimated costs of the Expert Group on the Comprehensive Review of the Joint Staff Pension System, established under General Assembly resolution 1310 (XIII). This amount related to an estimate 1 of $26,300 ($18,800 in 1959 and $7,500 in 1960) as the gross expense, to be shared between the member organizations of the Pension Fund. As more detailed arrangements for the review developed, t was necessary to revise the gross estimate to $67,000, ($37,000 in 1959 and $30,000 in 1960). The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Ouestions was informed of the revised estimates, and subject to certain observations, that Committee concurred in the Secretary-General's entering into 1959 commitments not exceeding $37,000 on a gross basis, noting that, after
- ¹ Official Records of the General Assembly, Thirteenth Sesesion, Annexes, agenda item 53, document A/C.5/760.

- recovery of the shares of other organizations, the net 1959 cost to the United Nations will be $18,500. The estimates now submitted include provision for the increase of $27,600 over the amount appropriated; the increase is distributed as follows: $25,000 to section 6, $2,100 to section 8 and $500 to section 11.
- 12. Additional requirements of $137,200 are foreseen for part IV (Special offices). The need for an increase of $10,000 under section 10a (World Refugee Year) is explained in the 1960 budget estimates. As regards section 10 (Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees) increased requirements totalling $127,200 are anticipated. Of this amount, some $31,900 relates to estimated additional costs of four new field offices for which provision was not included in the 1959 estimates. In addition to the two offices referred to in paragraph 7 (b) above for which a supplementary grantin-aid of $19,500 from voluntary funds is anticipated ($17,100 under section 10) the High Commissioner has considered it essential, in pursuance of General Assembly resolution 1286 (XIII) relating to refugees in Morocco and Tunisia, for new branch offices to be opened in those two countries as from 1 September 1959 subject to possible further review of the High Commissioner's over-all budgetary needs, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has provisionally agreed that additional expenditures of $25,000 may be incurred in 1959 with respect to these two offices ($14,800 under section 10, $2,200 under section 11, and $8,000 under section 13). The balance of the increased estimate for this section relates in the main to revised estimates for salaries and wages and common staff costs of the approved establishment.
- 13. The estimate for part V (Common services and equipment) shows an increase of $159,700. An increase of $243,700 under section 11 (General expenses) relates in the main to added requirements of $118,000 for television activities which will be offset by income, and $96,500 for rate and wage increases in connexion with contractual services. After providing for unforeseen expenses in connexion with the branch offices of the High Commissioner for Refugees in Morocco and Tunisia, a surplus of $84,000 is foreseen in the requirement for section 13 (Permanent equipment). It should be noted, however, that of that surplus an amount of $40,000 arises from the postponement to 1960 of the architectural survey of the Headquarters building; reappropriation of this provision for 1960 will be requested.
- 14. No change is called for under part VI (Technical programmes) or part VII (Special expenses).
- 15. Under part VIII (International Court of Justice) the increased estimate of $63,600 covers unforeseen and extraordinary expenses of $26,100 relating to the designation of ad hoc judges, and additional requirements arising from the high level of activity of the Court during 1959.

Income

16. By its resolution 1338 (XIII), the General Assembly approved estimates of $5,317,880 for income other than staff assessment and $6,123,000 for income from staff assessment. The estimate for income from staff assessment is maintained; an increase of some $210,000 is foreseen for other income.

	Total	828,200	882,500	691,404

- 18. An estimated saving of $50,000 is anticipated under chapter I, owing in the main to a reduction in requirements for the Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation. The Committee will not hold a second meeting in 1959 as provided for in the estimates; in addition it is not now anticipated that expenditures will be incurred this year on special projects although work on one such project, to which reference is made in the Committee's report to the General Assembly (A/4119, annex I, para. 4), will be initiated.
- 19. Savings totalling $7,300 are anticipated under chapters III and IV, while unforeseen expenditures of some $3,000 for commodity conferences have been incurred with the prior approval of the Advisory Committee.

20. Should any further savings materialize in the revised estimates for this section, it is proposed that they be utilized to pay the costs of travel of representatives to the General Assembly to the extent that such claims can be accommodated before closing the 1959 accounts

Section 2. Special meetings and conferences

United	States dollar
Revised estimate	1,891,500
Appropriation	1,543,500
Obligations to 31 July 1959

- 22. Requirements for the United Nations Conference on the Elimination or Reduction of Future Statelessness have proved to be some $12,000 less than the amount previously authorized.
- 23. The approved estimate of $1,500,000 for the second International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, held in 1958, is maintained. The printing of thirty of the thirty-three volumes of the English edition of the proceedings has been completed and the remaining volumes will appear in the near future. It is expected that all the material for the French and Spanish editions will be in the hands of the printers before the end of the year. In the event that, under the Financial Regulations, any costs arising from the production of the French or Spanish editions must be charged to the 1960 accounts, it is proposed to report the details of such requirements for the concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budge-
- tary Questions. It is expected that any such requirements for 1960 would be fully offset by savings in the 1959 provision.
- 24. Sales of the printed volumes of the proceedings of the Conference have been vigorously promoted, the extra costs thus incurred having been charged, with the concurrence of the Advisory Committee, to the revenue from the operation.
- 25. The requirements for the Conference on the Discontinuance of Nuclear Weapons Tests have beer authorized as unforeseen expenses relating to the maintenance of peace and security under paragraph 1 (a) of resolution 1339 (XIII). The estimate now submitted takes into account actual expenditures to the time of the adjournment of the conference in late August 1959, and provides for some two months further meetings after its resumption in mid-October. Monthly requirements during this later period will be higher than previously s Headquarters staff servicing the conference will have o be replaced during the General Assembly.

- 28. Unforeseen and extraordinary expenses have required the addition of four new chapters for which the estimated expenditures total $173,800. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has been kept informed in the three cases where the expenditures have been incurred under the authority of paragraph 1 (a) of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII) relating to the maintenance of peace and security or urgent economic rehabilitation; in the fourth case, plebiscites in the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, detailed estimates have been submitted for the concurrence of the Committee. The new chapters are:
- (a) Chapter X. The United Nations Good Offices Mission to Cambodia and Thailand was established by he Secretary-General at the request of these two Governments following a suspension of their diplomatic relations. The estimate of $9,200 provides for an honorarium for the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, his travel to Headquarters and the area, and the travel of the Secretariat staff member who accompanied him on the mission.
- (b) Chapter XI. The United Nations Representative on the Question of Hungary was appointed by the General Assembly under resolution 1312 (XIII) for the purpose of reporting on significant developments relating to the implementation of the Assembly resolutions on Hungary. The estimate of $15,300 provides for the travel, honorarium and subsistence allowance of the Representative ($10,000), and for the salary of a secretary ($5,300).

(c) Chapter XII. United Nations plebiscites for the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration are to be held in 1959 and 1960 in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1350 (XIII). The requirements for 1960 have been included in the budget estimates for that year (A/4110) and detailed estimates of $105,400 for 1959 were submitted for concurrence of the Advisory Committee. A subsequent review indicates additional requirements for 1959 of some $4,600. The main objects of expenditure covered by the estimate are:

United St	ates dollars
Salary and allowances of the Plebiscite Commissioner	12,900
Travel and subsistence of staff	67,400
Local transportation in the Cameroons	20,400
Supplies and services	4,800
Freight and communications	4,000
Hospitality	500

TOTAL, 1959 110,000

(d) Chapter XIII. In order to provide for careful and co-ordinated planning of the assistance furnished by the United Nations family to Guinea in the first phase of its independence, a Special Representative of the Secretary-General has been sent to that country, at the invitation of the Government and after consultation with the heads of the interested specialized agencies. The estimate of $39,300 provides for the salary, travel and subsistence of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General; the travel and subsistence of a personal assistant and secretary; the replacement of the secretary at Headquarters; and for local transportation, communications and supplies. The estimated requirement notified to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has been increased by $2,400 to provide for unforeseen travel costs.

29. The revised estimates for the nine chapters for which provision was made in the 1959 budget show an over-all saving of about $69,400. The larger savings arise: (a) because it is improbable that the United Nations will fully assume the cost of operating the Memorial Cemetery in Korea during this year, (b) from delayed recruitment of land evaluation staff for the Conciliation Commission for Palestine, and (c) because the Good Offices Committee on South West Africa did not travel to the field. An increased requirement o $12,000 is estimated for the Truce Supervision Organi zation in Palestine owing to the necessity of implement ing more adequate security measures.

31. The 1959 budget estimates did not make adequate provision for termination indemnities, freight expenses, and the costs of forwarding the personal effects of some 612 observers of the Observation Group in Lebanon. In accordance with its recommendation, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has been informed concerning the liquidation expenses for the Group and the disposition of its equipment; income of $360,000 in 1959 is anticipated in connexion with the disposition of the equipment.

32. Expenses resulting from General Assembly resolution 1237 (ES-III) are now estimated at $214,000 as compared with the approved estimate of $450,000. As indicated in the introduction to the annual report of the Secretary-General on the work of the Organization (A/4132/Add. 1), the Office of the Special Representative in Amman is maintained but the supporting offices in Beirut and Damascus have been found unnecessary and have, therefore, not been established.

	Total	1,119,000	1,153,800	683,449

33. The estimated saving of $34,800 in this section is largely accounted for by the fact that approximately seventy posts were occupied for the first half of the year below the levels authorized in the manning table, and by the appointment of more junior staff to replace senior men transferred and charged to the United Nations Emergency Force.

- 35. Excluding the question of a possible increase in 959 in General Service salary rates at Headquarters, a urplus of approximately $140,000 is estimated for secon 6.
- 36. The above revised estimates take into account: the acrease in wage rates for manual workers from 1 Janury 1959 (referred to under section 6 of the budget stimates for 1960) (A/4110); a more realistic estimate f $292,000 for temporary assistance for the thirteenth ession of the General Assembly as compared with 200,000 originally provided for in the 1959 appropriaion³ (also referred to in relation to 1960 in the estimates or the year); an anticipated increase of about $35,000 or mission replacements as compared with original stimates owing in part to the tight staffing position at he General Service level and the consequent need of epartments for replacement of mission service staff; n increase of approximately $25,000 under temporary ssistance in connexion with the work of the Expert roup on the Comprehensive Review of the Joint Staff 'ension system; and finally an increase in temporary ssistance costs occasioned by the initial provision partvay through the year of six additional guard posts, as a esult of which savings on overtime costs are anticipated which reduction is expected to continue also in 1960 s referred to in the 1960 estimates).
- 37. Savings in salary costs more than offsetting these icreases are accounted for by delays experienced in ecruitment of suitable professional staff, special regard eing continuously given to the principle of geographical istribution. Such delays were accentuated during the rst half of the year, partly as the result of the "freeze" laced on recruitment during the latter months of 1958 ollowing the reduction in the supplementary credits equested for that year. The progressive introduction of nore effective procedures for manning-table control has lso helped to maximize savings on the established post ccount. More recently, an increased availability of suitble candidates, particularly from numerically underepresented countries, is likely to result in an appreciable eduction in the vacancy situation with a consequent inrease in the level of salary costs in the latter part of 959. Recruitment costs dealt with under section 7 below rill be similarly affected.

Section 6a. Economic Commission for Africa

	United	States dollar
Revised estimate		500,000
Appropriation		500,000
Obligations to 31 July 1959		106,182ª

^{*} Includes field expenditures to 31 May 1959.

- 38. No change is proposed in the estimates for this section.
- 39. The work of the Commission has developed during 1959 in accordance with the work programme approved by the Commission at its first session (December 1958-January 1959), to which reference is made both in the initial 1960 budget estimates and in the revised 1960 estimates arising from decisions of the Economic and Social Council (A/C.5/777). In view of the importance of the programme of technical meetings to the work of the Commission, arrangements have been made for the convening in 1959 of a technical seminar of African statisticians, a seminar on community development, a meeting of experts on national accounts and one of economic planners. Further, in consultation with the Statistical Office, arrangements are being made to begin in 1959 a statistical survey of Africa designed to review the basic statistical series already available in the region and to concert measures for improving such series, their comparability and standardization.
- 40. The Government of Ethiopia has announced its intention of building an "Africa Hall" in Addis Ababa which would accommodate the secretariat and provide the necessary conference space for meetings of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies. For the time being, the Government has provided a three-storey building which meets the needs of the Commission secretariat. Special arrangements are made for holding large meetings.
- 41. As regards recruitment of the staff, it is expected that twenty-six of the twenty-eight posts authorized for the Professional category and above will be filled in the course of the year. Savings in the established posts and training accounts should, however, be sufficient to meet additional requirements relating to the above-noted projects.

Section 7. Common staff costs

Unite	d States dollars
Revised estimate	6,802,700
Appropriation	6,431,500
Obligations to 31 July 1959	4,017,254

42. The revised estimates for section 7, by chapter, are as follows:

Chapter		Revised estimate	Approved estimate	Obligations to 31 July 1959
_			United States dolla	ırs
I.	Staff allowances (dependency allowances, education grants and related travel)	1,759,000	1,669,000	1,046,482
II.	Social security payments (contributions, Joint Staff Pension Fund, medical insurance, com- pensatory payments, retirement allowance for former Secretaries-General	3,443,000	3,406,100	2,000,410
III. IV.	Recruitment, transfer and separation costs Other common staff costs (language training,	1,500,000	1,255,700	905,990
	professional trainees, staff welfare)	100,700	100,700	64,372

43. The estimated additional requirements under chaper I are $74,500 for dependency allowances and $15,500 or education grants and related travel. As indicated in 1960 estimates, statistical bases are being gradually leveloped as a result of which it is hoped that more precise initial estimating will be possible in future for these and other common staff costs.

44. The additional requirement indicated under chapter II is about $37,000, which is accounted for by a possible small surplus on the item for contributions to the Joint Staff Pension Fund and by deficiencies for compensatory payments, and for contributions to medical insurance. In the case of compensatory payments, it has been the practice to include a notional figure of $35,000 each year; the payments for 1959 to date are about $37,000 and additional payments of perhaps $23,000 are foreseen at this time. Owing to the nature of the payments and the circumstances giving rise thereto, the actual costs under this item may clearly vary considerably from year to year. A deficiency of some $27,000 relating to medical insurance is accounted for mainly by an increase in medical insurance premium rates, as detailed under section 7 of the 1960 budget estimates, and in part by a gradual small increase in staff member participation in the plans, as well as by the necessity for some payments in 1959 owing to a 1958 operating deficiency under the insurance programme; the latter item of about $7,500 will probably be recovered in due course.

45. Chapter III reflects an anticipated deficiency or recruitment, transfer and separation costs of some $244, 000. This increase is accounted for by the programm of transfers and out-postings in 1959, by the additiona appointments anticipated in the second half of the yea for the reasons indicated under section 6 above, and by some increase in travel and removal rates. It is in lim with the increase in costs anticipated under this chapte for 1960 as set out in paragraph 14 of the budget fore word and under section 7 of the 1960 estimates.

Section 8. Travel of staff and members of administrative bodies

Unite	d States doll a 1
Revised estimate	1,695,600
Appropriation	1,530,100
Obligations to 31 July 1959

46. The revised estimates for section 8 are as follows

	Revised estimate	Approved estimate	Obligations to 31 July 1959
		United States dolla	ırs
Travel of staff to meetings	190,700	204,300	174,030
Travel on other official business	373,900	393,900	249,853
Travel on home leave	1,046,500	900,000	919,624
Travel of members of administrative bodies	24,500	31,900	13,306
Visit to Africa by the Secretary-General	60,000	.	'
Total	1,695,600	1,530,100	1,356,813

- 47. Expenditures under this section have been affected by a 5 per cent increase in air travel costs which occurred early in 1959. It has been possible, however, to keep expenses within the approved estimates except in the case of travel on home leave.
- 48. The reduction in requirements for travel of staff to meetings relates in the main to savings in the estimates for the meeting in Australia of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East ($6,900) and the meeting in Mexico City of the Economic and Social Council ($5,800). Requirements under this section for special economic studies in the Middle East and Africa, for which $30,000 was included in the 1959 estimates, have been lower than anticipated. This, together with other small economies, makes possible a reduction of $20,000 in the estimate for travel on other official business. The estimated reduction of $7,300 in requirements for travel of members of administrative bodies results from the fact that no meeting of the International Civil Service Advisory Board has been called for this year; the saving of $10,000 on this account is partially offset by increased requirements in connexion with the Comprehensive Review of the Joint Staff Pension System.
- 49. Additional requirements of $146,500 are estimated for travel on home leave. These requirements arise in part from the increased cost of air travel, but more from the fact that entitlements have been exercised to a fuller extent than anticipated. In submitting estimates for home leave, reductions from the actual costed requirements of total entitlements are made, on the basis of experience, for non-exercise of entitlements, either by deferment or by turnover of staff. The revised estimate now submitted assumes that approximately half of the remaining entitlements will in fact be exercised.

50. The Secretary-General will undertake a visit to various countries and territories of Africa immediately after the close of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly. In view of the distances involved, and the time available to the Secretary-General, travel other that by chartered plane is not feasible. Following consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, the revised estimates accordingly include provision in an amount of $60,000 for the cost of the necessary charter.

Appropriation		1,398,000

II. III.	Salaries and wages		United States dollar 1,099,200 79,000 200,500 19,300	664,810 54,857 136,330 14,338
	Total	1,525,200	1,398,000	870,335

- 53. Reference is made in the introduction to this report (paragraph 12) to the requirements for the Office of he High Commissioner for Refugees.
- 54. The increased estimate for chapter I reflects: (a) an increase of $42,000 for the costs of the approved establishment, due mainly to a low turnover of staff and the impact of salary increments, and (b) an increase of $34,700 in temporary assistance requirements. The latter ncrease results for the most part from the opening of the new branch offices in Australia, Morocco and Tunisia, and the temporary office in Canada; and from the appointment of legal correspondents in Latin American countries for the purpose of strengthening the legal projection work of the Office in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1284 (XIII).
- 55. The increased requirement of $6,000 for travel on official business reflects the needs of the new offices.
- 56. The increase in common staff costs amounting to $44,500 is due to the impact of the new dependency definitions ($5,300), increased United Nations contributions to medical insurance ($1,000), the increase in pensionable remuneration of the staff ($9,900) and to the payment of assignment allowances which were not previously provided for in the estimates ($26,600). Common staff costs in respect of the new offices are estimated at $1,700.
- 57. As noted in paragraph 12, there will be reimbursement from the United Nations Refugee Fund totalling $19,500 in respect of the additional requirements for the offices in Australia and Canada; of this amount, $17,100 relates to provisions under this section.

Section 10a. World Refugee Year

United St	ates doll ars
Revised estimate	60,000
Appropriation	50,000
Obligations to 31 July 1959

58. At the end of March 1959 the Secretary-General reported to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions that while only twelve countries had at that time expressed interest in the World Refugee Year, there were indications that the number of participants would be much larger; in the latter circumstance, an increase in the budget provision of $50,000 would be required. As at 1 September 1959, sixty countries had formally announced their participation in the activity and more are expected to do so. In most of these countries active campaigns have been launched which require information material and other forms of assistance from the secretariat of the World Refugee Year. Accordingly, as detailed in the budget estimates for 1960. a total expenditure of $90,000 for the activity is foreseen, of which $60,000 would be incurred in 1959.

	Total	5,573,700	5,330,000	3,313,021

- 60. The increase of $243,700 over the appropriation relates to: (a) additional costs on account of television activities, matched by income ($118,000), (b) rate and wage increases not provided for in the original 1959 appropriation ($96,500) and (c) other anticipated requirements ($29,200).
- 61. Following the practice in previous years, the provision for television activities has been increased, after consultation with the Advisory Committee, in order to meet the expected demands from various outlets. Additional expenses estimated at $118,000 will be compensated for by an increase in revenue in an equal amount.
- 62. Additional requirements totalling $96,500 directly attributable to rate and wage increases relate, at Headquarters, to increased contractual costs for maintenance of premises ($60,000) and equipment ($1,000), communications ($13,500) and public information supplies and services ($3,000). The balance ($19,000) relates to the requirements of offices away from Headquarters.
- 63. Other anticipated requirements amounting to $29,200 result, on the one hand, from additional services and facilities for the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE) and the Economic Commission for Latin America (ECLA) ($31,700) and Geneva ($25,700), (the latter including unforeseen expenses amounting to $4,400 for new branch offices of the High Commissioner for Refugees) and on the other hand, reductions for Information Centres ($22,900) and Headquarters ($5,300). The slight reduction at Headquarters is anticipated despite a number of unexpected expenditures including repairs to reproduction equipment which has suffered unduly because of the large programme of internal reproduction.

^a The amounts for chapters I and II include $131,025 and $11,580, respectively, for items contained in the budgeted programme which have been printed internally.

65. The reduction of $40,000 made in the approved 1959 estimates for this section (reflected as an increase in the deduction for internal reproduction) anticipated the production internally at Geneva, at a cost of $70,000 for staff, equipment and supplies, of official records in Russian for which $110,000 had been included in the estimates. As indicated in the 1960 estimates, it was not possible to establish this operation sufficiently early in the year to realize any substantial savings for 1959; however, it is anticipated that the operation will yield savings of the order of $40,000 in 1960. A detailed report on this activity has been provided to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. As regards 1959, an anticipated increase in internal reproduction at Headquarters makes it possible to maintain the estimates for this section at the approved amount.

66. While the revised chapter estimates are shown at the approved levels for purpose of this submission, adjustments in the actual allocations will probably have to be made before the end of 1959. For example, efforts are being made to produce during 1959 all of the material received during 1958 for publication in the Treaty Series, though the indication is that the cost involved will exceed the amount estimated.

Section 13. Permanent equipment

United 3	States dollars
Revised estimate	613,220
Appropriation	697,220

67. The revised estimates by chapter are as follows:

Chapter		Revised estimate	Approved estimate	Obligations to 31 July 1959
			United States dolla	ırs
I.	Premises and fixed installations	157,000	157,000	141,694
II.	Furniture and equipment	338,220	352,220	191,775

IV.	Construction of the United Nations building in Santiago	50,000	50,000	1,386
	Total	613,220	697,220	335,605

68. As indicated in section 15 of the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110), the 1959 replacement programme for typewriters has been greatly reduced through a special survey undertaken at Headquarters. That reduction, which amounts to $30,000, has been offset by unforeseen requirements for the UNHCR new branch offices in Morocco and Tunisia ($8,000) and for ECAFE in conjunction with setting up office for the Executive Agent for the Mekong River Development Project ($8,000). It is proposed to release the balance of $14,000 in chapter II.

69. With regard to chapter III the Secretary-General has decided to postpone to 1960 the engineering and architectural survey of the Headquarters building. Accordingly, the amount of $40,000 appropriated for this purpose will not be required in 1959; re-appropriation of this sum for 1960 will be requested. It has also been possible, owing to certain changes in the operating procedure of the refrigeration room, to delay the corrosive action to the condenser tubes for which $37,000 is appropriated. Although the corrosion has been slowed down, the process will continue and funds will be required in 1960 as proposed in the budget estimates for that year. However, in 1959, as only $7,000 will be required, the balance of $30,000 is available for release.

- 73. Of the increased requirements of $63,600, an amount of $26,100 relates to unforeseen expenses in respect of judges ad hoc designated in connexion with cases before the Court.
- 74. Increased requirements for temporary assistance for translation and typing ($35,000) and for printing ($16,000) are partially offset by anticipated surpluses in certain other accounts, mainly under chapter I. These additional needs reflect the increased activity of the Court during 1959. It is anticipated that the Court will be sitting some 200 days this year, and the volume of documents which must be translated and printed substantially exceeds that expected when the original 1959 estimates were prepared.

- 75. On the regular income accounts a shortfall is foreseen for 1959; however, the anticipated income from the disposition of equipment purchased for the United Nations Observation Group in Lebanon is expected to offset such a shortfall. A net surplus on the income accounts of some $210,000 is foreseen.
- 76. On the accounts to which the approved estimates relate, lower estimates now appear necessary as follows:
- (a) United Nations Postal Administration: The factors which led to a reduction in the 1960 estimates for this activity, the main element being the decline in speculative purchases of stamps, have been evident through the current year; on the basis of experience to date, a shortfall of $325,000 from the approved net revenue estimate of $1,293,070 is anticipated;
- (b) Income from investments and other interest: As the balances of cash available for investment have been lower than expected, the approved estimate of $121,000 appears to be some $30,000 in excess of likely income.
- (c) The sale of publications (other than the printed volumes of the proceedings of the second International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy): The net revenue from this activity may fall short, by some $25,000, of the approved estimate of $47,200.

- 77. Income in excess of the approved estimates is foreseen for:
- (a) Refund of prior years' expenditures: The cancellation, at the end of 1959, of unliquidated obligations for fellowships originally established in 1957 is expected to increase the approved estimate of $76,000 by $64,000;
- (b) Income from television activities: The increased expenditure estimate under section 11 of $118,000 for these activities is based upon increased income of the same amount;
- (c) Catering and related services and United Nations Gift Centre: The net revenue of these two activities is expected to exceed the estimates by $25,000 in each case.
- 78. Income for 1959 from the disposition of the equipment purchased for the United Nations Observation Group in Lebanon is estimated at $360,000. A detailed report on this operation has been made to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions; that Committee has commented on the operation in its report on the 1960 estimates (A/4170, paras 83-85). As indicated in the revised estimates for the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees, increased income from the United Nations Refugee Fund of some $20,000 is anticipated in respect of certain increased expenditure provisions.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English] [21 September 1959]

I. GENERAL COMMENTS

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the report of the Secretary-General on the supplementary estimates for 1959 (A/4198).
- 2. In its report on the supplementary estimates for 1958,4 the Advisory Committee indicated that it would be desirable if in future submissions relating to any necessary supplementary estimates could be made at an earlier date in order that they might be considered by the Fifth Committee at the beginning of its session. The Advisory Committee notes with appreciation that the Secretary-General has presented his report on the supplementary estimates for 1959 by the end of the first week in September 1959.

- 3. As before, the Advisory Committee was given the opportunity at mid-year to review the preliminary forecast of additional requirements based on expenditure figures as at 31 May 1959 and information available at the middle of June. At that time, the Secretary-General foresaw additional needs in the amount of some $750,000, of which approximately $462,000 would arise as unforeseen and extraordinary expenses incurred under the terms of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII) of 13 December 1958.
- 4. In his present report, the Secretary-General estimates total requirements for 1959 in the amount of $61,757,920, an increase of $955,800 above the appropriated amount of $60,802,120. Further submissions are not excluded, in particular in regard to the expenses connected with the Security Council Sub-Committee under the resolution of 7 September 1959 (S/4216) and a possible upward revision of the salary scales for General Service staff at Headquarters. It is gratifying to note, nevertheless, that the initial supplementary estimates this year are considerably lower than in previous years.
- 5. Of the increase of $955,800 an amount of $615,500 relates to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses authorized under the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII) as follows:
- (a) Expenses authorized with the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

(b) Expenses authorized by the Secretary-General under para graph 1 (a) of resolution 1339 (XIII)
(i) For the Conference on the Discontinuance of

- 6. Apart from the increase of $615,500 for unforeseen and extraordinary expenses as set out in the preceding paragraph, the Secretary-General estimates a net increase of $340,300 in respect of the regular budget appropriations. This net increase arises from additional requirements under sections 7 (Common staff costs), & (Travel of staff and members of administrative bodies). 10 (Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees), 10a (World Refugee Year), 11 (General expenses) and 19 (The International Court of Justice) in a total amount of $935,600, offset to an amount of $595,600 by savings achieved under other sections. It is anticipated also that income other than staff assessment will exceed the approved estimate by $207,120. A table showing the breakdown of increases or decreases under individual budget sections by (a) increases/decreases in regular budgeted items and (b) increases due to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses, is given in an annex to the present report.
- 7. Of the net increase of $340,300, two items of expenditure totalling $137,500 will be offset by related income in the same amount, that is, $118,000 for television supplies and services to meet additional requests for television material from various outlets on a payment basis, and a reimbursement of $19,500 from the United Nations Refugee Fund in respect of the expenses of the branch office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees which has been opened in Australia and a temporary office established in Canada in connexion with the World Refugee Year. Net additional requirements for regular budget purposes, after taking account of related additional income, are therefore in the amount of $202,800.
- 8. Despite the modest nature of the latter figure, the Advisory Committee has given careful attention to areas offering some scope for economies during the remainder of the year. In doing so, the Committee has also examined to the same end such of the estimated expenses for unforeseen and extraordinary purposes, indicated in paragraph 5 above, as have not yet been incurred. The Committee's comments and recommendations are set forth in detail in section II of this report.

Summary of recommendations

9. In respect of all but the three sections indicated below, the Advisory Committee concurs in the revised estimates submitted by the Secretary-General; under sections 4, 7 and 10, the following reductions are recommended:

61,672,720

Revised estimates

10. The Advisory Committee accordingly recommends that for the financial year 1959 the amount of $60,802,120 appropriated by the General Assembly by resolution 1338 (XIII) of 13 December 1958 should be increased by $870,600. The Committee also recommends an increase of $207,120 in income other than from staff assessment.

11. Under this section, additional requirements in the amount of $360,000 for the Conference on the Discontinuance of Nuclear Weapons Tests have been offset in part by savings of $12,000 on the cost of the United Nations Conference on the Reduction or Limitation of Statelessness.

- 12. Apart from an increase of $12,000 for the Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine owing to the need for implementing more adequate security measures, the net increase of $104,400 relates to expenditures in the amount of $173,800 on the following four new missions: United Nations Good Offices Mission to Cambodia and Thailand ($9,200), United Nations Representative on the Question of Hungary ($15,300), United Nations Plebiscites for the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration ($110,000), and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General in Guinea ($39,300). The increase has been partially offset by savings of $69,400 under previously existing chapters of the section.
- 13. The estimates in respect of the plebiscites in the Cameroons were the subject of the Advisory Committee's consideration and concurrence in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII) relating to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses for 1959. The other three new missions mentioned in the preceding paragraph have been considered as falling within the scope of paragraph 1 (a) of resolution 1339 (XIII), which authorizes the Secretary-General to enter into such commitments, not exceeding a total of $2 million, as he certifies relate to the maintenance of peace and security or to "urgent economic rehabilitation". As regards the Special Representative of the Secretary-General in Guinea, the Advisory Committee regrets that extra funds were considered necessary for a secretary as well as a personal assistant. Apart from this, however, there may be some doubt as to whether this particular activity, which is intended to provide for co-ordinated planning of the economic and social assistance furnished to Guinea by the several United Nations agencies and programmes, could be considered as coming within the scope of urgent economic rehabilitation.

14. The Advisory Committee trusts that further efforts to achieve economies under this section, and in particular under chapters II, IV and XIII, should prove possible during the remaining months of the year. The Committee accordingly recommends that the increase under this section should be limited to $94,400, representing a reduction of $10,000 in the estimate submitted by the Secretary-General.

Section 4a. Expenses arising from General Assembly resolution 1237 (ES-III) and residual expenses of the United Nations Observation Group in Lebanon

Initial appropriation	500,000

15. The Advisory Committee notes that income of $360,000 in 1959 is anticipated in connexion with the disposition of equipment belonging to the United Nations Observation Group in Lebanon. This income will be derived from charges to the United Nations budget and payments from the United Nations Emergency Force, the United Nations Children's Fund, and technical assistance accounts, as a result of the fact that approved equipment requirements for these budgetary and extrabudgetary activities are being met in part by allocations from the UNOGIL stock held in reserve.⁶

Section 6. Salaries and wages

16. The revised estimates under this section take into account a number of increased requirements (A/4198, para. 36) including an item for which the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee was obtained, namely $25,000 for temporary assistance in connexion with the work of the Expert Group on the Comprehensive Review of the Joint Staff Pension System. These increases are,

United States dollars

Revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General	6 902 700*
Revised estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee
initial appropriation	0,431,300

17. The net increase of some $371,000 in the revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General arises from deficiencies relating to the following purposes:

T.	Inited S	tates dollars
Dependency allowances		74,500
Education grants and related travel		15,500
Compensatory payments		25,000
Contributions to medical insurance		27,000
Recruitment, transfer and separation costs		244,000
r	OTAL	386,000

representation saving of some $15,000 is anticipated the provision for contributions to the Joint Staff Penon Fund.

- 18. The Advisory Committee recognizes that the additional needs for compensatory payments and the shortfall in respect of medical insurance contributions as a result of increased premium rates are clearly of an unforeseen nature. The Committee has taken into account also that precise initial estimating of such costs as dependency allowances and education grants and related travel presents certain difficulties. The Committee believes, however, that such costs as those related to recruitment and transfer can be controlled to a large extent with a view to keeping them as closely as possible within approved provisions. The Committee is aware of the need to give effect to the directives of the General Assembly in respect of greater geographical distribution of appointments and more frequent rotation of the incumbents of such posts as the directors of information centres; indeed, these directives should have been taken into account in the initial plans for the year which, if necessary, might have been reviewed and adjusted to reflect the new emphasis.
- 19. In the circumstances, the Committee would suggest that every effort should be made during the remaining months of the year to keep transfers to the minimum and to defer appointments in respect of which no commitments have yet been made, wherever this would not interfere with the implementation of the principle of geographical distribution of staff. It would be necessary in consequence to review the 1960 programme of recruitments and transfers so that any of the deferred actions that are essential might be accommodated in 1960 without increased appropriations for that year.
- 20. The Advisory Committee accordingly recommends that the initial appropriation of $6,431,500 under section 7 should be increased by $321,200 to an amount of $6,752,700, representing a reduction of $50,000 in the revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General.

- 21. Under this section, it is anticipated that savings would be achieved on the initial appropriations for travel of staff to meetings ($13,600), travel on other official business ($20,000) and travel of members of administrative bodies ($10,000). Additional requirements would however, arise in respect of travel on home leave ($146,500), the Comprehensive Review of the Joint Staff Pension Scheme ($2,600), and the Secretary-General's proposed visit to various countries and territories of Africa immediately after the close of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly ($60,000). The net increase under the section as a whole is therefore $165,500.
- 22. The Advisory Committee is appreciative of the economies achieved in respect of travel on official business ($20,000) and of travel of staff to the session at Broadbeach (Australia) of the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East ($6,900) and to the session in Mexico City of the Economic and Social Council ($5,800). As regards travel on home leave, the increase of $146,500 is attributable in part to a rise in transportation fares; in addition, home leave entitlements have been exercised to a fuller extent than anticipated.

Section 10. Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees

United States dollars

Revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-
General	1,525,200*
Revised estimate recommended by the Advisory
Committee	1,500,000
Initial appropriation	1,398,000

- 23. Increased requirements are estimated at $127,200, of which an amount of $17,100 will be reimbursed from the United Nations Refugee Fund in respect of the costs of the branch offices which have been established in Australia and Canada. The latter amount has been included as a credit in the revised estimate of miscellaneous income in 1959.
 - 24. The increase of $127,200 comprises the following:

	United .	icrease States doll ars
Salaries and wages		42,000
Temporary assistance		34,700
Travel on official business		6,000
Common staff costs		44,500
	Тотат	127 200

25. Of these additional requirements a relatively minor amount relates to expenditure actually unforeseen. A substantial portion would seem to be attributable to initial underestimating, particularly in regard to anticipated turnover of staff, salary increments, the impact of the new dependency definitions and payment of assignment allowances. Indeed no provision had been included in the initial estimates under section 10 in respect of the last-mentioned item. Some $35,000 would appear to arise from new activities such as the opening of new branch offices in Australia, Morocco and Tunisia, and a temporary office in Canada, as well as the proposed appointment of legal correspondents in certain Latin American countries for the purpose of strengthening the legal protection work of the High Commissioner's Office in accordance with General Assembly resolution 1284 (XIII) of 5 December 1958.

- 26. With the exception of the new offices in Morocco and Tunisia, the Advisory Committee did not have the opportunity to consider and concur in the cost estimates for these new activities. The integration in the United Nations budget of the total administrative expenses of the Office of the High Commissioner is a recent development and some time might have been required for the strict application of normal procedures in regard to the submission of statements of financial implications of new proposals and to the securing of the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee for unforeseen expenses. The Advisory Committee understands, however, that coordinated arrangements which would ensure close adherence to established financial procedures will be worked out shortly.
- 27. The Advisory Committee will during the current session of the General Assembly have an opportunity of discussing with the High Commissioner many of these questions, including the administrative organization of the Office and the budget estimates for 1960.
- 28. Meanwhile, the Advisory Committee would suggest that efforts be made during the remainder of the year to defer where possible the implementation of any such new activities in respect of which no formal commitments have been made. This would apply in particular to the proposed appointment of legal correspondents. The Advisory Committee accordingly recommends that the initial appropriation of $1,398,000 should be increased to $1,500,000, an amount which is $25,200 less than the revised estimates submitted by the Secretary-General.
- 29. In addition to the supplementary estimates under review, there will possibly be a further supplementary request arising from certain proposals which are being submitted by the High Commissioner to the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme with a view to taking full advantage of the opportunities offered by the World Refugee Year to increase fundraising and public relations activities at the headquarters of the Office of the High Commissioner. The Advisory Committee understands that should any supplementary estimates for 1959 result from these proposals after their consideration by the Executive Committee, the lump-sum contribution from the voluntary funds of the High Commissioner to the United Nations budget would be increased by a corresponding amount.

United S	States dollar.

30. As indicated in the Advisory Committee's report on the 1960 estimates (A/4170, para. 190), the upward revision in the 1959 estimate for the World Refugee Year arises from the participation in the Year by an increasingly large number of Governments and the nature of current arrangements in this regard.

31. Of the additional requirements totalling $243,700, an amount of $118,000 relates to increased expenses on television activities, to be matched by income, and rate and wage increases account for a further $96,500. The detailed breakdown of the increase is given under paragraph 59 of the Secretary-General's report (A/4198). The Advisory Committee notes that of the $4,400 attributed in paragraph 63 of the Secretary-General's report to new branch offices of the High Commissioner, an amount of $2,200 for the offices in Morocco and Tunisia was treated as unforeseen expenditure with the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee.

Section 10. Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees

DOCUMENT A/C.5/797

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [5 November 1959]

- 1. At its 709th meeting, held on 25 September 1959, the Fifth Committee approved provisionally a recommendation of the Advisory Committee (A/4221, paras. 23-29) that the initial appropriation of $1,398,000 for section 10 of the 1959 budget should be increased to $1,500,000, an amount which is $25,200 less than the revised estimates submitted by the Secretary-General. It was understood that prior to a final decision of the Committee on the level of the 1959 estimates for this section, the Advisory Committee would have an opportunity of discussing with the High Commissioner a number of questions arising from these estimates as well as the budget estimates for 1960.
- 2. The 1959 supplementary estimate submitted by the Secretary-General (A/4198) indicated an additional requirement of $127,200 for the following purposes:
- (a) $42,000 for Established Posts arising mainly from low turnover and the impact of salary increments;
- (b) $34,700 in temporary assistance requirements mainly for
- (i) The provision of representation in Australia and New Zealand, Morocco and Tunisia, and temporary representation in Canada;
- (ii) The appointment of UNHCR correspondents in Latin American countries, mainly for strengthening international protection work as called for by General Assembly resolution 1284 (XIII);
- (c) $6,000 for travel on official business for the new offices mentioned under sub-paragraph (b) (i) above.

(d) $44,500 under common staff costs.

The Secretary-General also indicated in his report that a reimbursement of $19,500 from voluntary funds would be forthcoming in respect of the expenditures on the new offices in Australia and Canada.

3. Subsequent to these reports, the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme approved certain proposals for the intensification of public information and fund-raising activities entailing an expenditure of $25,000. The details of the expenditure are:

United States dollars

(a)	Temporary assistance and consultants required for the preparation of pamphlets and other public information material	5,000
(b)	Travel for fund-raising and other public information purposes	9,500
(c)	Public information activities including the issue of films in extra copies and in additional languages; production and distribution of pamphlets; facilities to Press and television services	10,500

While this item of expenditure would also be reimbursed to the regular United Nations budget from voluntary funds, the supplementary estimates for section 10 for the financial year 1959 already submitted by the Secretary-General would require to be increased by a corresponding amount. This action would follow from the Assembly's decision that the administrative expenses for all activities undertaken by the Office should be consolidated in the relevant budget section.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[6 November 1959]

I. Supplementary estimates for 1959

1. In its report to the General Assembly at its four-teenth session on part I of the supplementary estimates for 1959 (A/4221), the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, pending a discussion with the High Commissioner for Refugees in regard to various administrative and financial questions concerning his Office, recommended that the initial appropriation of $1,398,000 under section 10 of the 1959 budget should be increased to $1,500,000, an amount which was $25,200 less than the revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General (A/4198). The Committee suggested in this regard that efforts should be made during the remainder of the year to defer where possible those new activities in respect of which no formal commitments had been made.

- 2. The Advisory Committee's interim recommendation was approved by the Fifth Committee at its 709th meeting held on 25 September 1959.
- 3. The Advisory Committee has since considered, with the High Commissioner, the extent to which economies could be effected in the remaining months of 1959. The Committee understands that the High Commissioner has carefully reviewed the additional requirements in the light of the views expressed in the Committee's report (A/4221), but that, as a practical matter, it would not be possible fully to achieve savings of the order previously recommended. In particular, it has been explained to the Committee that the new branch offices in Morocco and Tunisia, to which a substantial proportion of the increase of $34,700 for temporary assistance was attributed, had been established on a minimal basis. In the case of the branch office for Australia and New Zealand and the temporary office for Canada, the proposed additional expenditure of $19,500 would be offset by a corresponding reimbursement from voluntary funds. However, as the Committee is informed that, owing to technical delays that have occurred in the opening of the offices in Morocco and Tunisia and by postponement of the appointment of legal correspondents, a modest reduction in the supplementary requirements would be possible.

- 4. The Advisory Committee had expected that during the three months remaining after the submission of its interim recommendation, it would be possible to make special efforts to achieve a substantial part of the savings which the Committee had recommended. However, in the light of the practical difficulties now cited by the High Commissioner, the Committee accepts his appraisal of the situation.
- 5. The Advisory Committee has also considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/797), indicating a further increase, to be offset by an equivalent additional grant from the voluntary funds of the High Commissioner's Programme, of $25,000 in the 1959 estimates under section 10. These expenditures arise from the approval in October 1959, by the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, of certain proposals relating to an intensification of the public information and fund-raising activities of the High Commissioner's Office, designed to take full advantage of the possibilities offered by the World Refugee Year.
- 6. The estimate of $25,000 comprises the following elements:

United States dollars

(a) Temporary assistance and consultants required for the preparation of pamphlets and other public information material 5,000

- (b) Travel for public information purposes and for fund-raising missions
- (c) Public information activities, including the issue of films in extra copies and in additional languages; production and distribution of pamphlets; facilities to Press and television services 10,500

- 7. The Advisory Committee, while having no objection to the inclusion of this additional item of $25,000, is not entirely convinced that these funds can be fully expended on a properly planned basis, during the short remaining period, on activities which were only approved by the Executive Committee in October 1959.
- 8. On the basis of the foregoing considerations, the Advisory Committee recommends that the initial 1959 appropriation under section 10—Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees—in the amount of $1,398,-000 should be increased by an amount of $147,200 to a revised total of $1,545,200. Of the increase of $147,200, an amount of $122,200 would relate to the purposes outlined in the Secretary-General's initial report on the supplementary estimates for 1959 (A/4198) and $25,000 for those stated in his later report (A/C.5/797). In addition, the Advisory Committee notes that the reimbursement to the regular budget from the voluntary funds of the High Commissioner's Programme will be increased from $480,000 to $524,500.8

II. Revised budget estimates for 1960

[Paragraphs 9 to 18 of this document concerning the revised budget estimates for the financial year 1960 appear in the fascicle relating to agenda item 44.]

⁸ The increase of $44,500 comprises $19,500 reported earlier (A/4198, para. 57) and $25,000 mentioned in paragraph 5 of this

PART II OF THE SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR 1959

DOCUMENT A/C.5/807

Report of the Secretary-General

- 1. The Fifth Committee examined, at its 708th and 709th meetings, held on 25 September 1959, the supplementary estimates for 1959, on the basis of reports of the Secretary-General (A/4198) and the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/4221). As recommended by the Advisory Committee, the Fifth Committee decided to recommend the following amounts: revised appropriations for 1959, $61,672,720; revised income other than staff assessment, $5,525,000; income from staff assessment, $6,123,000.
- 2. The Committee examined subsequently proposals contained in other reports of the Secretary-General and of the Advisory Committee which affect the level of the 1959 supplementary estimates. It approved at its 742nd meeting, held on 11 November 1959, a new total for section 10, Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. It was also understood, since additional unforeseen expenditure was to be incurred, that before the Committee took a final decision on the matter it would need to make a further review of the over-all 1959 situation.

- 3. The Secretary-General presents herewith a second set of supplementary estimates: additional requirements totalling $254,700 are more than offset by reductions totalling $270,320. The 1959 estimates are thus submitted in a total amount of $61,657,100, a level which is slightly lower than that approved by the Fifth Committee at its 709th meeting. The estimate for income other than staff assessment is increased by $25,000 to a total of $5,550,-000, the estimate for income from staff assessment is increased from $6,123,000 to $6,149,000.
- 4. The table given immediately below summarizes the changes which it is proposed should be made in particular sections of the 1959 budget. Reasons for these changes are given in the text below.

Summary of changes in the level of the 1959 estimates as approved by the Fifth Committee at its 709th and 742nd meetings

Section 4. Special missions and related activities

- 5. The General Assembly by resolution 1352 (XIV) of 16 October 1959 decided that arrangements for the plebiscite in the southern part of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, originally scheduled to begin in December 1959, should begin on 30 September 1960. The Fifth Committee had previously informed the General Assembly (A/4243) of the financial implications of this change, which inter alia envisaged a reduction of $23,300 under section 4, chapter XII of the 1959 estimates.
- 6. The Security Council by resolution of 7 September 1959 (S/4216) decided to appoint a sub-committee of Argentina, Italy, Japan and Tunisia, and instructed the sub-committee to examine the statements made before the Security Council concerning Laos, to receive further statements and documents and to conduct such inquiries as it may determine necessary and to report to the Security Council as soon as possible. The Secretary-General decided that expenses incurred in connexion with the Security Council sub-committee should be considered as expenses relating to the maintenance of peace and security under the terms of paragraph 1 (a) of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII).
- 7. The sub-committee held meetings at Headquarters from 8 to 12 September 1959 when it left for Laos, remaining there until 13 October, two alternative representatives staying on until 14 November 1959.
- 8. Expenditures incurred during the period 8 September to 14 November, attributable to the activities of the sub-committee, are estimated as follows:

United Si	tates dollars
Travel and subsistence of staff	39,000
Travel and subsistence of members
	9,000
Communications
Freight	1,500
Hospitality	1,000
Total	88,000

9. The amounts for travel and subsistence provided for the members of the sub-committee, including alternates, who travelled from their home countries to Laos and return, directly or via Headquarters, and for a secretariat of twelve. Office supplies, living accommodation, communications and local transportation were made available by the Government of Laos, which, to date, has submitted only a partial billing for these services. The main element of the amounts for supplies and services is the rental of seven vehicles at an estimated cost of $6,800. Freight charges were incurred for shipping communications equipment by air from the Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine.

Section 6. Salaries and wages Section 7. Common staff costs

- 10. At its 709th meeting, the Fifth Committee voted an amount of $30,662,000 for section 6 and $6,752,700 for section 7, or a total of $37,414,700 for the two sections. This represented a reduction, as recommended by the Advisory Committee, of $50,000 in section 7, of the Secretary-General's estimates.
- 11. Assuming the adjournment of the General Assembly session at an early date in December as anticipated, the Secretary-General would consider that it will be possible to adhere to the reduced total of $37,414,700 for the two sections, but that depending upon developments he might require the approval of the Advisory Committee for some transfer of credits between the two sections later in the year.
- 12. However, based upon a careful review of expenditures under the two sections up to 31 October 1959, and anticipated minimum expenditures for the remaining two months of the year, no surplus for the two sections can at this time be anticipated within the previously approved reduced total of $37,414,700. It is accordingly necessary to request the appropriation of $121,500 representing the additional estimated cost for 1959 of the 5 per cent increase in salaries for Headquarters General Service staff. The $121,500 additional cost may be divided as follows: $107,500 to section 6, and $14,000 to section 7 covering primarily increased contributions to the Joint Staff Pension Fund. The Fifth Committee examined the relevant reports of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/794) and of the Advisory Committee (A/4260) at its 742nd meeting.

Possible reductions

- 13. The above noted additional requirements can be offset by anticipated reductions in other sections of the 1959 budget:
- (a) A review of expenditure and obligation figures as at 31 October 1959 indicates that a lower provision should suffice, by the amounts specified for section 1, Travel of representatives, members of commissions and committees—$8,200; section 6a, Economic Commission for Africa—$25,000 and section 16, Human rights activities—$13,600;
- (b) A reduction of $100,220 is proposed under section 13, Permanent equipment. Specifically, the proposals of the Secretary-General on (a) The interim arrangements for the Library (A/C.5/796) and (b) The construction of the United Nations building in Santiago, Chile (A/4239) envisaged savings of $60,000 and $30,000 respectively in amounts previously authorized. On the recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/4259 and A/4277) the Fifth Committee approved the former proposal at its 732nd meeting and the latter at its 747th meeting;
- (c) When the Fifth Committee, at its 745th and 747th meetings examined estimates in respect of the programme for the provision of operational, executive and administrative personnel, it was noted that a saving of $100,000 would be made under chapter II of section 17, Public administration, of the 1959 budget (A/4212, A/4212/Add.1 and A/4281).

Special meetings and conferences

14. The Secretary-General, in submitting his supplementary estimates for 1959 (A/4198), indicated that, should costs arise in 1960 for the production of the proceedings of the second International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, he proposed to report the details to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. At that time it was expected that any requirements for 1960 would be offset by savings in the 1959 provision. However, while no solid basis exists for revising the estimate, developments have been such that it is not now certain that the total expenditures for the conference can be limited to the amount of the existing appropriation.

The Joint Staff Pension Board and the United Nations Staff Pension Committee

15. The total estimates submitted provide for the requirements of the Joint Staff Pension Board and the United Nations Staff Pension Committee at a level of $168,500. This represents an increase of $13,300 over the level of appropriation for these activities approved in paragraph 4 of General Assembly resolution 1338 (XIII) of 13 December 1958. In the main, the additional costs arise from unbudgeted common staff costs, including home leave requirements, owing to changes which have occurred in the composition of the Board's secretariat. Approximately two-thirds ($9,000) of the additional provision is offset by an increase in the income estimates in accordance with the practice whereby the costs of the activity are shared between the United Nations budget and the Joint Staff Pension Fund.

Income estimates

- 16. A review of the total income estimate indicates that for purposes other than those specified below, the initially approved amount of $5,525,000 should be maintained. As noted by the Fifth Committee at its 742nd meeting, the estimate for income other than staff assessment will be increased by a further contribution from the United Nations Refugee Fund of $25,000 (A/C.5/797, A/4264). The increased income of $9,000 from the Joint Staff Pension Fund noted in paragraph 15 above will be offset by a corresponding decrease in net revenue from the revenue-producing activities consequent upon the local salary increases (A/C.5/794, A/4260). The total estimate is accordingly proposed at a level of $5,550,000.
- 17. The payment of general service salaries at a higher rate as from 1 October 1959 allows the estimate of income from staff assessment to be increased from $6,123,000 to $6,149,000 (A/C.5/794, A/4260).
- 18. The Secretary-General submits a draft resolution on the supplementary estimates for 1959 consolidating the decisions previously reached by the Fifth Committee and the proposals contained in the present report.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[30 November 1959]

- 1. At its 708th and 709th meetings, the Fifth Committee considered part I of the supplementary estimates for 1959 submitted by the Secretary-General (A/4198, and decided to recommend the following amounts: revised appropriations for 1959, $61,672,720; revised estimate of income other than staff assessment, $5,525,000; income from staff assessment, $6,123,000.
- 2. The Secretary-General has now submitted (A/C.5/807) a second set of supplementary estimates for 1959, under which additional requirements totalling $254,700 are more than offset by reductions in the amount of
- $270,320. The new total figure of gross estimates for 1959 thus amounts to $61,657,100, or $15,620 less than the amount approved by the Fifth Committee at its 709th meeting. The estimate for income other than staff assessment is increased by $25,000 to a total of $5,550,000; the estimate for income from staff assessment is increased from $6,123,000 to $6,149,000.
- 3. The additional requirements totalling $254,700 comprise:
- (a) $88,000 representing expenditures incurred during the period from 8 September to 14 November 1959, attributable to the activities of the Security Council Sub-Committee (on Laos) under the Security Council resolution of 7 September 1959 (S/4216) (section 4);

- (b) $121,500 representing the 1959 costs of the 5 per cent increase in salaries for Headquarters General Service staff, which was introduced effective 1 October 1959 (A/4260) (sections 6 and 7);
- (c) $45,200 representing the additional amount already approved by the Fifth Committee at its 742nd meeting, in respect of the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees (section 10).
- 4. The offsetting decreases, in a total amount of $270,320, include:
- (a) Decreases indicated by a review of expenditure and obligation figures at 31 October 1959: $8,200 under section 1 (Travel of representatives, members of commissions and committees); $25,000 under section 6a (Economic Commission for Africa); and $13,600 under section 16 (Human rights activities);
- (b) A reduction of $23,300 under section 4, chapter XII (Plebiscites for the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration) following the postponement of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Territory to September 1960;
- (c) A reduction of $100,220 under section 13 (Permanent equipment) resulting in the main from the proposals, approved by the Fifth Committee at its 732nd and 747 meetings respectively, concerning interim arrangements for the Library (A/4259, A/C.5/796) and the construction of the United Nations building in Santiago (A/4277, A/4239);
- (d) A saving of $100,000 under section 17, chapter II (Public administration)—programme for the provision of operational, executive and administrative personnel (OPEX) resulting from recruitment and other delays in the execution of the authorized programme for 1959 (A/4281, A/4212 and Add.1).
- 5. The Advisory Committee has inquired into the details of the new elements of increases and decreases and, in particular, of the additional requirements under section 4. There are no points which call for special comment.
- 6. As regards the costs for the production of the records of the second United Nations International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, the Secretary-General has expressed some doubt (A/C.5/807, para. 14) as to the adequacy of the amount of $1.5 million already included in the 1959 budget. The Advisory Committee understands that a printing strike has resulted in certain additional costs and, further, that expenses for the translation and production of certain - documents, which is being done under contract with a Government, may show an increase in terms of the dollar as compared with the original estimates. Nevertheless, the Committee is informed that no significant increase in total expenditure is anticipated, and that such adjustments as may be necessary in the light of the situation at the year-end will be submitted to the Advisory Committee for its concurrence.

- 7. The Advisory Committee notes that, within the revised estimates now presented, the costs of the Joint Staff Pension Board and the United Nations Staff Pension Committee are estimated at $168,500, representing an increase of $13,300 over the amount provided in the initial appropriations. The costs in question are spread over a number of sections of the budget; their total amount is relevant to a determination of the proportionate sum to be reimbursed from the Joint Staff Pension Fund.
- 8. Apart from an increase of $25,000 representing a further contribution from the voluntary funds of the High Commissioner for Refugees (A/4264), the estimate for income other than staff assessment is maintained at the level of $5,525,000 indicated in the earlier report on supplementary estimates (A/4198). There are, however, mutually offsetting variations in the component elements which make up this total figure. The more important of such variations are increases of $125,000 in income from investments and other interest, $57,000 in income from the sale of used equipment, $55,000 in the income from the Gift Centre and catering and related services; and decreases of some $150,000 in revenues from the Postal Administration, $135,000 in the 1959 proceeds from the sale of printed volumes of the proceedings of the second United Nations International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, and $61,000 in the reimbursement for staff and services furnished to specialized agencies and others.
- 9. Income from staff assessment is now estimated at $6,149,000, or an increase of $26,000 over the previous estimate, following the 5 per cent increase in General Service salaries at Headquarters.
- 10. In conclusion, the Advisory Committee recommends the adoption of the draft resolution on supplementary estimates for 1959, proposed by the Secretary-General in the annex to his report (A/C.5/807). Under this draft resolution, the amount of $60,802,120 appropriated by the General Assembly resolution 1338 (XIII) of 13 December 1958 would be increased by $854,980 to a revised total of $61,657,100. The Advisory Committee also recommends the approval of the revised estimates of $5,550,000 for income other than staff assessment and $6,149,000 for income from staff assessment.

DOCUMENT A/4327 Report of the Fifth Committee

[3 December 1959]

1. The Fifth Committee examined the supplementary estimates for 1959 in two parts. Part I was examined at the 708th and 709th meetings held on 25 September 1959, and part II at the 755th meeting on 1 December 1959.

PART I OF THE SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES

2. For the first part of the supplementary estimates, the Committee had before it reports of the Secretary-General (A/4198) and the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/4221), whose recommendations are set out below, together with the decisions of the Fifth Committee:

	Secretary- General's proposal (A/4198)	Advisory Committee's recommendations (A/4221)	Fifth Committee's recommendation to the General Assembly
Supplementary estimates	955,800	United States dollars 870,600	870,600
1959 appropriation (General Assembly resolu- tion 1338 (XIII) of 13 December 1958)	60,802,120	60,802,120	60,802,120
Revised appropriationINCOME	61,757,920	61,672,720	61,672,720
Income other than staff assessment Approved estimate (General Assembly resolution 1338 (XIII)			5,317,880 207,120
Revised estimate for 1959			5,525,000
Income from staff assessmentb Approved estimate (General Assembly resolution 1338 (XIII)			6,123,000

[•] The income estimates submitted by the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee were identical in amount with those recommended by the Fifth Committee.

^b A revision of the approved estimate was not proposed.

3. The Secretary-General's estimate of $955,800 for additional budgetary requirements in 1959 comprised:

United States dollars

- (a) Unforeseen and extraordinary expenses authorized under the terms of General Assembly resolution 1339 (XIII) of 13 December 1958
- 615,500
- (b) Additional requirements under certain regular budget sections. 935,500

 Less sayings on other sections 595,200

340.300

- 4. The report of the Secretary-General indicated (A/4198, para. 7) that the sum of $340,300 (item (b) above) included items of expenditure totalling $137,500 which would be wholly offset by income. The net increase on items of ordinary expenditure was thus limited in effect to $202,800.
- 5. The Advisory Committee recommended (A/4221, para. 9) that a reduction of $85,200 in the proposed supplementary provision should be distributed as follows:

United States dollars
Section 4, Special missions and related activities... 10,000

- 6. General satisfaction was expressed by delegations that the earlier submission of the Secretary-General's proposals had enabled the Fifth Committee to consider the item at the opening of its session. Many representatives also commented favourably on the fact that the supplementary requirements for 1959 were appreciably lower than in the previous year. While that was due in part to the fortuitous circumstance that, with a calmer political situation, fewer calls arose for extraordinary commitments, the marked decrease in the supplementary provision for ordinary expenditure items might largely be ascribed to careful administration of the budget.
 - 7. Divergent views were expressed in the Committee:
- (a) In the opinion of most delegations, encouragement could be drawn from the reports before the Committee. It was evident from the close similarity of their proposals that a sound understanding existed between the Advisory Committee and the Secretary-General, and that administrative and financial control had been further strengthened. There was ground for hoping that, in spite of fluctuations unavoidably associated with the international situation, there would be a continuing trend towards reducing the volume of supplementary appropriations, and possibly—where ordinary expenses were concerned—towards their total elimination. As regards the figures under review, the smallness of the net deficit on regular items testified to the care with which the Secretary-General and the budget committees of the General Assembly had carried out their respective tasks; that was further borne out by the fact that the largest single budget item, salaries and wages of the Secretariat under section 6, might yield a surplus for the first time in four years. There was general support, among these delegations, for the Advisory Committee's recommendation, although some representatives queried the specific distribution of the amounts. Doubt was thus expressed regarding the Advisory Committee's recommendation (A/4221, para. 18) on staff recruitment and transfer costs under section 7. In other areas also the Secretary-General might show compelling reasons for varying the incidence of the proposed cuts. He should therefore retain authority to make necessary transfers, with the Advisory Committee's concurrence, between appropria-

(b) Other delegations took a different position. While recognizing that some progress had been made, they found in the Secretary-General's proposals little cause for satisfaction, and considered that the Advisory Committee could have recommended a heavier reduction. Budgetary discipline called for strict adherence to authorized appropriations, and as the General Assembly had voted a budget of record size for 1959, there could be no justification for a supplementary provision in respect of ordinary expenses. Admittedly, errors might arise in estimating forward requirements, but, with proper planning, they could be repaired in good time. For the year under review, the Committee was faced with additional requests amounting to over $935,000 for items covered by regular appropriations; the fact that savings on certain sections reduced the total to some $340,000 in no way justified the deficits on other sections. On the contrary, the liberal budget provision for 1959 (augnented by purely fortuitous savings on several major ems) might well have served to meet at least a part of ne unforeseen expenses, which, because of favourable ircumstances, were relatively light. In general, account hould be taken of the difficulties which a demand for dditional funds created for Member States; the aim hould be to stabilize expenditure and to confine supplenentary appropriations to unforeseen items covering the olitical and urgent economic needs of the United Naions. Particular criticism was also directed to the inreases under section 8—Travel of staff and members of dministrative bodies, and section 10—Office of the High commissioner for Refugees; it was argued that the eficit on the former section might have been obviated hrough better advance planning of home leave, and that s regards the latter section, the financial regulations had ot apparently been closely observed.

- 8. Some delegations deprecated the provision of funds or the United Nations Representative on the Question f Hungary at a moment when determined efforts were eing made to ease political tension.
- 9. At the 709th meeting of the Committee, representaives of the Secretary-General commented on points aised in the course of the discussion:
- (a) Section 4: Although new expenditure, to an ndeterminate amount, was being incurred by recent lecision of the Security Council, the Secretary-General vould not contest the Advisory Committee's recommenlation (A/4221, para. 14) since, even though the justifiation was not clear, the sum of $10,000 was slight in elation to the total appropriation and the nature of the ctivities concerned. As regards chapter XIII, the Secreary-General did not share the doubt expressed by the Advisory Committee (Ibid., para. 13) concerning the ppointment of a Special Representative in Guinea; in its opinion, the purpose of the mission brought it within he definition of urgent economic rehabilitation;
- (b) Section 7: The recommended cut of $50,000 apparently directed mainly to chapter III—Recruitment, ransfer and separation costs), might cause some diffiulty, and while efforts would be made to absorb the mount within the section, compensatory savings might ave to be drawn from other sections. Several factors and contributed to the over-expenditure: first, there had ong been a tendency to under-budget on section 7, as vell as on section 11—General expense, a tendency which he Secretariat was endeavouring to correct through the ise of surer statistical bases; secondly, at the time when he 1959 estimates were under preparation, the decision o accelerate the rotation of staff among duty stations, and in particular the transfers between Headquarters and information centres, had not yet been taken, and hirdly, as the result of the reduction in the supplemenary estimates for 1958, appointments and transfers inder the 1958 recruitment programme had had to be leferred until 1959. Any further budget reduction in the :urrent year would aggravate delays in the programme of planned recruitment. As regards the thirty-nine appointnents envisaged for the period from mid-September to December 1959, the factor of geographical distribution entered into the majority of cases. Twenty-seven staff ransfers had been planned for the same period, and vhile the number could be reduced, a large part of the eduction of $50,000—if confined to chapter III—would nave to be applied to the appointments programme. That neant a mere deferment of expenditure to 1960;
- (c) Section 8: Requirements for home leave travel were planned and costed with precision on the basis of entitlements under the Staff Regulations; there was, however, one element—the deduction to be made for the non-exercise of entitlements—which was necessarily conjectural. Too large a deduction had been made from the initial cost estimates for 1959. If, however, the Committee followed the suggestion of some delegations for a reduction on section 8, it would be relying on a purely arbitrary assumption. Each of the remaining chapters had yielded savings, which would partially counter-balance the cost of the Secretary-General's forthcoming visit to Africa;

- (d) Section 10: The cost of the branch offices in Australia and Canada would be fully reimbursed from the United Nations Refugee Fund, and as regards the appointment of legal correspondents in Latin American countries, no commitments had yet been made. There had admittedly been a failure, owing to procedural difficulties, to keep the Advisory Committee fully and promptly informed on certain of the additional requirements. Steps were being taken to obviate such an occurrence in future.
- 10. In general, the Secretary-General believed that it would be possible to achieve the reduction recommended by the Advisory Committee, provided that adjustments between appropriation sections might be made with that Committee's prior concurrence. The element of uncertainty, always inherent in forecasts of that kind, was augmented in the present instance because, with the earlier submission of the Secretary-General's report, requirements for an ensuing period of four months had to be estimated on the basis of an experience limited, in the case of Headquarters, to seven months' expenditure, and, in the case of other offices, to six months' expenditure. In those circumstances, the margin of error, on either side of the ledger, was inevitably widened, and the possibility of effecting an even larger reduction could not be excluded. The Committee would in any case need to make a further review, during the current session, of the over-all 1959 situation.
- 11. At the 709th meeting of the Committee, the representative of the Ukrainian SSR proposed that the revised estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee for section 6—Salaries and wages, should be reduced by $92,000 (representing the increase in requirements for temporary assistance in connexion with the General Assembly session), to $30,570,000. The proposal was rejected by 36 votes to 8, with 11 abstentions.
- 12. The Committee voted at the same meeting, on the recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/4221). The result of the voting is shown in the table on page 24.

PART II OF THE SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES

- 13. The second part of the supplementary estimates for 1959 was presented in a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/807), which was considered, together with the comments of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/4308), at the 755th meeting of the Fifth Committee.
- 14. The Secretary-General's second submission comprised the following items:

 United States dollars

 (a) Additional requirements
 254,700

 (b) Reductions
 270,320

The revised total of supplementary requirements for 1959 was thus estimated at $61,657,100, or $15,620 less than the amount of $61,672,720 which the Committee approved at its 709th meeting (see para. 2 above).

- 16. In addition, the Secretary-General's repor (A/C.5/807) submitted the following revisions in thincome estimates:
- (a) Income other than staff assessment: increase o $25,000 to a total of $5,550,000;
- (b) Staff assessment income: increase of $26,000 to a total of $6,149,000.
- 17. The Advisory Committee concurred (A/4308 para. 10) in the Secretary-General's proposals.

DECISIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

- 18. At the 755th meeting the Fifth Committee votes separately on the provision of $88,000, under section 4 in respect of the Security Council Sub-Committee (separa. 15 above). The provision was approved by 40 vote to 9, with 7 abstentions.
- 19. The Committee then approved by 49 votes to nonwith 9 abstentions, the following recommendations o the Advisory Committee:
- (a) That the draft resolution annexed to the Secre tary-General's report (A/C.5/807) should be approved
- (b) That a revised 1959 estimate of $5,550,000 fo income other than staff assessment should be approved
- (c) That a revised 1959 estimate of $6,149,000 fo staff assessment income should be approved.

Recommendation of the Fifth Committee

20. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

[Text adopted by the General Assembly withou change. See "Action by the General Assembly" below.

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 846th plenary meeting on 5 December 1959, the General Assembly adopted the draft resolution submitted by the Fifth Committee (A/4327, para. 20). For the final text see resolution 1435 (XIV) below.

Statement by the Secretary-General at the 711th meeting of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: Engli [29 September 19

- 1. I welcome this opportunity not only to introduce the budget estimates for $1960 \ [A/4110]$, but to touch briefly on some of the important problems which will engage your close attention in the coming weeks.
- 2. I see no need for me at this stage to dwell over long on figures. You have the budget estimates before you which we have endeavoured to make as informative as possible, and you have the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions
- [A/4170]. Generally speaking, I believe that the visory Committee has, as usual, analysed the situal with lucidity and fairness. I am thankful, theref that there is little need for me to go into the details the estimate apart from two sections where I think Advisory Committee's recommendations are unduly strictive.
- 3. A word first of all on the main principles that I guided the process of budget-making. Despite the ued expansion of most United Nations activities, for second successive year no request has been made for y addition to the Professional and higher categories the Secretariat. The balance that has to be struck ween the insistent demand for economy, on the one ad, and the efficient execution of programmes, on the ter, is a delicate one, and it is not open to the Secretary-neral to give preference, of his sole initiative, to one other of these considerations. I have had regard to the in framing the present estimates, but there still nains an element of uncertainty, since my proposals, d in particular those that have to do with the staffing the Secretariat, rest on two broad assumptions.

- 4. The first is that we shall be able in 1960 to give rther impetus to the policy, long in force, of promoting lexible deployment of staff and posts. Essentially, this licy seeks to develop the capabilities and efficiency of e staff by enlarging the scope of their experience and hancing their versatility. It is not primarily intended a means of reducing establishments or costs, although at may, in fact, emerge as a desirable by-product. I we thought it wise in any case to sound a note of caution garding the absorptive capacities of the consolidated anning-table. I have done so not only in the budget foreord but in a series of proposals that were laid before e Economic and Social Council at its twenty-eighth seson. I do so once more before this Committee.
- 5. Even as regards the coming year, the staffing prosals for the Secretariat are necessarily predicated on a ill measure of support in Councils and Commissions or the principle of a strict application of priorities. This the second of the assumptions to which I have just ferred. Where the Secretariat's authority is conrned, the position has been well summarized in the dvisory Committee's latest report on the revised conomic and Social Council estimates [A/4223]. Thus, referring to my decision not to request any addition the Professional establishment in 1960, the Committee oints out that this policy has been dictated not only by onsiderations of economy, but equally by a desire to take a selective review of the continuing staff resources f the Secretariat, with a view to their redeployment on ne basis of priority needs. A temporary period of staility in the Professional cadre will afford an opportunity f studying how best to use the existing establishment, oth of persons and of posts, in order to render the ecretariat as a whole more effective.
- 6. The observations of the Advisory Committee are, 1 my opinion, most timely. They serve to demonstrate hat, while interim measures such as those I have outlined 1 may usefully be adopted for the coming year and may 1 ndeed have a salutary and lasting effect, it is not possible indefinitely to maintain a policy of budgetary stabilization unless the task of concentrating efforts and esources and applying priority standards is actively 1 nursued by each and every organ upon which it has been aid.
- 7. It is true that in my 1960 proposals I have not been able to extend this "standstill" policy to every category of staff. Yet the modest increase proposed in the number of General Service posts entails an expenditure far lower han a cursory glance at section 6—Salaries and wages might suggest. Thus, the cost of establishing some of these seventy-five posts is offset by corresponding decreases in other budget items, while as regards the remainder the immediate monetary outlay would in the long run yield savings which, though indirect and not easily measured, would be far from negligible. I consider - it to be a prudent measure of economy which, by providing adequate secretarial and clerical assistance, assures a higher output of work on the part of the internationally recruited staff.

- 8. In part V of the budget estimates, which provides for common services and equipment, there has also been a restrictive treatment of the estimates. Thus, on section 13—General expenses, it is easy to trace a direct relationship between 1959 and 1960 in the matter of expenditure and to measure the validity of my present proposal. It exceeds by roughly $100,000 the revised estimate for 1959. But this difference is attributable almost entirely to wage and rate increases for which, under existing contractual arrangements, I have no alternative but to make provision.
- 9. The burden of what I have so far said will, I trust, be patent: this is a budget which I feel that I can with confidence recommend to the Fifth Committee. It has as low an expenditure figure as is consistent with the aims and work programmes of the Organization and with the responsibilities of the Secretary-General. Admittedly, there are many areas in the estimates in which the appropriate level of expenditure remains a matter of subjective judgement and—by that token—of divergent opinions. But the scope for such differences is, I believe, extremely slight. The recommendations which the Advisory Committee has made would seem to bear me out.
- 10. It is indeed gratifying that the sections on which the Advisory Committee takes a divergent view are so few in number. My comments can therefore be limited at this stage to three sections; namely section 6—Salaries and wages, section 8—Travel of staff and of members of administrative bodies, section 13—General expenses. First, however, I shall say a few words regarding section 10—Economic Commission for Africa, where the divergence of views concerns the method of financing rather than the amount to be appropriated.
- 11. For the secretariat of ECA, the Advisory Committee concurs with my proposal for a Professional establishment of fifty posts, but, in so doing, has reduced the money provision by some 20 per cent, on the ground that "the practical pace of building up the secretariat of the Commission and, especially, of an adequate staff might well be somewhat less rapid than is assumed in the estimates" $[A/4170 \ para.\ 183]$, and on the express understanding that the Committee will review the situation during 1960 and, as necessary, authorize additional funds. It follows that supplementary provision may be called for in that year in order to finance the authorized establishment of the African Commission's secretariat.
- 12. I now turn to section 6, where the Advisory Committee has recommended a reduction of $235,000. Of this amount, $135,000 would be applied to the General Service posts to which I have already referred and necessitate a reduction of their number from seventy-five to fifty. It seems to me doubtful whether, on the longer view, this immediate monetary saving represents a true economy. I do not, however, wish to contest this particular recommendation.
- 13. The balance of $100,000 would affect the adjustment for turnover of staff. For 1960, I have proposed a turnover factor of about 3 per cent, providing for a deduction of $900,000. It is the view of the Advisory Committee that this figure can be raised to $1 million. I have had occasion in the past to explain to the Fifth Committee the grounds on which I believe it to be indispensable for the Secretary-General to utilize to the fullest extent practicable the manning table which the General Assembly authorizes. If the Professional establishment is to be maintained through 1960 at its current level while at the same time new work is to be absorbed and geographical distribution further improved, it will obviously follow that the number of vacant posts will have to be held to a minimum. In these circumstances there can be no assurance that the Advisory Committee's assumption as to likely turnover savings will, in fact, be borne out.

- 14. On section 8 (Travel of staff and of members of administrative bodies) the reduction of $60,000 recommended by the Advisory Committee would, if approved, fall largely on chapter III-Travel of staff and dependants on home leave. The estimates for the remaining chapters are submitted at a lower aggregate figure than for 1959, although that fact does not, by itself, exclude the possibility of revision. I base myself on other grounds. Expenditure under chapter I, Travel of staff to meetings, has for over ten years been an object of closest scrutiny on the part of the Advisory Committee. The factors to which reference is made in paragraph 166 of the report [A/4170] were specifically discussed with the Committee in the years 1950 to 1953, with particular reference to the Geneva sessions of the Economic and Social Council. While I agree that this matter calls for constant review, I would not judge it possible to reduce the present estimate of $130,000 without lowering the standard of service or infringing on established rules of procedure. The expenditure under chapter II—Travel on other official business, comes under my immediate, and indeed personal control, and I can give the assurance which the Advisory Committee seeks: the existing procedures for critical review will not be relaxed. I have explained in my budget submission the reasons for the increase over the 1959 figure, and it would seem to me unwise to withhold from the overseas offices the slight additional provision (beyond the increase in travel costs) which the expansion of their activities necessitates. On chapter IV, I can see no scope for reducing the estimates without at the same time curtailing the activities of the administrative bodies in question.
- 15. There remains for consideration, chapter III. Here the Advisory Committee considers that, in the light of the 1958 experience, some reduction can be made in the initial estimate. In calculating these costs, we have to take account of three elements: the first two are factual, namely, the entitlements to home leave in a given year and the level of current travel costs. The third is a variable element, namely, the proportion of cases in which the entitlement may not be exercised, for reasons such as the exigencies of the service, the voluntary deferment of leave, or changes in the composition of the staff. The first two elements admit of fairly exact calculation (barring of course further fare increases). As regards the proportion to be deducted for non-exercise of entitlements, we are guided by the accumulated experience of past years. This we consider to be the sole reliable factor, and on that basis a deduction of close to 20 per cent of the estimated cost for staff at Headquarters has been made. The requested provision is, in my opinion, as reasonable an estimate as it is possible to make, and for this and the other reasons that I have outlined here, I find it necessary to maintain my proposal.
- 16. As regards the general expenses that are budgeted for in section 13, I have already touched on the situation that will arise in 1960. With increased costs of an unavoidable nature, it will obviously not be possible to get by with less money than in 1959; for that is what the - Advisory Committee's recommendation amounts to effect. For my part, I have sought, by means of detail analytical tables covering the three years 1958 to 196 to afford the Fifth Committee the opportunity to expre itself on the method which it wishes to apply in determi ing the sums to be appropriated. An item-by-item exar ination would disclose the precise nature of speci. changes that are proposed in the level of services. C these, the views of the Committee would be welcome and I would only add at this point that I would depreca any attempt at further lowering the standards of the maintenance or cleaning services in the interests economy. That would, I believe, defeat its own ends, at merely tend towards an accumulation of heavier expe diture in the future. On this section, also, I must adhe to my proposal.

- 17. May I now invite special attention to two majoroblems of organization to which much time at thought have been given during the year. The first co cerns the administration of the technical assistance actities of the United Nations, the second, public information activities.
- 18. The creation of the unified Department of Ec nomic and Social Affairs, in which the technical assis ance activities of the Organization are being integrate with the Secretariat's substantive work in the econom and social field, has proceeded in accordance with tl steps outlined in my report to the thirteenth session (the General Assembly. On 1 February 1959 the unific Department came into being, composed of organization units of the Department as it had previously existed to gether with a Commissioner for Technical Assistance (who assumed his duties on 1 March 1959) and a Burea of Technical Assistance Operations. At the same tin an Office for Public Administration was established, which the functions of the Public Administration Div sion of the Technical Assistance Administration we. transferred.
- 19. The first objective of the merger has bee achieved. There is now a single centre for the determination of basic policy in the economic and social field whether the questions arise from normal research and the servicing of the Council and its Commissions or whether they arise from technical assistance operations including our dealings with individual Governments and with the Technical Assistance Board (TAB) and the Technical Assistance Committee (TAC). The timing of this policientralization is fortunate, since it can extend now the participation of the United Nations in the operation of the newly established Special Fund.
- 20. Another major objective also is being served in creasingly well. There is a noticeable improvement in the extent of involvment of the substantive staff in technical assistance programming and technical assistance questions generally. This applies especially to the areas condustrialization and resource development.
- 21. On the procedural side, our progress is slowe than I had hoped, but with the basis for detailed orgar izational and procedural revisions having been laid, thorough administrative study has been embarked upor In evolving the new plans full account has been take of the views expressed by the Fifth Committee and th Advisory Committee. This internal review has proved t be of a comprehensive and time-consuming nature, an many of the procedural aspects will require concentrate attention over the coming months. However, it has bee ssible to reach conclusions on matters of organization d delineation of responsibilities. Accordingly, it is my ention, in the near future, to submit to the Advisory mmittee and the Fifth Committee a progress report ting forth in detail the reorganization of the Organizan's technical assistance activities within the unified partment of Economic and Social Affairs. At this ge I would confine myself to reporting that experience date indicates that a marked improvement of the ganization's technical assistance programme can be pected to flow from the new co-ordinated approach d more extensive contribution to the operation by all mpetent areas in the Secretariat.

- 22. The second problem of organization concerns the blic information activities of the United Nations. You we before you the report requested by the General Asnbly of the Secretary-General [A/4122], concerning progress he has made in implementing resolution 35 (XIII) on public information activities of the ited Nations. You have also before you the related nments of the Advisory Committee [A/4170, paras. -60].
- 23. Before making this report I appointed a special cretariat Committee consisting of Mr. Andrew W. rdier, Executive Assistant to the Secretary-General, r. Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Under-Secretary for Political d Security Council Affairs and Mr. Philippe de Seynes, ider-Secretary for Economic and Social Affairs, with r. Alfred G. Katzin, at present Acting Head of the fice of Public Information, serving as Executive cretary. The task of this Secretariat Committee was to port recommendations to me, taking into account the port of the Committee of Experts on United Nations blic Information² and the debate thereon in the Fifth mmittee at the thirteenth session, in implementation the Assembly's resolution. My report results from this idy.
- 24. There is no need at this time for me to repeat what said in the report except to recall that the Assembly structed me to seek to give effect, to the extent pracable, to "the objectives set out in the preambular paraiphs of the present resolution with a maximum of ectiveness at the lowest possible cost" [resolution 1335 III)]. Members will recall that these objectives, inter z, called upon the Secretary-General, pursuant to reution 13 (I) of 13 February 1946 and resolution 595 T) of 4 February 1952 setting forth the basic prinles and policy of the United Nations public informan programme, to "make available objective and facd information concerning the United Nations and its ivities to all the peoples of the world through any propriate media" within budgetary limitations set by General Assembly; to give "priority to the use of media of information which ensure a maximum of ectiveness at the lowest possible cost"; to place eater emphasis than heretofore upon enlisting the operation of Member Governments, privately owned ss media of information, private institutions, nonrernmental organizations, and educators"; and to place eater emphasis "upon the operations and the effectivess of Information Centres in relation to OPI at Headarters without impairing the over-all central direction the United Nations information programme or the esent facilities for the representatives of media of mass nmunication".

- 25. The policy reflected in my report for the implementation of the General Assembly's resolution and in the budget estimates submitted for 1960 is one which aims at providing a restrictive and practical approach to the mandate of maximum effectiveness at the lowest possible cost in implementing the aims of General Assembly resolution 1335 (XIII). In times of rising prices, and in view of the increasingly important role of the Organization, I believe most of us would now agree that a budgetary approach based on a fixed and predetermined monetary limit is neither practical nor manageable. In paragraph 18 of my report there is set out a policy of stabilization which presents a viable framework for the development of the information programme. It provides a practical but restrictive approach. The budget estimates for 1960 have been presented in line with such a policy.
- 26. I hope that the Secretariat can now be given a clear mandate on the budgetary policy for these expenses so that it may concentrate upon developing the information programme itself within the restrictions proposed. It is possible to plan ahead with increasing effectiveness only if there is a reasonable understanding as to the resources which will be available. I am convinced that if such a stabilization policy can be endorsed by the Assembly, the Secretariat will be in a better position than before to carry out the wish of the General Assembly to serve the objectives of the resolution it adopted last year.
- 27. There is another matter regarding which I am much exercised. I regret that once again I must bring to the attention of Members the unsatisfactory situation confronting the Organization as regards its cash resources.
- 28. It may be recalled that a year ago, in my report on the Working Capital Fund,3 I expressed concern at the then dangerously low cash position of the Organization and put forward a number of proposals designed to safeguard its solvency. I said in that report that there was a demonstrated need for a Working Capital Fund at a level of some $30 million and that, in addition, it would be prudent to authorize the Secretary-General, in the event of urgent need during the first half of 1959, to have recourse to the use of cash in special funds and accounts in his custody. It was fortunate that the General Assembly, while limiting the increase in the Working Capital Fund to $23.5 million for 1959, granted authority to utilize cash from special funds and accounts in my custody since it became necessary in June and early July of this year to borrow $2 million in order to pay the bills of the Organization.
- 29. Serious as the situation appeared a year ago it is today even more disturbing. I have already reported that within the one-year period from 1 January 1958 to 1 January 1959 available cash resources fell by $7.4 million from a level of approximately $22 million to $14.6 million. As a result of the continued arrears in payments of assessments both for the regular budget and for the United Nations Emergency Force we can now anticipate that the cash balance available for both purposes at the end of 1959 will have been reduced by another $2 to $3 million.
- 30. In these circumstances I can only repeat what I have said in the foreword to the 1960 budget estimates [A/4110, para. 68], namely: that "In the absence of any present grounds for assuming that the pattern of contributions will change appreciably from that which has prevailed for the past twelve years, I am forced to conclude that the proposals I made to the General Assembly last year are still worthy of serious attention."

- 31. Members of the Fifth Committee may find it useful if I attempt, as in past years, a forecast of the level on which the contributions of Member States are likely to be assessed for 1960. At this stage, any such forecast must necessarily be of a tentative character. If you will turn to paragraph 27 of the budget foreword, you will find an estimate made some three months ago, together with the corresponding figures for 1959. That forecast indicated an assessment level of some $58.5 million, on the basis of possible 1960 revisions to the initial estimates totalling $1.5 million and supplementary estimates for 1959 of $1 million.
- 32. As regards additional requirements for 1960 still to be submitted the figure of $1.5 million as foreseen in July 1959 may prove to be somewhat on the low side. There is, for example, the addition of the contingent increase of some $500,000 in salaries and wages under section 6, to which reference is made in paragraph 23 of the budget foreword. I may also find it necessary, as I have recently indicated, to seek some increase in the level of the OPEX programme under section 19, for the provision of operational, executive and administrative personnel. The temporary relocation of the Library Services and other capital improvement items would necessitate some expenditure in 1960. If the Assembly so decides, a modest expansion of the present work programmes of the Committee on Outer Space and the Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation may need further provision. Any additional cost of organs meeting away from Headquarters in 1960 at the request of certain Member States would, in accordance with the existing practices of the United Nations, be met by additional income but continuation in 1960 at the European Office of the special meetings of the United Nations on the discontinuance of nuclear tests, or of the work of some field missions not provided for in estimates currently submitted, must be reckoned with. If, as would appear probable, it should be necessary to seek support for the United Nations International School at New York and of the International School at Geneva, I know that such a request will be carefully considered.
- 33. With these points in mind and taking into consideration the decisions recently reached by the Fi Committee on the supplementary estimates for 1959, assessment basis for 1960 of some $59 million emery as a possibility. Compared with 1959 there is a reduct of some $2.5 million. This forecast relates to the level the estimates as submitted by the Secretary-General. The basis of the recommendations made so far by Advisory Committee, the assessment base for 1960 wor be some $3 million lower than in 1959. These facts shown to be without encouragement, for rarely perhaps is Fifth Committee faced with such a prospect at the out of its deliberations.
- 34. Before concluding my remarks I feel it a privile to announce that the Ford Foundation has made a groof $6.2 million to the United Nations for the construct of a new library. The Foundation has indicated that objective in making the grant in response to our requivas to assure the United Nations of a building of highest quality, aesthetically designed, furnished, a equipped in conformity with the most modern librationards. The gift of $6.2 million plus possible interactual is deemed by the architects and by myself to adequate to cover all costs as set forth in the absorbjective.
- 35. The formal announcement of this gift is set fo in my report [A/4231]. In addition, I have felt that importance of this action by the Ford Foundation p vided justification for the inclusion of an additional it on the agenda of this session of the General Assemt Accordingly I have circulated document A/4232, wh is a request for the inclusion of an additional item titled "The United Nations Library: Gift of the Fo Foundation". Since the normal procedures for the clusion of the item and for its allocation to commit remain to be undertaken, I withhold any further co ment on this matter except to say that members n wish to read my report, which gives a detailed story developments in this matter. I am sure that at the app priate time the States Members of the United Nation will reflect the same satisfaction that I feel with reg: to the generosity of the Ford Foundation's action.

Statement by the Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions at the 711th meeting of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: Englis [29 September 19:

- 1. I am grateful for this opportunity to introduce the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions [A/4170] on the budget estimates for 1960 [A/4110], and to say a few words both on those estimates and on certain related matters.
- 2. The function of budget review in which the members of the Fifth Committee are about to engage is central to the work of the General Assembly. There is, indeed, very little that comes out of the work of the organs of the United Nations which is not reflected in some form or other in the budget of the Organization and, consequently, in the work of the Fifth Committee. It is the task of the Advisory Committee, over which I have the honour to preside, to assist the General Assembly—specifically the Fifth Committee—in its important function of considering the budget estimates
- submitted by the Secretary-General and arriving appropriate decisions in regard to them.
- 3. The report of the Advisory Committee which now before you is the result of a careful, painstak and detailed examination of the Secretary-General estimates.
- 4. The budget of the Organization, I beg to subn cannot stand in isolation from the programmes which desires to undertake. The budget is the financial refl tion of these programmes; it is also something methan that. It constitutes the financial framework, blue-print, to guide and control the execution of the p grammes. That is to say, the budget, in addition to be a translation of programmes into the costs of fulfill them, must also provide a guide for the wise spendiof funds.

- 5. The funds available to the Organization are not thout limit. But, even if they were, it would still be a se and desirable thing to establish a hierarchy among a numerous elements in the Organization's work proamme in order to ensure a maximum return on exnditure. When, in addition, available resources are nited—as is the case in international organizations—a task of assigning priorities to programmes becomes t merely desirable but essential.
- 6. The primary responsibility for working out a sysn of priorities and for applying that system to prosed programmes clearly rests with the programme dies of the Organization. The Advisory Committees reflected this thought in paragraph 27 of its report tere it is stated that "This task can only be accomplished through the conscious and concerted efforts of all programme organs as well as of the Secretariat. Since by far the largest segment of current expenditures in the United Nations is related to the economic, social and human rights fields, the commissions and committees in which programmes in these fields originate have a special responsibility in regard to the application of priorities."

- 7. As I have just indicated, the Secretariat also has sponsibility in this matter. And here I am happy to y that, in view of the Advisory Committee, the cretary-General has facilitated the work of the varis organs as regards the application of priorities, by inging to their attention ways and means of streaming the Organization's work in their areas of interest. has also assisted them in a continuing process of tailed examination of their work programmes, with a ew to a deferral of projects that are less urgent and mination of others which have ceased to be of imrtance. As may be seen from the Secretary-General's port,4 he again this year submitted to the Economic d Social Council and its subsidiary bodies specific servations and suggestions with regard to the work ogrammes in their respective fields. The Advisory mmittee hopes that the Secretary-General will conue his efforts in this regard and that these efforts will ceive fuller support from the inter-governmental dies to which they are directed.
- 8. In addition to facilitating the application of prioris at the time of formulation of programmes, the cretary-General has a further responsibility in assign; priorities to the work of the Secretariat after pracal work plans have been developed. A number of ctors and situations are bound to arise in the course the actual administration of programmes, which suld require a continuing exercise of judgement in gard to specific work plans. The Advisory Committee's received evidence to indicate that the Secretariat is ve to this need.
- 9. Let me now turn to the Secretary-General's budget imates for 1960 [A/4110] which amount to a gross al of $61,863,200. The Advisory Committee, after ving reviewed these estimates in detail, has recomnded a total appropriation of $61,213,300, which resents a reduction of some $650,000 in the amount juested by the Secretary-General.
- 10. May I say at this point that the basic interest of Advisory Committee and also of the Secretary-

General—and indeed of the General Assembly—is to provide the Secretariat with adequate resources to carry out duly approved programmes of the utmost importance and urgency with maximum effectiveness and economy. Why then, it may be asked, does the Advisory Committee's recommendation differ from the estimates submitted by the Secretary-General?

- 11. The reason for this lies in the somewhat differing approaches — and I repeat approaches, not the basic position—which the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee take in regard to budgetary matters. The Secretary-General's estimates have as their initial basis proposals submitted by the spending departments and offices of the Secretariat. It is but natural that spending departments, however careful and prudent they may be, would seek to ensure that they have resources which are comfortably adequate to their needs. I know, of course, that the proposals submitted by the departments are subjected to close scrutiny and some pruning by the Secretary-General or, under his authority, by the Controller. Nevertheless, the estimates that result are the estimates of the executive arm of the Organization and there is a limit of caution against difficulty and strain beyond which no executive would normally go.
- 12. I would like at this point to inject another thought. The degree of conservatism which guides the various segments of the Organization in submitting their requirements naturally varies from segment to segment. The Secretary-General himself and his senior officials charged with budgetary matters are, of course, keenly aware of the need for economy consistent with effectiveness. What is equally important is that this sense of economy should pervade the entire Secretariat at all levels. I am sure that we have made considerable progress in this regard; I am equally confident that I will not be contradicted when I say that this is a continuing process in which there is always scope for improvement.
- 13. The Advisory Committee's approach to budgetary matters is somewhat different from that of the executive. The Advisory Committee is an emanation of the General Assembly and, as such, it must look at the Secretary-General's estimates primarily from the point of view of the General Assembly, that is to say, of the eightytwo States Members of the Organization. In its consideration of the estimates, the Advisory Committee, if it is to serve the collective interests of Member States faithfully and realistically, has to take account of the over-all financial burden which international activity within the ambit of the United Nations places upon such States. The Advisory Committee also believes that the provision of adequate resources—but without a margin for comfortable adequacy-would continuously encourage efficiency as well as a constant examination of the urgency of the various items of work and of the effectiveness of the procedures followed in the Secretariat. This approach would help the Secretariat to avoid the possibility of accumulating or preserving uneconomical work or procedures. It would also serve as a gentle brake on areas of expenditure where costs may have a natural tendency to rise.
- 14. Having said this I want to assure the Secretary-General and the representatives sitting in the Fifth Committee that the present situation in the Secretariat gives ground for satisfaction in this regard. There is fresh evidence of this again this year in the fact that the total reductions recommended by the Advisory Committee only amount to some $650,000 in a budget of nearly $62,000,000, or just a little above one per cent.

Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, venty-eighth Session, Annexes, agenda item 4, document 3274

- 15. I have listened with close attention to the observations which the Secretary-General has just made on the reductions recommended by the Advisory Committee. Those observations—as indeed the other comments made by the Secretary-General—will no doubt be subjected to serious and careful study on the part of the distinguished representatives in this Fifth Committee, in the light of the relevant comments and recommendations of the Advisory Committee given in detail in its report. As usual, I will hold myself ready and available for any further information or comments on these detailed recommendations when we come to them.
- 16. I should like at this stage, however, to refer to three or four budget sections, to which, I believe, the Secretary-General has also invited specific attention.
- 17. The first of these is section 6 which constitutes by far the most significant single section of the budget, since it includes provision for the salaries and wages of practically the entire Secretariat. Both in its main budget report [A/4170] and in its report on the revised estimates resulting from decisions of the Economic and Social Council [A/4223], the Advisory Committee has welcomed the Secretary-General's policy of not requesting any additional Professional posts for 1960 (with the exception of the needs relating to the Economic Commission for Africa), pending a review of the utilization of the present establishment. The Secretary-General has, however, found it necessary to request some seventy-five additional established posts in the General Service category, apart from an increase in the local level staff at the Economic Commission for Africa and the Far East, the Economic Commission for Latin America and information centres. The cost of these additional requirements would amount to some $460,000 under section 6 (Salaries and wages) and some $90,000 under section -Common staff costs. The Advisory Committee has concurred, in substantial measure, in the Secretary-General's proposals. At the same time, since the Committee was not entirely convinced that the available secretarial and clerical complement of staff was being utilized to maximum advantage, it has recommended limiting the number of additional posts in the General Service category to fifty instead of the seventy-five requested by the Secretary-General. It is my understanding that the Secretary-General does not contest this particular recommendation.
- 18. A second element in the Advisory Committee's recommendation under section 6 relates to the question: How much money will in fact be required to maintain the authorized establishment subject, of course, to the practical factors relating to movements of staff, which arise in any establishment? The Advisory Committee recognize that it is not easy to compute the anticipated cost of the establishment: there are a great number of imponderables in this situation, factors which do not readily lend themselves to precise anticipation and evaluation. Nevertheless, the Advisory Committee believes that the total effect of these factors could well be assumed at the current level unless there was evidence in the analysis of the several factors to indicate that their incidence would vary decidedly in the future. I should like here to refer to the fact that for 1959, according to the Secretary-General's report on the supplementary estimates [A/4198], not only would the reduction recommended by the Advisory Committee on this account under section 6 of the initial 1959 budget and approved by the General Assembly be met but, in addition, there would be a further substantial saving. I recognize that - there might have been special reasons which might plain at least part of these savings. At the same tim believe that it would be safe to conclude that the Advis Committee's recommendations in this regard with rest to 1960 are not unreasonable.

- 19. Turning now to section 8—Travel of staff and members of administrative bodies, I would first like say that the Advisory Committee appreciates the effect that have been made in the Secretariat to keep expertures relating to travel on official business under clattention. At the same time this is one of the areas whexpenditures have a natural tendency to rise unless c stant care is taken.
- 20. If we consider for a moment the 1959 experie under this section, we find that as regards chapters I: II, that is travel of staff to meetings and travel on ot official business, savings of some $33,000 are anticipa even after taking into account the incidence—no do small, perhaps some $9,000, as regards these two par ular chapters—of the reduction which was made in initial estimates. This is indeed a happy situation, a while there might have been special reasons to expl some of the savings, I am inclined to assume that close control of these expenditures which is exerci within the Secretariat has also been a contribut factor. The Advisory Committee is confident that existing procedures for critical review will be strice maintained, and the Committee hopes that this will I to some savings in 1960 also.
- 21. On the specific question of the number of s assigned to meetings, it is true that this matter was c sidered in detail several years ago. At that time, Advisory Committee recommended that the number substantive staff members assigned from Headquart to the session of the Economic and Social Council h yearly at Geneva should be limited to twenty-five. T target was almost attained in the years 1955-1956; he ever, the number has subsequently increased, and th were thirty-four substantive staff members assign from Headquarters to the Council session in 1959. Advisory Committee has examined this question ag this year. The recent increases in regard to the Econor and Social Council are not wholly without justificati but they do point to the need and importance of giv close and year-by-year attention to a situation which the view of the Advisory Committee, offers scope improvement.
- 22. As regards travel on home leave, the Advis Committee would agree that the question here is basic; one of estimating. Home leave being a statutory entiment, expenditures arising from the exercise of tentitlement cannot be avoided. It was the Advisory Comittee's belief that, in the light of the most recent "ev year" experience, and allowing for certain factors variation between 1958 and 1960, as indicated in report [A/4170, para. 169], the estimate for this purp would permit of some reduction.
- 23. I now come to the third section to which I wo like to invite attention. And that is section 13 in whis included provision for the general expenses of Organization. The composition of these expenses d not vary significantly from year to year. On the ot hand, they may change in amount depending, in la measure, on the contractual arrangements that are ma There is no substantial difference between the Secreta General's position on this section and the Advis Committee's recommendations. The Advisory Committee has taken into account the situation with regard se expenses as it was known in summer 1959, includthe Secretary-General's estimate at that time of the uirements under this section for 1959. In fact the ount recommended by the Advisory Committee for 0 is practically the same as the most recent estimate of uirements in 1959. The Advisory Committee believes, ecially where contractual arrangements are involved, : it would be unwise to provide in advance for possible iations in the terms of those arrangements. To so vide would not facilitate the negotiation of the best sible terms that could be secured. I believe that this nciple, which we have followed in the past, would still sound even when, in the best judgement of the Secre-7-General, certain contractual increases may seem voidable. I believe also that this approach cannot be 1 to be inconsistent with the desire to keep suppleitary estimates other than for unforeseen expenses to inimum. Furthermore, it would encourage efforts to et any necessary contractual increases, as far as sible, without an equivalent increase in the appropria-

- 4. The last section on which I should like to offer ment at this stage is section 10 which relates to the momic Commission for Africa. The reduction of some 3,000 which the Advisory Committee has recomnded under this section may appear to be substantial the surface; but this is not a reduction in the tradiial sense. Normally when the Advisory Committee ommends a reduction in an estimate, and if that retion is approved by the General Assembly, the retary-General is under an injunction to try to hold particular programme or expenditure within the limit t is approved. In the present instance, however, the visory Committee fully supports the substance of Secretary-General's proposals regarding the organion and staffing of the secretariat of ECA. What the visory Committee's recommendation means is that, ur present belief and judgement, the practical pace of lding up the secertariat of the Commission in a sound mer might well turn out to be somewhat less rapid n is assumed in the estimates.
- 5. We had a similar situation in 1959. On the basis he full cost of the authorized establishment for 1959, estimates for that year amounted to some $700,000. vertheless, the initial appropriation was limited to 0,000 on the understanding that should additional ds prove necessary, the Advisory Committee would iew the situation and concur in such additional exditures. In the actual event, the 1959 expenses are ly to be below even the appropriated amount of 0,000—and that even after taking into account some 1,000 of unforeseen expenses.
- 6. The Advisory Committee has merely recomided that the same approach be taken in regard to 0. The Committee would indeed be gratified if the e of building up the Commission secretariat along ind lines—and consequently of placing the Commisi on a full working basis—were to prove faster.
 build the General Assembly approve the Advisory inmittee's recommendation as it stands, it would be ig so on the clear understanding, as spelled out in agraph 183 of the Committee's report, that "the Comtee would review the situation during 1960 and horize additional funds as necessary".
- 7. I have taken note that the Secretary-General acts this approach. If, nevertheless, I have touched n it at some length, it is both to underline the Advry Committee's interest in the sound building-up of

- the Commission's activities and to explain the Committee's budgetary recommendation beyond doubt.
- 28. As you will have seen, the Advisory Committee has invited attention in its report to a number of other matters which have a bearing on the budget. Indeed, the Committee has tried, in chapter I of its report, to isolate and review the more important administrative and budgetary issues before the Organization at the present time.
- 29. I have already referred to the Advisory Committee's views on work programmes and priorities. These are set out in greater detail in paragraphs 27 to 33 of our report, while questions relating to the work and organization of the secretariat are dealt with in paragraphs 39 to 48
- 30. On the organizational side, the Fifth Committee will, no doubt, wish to devote special attention to two major questions which were the subject of extensive discussion last year and on which the Secretary-General has submitted—or will present—separate reports. The first of these questions has to do with the administrative arrangements in the United Nations in regard to technical assistance activities; and the second relates to the public information activities of the Organization.
- 31. As regards the first—that is, technical assistance—a preliminary review of the situation, based on an interim report from the Secretary-General, is given in paragraphs 61 to 70 of the Advisory Committee's report. The Committee awaits with interest the further report of the Secretary-General on this subject.
- 32. On public information, the Advisory Committee has, in accordance with operative paragraph 2 of General Assembly resolution 1335 (XIII), confined its attention to the financial aspects of the report which the Secretary-General has submitted on this question. It will be seen from paragraphs 49 to 60 of our report that the Advisory Committee recognizes the budgetary policy for public information now enunciated by the Secretary-General as a step forward; at the same time, it is the Committee's view that a policy of stabilization could well have been related to a lower level of expenditure and that the Secretary-General's proposals represent, at best, a possible slowing down of further increases of expenditure on public information activities.
- 33. On the question of the form of the budget—a matter which is referred to in paragraph 14 of our report—the Advisory Committee will shortly submit its observations on the report recently presented by the Secretary-General [A/C.5/776].
- 34. I believe that I should also invite the special attention of the representatives on the Fifth Committee to the sections in chapter I of the Advisory Committee's report [A/4170], which refer to common premises and services [paras. 71 to 74], capital improvement [paras. 75 to 79], liquidation of the United Nations Observation Group in Lebanon [paras. 80 to 85] and expansion of internal printing facilities [paras. 86 to 93].
- 35. While the Advisory Committee shares the Secretary-General's concern about the unsatisfactory situation that seems to have developed in regard to the availability of cash resources to meet authorized expenditure, it has, as indicated in paragraph 97 of its report, postponed submitting any recommendation concerning the Working Capital Fund, pending the presentation of proposals by the Secretary-General.

- 36. Before concluding, I would like to refer to one other matter. We have just heard from the Secretary-General the happy news of the generous gift of more than $6 million from the Ford Foundation to enable the United Nations to construct an adequate building to house its valuable library. I join the Secretary-General in expressing, on behalf of the Advisory Committee, our deep-felt appreciation to the Ford Foundation for this munificent action.
- 37. It now remains for me to fulfil a very pleasant duty. And that is to convey to the Secretary-General, on behalf of the Advisory Committee and in my own name, our sincere gratitude for the invaluable assistance and co-operation which it has been our pleasure to receive from him at all times.
- 38. The Controller, Mr. Turner, has been our constant companion; naturally our association with him is very - close and, if I may say so, almost a continuous one should like to voice the Advisory Committee's deep a preciation of the able and willing assistance which he I given us throughout the year.

- 39. There are two other senior officials on the a ministrative side of the Secretariat, who are also f quently associated with our work, and I refer to M Hamilton, Director of Personnel, and Mr. Vaugh: Director of the Office of General Services. To them also extend the Advisory Committee's thanks.
- 40. Lastly, I wish to take this opportunity of placi on record the Advisory Committee's appreciation of a services of their Secretary. We are fortunate in havi with us this very able, loyal and hard-working offici He, his assistant and the secretarial staff have served a Committee effectively and devotedly and I take to opportunity of thanking them.

PARTICULAR QUESTIONS RELATING TO THE BUDGET

Standards of travel accommodation for staff members

DOCUMENT A/C.5/788

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: Englis [14 October 19:

- 1. At the General Assembly's thirteenth session the Fifth Committee agreed⁵ that the question of standards of travel accommodation for staff members should be reviewed at the fourteenth session of the General Assembly, on the basis of reports to be submitted by the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions.
- 2. All travel undertaken by staff members at the expense of the United Nations falls within one of the following three categories, for which budget provision (for 1960) has been made in the sections indicated:
- (a) Travel on duty......Section 8, chapter I (Travel of staff to meetings); chapter II (Travel on other official business)
- (b) Travel on home leave. Section 8, chapter III
- (c) Travel on appointment, transfer or separationSection 7, chapter III, item (i)
- 3. The following are the standards of accommodation now authorized:
- (a) Travel on duty

Travel by air: Staff members at all grades are entitled (subject to the exceptions listed below) to standard first-class accommodation when travelling on official business. Sleeping berths may be authorized, depending on circumstances, for officials at the Under-Secretary level. Use of jet flights on a standard first-class (but not de luxe) basis has recently been authorized, for trans-Atlantic journeys. Travel within Europe is normally limited to tourist class. In the case of groups of staff members travelling to conferences, and provided that circumstances so warrant, either charter arrangements or other arrangements of a standard lower than first-class are made, to the extent feasible. This was done in conexion with the 1959 sessions of the Economic Commision for Asia and the Far East in Broadbeach (Atralia), the Economic and Social Council in Mexico Ciand the Economic Commission for Latin America Panama City.

Travel by sea: Travel by sea is normally not auth ized. Particular cases may be approved on an exceptio basis. In such cases, minimum first-class accommodat is allowed. Subject to the exigencies of the service, st members may, however, elect to travel by sea provic that any extra costs involved are reimbursed to Organization, and that the difference in travel time tween air and sea travel is charged to annual leave.

Travel by rail: As a general rule, first-class accommutation is allowed for all personnel. Sleeping accommutation is authorized as follows: For travel in No America: Under-Secretary level, compartment; D-2 a D-1 levels, single bedroom; P-5 level and below, rocettes. For travel in Europe: D-1 and above, single cupancy; P-5 and below, double occupancy.

(b) Travel on home leave

Travel by air: For staff members at the D-1 level a above, standard first-class accommodations. For st members at the P-5 level and below, tourist class economy class when tourist class is not available) flights of less than sixteen hours—and first-class flights of more than sixteen hours. Staff members travling by tourist or economy class are granted an exc baggage allowance equivalent to that applying to fit class flights.

Travel by sea: Minimum first-class accommodation staff members at D-1 level and above. Cabin-class equivalent for those at the P-5 level and below.

Travel by rail: As for duty travel.

⁵ Official Records of the General Assembly, Thirteenth Session, Annexes, agenda items 43 and 44, document A/4061, para. 9.

) Travel on appointment, transfer or separation Travel by air: Standard first-class accommodation for staff.

Travel by sea: Minimum first-class accommodation all staff.

Travel by rail: As for duty travel.

- 4. While the Staff Regulations of the United Nations ovide that the conditions and definitions for the paynt of the travel expenses of staff members shall be escribed by the Secretary-General, the question of vel standards has been studied on two occasions by pert committees of the General Assembly. In 1949, : Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowances and ave Systems expressed the opinion⁶ that "it would be ore compatible with the dignity and position of the ganization for such officials (senior and intermediate icials) to travel first-class when on official business in to be restricted to cabin (or equivalent) class acmmodation, as is now the practice whenever such commodation is available". The Fifth Committee deled, however, on the recommendations of the Advisory mmittee⁷ that discretion in meeting the needs of the ganization should continue to be left to the Secretaryeneral. The second occasion arose in 1956, when the lary Review Committee suggested8 that "the practice the various organizations is in some respects unduly pensive, and that worthwhile economies could be found thout introducing undue complexity into the rules", d that for many journeys in certain parts of the world, iff below the Director and Principal Officer level might ell travel by second-class. The Fifth Committee conrred in that suggestion9 and in a parallel recommendain of the Advisory Committee¹⁰ that the Secretaryeneral should prepare revised travel rules calculated to oduce savings in 1957 in over-all travel costs.
- 5. The Secretary-General took the position in the Fifth ommittee at the eleventh session (585th meeting) and so at the twelfth session (638th meeting) that the setig of travel standards, as one of the elements of the mmon system of salaries and allowances, was a matter r prior consultation among the participating organizaons, with a view to attaining the maximum possible iformity of standards. There was, in his opinion, little ope for appreciable savings through a further lowering the standards applied to international officials.
- 6. Consultations have accordingly been held, since that ne, with the specialized agencies. The specific question standards of accommodation and mode of travel of aff members of the United Nations and the specialized gencies was considered at the 1959 session of the Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions on the basis of a report submitted by the International Civil Aviation Organization on the practices of the organizations and of certain foreign services in respect of cost standards, allowable travel time, and level of accommodation. This shows that the standards of accommodation authorized by the United Nations for its staff, either on official travel or on home leave travel, are in no case more generous, and in many cases appreciably lower, than those provided by most Member Governments for their foreign service officers.

- 7. It is to be noted in this connexion that the standards of travel accommodation now authorized for home leave represent a progressive lowering of standards since the early days of the United Nations—a fact which is of increasing concern to the staff. In 1946, staff members, irrespective of grade, were authorized to travel firstclass by sea or air. In 1947, these standards were revised to allow, in the case of staff members below the level of Principal Officer, for sea travél at cabin-class standard or its equivalent, and for air travel between New York and Western Europe, at tourist-class standard. The standards of air travel are being further lowered in many cases as a result of the reduction of tourist-class accommodation.
- 8. The CCAQ also paid special attention to problems created by the introduction of jet-plane travel and the trend for commercial airlines to replace existing first and tourist classes by "de luxe" and "economy" classes. The Committee recognized that each organization had to meet these problems in the light of its own particular pattern of travel requirements either on duty or on home leave, and concluded that it was hardly feasible to attempt a reconciliation of practices under the prevailing conditions. It agreed to revert to this question at a later date when developments in the field of jet-travel and the pricing policies of the airlines might be seen in clearer
- 9. The travel costs financed under sections 8 and 7 include amounts in respect of per diem allowances payable during periods of absence from a duty station. For the purpose of a comparative analysis of travel standards, such payments may reasonably be brought into account. In so far as perhaps 90 per cent of the staff are concerned, the rates of per diem are substantially below those authorized for independent members of expert committees travelling at United Nations expense, the difference in most cases being between 30 and 40 per cent, and in some cases reaching as high as 50 per cent.
- 10. In the light of the foregoing, the Secretary-General believes that further review of the standards of accommodation should await a time when the major changeover to jet travel will have taken place and basic adjustments in the different classes of service and fares have been more firmly and uniformly established by the airlines. It would seem reasonable to anticipate this occurring within the next two years.

- paragraph 3 of the Secretary-General's report. The standards are classified according to the following three categories of travel: (a) Travel on duty; (b) Travel on home leave; (c) Travel on appointment, transfer or separation. Subject to certain exceptions, as indicated in the Secretary-General's report, the following would appear to be the main lines of the present policy:
- (a) For travel of individual staff members on duty, the normal mode and standard of travel is standard first class by air for all staff. In the case of group travel to conferences, either charter arrangements or other arrangements of a standard lower than first class are sometimes made;
- (b) For travel on home leave of all staff below the Principal Officer level, the standard by air is tourist class (or economy class when tourist class is not available) for other than extended journeys, while the standard by sea is cabin class or equivalent;
- (c) For travel on appointment, transfer or separation, staff members are allowed standard first-class accommodation by air, or minimum first-class accommodation by sea.
- 3. On the basis of a preliminary consideration of this question in July 1959, the Advisory Committee, in its report on the 1960 budget estimates (A/4170, para. 171), stated:

"While the Advisory Committee will comment on this matter after the Secretary-General has submitted his report, the Committee has obtained the impression

- from preliminary information provided to it th downward adjustments have been made during the pa few years in the standards of travel accommodation for staff members, especially in respect of travel (home leave."
- 4. The Committee's earlier impression has been co firmed by its further study of the detailed provisio which at present apply to travel undertaken by sta members. The Committee accordingly believes that may not be advisable to make further modifications the present stage in the standards of travel now in force The Committee would, however, suggest the wider us wherever practicable, of the economy class of air trav in preference to tourist class, in cases where the latt standard is now authorized.
- 5. The standards now in force will doubtless ne to be reviewed when the major change-over to jet trav has taken place, and when basic adjustments in the di ferent classes of services and fares have been mo clearly and uniformly established by the airlines. As f as trans-Atlantic routes are concerned, it appears that j aircraft will be in general use by the middle of 196 The Advisory Committee would urge that the suggest review should be undertaken without delay following tl change-over and basic adjustments in classes and far mentioned above. Meanwhile, every effort should 1 made in the Secretariat to keep expenditures on trav to the essential minimum, especially through the contin ance of proper planning and strict control of the journe to be authorized.

Department of Economic and Social Affairs: organizational changes and review of interna procedures relating to the Technical Assistance Programme

DOCUMENT A/C.5/801 Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English [13 November 1959

I. Progress to date

- 1. At the thirteenth session of the General Assembly, the Fifth Committee decided12 to take note of the report of the Secretary-General on the organization of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Technical Assistance Administration¹³ as amplified in his oral statement to the Committee (690th meeting) and in his written replies to the questions addressed to him by the Advisory Committee,14 as well as the observations of the Advisory Committee in its thirty-sixth report to the General Assembly at its thirteenth session.
- 2. In his report the Secretary-General had indicated his belief that the time had come for the establishment of a unified Department encompassing both the substantive and the operational side of the Secretariat's work in the economic and social field. He proposed, therefore, to vest in a unified department the functions being discharged at that time by the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and by TAA. The Department would be headed by an Under-Secretary and, within the Department, a Commissioner for Technical Assistance with the rank

- of Under-Secretary would also be appointed, to who special responsibilities would be assigned in all matte concerning technical assistance. The plan further e visaged the establishment of a separate entity, heade by a Director, which under the supervision of the Cor missioner, would carry out the operational tasks. A Pla ning Board, under the Chairmanship of the Unde Secretary and composed of the Commissioner and senie officers of the Department, would be entrusted with the consideration of all major decisions relating to the tecl nical assistance programme, as well as to other activities of the Department concerned with economic and soci development. The internal administrative responsibilities for the Department as a whole would be consolidate under one Executive Officer. Finally, following amalg. mation, a detailed review of internal procedures wou be undertaken for the purpose of streamlining the ac ministration of the Department.
- 3. In view of the special nature of the Organization activities and responsibilities in respect to public admir istration, it was proposed, for the time being, to mainta a separate unit, under the direction of a senior office reporting directly to the Secretary-General, to deal wit substantive problems in this field. The operational aspec of the public administration activities would, howeve ntinue to be handled as an integral part of the technical sistance programmes of the United Nations and dealt th within the unified Department.

- 4. Having taken note of the Secretary-General's plan d the various observations thereon (paragraph 1 ove), the Fifth Committee decided to request the cretary-General: (a) To share with the Advisory mmittee the results of his review of internal produres to be undertaken after amalgamation, in order at he may have the advice and guidance of that Comttee before completing the detailed administrative and ocedural changes required; (b) To submit a progress port on the amalgamation of the Department of Ecomic and Social Affairs and TAA for the consideration the Advisory Committee and the Fifth Committee at e fourteenth session of the General Assembly.
- 5. On 1 February 1959 the unified Department came to being, composed of the organizational units of the epartment as it had previously existed, together with Commissioner for Technical Assistance (who assumed s duties on 1 March 1959) and a Bureau of Technical ssistance Operations (BTAO); the latter consisting the units which had comprised the Programme Divion of TAA, together with the part of the Administive Office of TAA responsible for administrative d budgetary functions in respect of projects and oject funds.
- 6. Concurrently with the above organizational changes, FAO assumed responsibility for providing the necesry administrative support, and also for operational and ison duties, including communications with Governents through Resident Representatives as these affect ogramme formulation and implementation, in respect projects and project funds relating to public adminisation activities of the Office of Public Administration. Division of a Technical Assistance Administration were transred to this new Office on 1 February 1959. The Bureau so continued to provide administrative and budgetary rvices in connexion with other technical assistance tivities of the Secretariat.
- 7. At the same time, responsibility for internal adinistrative matters for the unified Department as well for the Office of Public Administration was centralized the Executive Office already existing in the Departent of Economic and Social Affairs.
- 8. An appropriate departmental framework for techcal assistance activities having thus been achieved, a tailed review of the internal organizational and produral arrangements of the unified Department was itiated under the direction of the Under-Secretary for conomic and Social Affairs, with the assistance of the ommissioner for Technical Assistance and the Deputy ontroller.
- 9. In accordance with the decision of the Fifth Comittee (para. 4 above), the Secretary-General presented interim progress report to the Advisory Committee its 1959 summer session.
- 10. The review of organization and procedures has nee continued, with the assistance of the Administrative anagement Unit of the Office of the Controller, in ose association with officers directly concerned with chnical assistance operations at all levels.
- 11. In working out the details of the reorganization an, special attention has been paid to the assurances ven by the Secretary-General to the Fifth Committee at the main objective of the reorganization plan—which ould include the preservation of a clearly identifiable unit for technical assistance—was to improve the quality of the programme. Similarly, due account has been taken of the views expressed by representatives in the Fifth Committee and the principles enunciated by the Advisory Committee. Of particular significance has been the latter's recent report on administrative and budgetary coordination between the United Nations and the specialized agencies, with particular reference to the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance (A/4172). In paragraph 33 of that report, the Advisory Committee, as a result of its special studies of the operation of the Expanded Programme and of technical assistance activities in the specialized agencies generally, reaches the conclusion that, subject to flexibility and adaptation to the circumstances of each organization, the arrangements in regard to technical assistance activities should provide: (a) That all substantive programme functions and responsibilities related to technical assistance and its technical support should be the duties of the relevant substantive divisions; (b) That normal personnel budgetary, financial and accounting functions in respect of the programme should be handled by the regular administrative and financial services of the organization; (c) That there should only be a relatively small unit to take care of the strictly operational and liaison responsibilities, including those relating to communication with Governments and Resident Representatives, participation in TAB and other central organs of the programme, and central reporting functions.

12. As will appear from the following detailed account of the reorganization of United Nations technical assistance machinery, it has been the Secretary-General's endeavour to apply, as closely as would be possible under the particular circumstances, the principles referred to in the preceding paragraph.

II. OBJECTIVES GOVERNING FURTHER ACTION

13. As indicated in paragraphs 5, 6 and 7 above, the general objective of creating an appropriate departmental framework for activities supported and strengthened by substantive elements was achieved in early 1959. The further changes now decided upon are related to and governed by the following specific objectives which were found to be of paramount importance:

Precise delineation of the role of the Commissioner

- 14. Leadership and co-ordination of the United Nations Technical Assistance Programme is required at a level which secures maximum co-operation from all sources of support within the Organization and which permits effective representation of programme interests as far as Governments, Committees of the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the Technical Assistance Board and other multilateral and bilateral programmes are concerned. Experience has shown, and the current review has confirmed, that the responsibilities involved are such as to require the full-time attention of a high-ranking official to collaborate with the Under-Secretary in charge of the Department.
- 15. It was for this reason that the Secretary-General during 1958 modified earlier proposals by introducing the post of Commissioner of Technical Assistance with the rank of Under-Secretary. In the short period during which this post has been filled, appropriate functional relationships have been developed, and the Commissioner has begun to assume the major load of representational activities. During the period immediately ahead, increasing emphasis will be placed on an equally important phase of his work, namely, that involving the supervision and co-ordination of all of the resources of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, as they relate to technical assistance matters, as well as the provision of continuing support and guidance for programme operations from the highest departmental level.

16. While there are obvious advantages (as indicated in para. 19 below) in preserving a clearly identifiable entity for technical assistance under any reorganization plan, any such arrangement must be accompanied by a precisely developed means of stimulating full-scale interest and support throughout the Department. The post of Commissioner would seem to offer an ideal instrument for this purpose.

17. It is also clear that the Commissioner's important duties, while not operational in nature (and not requiring the assignment of a large directly attached staff), will nevertheless call for the provision of some immediate staff assistance, in order to aid him in the effective fulfilment of his role as the internal stimulator, co-ordinator and supervisor and in discharging his representational functions.

Development of proper relationship between BTAO and substantive areas of the Department

18. The case for amalgamation of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Technical Assistance Administration has rested in the first instance on the need to organize the total work of the United Nations in the economic and social field in such a way as to respond more effectively to the needs and requests of the developing countries. Over the years, there has been an increasing involvement of the substantive areas of the Department in technical assistance matters as well as a growing measure of inter-dependence between these areas and the Technical Assistance Administration. The manner in which amalgamation has been carried out reflects the Secretary-General's desire, by maintaining a separate and identifiable entity for technical assistance, to continue to give full effect to the principles and policies relating to the technical assistance programme as laid down by the legislative organs of the United Nations. However, it is clear that the interests of the programme demand a greater integration of the substantive support and research activities and the assistance activities of the Organization, under the joint leadership of the Under-Secretary of the Department and the Commissioner for Technical Assistance. In this manner, the full resources of the Department will be mobilized in the interests of the technical assistance operation and over-all advance planning and decisions on priorities will be facilitated.

19. The achievement of the full benefits of the amalgamation scheme will involve, furthermore, the fostering of a growing measure of orientation of the substantive areas towards technical assistance and the development therein of a body of competence, knowledge and experience which will ensure in turn that the Organization can develop real substantive support and guidance to under-developed countries requesting assistance in all the major fields in which the United Nations assumes responsibility. With the diversity of projects undertaken by the United Nations in the field of technical assistance, there is obviously a limit to the effective "programme support" which the present staff is qualified to provide. These limitations should be assessed and frankly recognized, and the possibility of using competent external sources of guidance and advice will be considered whenever appropriate.

20. The responsibilities and functions of substanti officers vis-à-vis those of the programme officers in t Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations are bein clearly defined in order to stress greater participation by substantive officers in the technical assistance oper tion. Direct contact between the substantive and the pr gramme areas is becoming increasingly the rule as bett understanding of respective duties is developed. Furthe more, an operational technique is being developed where by specially designated substantive and programm officers, in addition to their normal functions, are called upon to give joint attention, under the direction of t Director of BTAO, to particular programme problem

Separation of programming function of BTAO from administrative and budgetary functions

- 21. At present the Bureau of Technical Assistan Operations is organized on the following basis:
 - (a) A Director assisted by a Deputy Director;
- (b) The Office for Europe, Middle East and Afric the Office for Asia and the Far East and the Office for Latin America, each consisting of an Area Chief, a nur ber of country officers and an administrative officer plassistants. Each Office deals with the operational aspec of the country and regional programmes within its ge graphical scope and maintains liaison in respect to susupport as is required from the substantive areas of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and oth areas of the United Nations Secretariat. In addition these Offices perform numerous administrative an financial functions;
 - (c) A Fellowship Placement Unit;
- (d) A Senior Officer and staff for the exercise over-all budgetary control;
- (e) A Technical Assistance Office at the Europea Office of the United Nations, Geneva.
- 22. In respect to the functions of the three area offic under (b) above, a study of procedures has revealed th the basic functions of these units and of their programm officers call for programme management and impleme tation which will take into account, on the one han the more active part to be played by the substantive are of the Department (as referred to in paragraphs 18 at 19 above) and, on the other hand, the desirability relieving these units of purely financial and administr tive functions. As far as programme officers are co cerned, they are to be charged with the duty of pr gramme management of such country programmes are assigned to them, and they must ensure that count requests are acted upon and that approved programm are implemented.

Centralization of administrative services

- 23. The administrative and budgetary functions BTAO have heretofore been deployed as follows:
- (a) A Senior Officer and staff, exercising over-abudgetary control:
- (b) Area Administrative Officers with dual resposibility to their Area Chiefs and the Senior Officer metioned above;
- (c) Country officers, who assume certain budgeta and administrative functions in collaboration with tl Area Administrative Officers.
- 24. The basic defect of the present system is a diff sion of functions and responsibilities and a lack of centr ontrol. It is clearly desirable to create a structure which vill permit strict supervision of fiscal control activities n close relationship with the Controller and which will nable consolidation of administrative services in contexion with field activities.

Consolidation and strengthening of fellowship operations

25. The Fellowship Unit at Headquarters and the Pechnical Assistance Office at Geneva conduct all negoiations with the host authorities for the placement of ellows for the implementation of programmes of obervation and training requested by the recipient counries on behalf of the fellows nominated by them. Expeience has shown that improvements in this work can e made in four ways. First, a closer liaison and followp with training programmes already existing in many ountries would help in a more speedy placement of ellows. Secondly, a grouping of fellows from one or everal countries in the same subject of study would nable more effective programmes of observation and raining to be negotiated with the prospective host counries. Thirdly, the Unit should be more closely associated vith the "pre-placement" activities of Programme Offiers (i.e., the work of analysing requests and reviewing ominations), so that there is full awareness of the tatus of all negotiations with Governments and other hases of the nomination process. Fourthly, the leaderhip of the Unit has needed strengthening in the interests f improving the quality of the training provided.

Establishment of over-all control over preparation of reports and maintenance of records

26. Legislative and executive requirements involve the reparation of various reports for submission to TAB, AC, the Economic and Social Council and the regional conomic commissions. In view of the present georaphical delineation of functions as well as the wide liversity of projects involved, there is a need for central ontrol, at an authoritative level, over these reporting reponsibilities. The main objective to be achieved is the o-ordination of effort of all participating units, for urposes of compilation of material with a view to uniorm presentation, control of drafting style and stand-rdization of publication. It is also necessary to devise n effective and reliable scheme for the maintenance of ecords on which reports are based.

III. DESCRIPTION OF REORGANIZATION NOW IN PROGRESS

27. To accomplish the objectives outlined in pararaphs 14 to 26 above, some rather important structural hanges have been accomplished or are in process. These re illustrated by the following charts; the first indicates as general supervisory and co-ordinating structure, as rell as the functional relationships on a broad basis, and as second covers the reorganization of the internal structure of the Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations.

Under-Secretary and directly affiliated staff

28. The Under-Secretary will exercise supervision nd control over all activities of the Department of Ecoomic and Social Affairs, on behalf of the Secretary-ieneral. This will include general responsibility for the ffective functioning of all technical assistance activities f the Department. The Under-Secretary will depend pon the Commissioner for control and guidance in techical assistance matters, but he will ensure that cordinating and operational machineries are working effectively and will establish and participate in special co-ordinating devices when required.

- 29. The Commissioner will act for and fully represent the Under-Secretary in all technical assistance matters, especially with regard to representation, co-ordination, and supervision. In his representation role, the Commissioner will be the main channel of verbal and written communication with external bodies, although this responsibility will be exercised on a shared basis with the Under-Secretary as circumstances require. In his coordinating role, the Commissioner will be the Under-Secretary's chief agent for ensuring that all Secretariat technical assistance activities are properly linked and expedited, regardless of place of performance within the Organization. By grant of authority from the Under-Secretary, he will see that responsibilities in all areas are clearly defined and that duplications and delays in processing and communication are removed. He will advise the Under-Secretary with regard to major failures or delays in departmental support, and will develop ways and means of improving such supporting services. In his supervisory role, the Commissioner will oversee all technical assistance activities of the Department, including especially the work of the Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations, the Director of which will report to him. The importance of preserving that Bureau as an entity has already been stressed; it is the Commissioner's task to ensure its successful continuation in this form by providing effective leadership at a high level and by translating general policy into direct programme terms for action by the Director and the Bureau. The concept of a Planning Board, as envisaged by the Secretary-General under his original amalgamation plan (para. 2 above) has been replaced by the more informal and less rigid device of weekly meetings of key departmental personnel for co-ordination purposes. Such meetings will normally be chaired by the Commissioner, although the Under-Secretary may assume this function on appropriate occasions.
- 30. The Executive Office will continue to function, under the Executive Officer, as the centre for provision of administrative services to the entire departmental establishment at Headquarters, including the Bureau of Technical Assistance and the Office of Public Administration.
- 31. The Commissioner's staff, consisting of a small number of Professional and clerical staff, while exercising no active substantive responsibilities, will assist the Commissioner in providing the high-level co-ordination and operational support required of his post and in keeping over-all control, not only of the technical assistance operations as a whole, but also of the effectiveness of the substantive support. Moreover, in order to achieve the objective stated in paragraph 26 above, it is proposed that the Commissioner's staff should assume the function of co-ordination and final editing of external reports (such as those to the Economic and Social Council, TAC and TAB).

Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations

32. This Bureau will be headed by a Director responsible to the Commissioner and operating under broad delegations of authority from him. The Director will act for the Commissioner in the latter's absence. He will have the task of ensuring that policy decisions from higher levels are implemented, and the Commissioner will rely on him for developing and supervising the operational activities. He will also co-ordinate substantive work for technical assistance within the Department for operational purposes.

- 33. A Deputy Director will serve as second-in-charge of the Bureau and will assist the Director in the whole range of his functions. The Deputy Director will give particular attention to the administrative services, and will function as the chief management arm of the Director in this connexion.
- 34. The Bureau will be organized into three geographical area units, a Training Section, a Fiscal Control Section, and a Central Administrative Section. A description of the organization and functions of these units and sections follows.

Geographical areas

- 35. Programme functions will continue to be allocated on the basis of three geographical areas. This is merely a structural device which facilitates the management of the programme, satisfies the legislative requirements of TAC and the Economic and Social Council and conforms to the executive practices of TAB, which has adopted country programming rather than project programming.
- 36. The staff of the three units will serve as an elite corps—small in number but competent in operations. This will not only result in higher quality of performance, but should eventually lead to a reduction in the number of country officers.
- 37. The basic function of programme management in the Area Units will be supervised and carried out in such a way as to ensure proper consideration of requests from Governments and the expeditious implementation of approved programmes. The primary duties of individual programme officials will be (a) over-all programming for countries allocated to them and (b) fulfilment of operational tasks related to projects included in the programmes. Thus, the programme officer should familiarize himself with the components of the programme in his charge and contribute to the smooth implementation of each phase. He should develop his knowledge of general conditions in each country as they affect technical assistance including awareness of the extent to which its requirements have been or are being met by such assistance from all sources. Moreover, under the guidance of his superiors, he should draw on the substantive sources to provide support for the experts in the field. He will be relieved of certain peripheral duties (para. 22 above), in order to permit greater concentration on programming work.

Training Section

38. This Section will carry on the duties of the Fellowship Placement Unit, but the scope of its activities will be expanded as described in paragraph 25 above. Its role in pre-placement operations will be greatly strengthened, and it will participate actively in the entire selection and supervision process involved in the fellowship programme. Programme Officers will necessarily continue to exercise responsibilities with respect to nomination and selection of fellows, but there will be constant and complete participation by this Section. As the point for general co-ordination and control, the Section, under stronger leadership, will assume responsibility for the successful implementation of the entire programme. As an initial step towards a strengthened activity, a First Officer was recently appointed to take charge of the Section, the necessary post being made available from elsewhere in the Department.

Fiscal Control Section

- 39. This Section will be charged with the budget con trol functions now exercised by the Senior Officer (para 23 above) as well as with those functions relating to budgetary and financial policies affecting the technica assistance programme which are now exercised in the Office of the Controller.
- 40. In line with the general principles of integration as outlined by the Advisory Committee (para. 11 above) the budget control function, although remaining an integral part of the Bureau, will be under the supervision of a senior officer outposted by the Controller from his Office. This will permit the Controller to give more direct and effective attention to budgetary control matters and will clarify responsibilities for financial decision-making
- 41. The functions of the Section will be broadly as follows:
- (a) To exercise budgetary control over all funds provided for United Nations technical assistance activities
- (b) To assist the Controller in the formulation of budgetary and financial policies in respect of technica assistance programmes;
- (c) To act as a liaison on behalf of the Controller with all departments and services in the Secretariat as well as with external organizations, such as the Technical Assistance Board, the specialized agencies, etc. on budgetary and financial matters concerning the technical assistance programmes;
- (d) To maintain financial and budgetary statistics in respect of technical assistance programmes.

Central Administrative Section

- 42. This Section will consolidate the functions performed heretofore by the following personnel: Administrative Officers and supporting staffs presently attached to the Area Offices; Programme Officers, in so far as their work relates to administrative and budgetary operations; the Senior Officer and his supporting staff (para. 23 above) in respect of functions not covered by the Fiscal Control Section described above.
- 43. The functions of the Section will be broadly as follows:

In collaboration, as required, with the Area Offices, the Training Section of the Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations and with the Fiscal Control Section:

- (a) To prepare estimates of costs of continuing and proposed country and regional projects for presentation to the Fiscal Control Section;
- (b) To certify all financial transactions of the Bureau in accordance with the allotments made by the Fiscal Control Section on behalf of the Controller;
- (c) To be responsible for all administrative correspondence with experts, Resident Representatives and other sources;
- (d) To prepare agreements with host countries for the provision of administrative services and support for regional projects;
- (e) To provide operational statistics relating to the implementation of approved technical assistance programmes.
- 44. The centralization of administration will eliminate the present unsatisfactory practice of dual responsibility and should relieve the programme officers of day-to-day administrative matters which, in the past, have given rise to some divergence of views regarding relative gencies and priorities to be followed in respect of the lministrative and financial responsibilities of the ureau. Moreover, it should be possible to establish andard operating procedures, expedite servicing of exerts in the field, determine status of project expenditures ith minimum delay and eliminate various duplication records. To this end, possibilities for consolidating tivities of this Section with those of major administrave servicing centres in the Secretariat (e.g. the Field perations Service, Office of General Services) will be ept under constant review.

Division for Public Administration

45. The Office of Public Administration has just been ought into the Department of Economic and Social ffairs as a separate substantive unit re-titled "Division or Public Administration", under the supervision of the nder-Secretary and the Commissioner. This action impletes the process of organizational integration. The nalgamation not only brings public administration into logical relationship with the other advisory services in the Department but also enables the operational and liministrative control of all forms of technical assistance be placed under cohesive leadership.

Director for Special Fund Activities

46. With the existence of the Special Fund as a new 1d distinct arm of the United Nations, it has become parent that the operational responsibilities of the Deertment of Economic and Social Affairs can be more fective if the activities of the Special Fund and the epartment are brought into a close planning and operaonal relationship. Accordingly, a Director for Special und activities has been appointed to represent the epartment in its relations with the Special Fund and, 1 behalf of the Under-Secretary, to supervise the Deartment's work in Special Fund matters. The Director ill prepare and negotiate plans of operation; receive and arrange for the handling of requests submitted by ie Special Fund to the Department for substantive or chnical appraisal and evaluation; and arrange on occaon and as appropriate for provision to Governments f assistance in preparation or revision of requests to e Special Fund. The staff of the Bureau of Technical ssistance Operations will provide the facilities for imementation and administration of projects.

IV. REVIEW OF ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES

- 47. Now that the new organizational structure has sen firmly established, concentrated attention is being rected towards internal administration with a view to be formulation, subject to the demands of proper concol, of simpler and more effective operational procesures. A number of these issues have received scrutiny hile the broader lines of reorganization were being orked out; it has, however, not yet been possible to ve all of them the prolonged and expert attention equired.
- 48. Chief among the goals to be sought are the folwing:
- (a) Curtailment of the recruitment period leading to le appointment of experts;
- (b) Maintenance of complete and up-to-date expert indidate rosters;
- (c) Institution of effective administrative controls for the servicing of experts, elimination of delays in arrangement of travel, answering of queries, processing of terminations, etc.;

- (d) Greater utilization of the Resident Representatives' offices on administrative routines concerning experts;
- (e) Improvement of existing lines of communication between BTAO and other offices and between BTAO and field, etc.;
- (f) Reduction of administrative paper work and encouragement of verbal and horizontal clearance instead of vertical and written communications;
- (g) Standardization of forms for uniformity of practices;
- (h) Simplification of financial administration and control of projects;
- (i) Improvement of the registry system and establishment of procedures for expeditious handling of correspondence;
- (j) Establishment of task forces at the working level, consisting of substantive and programme officers, under the direction of the Director of BTAO, for the purpose of handling specific programme management problems (see para. 20 above).

V. General staffing requirements

- 49. In considering the details of the reorganization plan, emphasis was given in the first instance to the achievement of maximum efficiency of the technical assistance operation by the establishment of a closer working relationship between BTAO and the substantive offices of the Department as well as other appropriate organs of the Secretariat and by the redeployment of the resources of BTAO itself. As an integral part of the review process, attention was naturally given to the number and type of staff required for the adequate handling of each phase of the operation. It was felt, however, that any possible reduction of the number of posts in this field should be regarded as an end product rather than as an objective of the over-all reorganization scheme to be decided upon. In the light of the plan as it now stands. an appraisal of eventual economies has become possible.
- 50. From the departmental standpoint, there is no doubt that the assumption of full responsibility for the substantive support of the programme will increase the workload of the substantive offices concerned. While it is too early to assess its ultimate effect, it is believed that the selective review of the available staff resources in the substantive offices, with a view to the redeployment on the basis of professional qualifications as well as the priority of project needs, could result in a smooth absorption of such additional duties.
- 51. As regards BTAO, the redefinition of the functions of country officers, with emphasis on the high qualifications and competence these posts demand, will probably lead to some reduction of the professional posts in this area. With respect to administrative and financial activities, increased efficiency, as a result of the centralization and consolidation efforts, could also lead to an eventual reduction in staffing requirements. The strengthening of the other phases of the Bureau's activities such as the Training Section (para. 38 above) and supporting services for Special Fund projects may call, on the other hand, for certain modest personnel increases.
- 52. To propose at this stage a specific reduction in the over-all establishment of the Bureau would be premature and inadvisable, since much will depend on the results of the current procedural studies and on the course of events in this swiftly changing area of activity. It is important, however, to have a target goal, in terms of post requirements for the Bureau, as an impetus and general guide to action during the coming months. Annex I of the 1960 budget estimates of the United Nations (A/4110) reflects a provisional allocation of 118 posts for the Bureau, and the target should be related to this figure. In the light of all the known circumstances, and on the basis of the existing level and scope of the Bureau's responsibilities, the Secretary-General would endeavour to work towards a reduction in this establishment on the order of 10 per cent. Efforts will be made to achie such a target as soon as possible after completion of the initial trial period of the reorganization in 1960. As an when posts become available, they will be allocated other areas which are critically in need of bolstering at which would otherwise require the introduction of ne posts.

DOCUMENT A/4302

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English [25 November 1959]

Introduction

- 1. At the thirteenth session of the General Assembly, the Fifth Committee, in taking note of the Secretary-General's proposals¹⁵ concerning the amalgamation of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Technical Assistance Administration decided to request the Secretary-General¹⁶ (a) To share with the Advisory Committee the results of his review of internal procedures to be undertaken after amalgamation, in order that he may have the advice and guidance of that Committee before completing the detailed administrative and procedural changes required; (b) To submit, prior to the opening of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly, a progress report on the amalgamation of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Technical Assistance Administration for the consideration of the Advisory Committee and the Fifth Committee.
- 2. In accordance with the first part of the decision of the Fifth Committee, the Secretary-General submitted an interim report to the Advisory Committee in July 1959. That report, which was recognized to be of a very preliminary character, was taken into account by the Advisory Committee in its report on the budget estimates for 1960 (A/4170, paras. 61-70). The present report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/801) may be regarded both as a further step under the first part of the Fifth Committee's decision and as the progress report mentioned in the second part of that decision. While the Advisory Committee recognizes that the Fifth Committee had asked for the submission of the progress report prior to the opening of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly, the delay has at least enabled the Secretary-General to take into account certain related comments which the Advisory Committee has presented in its over-all report on technical assistance operations in the specialized agencies (A/4172).
- 3. The Advisory Committee notes also that, while the new organizational structure within the Secretariat for the management of the technical assistance programme has been worked out, the review of internal procedures connected with that programme will be continued. Thus, the first part of the Fifth Committee's decision of 1958 might be fulfilled in greater measure by a further report to the Advisory Committee during 1960 on the results of the review of procedures.
- 4. The comments that follow are related to specific points arising from the Secretary-General's report and should be read in conjunction with that report. They are, further, arranged under the major sectional heading used in the Secretary-General's report.

¹⁵ Ibid., document A/C.5/752.

Progress to date

- 5. The steps that have already been taken in furthe ance of the amalgamation are narrated in paragrapl 5 to 12 of the Secretary-General's report. This inform tion was included, in a preliminary form, in the repo of the Advisory Committee on the budget estimates for 1960. The Committee notes that the Secretary-Generation developing his plans for the reorganization of Unite Nations technical assistance machinery, has endeavoure to apply, as closely as would be possible in the particula circumstances, the principles which the Advisory Committee has enunciated in its over-all report on technic assistance (A/4172, para. 33). Under those gener principles, subject to flexibility and adaptation to the circumstances of each organization, the arrangement in regard to technical assistance activities should provide
- (a) That all substantive programme functions an responsibilities related to assistance projects and the technical support at headquarters should be vested in the relevant substantive divisions;
- (b) That normal personnel, budgetary, financial an accounting functions in respect of the programme shoul be handled by the regular administrative and financiservices of the Organization;
- (c) That there should only be a relatively small un to take care of the strictly operational and liaison responsibilities including those relating to communication wit Governments and Resident Representatives, participation in the Technical Assistance Board and other centrorgans of the programme, and central reporting functions.

Accordingly, the Advisory Committee's examination of the measures proposed by the Secretary-General has also been undertaken in the light of the principles cited above.

Objectives governing further action

6. The objective governing further action, outlined i paragraphs 13 to 26 of the Secretary-General's repor would appear to be in consonance with the basic purpos of the amalgamation, that is to combine in one departmer and under comprehensive leadership the substantive an operational responsibilities of the Secretariat in regar to the technical assistance programme, with a view t making that programme more effective and economica The Advisory Committee was informed of, and woul particularly underline, the fact that the role of the Cormissioner for Technical Assistance has been develope such a way that he is not merely a supervisor of the perational segment of the Department but is also in a position to mobilize the entire resources of the Department to meet both the substantive and operational needs technical assistance. It should also be noted that there in progress a reorientation of the substantive units the Department towards the requirements of the opational programme.

7. When the question of the amalgamation of the Deartment and the TAA was under discussion in the Fifth ommittee at the thirteenth session, some misgivings ere expressed about the possible impact of such an nalgamation both on the efficient conduct of the techni-1 assistance programme and on the relations between cipient Governments and the new unified Department. he Advisory Committee is informed that the Secreriat has been able, under the new system, to respond the needs of recipient Governments more effectively id expeditiously. At the same time, the revised arrangeents have in no way diluted the primary control by cipient Governments over the type of projects to be quested in their country programmes. Furthermore, e reorganization is being implemented, as indeed it has be, without any interruption in the conduct of the ogramme.

Reorganization in process

- 8. The organizational changes which have been acmplished, or are in process, are illustrated by the two arts that are given in the Secretary-General's report, llowing paragraph 27. The first chart, which indicates e general supervisory and co-ordinating structure as ell as the functional relationships on a broad basis, flects the reorientation of the entire Department toards the substantive and operational needs of technical sistance. The proposed internal structure of the opational segment of the Department, namely the Bureau Technical Assistance Operations (BTAO), is shown the second chart.
- 9. The basic approach to the reorganization, reflected the Secretary-General's report, would seem to be asonable, although the proposed level of staffing of e Bureau might, at any rate over a period of time, rmit of some further reduction beyond the target ensaged at present. The Advisory Committee deals with is point later in the present report (para. 18). The mmittee would here comment only on four specific
- 10. In the first place, the Committee has received nfirmation that the functions of the Fiscal Control ection in BTAO—which will be under the supervision an outposted officer of the Office of the Controller ll be confined to matters of budgetary control of the chnical assistance programme and that the present sponsibilities of the central office of the Controller in spect of the broader financial and budgetary policies fecting that programme would remain unchanged. The mmittee believes, in accordance with the principles nich it has suggested (para. 5 above), that the Fiscal introl Section might be regarded from the organizaonal point of view as somewhat similar to the Technical ssistance Recruitment Service which is an outposted oup of staff members from the Office of Personnel, sponsible for the recruitment of technical assistance perts.
- 11. The second point to which attention might be vited relates to the omission from the Secretary-eneral's report of any reference to the above-mentioned

Recruitment Service. Although this Service is an integral part of the Office of Personnel and, accordingly, is not directly affected by the reorganization, it represents an important element in the operation of the programme. Any attempt to streamline the programme and its operation must, of necessity, take into account, the procedures for recruitment of experts and must ensure that those procedures preclude avoidable delays. Furthermore, in practice, TARS is so deeply involved in the conduct of the programme that its relationships with the substantive divisions of the Department, on the one hand, and BTAO, on the other hand, constitute a significant aspect of the total operation. The Advisory Committee infers from paragraph 48 of the Secretary-General's report that this matter will be taken into account in the review of internal procedures that is currently in prog-

- 12. Thirdly, a further point which might appropriately have been considered in relation to the amalgamation concerns the participation of the regional economic commission secretariats in the conduct of the technical assistance programme. The Advisory Committee trusts that, in the review of operational procedures, attention would be given to this matter as well.
- 13. Fourthly, the Advisory Committee has noted the establishment of a new post of Director for Special Fund Activities, attached to the Office of the Under-Secretary of the Department. The Committee is informed that, apart from this post, it is not contemplated that a special organizational unit be created in respect of the responsibilities of the United Nations in this regard, both as an executive agency for Special Fund projects or in broader terms.

Review of administrative procedures

14. The Advisory Committee will wait a further report in 1960 on the progress and results of the review of internal procedures that is now in progress.

General staffing requirements

- 15. The authorized manning table for the Technical Assistance Administration immediately prior to the reorganization, comprised a total of 133 posts, if account is taken of the fourteen posts for the Public Administration Division. This latter Division though previously attached to TAA, has always been considered more similar to a substantive division than to the operating units of TAA or BTAO. On 1 February 1959, this Division was redesignated as the Office of Public Administration, a unit reporting directly to the Secretary-General. More recently, effective 4 November 1959, the Office of Public Administration was again reorganized as a substantive division in the Department, but outside BTAO. Thus, if the Division of Public Administration is not taken into account, the old Technical Assistance Administration had 119 posts.
- 16. It is envisaged that the reorganized BTAO will start with 118 posts, that is the 119 posts mentioned above less one post of Under-Secretary which had been provided for the Director-General of TAA. On the other hand, an additional post at the Under-Secretary level has been established, in the Office of the Under-Secretary of the Department, for the Commissioner for Technical Assistance.
- 17. As regards the group of 118 posts in BTAO, the Secretary-General has suggested that he would endeavour to work towards a reduction in that establishment of the order of 10 per cent. It is anticipated that such a reduction would be achieved as soon as possible after completion of the initial trial period of the reorganization in 1960.

18. The Advisory Committee believes that, over a period of time some further reduction in the BTAO establishment should prove possible, although the necessary staffing adjustments may have to be effected gradually so as not to interfere with the smooth operation of the programme. It would further depend on the pace at which the substantive divisions of the Department assume an increasing role in various substantive and semi-substantive aspects of the programme. The Committee notes in this regard that the representatives of the Secretary-General are aware of the further objetives to be sought; they have informed the Committee their intention to explore the possibilities of achieving even closer approach to the model structure which the Advisory Committee has suggested on a general base (para. 5 above).

19. The Advisory Committee will keep this matt under review, particularly in connexion with the budg estimates for 1961. As stated in paragraph 3 above, tl Committee expects at that time to have the benefit of further report of the Secretary-General on the resul of the current review of internal procedures.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English [30 November 1955]

- 1. In various reports¹⁷ to the General Assembly at its thirteenth session the Secretary-General indicated the probability that the United Nations would not have sufficient funds during the second quarter of 1959 to meet its payment obligations, unless its Working Capital Fund was substantially increased or recourse was had to borrowing.
- 2. In his report 19 September 1958 on the Working Capital Fund (A/C.5/743) the Secretary-General set forth the considerations which, in his judgement, demonstrated the need for a Working Capital Fund at a level of some $30 million. The General Assembly agreed an increase in the level of the Fund to $23.5 million for the financial year 1959. At the same time in resolution 1341 (XIII) it authorized the Secretary-General, in the event of urgent need in 1959, to borrow cash from special funds and accounts in his custody for purposes which normally relate to the Working Capital Fund, subject to conditions set out in the Secretary-General's report and on payment of normal current rates of interest.
- 3. As anticipated, during June and early 1959 it was necessary for the Secretary-General to exercise this borrowing authority in order to maintain minimum cash balances in operating bank accounts to cover salary payments to the staff and other pressing payment obligations of the Organization.
- 4. Despite the fact that $1 million had been borrowed on 17 June 1959 from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance there was a cash balance of only $178,000 in the Working Capital Fund as at 30 June 1959 and it became necessary on 3 July 1959 to borrow another $1 million from the Special Fund. The borrowed amounts were repaid on 6 July 1959 when a large contribution was received.
- 5. There has been no significant improvement during the first six months of 1959 in the previous pattern of payments of contributions. It is therefore necessary on the basis of past experience to face a situation in which the Working Capital Fund may be entirely depleted as early as March/April 1960.
- 6. In these circumstances the Secretary-General has no alternative but to request the General Assembly to continue the authority during 1960 which he has had in
- ¹⁷ Ibid., document A/C.5/743; ibid., Thirteenth Session, Supplement No. 5; ibid., Supplement No. 6.

- 1959, to borrow cash from special funds and accoun in his custory for purposes which normally relate to tl Working Capital Fund. He would further suggest, sin all the evidence, particularly if the needs of the Unite Nations Emergency Force are to be provided for, poin to the likelihood of the Organization having to rely an increasing extent on short-term accommodations, th consideration also be given to the desirability of removir the present restriction which limits such recourse funds temporarily available in special accounts under tl Secretary-General's custody.
- 7. If, however, as the Advisory Committee and tl General Assembly has urged, such authority is to be co sidered as an exceptional measure and not be treated. a normal financial practice—a concept which the Secr tary-General unreservedly supports—some more pe manent solution must obviously be found. There is, course, no doubt that the most logical and economic solution would be the earlier payment, or at least parti payment of certain contributions. In the absence, how ever, of any firm assurance that present difficulties of constitutional and administrative nature with which some Member States are confronted can be overcom the necessity would seem inescapable to the Secretar General of objectively reappraising the adequacy of Fund of $23.5 million. Certain of the factors which har a bearing on the cash position of the Organization ar which therefore need to be taken into account in at such reappraisal are indicated in the annex to this repor
- 8. The Secretary-General, for his part, considers th experience over the past twelve months has not modificult, on the contrary, has reinforced the judgement r ferred to in paragraph 2 above, to the effect that the is a demonstrated need for a Working Capital Fund a level of some $30 million. Given, however, a continution and, desirably, an expansion of existing borrowin authority, he would not consider it imperative that the target increase to $30 million be accomplished in 196 but rather that it again be planned as a progressive of eration, on the understanding that he would reported developments to the General Assembly at its fifteent and, as necessary, subsequent sessions, and that, in the light of the situation then prevailing, the Assembly would have the opportunity of either confirming modifying its decision on the matter.
 - 9. On this basis, the Secretary-General believes th tere is not merely ample justification, but urgent need, the financial solvency and integrity of the Organizaon is to be regarded as of top priority, for an increase the level of the Working Capital Fund in 1960 of the rder of $3 to $4 million. Since, however, responsibility or safeguarding the Organization's cash position rests of with the Secretary-General alone, but equally with Iember States through their individual and collective assembly action, the Secretary-General refrains from submitting a formal recommendation at this time, pending further review of the situation by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and subsequent expression of opinion in the Fifth Committee of the General Assembly. At this stage, the Secretary-General wishes only to call attention to the fact that his report to the thirteenth session indicated an alternative way in which any increase that might be agreed upon could be given effect.

Despite a $1.5 million increase in the level of the Working Capital Fund and a $1 million loan from the funds of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, the cash balances on 30 June 1959 were substantially lower than those at the same date in 1958.

The improvement in the position at 30 September 1959 in comparison with the position one year earlier arises from the fact that certain Governments who normally pay in December made appreciable contributions in September 1959.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/809), in which he states his belief that there is "urgent need, if the financial solvency and integrity of the Organization is to be regarded as of top priority, for an increase in the level of the Working Capital Fund in 1960 of the order of $3 to $4 million' from the present amount of $23.5 million.
- 2. The Advisory Committee, in its report on the Working Capital Fund to the General Assembly at its eleventh session¹⁸ outlined the basic considerations that are involved in the determination of the appropriate level at which the Fund should be maintained. More recently, in reporting on the question at the thirteenth session¹⁹ the Advisory Committee examined the position of the Fund at that time, in the light of the basic considerations involved.
- 3. Basing itself generally on the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, the General Assembly, at its thirteenth session, in addition to seeking earlier payment of contributions, decided on two measures to improve the cash resources of the Organization:
- (a) To increase the level of the Working Capital Fund from $22 million to $23.5 million in 1959; and
- (b) To authorize the Secretary-General, in the event of urgent need in 1959 and subject to certain conditions²⁰, to borrow, on payment of normal current rates of interest, cash from special funds and accounts in his custody, for purposes which normally relate to the Working Capital Fund.
- 4. The Advisory Committee would generally agree with the Secretary-General's conclusion that while the above measures have proved useful in meeting cash requirements in 1959, the over-all position has not shown any improvement but has continued to deteriorate. The following would appear to be among the more important factors contributing to such deterioration:
- (a) Despite regulation 5.4 of the Financial Regulations of the United Nations, the pace of receipt of contributions in relation to the pace of expenditure has continued to be unsatisfactory. Thus, while some 45 per cent of total annual budgetary disbursements occur by 30 June, only about 20 per cent of net contributions due are received by that date (A/C.5/809, annex, tables 1 and 4).
- (b) The year begins with a sizable amount of unpaid contributions from previous years. On 1 January 1959, unpaid contributions in respect of the regular budget of prior years amounted to $7.8 million; at 30 November 1959, an amount of some $2.7 million was in arrears in respect of 1958 and 1957 and some $11 million in respect of the current year. The total amount of arrears of contributions in respect of the regular budget at the yearend has remained of the order of between $7 and $9 million in the last three years (ibid., annex, table 2).
- 18 Ibid., Eleventh Session, Annexes, agenda item 43, document
- A/3455.

 19 Ibid., Thirteenth Session, agenda items 43 and 44, document
 - ²⁰ Ibid., document A/C.5/743, para. 8.

- (c) There has been a substantial call on the Workir Capital Fund in order to meet the cash requirements of the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF), as result of the unsatisfactory situation in respect of th payment of UNEF contributions. The situation in th regard could be further aggravated if and when actu payments had to be made from the reserve for comper sation in respect of contingent-owned equipment the might be worn out or destroyed.
- 5. The Advisory Committee would reiterate here that the earlier payment of contributions—and indeed strict adherence to the provisions of financial regulatio 5.4—is the most logical and economical way of meetin the cash requirements of the Organization, and that a other approaches are at best practical supplementar arrangements. Subject to this consideration, it woul still be necessary to take account of some minimum delay from the beginning of the year, in payment of contribu tions and also of difficulties of a constitutional or admir istrative nature, which confront some Member States There would thus be need for a Working Capital Fun of a basic amount which would have a significant relatio to the total amount of the budget.
- 6. In addition, the further measure of delay in pay ment of contributions and the requirements of UNE and unforeseen expenses accentuate the situation gener ally and give rise to a particularly acute seasonal shortag of cash during the months of May and June. This prob lem could be largely met if Member States found it pos sible to pay at least a substantial portion of their con tributions in the first half of the year and preferabl before the end of April. To the extent that the acut situation still remained, the basic amount of the Working Capital Fund would need to be increased, although th special seasonal problem might be met through short term accommodations. This latter approach to the season al problem would at best be only an alternative to in creasing the Fund by a still greater amount.
- 7. The Advisory Committee notes that generally th pattern of the receipt of contributions by the specialized agencies seems to be substantially more satisfactory than in the case of the United Nations. This has enabled mos of the agencies to meet their cash requirements withou substantial or regular recourse to advances from thei working capital funds.²¹ The specialized agencies and the International Atomic Energy Agency have among them a total of some $13 to $14 million in the nature o working capital. The Advisory Committee recognizes that the possibility of a combined working capital func for all organizations of the United Nations system is a question which requires careful study and, more im portant, an effective measure of co-ordination at the national level among governmental delegations to the different organizations. A somewhat more immediate step might be to explore the possibility of the agencies making short-term advances from their cash resources to the United Nations to meet the critical mid-year shortages.

²¹ For an outline of recent experience in the specialized agen cies, see Official Records of the General Assembly, Thirteenth Session, Annexes, agenda item 50, document A/4032, paras. 20

- 8. As regards the basic situation outlined in paragraph as affected by the continued unsatisfactory position scribed in paragraph 4, there appears to be a strong se for some increases in the present level of the Workg Capital Fund. The Advisory Committee would here call its recommendation of 1958 that the Fund should increased to $25 million in 1960.²² While the General ssembly at that time limited its action to the level of e Fund for 1959 and approved the Fund for that year $23.5 million, as recommended by the Advisory mmittee, the considerations which prompted the mmittee's recommendation for a $25 million Fund in 160 still remain valid and have indeed become even ronger.
- 9. The Advisory Committee recognizes that an inease of the order suggested above will still leave isolved, to some extent, the more acute problem which we arises towards the end of the first half of each ar. The Committee notes in this regard that in 1959 became necessary to seek $2 million, on a short-term isis, from special funds. The cash situation after April 160, according to the Secretary-General's report A/C.5/809, para. 5), is likely to be precarious; it is so possible that the situation in regard to the special inds and the related programmes as of a particular date hen cash is needed may be such as to preclude adequate course to those funds under the conditions established this regard. It would be appropriate in these circumances to extend the Secretary-General's present author- ity to seek short-term accommodations to permit also loans from Governments and, exceptionally, from commercial sources.

- 10. On the basis of the foregoing considerations, the Advisory Committee would recommend that the General Assembly, having regard to financial regulation 5.4, should:
- (a) Urge the Member States concerned to give attention to the payment of the outstanding arrears of their contributions;
- (b) Request the Secretary-General, in addition to continuing his efforts to obtain earlier payment of contributions, to address a special communication in this regard to Member States and to report on the replies received to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session;
- (c) Decide to increase the level of the Working Capital Fund from $23.5 million to $25 million in 1960, by the transfer to the Fund of the balance on surplus account still available for credit to Members as at 31 December 1958 ($527,988) (A/4116, part I, para. 5) and by direct additional cash advances in the amount of $972,012;
- (d) Extend the authorization granted to the Secretary-General under paragraph 4 of resolution 1341 (XIII) of 13 December 1958, to cover also short-term loans from Governments and, exceptionally, from commercial sources.

Form of the budget

DOCUMENT A/C.5/776

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[11 August 1959]

Introduction

- 1. The present form of the budget was approved by e General Assembly at its eleventh session on the nanimous recommendation of its Fifth Committee 667th meeting, para. 68), for an experimental period of vo years. The question whether this form should be tained on a continuing basis will accordingly be conlered by the General Assembly at its fourteenth session. s indicated in the Foreword to the 1960 budget estiates (A/4110), it is the Secretary-General's concluon that the advantages foreseen at the time of the loption of the present form of the budget have been ogressively realized without sacrifice of the detailed id informative data necessary to a proper evaluation the budgetary proposals. This is not to say that a state perfection has been reached, but indications point to creasingly successful use of the existing form as it is ing developed.
- 2. The present form is based on proposals made by the ecretary-General²³ in 1955 and 1956 and reviewed by e Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budge-
- ²² Official Records of the General Assembly, Thirteenth Sesm, Annexes, agenda items 43 and 44, document A/3939, para.
- ²³ Ibid., Tenth Session, Annexes, agenda items 38 and 47, cument A/C.5/639; ibid., Eleventh Session, Annexes, agenda m 43, document A/C.5/662.

- tary Questions.²⁴ The Secretary-General's proposals reflected the experience gained over the years 1946 to 1956 in the preparation, review and administration of the annual budget of the Organization, and were calculated to improve budget presentation, review and administration through the grouping together of like objects of expenditure and the avoiding of proliferation of budget items as the activities of the Organization expanded. Thus, the budget estimates for 1960 comprise a presentation in eight parts and twenty sections, as compared with twelve parts and forty sections in 1957.
- 3. Further advantages expected to accrue from the revised form of the budget are set out in the Secretary-General's foreword to the 1958 budget estimates.²⁵ Briefly these are:
- (a) The General Assembly and its subsidiary bodies would be enabled to obtain a clearer picture of the precise purposes for which the estimates were presented, and to exercise a more effective control over the total of particular expenses in relation to the aggregate budget figure. At the same time, the Secretary-General's transfer authority in respect of like items would be enlarged, and the old anomaly of transfers of funds between totally unrelated items within the same section curtailed.

²⁴ Ibid., Tenth Session, Annexes, agenda items 38 and 47, document A/3081; ibid., Eleventh Session, Annexes, agenda item 43, document A/3372.

²⁵ Ibid., Twelfth Session, Supplement No. 5, paras. 10-12.

- (b) The Secretary-General would be better able to carry out the established policy of a flexible interchange of staff not only between departments at Headquarters, but between all United Nations offices.
- (c) Since the General Assembly would be voting funds for larger units, the Secretary-General would have the responsibility of undertaking a second critical review of actual needs at the time funds are allotted.
- 4. As already stated, these expectations are progressively being realized. Within the limits of annual budgetary appropriations, the Secretary-General has been able to reassign staff to areas where programme needs are of proven urgency, and to meet at least partially, from existing resources, certain extraordinary demands on the Organization such as those arising from the events in the Middle East. With this flexibility in the deployment of staff resources, the Secretary-General in the estimates for 1960 has been able to avoid a request to the Assembly for any increase in the Professional establishment at Headquarters. Revisions of the initial budget estimates for 1958 and 1959 were limited to the essential minimum required to meet high-priority work programmes called for by actions of the General Assembly or the Councils.
- 5. Again, there is not only a "second critical look" at the actual needs of the various work areas at the time allotment of funds is made, but the new form makes possible, and perhaps even necessary, a continuous review of programmes and priorities throughout the working year on the basis of departmental needs as these emerge and, in the process, stimulates a review and streamlining of current practices affecting other fields of administrative and financial management.
- 6. The Secretary-General has given careful thought to the constructive observations expressed during the general discussion of the budget estimates in the Fifth Committee at the twelfth and thirteenth sessions of the General Assembly. One frequently expressed observation was to the effect that the information provided in the budget text was not sufficiently comprehensive and that, unless it were further developed, the new form of the budget might not prove conducive to an adequate understanding and appraisal of the annual estimates, especially where requests for additional posts or other resources to meet new projects were involved. A related and perhaps more substantial criticism was the feeling that the general explanation of the budget figures should be much more closely identified with the approved programmes of the Organization. It was hoped that the direction, priority and cost of these programmes might emerge in bold relief in the budget document, thereby facilitating the review by the General Assembly of broad administrative and budgetary problems and sustaining a continuing effort on the part of the Assembly, the Councils and the Secretariat to produce a rational programme of activities financed within limits which would be kept within reasonable bounds.
- 7. As to the provision of more comprehensive information on the estimates, attention is drawn to the inclusion in the 1960 budget estimates of certain statistical tables and explanations designed to facilitate the General Assembly's detailed scrutiny of the estimates, particularly, the tables appended to sections 6, 13, 14 and 15, where an attempt has been made to present proposed budgetary credits both by location, and by major area of activity. There is also included in the foreword to the 1960 budget estimates a detailed analysis of the total budgetary situation with particular reference 1 variations in the level of budgetary credits proposed for 1960 as compared with those approved for 1959. The Secretary-General would hope furthermore that the recent issue of the revised "Organization of the Secre tariat" and the amplification of the 1960 budget forewor to indicate the anticipated shifts in emphasis of certai work programmes, go some way towards meeting th requirements of Member States. In the latter case, th purpose is to direct the attention of the Assembly t general trends and likely developments in particula programmes based on the experience of the past year rather than to focus attention on specific projects. N attempt is made in the budget document to duplicate th description of the work programmes of the Secretaria as fully set forth in the annual reports of the Council to the General Assembly and in the report of the Secre tary-General on the work of the Organization. The listin of the conference programme which has been presente to the General Assembly for approval during the pas two years also serves to indicate the general nature of substantial volume of the Secretariat's annual workload Further thought has also been given to an improvemer of the presentation of annex II of the budget estimate showing the projected costs of programmes falling withi broad fields, in addition to which a study correlating main fields of activity with actual expenditures for th period 1956 to 1958, following a pattern similar to tha presented in annex II, is now being made with a view to testing the validity of the methods and assumption used in the preparation of the project estimates. Ac cordingly, the Secretary-General believes that, taking these various innovations and improvements into ac count, the presentation of the 1960 estimates is not only a somewhat more detailed, but at the same time a mor rational one than that of previous years. Besides th additional material that has been incorporated in th budget document itself, mention might also be made o the supplementary reports furnished by the Secretary General to the Advisory Committee, both written and oral, in furtherance of that Committee's detailed review of the estimates.

Experience with the current form of the budget

- 8. At the time the present form of the budget wa approved, one of the more fruitful areas foreseen fo greater flexibility in the direction and use of resource was that relating to section 6 (Salaries and wages) and its associated section 7 (Common staff costs). Inasmucl as these sections together comprise almost two-thirds of the total appropriations, the direction of these resource affects the direction and nature of other expenditure provided for in the total annual appropriations.
- 9. It will be recalled that under the old form provision was made in separate sections for the number and costs of established posts and for overtime expenditures for each department or office. Temporary assistance and common staff costs were provided for in separate appropriation sections for each main established office. It a budget prepared some eight or nine months prior to the commencement, and some twenty months prior to the close, of the financial year to which such estimates related, this involved a rigidity not fully consistent with the fluidity of United Nations operations. Moreover the credits voted for particular sections inevitably lend themselves to a utilization by the mere fact of availability and were less subject to central control both as to direction of resources and to clear accounting distinction between objects of expenditure. The grouping together

I budgetary credits for the same object of expenditure, gardless of location or field of activity, contributes to reater flexibility together with more central control, and icilitates the rapid transfer of available budgetary edits and staff to areas where the need is of proven rgency.

10. The new form of the budget originally envisaged section for salaries and wages excluding the Field ervice, the Technical Assistance Administration, the cretariat of the Permanent Central Opium Board and rug Supervisory Body, the secretariat of the Joint taff Pension Board and Staff Pension Committee, and the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees. Except for the first and the last of these units, ways of the staff and other costs in the consoliated budget form have been found, while by means of the estimated costs of the incorporated units. The torm of presentation of the estimates for the Field ervice remains under review, but, at the present time the balance of advantage would seem to rest with connuing to show them separately.

11. Maximum effectiveness in the use of established osts on a priority basis necessarily demands continuous onsultation and co-operation between the various organzational units. The consolidated manning table is being dministered on the basis of such consultations involving uter alia a post-by-post adjustment between one departent or office and another. More recently and as an xperiment, attempts have been made to assign priories to permissible recruitment against the totality of stablished-post vacancies. This involves the assignment f existing and anticipated vacant posts to the various rork-areas on the basis of a determination of priority eeds, and an advance planning for recruitment to fill 10se posts.

12. In view of the fact that under current arrangements the cost of established posts, temporary assistance nd overtime are comprised in one appropriation section, ne Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgeary Questions has attached importance to the development of procedures for centralized control over the use f established posts, and budgetary credits for temporary ssistance and overtime. As a corollary, this involves the evelopment of definitions and procedures looking towards a clear differentiation of established posts and emporary assistance costs. Such definitions and proedures have been worked out in consultation with the advisory Committee and are now being applied.

13. The Secretary-General feels that, from the oprational point of view, the present form of the budget as advantages over the earlier form, and is contributing owards a general improvement in administrative and inancial controls and procedures. It has, to a certain xtent, facilitated a rationalization of the administration nd management of the major parts of the annual estinates, namely staff salaries and wages. Centralized conrol of temporary assistance and travel expenditures has een rendered more effective; and progress is being made owards the evolution of reasonable standards for comnon services expenditures, both at Headquarters and at offices away from Headquarters. It has served to highight common services requirements in the different offices and to promote common administrative arrangenents at overseas locations. By providing for a more entralized control over like items of expenditure, the resent form of the budget contributes also towards reieving departmental administrative workloads. It has nade it possible, furthermore, to undertake organizational and procedural rearrangements to meet changing requirements and to achieve maximum economy and efficiency in operation without the difficulties and delays that unavoidably stem from a rigid budgetary structure. But principally, it has promoted the idea of the Secretariat as a fully integrated unit, rather than one compartmentalized into departmental and divisional segments.

Possible future improvements

14. The detailed study of the separate items comprising a budget is the only road to economy and the best possible method of ensuring proper financial control. A logical grouping of the items for which expenditure is proposed is necessary, together with an adequate explanation of total requirements for similar purposes. The one point helps the other. There will be a progressive development in the normal course of events, but already certain further improvements in the presentation of budgetary requirements for particular purposes might be envisaged. Such improvements could, for instance, include: a review of the precise composition of section 7 (Common staff costs), and section 8 (Travel of staff); a more rational re-grouping of the items comprising sections 13 (General expenses), 14 (Printing, stationery and supplies), and 15 (Permanent equipment). The estimates for general expenses and more particularly the estimate for maintenance of premises and equipment (section 13, chapter I) might distinguish clearly between the costs of contractual services, supplies, alterations and rental. Provision for stationery and office supplies might also be made in this section rather than in the section for printing, stationery and library supplies—which could be related solely to the costs of external printing and internal reproduction. With the increasing acquisition by the Organization of assests of a capital nature, such as land and structures, it might be desirable that the situation should be reflected in the annual budget, perhaps by an amplification of section 20 of the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110) to show the existing capital assets of the organization, together with improvements to these assets as they are made (such as the modernization of the Palais des Nations at Geneva, and the capital improvement programme at Headquarters).

15. A further improvement could be to supplement the present analyses of the estimates on the basis of (a) object of expenditure and (b) fields of activity, by an additional annex, which would show the tentative allocation of resources to each particular office location. Such an information annex would provide all the information given in prior years under the old form of the budget, without affecting the existing basis for appropriating budgetary credits for similar purposes in different sections, leaving unimpaired the advantages of administering such credits as integral units in a consolidated budget.

Conclusion

16. From the foregoing it will be noted that in the Secretary-General's opinion the existing form of the budget has, from an operational point of view, clearly proved more advantageous than the old form. He would accordingly recommend its continuance for the future. Further improvements in the presentation of the detailed estimates, such as those referred to in paragraphs 14 and 15 above, will be carried out by the Secretary-General in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. Such additional suggestions and observations as may be made in the course of the Fifth Committee's further consideration of this subject will also be taken fully into account.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English [30 September 1959

Introduction

- 1. In his report on the form of the budget (A/C.5/776), the Secretary-General has reviewed the experience of the last two years with the current form of the budget which has governed the estimates presented for 1958, 1959 and 1960 and the actual execution of appropriations for 1958 and 1959. The Secretary-General has expressed the opinion that this form has, from an operational point of view, clearly proved more advantageous than the old form; he has accordingly recommended its continued use for the future.
- 2. The Advisory Committee gave preliminary consideration to this question during its summer 1959 session (A/4170, paras. 14-19); of the Secretary-General takes into account the discussions held at that time.
- 3. The essential element in the current form is the grouping together in a single section of all estimated costs in respect of a given object of expenditure, regardless of the organizational segment, field of activity of geographical location in which such expenditure arises. There are, of course, a few exceptions to this where special programmes or projects are concerned. Among the advantages foreseen in the revised presentation were opportunities for improvement in three directions: (a) greater flexibility in the utilization of staff resources which constitute by far the largest proportion of all resources; (b) increased facility for the application of priorities among the several areas of work in the Secretariat and (c) added scope for the improvement of administrative management and procedures.²⁶

General considerations

- 4. The budget of the Organization may be constructed and presented in a number of ways. The more appropriate of these involve the grouping of expenditures (a) by object of expenditure (salaries, other staff costs, travel, printing, general expenses, etc); (b) by main fields of activity (political, economic and social, public information, administrative, etc.) which, to a large extent, parallels a sub-division by organizational segment (Department of Political and Security Council Affairs, Department of Economic and Social Affairs, etc.); (c) by geographical location of office (Headquarters, European Office, Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East in Bangkok, Economic Commission for Latin America in Santiago, etc.). Clearly, no one of these or other forms of presentation would give a complete picture of budgetary proposals; in each case, it would be found necessary to have an analysis of the figures by one or more of the other sub-divisions as well.
- 5. The choice of a particular form for the budget of the United Nations must be governed, first, by the extent to which it facilitates the understanding, review and basic control of the budget by the General Assembly and its budgetary organs; secondly, by the scope which it offers for a continuing application of priorities and an increasingly flexible utilization of staff and other resources; and thirdly, by the simplicity and effectiveness with which it can be administered by the Secretary-
- ²⁶ For details, see Official Records of the General Assembly, Eleventh Session, Annexes, agenda item 43, document A/3372, paras. 11-14.

General with due regard to the financial prerogative of the General Assembly.

- 6. The previous form was essentially a combinatio of a sub-division by organizational segment (see para 3 (b) above) and a grouping by office location (para. (c) above). There was also an element of the "object of-expenditure" type of grouping of expenditures i regard to such items as common staff costs, commo services, permanent equipment and printing. This forr had a number of disadvantages. In the first place, i tended to give the impression of a Secretariat divide into a number of water-tight compartments, the require ments for each of which were provided more or les independently of the others. Such a situation was natu rally uneconomical especially in a Secretariat which, from this point of view, was relatively small. Secondly, unde the old form, once departmental credits had been voted there was little occasion for a further and continuing review of priorities in the Secretariat as a whole. A third disadvantage was that, in the absence of a centra control of resources, financial administration became largely a matter of keeping accounts of obligations and expenditures.
- 7. An attempt was made to remove these disadvantage to some extent in the revised form of the budget. The fact was also recognized that resources for the same type of expenditure should be made available to the Secretary General in one total amount so that he could utilize them most economically and to the best advantage as urgen needs varied. This consideration also precluded a subdivision by fields of activity apart from the fact that certain overhead costs which constituted a substantia part of the total expenditure were, in any event not easily susceptible of any rational allocation among different fields of activity.

Experience with the present form of the budget

- 8. As regards the experience with the new form of the budget, the Advisory Committee would agree that there has been some, but not enough, progress in the direction in which improvements had been anticipated. Thus, for instance, there have been periodical adjustments in the resources allocated to different parts of the Secretariat in the light of priority needs. The flexible utilization of staff resources has been illustrated by the manner in which certain critical needs relating to the maintenance of peace and security were met, at least during emergency periods, with little or no additional resources. A further evidence of this facility lies in the fact that, for 1959 and 1960, the Secretary-General has, with the exception of needs relating to the Economic Commission for Africa and the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees, refrained from seeking additional posts in the professional and higher categories.
- 9. Naturally, the Secretary-General's experience, which he considers satisfactory, of the new form of the budget is from an operational and administrative point of view. It is equally important, however, that the new form should facilitate the understanding, review and control of the budget by the General Assembly and its budgetary organs. The Advisory Committee has taken into account, in this regard, the views that were expressed in the Fifth Committee at the twelfth and thirteenth sessions of the General Assembly. The Secretary-General has referred to these views in paragraph 6 of his report (A/C.5/776) and has invited attention to the improvements which have been made in the presentation of the 1960 budget estimates. The Advisory Committee, in paragraphs 15 to 17 of its report on those estimates (A/4170) has welcomed the new features which constitute a helpful improvement.

Possible further improvement

10. At the same time the Advisory Committee would suggest that the presentation might be further improved, somewhat along the lines of paragraph 15 of the Secretary-General's report, by the inclusion of more detailed information annexes showing analyses of budget proposals and estimates by organizational segment and by location. This may be done by consolidating the information relating to each area of activity or each office rather than exclusively by a series of summary tables appended to the several budget sections. It must, of course, be clearly understood than any such analyses are, of necessity, of an informative character and do not detract in any way from the Secretary-General's authority, and indeed responsibility, for the best flexible use of the resources provided in each appropriation section. By the same token, these indications of the possible allocations of resources among the several organizational segments or locations do not in any way establish firmly for the year the actual needs of these units.

11. The Advisory Committee has taken note of the possible modifications in regard to the detailed content of individual budget sections envisaged in paragraph 14 of the Secretary-General's report. The Committee understands that the Secretary-General will consult the Committee further on these detailed matters, after the discussion of the broader question in the Fifth Committee.

Advisory Committee's recommendation on the form of the budget

12. In the light of the foregoing considerations, the Advisory Committee recommends that the existing form of the budget should for the present continue to be followed in its broad lines, with somewhat amplified information annexes showing the details of estimated costs (a) by main fields of activity and (b) by organizational segment and, as appropriate, by office location. In the light of the forthcoming discussion of this subject in the Fifth Committee, the Advisory Committee will revert, with the assistance of the representatives of the Secretary-General, to the precise scope of the material to be included in the information annexes and the detailed adjustments to the coverage under the different appropriation sections. In this connexion, it is hoped that the study, mentioned in paragraph 7 of the Secretary-General's report, correlating main fields of activity with actual expenditures for the period 1956-1958, when completed, will facilitate a closer and more meaningful analysis of future estimates by field of activity.

Revisions in the initial estimates

13. There is a further point to which attention might be invited. It has been the practice to revise the initial estimates for a given year on the basis of additional "project estimates" covering new programme items that might be approved, in particular by the Economic and Social Council, subsequent to the preparation of the initial estimates. The Advisory Committee has previously commented²⁷ that under the new form of the budget, the addition of budgetary provision for staff on a project basis in respect of individual projects might not be altogether consistent with the concept of a total staff for an over-all volume of work in the Secretariat as a whole. In the practical circumstances in which the financial implications of additional projects have to be worked out under pressure of time, it would be difficult to embark upon a considered review of the total workload of the Secretariat as a whole and to assess the strictly additional resources that would be necessary for undertaking the new projects after allowing for readjustments in the deployment of already available or requested resources.

14. It would be appropriate, therefore, to undertake, in the financial year for which estimates have already been submitted, the new projects only to the extent that they could be accommodated within those estimates and to defer the balance of the work, unless it is of major and urgent importance, until the year following. Thus, except to the extent noted above, new projects that might be approved by the Economic and Social Council in the summer of 1960 would not be reflected in a revision of the 1961 estimates, which would already have been submitted by that time, but would be taken into account in preparing the estimates for 1962. The Advisory Committee had made a somewhat similar suggestion in 1956.28 It should be added that some progress towards this approach is reflected in the Secretary-General's revised estimates for 1960 following the decisions of the Economic and Social Council at its 1959 sessions (A/C.5/ 777).

Time-table for submission and review of estimates

15. The Advisory Committee has also given further consideration to the suggestion in paragraph 71 (e) of the Secretary-General's foreword to the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110) concerning the desirability of advancing the time-table for the submission, and review by the Advisory Committee, of the annual budget estimates. A somewhat longer period of time than the five weeks that are available now between the issuance of basic budget documentation and the opening of the General Assembly could be helpful to Governments in reviewing the budget estimates and relating them to approved programmes. Furthermore, under present arrangements, the preparation and review of the budget estimates take up the period practically from March to the end of July, leaving rather inadequate time thereafter for the effective preparation of other important administrative and budgetary documentation for the General Assembly. The Advisory Committee accordingly believes that it might be useful to advance the time-table for the submission and review of the budget estimates.

16. In the event that such an earlier time-table were to be tried, it is understood that the estimates could be submitted for review by the Advisory Committee in April, in which case the basic budget documentation, including the Advisory Committee's report on the estimates, could be made available to Members substantially in advance of the limiting date of five weeks prior to the opening of the regular session of the General Assembly, stipulated in regulation 3.4 of the Financial Regulations of the United Nations.

Major maintenance and capital improvement programme at Headquarters

DOCUMENT A/C.5/802

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [16 November 1959]

Introduction

- 1. The Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly at its thirteenth session a three-year plan for major maintenance and capital improvement at Head-quarters.²⁹ The projects included in the plan constituted major non-recurring or periodic requirements and were therefore exclusive of the annual and standard replacement repairs or maintenance items normally provided for in the regular budget. They covered work in three areas: (a) major improvements to the premises; (b) major replacement requirements; and (c) major buildings requirements.
- 2. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions considered³⁰ that there would be advantage, before long-term plans were finalized, in making an over-all examination, from the point of view of the annual incidence of costs, of such major undertakings as the programme of modernization of the Palais des Nations at Geneva, the construction of a United Nations building at Santiago and the major maintenance and improvement programme at Headquarters. In consequence approval was given in 1958 only to the more urgent items under the last-named programme.
- 3. The developments which led the General Assembly to decide in November 1959 to construct a new library building (resolution 1354 (XIV) and the Secretary-General to postpone until 1960 the engineering and architectural survey of the requirements of the Organization at Headquarters (A/4110, foreword, para. 19), substantially modify even the minimum programmes approved for 1959.
- 4. These developments together with those outlined in reports on the modernization of the Palais des Nations (A/C.5/775) and the United Nations building at Santiago (A/4239) enable the question of major maintenance and capital improvement to be viewed rather more closely along the lines envisaged by the Advisory Committee. The present report, which does not call for action by the General Assembly at the current session beyond that already proposed in separate reports contains information on three aspects of the question: (a) the approved programme, (b) the future programme and (c) the financial perspective of the programme.

The approved programme

5. The 1960 estimates provide $40,000 for an engineering and architectural survey to be undertaken early in 1960. A like sum is surrendered in the 1959 supplementary estimates. This technical survey will provide the Organization with a sound guide as to the best manner in which maximum use of existing facilities can be assured as well as to the most suitable means by which they might be expanded to meet the possibility of a future increase in the membership of the Organization. Although the major problem would appear to be in the conference rooms and allied facilities, the study will also

document A/C.5/738.
30 Ibid., document A/4004, para. 4.

- embrace lounge and dining facilities as well as other requirements of the delegations and servicing staff.
- 6. The Secretary-General has explained in his report on the 1959 supplementary estimates (A/4198) that as a result of experimental changes in the operation of the refrigeration equipment, it has been possible to retard, at least during 1959, the corrosion of the refrigeration condenser tubes. In consequence, only $7,000 of the sum of $37,000 provided for the replacement of such tubes will be required in 1959 and the balance of $30,000 can be released. The provision in the 1960 estimates of $67,000 for repairs to the refrigeration condensers must, however, stand.
- 7. All but the most urgent repairs to the structure now housing the Library were delayed pending the outcome of negotiations regarding the Ford Foundation gift for the construction of a new Library building. Hence, expenditure for repairs during 1959 has been limited to approximately $1,000, leaving a balance of $60,000. This amount will be surrendered in 1959 in addition to the sum of $36,500 initially included in the estimates for 1960.

The future programme

- 8. The projects for major improvements to premises must await the outcome of the architectural survey. Meanwhile further thought has been given to the development of the basement area, regarding which the Secretary-General's earlier proposals were limited to the construction of a television and film studio and production and processing centre.
- 9. The existing arrangements are inadequate and unsatisfactory and, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, cannot be indefinitely continued. After further study the Secretary-General doubts whether the limited and provisional arrangements previously proposed would in fact be technically satisfactory and in the long run provide the most efficient and economical solution. Although cogent arguments can be adduced in support of a full development of the area, he feels that it would not be reasonable to expect Member States to pass judgement at short notice on a much more ambitious and necessarily costly proposal. In the circumstances Member States should have an opportunity to appraise during 1960 the considerations (set out in the annex to the present report) which have led him to the conclusion that, in the long run, advantages would result from a fuller development of the basement area. It would also be a wise course if the development of the area could be independently reviewed at the time of the contemplated survey of Headquarters facilities.
- 10. As regards major replacement requirements, no proposal is made for 1960 to replace the carpeting on the second floor or to proceed with re-landscaping the First Avenue perimeter area. The need to carry out either of these projects in 1961 will be re-examined before the end of 1960.
- 11. The two principal items of major buildings maintenance included in the report to the thirteenth session of the General Assembly (A/C.5/738) have now been adequately provided for. Individually, none of the remaining items under this heading is very costly. Unless earlier, urgent need arises, it would be reasonable to provide for them in the estimates for either 1961 or 1962.

²⁹ Ibid., Thirteenth Session, Annexes, agenda items 43 and 44,

The financial perspective of the programme

12. While it is too early to give precise information, a forecast of the likely trend of future costs can be attempted. The following table accordingly contains a five-year projection of the cost elements which emerge from the several proposals and reports relating to capital expenditures. To make this projection as comprehensive as possible the table includes the expenses arising from General Assembly resolution 250 (III) on the transfer of assets of the League of Nations to the United Nations and from resolution 242 (III) on the amortization of the Headquarters Construction Loan.

It is anticipated that the architectural survey to be undertaken in 1960 will result in additional costs for 1961 and subsequent years.

Annex

DEVELOPMENT OF THE BASEMENT AREA

- 1. The development of the basement area is among the questions to be considered under the maintenance and capital improvement programme. The original plans for the Headquarters site include an excellent basement space (now known as the hangar area) beneath the Assembly Hall. The development of this area was, however, abandoned mainly because the television services, for which the area had been intended, were then working on too limited a scale to justify the cost. The space was left unfinished and is virtually unusable at present except for
- 2. It is however, clear that the use of this area should not be reserved exclusively for the housing of television facilities since, although the services will show still further expansion and are already in urgent need of a studio, it is not planned to enlarge the services to the point where the use of the whole area would be warranted.
- 3. Furthermore, with the growth of the Secretariat, other pressing demands for space have arisen. The development of the hangar area should be viewed in this broader context and be based on a comprehensive plan, in preference to costly, piecemeal arrangements.
- 4. The plans now under consideration would provide for the transfer in 1960 to the hangar area of the film editing, cutting and other services which now occupy space in the south basenent area needed for the new library building. This transfer should eventually be linked to the additional use of the hangar area for the storage of the film library and for other Visual Services operations. Measures of that kind would represent a nuch needed improvement in the conditions under which the Visual Services are at present working, in cramped and widely dispersed quarters, and would release space for other necessary ourposes. It would therefore be logical to regard the construction of a television studio and a Kinescope processing room, which s considered indispensable, as part of a wider plan according :o which the Visual Services as a whole would be grouped together in the basement area. Such a rearrangement would combine efficient operation with economy.
- 5. In view of the expansion of the Guided Tours programme, provision should also be made for an adequate briefing-room

- for visitors. At present, Conference Room 4 is used for this purpose. This offers two disadvantages: first, that only intermittent use (depending on the schedule of meetings) can be made of the room; and second, that the daily influx of an average of 2,500-3,000 visitors (rising on occasion to over 6,000) entails a heavy addition to the cost of wear and tear.
- 6. Proposals which were submitted to the Fifth Committee at the General Assembly's twelfth session and approved in principle envisaged the construction of (a) a television studio and a temporary control room (but without adequately permanent electric lighting power of air conditioning); and (b) a Kinescope processing centre with temporary air conditioning tapped from the available supply. No provision was made for the finishing of the walls, floors or ceilings in the space to be occupied in the hangar area.
- 7. The full development of the basement area, with the incorporation of the television studio and the transfer of other working areas referred to above (including the merger of the Radio and Film Libraries in a single unit) and the installation of a briefing room for the Visitor's Service is estimated to cost about $880,000.
- 8. The general construction costs have been estimated by multiplying the number of square metres in the area (2,251 square metres: 24,231 square feet with a unit construction cost per square metre of $322, based on the rates prevailing in New York for the remodelling of existing structures, which are higher than those applying to new construction:

United States dollars

These costs include:

Construction of walls, finished floors ceilings, soundproofing and insulation, etc.....

393,000

Mechanical work, plumbing, heating, ventilation, air conditioning, dust control, fire protection equipment and electrical work (40 per cent of general construction costs) 261,000

(iii)	Restoration of site: breaking through the wall of the basement area to allow for construction traffic and the closing of the wall; restoration of sandon area offseted.	United Sta	tes dollars
A a b :	storation of garden area affected by construction	73,000	727,000
	itect's and engineer's fees as well as e-prints (10 per cent of above costs)		73,000
Cont	Sub-total ingencies (at a minimum of 10 per cen	t of above	800,000
	ts)		80,000
	Gra	ND TOTAL	880,000

9. The development of the basement area should not, in the Secretary-General's opinion, await the detailed over-all study of Headquarters needs which, as he has proposed, should be postponed until 1960. It might be advantageous to start at at early date on the basic work, such as air conditioning, plumbing heating, dust control and fire protection. A part of this worl has in any case to be undertaken in connexion with the immediate transfer of certain working areas which the construction of the new library necessitates. Hence it would be neither economical nor orderly to incur expenditure on a piecemeal basi instead of planning and providing concurrently for the engineering needs of the whole development.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[23 November 1959]

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has given preliminary consideration to the report which the Secretary-General has submitted on the major maintenance and capital improvement programme at Headquarters (A/C.5/802). The report is intended at this stage for the information of Member States, and does not call for action at the current session of the General Assembly. Accordingly, the Advisory Committee, during 1960, will consider in detail the matters covered by the report.
- 2. For the present, the Advisory Committee gives below a summary statement of the existing situation under the major maintenance and capital improvement programme at Headquarters. Questions concerning the modernization of the Palais des Nations, Geneva, and the construction of the United Nations building at Santiago, Chile, have been covered in other reports (A/4157 and A/4277).
- 3. At its thirteenth session, the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Advisory Committee,³¹ approved a specific provision of $138,000 in the 1959 budget (section 13), for the 1959 portion of the following three items of work which were regarded as urgent:

		1959	1960	1961
		Un	ited States de	ollars
(a)	Modification of windows in the Library building	61,000	36,500
(b)	Repairs to refrigeration con-	•	,
	densers	37,000	67,000	31,000
(c)	Engineering and architectural	•	•	•
•	survey of the Headquarters
	buildings	40,000

- 4. As explained in the Secretary-General's report (A/C.5/802, paras. 5-7), item (a) became unnecessary, except for an expenditure of $1,000 for urgent repairs in 1959, in the light of the Ford Foundation gift for the construction of a new library building; expenditure in 1959 under item (b) has been limited to $7,000 as a result of experimental changes in the operation of the refrigeration equipment, and item (c) has been deferred to 1960.
- 5. Thus the 1960 budget estimates include provision (section 15, chapter III) for an instalment in respect of repairs to refrigeration condensers ($67,000), and for the deferred engineering and architectural survey ($40,000). In addition, an amount of $114,000 has also been included in the 1960 estimates in connexion with

- the interim arrangements for the temporary housing of the Library while the new building is under construction. There is also a consequential elimination of $36,500 which had been initially included in the 1960 estimates for further repairs to the windows of the existing Library building, and a saving of $52,000 in 1960 on operational costs of maintenance.
- 6. The further development of the capital improve ment programme at Headquarters in terms of improve ments to the premises is envisaged by the Secretary General in two directions. First, attention would need to be given to the changes that would have to be made in the light of the engineering and architectural survey in the existing physical facilities (meeting rooms, loung and dining facilities, other requirements of delegates and servicing staff) to provide for a possible further increasin the membership of the Organization. The Advisor Committee understands in this regard that the survey will be completed in the first half of 1960 and the result ing report and proposals will be made available to th Governments of Member States as early thereafter a possible, although action by the General Assembly migh wait until the sixteenth regular session in 1961.
- 7. The second element of improvement to premise envisaged by the Secretary-General relates to the ful development of the basement area (A/C.5/802, para. and annex). The earlier proposals of the Secretary General in regard to this area had been limited to the construction of a television and film studio and production and processing centre, at an estimated cost of som $165,000. The Secretary-General now believes that, it the long run, advantages would result from a fulle development of this area. Such a comprehensive im provement, under the Secretary-General's new plar would include:
- (a) A television and film studio and production an processing centre;
- (b) The consolidation, in the basement area, of a visual services operations, including the storage of th film and radio libraries;
 - (c) An adequate briefing room for visitors; and
- (d) Appropriate finishing of the walls, floors an ceiling of the area, including the installation of necessar utilities. The total cost of this plan is estimated by th Secretary-General at $880,000 including $80,000 fo contingencies.

⁸¹ Ibid., para. 16.

8. While not desiring at this stage to express a view on the revised and enlarged plans for the basement area, he Advisory Committee will consider them during 1960, aking account also of the proposals resulting from the engineering and architectural survey of other facilities. For the present, the Committee would invite attention o the statement of projected capital and major mainenance expenditures, given in paragraph 12 of the Secretary-General's report. This projection covers, in addition to improvements of the Headquarters premises, capital expenditures for other purposes, notably the annual instalments in respect of the Headquarters construction loan, the transfer of assets of the League of Nations, the modernization of the Palais des Nations at Geneva and the United Nations building in Santiago, Chile. On the other hand, the tabulation does not take account of possible expenditures on modifications that may result from the engineering and architectural survey.

Modernization of the Palais des Nations

DOCUMENT A/C.5/775

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [22 June 1959]

- 1. By resolution 1101 (XI) of 27 February 1957 the reneral Assembly:
- (a) Approved the programme for the modernization f the Palais des Nations as set out in the reports of the becretary-General;³²
- (b) Authorized the Secretary-General to accept the ffer of the Swiss Federal Council of an interest-free loan f 4 million Swiss francs ($930,250 at current exchange ates);
- (c) Authorized the Secretary-General to proceed ith the execution of the programme; and
- (d) Instructed him to include in his budget estimates or the years 1957 to 1966 provision for ten equal installents of $121,000 per annum to finance the programme nd repay the loan.
- 2. In accordance with the above resolution, the Secretry-General entered into an agreement on 3 January 958 with the Swiss Federal Council for the loan to the inited Nations of Swiss francs 3,625,000 ($843,000), hich could be increased by Swiss francs 374,800 $87,250) to Swiss francs 4 million.
- 3. The preliminary plans and estimates for the proramme of modernization were prepared by the Building lanagement and Engineering Division of the European of the United Nations. After approval of the rogramme by the General Assembly, however, it was elt that its importance and the public and historical charter of the Palais des Nations made it desirable to seek le advice both of eminent architects and of the major sers of the building, namely the International Labour rganisation and the World Health Organization, and so to consult the Genevese authorities. To that end, a ommittee was set up under the chairmanship of the irector of the European Office comprising the Coniller d'Etat, President of the Department of Public Torks and Messrs. E. Beaudoin, C. Broggi and J. Carlu, chitects, 33 and assisted by representatives of the Direcrs General of the International Labour Office and the 'orld Health Organization.
- ³² Ibid., Eleventh Session, agenda item 43, documents A/C.5/9 and Add.1.
- ³³ Mr. Beaudoin is the Director of the School of Architecture Geneva, Mr. Broggi is the only surviving member of the group architects originally charged with the construction of the lais des Nations, and Mr. Carlu is the architect in chief to the ench Government and Inspector-General of French Public illdings.

- 4. The Committee was requested to consider and advise on that part of the programme which raised questions of an architectural character.
- 5. In answer to additional requirements which further study brought to light, or by the need to maintain the normal activity of the Palais without interruption, it became necessary to make certain adjustments in the substance and timing of the programme originally submitted to the General Assembly. The most important changes were made however on the recommendations of the Committee when, after thorough examination, it appeared that the implementation of certain parts of the programme involved very serious difficulties of an architectural or technical nature and in consequence other solutions had to be found.
- 6. The various projects for the modernization of the Palais des Nations fall readily into two main groups according to the importance of the work involved, the time element and the other related problems. The first category comprises the projects for improvements to the conference rooms and ancillary services, including the catering services. The second category includes all the reconstruction work planned for the Assembly Hall block. For the purposes of this report the programme of modernization will hereafter be dealt with according to those two categories.

CONFERENCE ROOMS AND ANCILLARY SERVICES

- 7. The projects for the modernization of the conference room area and of the ancillary services are as follows:
 - (a) Expansion of the catering service;
 - (b) Improvements to Conference rooms;
 - (c) Modernization of reproduction services;
 - (d) Car parks and access roads;
 - (e) Provision of additional storage space.
- 8. The cost of these projects was estimated at $590,000. It is contemplated that they will be completed within the time limit of three and a half years as originally proposed. The progress of this work is described in the following paragraphs. A summary showing the financial position and status of each project is contained in annex I.

Catering services

9. The original plan submitted by the Secretary-General provided for the cafeteria on the ground floor of the Council building to be transferred to the eighth floor of the Assembly building to a point close to the central kitchens and to the delegates' restaurant and for its seating capacity to be increased from 160 to 350 places. However, having examined these plans, the Committee came to the conclusion that the initial project would be difficult to realize: existing eighth-floor space would be insufficient to accommodate a cafeteria of the requisite size, while the alternative of constructing a new floor would prove extremely costly. In addition either of these solutions would give rise to a serious problem of circulation and access. The mass movement through the conference wings of the Palais would not only be a source of inconvenience to delegates in those sectors but would make it necessary, in order to obviate congestion, to undertake a costly enlargement of the lift service. The Committee accordingly recommended that a new cafeteria be built under the front court (Cour d'Honneur) and that it be equipped with a kitchen separate from the one servicing the delegates' restaurant. Construction work was started in March 1958 and the new cafeteria was opened on 25 August 1958, in time for the opening of the United Nations International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy. It has a maximum seating capacity of 450. Before proceeding with the decoration and furnishing of the cafeteria, it was decided to ascertain whether the layout was completely satisfactory. This has now been established and the decoration and furnishing will be completed by July 1959.

Conference rooms

- 10. The various projects for the enlargement and/or modernization of conference rooms are among those which, as previously indicated, have had to be adjusted in the light of the results of a thorough study by the Committee:
- (a) The Committee agreed that in view of its unfavourable location on a lower floor, improvements to conference room XIV should be limited for the present to the installation of interpreters' booths and a cinematograph projection booth. The room would be equipped with wireless simultaneous interpretation equipment, in order to maintain the maximum flexibility of use as a conference room or cinema.
- (b) The Committee recommended that the complete conversion of conference room XV should be postponed. If remodelled room XV would have a seating capacity of 450 (i.e., more than any other existing conference room in the Palais). Its location in the Library building, however, makes it even more remote than conference room XIV and for this reason it has not been used very much for meeting purposes. It therefore seemed prudent to limit alterations to a minimum.
- (c) The Committee strongly favoured the enlargement of room XII, which will become one of the main conference rooms in the Palais and will provide, in addition to room VII, a second large conference room in the immediate vicinity of the Assembly hall.
- 11. The structural alterations to conference rooms III, VIII, VIII, IX, XI and XII have been completed. As regards conference rooms XIV and XV, these, in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee, have been given second priority, but will be completed at the end of 1959 or the beginning of 1960. The question of the furnishing of conference rooms VII, XI and XII has been under study in consultation with the consulting architects and decorators. Final decisions are now being taken and the furniture will be installed in the course of the present year. In addition, the study of interpretation equipment in rooms III, VII, VIII, IX and XII has been completed. The work has been contracted out and as the contractor has committed himself to specified dates of delivery, it is expected that the electronic fittings will be installed in these rooms during 1959 and the first quarter of 1960. The simultaneous equipment at present in room VII will be transferred to room XI and that previously in room XII will go to room XIV.

Reproduction Services

12. Part of the plan for the modernization of the reproduction services had to be implemented in 1958 ir order to meet the requirements of the United Nations International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy. The costs, mainly for purchase of equipment were charged to the Conference budget and more thar offset by the savings in external printing costs for the Conference. Through the purchase of further equipment largely for composition, the internal reproduction facilities at Geneva are being expanded in such a way than et savings in contractual printing expenses will result As a result of these developments, on which a separate report is being submitted to the Advisory Committee, i is believed that an amount of $7,000 may suffice for completing the modernization of the reproduction services

Car parks

13. New car parks have been constructed and have eased the parking problem around the Assembly building Another new park has just been completed in the vicinity of the entrance gate at the Palais des Nations. It is anticipated that these facilities will meet all needs in the fore seeable future.

Storage space

14. This project was given priority because of press ing needs during 1958. New storage areas of about 1,000 square metres have been developed and are already it use. The conversion into a large underground storag area of the basement which had been constructed unde the temporary buildings erected for the 1958 Atomi Exhibition has solved all storage problems for the Euro pean Office for a number of years. This project is there fore completed.

Lifts

- 15. The modernization of lifts 7A and 7B which forms the junction between the Secretariat and Council sector and the Assembly building has been completed.
- 16. Annex I, which sets out the amounts allotted spent and obligated for the portion of the modernization programme described under paragraphs 9 to 15 inclusive shows that total costs have been maintained within the limit of $590,000 originally estimated. The Secretary General wishes to assure that General Assembly that costs will continue to be kept within that total figure is respect of all work falling within this section of the report.

ASSEMBLY HALL AREA

- 17. The initial programme for the modernization of the Assembly Hall area comprised the enlargement of the ground floor of the Assembly Hall; the adaptation of the various lifts in that part of the building to the need of increased traffic and the transformation of the Pres Room on the fifth floor into a large conference room
- 18. The study of the problem of the enlargement an modernization of the Assembly hall has been activel pursued by the Committee ever since its first session in June 1957, with the following basic considerations in mind:

- (a) The ground floor should be enlarged in order to provide about 1,000 seats;
- (b) The Hall should be capable of being used in the most flexible manner, so that it can be adapted to the particular composition of the assemblies or conferences of each of the main international organizations using it;
- (c) The essential character of the Hall as a debating chamber should be preserved as far as possible;
- (d) The equipment and services associated with modern conference techniques should be installed in the Hall;
- (e) The present shape of the Hall and its main architectural characteristics should be preserved.
- 19. A number of preliminary plans were made for the Committee's consideration, which concentrated mainly upon increasing the size of the Hall. When the Committee began to study these in detail, it became more and more obvious that the considerable decrease in the surrounding areas due to the enlargement of the Hall would heavily impair access to it, unless sufficient room was found in the Assembly area to re-house those services essentially required to be located close to the Hall itself.
- 20. The consulting architects therefore agreed to seek a new solution which, while pleasing from the aesthetic and architectural aspects, would permit the necessary changes to be made both satisfactorily and at the minimum cost. These new studies have resulted in the plan which makes use of the second floor of the Assembly Hall and also takes into consideration the questions of circulation and the need to take every advantage of existing space in the Assembly Hall area. The principal characteristics of this plan are as follows:

Assembly Hall

21. The present rectangular form of the Hall would be retained; the floor would be extended on the two lateral sides of the Hall as well as into the present main entrance area, thus making possible the accommodation of about 1,000 persons as compared with an existing seating capacity of approximately 500. The press and public galleries would remain as they are, with a capacity of about 800 seats. The interpreters' and other technical cabins would be suspended all around the Hall above the public galleries. The podium and angles of the Hall would be modernized in order to achieve a complete architectural unity. New furniture would be installed on the ground floor and the technical equipment of the Hall (lighting, air conditioning, simultaneous interpretation equipment etc.) would be entirely modernized.

Vestibule, door 14 and terrace

22. The present door 14 would be closed to normal users and the entrance porticum together with the space between the door and the Assembly Hall would be transformed into a large lounge for delegates. A terrace would be constructed in front of this lounge.

Remodelling of the floor below the Assembly Hall

23. The main entrance to to Assembly Hall would be relocated on the second floor, i.e., the floor immediately below the Assembly Hall. All the space below the Assembly Hall which is now being used mainly as storage space would be rearranged to provide for essential meeting and delegates' services, such as cloak-rooms, documents distribution centre, postal services, bank, press area, delegates bar, etc.

Conference room XVI

- 24. As originally anticipated, a new conference room XVI would be created on the fifth floor in place of the press room.
- 25. The several projects envisaged in this new plan give complete satisfaction from the architectural point of view. The various difficulties which were evident in the original plans have been surmounted. It will be possible to carry out the construction in such a way as to permit the annual conferences of the ILO and WHO to take place without interruption, and, as far as it is possible to anticipate, any other conferences which may have to be held in that area. The work could be done in accordance with the following schedule:
 - 1 May to 31 December 1959: completion of work plans.
- 1 January to 30 June 1960: consultations with contractors, allotting of contracts for the main work and demolition work.

May/June 1960: halting of work because of ILO and WHO conferences.

1 July 1960 to 30 April 1961: completion of all work (except work on the second floor).

May/June 1961: halting of work because of ILO and WHO conferences.

- 1 July 1961 to 30 April 1962: completion of the work on the second floor.
- 26. From the financial point of view, it is to be noted that the cost of the scheme would be in the order of $1.2 million and will therefore substantially exceed the 1956 estimates for the Assembly area ($621,000). This is mainly because the new plan provides for the transformation of the hall at door 14 into a delegate's lounge, for the construction of a terrace, and for the remodelling of the floor below the Assembly Hall, items not provided for in the original plans, but subsequently found to be essential features of any scheme of modernization that is intended to yield maximum results. Comparative costs of the initial and revised plans are as follows:

		Present estimates
Assembly Hall	387,000	640,000
Conference room XVI	169,000	193,000
Lifts	40,000	47,000
Administrative costs	25,000	•
Second floor (floor below Assembly	621,000	894,000
Hall)		230,000
Vestibule, door 14, and terrace		76,000
	621,000	1,200,000

[•] Included in above figures.

The figure of $1.2 million for modernizing the Assembly Hall, including provision of ancillary services and facilities, represents a conservative appraisal of estimated costs based on present price and wage levels. It does not take into account contingencies to meet any unforeseen expenses or possible rises in construction costs that may occur over the three-year period during which work will be in progress. While every attempt will, of course, be made to remain within the estimated costs, the possible need for some upward adjustment—perhaps of the order of 10 per cent—should be borne in mind in the event that the plans as now recommended are to be carried through to completion. The Secretary-General would continue, however, as heretofore to keep the Advisory Committee and the General Assembly fully and currently informed as the work progresses.

Financing

27. As may be seen from paragraphs 16 and 26 above, the total costs of the modernization of the Palais des Nations would be established under the new plan as follows:

	United States dollars
Conference rooms and ancillary services (unchanged)	590,000
Assembly hall area	1,200,000
TOTAL	1,790,000

28. This exceeds by $580,000 the earlier estimate of $1,210,000 approved by the General Assembly for the modernization programme. The Secretary-General has considered various possibilities for the financing of this additional cost which would avoid the need for negotiating a new loan agreement with the Swiss Government. Following informal discussion with the Swiss authorities, it appears that it would be possible within the present agreement to increase the total of the loan to Swiss francs 4 million and to reimburse this latter sum starting in 1964. In view of existing commitments for capital expenditure during the years 1960 to 1963, it is felt that the earlier arrangements concerning the financing of the original project should be maintained and that the additional expenditure involved should be financed by suitably increasing the last four of the ten annual budget provisions approved in principle by the General Assembly. To this effect, the Secretary-General proposes that (a) the number of annual budgetary appropriations be kept unchanged at ten; (b) the level of the appropriation be maintained at $121,000 in the budgets for the calendar years 1960 to 1962, raised to $131,000 for 1963, and to $311,000 annually for the years 1964 to 1966: (c) the sums which may be required to finance the programme over and above the budget appropriations already available and the Swiss franc 4 million loan, be advanced from the Working Capital Fund; (d) the sums advanced from the Working Capital Fund be repaid from budgetary appropriations in accordance with the schedule shown in annex II.

29. Annex II sets out year by year the estimated total disbursements for the programme, the total financed through budget appropriations, the totals financed through the Working Capital Fund and the Swiss land, as well as the amounts to be repaid to the Working Capital Fund and the Swiss Government throughout the period 1957-1966.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

- 1. A programme for the modernization of the Palais des Nations, Geneva, set out by the Secretary-General in his report to the eleventh session³⁴ and commented on by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions³⁵ was approved by the General Assembly in resolution 1101 (XI) of 27 February 1957, at a total estimated cost of some $1,200,000. In terms of that resolution, the Secretary-General was authorized to accept the offer of the Swiss Federal Council of an interest-free loan of 4 million Swiss francs ($930,250 at current exchange rates), to proceed with the execution of the programme and to include in his budget estimates for the years 1957 to 1966 provision for ten annual instalments of $121,000 to finance the programme and repay the loan.
- 2. In October 1958 the Secretary-General submitted to the Advisory Committee a report on the progress of the work indicating that, as a result of a detailed architectural survey: (a) certain adjustments had had to be made in the initial plans for the improvements of conference rooms and ancillary services; and (b) certain extensive changes would need to be made in the plans concerning the Assembly Hall. In a supplementary report to the General Assembly at its thirteenth session, ³⁶ the Advisory Committee undertook to consider the question in detail in 1959 and to submit approximate recommendations to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session.
- 3. In the courses of its first session in 1959, held in part at Geneva in April the Advisory Committee examined the revised plans and cost estimates submitted in the Secretary-General's current report to the General Assembly (A/C.5/775). The Committee also took advantage of its presence in the Palais des Nations to make an on-the-spot survey of work completed to date as well as of proposed further structural changes and, notably, the latest plan for the Assembly Hall area.

Conference rooms and ancillary services

4. As regards the projects for the modernization of the conference room area and of the ancillary services, the Advisory Committee was able to ascertain that the work was now nearing completion and that considerable functional advantages would seem to have been gained. To the extent that certain details of the original plan were varied in actual execution, the Committee was satisfied that these had remained within the basic outlines of the programme approved by the General Assembly. The Committee has taken note also of the Secretary-General's assurance that costs under this part of the programme would be kept within the total amount of $590,000 originally estimated for this purpose.

Assembly Hall area

5. As to the revised plan for the enlargement of the Assembly Hall and the related adaptation and transformation of adjacent areas, the Advisory Committee paid special attention to the extent to which the new scheme

- would meet the principal objectives and requirements which the General Assembly had in mind when it agreed to the original plan.
- 6. The present plan is estimated to cost $1,200,000, as compared with the amount of $621,000 estimated for the purpose in 1956. The Advisory Committee notes that, within the existing limits of architectural possibilities, the plan would afford the maximum extension of the Assembly Hall. The Committee would submit in this regard that, from the long-term point of view, it would indeed be prudent and practical to achieve such maximum expansion on the occasion of the reconstruction scheme now contemplated. It was persuaded also that the related development of the adjacent areas would seem to be necessary for the proper functioning and servicing of the enlarged Hall. Accordingly, the Advisory Committee believes that the new plan is in accord with the general objectives of the General Assembly and would recommend its approval by the General Assembly.
- 7. The Advisory Committee notes that the present plan is generally acceptable to the International Labour Organisation and the World Health Organization, two of the principal users of the meeting facilities in the Palais des Nations, and, further, that the time-table for the execution of the plan would permit the annual conferences of those organizations to take place without interruption. There is, however, one point which may call for further continuing attention namely, the problem of adequate office space in the vicinity of the Assembly Hall. While it is proposed to remodel the second floor, that is the floor immediately below the Assembly Hall, with a view to accommodating such essential services and facilities as documents distribution centres, postal services, bank, press area and cloakrooms, the expansion of the Assembly Hall itself might result in a curtailment of currently available office space in that area. Any consideration of the problem of providing additional office space in the proximity of the Assembly Hall should also take account of the probable release, with the move of WHO from the Palais des Nations in three or four years, of a substantial amount of space in a part of the building which, however, is the farthest from the Assembly Hall. In other words, some extensive rearrangements involving office space may need to be made at that time with a view to freeing offices nearer to the Assembly Hall from regular secretariat use.
- 8. The Secretary-General states, in paragraph 26 of his report, that while every effort will be made to keep costs within the present estimate of $1.2 million, the possible need for some upward adjustment—perhaps of the order of 10 per cent—cannot be ruled out "in the event that the plans as now recommended are to be carried through to completion". The Advisory Committee notes in this regard that the Secretary-General intends to keep the Committee fully and currently informed of the progress of the work with particular reference to the pattern of expenditures. This is especially important since, in the event of possible increases in costs, the Committee might have opportunities to recommend offsetting economies relating to certain less essential non-structural aspects of the plan.

Financing

- 9. The Secretary-General estimates the total cost of the entire modernization programme, as modified, at $1,790,000. To meet this expenditure he made certain proposals (A/C.5/775, para. 28).
- 10. The Advisory Committee has considered these proposals from the point of view of its over-all burden on Member States and has taken special note of the fact that the last annual instalment of $200,000 for the United Nations building in Santiago, Chile, will have been included in the budget for 1963. The Advisory Committee believes that the Secretary-General's proposal represents a reasonable adaptation of financial arrangements already approved.

World Health Organization Headquarters accommodation

DOCUMENT A/C.5/810

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[30 November 1959]

- 1. The Secretary-General has been requested, in a letter dated 11 June 1959 from the Director-General of the World Health Organization, to bring to the attention of the appropriate bodies of the United Nations for their consideration the resolutions on the subject of Headquarters accommodation adopted by the Twelfth World Health Assembly and by the Executive Board of the World Health Organization at its twenty-fourth session. These resolutions (see annex) are brought to the General Assembly's attention in consequence of the provisions of paragraph 9 of the former and paragraph 5 of the latter, both of which deal with the question of a suitable reimbursement to the World Health Organization by the United Nations for its investment in the Palais des Nations in consideration of releasing the space which the World Health Organization now occupies in the Palais. The Director-General is expected to make a further report on this matter to the Executive Board at its twenty-fifth session scheduled for January 1960.
- 2. The preambles to both the Assembly and the Executive Board resolutions note that the World Health Organization has made an investment in the Palais des Nations of 4,425,763 Swiss francs ($US1,029,252) inclusive of the grant made by the Swiss authorities of 3,000,000 Swiss francs ($US697,674) for the purpose of facilitating the World Health Organization's accommodation in Geneva. The position of the representative of the Secretary-General before the World Health Organization Assembly and Executive Board has been that the Secretary-General was not in a position to commit the United Nations in any way but that he was ready to co-operate in the search of solutions satisfactory to Member States of both the United Nations and the World Health Organization. It should further be noted that the authorities of the Swiss Confederation and of the Republic and Canton of Geneva, subject to parliamentary approval, have offered to provide a building site for the new Headquarters and to assist in the financing by granting new loans to a total of Swiss francs 30,000,-000 ($US6,976,744).
- 3. Under the Agreement of 15 February 1950,³⁷ concerning the premises to be used as World Health Organization Headquarters in Geneva, the United Nations agreed to extend the Palais des Nations with funds provided by the World Health Organization, title to the Palais, thus extended and transformed, remaining vested in the United Nations. In consideration of the funds provided by the World Health Organization, the United - Nations leased the premises to the World Health Organ ization for ninety-nine years at a rental of one Swiss franc. The cost of utilities (e.g. gas, electrity, heating hot and cold water, telephone) and of conference and general services provided to the World Health Organization by the United Nations were to be proportionately borne by the World Health Organization. It was also agreed that repairs to the building were the responsibility of the United Nations except those minor repairs necessary to ensure normal use, the cost of which were chargeable to the World Health Organization. The World Health Organization's option as against other organizations on additional available space and the granting of the World Health Organization's request for further construction in the Palais were subject primarily to payment of cost thereof by the World Health Organization. The lease was subject to renewal on the World Health Organization's option.
 - ³⁷ See United Nations Treaty Series, Volume 46, 1950, No. 188.

- 4. Except for a nominal one Swiss franc annual rental no other rental is chargeable to the World Health Organization by the United Nations for the ninety-nine-year lease. The lease was due however "in consideration of the funds to be paid by the WHO to the UN" to cover the cost of construction of the World Health Organization's offices in the Palais.
- 5. The authorization to lease to the World Health Organization the premises located in the Palais, giver to the Secretary-General by the General Assembly ir resolution 360 (IV) was based on the fact that the World Health Organization will have full responsibility for the additional expenditures required to cover the total construction cost of the projected extension. Furthermore the Preamble of the Agreement mentions resolution 36((IV)) and acknowledges the conditions required by the General Assembly that "any extension or transformation of the Palais des Nations necessary to accomplish this purpose (the leasing to the World Health Organization of premises located in the Palais) is made by the UN a the expense of the WHO".
- 6. Following the receipt of the letter of 11 June 1959 from the Director-General of the World Health Organ ization, a report was made to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions at its sum mer session. At that time, the Secretary-General stated inter alia, that to assist the General Assembly in its consideration of this question, a more complete statemen setting forth the factual considerations involved, togethe with the consequences, budgetary and otherwise, which an eventual move by the World Health Organization vould entail for the United Nations, would subsequently e prepared.

- 7. In the meantime, however, difficulties which have nly very recently been resolved were encountered by he Swiss authorities in finding a suitable site that could e made available to the World Health Organization for ts headquarters. In a letter dated 16 November 1959, owever, the Secretary-General was advised by the Deputy Director-General of the World Health Organization as follows:
- "In Dr. Candau's absence I write to let you know that we have now received from the Conseil d'Etat of Geneva a formed notification of its decision to place at the disposal of WHO a certain building site near the Palais, which is within the area approved by our Executive Board. I hasten to give you this information in relation to the conversations which have recently taken place between you and Dr. Candau on this subject and the interest you have shown in this matter."
- 8. In these circumstances, the Secretary-General oubts whether the General Assembly is in a position to each any conclusion at this session concerning "the uestion of a suitable reimbursement to the WHO by ne United Nations" for its investment in the Palais. Accordingly, he would propose that when all factors pernent to the final accommodation of WHO have matured ufficiently, the matter be further studied, in consultation is necessary with the Advisory Committee and a fuller eport (or reports) be submitted to the General Assembly tits fifteenth session.
- 9. Meanwhile, the Secretary-General desires to stress the fact that he fully shares the view already expressed y the Director-General of WHO, that the question is sentially one to be decided on by the Governments, tembers of the WHO and of United Nations respectively, and not one for negotiation between the heads f the organizations concerned.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY THE TWELFTH WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

WHA12.12 22 May 1959 [Original English]

"Headquarters accommodation

"The Twelfth World Health Assembly,

"Having studied the report of the Director-General to the twenty-third session of the Executive Board and the report submitted to the present session of the Health Assembly,

"Considering resolution EB23.R52 adopted by the Executive Board at its twenty-third session,

"Considering that the present position regarding headquarters accommodation is not conducive to an efficient functioning of headquarters services, and therefore requires an urgent solution,

"Noting from the technical study made by the United Nations on the possibilities of extending the Palais des Nations that none of the several possible extensions could be considered as satisfactory,

"Noting the offers made by the authorities of the Swiss Confederation and of the Republic and Canton of Geneva, subject to parliamentary approval, to provide a building site and to assist in the financing of a new building, by granting loans to a total of Sw. fr. 30,000,000 ($US6,976,744), and

"Noting that the World Health Organization has made an investment in the Palais des Nations which includes a grant by the Swiss authorities intended to facilitate WHO's accommodation in Geneva,

- "1. Decides that there is a need for a headquarters building for WHO;
- "2. Decides that plans and specifications together with more precise cost estimates within a maximum limit of Sw. fr. 40,000,000 ($US9,302,326) shall be laid before the Thirteenth World Health Assembly;
- "3. Accepts the generous offer of the Government of the Swiss Confederation and the Government of the Republic and Canton of Geneva and expresses its warmest thanks for their generous offers;
- "4. Decides to establish a special account entitled 'Head-quarters Building Fund' to which all sums appropriated, borrowed or contributed are to be credited and against which all costs for planning, construction and equipping of the Headquarters building are to be charged, the account to be maintained until the completion of the building project and, notwithstanding the provisions of the Financial Regulations, the balance of the account being carried forward from year to year;
- "5. Agrees that the choice of a building plan and an architect should be made through international competition, which competition shall be governed by rules to be established by the Executive Board including the value of the prizes to be offered;
- "6. Delegates to the Executive Board, subject to the provisions of paragraph 2, the following powers to act on behalf of the Health Assembly with regard to the development of plans, specifications and estimates for the construction of the Headquarters building;
 - "(a) To approve the building site;
- "(b) To approve the contractual arrangements with the authorities of the Swiss Confederation and of the Canton of Geneva for the credits offered;
- "(c) To approve the contract with the architect to be selected as referred to in paragraph 5 above;
- "7. Authorizes the Executive Board to delegate such of the above powers as it may find necessary to an ad hoc committee of the Board, which committee could be convened between sessions of the Board at such time as it might be considered necessary, and on the call of the Director-General;
- "8. Authorizes the Executive Board to accept, for the Headquarters building, on behalf of the World Health Assembly, in conformity with Article 57 of the Constitution, voluntary contributions, gifts and bequests from governments, foundations, individuals and others;
- "9. Requests the Executive Board and the Director-General to study the question of a suitable reimbursement to the World Health Organization by the United Nations, to bring the matter to the attention of the United Nations, and to submit a report to the next Health Assembly; and
- "10. Requests the Executive Board and the Director-General to submit a full report to the Thirteenth World Health Assembly on the status of the plans for headquarters accommodation, and on the financing of the expenditure over the years.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the note by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/810) drawing attention to the resolutions adopted by the Twelfth World Health Assembly and the Executive Board of the World Health Organization (WHO) at its twenty-fourth session on the subject of the construction of a headquarters building for WHO and related matters. Of particular interest to the General Assembly are the provisions in these resolutions dealing with the question of "a suitable reimbursement to the World Health Organization by the United Nations" for the WHO investment in the Palais des Nations in consideration of releasing the space which WHO now occupies in the Palais.
- 2. It will be recalled in this connexion that, pursuant to an agreement entered into in 1950 between the United Nations and WHO, the latter provided Swiss francs 4,425,763 for the extension of the Palais, of which amount Swiss francs 3,000,000 represented a grant made by the Swiss authorities for the purpose of facilitating WHO's accommodation in Geneva. In consideration of the funds provided by WHO, the United Nations leased the new premises to WHO for ninety-nine years at a nominal annual rental of one Swiss franc.
- 3. The Advisory Committee gave preliminary consideration to the matters in question in the course of its 1959 summer session, and again in conjunction with its examination of the 1960 budget of WHO. In its report on the administrative budgets of the specialized agencies for 1960 (A/4257, para. 73), the Committee noted that consultations were still in progress between the Secretary-General and the Director-General of WHO, and deferred its comments and recommendations pending the submission to the General Assembly in due course - of a detailed report on the subject by the Secretary General. Earlier, at its session at Geneva in April 195 the Committee had the opportunity of discussing with the Director-General of WHO various aspects of the proposed move of WHO to new premises, with speciemphasis on the question of common services.

- 4. The details of the arrangements under which WH has occupied space in the Palais des Nations are set o in some detail in the Secretary-General's note (para 3-5). The arrangements in question are such that tl question of a reimbursement to WHO by the Unite Nations needs careful study in terms largely of practic considerations, inasmuch as the two organizations hav in the main, a common membership.
- 5. It appears from the Secretary-General's note the progress of the new headquarters plan had been d layed by difficulties encountered by the Swiss authoritin finding a suitable site. This problem has now becresolved and the Conseil d'Etat of Geneva formal notified WHO on 16 November 1959 of its decision place at the disposal of that organization a building si in the immediate vicinity of the Palais des Nations.
- 6. The Advisory Committee shares the Secretar General's doubts whether, in the above circumstance the General Assembly is in a position to reach any co clusion at its present session concerning the question any reimbursement to WHO for its investment in the Palais. The Committee accordingly concurs in the proposal of the Secretary-General that the matter shound be further studied when all factors pertinent to the fin accommodation of WHO have matured sufficiently, consultation, as necessary, with the Advisory Committee and that a fuller report (or reports) should be submitted to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session.

REVISED ESTIMATES

Sections 1, 6, 7, 8, 14, 17 and 19a

Revised estimates resulting from decisions of the Economic and Social Council

DOCUMENT A/C.5/777

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [25 August 1959]

A. Introduction

- 1. As in previous years, it is necessary, because the nnual work programme of the Economic and Social council does not coincide with the annual time-table for ubmission of initial budget estimates, to amend the nitial budget estimates for 1960 (A/4110) so that new rork requested by the Council for next year can be effected in the appropriations. In the present report, a eries of revisions in the budget estimates for 1960 are roposed which would add $551,600 to the total approriations requested.
- 2. In the case of the requirements for ad hoc expert roups, the employment of individual short-term conultants, travel of staff on official business, and printing ppropriations to cover the full costs are requested.
- 3. In the case of established posts requirements, on ne other hand, the Secretary-General is applying to the nancial implications of the actions of the Council the ame policy as was followed in submitting the initial stimates. That is, no additional established posts are equested. Instead, it is proposed to stabilize the total evel of professional posts for one year during which time fforts are to be made to redeploy posts according to riority needs. This approach is not motivated simply y budgetary considerations; rather, it is designed to rovide a period of approximately one year in which ne Secretary-General and his senior staff may undertake further review of the professional establishment with ne purpose of achieving a maximum effective use of ne resources now authorized before formal requests for et requests for net additions to that establishment are ut forward. As described under part B of this report, ne full financial implications for increased staff in the reas of expanding activity come to approximately 390,000, relating to some thirty professional posts and supporting complement of some fifteen posts of secrearies, typists and statistical clerks. Since additional stablished posts are not being requested for 1960, some imp-sum provision for temporary assistance should be ande so that the Secretary-General will have an assured leans for dealing with those requirements of the highest rgency at Headquarters and in the regional economic ommissions. The temporary assistance provision proosed for this purpose is $100,000, of which $80,000 is or salaries (section 6) and $20,000 is for related com-non staff costs (section 7). Even with a lump-sum temorary assistance authorization of $100,000, it will not e possible in 1960 to meet some of the priority needs for example, those of the Economic Commission for atin America) to other than a nominal extent. Obviusly, also, new work emanating from Council decisions nis year will not be implemented with full and equal peed in all the priority areas involved.
- 4. Apart from the requirements for supplementing the staff resources of the regular establishment, the principal additional requests are for an increase in the budgetary provision for social welfare advisory services and the establishment of a small annual provision for technical assistance activities in the field of narcotic drugs control. Attention is called also to the fact that, in the case of the programme for provision of operational and executive personnel (OPEX), the adoption by the General Assembly of the policies recommended in Council resolution 739 (XXVIII) would remove for the future any numerical limitation upon the total number of OPEX nominations. This action would not in itself have financial implications. The Secretary-General intends, however, later in 1959, to present a financial analysis and forecast of the OPEX programme which could indicate a need for some upward revision in the level of appropriation for 1960.
- 5. Member States may wish to be aware of certain actions of the Council which, while not entailing alterations of the 1960 estimates, are of administrative or financial interest. Under Council resolution 743 D (XXVIII), the Secretary-General is authorized to revise his report on the scope, trend and cost of the programmes of the United Nations for 1959 to 1964 (E/3260, and Add.1 and 2), looking toward the Council's further consideration of this subject in 1960. Council resolution 724 A (XXVIII) terminates the Transport and Communications Commission. In the matter of the timing and related arrangements for the Plenipotentiary Conference for the adoption of a Single Convention on narcotic drugs, the advice of the Council was sought, as mentioned in paragraph 8 of the forward to the 1960 budget estimates, and, in the light of the views expressed in the Council, the Secretary-General has decided to convene the Conference for the period January-March 1961 at New York. Related financial provisions will be included in the initial estimates for that year.
- 6. In resolution 737 (XXVIII), dealing with the use of Special Account moneys to finance overhead costs of the organizations in respect of the Expanded Programme for Technical Assistance, a formula is laid down under which the miscellaneous income which the United Nations receives from the Special Account for overhead costs will be reduced progressively in 1961 and 1962 to the level recommended to the Technical Assistance Committee by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. This formula will be taken into account in the estimates for miscellaneous income for 1961.
- 7. In connexion with the present report, reference may be made also to the detailed statements of financial implications submitted to the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth sessions of the Council (especially E/3288 and E/3301) and to chapter X of the Council's report to the General Assembly (A/4143).

8. In the detailed explanation of the revised estimates for 1960 which follows, certain standard costing formulas have been utilized. In the case of ad hoc groups of experts, the standard calculation is $1,000 for travel and $25 subsistence for each day of meeting. Printing costs are based on estimated length of the publication, number of languages and probable distribution. The printing estimates given are gross costs, without making allowance for the fact that, in the case of most of the publications, a sales revenue will result. Typing and translation costs will be incurred for every new document and report, and in most instances an estimate has been given as to what these costs would amount to if they were separately calculated; however, no budgetary request in respect of such costs is made at the present time. Although no request for an increase in the number of established posts for 1960 is made, full information is given on the post requirements associated with the new work for which the Council has asked, and, in the presentation, the cost of professional posts is calculated on the basis of one year's salary at step 2 of the grade plus 20 per cent for all associated common staff costs, plus post adjustment where appropriate.

B. Financial implications of decisions of the Council

Calendar of conferences for 1960 (section 1)

- 9. The calendar provides for the 1960 session of the Commission on the status of Women to be held in Buenos Aires, on invitation of the Government of Argentina. That Government, after being informed of the services it would be expected to provide and of the approximate level of additional budgetary costs it would be expected to reimburse, has confirmed its acceptance of the principle laid down in General Assembly resolution 1202 (XII). When the detailed negotiations with the Government have been completed, the proposed budgetary and related financial arrangements will be submitted to the General Assembly.
- 10. In resolution 728E (XXVIII), the Council increased the membership of the Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities from twelve to fourteen. This action necessitates adding the sum of $3,100 to the provision for travel and subsistence of members of this Sub-Commission, now shown in section 1 (chapter III), so that the total provision in respect of the Sub-Commission is increased from $22,000 to $25,100.

Industrialization (section 6)

- 11. Council resolution 709 A (XXVII) welcomed the action of the Secretary-General in raising the status of the Secretariat's Industry Section to that of a Branch of the Bureau of Economic Affairs, urged him to consider strengthening further the organization and work programme in the field of industrialization, and supported the use of consultants either individually or as an advisory group.
- 12. Full implementation of the Council's request would require an increase in the basic strength of the Industrial Development Branch from the present level of nine professional posts to a total of approximately eighteen professional posts. As part of the programme of redeployment and maximum utilization of existing posts referred to in paragraph 2 above, it is intended to provide four of these new posts from within the present establishment. It is most unlikely that the remaining five posts could be provided in 1960 in the same manner. The possibility of requesting up to five new professional post (initial cost, $61,000) in the 1961 budget estimates if foreseen.

13. The additional budgetary requirement for 1960 i limited to the amount needed to permit the use of outsid consultants during the year. Assuming twenty-four con sultant man-months (some part of which may be applied to a meeting of a group of experts), the sum of $26,000 is added to the temporary assistance requirements fo Headquarters contained in section 6. The proposal that seminars, consultations are training centres be en couraged will be implemented through the technical assistance programme in accordance with normal programming procedures.

Sources of energy and energy development (section 6)

- 14. In resolution 710 A (XXVII) the Council re quested the Secretary-General to take measures for hold ing a United Nations conference on solar energy, wine power and geothermic energy, if possible in 1961 but no later than 1962, and, in this connexion, to convene pre liminary meetings of experts not later than the las quarter of 1960. The 1960 costs for meetings of expert would come to $16,975, assuming two groups of expert (one on geothermic energy and one on solar energy consisting of seven experts each, who would meet for period of about one week. As to the timing of the pro posed international conference, the Secretary-Genera would contemplate convening the conference in 1961. I the conference were held at New York and appropriately timed, and assuming that participants bear their own travel and subsistence costs, the only additional appro priations in respect of it would relate to printing of th report of the conference, estimated at $5,000.
- 15. Council resolution 710 B (XXVII) requests th Secretary-General to develop a methodology for apprais ing energy resources, and also to arrange, at the reques of the Governments of interested Member States, for th preparation of seminars at the regional or other appro priate level to promote better understanding of th economic problems connected with energy developmen in under-developed countries. On the assumption tha the development of methods of energy development ap praisal could be done with the help of a panel of expert and the co-operation of technically interested interna tional organizations, the costs foreseen-for a panel o seven experts which would meet for about one week i the summer of 1960 and again early in 1961-will b $8,225 for 1960 and $9,975 for 1961. An additional cos in 1960 for engaging an expert consultant for six month would come to $7,000. The cost of printing the repor of the panel of experts in 1961 would come to about $5,000. As to seminars, it is hoped that present plans fo convening a seminar on economics of electrification possibly at Headquarters, in the autumn of 1960 coul materialize as a technical assistance project, subject, o course, to normal programming procedures.
- 16. The total additional amount required in sectio 6 of the estimates for consultant services as a consequenc of these resolutions is $32,200, of which $25,200 relates t expert meetings and $7,000 to a consultancy. The requirements for 1961 will be taken into account when th initial budget estimates for that year are prepared.

Population analysis (section 14)

- 17. The Council, in resolution 721 (XXVII) endorsed the work programme and priorities contained in the Population Commission's report. This programme involves expansion of present activities to include regular review of various aspects of the world demographic situation in relation to economic and social conditions; studies of rural-urban migration in relation to urbanization and industrialization; and continuation of demographic pilot studies. The issuance of Russian versions of certain key population studies is also contemplated.
- 18. Continuing authority for carrying out demographic pilot studies at an annual cost of between $5,000 to $10,000 per year already exists under the terms of Council resolution 571 A (XIX); the anticipated 1960 expenditure for the second pilot study (to be initiated in the latter part of 1959), foreseen as being about $8,000, is provided for in the initial budget estimates. The costs for which budgetary provision does not exist, and which are only partly absorbed by staff savings accruing from a temporary abatement of work on future population projections, relate to the provision of two Professional posts (P-4 or P-3) and one General Service post in 1960, to be increased, in 1961 and thereafter, to three Professional and two General Service posts. The estimated salary and related common staff costs would be $27,000 in 1960 and $42,000 in 1961. In addition, the printing in Russian of the Demographic Dictionary (1960 only) and the Population Bulletin would add a printing cost of $2,850 in 1960 and $1,250 thereafter.
- 19. Additional posts are not requested for 1960, although the possibility of having to include new posts in the estimates for 1961 is foreseen. The budgetary impact for 1960 relates to an increase in the estimate for contractual printing (section 14) by $2,850.

Freedom of information (section 6)

- 20. Council resolution 718 (XXVII) requested the Secretary-General to institute a programme of reports on developments in freedom of information. The Secretary-General expressed certain reservations regarding the appropriateness of giving these tasks to the Secretariat and said that, in so far as the proposed substantive report on developments since 1954 was concerned, he would, if the Council agreed, entrust the work to a consultant and transmit the report of the latter to the Council. The Council adopted the resolution on this understanding. Accordingly, $7,000 is added to the provision for temporary assistance (consultant services) requested in section 6 of the estimates. The cost of printing the report will not require budgetary provision until 1961 or 1962.
- 21. For the expansion in the continuing work of the Secretariat required under this resolution, there will be a need, as from 1960, for one P-5 officer and one secretary (total related salary and common staff costs, $21,000) but additional established posts for the purpose are not requested.

Short-term appraisals of world economic situation (section 14)

22. As required by resolution 690 C (XXVI), the Secretary-General submitted to the Council a preliminary report³⁸ on the work carried out to date on short-term appraisals of the world economic situation, including the recommendations for extending and improving this work which were made by the expert group which met in June 1959. The Secretary-General is to proceed along the lines recommended by the expert group and to make the further report called for by resolution 690 C (XXVI) to the thirtieth session of the Council.

23. As the Council was informed (E/3288, annex II), the new compilations to be undertaken will involve additional clerical time, estimated at the equivalent of two statistical clerks at the senior level of the General Service category. Salary and related common staff costs for the two statistical clerks for a full year would amount to $10,600. This additional requirement will be fully reflected in the 1961 initial budget estimates; in the meantime, the need will be met provisionally from 1960 resources as authorized. In addition, the publication of a quarterly bilingual bulletin is envisaged in the near future. The costs of printing such a bulletin are estimated at $5,300 in the first year of publication and $5,100 in subsequent years. For 1960, therefore, the estimate under section 14 of the budget (contractual printing) is increased by $5,300.

Evaluation of techniques of long-term economic projections (sections 6 and 8)

- 24. Council resolution 741 (XXVIII) institutes a new programme for the evaluation of long-term economic projections that have been developed, including those at present being carried out in the United Nations. The Secretary-General is required to undertake such an evaluation in consultation with the appropriate specialized agencies and other competent organizations and to submit an initial report to the thirtieth session of the Council, to be followed by other progress reports as appropriate.
- 25. In implementing this request, the Secretary-General will arrange for detailed technical consultations between staff in the Bureau of Economic Affairs and personnel of national Governments, regional economic commissions and other competent organizations actually engaged in the carrying out of long-term projections. A significant amount of staff travel—possibly four overseas trips and some short trips—is required during the balance of 1959 and first part of 1960. Funds for one overseas trip are being set aside within the 1959 appropriation and plans are being made to reserve funds in 1960 for a second trip. To assure that funds will be available for two other overseas trips in 1960, a supplementary credit of $5,000 under section 8 is requested. In addition, funds in the amount of $13,000 are requested under section 6 to finance either an ad hoc meeting of experts or other use of outside expert advice.

Regional economic commissions (sections 6 and 14)

26. Economic Commission for Europe: The work programme³⁹ approved by Council resolution 723 A (XXVIII) requires, for its full implementation, the provision of one Professional post (P-3) for work on trade and six General Service posts in the various parts of the ECE Secretariat (estimated annual cost, $38,800). The printing of volume maps of main international arteries and printing of the annual bulletin of electric energy statistics for Europe would entail additional printing costs. In the case of the volume maps, to be printed in 1961, or 1962, a contribution of $1,200, by the

³⁹ Ibid.. Supplement No. 3.

International Road Federation, would reduce the United Nations printing expense to $900. Statistical services and photographic and reproduction supplies required for the printing of these maps would, if separately calculated, involve a cost of $5,200. The recurring annual cost of printing the electric energy bulletin would be $2,100. In each case some sales revenue is anticipated.

27. It is intended to deal with foreseen 1960 staffing requirements within the level of appropriations being requested for that year. The only revision in the 1960 estimates is therefore an increase of $2,100 in section 14 (contractual printing).

28. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East: The Work Programme⁴⁰ approved by Council resolution 723 B (XXVIII) requires one or two additional substantive professional posts. The need for one P-4 statistical post (Estimated salary and common staff costs of $13,700) is considered most urgent. The Secretary-General will endeavour to meet this requirement within the existing level of the total establishment. The possibility of a request for a net increase in the number of posts in respect of ECAFE for 1961 is not precluded.

29. The Regional Population Conference proposed by ECAFE for 1961 or 1962 is most likely to be held early in 1962 and to rely, for financial resources, principally upon the technical assistance programme. There is, however, a certain amount of preparatory work, particularly the drafting of a series of technical papers, which will entail the co-operative use of ECAFE and Headquarters resources. To the extent that an increase in the existing full-time permanent staff engaged in demographic analysis (see paras. 17-19 above) cannot be brought about before 1961, some expenditure for the employment of short-term consultants will be necessary in 1960 and this fact has been taken into account in establishing the magnitude of the supplementary request for temporary assistance to which reference is made in para. 3 above.

30. Economic Commission for Latin America: The Work Programme⁴¹ which the Council approved in resolution 723 C (XXVIII), envisages a substantial increase in the assignments carried by the ECLA secretariat, particularly on the common market project and in regional statistical services. At the time of the Commission's session it was anticipated that a sizable increase in the number of continuing posts would be called for. In addition to a general strengthening of substantive units by nine posts varying in level from P-5 to P-2, and associated with the normal development of ECLA's authorized programme, a further seven posts were estimated as needed in the event that the additional work in respect of tariff systems, trade policy, and the intensification of statistical collaboration, for which the eighth session of the Commission asked, were undertaken on the fullest scale. The estimated cost of such an increase in establishment would be about $166,500. The Secretary-General, after reviewing the range of new demands upon the total establishment contained in the reports of all the functional and regional commissions, believes that a certain balance in the rate of expansion throughout these areas is required. He therefore proposes to apply to the potential needs of ECLA the same approach as he is suggesting for the growth requirements at Headquarters and the other regional centres (except the Economic Commission for Africa). Under this approach the most urgent of ECLA's priority needs would be met to some extent by modest transfers of posts becoming available and to some extent by the judicious use of temporary assistance credits, as foreseen in paragraph 3 above. The inclusion of post increases on behalf of ECLA in the initial budget estimates for 1961 is foreseen.

31. Economic Commission for Africa: Financial requirements for the 1960 Work Programme of the Commission⁴² which the Council approved in resolution 723 D (XXVIII), are reflected in section 10 of the initial estimates. In addition to the information there presented, attention is invited to the importance (as was reported to the Council in connexion with its review of the commission's work) of the programme of technical meetings on which initial actions were taken by the Commission at its first session (December 1958-January 1959) and with which the Commission will concern itself again at its Second Session in January 1960.

32. Many of the principal elements in the Commission's work programme are dependent upon the convening of seminars, workshops and other expert meetings through which there can be exchanges of experience and knowledge and direct collaboration among representatives of national technical services. For 1959, the Commission secretariat is preparing a technical Seminar on African Statisticians, another in the field of community development, a meeting of national accountants and one of economic planners. As in other regions, maximum self-help on the part of participating countries is desired. Specifically, it is hoped that wherever possible countries will assume the travel and subsistence costs of their expert participants. To the extent that this is done, the relatively limited technical assistance funds available for multi-country projects can be devoted to financing directorial and related consultant costs. In the case of Africa, however, it is already evident that countries often are not in a position to meet the full costs of participating in regional technical meetings. Their financial difficulties are increased because of the tremendous distances and resulting high expenses for individual journeys. While the technical assistance programme is expected to cover some of the costs for regional meetings, the regular budget of the Commission must share the financial burden if the Commission's wishes concerning the programme of technical meetings are to be carried out successfully.

33. The 1960 calendar of technical meetings in Africa will not be established until the Commission has held its second session. Without knowing the particular seminars, workshops or other technical meetings which may be scheduled in the region for 1960, or the particular financial arrangements for each such meeting, it is nevertheless proposed to provide some budgetary support for such meetings, according to circumstances, within the level of appropriations already requested under section 10. It is not likely that the charges would exceed $50,000 for these conferences and meetings in 1960.

34. For 1961 and subsequent years, it is intended, in submitting budget estimates for the Commission, to request funds specifically for the purpose of financial assistance to regional meetings under the separate heading of "Ad Hoc Meetings of Experts on Economic and Social Questions".

Social activities (section 17)

35. Implementation of Council resolution 731 G (XXVIII) would entail a substantial increase in the funds appropriated for operational programmes. The quantity and nature of unfilled governmental requests for direct assistance in the social field would require additional funds of up to $400,000, assuming all requests were to be implemented in full. As a practical matter, the Secretary-General believes that an additional appropriation of $275,000 should be made under the advisory social welfare services programme, bringing the total appropriation from $925,000 to a level of $1,200,000.

- 36. The principal new requirements justifying this proposal arise from the increase in the number of countries participating in the technical assistance programme, particularly the new countries in Africa; the gradual expansion of social programmes as part of over-all development plans of Governments; the increased need for relatively long-term assistance for social programmes and, in particular, for training of personnel; and, in addition, the recent policy decisions of the Executive Board of the United Nations Children's Fund concerning aid for community development programmes and for social services for children, which require supporting technical assistance at the national level.
- 37. A survey in May 1959 indicated that $723,000 of regular programme funds were already committed for 1960 on expert contracts and fellowships. Conservative calculations of the cost of regional projects, individual experts and fellowships for which there were already expressions of interest (before the programming cycle was complete) indicated that an additional $578,000 would be needed to fill new requests in 1960. At least $370,000 of this amount will be needed in Africa. The major fields in which demands are growing are community development, housing and urbanization and social services.
- 38. These additional requirements are exclusive of new programmes which will be put forward for inclusion as category I or category II projects under the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. It is conceivable that some of these new needs will be met in other ways and that some will be subject to programming delays of various sorts. It is in the light of these considerations that a minimum amount of $275,000 is considered by the Secretary-General to be a reasonable addition to existing funds for carrying out the programme under General Assembly resolution 418 (V).

International commodity problems

39. The decision of the Council in resolution 726 (XXVIII) concerning the programme of work in the commodity field in 1960 entails an increase of three Professional (P-4) officers, one statistical clerk and one typist in this area of work, at a total estimated annual cost of $49,500. These claims are to receive priority consideration in the coming year within the resources available (including the use of periodic temporary assistance).

Transport of dangerous goods (sections 6 and 8) 40. The provision in Council resolution 724 C

(XXVIII) for the use of an expert group on explosives to assist the work of the Committee of Experts necessitates adding $3,200 to the estimates to cover travel of a substantive officer to a four weeks' meeting in Geneva ($1,200 in section 8) and payments, including travel, for a technical consultant to prepare documentation for both the expert group and the Committee ($2,000 in section 6). As indicated in the resolution, the expenses of the expert group, as of the Committee of Experts, would be paid by individual Governments.

Status of women (section 14)

41. As a consequence of Council resolution 722 C (XXVIII), requesting the printing of certain publications on the nationality of married women, additional expenditure for printing totalling $3,130 will be incurred in 1960 and 1961. The amount required for 1960, which should be included in the appropriation under section 14, is $1,850.

Technical assistance in the field of narcotics control

- 42. In resolution 730 I (XXVIII), the Council recommends that the General Assembly establish a continuing programme of technical assistance in narcotics control within the regular budget of the United Nations.
- 43. The Secretary-General proposes that, should the General Assembly approve the establishment of such a programme, $75,000 should be appropriated under Part VI (Technical Programmes) of the 1960 estimates, the funds thus appropriated to be available exclusively for projects in the narcotics control field. This sum would make it possible to provide for one inter-country project (approximately $20,000-$25,000), two experts (approximately $25,000) and eight long-term fellowships (approximately $30,000). The actual expenditure of funds would, of course, be determined in accordance with the approved request of Governments. Countries would remain free to include narcotics control projects not covered by this budget provision in their general technical assistance programmes where they wished and were able to do so; and it is hoped that a number of items, particularly of the less costly variety, such as short-term fellowships, would continue to be so included. The existing establishment for the administration of United Nations technical assistance programmes would be utilized for this new activity.
- 44. As to the accommodation of this new item within the 1960 form of the budget, it appears best, since narcotic drugs control is a separate and specialized field in its own right and since whatever funds are appropriated would be spent exclusively in that field, to appropriate the funds into a new section, which could be entitled "Narcotic Drugs Control Advisory Services" and could be numbered section 19a. In this case, the question of a later simplification of the form of part VI, to reduce the total number of separate sections, would be studied in conjunction with the preparation of the 1961 estimates.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/777) in which he has submitted upward revisions totalling $551,600 in the 1960 budget estimates, as a result of the decisions taken by the Economic and Social Council at its twenty-seventh (April 1959) and twenty-eighth (July 1959) sessions.
- 2. The full financial implications for 1960 of the Council's decisions are estimated at some $840,000 comprising $390,000 for staff costs, $350,000 for technical programmes and advisory services, and about $100,000 for other items such as consultants, expert groups, travel and printing. However, the Secretary-General has limited the additional requirements which he requests to $551,600, by substituting a lump-sum provision of $100,000 for temporary assistance (including related common staff costs) in lieu of the additional posts involved, which would have cost some $390,000. Full budgetary provision is requested, on the other hand, in respect of the additional expenditures for technical programmes and advisory services ($350,000) and the other items mentioned above (about $100,000).
- 3. The Advisory Committee understands that the Secretary-General's policy of not requesting for 1960 any additional established posts in the Professional category (except in respect of the Economic Commission for Africa) is dictated not only by considerations of economy, but equally by his desire to have a selective review of the continuing staff resources available in the Secretariat with a view to their re-deployment on the basis of priority needs. Thus the Secretary-General would examine, in the context of a temporary period of stability in the Professional cadre of officials, the question of how best the existing establishment could be used, both in terms of posts and of individuals, to render the Secretariat as a whole more effective. Such an examination would cover, on the one hand, internal reviews of the Professional establishment and, on the other hand, the exercise of selective judgements, to the extent that these lie within the Secretary-General's authority, as regards priorities in the work programme of the Secretariat.

4. The Advisory Committee welcomes this approach which had already been reflected in the Secretary-General's initial budget estimates for 1960. In commenting on those estimates, the Committee expressed the hope that "the programme bodies of the Organization will strengthen the Secretary-General's hands in this regard so that those activities which, in the view of Member States, must grow in size and importance, may be undertaken with little or no additional requirements of staff and other resources" (A/4170, para. 46). The Committee believes also that the Secretary-General should be strongly supported in his efforts to assist and supplement the work of programme bodies in regard to the assignment of priorities and to ensure a desirable balance in the rate of expansion in the several fields covered by the functional and regional commissions of the Economic and Social Council.

5. The considerations set forth above have guided the Advisory Committee in its understanding of the Economic and Social Council's decisions as well as in its examination of the resulting financial implications. The Committee would also note here that, in addition to declining areas of work, some facility for the shifting of resources would be offered gradually as new arrangements and procedures are put into effect following the amalgamation of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Technical Assistance Administration. The Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee will report during the current session of the General Assembly on the progress achieved in this regard and related matters.

6. A tabular analysis of the Secretary-General's estimates by subject matter and by budget section is given below:

7. The comments and recommendations that follow are arranged by budget section, rather than by subject, in order to facilitate the consideration of the present revised estimates as an extension of a budget in which expenditures are grouped according to their purpose or object and not by the project to which they relate. Under each section, however, comment is offered, as appropriate, in respect of the project or projects having an impact on the estimates under that section.

Section 1. Travel of representatives, members of commissions and committees — $3,100

8. While the Advisory Committee concurs in the proposed addition of $3,100 under section 1 to take account of the increase in the membership of the Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities from twelve to fourteen, the Committee trusts that the frequency of the sessions of the Sub-Commission will also be reviewed when the Economic Council next examines the periodicity of meeting of its functional commissions. The Advisory Committee has, in its report on the 1960 budget estimates, commented on the general question of frequency of meetings (A/4170, paras. 34 and 35).

Section 6. Salaries and wages — $160,200 Section 7. Common staff costs — $20,000

9. The estimate of $160,200 under section 6 comprises $80,000 for additional temporary staff and $80,200 for consultants and expert groups, while the whole of the provision of $20,000 under section 7 relates to common staff costs in respect of the additional temporary staff.

- 10. Major elements in the work programmes approved by the Economic and Social Council, which it is stated will require the allocation of additional staff resources, include increased activity in the Economic Commission for Latin America (ECLA), particularly on the common market project and in regional statistical services; strengthening the organization and work programme in the field of industrialization; expansion in the present activities in regard to population analysis and demographic studies; increased work on trade in the Economic Commission for Europe; additional work relating to freedom of information; and expansion of the programme of work in the commodity field.
- 11. The Secretary-General has indicated that, after practicable plans of work are developed in the light both of priority criteria and of the need for balance among the several segments of the total economic and social work of the Organization, the most essential needs will be met in 1960 as far as possible within available resources. The additional temporary assistance requested is intended, without making net additions to the continuing establishment, to provide supplementary resources to fill essential gaps in 1960, pending a review of the deployment of established staff resources.
- 12. The Advisory Committee has, in paragraph 4 above, commented favourably on this approach. At the same time, the Committee has some reservations whether the staffing plans envisaged under various items of the Secretary-General's report, which would form the basis both for the utilization of temporary assistance credits and possibly for a more permanent expansion at a later stage, are practicable and likely to produce maximum effectiveness. Illustrative of this situation is the programme in ECLA which would involve the addition of sixteen Professional posts subject to funds being available; the same applies to the proposals in respect of industrialization, by which the present level of nine Professional posts would be doubled as soon as resources permit. Without detracting in any way from the importance of the programmes in question, the Advisory Committee believes that any expansion of activity, in order to be fully effective and productive of maximum returns, should be well prepared; in other words, the lines of further development should be clearly studied and understood before additional resources are directed to such expansion.

- 13. It also appears to the Advisory Committee that the estimates for consultants and expert groups are in some cases based on somewhat general plans, such as for instance in respect of outside consultants on industrialization ($26,000) and of either an ad hoc meeting of experts or other use of outside expert advice in regard to the evaluation of techniques of long-term economic projections ($13,000). Furthermore, the Committee is not convinced that the consultants for which provision is requested can in no case be financed from consultant funds already included in the initial 1960 estimates.
- 14. The Advisory Committee accordingly recommends that the additional provision under section 6 should be limited to $130,000, or some $30,000 less than the estimate submitted by the Secretary-General. Assuming that some $15,000 of the reduction would apply to the provisions for temporary staff, there would be a consequential reduction of about $3,000 in the estimate under section 7.

Section 8. Travel of staff and members of administrative bodies — $6,200 Section 14. Printing, stationery and library supplies — $12,100

15. The Advisory Committee believes that specific additional provision need not be made in respect of the relatively small requirements indicated under sections 8 and 14. It should be possible, through appropriate adjustments in the travel and printing programmes or through other savings in the respective sections to accommodate the additional requirements.

Section 17. Social activities — $275,000

16. The Advisory Committee has consistently taken the position that the amount of the appropriations for technical programmes in the regular budget of the Organization involves a decision of policy to be taken by the General Assembly concerning the level of these programmes in the light of over-all budgetary considerations. In the specific case under review, the Committee notes that Economic and Social Council resolution 731 G (XXVIII) reflects a general desire for the further development of the programme of advisory services in the social welfare field, rather than a request for specific new services. Taking into account over-all budgetary considerations, the Advisory Committee would suggest, as a matter of practical programming, that an increase of $200,000—or more than 20 per cent—over the present level of $925,000 represents a sufficient advancement of the programme under the Council resolution.

17. The steady increase in the volume of technical programmes financed from the regular budget emphasizes the need to review the procedures that have been developed for the examination and approval of requests so as to bring them more into line with the procedures applicable to the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and to ensure closer co-ordination between all of the operational programmes of the Organization in the economic and social fields. The Advisory Committee may revert to this question in due course. (A/4170, paras. 215 and 216).

Section 19a. Narcotic drugs control advisory services — $75,000

18. Although narcotics control projects are eligible for financing under the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, apparently they are often edged out of country programmes by projects of more direct importance to national economic development. This is presumably one of the reasons for the recommendation in Council resolution 730 I (XXVIII) that the General Assembly establish a continuing programme of technical assistance in narcotics control within the regular budget of the Organization. Should the General Assembly decide to establish such a programme, the Advisory Committee would suggest that the appropriation for the purpose might be limited in the first year of the programme to $50,000. It would still be possible within this amount to meet essential gaps in the Expanded Programme in this field, and indeed to undertake the services envisaged in the Secretary-General's report (A/C.5/777)para. 43), with most of the fellowships being covered under the Expanded Programme.

Supplementary report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (Section 17)

- 1. At its 737th meeting on 4 November 1959, the Fifth Committee, having considered the revised estimates for social activities under section 17 of the 1960 budget (A/4223, A/C.5/777), decided to refer the matter to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for further study and report.
- 2. In considering this question further, the Advisory Committee has taken account of the statement made by the Commissioner for Technical Assistance at the 737th meeting of the Fifth Committee and the subsequent discussion in that Committee. In addition, the Advisory Committee sought information on fourteen specific points connected with the question under review. These points, as well as the comprehensive replies thereto which were submitted by the Commissioner for Technical Assistance, are reproduced in annex I to the present report.
- 3. The Advisory Committee also received a detailed listing of the requests for assistance in the social field in 1960 under the regular budget (General Assembly resolution 418 (V)), which had been discussed with Governments, analysed by the Secretariat and found valid, as at 27 October 1959. This listing is reproduced in annex II to the present report.
- 4. In addition, the Advisory Committee has obtained oral testimony on a number of points arising out of the written replies.
- 5. The earlier recommendation of the Advisory Committee (A/4223, para. 16) that the provision in the regular budget for advisory social welfare services should be increased from the present level of $925,000 by $200,000, rather than by $275,000 as proposed by the Secretary-General, was based on two main considerations. In the first place, the amount of the appropriations for technical programmes in the regular budget involves a decision of policy to be taken by the General Assembly concerning the level of those programmes, in the light of over-all budgetary considerations. Secondly, the Advisory Committee believed that practical questions related to the sound planning and management of projects limited the extent to which a programme could be expanded in a single year, without impairing its effectiveness.
- 6. Related to the second of the above considerations was also the fact that the procedures for the formulation, review and reporting of the regular programme were about to undergo an important change in that a detailed listing of the projects to be undertaken in 1960 was to be submitted to the Technical Assistance Committee (TAC) and subsequently made available to the General Assembly. Previously, while general substantive reports on the regular programme had been submitted to the Economic and Social Council or its functional commissions, a costed list of projects for budgetary purposes was unavailable.
- 7. The Advisory Committee notes that the first report to TAC under the revised procedure mentioned above has now been presented (E/TAC/95). Pending at least this first application of the new procedure, there would appear to be some reason for keeping the immediate expansion of the programme at a modest scale.

- 8. In studying the information submitted to it, the Advisory Committee has inquired into the impact of continuing projects on the total regular programme in the social field and other questions related to the management of the programme. The Committee is reasonably satisfied as to the ability of the Secretariat to administer a programme of the size envisaged by the Secretary-General. At the same time, it is noted that social projects included in category I of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance in 1960 amount to $710,195, or an increase of some 15 per cent over the 1959 provision—the programme for the whole of 1959 being estimated, as at 15 November, at $618,465. There might be some question whether there should be a substantially greater proportionate increase under the regular budget, which is to be assessed to all Member States, than under the Expanded Programme, which is financed by voluntary contribu-
- 9. A further point concerns the geographical coverage of the programme in the social field under General Assembly resolution 418 (V). Because of its origin, this programme has, within the provisions of the resolution cited above, been used not only to sponsor but also to finance projects in several countries which may be regarded as economically and industrially advanced, in addition to projects in the economically under-developed countries. There is perhaps need to review the scope of resolution 418 (V) in the present-day spirit of technical assistance programmes. It might be possible, through appropriate adjustments in geographical coverage, to manage the programme at a somewhat lower level in 1960 than has been envisaged by the Secretary-General.
- 10. As to the over-all budgetary situation, revisions resulting from proposals which have arisen subsequent to the initial budget submission of the Secretary-General, and approved by the Fifth Committee in first reading, already amount to some $1,2 million on a gross basis.
- 11. The foregoing considerations would appear to be relevant to the decision of policy, to be taken by the General Assembly, concerning the level of technical programmes to be financed in 1960 from the regular budget. For its part, the Advisory Committee is inclined to maintain its earlier recommendation that the 1960 provision under section 17 for social activities should be set at $1,125,000 representing an increase of $200,000 over the 1959 level.

Section 17. Social activities

Replies submitted by the Commissioner for Technical Assistance to points raised by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

Question 1

What is the meaning of the term "requests examined and found to be valid", used by the Commissioner in his statement?

The process of evaluation of requests submitted by Governments is a lengthy and highly important part of technical assistance procedures in the case of both the regular programme and the Expanded Programme. Within the country itself, requests in the social field are ordinarily drawn up in the first instance by the Ministries of Social Affairs, Justice, Housing and Town Planning, and sometimes by the Ministries of Health and Education. Those requests are examined at a central point in the Government itself and are very often discussed, both at the ministerial stage and at the co-ordinating point, with the Technical Assistance Resident Representative and, where such personnel is available, with regional social affairs officers or social experts already assigned to projects in the country. If these requests are considered at the co-ordinating point in the Government to be valid in terms of the needs of the country and to fit within a reasonable financial total, they are forwarded to the United Nations between July and November each year for the following year's programme. The Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations refers all requests in the social field to the Bureau of Social Affairs for further examination. These requests are checked against a number of criteria-for example, whether the request properly falls within the competence of the United Nations: in some cases, a project may be considered as being primarily a health or education project and be referred to the specialized agencies concerned. In other cases, the request may be in a field not considered appropriate for United Nations technical assistance but also not within the competence of the specialized agencies; for example, we have sometimes received requests for help in developing a system of crime detection but have not considered such requests appropriate for United Nations action. Lastly, the requests are considered against the background of our general knowledge of the country and the stage of its development in a particular field-if, for example, a country should request help in developing psychiatric social work but, according to our information, does not have the medical and psychiatric staff required for the basic treatment of mental illness, we would not consider it valid to respond without further clarification. If a country asked us to evaluate a community development programme which was only two years old, we would not consider it justified to spend the fairly large sum involved in such a mission at such an early stage in the programme; in some other cases, we are aware that the country concerned has already requested and received a considerable amount of multilateral or bilateral aid within a particular field, and we might question the desirability of spending our limited funds in fields where the country has already had many years of assistance. In some other cases, the country appears to be asking a disproportionate amount of specialized help both in terms of its own development of basic services and in terms of the total funds available for the programme. While we do not set country targets in the regular programme, we try to preserve some proportion, particularly where one country has long had a considerable amount of assistance in the social field and other countries are waiting with their first request. If the country has not agreed, at the field level, to withhold the request but has submitted it, we do not reject the request outright but enter into consultation with the Government concerned and suggest that the request be postponed until a later date, the request be changed into a more acceptable one, or withdrawn. If the problem is merely a financial one, we ask that the project be considered in the second category to be taken up if, and when, savings become available.

Please give a brief description of procedures for the receipt, review and approval of projects under section 17.

The procedure for receipt and review of requests has been described in the reply to question 1. When the Bureau of Social Affairs has checked the request for its suitability at a given time, and the Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations has agreed that it can be financed, the project is submitted to the weekly meeting of the Commissioner for Technical Assistance and the Directors of the Bureaux of the Department. At this time of the year, these projects will of course be approved internally as a part of over-all country programmes. During the year, necessary adjustments or changes requested by the Government are made through the same procedure. Under the newly agreed procedure, the total programme under section 17 will also be submitted to the Technical Assistance Committee. As far as regional projects are concerned, there are still other points of approval: the Social and the Population Commissions and the Economic and Social Council. Since regional projects require a considerable amount of substantive work by the staff of the Bureau of Social Affairs, both in the preparation of documentation and in servicing seminars, training centres, etc., the proposed projects are included in the work programme submitted to the Social Commission or to the Population Commission respectively. If they approve these projects and the Governments concerned indicate their interest in them in a formal way, the projects are included in the technical assistance programme.

What are the broad categories of projects, and their relative magnitudes? As an illustration, please give a breakdown of 1959 projects.

As indicated in general assembly resolution 418 (V), projects fall into five types: expert advisers, fellowships, regional seminars, demonstration and training centres, and technical materials and equipment. They also fall into categories according to the subject matter of the request, and this is best illustrated by the special annexes to the Secretary-General's report to the twelfth session of the Social Commission entitled "Progress made by the United Nations in the Social Field during the period 1 January 1957–31 December 1958 and proposals for the programme of work, 1959-1961" (E/CN.5/334 and Add.3). As indicated there, the categories of assistance are:

1958 expenditure	Regular	Expanded	Total
	Un	ited States dol	lars
Social development	183,799		183,799
Population	76,561	15,218	91,779
Housing, physical planning	77,583	339,720	417,303
Community development	236,732	158,171	394,903
Social defence	23,156	2,200	25,356
Family and child care	69,447		69,447
Medical social services	2,378	_	2,378
Rehabilitation of handicapped	116,268	51,964	168,232
Public assistance	4,065	_	4,065
Training in social services	135,011		135,011
Land tenure		24,786	24,786
	925,000	592,059	1,517,059

As indicated in this report, requests in the more specialized fields, such as medical-social work and social defence have been decreasing in relation to those in broader fields such as community development, housing and town planning, and requests for general social development advisory services. The latter classification is used to describe requests for advisers who assist the Government in planning an over-all programme of social welfare and organizing Ministries or Departments of Social Welfare and in establishing basic institutions for the implementation of the programmes. Rehabilitation of the handicapped is a specialized field where there is a heavy demand for services but the United Nations is fortunate enough to have both technical and financial contributions from voluntary agencies in this field. This is also true in the demographic field where substantial amounts have been made available by a foundation. The final 1959 statistics are not yet available but these trends are continuing.

Question 4

Could the Committee have figures, if available, showing the level of "valid" requests by 1 November of each of the years 1957, 1958 and 1959?

No such special figures are available, but the question may be answered briefly by indicating that the funds available under resolution 418 (V) have been completely expended for the years mentioned.

Question 5

Could the Advisory Committee have some information on "continuing" projects, including the total number of current projects so designated and expected to continue in 1960, with a break-down of the figure by category of projects?

The number of continuing projects has been increasing yearly since countries requesting help in planning and implementation of broad social welfare programmes, community development programmes, training institutions, etc., are ordinarily in need of help for a period of from two to five years. A more highly specialized project generally requires a shorter period of assistance. For example, when Yugoslavia requested specialized assistance for developing a programme for deaf and dumb children, a period of three months only was involved, but when Pakistan asked for aid in beginning an urban community development programme, it requested advisers continuously for a five-year period. It is of course most important that the Professional staff of the Bureau of Social Affairs, together with the Resident Representative and the Government of the country concerned, agree on the appropriate moment to withdraw the assistance. It should not continue so long that the country becomes too dependent on a foreign expert, nor should it be withdrawn in so short a time that well-trained local staff is unable to carry on the work. Annex II shows the individual projects proposed for continuation in 1960.

Question 6

For each of the years 1957, 1958 and 1959, please give the total amount for "social" projects financed from the funds of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. Please give the amount for such projects included in the proposed Expanded Programme for 1960.

	1957	1958	1959 as at 30 September	1960 requests
F lit		U	nited States doll	lars
Expenditures on "social" projects from Expanded Programme funds	383,380	592,059	598,396	710,195 (category I) 469,550 (category II)

Question 7

What proportion (please give illustrative figures for 1959) of the social projects financed under the regular budget represent projects which are not eligible for financing under the Expanded Programme? What proportion represents projects which, though eligible under the Expanded Programme, are requested under the regular budget? How many projects (and in what amounts) appear under both the Expanded Programme (categories I and II) and regular budget lists?

At present all social projects financed under the regular budget are also eligible for financing under the Expanded Programme. At an earlier stage, the Technical Assistance Board followed a policy of assisting only those social projects most closely connected with economic development, such as projects in the fields of community development, housing and population. In the past two years countries have also requested experts and fellows in the social services field although these are ordinarily included in the regular budget programme. As a matter of convenient practice over the years, the larger and more important undertakings of a regional character, with special regard to training institutions, are usually financed under the regular budget provisions since these programmes require the assurances of longer-term planning and face as well some limitative regulations in the Expanded Programme. There is no duplication of individual projects submitted by Governments; specific requirements must appear in one programme or the other, and never in both.

Question 8

To what extent during an operational year do you find it necessary to cancel or postpone projects? What are the more common reasons for such postponement or cancellation?

It is rarely necessary to cancel entirely a project which has been planned by a Government and accepted in our annual programme. It is more frequent that projects must be postponed either because the recruitment takes longer than is planned or because unforeseen circumstances cause a Government to request that the expert come at a later date, or that a fellow leave the country at a later date. However, over the years, with our greater experience, we are able to plan more precisely how long recruitment is likely to take and, if the project is a new once, we rarely programme an expert for twelve months, but only for nine or ten months, and therefore the number of postponed projects has been decreasing. Financial reviews are made on a quarterly basis, and if in the second quarter we find we have been required to postpone 10 per cent of the projects, we are able to move some of the category II projects into category I to use these savings.

Question 9

For each of the years 1957, 1958, 1959 and 1960 (proposed), please give the number and amount of social projects in Africa, financed under (a) Expanded Programme; and (b) regular budget.

The number of projects and amount of expenditure for technical assistance in the social field in Africa over the past three years and the expenditure proposed for 1960 are as follows:

	195	7	195	1958 1959 (as at 3)		1 October)	Proposed for 1960

Question 10

Please give a break-down of the expenditure in each of the years 1957 and 1958 and the authorizations for 1959, in respect of "social activities" under the regular budget, according to the following items:

- (a) Direct project costs:
 - (i) Salaries and wages of experts
 - (ii) Travel of experts (and dependants)
 - (iii) Fellowships
 - (iv) Cost of participation in seminars
 - (v) Other (please give general description)
- (b) Other costs (please describe)

Question 11

Specifically, are any staff or personnel appointments other than experts provided for specific projects, charged to section 17 funds? If so, please give details for each of the years 1957, 1958 and 1959.

No staff or personnel appointments other than experts are charged to section 17 funds.

Question 12

Is any travel other than travel of experts (and, as appropriate, their dependants) and "fellows", charged to section 17 funds? If so, please give details for each of the years 1957, 1958 and 1959, and indicate the procedures and controls exercised in this regard.

No staff travel is charged to section 17 unless the staff member has been appointed as an expert to serve in a particular country post, to service a regional project or to evaluate a particular technical assistance project. In such cases, his travel is charged to project funds; his salary is so charged only if the project extends for more than a three-month period and it is feasible to recruit a replacement for work in the regional staff or at Headquarters.

Question 13

What is the status of the report (listing 1959 projects and giving a forecast of 1960 projects) which is to be submitted to the Technical Assistance Committee at its forthcoming session? Could the Advisory Committee, at this stage and for its information, receive the information included, or to be included, in that report?

The report to be submitted to TAC on 23 November 1959 is in the last stages of preparation. It could be made available to the Advisory Committee on or about 19 November 1959.*

Question 14

For each of the years 1956, 1957 and 1958, please give in respect of the social activities appropriations in the regular budget:

- (a) The amount of the appropriation;
- (b) Total obligations at 31 December:
- (c) Total obligations unliquidated at 31 December:
- (d) Savings, if any, in the respective second year on liquidation of prior-year obligations (example: savings in 1957 on liquidation of 1956 obligations, the unliquidated amount at 31 December 1956 being given under item (c) above).

This total represents all requests for technical assistance under the Advisory Social Welfare Programme for 1960 which has been examined by the Bureau of Social Affairs and by the Bureau of Technical Assistance Operations and found to be valid for inclusion in the programme as at 27 October 1959. Since that date, additional requests have been received and examined which bring the total as at 13 November 1959 to $1,456,500. The final programme cannot be established until the total available resources are known. A listing of projects received and examined as at 27 October 1959 by country, field of activity, type of assistance, and cost follows:

Revised estimates resulting from General Assembly resolution 1376 (XIV) on the progress report for 1959 of the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation

DOCUMENT A/4295

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[23 November 1959]

1. Following adoption by the General Assembly of resolution 1376 (XIV) of 17 November 1959 on the progress report for 1959 of the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the resultant revisions to be made in the budget estimates for 1960. In dealing with this question, the Committee had before it, in addition to the annual progress report of the Scientific Committee (A/4119), the statements of financial implications submitted by the Secretary-General to the General Assembly (A/4119/Add.1, A/4283).

- 2. The initial budget estimates for 1960 (A/4110) contain provision for the following in respect of the Scientific Committee:
- (a) Continuation of the secretariat of the Scientific Committee (one Principal Officer post for the Committee Secretary, five Senior Officer posts for scientific experts and supporting General Service staff);

(b) The holding of two sessions of the Committee, for a total duration of five weeks, at Headquarters

($45,000 under section 1);

- (c) Consultant services for the preparation of specialized technical documentation for the Committee ($3,000 under section 6);
- (d) A small provision for purchase of library materials (some $1,000 under section 14).
- 3. The budgetary revisions proposed by the Secretary-General in order to implement the resolution of the General Assembly may be summarized as follows:

		Section 1 (Uni	Section 6 ted States doll
(a) (b)	Studies of exposed groups of populations: consultant payments (A/4119/Add. 1, para. 2)		10,000	-
(c)	poses: United Nations- WHO seminar (A/4119/ Add. 1, paras. 3-6)	29,800ª
(d)	second session of 1960 at Geneva (A/4119 Add. 1, paras. 7-10)	(-3,800)		8,600
	operative part of the reso- lution (A/4283)	7,000	-
	-	33,000	10,000	8,600

*Provision on a project basis. Income in the amount of $9,200 is anticipated from the World Health Organization.

- 4. The Advisory Committee has no comment on items (a) and (d) above. As regards item (b), the Committee understands that the twenty-five experts for whom travel and subsistence expenses would be paid would be largely individuals who would present papers for discussion; the group would, however, include a small number of eminent scientists whose participation would be extremely useful regardless of whether or not they submitted discussion papers. The Committee notes also that an estimated contribution of $9,200 towards the total expenses of the seminar would be paid by the World Health Organization.
- 5. As to item (c) under paragraph 3, the Scientific Committee has indicated (A/4119, para. 14) that it would normally be desirable to hold two meetings every year, one in the first half of the year, which would include the preparation of a progress report to be submitted to the General Assembly through the Secretary-General, and the other in the second half of the year, which would be devoted mainly to the evaluation of technical data which had become available to the Committee during the course of the year. The Advisory Committee trusts that the need for the second meeting each year would be reviewed in the light of the amount of technical data that in fact became available during the twelve-month period since the previous evaluation was undertaken.
- 6. Subject to the foregoing observations, the Advisory Committee recommends that, as proposed by the Secretary-General, additional provision in the following amounts should be made under the sections of the 1960 budget indicated below:

		United State dollars
Section 1		33,000
Section 6		10,000
Section 8		8,600

Meeting at Buenos Aires of the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women

DOCUMENT A/C.5/808

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[30 November 1959]

- 1. The Economic and Social Council, at its 1089th meeting on 31 July 1959, approved the calendar of conferences for 1960, which provides for the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women to be held at Buenos Aires, at the invitation of the Government of Argentina.
- 2. In a communication dated 23 November 1959, the Permanent Representative of Argentina to the United Nations has advised that the Argentine Government, in accordance with paragraph 2 (e) of General Assembly resolution 1202 (XII), will assume responsibility for defraying the additional costs resulting from holding the session of the Commission at Buenos Aires rather than at Headquarters.
- 3. The 1960 budget estimates (A/4110) include provision in the amount of $13,500 under chapter III of section 1, covering the travel of the eighteen members of the Commission from the capital cities of their home countries to New York and return. For a session of the Commission at Buenos Aires, the revised estimate will be as follows:

 United States dollars

 (a) Travel of members
 26,200

 (b) Travel and subsistence of staff
 39,000

 (c) Miscellaneous supplies and services
 1,500

 TOTAL
 66.700

host Government are estimated at $53,200.

Accordingly, the additional costs to be defrayed by the

- 4. The estimate under item (b) covers travel for thirty and subsistence for thirty-four staff members detailed from New York, it being assumed that four of them will travel in conjunction with home leave. This staff includes four substantive staff members, twenty-two language staff (seven interpreters, nine translators/précis-writers, six revisers), four typists (one for each language), and four administrative and supporting staff (one administrative and finance officer, one conference/documents control officer, and two reproduction and distribution supervisors).
- 5. In addition to the staff detailed from Headquarters, the host Government has undertaken to provide directly at its own expense, in order to complement the staff required to service the session of the Commission at Buenos Aires, one Spanish interpreter, ten translators/précis-writers (three English, two French and five Spanish), fifteen typists (five English, five French and five Spanish), and five documents clerks and mimeograph operators. The host Government has also undertaken to provide locally all the necessary simultaneous interpretation services including sound engineers and equipment.
- 6. Following prior practice, the Secretary-General proposes that provision be made in the appropriations for 1960 to cover the additional costs of holding the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women at Buenos Aires on a gross basis, and that the contribution of the Government of Argentina be treated as miscellaneous income for that year. Arrangements will be entered into between the host Government and the United Nations under which expenses in connexion with the provision of the local facilities and services not included in the above estimates will be met directly by that Government.
- 7. The distribution of the additional costs by sections of the 1960 budget would be:

United St	ates doll ars
Section 1 (chapter III)	12,700
Section 8 (chapter I)	39,000
Section 13 (chapter III)	1,500
Total	53,200

The estimates for miscellaneous income included in part C of the 1960 budget would also be increased by $53,200.

[Original text: English] [1 December 1959]

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/808) containing revised budget estimates for 1960 in respect of the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women, to be held at Buenos Aires at the invitation of the Government of Argentina.
- 2. The initial budget estimates for 1960 (A/4110, section 1, chapter III), include an amount of $13,500 in respect of the Commission on the Status of Women, based on a session at Headquarters and covering the travel of the eighteen members of the Commission from the Capital cities of their home countries to New York and their return.
- 3. The costs for a session to be held at Buenos Aires are estimated by the Secretary-General at $66,700, or $53,200 more than the cost of a session at Headquarters. This extra expenditure of $53,200 would, in accordance with the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1202 (XII) of 13 December 1957, fall to be reimbursed by the host Government.
- 4. The estimate of $39,000 for travel and subsistence of staff covers thirty-four staff members to be detailed

- from Headquarters, including four who will travel in conjunction with home leave. In addition, the host Government has undertaken to provide directly, at its own expense, thirty-one language and related staff. The Advisory Committee notes that the total staff would thus include, inter alia, nineteen translators/précis-writers and nine administrative, conference and documents staff. The Committee believes that, through a better use of staff resources, it should be possible to reduce by three the number of translators/précis-writers to be detailed from Headquarters and by one or two the administrative, conference and documents staff.
- 5. On the basis of the above considerations, the Advisory Committee recommends that an additional provision of $48,000, which would fall to be reimbursed by the host Government, should be made in the 1960 budget as follows:

United.	States doll a i
Section 1 (chapter III)	12,700
Section 8 (chapter I)	33,800
Section 13 (chapter III)	1.500

The Committee further recommends that the estimate for income other than staff assessment should be increased by an equivalent amount of $48,000.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English] [5 November 1959]

1. In reporting on the financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Fourth Committee (A/4240, para. 12) regarding the organization of the plebiscite in the southern part of the Trust Territory of the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions stated (A/4242, para. 4) that it would give detailed consideration to the actual revisions to be made in the 1960 estimates, when such formal revisions were submitted by the Secretary-General after the General Assembly had taken action on the proposal of the Fourth Committee. Meanwhile, the Advisory Committee recommended that the Fifth Committee should advise the General Assembly that the adoption of the draft resolution proposed by the Fourth Committee would result in the expenditure on the two plebiscites, previously estimated at $169,500 ($110,000 in 1959 and $59,500 in 1960), being increased to an amount not exceeding $255,100 ($86,700 in 1959, $106,700 in 1960 and $61,700 in 1961).

- 2. The draft resolution proposed by the Fourth Committee was adopted by the General Assembly at its 829th plenary meeting held on 16 October 1959 (resolution 1352 (XIV)).
- 3. The Advisory Committee understands that the Secretary-General's statement of financial implications (A/C.5/789) also constitutes a formal submission for appropriate revision of the 1960 budget estimates. The Committee has accordingly examined the Secretary-General's proposal that the amount of $59,500 already included in section 4, chapter VI, of the 1960 estimates should be increased by $47,200 to a revised amount of $106,700.
- 4. The revised estimate of $106,700 for 1960 includes three main elements of expenditure: salaries and wages

- ($29,000), including provision for the Plebiscite Commissioner at Under-Secretary level; travel and subsistence ($55,900) and local transportation and other miscellaneous costs ($21,800).
- 5. The provision for the Plebiscite Commissioner is based on the existing contractual arrangements which extend until 31 December 1960, at which time an extension of his contract into 1961 will become necessary, having regard to the new time-table for the plebiscite in the southern part of the Trust Territory. Although the additional cost of the extension will arise only in 1961, the renewal of the Plebiscite Commissioner's contract will probably be done towards the close of 1960. The Advisory Committee would hope that the arrangements governing the renewal would reflect the amount of time that would be needed for the subsequent phase of the work of the Plebiscite Commissioner.
- 6. The estimate of $55,900 for travel and subsistence is based on a precise calculation of the costs in question. On the other hand, the estimates for local transportation and other services and supplies are somewhat less precisely arrived at and may prove susceptible of some economy. The Advisory Committee trusts that those costs will be kept to a strict minimum, regardless of the amount of the budgetary provision.
- 7. Subject to the foregoing observations, the Advisory Committee recommends that the amount of $59,500 already included in section 4, chapter VI, of the 1960 estimates should be increased by $47,200 to a revised amount of $106,700, as proposed by the Secretary-General.

Sections 4, 6 and 7

Salary scales for Headquarters General Service Staff

DOCUMENT A/C.5/794 Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [26 October 1959]

- 1. The Secretary-General has completed a review of local employment conditions in the New York area and has reached the conclusion that an increase of 5 per cent in the Headquarters General Service salary scales is justified. The Secretary-General has further concluded that the effective date for applying the new scales should be 1 October 1959.
- 2. Analysis of the data relating to base salaries indicates that a case might be made for revising the scales at a somewhat earlier date, but taking all relevant factors into consideration, the proposed date of 1 October 1959 is deemed appropriate. A summary of the facts leading to the above conclusions is given in the attached annex.
- 3. In the foreword to the Budget Estimates for the financial year 1960 (A/4110) and again at the 711th meeting of the Fifth Committee, the Secretary-General foresaw the possibility of increased budgetary requirements for this purpose. The following table details the effect on the United Nations budget of action on the above lines. Adjustments in sections 4, 6, 7 and part D of the estimates are involved. There would be a partially offsetting increase in income from staff assessment.

4. The authority of the Secretary-General to fix the rates stems from paragraph 7 of Annex I of the Staff Regulations (General Assembly resolution 590 (VI)). The action has financial implications both for 1959 and 1960 and the Secretary-General submits for the Assembly's consideration the question of approving the necessary credits. Given the possibility of further changes in the level of the supplementary provisions for some sections of the 1959 budget, in addition to those sections noted above, no definitive proposals on the level of the 1959 supplementary estimates are made at this time. The Secretary-General believes, however, that the Assembly would wish to be informed as early as possible of the action in respect of General Service salaries prior to its further review of the 1959 budgetary situation and to the first reading in the Fifth Committee of the relevant budget sections for 1960.

Annex

REVIEW OF SALARY SCALES FOR GENERAL SERVICE STAFF AT HEADQUARTERS

- 1. The existing Headquarters General Service salary scales were established on 1 January 1958. They were approved by the Secretary-General following a series of comparisons made with the survey made on 1 October 1957 of clerical and secretarial jobs in private employment published by the Commerce and Industry Association of New York and following a study of other available data. The Commerce and Industry Association made a further survey on 1 June 1958 and, most recently, completed a survey on 1 June 1959. This survey reported salary rates for a total of 76,158 employees in 442 firms. In addition, General Service rates have been kept under review by comparison with data made available at other times by institutional surveys as well as by certain selected private and public employers, including the United States Government.
- 2. The weighted average salary rise for all secretarial and clerical jobs covered by the Commerce and Industry surveys from 1 October 1957 to 1 June 1959 was 6.7 per cent; in relation to a selected group of ten typical General Service posts the movement was approximately 6.5 per cent over the same period.
- 3. As distinct from the movement in outside rates, comparisons have been made with actual salaries paid by outside employers over the period 1 October 1957 to 1 June 1959. A comparison with ten typical General Service jobs covered by the Commerce and Industry survey shows that United Nations rates as at 1 June 1959 were behind outside rates by percentages varying from 5.4 to 5.9 per cent. Although it had been known for some time that United Nations rates were lagging behind best prevailing rates in the area, the Secretary-General did not feel that the difference was large enough to warrant action earlier this year. It has been the Secretary-General's position, in agreement with the Heads of the specialized agencies, not to authorize increases in General Service salaries unless the move- ment in best prevailing rates in the locality is significant and recognizable, i.e., justifying an increase of the order of 5 per cent. But as the difference as at 1 June 1959 exceeds 5 per cent, the Secretary-General considers that a 5 per cent increase is now justified.

- 4. In addition to comparisons of salary rates, conditions of employment other than salary provided by more liberal private employers have been kept under review; these employment benefits may be grouped under the following headings: (a) hours of work and leave; (b) pension fund schemes and other benefits; (c) medical and life insurance provisions.
- 5. While it is difficult to make precise comparisons in respect of these benefits, the Secretary-General believes that a fair summary of the situation in commercial firms is a follows: (a) The annual leave granted to United Nations General Service staff is more generous than paid vacations which comparable employees receive in the New York area; however, the regular hours worked in the United Nations are longer, with the result that the total time worked during a twelve-month period is about equal. (b) Pension fund schemes in private employment are supplemented by the employee's participation in the United States Social Security scheme; as a result the total benefits to be derived in outside employment tend to be equal to, or better than, those available under the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund; at the same time, staff contributions to the Pension Fund in the United Nations are higher than the outside employee's combined contributions to pension fund and United States Social Security. On the other hand, dependency benefits in the United Nations tend to be larger than the amounts granted as income tax exemption in respect of dependents to outside employees in the New York area. (c) Medical, hospitalization and life insurance plans are generally available in private employment in the New York area, with employer and employee sharing in the cost of the plans; accordingly, these benefits are very closely comparable to the benefits available to United Nations staff.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
5 November 1959]

- 1. Annex I, paragraph 7, of the Staff Regulations of the United Nations (General Assembly resolution 590 (VI)) reads as follows:
 - "The Secretary-General shall fix the salary scales for staff members in the General Service category and the salary or wage rates for manual workers, normally on the basis of the best prevailing conditions of employment in the locality of the United Nations office concerned, provided that the Secretary-General may, where he deems it appropriate, establish rules and salary limits for payment of a non-resident's allowance to General Service staff members recruited from outside the local area."
- 2. In accordance with the above paragraph and on the basis of a recently completed review of local employment conditions in the New York area, the Secretary-General has reached the conclusion (A/C.5/794) that an increase of 5 per cent in the Headquarters General Service salary scales is justified. He has also stated his further conclusion that the effective date for applying the new scales should be 1 October 1959.
- 3. According to the Secretary-General, the action involves additional expenditure, under sections 4, 6 and 7 of the regular budget, of $122,000 (gross) in 1959 and $502,000 (gross) in 1960. Additional costs in part D, resulting in reduced income from the revenue-producing activities concerned, amount to $9,000 in 1959 and

- $36,000 in 1960. There is, on the other hand, a consequential increase in the income from staff assessment of $26,000 in 1959 and $111,000 in 1960.
- 4. The Secretary-General has submitted for the consideration of the General Assembly the question of approving the necessary budgetary credits. As regards 1959, the Advisory Committee understands that the additional costs in question will be taken into account in arriving at the further modifications, shortly to be submitted to the General Assembly, under various sections of the 1959 budget. Regarding 1960, the Secretary-General's submission would constitute a formal revision of the 1960 estimates already submitted.
- 5. In considering the proposed revision in the 1960 budget estimates, the Advisory Committee has proceeded on the basis that it is not seized of the question of the salary increases as such since, under the Staff Regulations, the Secretary-General is authorized to fix the salary scales in question. The Committee nevertheless appreciates the information that has been included in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General as well as the supporting details which have been made available to the Committee.
- 6. The Advisory Committee would also invite attention to two related points. In the first place, while the principles and procedures applied in determining local salary scales are generally sound, the overlap between the salaries at the higher levels of the General Service category at Headquarters and those at the junior levels of the Professional category has tended to increase over the past few years. Secondly, with pensionable salary increases for General Service staff and non-pensionable post adjustments in the case of Professional staff, there has been a growing disparity as between the two categories of staff at Headquarters in the matter of pensionable remuneration. A first attempt at narrowing that disparity was made when the General Assembly authorized (resolution 1310 (XIII)) an increase of 5 per cent in the pensionable remuneration of Professional and higher level staff, effective 1 January 1959. The Advisory Committee notes in this regard that the United Nations pension system as a whole, including, of course, the question of the amount of pensionable remuneration for all categories of staff, is under review at the present time, in accordance with the General Assembly resolution cited above. The results of this review are expected to be available in 1960.

7. The Advisory Committee agrees that the 5 per cent salary increase for General Service staff at Headquarters mentioned in the Secretary-General's report would necessitate an increase of $502,000 in the 1960 budget appropriations which have already been recommended by the Advisory Committee distributed among the following sections:

Section	nited States dollars
4. Special missions and related activities	5,500
6. Salaries and wages	439,700
7. Common staff costs	56,800

8. On the same basis, the 1960 estimate of income from staff assessment already recommended by the Advisory Committee would be increased by $111,000. Appropriate adjustments would need to be made in the expenditure estimates in respect of the revenue-producing activities (part D of the 1960 budget estimates), resulting in a reduction of $36,000 in the income other than from staff assessment.

Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees

DOCUMENT A/C.5/798

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[5 November 1959]

GENERAL

1. Subsequent to the preparation of the initial 1960 budget estimates for the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees (A/4110, section 11), various developments necessitated the initiation of a number of measures in the course of 1959 which will continue to have implications in 1960. These measures include the opening of new branch offices for Morocco and Tunisia, and of a temporary office in Canada. Furthermore, the initial 1960 budget estimates for the High Commissioner's Office did not include provision to enable the High Commissioner to increase the protection activities of his Office consequent on a recommendation of the Executive Committee of the former United Nations Refugee Fund endorsed by the General Assembly in resolution 1284 (XIII) of 5 December 1958.

- 2. The revised estimates presented in this paper do not include any additional provision in respect of public information and fund-raising activities. While the High Commissioner expects to have to intensify his efforts in these fields also in 1960, he will endeavour to finance the expenditures within the level of the present budget. Should the need for additional funds arise in the course of 1960, the Secretary-General would propose to submit the matter to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions.
- 3. The initial budget estimates for 1960 for the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees amounted to $1,467,400. The additional requirements referred to in paragraph 1 above are estimated at $152,900, as shown below:

Item and section	Branch Offices in Morocco and Tunisia	Temporary office in Canada	Branch Office for Latin America	Correspondents in countries without Branch Offices	Headquarters (Legal Section and Unit in charge of North Africa)
Salaries and wages	United	States dollars

(Section 11)				24,600
Total	59,600	17,000	24,000	24,000	27,700

Branch Offices in Morocco and Tunisia

4. The 1960 estimates for the branch offices in Morocco and Tunisia provide for a continuation of these offices set up in autumn 1959. The provision covers one Senior Officer, one First Officer, two Assistant Officers, two secretaries, two messengers/drivers, a small allowance for temporary assistance, and other office expenses.

TEMPORARY OFFICE IN CANADA

5. An appropriation for the temporary office in Canada is requested in the amount of $17,000, covering a secretarial post and other office expenses. Subject to the approval of the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme at its third regular session in spring 1960, it is the intention that an amount equivalent to the cost of the temporary office in Canada be reimbursed to the United Nations budget from voluntary funds as a grant-in-aid.

Increase of protection activities

6. Following the adoption by the General Assembly at its thirteenth session of resolution 1284 (XIII) in which the Assembly endorsed a former recommendation of the Executive Committee of the United Nations Refugee Fund to the effect that the High Commissioner increase the protection activities of his Office, an appraisal of these protection functions was made by the High Commissioner. This appraisal included not only an analysis of the functions performed at UNHCR headquarters but the opportunity was seized of examining the problem on the occasion of visits paid to a number of countries by the High Commissioner himself. The conclusion was reached that the intensification of protection activities requires both a better representation of the Office of the High Commissioner in countries where relatively large numbers of refugees reside, and a specialization of legal protection duties at UNHCR headquarters. In order to give effect as soon as possible to resolution 1284 (XIII) it is felt desirable to include, in the budget for 1960, adequate provision for the measures set out below:

Enlargement of Branch Office for Latin America

7. As is shown by table 11-3 of the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110, page 32), only one Professional officer is provided at present for the High Commissioner's Branch Office for Latin America. An amount of $24,000 is requested to enable the High Commissioner to recruit a Second Officer and one secretary, and meet other ancillary costs.

Designation of UNHCR correspondents

8. The High Commissioner does not propose to establish without special reason any new branch offices. A better representation of his Office could be obtained, however, by designating correspondents in a limited number of countries where experience shows that, mainly for geographical reasons, adequate liaison with Governments cannot be maintained without some kind of local representation. The expenditure involved in the establishment of correspondents is small as it is proposed to recruit local personalities of standing and repute who would perform their duties mainly against reimbursement of expenses. It is estimated that the establishment of seven correspondents will require $24,600, proposed in a new chapter V of section 11.

Strengthening of the Legal Section at UNHCR headquarters

- 9. The enlargement of the establishment of the Legal Section at UNHCR headquarters is made necessary to enable this section both to maintain intensified liaison on protection matters with Governments, including Governments of States where correspondents would be designated, and to meet an increasingly urgent need of specialized duties in the section. It is proposed to recruit two additional Professional officers, one First Officer and one Assistant Officer, together with two multilingual secretaries.
- 10. The present manning table of the Legal Section does not make it possible to carry out certain duties in a satisfactory manner. Although a considerable strengthening of the Legal Section would be required, it is proposed to confine the enlargement of that section for the time being to the measures outlined above as it is hoped that it might be possible to add further officers to the section at a later stage by internal moves without any new budgetary appropriations.

Unit in charge of North Africa at UNHCR Headquarters

11. While a Professional officer could be assigned from within the establishment to take charge of the work at UNHCR headquarters relating to North African affairs, there will be a need for a bilingual secretary. The costs are estimated at $2,700.

SUMMARY OF BUDGETARY SITUATION

12. As a consequence of the increased requirements discussed above, the budgetary provisions for the Office of the High Commissioner shown in table 11-1 on page 30 of the initial estimates for 1960 will require revision as follows:

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English] [6 November 1959]

I. Supplementary estimates for 1959

[Paragraphs 1 to 8 of this document relating to supplementary estimates for the financial year 1959 appear in the annex fascicle relating to agenda item 43.]

II. Revised budget estimates for 1960

- 9. In regard to the 1960 estimates of the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has previously recommended (2/4170, para. 189) a provisional appropriation under section 11 in the amount of $1,467,400, as proposed by the Secretary-General. The Secretary-General has since submitted revised estimates for the Office of the High Commissioner (A/C.5/798)providing for additional requirements in the amount of $152,900 of which $132,300 would fall under section 11, $17,600 under section 13 and $3,000 under section 15. The revised total estimate for section 11 accordingly amounts to $1,599,700.
- 10. As mentioned in the Advisory Committee's report on the initial 1960 budget estimates (A/4170, para. 188), an administrative review of the Office of the High Commissioner at Geneva was carried out early in 1959 by a senior official from Headquarters. In addition, a scheme of reorganization of the Office was introduced by the High Commissioner with effect from 1 April 1959. The Committee had therefore noted that it would be useful to examine, in the light of the administrative review, the steps taken by the High Commissioner and to determine the extent of the resultant advantages on the administrative as well as on the financial side. Accordingly, the Committee had reserved its final recommendation on the estimates until after it had had an opportunity to discuss this aspect of the matter with the High Commissioner himself.

- 11. The Advisory Committee has since had occasion to study further the questions involved, with the assistance of the High Commissioner. In doing so, the Committee has taken into consideration the revised 1960 estimates for the Office, as now submitted by the Secretary-General.
- 12. It appears from the Advisory Committee's study that in reorganizing the Office as of 1 April 1959 the High Commissioner took into account a number of the points which arose as a result of the administrative review. The official who undertook the review accordingly limited his final and specific recommendations to one point, namely, that the Administrative and Financial Section, which is at present one of a number of sections of a division and reports in the first instance to the head of that division, should be given the status of an Executive Office directly [&]quot;Established posts" to $1,177,550.

Figures for common staff costs for 1958 include assignment allowances, $1,065 for head-responsible to the High Commissioner himself. Regarding this recommendation, the High Commissioner has indicated to the Committee that, for practical reasons, it would not be in the interests of his Office to adopt at present such a structure, even though it might be regarded in general as a standing organizational arrangement in other major segments of the Secretariat.

- 13. The Advisory Committee sees some relation between the organizational point mentioned in the preceding paragraph and the need, in the light of the consolidation of the total administrative expenses of the Office in the regular budget of the Organization, for development of co-ordinated arrangements and procedures in the Office of the High Commissioner and the Office of the Controller, to ensure proper application of normal financial procedures. The Committee, in its report on the supplementary estimates for 1959 (A/4221, para. 26), referred to this latter question, with particular regard to the submission of statements of financial implications of proposals prior to their adoption and to the procedures for authority to incur unforeseen and extraordinary expenses. On this point the High Commissioner has assured the Committee that efforts would be made to overcome initial difficulties due to the transitional stage of budgetary treatment and the special nature of the unforeseen expenses which arise in the case of his Office.
- 14. As regards the additional 1960 requirements for the Office of the High Commissioner under sections 11, 13 and 15, the Advisory Committee notes that the total increase of $152,900 includes $59,600 for the new branch offices in Morocco and Tunisia, $17,000 for the temporary office in Canada (an equivalent amount to be reimbursed from voluntary funds), $24,000 for the enlargement of the branch office for Latin America, $24,600 for legal correspondents in countries without branch offices and $27,700 for the strengthening of the Legal Section and the unit in charge of North Africa at the headquarters of the Office at Geneva.
 - 15. The distribution of the proposed additional amount of $152,900 by objects of expenditure, is as follows:

United St	tates doll ars
Salaries and wages (section 11)	79,250
Common staff costs (section 11)
Travel on official business (section 11)	13,000
General expenses (section 13)
Permanent equipment (section 15)
Reimbursement of expenses of correspondents
(section 11)	24,600

- 16. As regards the provision for salaries and wages, the Advisory Committee suggests that one of the three new secretarial posts for the Office at Geneva (two in the Legal Section and one in the unit for North Africa) might be found through appropriate adjustments in the total secretarial staff of the Office as a whole. In addition, it would appear that no turnover deduction has been applied to the estimated cost of new posts to allow for recruitment delays.
- 17. Furthermore, the Advisory Committee notes that the additional provision of $13,000 for official travel, when added to the amount of $82,000 already included in the initial estimates, would result in a total provision of $95,000 for this purpose. The Committee believes that through a more restrictive handling of travel requirements, generally along the lines that have been applied at United Nations Headquarters for some years, some reduction of this expenditure should prove possible, without being an undue limitation.
- 18. In the light of the above considerations, the Advisory Committee recommends an appropriation under section 11 in a revised amount of $1,590,000, representing a reduction of $9,700 in the total figure submitted for that section by the Secretary-General. The Committee further recommends that additional provision should be made in sections 13 and 15 in the amounts of $17,600 and $3,000 respectively.
- 19. The effect of the recommendations given above may be tabulated as follows:

Sections 13 and 15 Interim arrangements for the library

DOCUMENT A/C.5/796 Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[27 October 1959]

1. The construction of the new building for the United Nations Library on the site occupied by the present Library will make it necessary to find a temporary site for the staff, collections and facilities of the Library. The Secretary-General has taken into account the relative merits of renting space in the immediate neighbourhood or of utilizing space within the Headquarters buildings. He has decided that, apart from the advantage of saving substantial sums in rent and the renovation of outside space, it is feasible to establish the temporary Library within the United Nations quarters. This can be accomplished by the utilization of the Secretariat lobby, the lobby on the first floor of the Conference Building, the use of space on the nineteenth floor, selected space in the General Assembly building, and a considerable expansion of branch libraries in the substantive departments and the Legal Office. It involves also the retirement into storage areas of less used books. These books will be stored in such a way as to be available if necessary.

- 2. These arrangements can be made with minimum expense. The attached cost estimates are presented to cover a two-year period. Part A covers the cost of establishing the Library in its temporary quarters. This action would take place at the beginning of 1960 and the cost estimate would therefore represent a charge on the 1960 budget. Part A also includes an estimate of $23,400 to cover the cost of temporary relocation of film facilities, now located in the area to be utilized for the new Library building, to the second basement of the General Assembly building. Part B is the cost estimate for 1961 covering the restoration costs and the removal costs to the new building upon its completion in 1961.
- 3. It may be noted that the budget of 1959 carries an item of $61,000 for necessary repairs to the present building. As it became apparent that funds would become available for a new building the Secretariat stopped the expenditure of this money. Thus $60,000 of the $61,000 remains unspent in the current budget year. In addition, a savings of approximately $52,000 will be made in 1960 through the cancellation of the annual operating costs of the present building. These costs cover the custodial personnel, the operation of elevators, water, sewer, electricity and steam. Similarly the construction of the new Library building will eliminate the need for the repairs to the present Library building provided for in the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110) in the amount of $36,500.
- 4. The Secretary-General recommends the approval of the budget estimates of part A, $114,000 for inclusion in the budget for the year 1960 for temporary housing of the Library. As noted above, there would be an offsetting reduction of $88,500 in the 1960 estimates submitted, and a saving of $60,000 in 1959.
- 5. The budget estimates for 1960 and 1961, amounting to a total of $168,000 follow.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[5 November 1959]

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/796) on the interim arrangements for the Library while the new building is under construction.
- 2. It appears from the report that the Library can be relocated on a temporary basis in various parts of the Headquarters building at an estimated cost of $114,000 in 1960. Expenditure in 1961 for moving the collection into the new building and restoring the areas used for temporary housing is estimated at an amount of $54,000.

- 3. The above expenditure would be off-set by the following savings in a total amount of $148,500, as a consequence of the demolition of the present building:
- (a) $60,000 of the sum of $61,000 made available in the 1959 budget (section 13, chapter III) for repairs during 1959;

- (b) $36,500 requested in the 1960 budget estimates (section 15, chapter III) for repairs during 1960;
- (c) $52,000 requested in the 1960 budget estimates (section 13, chapter I) for operating expenses during 1960.
- 4. The Advisory Committee has inquired into the factors which entered into the Secretary-General's decision to use space within the Headquarters building, rather than rented space outside, for the temporary housing of the Library. The Committee is informed that, apart from a significant economy of expenditure, the convenience of the users of the Library has been an important consideration. The Committee has also received evidence of the measures to be taken to minimize disruption of the library services and to ensure proper care of the collection, which will, of necessity, be distributed in a number of separate locations. Departmental branch libraries will be expanded to the extent practicable, while a significant proportion of the collection involving less used books will be put away in temporary storage. The Committee trusts that, despite some unavoidable disruption, steps will be taken to ensure that essential library services and facilities continue to be provided.
- 5. It is understood that the construction work which the interim arrangements entail will be of a simple, utilitarian and strictly temporary nature. In respect of the relocation of the film facilities referred to in the Secretary-General's report (A/C. 5/796, para. 2), however, a more permanent structure is envisaged. As explained in the Secretary-General's report on the gift of the Ford Foundation (A/4231, para. 45), these services are to be located in the basement of the General Assembly building. The proposed construction for this purpose will be designed to fit into any plans for the future development of the adjacent hangar area for the purpose of housing a television studio and processing centre.
- 6. The Advisory Committee is informed that the cost estimates given in the Secretary-General's report are based on a precise calculation of the cost of construction material, labour costs and contractual charges for moving the collection. While the estimate of $37,200 for moving books, furniture and fixture in 1960 constitutes the largest single element of expenditure, the Committee understands that it represents the lowest of three bids obtained in accordance with the established procedure for

- the procurement of goods and services. The 1960 estimate includes, moreover, the cost of packing and crating material, which explains the lower estimate of $34,100 for moving the collection back into the new building in 1961.
- 7. The estimated expenditure of $114,000 in 1960 includes an amount of $10,200 for contingencies. While not wishing to contest the retention of this item at this stage, the Advisory Committee would nevertheless recommend that every effort should be made to keep 1960 expenditure within the costed limits, without need for recourse to the contingency provision.
- 8. The recommendations given below are confined to the budgetary action that is required in terms of 1960. The Secretary-General will no doubt take into account the 1961 requirements in framing his initial budget estimates for that year; likewise, the savings that are anticipated in 1959, will, of course, be reflected in the Secretary-General's final report on the supplementary estimates for that year.
- 9. In the light of the foregoing, the Advisory Committee recommends:
- (a) A provision of $114,000 in a new chapter under section 13 of the 1960 budget, to provide for the costs of temporary housing of the Library;
- (b) A reduction of $52,000 in the appropriation already recommended by the Advisory Committee under section 13 of the 1960 budget estimates (A/4170, para. 198) as a result of the cancellation of the annual operating costs of the present building;
- (c) A reduction of $36,500 in the appropriation already recommended by the Advisory Committee under section 15 of the 1960 budget (ibid., para. 210), as a result of the elimination of the need for further repairs to the present library building.
- 10. To give effect to the above recommendations, the appropriations for 1960 already recommended by the Advisory Committee under sections 13 and 15 should be revised as follows:

Public administration. Provision of operational, executive and administrative personnel

DOCUMENT A/C.5/799

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[12 November 1959]

- 1. The Second Committee at its 611th meeting adopted a draft resolution relating to agenda item 31 (b) calling for the continuation of the experiment for the provision of operational, executive and administrative personnel (OPEX) in 1960. (A/4287, para 40, draft resolution III).
- 2. In the opinion of the Secretary-General, the amount of $200,000 included in his initial estimates for 1960 should now be increased to $300,000. A detailed justification of this request is contained in documents A/4212 and Add.1.

DOCUMENT A/4281

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[16 November 1959]

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/799), in which, following the adoption by the Second Committee at its 611th meeting of a draft resolution concerning the programme for the provision of operational, executive and administrative personnel (OPEX), the Secretary-General has submitted a revision of the 1960 estimates for that programme from $200,000 to $300,000.
- 2. At this stage, pending the adoption by the General Assembly of the draft resolution proposed by the Second Committee, the Advisory Committee regards the report of the Secretary-General as constituting a statement of maximum financial implications in respect of that draft resolution. Appropriate budgetary action will need to be taken after the Assembly has acted on the proposal of the Second Committee.
- 3. The OPEX programme was authorized by the General Assembly, under resolution 1256 (XIII) of 14 November 1958, "on a modest scale and on an experimental basis", and an amount of $200,000 was provided for this purpose in the 1959 budget. Actual expenditure in 1959 is, however, unlikely to exceed $100,000, because of recruitment and other delays.
- 4. The draft resolution of the Second Committee, in paragraph 1 of its operative part, provides "that the experimental programme started in 1959 should be continued in 1960 on the basis of General Assembly resolution 1256 (XIII) and that the Secretary-General should be allowed adequate scope in the carrying out of the experiment within the limits of the resources to be made available for 1960".
- 5. The text quoted above does not indicate clearly the precise meaning of the term "adequate scope . . . within the limits of the resources to be made available for 1960". Further, the third preambular paragraph of the draft resolution, which states that "the time that has elapsed since the establishment of the experiment . . . has been too brief, and that, for this reason, the range of the experiment has been too narrow to justify drawing final conclusions", would appear to underline the inadequacy of the length of the experience to date under the experiment, rather than of its scope. On the other hand, a proposal to limit the further scope of the experiment to the unused balance of the 1959 allocation was withdrawn; another proposal to delete the second part of operative paragraph 1 of the draft resolution, beginning with the words "and that the Secretary-General should be allowed adequate scope", was rejected by the Second Committee.

6. In these circumstances, the Advisory Committee has taken a pragmatic approach to an interpretation of the phrase "adequate scope" and to the budgetary revision mentioned by the Secretary-General. The Committee understands in this connexion that the situation under the programme as of mid-November 1959, as regards cases where appointments have matured, is as follows:

Officers actually on the job
	11
	13

It has been suggested, on behalf of the Secretary-General, that the number of such "mature" appointments is likely to be twenty before the end of the year, with five more to be effective before the end of January 1960. On this basis, the Secretary-General has stated (A/4212/Add.1) that an appropriation of $300,000 would provide, in addition to the continuation of those twenty-five appointments through 1960, for ten more appointments during that year, allowing for possible delays in recruitment.

7. In the light of the experience to date, and having regard to the substantial average time that elapses from the submission of candidatures to Governments to their acceptance, the Advisory Committee is inclined to proceed on the basis that fifteen officers would be actually on duty before the end of 1959 and that additional provision sufficient for about fifteen other appointments to take effect during 1960 would constitute a reasonable interpretation of the term "adequate scope" used in the draft resolution proposed by the Second Committee. The Advisory Committee would accordingly recommend that, should the General Assembly adopt the draft resolution proposed by the Second Committee, the amount of $200,000 included in section 19, chapter II, of the 1960 budget estimates might be increased to a maximum of $250,000. This would allow full-year provision for fifteen officers ($135,000) and leave a balance of $115,000 which would permit of some fifteen more appointments during 1960, taking into account possible delays in recruitment. Thus in 1960 the experiment would cover thirty officers, that is, five more than the number initially envisaged.

Common staff costs (section 7, chapter II, item (iii). Contributions to medical insurance and other medical care: note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [25 November 1959]

- 1. The Secretary-General wishes to inform the Fifth Committee of a development in premium rates for the Headquarters medical insurance coverages which has occurred since the initial 1960 estimates were prepared.
 - 2. When the Fifth Committee approved the introduction in 1957 of major medical insurance coverage at Headquarters⁴³, it did so on the basis of an equal sharing of the costs by the Organization and by the staff and on the assumption that the detailed provisions of the scheme should produce a cost at approximately the level anticipated by the Secretary-General in his report (i.e., single, $1.25 per month; with dependants, $3 per month).

- 3. Experience has now shown that the cost of benefits under the major medical coverage requires new premium rates, which were advised by the insurance company with effect from 1 October 1959, namely, single, $1.76 per month; and with dependants, $4.30 per month.
- 4. The Secretary-General was unable at this late date to bring this new increase into his estimates for 1960. There appeared therefore two alternatives: the first was to reduce the benefits under the insurance scheme to the level which could be bought by the financial provision; the second was to retain the level of entitlements, the increased cost to be met by additional staff contributions. These alternatives were carefully discussed with the staff representatives who attached such importance to the maintenance of major medical insurance in its original form that they agreed that the staff would for the coming year carry the increased cost due to this factor ($35,600), as well as the cost of one minor improvement ($3,000).

Financed in full by participating staff	38,600

6. In agreeing that the staff would bear the additional costs as noted above, the staff representatives requested the Secretary-General to inform the Fifth Committee that they deeply appreciated the protection afforded by the major medical plan, but that they sincerely hoped that the General Assembly would find itself able to maintain the principle of equal contributions by the staff and the Organization, with the result that the Fifth Committee would give its approval that the estimates for medical insurance for 1961 should be prepared on the agreed fifty-fifty sharing basis, notwithstanding that the premium rates for the major medical coverage might show some increase over the levels originally anticipated by the Secretary-General in 1957.

Recon	nmendations of the Fifth Committee	161

I. Introduction

- 1. Under agenda item 44 the Fifth Committee considered the budget estimates of the United Nations for the financial year 1960, together with a number of related items under this general heading. As a result of its discussions, the Committee recommended gross appropriations for 1960 in the amount of $63,149,700 and an estimate for income for 1960, other than staff assessment, in the amount of $5,357,500. The estimated net expenditure figure for 1960, based on the appropriations thus recommended, was $57,792,200.
- 2. The basis of assessment on Member States in 1960, on those recommendations, will be in accordance with the following summary:
 - * Incorporating document A/4336/Corr.1.

Contributions	oţ	W ember	States:

United States dollars

(a)	In respect of the financial year 1960: 1960 budget appropriation	63,149,700
	Less: estimated income other than staff assessment	5,357,500
		57,792,200

- 3. The Committee also recommended that the Working Capital Fund for 1960, be increased from its previous approved level of $23.5 million to $25 million, the increase of $1.5 million to be derived by additional cash advances of $972,012 and by transfer of $527,988 from the surplus account as at 31 December 1958.

- 4. Finally, the Committee recommended a 1960 estimate for staff assessment income of $6,329,000 for transfer during the course of 1960 to the Tax Equalization Fund from which credits are distributed to Member States in accordance with the provisions of General Assembly resolution 973 (X) of 15 December 1955.
- 5. For its examination of the budget proposed for 1960, the Fifth Committee had before it, as basic documents, the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110) submitted by the Secretary-General and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/4170). In addition, revised estimates for various appropriation sections were considered on the basis of reports of the Secretary-General and of the Advisory Committee.
- 6. The Committee was assisted throughout its session by the Chairman of the Advisory Committee, who, in accordance with past practice, was invited to take a continuous part in the deliberations. The Fifth Committee acknowledges with gratitude the valuable contribution which the Advisory Committee has made through its expert study of a large number of items.

II. GENERAL DISCUSSION

- 7. A general discussion of the budget estimates for 1960 was opened at the 711th meeting of the Committee in the course of which the Secretary-General introduced (A/C.5/782) the draft budget estimates for 1960 (A/4110) comprising a gross expenditure figure of $61,863,200 and income from all sources estimated at $11,569,300, for a net expenditure level of $50,293,900. The Chairman of the Advisory Committee introduced (A/C.5/783) the principal report of that Committee (A/4170) recommending a gross appropriation of $61,213,300, or $649,900 below that proposed by the Secretary-General, together with an estimate for income reduced by $40,000 to $11,529,300.
- 8. Although much of the discussion turned on the size of the 1960 budget and on the difficulties which it might present for Member States, a majority of the delegations recognized that the budgetary situation had improved since 1958. The measure of that improvement could be found in the Secretary-General's proposals. Compared with the 1959 appropriations, the estimates for 1960 had risen by only 1.75 per cent, a margin of increase that was in marked contrast to the experiences of previous years when the annual growth of expenditure had been progressively sharper. Furthermore, a tentative forecast of the assessment level for 1960 (based on requirements known or foreseen at the end of September 1959) held out the prospect of a reduction in the level, by comparison with 1959, of between $2.5 and $3 million (A/C.5/782, paras. 31-33).
- 9. At the same time, a budget in excess of $60 million, however well justified in relation to work programmes, gave cause for reflection, and was naturally disturbing to the economically weaker Members, some of which might be close to, if they had not already reached, the limit of their financial capacity. Nor could the budget be examined in isolation from other international commitments—contributions to UNEF, to the voluntary extra-budgetary programmes, and to the specialized agencies—representing in the aggregate an extremely large outlay. States which were grappling with serious economic and social problems could not but view with concern the heavy burden laid upon them at the very time when they were striving, often in the face of an adverse balance of payments, to raise the standard of - living of their peoples. Those were compelling reasons why the Secretary-General and the budgetary committees of the Assembly should maintain their vigilance and work closely together in removing any flaws in the administrative machinery.

- 10. It was nevertheless recognized by many speakers that the budget by which the Secretary-General proposed to give effect to an approved programme of work was not open to serious criticism. The estimates for 1960 established a reasonable balance between economy and efficiency, and provided for the normal and necessary growth of a dynamic organization engaged in activities of wide variety and range, the cost of which could not easily be contained within a predetermined figure. Although it was true that no major items of extraordinary expenditure had arisen in 1959, and 1960 might likewise be a relatively quiet year in that sense, provision had to be made for an increasing volume of continuing work in substantive fields unaffected by the political climate. Care should therefore be taken not to arrest a healthy process of development which accorded with the express desires and decisions of the Members. While it was axiomatic that economy might always be sought in a refinement of the form or content of a budget or in the method of its execution, the estimates under review appeared to offer little scope for administrative economy or, in consequence, for an over-all percentage reduction. That was confirmed by the findings of the Advisory Committee, which had recommended reductions amounting to slightly over 1 per cent or, on a truer reading of its recommendations,44 to some 0.70 per cent. Further evidence could be found in the decision of the Secretary-General to refrain. for the second year in succession, from proposing any additional posts in the Professional and higher categories of the Secretariat (excluding the secretariat of the Economic Commission for Africa), and in the introduction of other measures intended to increase the efficiency and versatility of the staff, strengthen the system of budgetary and financial control, and counter-balance, wherever possible, the continuing rise in administrative and operating costs.
- 11. Other delegations took a different position. Too little attention had been paid to the concern which the Committee had expressed in 1958 at the mounting volume of costs and the abnormal expansion of the administrative apparatus. It was not possible for the General Assembly to countenance a process of steady and continuous increase in expenditure, nor could delegations seek from their legislatures progressively larger appropriations. The time had come to stabilize the budget within reasonable limits which, without hampering the execution of programmes or the performance of normal functions, would serve as a stimulus to a sounder organization of the work and to the attainment of greater efficiency at lower cost. As the strain on the Working Capital Fund indicated, new resources could not easily be made available in response to new demands. Expenditure had so far outstripped the expansion of activities that the 1960 provision might prove higher than that for 1958, a year in which, apart from two major conferences, heavy costs had been incurred in meeting an abnormal political situation. Furthermore, the 1958 budget had exceeded previous budgets by a margin that would not be warranted under the more tranquil conditions foreshadowed for 1960. Even though the budget of the Organization was governed to some extent by variable, political factors, by far the larger part was made up of items of ordinary, continuing expenditure; those could be foreseen and regulated. Over the period 1955 to 1960 expenditure had risen by some 25 per cent in the case of the United Nations, and by almost 50 per cent in the case of the entire United Nations family of organizations. The record of expenditure thus demonstrated the urgent need for a policy of stabilization. Such a policy would ease the financial difficulties of many Member States by freeing substantial sums of money for use in connexion with national development plans or for other domestic purposes.

- 12. The suggestion was put forward, and endorsed by some delegations, that the 1960 estimates should be reduced to a level between 10 and 15 per cent below that of actual expenditure in 1958. The reduction might be achieved (a) under part II of the estimates (Special missions and related activities) through the abolition of certain special missions, and notably the Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea, the mission of the Special Representative on the Question of Hungary and the Conciliation Commission for Palestine; (b) under part III (The Secretariat), through a reduction of establishment to a level 10 per cent below that authorized for 1958; and (c) under part V (Common services and equipment) through a reduction of $1 million.
- 13. It was suggested that the general discussion would prove more fruitful if it were held after the Committee's detailed examination of the estimates. Representatives would be in a better position if they could study, and put questions on, the individual sections and hear the related views of their colleagues before submitting conclusions on the budget as a whole.
- 14. All delegations joined in acclaiming the generosity of the Ford Foundation, whose munificent and timely gift made it possible to build a new Library worthy of the United Nations.

Organization of the Secretariat

15. A number of representatives concurred in the opinion of the Advisory Committee (A/4170, paras. 40 and 41) that it might be opportune to consider in 1961 the desirability of undertaking a fresh review of the organization of the Secretariat, while a few speakers argued in favour of earlier action in the matter. It was also suggested that, unlike the 1954-55 survey, which had been undertaken largely by Secretariat officials, the proposed review should be entrusted to a body composed preponderantly of persons outside the Secretariat. Alternatively, it might be conducted, as in the case of the 1955 management survey in the Food and Agriculture Organization, by a government department of a Member State. Further reference is made to this matter in paragraphs 60 to 65 below.

The system of priorities

16. On the subject of priorities, many representatives viewed with favour the procedure which the Secretary-General had outlined (A/4110, foreword, paras. 40 and 41) in connexion with the work programme of the Economic and Social Council. They also endorsed the related comments of the Advisory Committee (A/4170, paras. 29-32) and its suggestion that the Secretary-General's efforts to ensure a rational application of the system of priorities in areas within the Council's competence merited fuller support. It was at the same time recognized that while immediate responsibility in the matter of priorities rested with the policy-making organs and with the Governments that participated in decisions, the Fifth Committee should not give too narrow an interpretation to its own function. Apart from scrutinizing demands for funds by reference to anticipated results and costs, the Committee should satisfy itself by means of background information, as to the nature and needs of the programmes; the material submitted in the budget foreword (Ibid., paras. 28-45) was in that sense of special importance, and might with advantage be amplified in future years. The Economic and Social Council, on the other hand, should give the closest attention both to the financial implications of its actions and to the assignment of priorities: that responsibility, which could never be of a perfunctory character, assumed utmost importance at a time when the Council was considering a forward appraisal of United Nations activities for the period 1959 to 1964, and when there were growing demands for advice and services in connexion with economic and social development, and particularly in newly independent States.

17. As regards the administrative relations between the various institutions of the United Nations, it was again suggested—as had been done at the previous session of the Committee—that a general review should be made of the distribution of responsibilities among the international bodies. The possibility of an overlapping and duplication of their work represented a problem that should be studied, and not solely from a budgetary point of view. There was also a clear need to simplify and improve the existing procedures for administrative and financial review among the several organizations and to give fresh impetus to the processes of co-ordination. Constructive proposals for further action in those directions would serve an excellent purpose.

Matters considered during the first reading of the budget estimates for 1960

Section 4 (Special missions and related activities)

18. At the 720th meeting of the Committee, the following draft resolution (A/C.5/L.572) was submitted by Czechoslovakia:

"The General Assembly,

"Taking account of the considerable financial burden imposed upon Member States by the United Nations budget,

"Noting that special missions appearing under section 4 of the budget have been established in most cases a very long time ago,

"Considering that since the establishment of the various missions, some changes in the political situation might have taken place,

- "1. Invites the Secretary-General to approach the Governments of States on whose territories the missions are active, and of other States directly interested, and request their views as to the continued necessity, usefulness, scope of activity and terms of reference of those missions; and
- "2. Invites the Secretary-General to transmit, in the course of 1960, the results of these inquiries to the parent bodies of the various missions to enable them, if they wish, to make a fresh reappraisal of the existence or scope of activities of the missions."

- 19. The representative of Czechoslovakia pointed out that the Fifth Committee had constantly pressed for an effective system of priorities among and within the work programmes of the United Nations. That was true also of the Advisory Committee, which had again referred in its budget report (A/4170, para. 27) to the problem of making the best use of available funds in relation to changing needs. The programme appraisals for the period 1959 to 1964 which the Economic and Social Council had already initiated in its own province would undoubtedly yield good results. But no similar appraisals were contemplated for the special missions, under section 4, which had been established by the General Assembly or the Security Council for purposes related to the maintenance of peace and security; nor, despite the fact that most of the missions had been in existence for many years, had the parent bodies reviewed their activities since the date of their establishment. The Advisory Committee had made two pertinent suggestions (Ibid., A/4170, paras. 33 and 120): first, that the Assembly and other principal organs might with advantage consider whether any of the older decisions and directives, which possibly had outlived their immediate purpose, should be reviewed; and secondly, that the Secretariat should continue to seek efficiency and economy in the administration of the missions.
- 20. Unquestionably, the Fifth Committee was not competent to recommend any action affecting the existence or the scope of activities of the special missions. But it was the right, and indeed the duty, of the Committee to draw the attention of competent organs to areas of activity where a review might be desirable on administrative grounds. With that object in view, the Czechoslovak delegation had submitted its draft resolution, which was intended to initiate review action on the part of the appropriate bodies, without encroaching on their spheres of competence.
- 21. It was the general view of the Committee that the Czechoslovak proposal, which sought to ease the financial burden of the Members, merited careful consideration. On procedural grounds, however, the draft resolution presented difficulties:
- (a) Neither the preamble nor the operative part was confined to the administrative or financial aspects of the problem; both introduced considerations that were clearly outside the Committee's competence. Thus, under operative paragraph 1, the Secretary-General was invited to initiate an independent process of inquiry calculated to call into question decisions taken by the General Assembly and the Security Council on matters within their exclusive jurisdiction. The effect would be to place the Secretary-General in an anomalous position by assigning to him a political task that only the Assembly or the Council was competent to undertake;
- (b) The reference in the preamble to "a very long time ago" carried the erroneous implication that the long duration of a mission might have some bearing on, or even detract from, its usefulness. On the contrary, if a mission had a long life, that was because, regrettably, political disputes often persisted for many years. It was, moreover, for the General Assembly or the Security Council, and not for the Fifth Committee, to take note of changes in a given situation or of political changes generally, and to act thereon;
- (c) The proposed form and method of inquiry seemed faulty. The special missions owed their existence to collective decisions of the Assembly or Council, and by that token they held a collective interest for all Member - States. Consequently, the views, which might well conflict, of the States referred to in paragraph 1 of the draft resolution could not afford valid or sufficiently broad guidance to the Secretary-General. His conclusions would have to be drawn from incomplete data;

- (d) A reappraisal of the existence or functions of the special missions necessitated a full review of the situations that had led to their establishment. As it was the duty of both the General Assembly and the Security Council to keep political developments under continuous scrutiny, the Committee, in adopting paragraph 2, would be exerting pressure on those organs and gratuitously requesting a revision of their political judgements.
- 22. The point was made that while the Secretary-General had submitted in section 4 estimates based on present situations, the Committee, of its own initiative, could at any time conduct an inquiry into the administrative aspects of the special missions, or alternatively invite the Secretary-General to consider, in connexion with the 1961 budget, what further administrative economies, consistent with the decisions of the parent bodies, he might propose.
- 23. It was also argued that were a review to be undertaken, it should not be limited to the special missions but, as suggested by the Advisory Committee (A/4170, para. 33), take the form of a general review. It should be initiated by the General Assembly or other principal organ.
- 24. At the 721st meeting, the Czechoslovak representative assured the Committee that his delegation was not wedded to any particular procedure; still less would it wish to encroach upon the jurisdiction of other organs. Its purpose was merely and precisely to draw attention to the administrative aspects of the problem, and to ensure that long-standing decisions were periodically reviewed from that angle. An inquiry of wider scope would therefore be entirely acceptable. Although the draft resolution could be so re-worded as to conform to the views of the Committee, it would be sufficient for his purpose if the tenor of the discussion were recorded in the Committee's report. The Committee agreed to that procedure.

Section 6 (Salaries and wages)

- 25. In connexion with the consideration of section 6, it was suggested at the 733rd meeting of the Committee that a review should be made of certain of the administrative arrangements for the international control of narcotic drugs. Since the establishment of the United Nations Secretariat in 1946, separate secretariat units had served the Commission on Narcotic Drugs, on the one hand, and the Permanent Central Opium Board and the Drug Supervisory Body, on the other. It was true that the League of Nations had applied a similar system (in respect of the Permanent Central Opium Board only). Possibly, also, there had been some justification for continuing it in the earlier years of the United Nations, with the Division of Narcotic Drugs situated in New York and the joint secretariat of the Board and the Body in Geneva. But inasmuch as both units had been housed since 1955 in the European Office, it appeared illogical and wasteful to maintain the existing separate arrangements.
- 26. The suggested review should be entrusted to a competent United Nations body. In 1956 the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions had touched on the problem, 45 stating the view that the etting up of a single secretariat for the control bodies nust inevitably follow the adoption of the proposed Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs. The hope was expressed that the Advisory Committee could make a study in 1960; that would be particularly opportune since the lraft Single Convention (E/CN.7/AC.3/9), which conained provisions (articles 12 and 24) having a direct earing on the matter at issue, would be discussed at a lenipotentiary conference planned for 1961. There would clearly be advantage in receiving the Committee's indings and recommendations in advance of that conference. Essentially, the question came within the province of administrative co-ordination and was therefore of impediate concern to the Fifth Committee.

Tection 8 (Travel of staff and of members of administrative bodies)

- 27. In connexion with the first reading of the estinates under section 8, the Committee took note, at its 34th meeting, of a report of the Secretary-General on he standards of travel accommodation for staff members A/C.5/788), as well as of the related comments of the Advisory Committee (A/4251). The reports in question ad been requested at the 653rd meeting of the Comnittee.
- 28. After describing present practices in regard to taff travel, the Secretary-General's report made the ollowing points:
- (a) The setting of travel standards for staffs, as one f the elements of the common system of salaries and llowances, was a matter for prior consideration among he organizations participating in that system. The particular question of standards of accommodation and node of travel had accordingly been considered at the 959 session of the Consultative Committee on Adminstrative Questions on the basis of a report prepared by the International Civil Aviation Organization.
- (b) The standards of accommodation now authorized or home leave travel represented a progressive lowering f standards since the early days of the Organization. As egards air travel, that trend was still continuing in conequence of the reduction of available tourist-class acommodation;
- (c) In particular, the introduction of jet-plane travel nd the airlines' practice of substituting "de luxe" nd "economy" classes respectively for first and tourist lasses on certain routes gave rise to special problems;
- (d) The Secretary-General was of the opinion that a urther review of the question should await a time when ne major change-over to jet travel would have taken lace—probably within the next two years—and when djustments in the different classes of service and fares ad been established more uniformly.
- 29. The Advisory Committee, while concurring genrally in the Secretary-General's opinion, suggested that, therever practicable, a fuller use should in the meantime e made of the economy class of air travel, in lieu of purist class and in those cases where the latter class is ow authorized.
- 30. Reference was also made at the 734th meeting to ne contractual travel arrangements at present in force. The view was expressed that the situation should be eviewed on the expiry of the present contract. The representative of France suggested that the Secretary-leneral should be requested to examine, in consultation with the Advisory Committee, (a) the present conactual travel arrangements; and (b) the possibility of reverting to the former system of a Secretariat travel service, and to report thereon at the following session.

- 31. On the estimates proper, Czechoslovakia, supported by the Soviet Union, proposed that the appropriation for section 8 of $1,687,000 as recommended by the Advisory Committee should be reduced by 5 per cent ($84,350). Immediate savings should be possible through the exercise of strict control over staff travel, and particularly travel to meetings and on other official business.
- 32. After analysing the measures of control that had been applied during past years to expenditure under chapters I and II, the Secretary-General's representative pointed out that, if approved, the reduction of $66,200, under the Advisory Committee's recommendations, would of necessity fall almost wholly on those two chapters. In the Secretary-General's opinion, that would prove harmful to essential activities and services, and notably in the economic and social fields.

33. On chapter III (Travel on home leave), the Secretary-General's representative submitted to the Committee figures illustrating the budgetary experience of the past two years:

Year	Initial estimate proposed by the Secretary- General	Estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee	Reduction recommended by the Advisory Committee	Supplementary appropriation
	United States dollars
1958 1959	1,008,000 930,000	988,000 900,000	(-20,000) (-30,000)	23,578 146,000

- 34. If supplementary estimates were to be avoided in 1960, it was evident that no part of the recommended reduction could safely be applied to chapter III. It was in fact probable that the Secretary-General would propose that a smaller deduction should be made in the 1961 budget in respect of the non-exercise of entitlement to home leave. At present that deduction amounted, in the case of Headquarters staff, to about 20 per cent.
- 35. At the 734th meeting Brazil proposed that the estimate of $1,753,200 for section 8 submitted by the Secretary-General should be approved.
- 36. The Committee voted at its 735th meeting on the various proposals. The result of the voting was as follows: The Czechoslovak proposal was rejected by 31 votes to 8, with 14 abstentions; the Brazilian proposal was rejected by 34 votes to 9, with 12 abstentions; the Advisory Committee's recommendation for an appropriation of $1,687,000 under section 8 was approved on first reading by 47 votes to none with 1 abstention.

Section 10 (Economic Commission for Africa)

- 37. In his budget submission for 1960 the Secretary-General proposed an appropriation of $1,013,300 for the Economic Commission for Africa. The Advisory Committee recommended, as an initial provision, the sum of $800,000, on the understanding that the Committee would review the situation in 1960 and authorize additional funds as necessary (A/4170, para. 183). Lengthy consideration was given, during the general budget discussion and again on the first reading of the estimates, to this matter.
- 38. At the 711th and 714th meetings the Chairman of the Advisory Committee analysed the nature of that Committee's recommendation. The reduction of $213,300 should not be read in the conventional sense as imposing on the Secretary-General a predetermined expenditure limit. The Advisory Committee had in fact neither dissented from the Secretary-General's proposal for an establishment of fifty Professional posts nor called for a cut in any specific item under section 10. It could therefore be claimed that, as regards the substance of the matter, there was an identity of views between the Secretary-General, the Advisory Committee and the many delegations which had supported the Secretary-General's proposal. Only a question of procedure and timing was at issue: how rapidly it would be possible to build up the Commission's secretariat. The Secretary-General had assumed that all fifty Professional posts could be filled by February 1960, whereas the Advisory Committee, on the strength of a more conservative and possibly more realistic forecast, suggested an adjustment in the initial money provision, though not in the number of authorized posts. Given the Committee's assurance in regard to additional financial needs, the recommendation could not in any way hamper the development of the Commission. The Advisory Committee had the necessary authority to approve unforeseen commitments, and further funds would be needed, if at all, only in the latter part of 1960.

39. Representatives who favoured the Secretary-General's original estimate observed that the Economic Commission for Africa had an essential role to play in the economic development of that continent, and its success in that task would depend equally on the cooperation of the African States and on the support which the Commission received from the General Assembly and other United Nations organs. It would therefore be regrettable if, despite agreement on the substantive issue, a restrictive budgetary decision aroused misgivings among the African representatives or had an adverse psychological effect among the peoples of Africa. A high priority had customarily been given to the activities of the regional economic commissions for their work was of outstanding quality and had radically altered the general outlook on the economic problems of the times. It was sound policy similarly to equip the most recent of those commissions with resources adequate to its task. The Advisory Committee had referred, in connexion with the recruitment of Professional staff, to the experience of 1959. That was, however, the first, formative year in the life of the Commission and could not be regarded as a valid criterion. But independently of the probable rate of expenditure in 1960—the sole point at issue—it was to be noted, first, that, in accordance with established procedure, funds should be made available to finance an authorized manning-table, and secondly, that as the money voted under section 10 could not be diverted to other appropriation sections, any savings would be surrendered at the end of 1960. It was finally arguable whether, in the circumstances of the present case, the Advisory Committee was empowered to authorize the expenditure of additional funds (beyond the sum to be appropriated) as an unforeseen commitment.

40. At the 735th meeting, the Secretary-General's representative informed the Committee that a cost-of-living survey at Addis Ababa, completed since the date of budget review, showed that it would be necessary to increase the post adjustment from class 3 to a special level equivalent to class 8. For 1959, the additional cost of about $15,000 could be absorbed in the appropriation for that year. As regards 1960, the cost would depend on the rate of recruitment. Calculated on a 10 per cent adjustment for turnover of staff, some $70,000 would be required, or about $40,000 on the basis of the higher adjustment which the Advisory Committee had recommended. The local salary survey would not be complete before the end of 1959, but it already seemed likely that the findings would call for an increase in expenditure of about $10,000. Total additional costs would thus be in the region of either $80,000 or $50,000, according to the pace of international recruitment. If the Secretary-General's estimate of $1,013,300 under section 10 were approved, the additional expenditure might be absorbed

41. At the same meeting, the representative of th United Arab Republic, on behalf of his own delegation and all the African delegations, proposed that the appropriation of $800,000 recommended by the Advisor Committee for section 10 should be increased by $213,300 to the figure of $1,013,300 originally submitted by the Secretary-General. The Fifth Committee unanimously adopted the proposal of the United Arab Republic.

Section 17 (Social activities)

42. The Committee considered section 17, at its 737th 752nd and 754th meetings. It had before it (a) a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/777) proposing at increase of $275,000 in the budget provision as a result of the decision taken by the Economic and Social Councitation at its twenty-eighth session (resolution 731 (XXVIII)), and (b) two reports of the Advisory Committee (A/4223) and (A/4300).

43. At the 737th meeting, the Secretary-General' representative indicated that, as a matter of prudence and in order to avoid any increase in administrative expenditure, the Secretary-General had requested as increase of only $275,000 under section 17, or a total o $1,200,000, although early estimates had indicated tha an additional $400,000, or a total of $1,325,000, would be required to meet all requests for assistance in 1960 in the social field. As programming had been completed he stated that to meet all requests under the regula programme, the amount required as at 27 October 195' was $1,364,750. He assured the Committee that the Secretariat was in a position to deal efficiently and eco nomically, without extra staff, with an expansion of the programme of advisory social welfare services b $275,000 and that the Expanded Programme of Techni cal Assistance and the programme charged to the regula budget were closely co-ordinated and integrated.

44. The Chairman of the Advisory Committee explained the position of that Committee in recommending an increased appropriation of $200,000; it considered that, in terms of the Council's resolution, an increase of over 20 per cent was fully adequate and especially since programming procedures were under review.

45. Several delegations recalled that the Social Commission's recommendation for an increase in funds which was endorsed by the Council in resolution 731 (XXVIII), was based on an intensive study of work social conditions and of the various questions related to the technical assistance programmes in the social field. There was also a need to focus attention on the requirements of the African countries. Although an additional appropriation of approximately $400,000 would be needed to meet all the requests for assistance which has been received, the Secretary-General had limited his proposal to $275,000.

46. The representative of Ecuador formally proposed the restoration of the appropriation of $275,000 which the Secretary-General had requested. The representative of the United Arab Republic, while acknowledging the efforts should be made to effect savings whenever pos

- ible, felt that the appropriation for the operational programme in the field of advisory welfare services concerned not only the under-developed countries, and in particular the newly independent countries of Africa, but the whole world. His delegation proposed an appropriation for section 17 of $1,364,750, the sum deemed necessary to meet all the requests for assistance.
- 47. It was proposed that since the Advisory Committee had not had the full facts on which to base an nformed decision, further consideration of the question hould be adjourned pending the receipt of a detailed eport from that Committee. The proposal to refer the question to the Advisory Committee was adopted by 45 rotes to 2, with one abstention.
- 48. The Fifth Committee resumed the discussion at ts 752nd and 754th meetings on the basis of a report (A/4300) in which the Advisory Committee maintained ts earlier recommendation for an additional appropriation of $200,000 under section 17. The representative of Ecuador recalled that he had proposed an appropriation of $275,000 at the 737th meeting and while he was inclined in principle to support the proposal of the United Arab Republic for an additional appropriation of $400,000, in a spirit of compromise he would not press or more than the amount requested by the Secretary-General, namely $275,000. Several delegations supported he proposal.
- 49. One delegation pointed out that the Secretary-General had departed from the principle that technical issistance in the social field should be provided free of tharge only to countries which really needed it but could not pay for it. While there was no objection to the provision of such assistance to economically developed countries, it was felt that it should be provided only against payment.
- 50. The representative of the Secretary-General, in replying to an inquiry regarding the extent of assistance which would be provided to African countries, explained at the 754th meeting that Ethiopia, Liberia and Morocco were the only African countries from which requests had been received for assistance in 1960 under General Assembly resolution 418 (V), apart from a group of countries which wished to participate in a regional seminar on family and child welfare. The Secretariat interpreted this as reflecting the lack of experience of many African countries in utilizing the resources of the United Vations, and that as their experience grew, the relative proportion of requests submitted would increase.
- 51. The proposal made by the Ecuadorian delegation at the 752nd meeting, and renewed by the United Arab Republic delegation at the 754th meeting that the 1960 provision under section 17 should be set at $1,200,000, was adopted by 48 votes to 2, with 12 abstentions.
- Section 19 (Public administration: Programme of operational and executive personnel (OPEX))
- 52. The Secretary-General's initial estimates for 1960 contained a provisional amount of $200,000 under chapter II of section 19 for the continuance of the OPEX programme. Subsequently, the Economic and Social Council idopted, on 30 July 1959, resolution 739 (XXVIII) recommending to the General Assembly that the experimental programme should be continued, while in October 1959 the Secretary-General presented to the Assembly in analytical report (A/4212 and Add. 1) in which he proposed that the amount to be appropriated for the OPEX programme in 1960 should be increased to $300,000. In November 1959, the Second Committee

- submitted to the Assembly a draft resolution (A/4287, para. 40, draft resolution III) concerning the programme.
- 53. The Advisory Committee, having examined the Secretary-General's revised proposal (A/C.5/799) for an appropriation of $300,000 for 1960, recommended (A/4281, para. 7) in favour of a figure not exceeding $250,000.
- 54. Most representatives who took part in the discussion expressed their keen interest in the OPEX programme. The main point of difference concerned the level at which the programme should be financed in 1960. A more radical divergence is, however, recorded in paragraph 58 below.
- 55. At the 745th meeting, the delegations of Afghanistan, Ethiopia, Nepal, Panama and Sudan jointly proposed that the reduction of $50,000 recommended by the Advisory Committee should be restored.
- 56. Those supporting the Advisory Committee's recommendation deprecated any tendency towards overoptimism in regard to the project. The Second Committee had rightly indicated that the experiment with the OPEX programme had been too brief for final conclusions to be drawn. While the Secretary-General would report on the subject to the Economic and Social Council in July 1960, it seemed probable that a decision on the appropriate scope of the programme could not be taken before the next Assembly session at the earliest. In fact, the working experience of several years might be needed before a valid judgement could be made. It should not be based on the sole criterion of the volume of requests submitted by Governments. Under the Advisory Committee's recommendation it would be possible to provide for some thirty to thirty-five appointments by the end of 1960: a total of fifteen officers would probably be at work by the end of 1959, representing (at $9,000 per annum each) an outlay in 1960 of $135,000; the balance of $115,000 could be used for between fifteen and twenty further appointments, depending on the average delay in recruitment, which might be estimated at either four or six months. That appeared to constitute reasonable interpretation of the term "adequate scope" in the draft resolution of the Second Committee.
- 57. Representatives who concurred in the Secretary-General's proposal, pointed out that an accelerated pace of recruitment could now be anticipated. The Secretary-General foresaw that by the end of January 1960, the twenty-five posts approved in 1958 would have been filled. An amount of around $230,000 would be needed to provide for those posts in 1960. On that basis, the proposed sum of $300,000 would cover the cost of those twenty-five appointments as well as seven or eight additional appointments to be made in 1960. A money provision of that order, while meeting the condition of "adequate scope" was not excessive in view of the progress already made in developing the programme. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee, on the other hand, would permit of no more than two or three new appointments in 1960, in addition to the twenty-five posts previously envisaged. That was too restrictive and could not be said to give effect to what the Second Committee had had in mind. $300,000 was the minimum necessary to ensure successful results, and with that sum the Secretary-General would be enabled to meet requests from a larger number of countries, a fact which in itself would facilitate a more realistic assessment of the programme.

58. According to yet a third view, the operations of the OPEX programme during the past year had demonstrated that the reservations which some delegations had entered at the previous session had been fully justified. Neither the arguments in the Secretary-General's special report to the Economic and Social Council at its twentyeighth session 46 nor those in his recent report to the General Assembly were sufficient to justify the continuation of a costly experiment, which did not appear to have proved successful. Many of the requests for assistance under the programme had reference not to operational or executive personnel but to advisers of the type who could be furnished to Governments either under other regular programmes or under the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. As it was impossible to assess the value of the experiment at the present stage, the money provision should on no account exceed the $200,000 authorized for 1959.

Decision of the Committee

59. At the 746th meeting, the Committee decided by 26 votes to 19, with 20 abstentions, that in the event of the adoption of the draft resolution submitted by the Second Committee (A/4287, para. 40, draft resolution III), the maximum appropriation recommended by the Advisory Committee should be increased by $50,000 to $300,000.

III. Organization of the Secretariat

- (a) Organization and management of work of the Secretariat of the United Nations
- 60. At its 753rd meeting the Committee unanimously adopted a draft resolution (A/C.5/L.592 and Add. 1) which was submitted jointly by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Arab Republic, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America. (See para. 161, draft resolution IV.)
- 61. It was explained on behalf of the sponsors that the draft text was the outcome of consultations with many delegations and with the Secretary-General, and that some of its provisions represented a compromise between views that differed not so much on substance as on points of detail and procedure.
- 62. Much had happened since the last survey of the Secretariat in 1954-1955. The membership of the United Nations had risen from fifty-five to eighty-two, with a concurrent increase in the volume and scope of the activities which the Secretariat was called upon to undertake.
- 63. The authors of the proposal had had full regard to the prerogatives which the Charter reserved to the Secretary-General. Their draft resolution did no more than trace the outline of a review which, as the sponsors proposed, would be conducted by the Secretary-General together with the experts whom he himself would appoint. The text likewise spoke of experts "working together" with the Secretary-General. Both of the latter considerations were of the highest importance. In appointing the experts, the Secretary-General would define their terms of reference, and by so doing would retain the right to submit to the General Assembly, together with the findings of the experts, his own recommendations for action which might not be identical with their views. The review would be directed principally to the work of the Secretariat, and some activities, as, fo example, those relating to the special missions unde section 4 of the budget, would not appropriately come within its scope.

- 64. The representative of the Secretary-General as surred the Committee that the Secretary-General con curred in the four-Power proposal, on which he had indeed been fully consulted. As he (the Secretary General) interpreted the text, he would conduct the review jointly with a committee composed of experts o the highest qualifications representing the various geo graphical regions. The project obviously entailed a con siderable addition to the work-load of the Secretaria because, however eminent its members, the expert com mittee would have to rely heavily on staff support and above all, on the continuous advice of high officials of the Secretariat. It might also prove necessary to engage consultants for specialized research and temporarily to strengthen the Administrative Management Staff in the Controller's Office. In defining the scope of the review it would perhaps be wise to set a somewhat cautious course. While any activity covered by the regular budge might come within the compass of the review, the major emphasis would fall on items in parts III and V. In tha way, attention would be given to the many matters (appropriate to such a review) that had been raised in the course of the general budget discussion or at other meetings during the current session.
- 65. In 1960, the Secretary-General, after consulting the Advisory Committee, in accordance with operative paragraph 2 of the draft resolution, would work together with the experts in identifying the problems for study and planning appropriate working methods. Those would doubtless be the principal subjects of the interim progress report which the General Assembly would receive at its fifteenth session. As regards the financial implications, it was the Secretary-General's understanding that the experts would be entitled to travel expenses and subsistence allowances but not to the payment of fees. Since the expenditure could not be estimated with any precision the best course would be to finance such expenditure under the resolution on unforeseen and extraordinary expenses. The Secretary-General would then consult the Advisory Committee early in 1960.
- (b) Department of Economic and Social Affairs: Organizational changes and review of internal procedures relating to the technical assistance programme
- 66. The discussion on this topic at the 754th meeting was based upon the report of the Secretary-Genera (A/C.5/801) and the report of the Advisory Committee (A/4302). Some delegations expressed regret that faster progress in more concrete terms was not reported in connexion with the amalgamation of the former Technical Assistance Administratoin with the Department of Economic and Social Affairs. These delegations felt that it should have been possible to record specific economies and to announce the installation of improved procedures Other delegations, recalling misgivings expressed previously by them in connexion with the amalgamation stated that the progress outlined in the reports was more than sufficient to allay any former doubts. General endorsement was given to the points made in the Advisory Committee's report, particularly with regard to the vita role which should be played by the regional economic commissions in the technical assistance programme. The representative of the Secretary-General indicated that no single administrative or organizational problem faced by the Secretariat had received more concerted attention over the past year, but that the amalgamation could not be expected to produce spectacular economies on an immediate basis. He expressed the Secretary-General's belief that evidence of economies would be forthcoming in due course and that the action of the General Assembly in approving the amalgamation would be amply justified. The Committee decided to take note of the Secretary-General's report and of the report of the Advisory Committee.

IV. WORKING CAPITAL FUND

- 67. In his foreword to the 1960 budget estimates (A/4110, foreword, paras. 60-68) the Secretary-General once again invited the attention of Members to the fact that the cash position of the Organization continued to be a source of grave concern. The progressively worsening imbalance between cash requirements, on the one hand, and available resources, on the other, was illustrated in the position at the end of 1958. At that time outstanding contributions amounted, in the case of regular budgetary assessments, to $7.8 million and, in the case of UNEF assessments, to $15.4 million.
- 68. In the course of the general budget discussion many delegations expressed agreement with the view of the Secretary-General that it was urgently necessary to find a permanent solution to what had become a chronic problem of increasingly serious proportions.
- 69. The matter was submitted to the detailed consideration of the Committee at its 758th meeting on 3 December 1959, on the basis of a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/809) in which he stated his conclusion that "there is not merely ample justification, but urgent need, if the financial solvency and integrity of the Organization is to be regarded as of top priority, for an increase in the level of the Working Capital Fund in 1960 of the order of $3 to $4 million. Since, however, responsibility for safeguarding the Organization's cash position rests not with the Secretary-General alone, but equally with Member States through their individual and collective Assembly action, the Secretary-General refrains from submitting a formal recommendation at this time, pending further review of the situation by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and subsequent expression of opinion in the Fifth Committee of the General Assembly.
- 70. In a related report (A/4317) the Advisory Committee pointed out that at the thirteenth session it had recommended in favour of increasing the Working Capital Fund by two stages to the level of $25 million in 1960. The Committee also observed that the considerations that had then prompted its recommendation were even more valid at the present time.
- 71. Accordingly the Advisory Committee recommended that the General Assembly should:
- (a) Urge the Member States concerned to give attention to the payment of the outstanding arrears of their contributions;
- (b) Request the Secretary-General, in addition to continuing his efforts to obtain earlier payment of contributions, to address a special communication in this regard to Member States and to report on the replies received to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session;
- (c) Decide to increase the level of the Working Capital Fund from $23.5 million to $25 million in 1960, by the transfer to the Fund of the balance on surplus account

- still available for credit to Members as at 31 December 1958 ($527,988) and by direct additional cash advances in the amount of $972,012;
- (d) Extend the authorization granted to the Secretary-General under paragraph 4 of resolution 1341 (XIII), to cover also short-term loans from Governments and, exceptionally, from commercial sources.
- 72. Most delegations felt that the recommendations of the Advisory Committee were well suited, as a whole, to a situation of extreme difficulty both for the Organization and for a majority of its Members. Recommendations (a) and (b), if heeded by all Member States, would together provide the permanent solution which was unanimously desired. But it would be illusory to expect that, as regards the earlier payment of contributions, a problem that had persisted for some fourteen years would admit of a rapid solution. Nevertheless, the Advisory Committee had included a new and useful feature in their related suggestion: publication of the Members' replies might well have a salutary effect on the payment of contributions.
- 73. As regards the proposed increase in the Working Capital Fund, a number of delegations regarded this as a natural and indeed indispensable step. If it was accepted that the working capital should equal about 50 per cent of the budget, then the case had been made for an increase to $30 million, and none should be surprised by the present cash difficulties of the Organization. But if so sharp an increase was not immediately practicable, thought should be given to the possibility of combining with a more modest increase of the Fund (for example, to $25 million) other remedial measures.
- 74. The suggestion was also made that it might be useful to adopt the system, long in force in the International Telecommunication Union, of charging interest, at a high rate and on an ascending scale, on outstanding contributions.
- 75. Other delegations, however, were reluctant to concur in any increase or in any increase exceeding the balance of some $500,000 available on surplus account. An increase of the Fund merely aggravated the evil by affording more latitude to tardy payment. It was, moreover, inequitable since it penalized all Member States, irrespective of their record of payment, by tying up valuable assets. The view was also expressed that more attention should be directed to seeking in a reduction of budget expenditure an alternative solution of the problem.
- 76. Where recommendation (d) was concerned, many speakers expressed serious misgivings concerning the propriety and possibly the legality of an organization such as the United Nations resorting to loans from banks or other commercial houses. Some delegations also spoke in favour of excluding loans from Governments from the scope of the authorization.
- 77. The following amendments were proposed to the recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/4317, para. 10):
- (a) Soviet Union: recommendation (c)—the level of the Fund to remain at $23.5 million;
- (b) India: to delete the words "and, exceptionally, from commercial sources" in recommendation (d).

Decisions of the Fifth Committee

78. The result of the voting was as follows: Recommendation (a) of the Advisory Committee was unanimously approved. Recommendation (b) of the Advisory Committee was unanimously approved. The Soviet amendment to recommendation (c) of the Advisory Committee was rejected by 20 votes to 12, with 21 abstentions. Recommendation (c) of the Advisory Committee was approved by 37 votes to 10, with 9 abstentions. The Indian amendment to recommendation (d) of the Advisory Committee was approved by 27 votes to 6, with 20 abstentions. Recommendation (d) of the Advisory Committee, as amended, was approved by 49 votes to none, with 5 abstentions. The Advisory Committee's recommendations as a whole (A/4317) were approved by 43 votes to 8 with 4 abstentions.

Recommendation of the Committee

79. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution VI (See para. 161 below).

V. Form of the budget

80. The 1960 budget estimates (A/4110) contained a number of new features designed to facilitate the process of review. These included summary tables (A/4110, tables S-1 and 13-1) showing (a) for thebudget as a whole, and (b) for the general expenses financed under section 13, the variations in budgetary requirements that had occurred during the three-year period 1958-1960, as well as a statement of established posts by department or office (table 6-2) intended to give an approximate indication of the distribution of authorized posts by functions (e.g. political affairs, economic and social activities, etc.). In the course of the general discussion, many representatives referred with appreciation to these improvements in the budget presentation. They also welcomed the expansion of the Secretary-General's budget foreword, which by providing adequate background information on work programmes, enabled the Committee to determine whether budget proposals would yield a maximum return at the lowest possible cost. While the annual reports of Councils, commissions and committees provided ample material on the subject, the budget foreword was of the highest value in analysing the relationship between the substance of programmes and their budgetary implications. It was to be hoped that the foreword could be amplified still further in future budget submissions.

81. At the 743rd meeting, the Committee considered the specific question whether to continue for a further period of years the revised form of budget presentation which had been approved experimentally in February 1957,47 and been initiated with the budget estimates for 1958. The basic documents before the Committee were reports of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/776) and the Advisory Committee (A/4228). Two main considerations arose: first, whether the new form of the budget had proved successful from an administrative and operational point of view, and in particular whether it had resulted in a more flexible use of staff resources, a stricter application of priorities and improvement in administrative management and control; and secondly, whether the General Assembly and its budgetary committees had found it easier, under the revised form, to appraise the Secretary-General's budget proposals and control expen-

82. Most representatives were satisfied, on the evidence offered by the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee, that it would be wise to extend the experimental period. They noted that the Secretary-General intended to refine the form of presentation still further, and that, by way of additional improvements, he proposed to furnish detailed information annexes analysing the budget estimates (a) by organizational segment (i.e., department or office), (b) as appropriate, by location, and (c) by main fields of activity (the last-named analysis representing an improved form of the present annex II). Note was also taken of the study, already under preparation, in which actual expenditures for the period 1956 to 1958 would be correlated with main fields of activity and which would serve to test the validity of the methods and assumptions on which the project estimates were at present based. That was an exercise of the utmost importance; it would afford the Fifth Committee precise information on the pattern and nature of expenditure in different fields of activity, as for instance, expenditure on sessions of organs and subsidiary organs held away from Headquarters.

83. Other speakers, however, felt that the revised form of the budget perhaps facilitated the task of the Secretariat more than it served the needs of the Committee, and that while a more flexible use of staff had admittedly been achieved, there had not been equal success in informing the Committee fully and accurately of the trends, the relative importance and the cost of programmes. Thus, with the exception of section 4, the budget document nowhere gave the cost of programmes clearly and concisely, nor did it show how new projects could be compared with the cost of existing projects in the same field.

84. The view was expressed by some delegations that the progressive increase in administrative costs demonstrated that the advantages claimed for the new form of the budget in 1956 and 1957 had not been fully exploited or alternatively that some serious weakness was inherent in that form. The control formerly exercised by the General Assembly through a long series of votes on departmental appropriations had been impaired. Thus, the items which were shown as a single figure in section 6 of the 1960 estimates had been represented in 1957 (under the old form) by eleven separate figures, each of which had been put to the vote. By the same token, the old form had shown the detailed expenses of every department of the Secretariat.

85. Some support was given to the procedure outlined in paragraphs 13 and 14 of the Advisory Committee's report (A/4228), according to which new projects proposed after the date of budget preparation would be undertaken in the budget year only to the extent that they could be accommodated within the initial estimates. In the opinion, however, of other delegations, too rigid a rule should not be written as it might hamper essential work of the Councils, and in particular that of the Economic and Social Council. Although it was true that the Advisory Committee had added a saving clause (ibid., para. 14) to the suggested formula, the question of revisions in the initial estimates, together with other important matters pertaining to the form of budget presentation, should be the subject of further consultation between the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee.

86. It was the consensus of opinion in the Committee that the present form of the budget should be retained for a second experimental period of two years, on the understanding that in the light of the discussion held in the Fifth Committee and after consultation with the Advisory Committee, the Secretary-General would make appropriate improvements in his budget presentation.

VI. SALARY SCALES FOR HEADQUARTERS GENERAL SERVICE STAFF

87. At its 742nd meeting the Committee examined a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/794) stating that on the basis of a review of local employment conditions in the New York area, the Secretary-General believed that an increase of 5 per cent in the Headquarters General Service salary scales was justified. The Secretary-General has concluded, pursuant to Annex I, paragraph 7 of the Staff Regulations of the United Nations, that the effective date for applying the new scales should be 1 October 1959. The Committee also examined a report of the Advisory Committee on this question (A/4260) expressing agreement with the Secretary-General's estimate of the increased requirements for 1960 arising from the revision of the scales.

88. The Committee approved by 47 votes to none, with 9 abstentions, an increase of $502,000 in the 1960 appropriations distributed among the following sections: section 4 (Special missions and related activities), $5,500; section 6 (Salaries and wages), $439,700 and section 7 (Common staff costs), $56,800. At the same time is approved a consequential increase in staff assessment income of $111,000 and the adjustments which would need to be made in the expenditure estimates for revenue-producing activities, under part D of the 1960 budget, resulting in a reduction of $36,000 in the amount of income other than from staff assessment.

VII. LAND AND STRUCTURES

- 89. During the session the Committee considered a number of questions relating to the capital assets of the United Nations.
- 90. Under agenda item 44, the Committee took a decision regarding the modernization of the Palais des Nations, to which reference is made in paragraphs 94 to 97 below. It also examined the reports of the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee on the major maintenance and capital improvement programme at Headquarters (A/C.5/802; A/4296).
- 91. As regards the latter sub-item, no action (beyond normal budgetary provision) was called for in 1960 in view of the decision to postpone until that year the technical survey of facilities in the Headquarters building (A/4110, foreword, para. 19), and in view also of the General Assembly's action in regard to the construction of a new United Nations Library (see para. 93 below). The report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/802) dealt principally with the development of the basement area in the Headquarters building (tentatively proposed for 1961 and 1962). The Committee took note, at its 752nd meeting, of the Advisory Committee's intention (A/4296) to review the programme during 1960 in consultation with the Secretary-General.
- 92. Under agenda item 50, the Committee made recommendations to the General Assembly (A/4306) concerning the financing of the United Nations Building in Santiago, Chile, which were adopted by the Assembly in resolution 1407 (XIV) of 1 December 1959.
- 93. Finally, under agenda item 72, the Committee recommended (A/4252) to the General Assembly acceptance of the gift made by the Ford Foundation for the construction of a new United Nations Library (resolution 1354 (XIV) of 3 November 1959). At its 732nd meeting the Committee approved the adjustments to sections 13 and 15 of the 1960 estimates which the Advisory Committee had recommended (A/4259) in consequence of necessary interim arrangements for the Library.

Modernization of the Palais des Nations

- 94. At its 737th meeting the Committee considered a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/775) submitting revisions in the programme for the modernization of the Palais des Nations which was approved in General Assembly resolution 1101 (XI). The effect of the proposed revisions was to raise the estimated cost of the programme from $1,211,000 to $1,790,000, the increase of $579,000 applying solely to projects in the Assembly Hall area of the Palais (A/C.5/775, paras. 17-26).
- 95. General Assembly resolution 1101 (XI) provided for the inclusion in the budget estimates for the years 1957 to 1966 of ten equal instalments of $121,000. For the financing of the enlarged programme, the Secretary-General proposed in his recent report (ibid., paras. 27 and 28) the following revised schedule of annual instalments:

(1957 - 1959 : $121,000) 1960 - 1962 : $121,000 1963 : $131,000 1964 - 1966 : $311,000

96. The Advisory Committee concurred in the Secretary-General's proposal (A/4157, para. 10). The Committee stressed the importance of its being kept fully and currently informed of the progress of the work and the pattern of expenditure since, in the event of any possible increase in the cost of the programme (A/C.5/775, para. 26), an opportunity should be given for the Committee to recommend offsetting economies on less essential, non-structural aspects of the modernization plan.

Decision of the Committee

97. The Fifth Committee approved without objection the proposal of the Secretary-General (ibid., para. 28), and accordingly recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution V (See para. 161 below).

VIII. World Health Organization Headquarters accommodation

- 98. At its 758th meeting the Committee considered reports submitted by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/810) and by the Advisory Committee (A/4319) drawing attention to the resolution adopted by the Twelfth World Health Assembly and the Executive Board of the World Health Organization at its twenty-fourth session on the subject of the construction of a Headquarters building for WHO and related matters. The General Assembly's attention was called particularly to the provisions in these resolutions dealing with the question of "a suitable reimbursement to the World Health Organization by the United Nations" for the WHO investment in the Palais des Nations in consideration of releasing the space which WHO now occupies in the Palais.
- 99. The Fifth Committee in taking note of these reports concurred in the view expressed by the Advisory Committee that the question of reimbursement to WHO by the United Nations was one which called for careful study in terms largely of practical considerations, inasmuch as the two Organizations have, in the main, a common membership. Having regard to the fact that difficulties encountered by the Swiss authorities in finding a suitable site that could be made available to the World Health Organization for its Headquarters had only very recently been resolved, doubt was expressed by the Secretary-General whether the Assembly would find itself in a position to reach any conclusions at its present session concerning the question of any reimbursement to WHO for its investment in the Palais. The Fifth Committee accordingly concurred in the Secretary-General's suggestion, as endorsed by the Advisory Committee, that this matter should be further studied when all factors pertinent to the final accommodation of WHO have matured sufficiently. It agreed also that the Secretary-General in undertaking these further studies with the Director-General of WHO should consult, as necessary, with the Advisory Committee, and that a fuller report (or reports) should be submitted to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session.

IX. First reading of the budget estimates for 1960

- 100. For its first reading of the 1960 budget estimates, the Fifth Committee had before it the initial estimates submitted by the Secretary-General (A/4110) and the report of the Advisory Committee thereon (A/4170). The statements made by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/782) and the Chairman of the Advisory Committee (A/C.5/783) at the 711th meeting of the Fifth Committee had also contained references to particular sections of the budget. Further, the Secretary-General submitted revised estimates for several purposes, and the Advisory Committee made separate reports on those estimates:
- (a) Decisions of the Economic and Social Council—documents A/C.5/777, A/4223 and A/4300: sections 1, 6, 7, 8, 14, 17 and 19a;
- (b) Salary scales of General Service staff at Headquarters—documents A/C.5/794 and A/4260: sections 4, 6 and 7, income from staff assessment and income other than from staff assessment;
- (c) Interim arrangements for the Library—documents A/C.5/796 and A/4259: sections 13 and 15;
- (d) Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees—documents A/C.5/798 and A/4264: sections 10, 13 and 15:
- (e) Public administration: provision of operational administrative and executive personnel—documents A/C.5/799 and A/4281: section 19;
- (f) Meeting in Buenos Aires of the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women—documents A/C.5/808 and A/4310: sections 1, 8 and 13 and income other than staff assessment.
- 101. The Secretary-General also submitted revised proposals (A/4239) for the construction of the United Nations building at Santiago, and the Advisory Committee reported thereon (A/4277). These proposals, affecting the provision for section 20, were considered under agenda item 50 and a separate report (A/4306) has been presented to the General Assembly.
- 102. It is not attempted in the following portion of this report to reflect the discussions in the Fifth Committee during the first reading of the various sections. During these discussions observations on the estimates were made by members of the Committee, and the position of delegations on certain of the estimates expressed. Rep- resentatives of the Secretary-General replied to questions raised on the sections and gave, in specific instances, undertakings in connexion with the administration of the 1960 appropriations; the understanding of the Secretary-General as to the intent of the Committee in respect of certain of its decisions was also stated. The Chairman of the Advisory Committee gave further information on the views of that Committee on various estimates. These discussions can be found in the official records of the meetings of the Fifth Committee. The part of this report dealing with the general discussion does reflect, however, those points which, in the first reading of the sections, were given special attention and interest.

- 103. The actions of the Fifth Committee on questions relating to the financial implications of decisions of other Main Committees of the Assembly are indicated herein, and the effect of the approval by the General Assembly is shown in the following text under the sections involved.
- 104. Unless otherwise indicated, the amounts approved by the Fifth Committee were those recommended by the Advisory Committee.
- Section 1. Travel of representatives, members of commissions and committees
- 105. At its 716th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved an amount of $786,900 for this section, representing the appropriation recommended by the Advisory Committee in respect of the initial estimates and the revised estimates resulting from decisions of the Economic and Social Council.
- 106. At its 752nd meeting the Committee approved revised 1960 estimates (A/4295) in respect of General Assembly resolution 1376 (XIV) of 17 November 1959 on the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation which included an additional amount of $33,000 for this section.
- 107. At its 756th meeting the Committee approved revised estimates (A/C.5/808, A/4310) for the holding at Buenos Aires of the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women involving an additional provision of $12,700 under this section.
- Section 2. Special meetings and conferences
- 108. At its 716th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved an appropriation of $62,300 under section 2.
- Section 3. Board of Auditors
- 109. At its 716th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved an appropriation of $53,000 under section 3.
- Section 4. Special missions and related activities (see also part II of this report)
- 110. The Committee took its first reading decisions on chapters I to V inclusive and VII to IX inclusive at its 722nd meeting. It rejected proposals by the representative of the Ukrainian SSR for deletion of provisions for chapters VII, VIII and IX as follows:

The proposal of the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic to reduce by $55,000 the appropriation recommended by the Advisory Committee under section 4, chapter VII, was rejected by 40 votes to 10, with 11 abstentions. The proposal of the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic to reduce by $148,500 the appropriation recommended by the Advisory Committee under section 4, chapter VIII was rejected by 38 votes to 9, with 12 abstentions. The proposal of the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic to reduce by $96,000 the appropriation recommended by the Advisory Committee under section 4, chapter IX, was rejected by 43 votes to 9, with 7 abstentions.

111. The Committee approved the recommendations of the Advisory Committee as follows:

Chapter		Provision recommended	Yes	No	Abstention
		United States dollars
I.	Advisory Council for Somaliland under Italian
	Administration	152,700		Unan	imous
II.	Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan	431,500	52	0	9
III.	Representative for India and Pakistan	32,400	51	0	10
IV.	Conciliation Commission for Palestine	57,000	49	0	10
V.	Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine	1,438,000	52	0	9
VII.	Memorial Cemetery in Korea	55,000	45	8	8

	tion of Korea	148,500	43	9	10
IX.	Replacement of staff assigned to field missions	96,000	47	9	4

112. The Committee reported separately (A/4243) to the General Assembly on the financial implications of the draft resolution (A/4240) recommended by the Fourth Committee which would affect the original estimates under chapter VI-Plebiscites for the Cameroons under United Kingdom Administration. With the adoption by the General Assembly, at its 829th plenary meeting, of the draft resolution, and with a further report (A/4258)of the Advisory Committee, the Fifth Committee, at its 742nd meeting, approved a provision of $106,700 under chapter VI by 55 votes to none, with 1 abstention. It also approved, by 48 votes to 1, with 8 abstentions, an appropriation of $2,517,800 for section 4. The decision of the Committee, at its 742nd meeting, on salary scales for General Service staff at Headquarters (see part VI of this report) provided an additional amount of $5,500 under this section.

Section 5. United Nations Field Service

113. At its 721st meeting, the Committee rejected, by 48 votes to 9, with 8 abstentions, a proposal by the representative of the Ukrainian SSR that the provision under section 5 be deleted. It approved, by 49 votes to 9, with 8 abstentions, a provision of $1,206,800 under the section.

Section 6. Salaries and wages (see also part II of this report)

114. The Committee considered section 6 at its 733rd and 734th meetings. At its 734th meeting the Committee rejected, by 44 votes to 9, with 7 abstentions, a proposal by the representative of the USSR for a reduction of $2,800,000 in the amount recommended by the Advisory Committee for this section. The Committee approved, by 52 votes to 9, the appropriation of $31,432,500 recommended by the Advisory Committee in respect of the original estimates and the revised estimates resulting from decisions of the Economic and Social Council.

115. The decision of the Committee, at its 742nd meeting, on salary scales for General Service staff at Head-quarters (see part VI of the present report) provided an additional amount of $439,700 under this section.

116. At its 752nd meeting, the Committee approved the revised 1960 estimates (A/4295) in respect of General Assembly resolution 1376 (XIV) on the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation which included an additional amount of $10,000 for this section.

117. On the basis of a report of the Advisory Committee (A/4318) considered at its 758th meeting, the Fifth Committee informed the General Assembly separately (A/4326) on financial implications of three draft resolutions recommended by the Second Committee involving a further provision of $43,000 under this section.

Section 7. Common staff costs

118. At its 734th meeting, the Committee approved, by 49 votes to 9, the appropriation of $6,912,500 recommended by the Advisory Committee in respect of the original estimates and the revised estimates resulting from decisions of the Economic and Social Council.

119. The decision of the Committee, at its 742nd meeting, on salary scales for General Service staff at Head-quarters (see part VI of this report) provided an additional amount of $56,800 under this section.

120. The decision by the Committee, at its 757th meeting, on the United Nations International School included the provision of $100,000 under this section as a contribution to the International School Fund in 1960. The report of the Fifth Committee on item 51 is contained in document A/4331.

Section 8. Travel of staff and members of administrative bodies (see also part II of this report)

121. The Committee considered section 8 at its 734th and 735th meetings. It rejected, by 31 votes to 8 with 14 abstentions, a proposal by the representative of Czechoslovakia for a reduction of $84,350 in the amount recommended by the Advisory Committee for this section; and rejected, by 34 votes to 9, with 12 abstentions, a proposal by the representative of Brazil for an increase of $66,200 to that amount. The Committee approved, by 47 votes to none with 11 abstentions, the appropriation of $1,687,000 recommended by the Advisory Committee in respect of the original estimates and the revised estimates resulting from decisions of the Economic and Social Council.

122. At its 752nd meeting, the Committee approved revised 1960 estimates (A/4295) in respect of General Assembly resolution 1376 (XIV) on the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation which included an additional amount of $8,600 for this section.

144. At its 744th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved an appropriation of $704,500 under section 21.

Part C. Estimates of income

A. Income other than staff assessment

- 145. At its 748th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the basic estimate of $5,319,300 for income other than staff assessment.
- 146. The revised estimates for 1960 for the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees (A/4264, (A/C. 5/798), included an additional requirement of $17,000 in respect of which there would be increased income in the same amount by reimbursement from the Refugee Fund. The Fifth Committee approved the relevant estimates at its 742nd meeting.
- 147. The reduction of $36,000 in net revenue of the revenue-producing activities noted above resulted in a corresponding reduction of $36,000 from income other than staff assessment.
- 148. The approval by the Committee, at its 752nd meeting of revised 1960 provisions for the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation (A/4295) included an additional $9,200 income for that year.
- 149. At its 756th meeting, the Committee approved revised estimates (A/4310, A/C.5/808) for the holding in Buenos Aires of the fourteenth session of the Commission on the Status of Women. The total of the additional appropriations under sections 1, 8 and 13, $48,000, are to be reimbursed by the host Government in accordance with the provisions of General Assembly resolution 1202 (XII).
 - ⁴⁹ Changed to section 21 in second reading decisions. ⁵⁰ Changed to section 22 in second reading decisions.

B. Income from staff assessment

- 150. At its 748th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the basic estimate of $6,210,000 for income from staff assessment.
- 151. The decision of the Committee at its 742nd meeting, on salary scales for General Service staff at Head-quarters (see part VI of this report) provided additional income from staff assessment of $111,000.
- 152. The Committee, approved, at its 742nd meeting, revised estimates for the Plebiscite for the Cameroons under United Kingdom administration including a further $8,000 income under this heading.

Part D. Revenue-producing activities

- 153. The Committee considered the estimates for revenue-producing activities at its 747th and 748th meetings. It unanimously approved the 1960 estimates of income and expenses submitted by the Secretary-General (A/4110) and concurred in by the Advisory Committee (A/4170).
- 154. In connexion with its consideration of the several revenue-producing activities particular attention was paid to the incidence of various taxes on their operations. The Committee heard statements by representatives of the Secretary-General on this question.
- 155. The decision of the Committee, at its 742nd meeting, on salary scales for General Service staff at Headquarters (see part VI of the present report) involved increased expenses, and consequent reductions in net revenue of the activities, totalling $36,000.

X. Second reading of the budget estimates for 1960

- 156. In connexion with the second reading of the 1960 budget estimates, the Committee unanimously adopted, at its 759th meeting, a draft resolution (A/C.5/L.601) concerning the submission of revisions to initial budget estimates which was submitted jointly by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Arab Republic, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America. The purpose of the draft resolution (see paragraph 161 of this report, draft resolution VII) was similar to that defined in General Assembly resolution 1096 (XI) of 27 February 1957, namely, to ensure that additions to a total programme of work for which provision has already been made in the main budget estimates shall be held to a minimum. The hope was expressed that the Secretary-General would report to the Assembly at its next session on the extent to which the various organs and subordinate organs had found it possible to comply with the procedure outlined in the draft resolution.
- 157. On second reading of the estimates, the Committee voted as follows:

Section	Recommended appropriation	Yes	No	Abstention

1447 (XIV). Modernization of the Palais des Nations

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/775) and the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/4157) concerning changes which have become necessary in the programme for the modernization of the Palais des Nations, approved under General Assembly resolution 1101 (XI) of 27 February 1957,

- 1. Approves the revisions in the programme for the modernization of the Palais des Nations as set out in the report of the Secretary-General together with the proposals for financing the entire programme, as modified, at a cost not to exceed $1,790,000;
- 2. Authorizes the Secretary-General to proceed with the execution of the programme;
- 3. Authorizes the Secretary-General for these purposes:
- (a) To include in the budget estimates for the years 1960 to 1962, as for the years 1957 to 1959, annual instalments of $121,000, an instalment of $131,000 in 1963 and instalments of $311,000 annually for the years 1964 to 1966;
- (b) To advance from the Working Capital Fund the sums which may be required from time to time to finance actual requirements, such advances to be repaid from budgetary appropriations in accordance with the schedule shown in annex II to the Secretary-General's report;
- 4. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions informed of developments in the progress of the modernization programme.

846th plenary meeting, 5 December 1959.

1448 (XIV). Amount of the Working Capital Fund

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 1341 (XIII) of 13 December 1958 on the amount of the Working Capital Fund,

Having examined the report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/809) and the recommendations thereon contained in the thirty-sixth report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session (A/4317),

- 1. Urges the Member States concerned to give attention to the payment of the outstanding arrears of their contributions;
- 2. Requests the Secretary-General, in addition to continuing his efforts to obtain earlier payment of contributions in keeping with regulation 5.4 of the Financial Regulations of the United Nations, to address a special communication on this matter to Member States and to report on the replies received to the General Assembly at its fifteenth session;
- 3. Decides to increase the level of the Working Capital Fund from $23.5 million to $25 million in 1960, by the transfer to the Fund of the balance of surplus account still available for credit to Members as at 31 December 1958 ($527,988) and by direct additional advances in the amount of $972,012;
 - 4. Decides:
- (a) To continue in 1960, under the same conditions, the authorization granted to the Secretary-General in paragraph 4 of General Assembly resolution 1341

- (XIII) to borrow, on payment of normal current rate of interest, cash from special funds and accounts in h custody for purposes which normally relate to the Worling Capital Fund;
- (b) To extend the authorization to cover short-tern loans from Governments.

846th plenary meeting, 5 December 1959.

1449 (XIV). BUDGET ESTIMATES FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR 1960

(a) Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

DOCUMENTS A/4123 AND ADD.1

Note by the Secretary-General

Document A/4123

"Rule 156

[Original text: English] [16 June 1959]

1. The rules of procedure of the General Assembly provide that:

"The General Assembly shall appoint an Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (hereinafter called the 'Advisory Committee'), with a membership of nine, including at least two financial experts of recognized standing."

"Rule 157

"The members of the Advisory Committee, no two of whom shall be nationals of the same State, shall be selected on the basis of broad geographical representation, personal qualifications and experience, and shall serve for three years corresponding to three financial years, as defined in the regulations for the financial administration of the United Nations. Members shall retire by rotation and shall be eligible for reappointment. The two financial experts shall not retire simultaneously. The General Assembly shall appoint the members of the Advisory Committee at the regular session immediately preceding the expiration of the term of office of the members, or, in the case of vacancies, at the next session."

- 2. The present membership of the Committee is as follows:
 - Mr. Thanassis Aghnides (Greece);
 - Mr. Carlos Blanco (Cuba);
 - Mr. Eduardo Carrizosa (Colombia);
 - Mr. John E. Fobes (United States of America);
 - Mr. André Ganem (France);
 - Mr. A. H. M. Hillis (United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland);
 - Mr. Kadhim Khalaf (Iraq);
 - Mr. T. J. Natarajan (India);
 - Mr. Alexei F. Sokirkin (Union of Soviet Socialist Republics).
- 3. At its eleventh session the General Assembly [resolution 1076 (XI) of 21 December 1956] appointed the following persons as members of the Committee for a three-year term commencing on 1 January 1957:
 - Mr. André Ganem:
 - Mr. Kadhim Khalaf;
 - Mr. T. J. Natarajan.

- 4. Since the terms of office of Mr. Ganem, Mr. Khalaf and Mr. Natarajan are due to expire on 31 December 1959, it will be necessary for the General Assembly, at its fourteenth session in 1959, to appoint three persons to fill the resulting vacancies. The members so appointed will serve for a period of three years commencing on 1 January 1960.
- 5. At previous sessions, the Fifth Committee, after a secret ballot, has submitted to the General Assembly a draft resolution containing the names of the persons recommended for appointment. It is suggested that a similar procedure should be followed at the fourteenth session.

[7 August 1959]

- 1. At its thirteenth session, the General Assembly, by resolution 1271 (XIII) of 14 November 1958, appointed Mr. John E. Fobes (United States of America) as a member of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for a three-year term commencing on 1 January 1959.
- 2. In a letter dated 6 July 1959, addressed to the Secretary-General, Mr. John E. Fobes submitted his resignation from the membership of the Committee, effective 31 December 1959.
- 3. Thus, in addition to the three vacancies in the membership of the Committee to which it will be necessary for the General Assembly to appoint members for a three-year term to commence on 1 January 1960 (A/4123), there now exists a further vacancy for the unexpired term of office of Mr. Fobes, that is 1 January 1960 to 31 December 1961, to which it will also be necessary for the General Assembly to appoint a member.

Report of the Fifth Committee

- 1. At its 724th meeting held on 20 October 1959, the Fifth Committee considered two notes by the Secretary-General on vacancies in the membership of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions: the first (A/4123) concerning the regular vacancies which will occur on the expiration of the terms of office of three members on 31 December 1959; the second (A/4123/Add.1) concerning the vacancy resulting, with effect on 31 December 1959, from the resignation of one of the members of the Committee.
- 2. Members of the Fifth Committee had previously been invited to suggest names of persons who might be recommended to the General Assembly for appointment to the Advisory Committee in accordance with the provisions of rules 156 and 157 of the rules of procedure of the Assembly. At the same time the matter was considered by the Fifth Committee, four candidates had been proposed in respect of the three regular vacancies and one candidate in respect of the remaining vacancy.
- 3. The Committee voted by secret ballot to decide who should be recommended for appointment.

4. The result of the ballot relating to the vacancy arising from the resignation of a member of the Advisory Committee was as follows:

Number of ballot papers:	82
Invalid ballots:	1
Number of valid ballots:	81
Abstentions:	1
Number of members voting:	80
Required majority:	41
Number of votes obtained:
Mr. Albert F. Bender	75

Three other persons received a total of five votes.

- 5. Mr. Bender was declared recommended for appointment as a member of the Advisory Committee for a two-year term to commence on 1 January 1960.
- 6. The result of the ballot relating to the three regular vacancies was as follows:

Number of ballot papers:	82
Invalid ballots:	0
Abstentions:	0

Advisory Committee for a three-year term to commence on 1 January 1960.

Number of votes obtained:

Mr. Andre Ganem	04
Mr. Agha Shahi	59
Mr. Ismat T. Kittani	5 6
Mr. T. J. Natarajan	46

Two other persons received one vote each.

7. Mr. Ganem, Mr. Shahi and Mr. Kittani, having received the highest number of votes, were declared recommended for appointment as members of the

Recommendation of the Fifth Committee

8. Accordingly, the Fifth Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

(b) Committee on Contributions

DOCUMENTS A /4126 AND ADD.1

Note by the Secretary-General

Document A /4126

[Original text: English] [23 June 1959]

1. The rules of procedure of the General Assembly provide that:

"Rule 160

"The members of the Committee on Contributions, no two of whom shall be nationals of the same State, shall be selected on the basis of broad geographical representation, personal qualifications and experience, and shall serve for a period of three years corresponding to three financial years, as defined in the regulations for the financial administration of the United Nations. Members shall retire by rotation and shall be eligible for reappointment. The General Assembly shall appoint the members of the Committee on Contributions at the regular session immediately preceding the expiration of the term of office of the members, or, in case of vacancies, at the next session."

- 2. The present membership of the Committee is as follows:
 - Mr. Georgy P. Arkadev (Union of Soviet Socialist Republics);
 - Mr. Raymond T. Bowman (United States of America);
 - Mr. René Charron (France);
 - Mr. Fernando A. Galvão (Brazil);
 - Mr. A. H. M. Hillis (United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland);
 - Mr. F. Nouredin Kia (Iran);
 - Mr. Arthur S. Lall (India);
 - Mr. Jerzy Michalowski (Poland);
 - Mr. José Pareja (Peru);
 - Mr. Sidney Pollock (Canada).
- 3. At its eleventh session, the General Assembly (resolution 1077 (XI) of 21 December 1956) appointed the following persons as members of the Committee for a three-year term commencing on 1 January 1957:
 - Mr. Arthur H. Clough;
 - Mr. Fernando A. Galvão;
 - Mr. Sidney Pollock.

At its twelfth session, the General Assembly was informed of the resignation of Mr. Clough. The Assembly (resolution 1195 B (XII) of 13 December 1957) appointed Mr. A. H. M. Hillis for a two-year term commencing on 1 January 1958, to fill the unexpired term of office of Mr. Clough.

- 4. Since the terms of office of Mr. Galvão, Mr. Hillis and Mr. Pollock are due to expire on 31 December 1959, it will be necessary for the General Assembly, at its fourteenth session in 1959, to appoint three persons to fill the resulting vacancies. The members thus appointed will serve for a period of three years commencing on 1 January 1960.
- 5. At previous sessions, the Fifth Committee, after a secret ballot, has submitted to the General Assembly a draft resolution containing the names of the persons recommended for appointment. It is suggested that a similar procedure should be followed at the fourteenth session.

[Original text: English] [30 September 1959]

- 1. By resolution 1195A (XII) of 13 December 1957, the General Assembly appointed Mr. Arthur S. Lall (India) as a member of the Committee on Contributions for a three-year term commencing on 1 January 1958.
- 2. The Secretary-General has received a letter from Mr. Lall in which he has tendered his resignation from membership in the Committee.
- 3. Accordingly, in addition to the three vacancies in the membership of the Committee on Contributions to which it will be necessary for the General Assembly to appoint members for a three-year term to commence on 1 January 1960 (A/4126), there now exists a further vacancy for the unexpired term of office of Mr. Lall, that is to 31 December 1960, to which it will also be necessary for the General Assembly to appoint a member.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English] [27 October 1959]

- 1. At its 727th meeting held on 22 October 1959, the Fifth Committee considered two notes by the Secretary-General on vacancies in the membership of the Committee on Contributions: the first (A/4126) concerning the regular vacancies which will occur on the expiration of the term of office of three members on 31 December 1959; the second (A/4126/Add.1) concerning the vacancy resulting from the resignation of one of the members of the Committee.
- 2. Members of the Fifth Committee had previously been invited to suggest names of persons who might be recommended to the General Assembly for appointment to the Committee on Contributions in accordance with the provisions of rules 159 and 160 of the rules of procedure of the Assembly. At the time the matter was considered by the Fifth Committee, three candidates had been proposed in respect of the three regular vacancies and one candidate in respect of the remaining vacancy.
- 3. To decide who should be recommended for appointment, the Committee voted by secret ballot.
- 4. The result of the ballot relating to the vacancy arising from the resignation of a member of t' Committee on Contributions was as follows:

Number of ballot papers:	66
Invalid ballots:	0
Number of valid ballots:	66
Abstentions:	3
Number of members voting:	63
Required majority:	32
Number of votes obtained:
Mr. Chandra Shekhar Jha	63

- 5. Mr. Jha was declared recommended for appointment as a member of the Committee on Contributions for the unexpired term of office of the member who had resigned.
- 6. The result of the ballot relating to the three regular vacancies was as follows:

Number of ballot papers:	66
Invalid ballots:	0
Number of valid ballots:	66
Abstentions:	1
Number of members voting:	65
Required majority:	33
Number of votes obtained:
Mr. Sidney Pollock	63
Mr. José A. Correa	62
Mr. A. H. M. Hillis	61

One other person received one vote.

7. Mr. Pollock, Mr. Correa and Mr. Hillis, having received the required majority, were declared recommended for appointment as members of the Committee on Contributions for a three-year term to commence on 1 January 1960.

Recommendation of the Fifth Committee

8. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

[Text adopted by the General Assembly without change. See "Action taken by the General Assembly" below.]

(c) Board of Auditors

DOCUMENT A/4120

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [15 June 1959]

- 1. Resolution 74 (I), adopted by the General Assembly on 7 December 1946, provides:
 - "That in 1947, and every year thereafter, the General Assembly shall appoint an Auditor to take office from 1 July of the following year and to serve for a period of three years."
- 2. The present membership of the Board of Auditors is as follows:

The Auditor-General (or officer holding the equivalent title) of Colombia;

The Auditor-General (or officer holding the equivalent title) of the Netherlands;

The Auditor-General (or officer holding the equivalent title) of Norway.

3. The Auditor-General of Colombia was appointed to the Board by the General Assembly at its eleventh session (resolution 1093 (XI) of 27 February 1957) for

- a three-year term which expires on 30 June 1960. Thus the General Assembly will be required at its fourteenth session, in 1959, to fill the resulting vacancy by the appointment as a member of the Board of the Auditor-General (or officer holding the equivalent title) of a Member State. The Auditor thus appointed will serve for a period of three years commencing 1 July 1960.
- 4. The existing system of external audit involves the provision by members of the Board of Auditors of technical staff from their respective national audit services for the performance of the detailed audit of the accounts. Under the most recentallocation of work among the members of the Board, the Auditor-General of Colombia is to provide the staff for the audit of the accounts of the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Emergency Force and the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund. It is estimated that the audit of these accounts involves the assignment each year of a Chief Auditor for 130 working days, and two Senior Auditors for 210 working days each; and that, further, the Auditor-General himself will need to devote the equivalent of one month to United Nations business.

5. At previous sessions, a draft resolution including the name of a Member State whose Auditor-General (or officer holding the equivalent title) was recommended for appointment has been submitted by the Fifth Committee to the General Assembly. It is suggested that a similar procedure should be followed at the fourteenth session.

Note by the Secretariat

[Original text: English] [10 November 1959]

- 1. The General Assembly is required to appoint the Auditor-General (or officer holding the equivalent title) of a Member State to the Board of Auditors, to fill the vacancy which will occur on 1 July 1960 with the expiration of the term of office of the Auditor-General of Colombia (A/4120).
- 2. The Government of Colombia has informed the Secretary-General that the Auditor-General of Colombia is available for reappointment to the Board of Auditors.
- 3. There is set out in an annex to this note, the text of a note from the Pakistan Mission to the United Nations to the Secretary-General, which the Pakistan Mission has requested be circulated to Member States.

ANNEX

- NOTE, DATED 9 NOVEMBER 1959, FROM THE PAKISTAN MISSION TO THE UNITED NATIONS TO THE SECRETARY-GENERAL
- 1. The Pakistan Mission to the United Nations presents its compliments to the Secretary-General of the United Nations and has the honour to refer to its letter No. GA/116-59 dated 26 October 1959, transmitting the decision of the Government of Pakistan to offer the candidacy of the Auditor-General of Pakistan for appointment as a member of the United Nations

- Board of Auditors, against the vacancy arising from the expiry on 30 June 1960 of the term of appointment of the Auditor-General of Colombia.
- 2. The Government of Pakistan have always attached great importance to the Board of Auditors and have maintained that, because of the special responsibilities of the Board, the appointment of its members should be unanimous. It may be recalled that in 1957 the Government of Pakistan demonstrated their adherence to this principle when, notwithstanding support from a large number of Member States, they withdrew the candidacy of the Auditor-General of Pakistan in favour of the Auditor-General of Norway.
- 3. As the Government of Colombia has now made known its decision to renominate the Auditor-General of Colombia for appointment to the Board for another term, the Government of Pakistan have been obliged to reconsider their decision. Consistent with their approach to the question of unanimous election to the Board, and in view of the very cordial relations which exist between the two countries, the Government of Pakistan have decided, once again, to withdraw the candidacy of their Auditor-General in favour of the Auditor-General of Colombia.
- 4. At the same time, the Government of Pakistan maintain their continued interest in the Board of Auditors and will be glad to make the services of the Auditor-General of Pakistan available to the United Nations at the time when the next vacancy occurs in its membership.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English] [13 November 1959]

- 1. At its 743rd meeting, held on 12 November 1959, the Fifth Committee considered a note by the Secretary-General (A/4120) concerning the vacancy which will occur in the membership of the Board of Auditors at the expiration of the term of office of one of its members on 30 June 1960.
- 2. The Chairman had previously invited members of the Fifth Committee to make suggestions with respect to the Auditor-General (or officer holding equivalent title) who might be recommended to the General Assembly for appointment to membership in the Board of Auditors. At the time the matter was considered by the Committee, the Government of Colombia had informed the Secretary-General that the Auditor-General of Colombia would be available for reappointment to the Board of Auditors, should the General Assembly so desire.
- 3. For the purpose of deciding who should be recommended for appointment, the Committee proceeded to vote by secret ballot. The result of the ballot was as follows:

Number of ballot papers:	60
Invalid ballots:	0
Number of valid ballots:	60
Abstentions:	0
Number of members voting:	60
Required majority:	31
Number of votes obtained:

Number of votes obtained:

The Auditor-General of Colombia 57

4. The Auditor-General of one other Member State received three votes. The Auditor-General of Colombia, having obtained the required majority, was declared recommended for appointment.

Recommendation of the Fifth Committee

5. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

[Text adopted by the General Assembly without change. See "Action taken by the General Assembly" below.]

(g) Investments Committee: confirmation of the appointments made by the Secretary-General

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [7 August 1959]

- 1. Resolution 155 (II), which was adopted by the General Assembly on 15 November 1947, established an Investments Committee in accordance with the provision of section 25 of the Provisional Regulations for the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund and provided, inter alia, as follows:
 - "The normal term of office of a member of the Investments Committee shall be three years, and members shall be eligible for reappointment. At the regular session of the General Assembly each year, the Secretary-General shall submit the appointments which he has made after consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions."
- 2. The present membership of the Committee is as follows:

- Mr. Ivar Rooth (Sweden);
- Mr. Leslie R. Rounds (United States of America);
- Mr. Jacques Rueff (France).
- 3. Under the terms of resolution 1078 (XI), adopted by the General Assembly on 21 December 1956, the term of office of Mr. Rueff will expire on 31 December 1959.
- 4. The Secretary-General believes it important to retain the assistance and advice of Mr. Rueff in the Investments Committee. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions had concurred in this reappointment and Mr. Rueff is willing to continue to serve.
- 5. Thus, the Secretary-General submits to the General Assembly, for its confirmation, the reappointment of Mr. Jacques Rueff as a member of the Investments Committee for a three-year term to commence on 1 January 1960.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English] [27 October 1959]

- 1. At its 727th meeting, held on 22 October 1959, the Fifth Committee considered a note by the Secretary-General (A/4177) concerning the reappointment of Mr. Jacques Rueff (France) to fill the vacancy in the membership of the Investments Committee which will occur at the expiration of Mr. Rueff's present term of office on 31 December 1959.
- 2. The Fifth Committee was informed that the Secretary-General considered it important to retain the assistance and advice of Mr. Rueff in the Investments Committee. Mr. Rueff had indicated his willingness to continue to serve, and the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions had expressed its concurrence in his reappointment. The Fifth Committee decided, without objection, to recommend the confirmation by the General Assembly of the reappointment of Mr. Rueff, and a tribute was paid to the services he has rendered to the United Nations through his membership on the Investments Committee.

Recommendation of the Fifth Committee

3. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

[Text adopted by the General Assembly without change. See "Action taken by the General Assembly" below.]

(e) United Nations Administrative Tribunal

DOCUMENTS A/4127 AND ADD.1

Note by the Secretary-General

Document A/4127

- 1. Article 3 (paragraphs 1 and 2) of the Statute of the United Nations Administrative Tribunal (General Assembly resolution 351 A (IV)), provides that:
 - "1. The Tribunal shall be composed of seven members, no two of whom may be nationals of the same State. Only three shall sit in any particular case.
 - "2. The members shall be appointed by the General Assembly for three years, and they may be reap-

- pointed; provided, however, that of the members initially appointed, the terms of two members shall expire at the end of one year and the terms of two members shall expire at the end of two years. A member appointed to replace a member whose term of office has not expired shall hold office for the remainder of his predecessor's term."
- 2. The present composition of the Tribunal is as follows:

Mrs. Paul Bastid (France);

The Right Honourable Lord Crook (United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland);

Mr. Francisco A. Forteza (Uruguay);

Mr. Omar Loutfi (United Arab Republic);

Mr. Bror Arvid Sture Petrén (Sweden);

Mr. Harold Riegelman (United States of America);

Mr. R. Venkataraman (India).

3. At its eleventh session, the General Assembly (resolution 1079 (XI) of 21 December 1956) appointed the following persons as members of the Tribunal for a three-year term, commencing on 1 January 1957:

The Right Honourable Lord Crook; Mr. Jacob Mark Lashly.

- 4. At its thirteenth session, the General Assembly was informed of the resignation of Mr. Jacob Mark Lashly. The Assembly (resolution 1251 (XIII) of 30 October 1958) appointed Mr. Harold Riegelman for a term ending on 31 December 1959, to fill the unexpired term of office of Mr. Lashly.
- 5. Since the terms of office of The Right Honourable Lord Crook and Mr. Riegelman are due to expire on 31 December 1959, it will be necessary for the General Assembly, at its fourteenth session in 1959, to appoint two persons to fill the resulting vacancies. The persons so appointed will serve for a period of three years commencing on 1 January 1960.

6. At previous sessions, the Fifth Committee, after a secret ballot, has submitted to the General Assembly a draft resolution containing the names of the persons recommended for appointment to the Tribunal. It is suggested that a similar procedure should be followed at the fourteenth session.

[Original text: English] [5 November 1959]

- 1. In his note the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly of the vacancies which will occur in the membership of the Administrative Tribunal with the expiration, on 31 December 1959, of the terms of office of the Right Honourable Lord Crook and Mr. Harold Riegelman (A/4127).
- 2. By a letter dated 26 October 1959, the President of the Administrative Tribunal notified the Secretary-General of the resignation of Mr. Riegelman from the membership of the Administrative Tribunal, effective 1 October 1959.
- 3. Thus, in addition to the two regular vacancies referred to in paragraph 1 above, there exists a further vacancy for the unexpired portion of the term of office of Mr. Riegelman.

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English] [22 September 1959]

1. At its thirteenth session, the General Assembly, by resolution 1293 (XIII) of 5 December 1958, appointed the following persons as members and alternate members of the United Nations Staff Pension Committee for a three-year term to commence on 1 January 1959:

Members:

- Mr. A. H. M. Hillis (United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland);
- Mr. Rigoberto Torres Astorga (Chile);
- Mr. Albert S. Watson (United States of America);

Alternate members:

- Mr. Bahman Ahaneen (Iran);
- Mr. Johan Kaufmann (Netherlands);
- Mr. Arthur C. Liveran (Israel).

- 2. By a letter dated 10 September 1959, Mr. Watson submitted his resignation from the membership of the United Nations Staff Pension Committee. Thus, it will be necessary for the General Assembly at its fourteenth session to appoint a member to the Committee to fill the unexpired term of office of Mr. Watson.
- 3. At previous sessions, the Fifth Committee, after a secret ballot, has submitted to the General Assembly a draft resolution containing the name of the person recommended for appointment. It is suggested that a similar procedure be followed at the fourteenth session.

Report of the Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds

[Original text: English] [10 November 1959]

Document A /4267

- 1. The General Assembly, at its thirteenth session (resolution 1296 B (XIII) of 5 December 1958) decided to re-establish the Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds, and re-affirmed the terms of reference of the Committee as laid down in resolution 693 (VII) of 25 October 1952. Pursuant to this decision, the President of the Assembly appointed a Committee composed of the representatives of the following Member States: Argentina, Brazil, Canada, France, Lebanon, New Zealand, Pakistan, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America. The Committee elected Mr. Arnould of Canada as Chairman.
- 2. Under its terms of reference, the Negotiating Committee is to assist in obtaining pledges of voluntary contributions from Governments for the financing of programmes approved by the General Assembly for which funds are not available through the regular budget of the United Nations. These programmes are the programmes of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) and of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, and the United Nations Special Fund.
- 3. The main concern of the Committee for the last few years has been the two refugee programmes—those of UNRWA and of the High Commissioner for Refugees—which have experienced the greatest financial difficulties. In an effort to bring about an increase in the level of contributions, the General Assembly at its twelfth session initiated the procedure of convening an ad hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly where pledges of voluntary contributions for these two programmes would be announced. As this new pledging procedure had undoubtedly had the desired effect of broadening the interest in, and increasing the financial support of, the United Nations refugee programmes, the General Assembly decided (resolution 1296 A (XIII)) to repeat this procedure at its fourteenth session. In spite of the results achieved, the contributions pledged by Governments at the Pledging Conference held in 1958 were insufficient to meet the minimum needs of the two agencies for 1959. The General Assembly decided, therefore, to continue the mandate of the Negotiating Committee for another year, particularly to assist in the task of raising the additional funds required for these two programmes.

4. The Committee has continued its efforts on behalf of the agencies in various ways throughout the year. In the name of the Committee, the Chairman has from time to time addressed detailed letters to delegations for the information of their Governments on the financial situation of the agencies. The Chairman and members of the Committee have also this year through a series of visits to delegations and through personal approaches to representatives of Governments endeavoured to stimulate the interest in, and support for, the two refugee programmes. These personal contacts with delegations gave the Committee the opprtunity to discuss with them the financial difficulties of the refugee organizations and to seek their advice and assistance in the attempt to meet the target figures set for these programmes. The Committee would like to record its appreciation of the unfailing cordiality with which it was received by delegations, the interest shown by them in the particular problems with which the agencies were faced and their co-operation in bringing these problems to the attention of their Governments. If it should be decided to continue the work of the Committee in 1960, the Committee would plan to proceed with such visits, and it would hope that delegations would co-operate with it as they have in 1959.

5. A summary of the present financial situation of the voluntary programmes with which the Committee is concerned and of the Committee's activities during the past year, is given in the following paragraphs. An annex showing the contributions pledged and the total payments received as at 31 October 1959 in respect of these programmes is attached.

EXPANDED PROGRAMME OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND THE SPECIAL FUND

6. At the 1959 United Nations Pledging Conference on the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and the Special Fund held on 8 October 1959, seventytwo Governments pledged contributions to the two programmes for 1960. Since then, a number of new pledges and increases in contributions have been announced, and several Governments have indicated that pledges will be announced later. As payment of the full amount of some of the contributions pledged. including that of the United States of America of $40 million, is based on the assumption that the target figure of $100 million (as established under General Assembly resolution 1317 (XIII)) will be reached for the two programmes, it is not possible at present to determine the final amount of these contributions. On the basis of present pledges and taking into account the matching provisions, the total of contributions by 31 October 1959 represent approximately $29.4 million for the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and $32 million for the Special Fund. As additional contributions are still expected for both programmes, the final totals for 1960 will undoubtedly be substantially higher.

7. For the year 1959, contributions totalling $29.8 million have been pledged by eighty-three Governments to the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, while the contributions pledged by sixty-seven Governments to the United Nations Special Fund total approximately $25.8 million.

UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND

8. As in former years, the Negotiating Committee has worked in close contact with UNICEF and has been regularly informed of the status of contributions to the Children's Fund. In consultation with the Executive Director of UNICEF, the Chairman of the Negotiating Committee has addressed appeals for contributions to a number of Governments which had not contributed in the past or had not done so for some years, in order to enlist their financial support of the programme. So far, one Government to which the appeal had been directed has found it possible to announce a contribution to UNICEF which continues to follow up with the others.

9. On 31 October 1959, approximately $18.4 million had been contributed or pledged by seventy-nine Governments. It is expected that the total number of donor Governments will this year be approximately the same as in 1958, when eighty-seven contributed, and that the total of Government contributions will amount to approximately $19 million compared with $20 million in 1958. On the basis of present information, it is likely that the $11 million pledged by the United States Government cannot be drawn in full and that as much as $1.5 million may be forfeited for lack of matching funds. Taking into account revenue from other sources, it is estimated that the total of the Children's Fund for 1959 will be only $22.5 million, compared with $23 million in 1958.

10. This will be the first time since 1952 that UNICEF's income from all sources has been lower than in the preceding year. However, it is hoped that the upward trend will be resumed in 1960. It is believed that a number of Governments, which did not increase their support in the current year, will do so during 1960. Substantial increases in contributions will, however, be required if a further loss from the United States contribution due to lack of matching funds is to be avoided; the United States had pledged $12 million, an increase of $1 million, and, to draw that sum in full, $13 million will be needed in contributions by other Governments as compared with the total of $9.5 million contributed this year.

UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND WORKS AGENCY FOR PALESTINE REFUGEES

11. The General Assembly at its thirteenth session (resolution 1315 (XIII) of 12 December 1958) drew the attention of Governments to the precarious financial position of UNRWA and urged them to consider to what extent they could contribute or increase their contributions in order that the Agency might carry out relief and rehabilitation programmes for the welfare of refugees.

12. The budget estimates for the relief and rehabilitation programmes of the Agency for 1959 amounted, in all, to $37.6 million, including $4.2 million for selfsupport projects and other activities. In addition, the Agency had requested $6.5 million to bring its working capital to a safer level. As at 31 October 1959, Governments had pledged contributions totalling $21 million for the financing of the relief and rehabilitation programmes of UNRWA for the current year. If, however the regular contributors to the programmes which have not yet announced their contributions for the second half of 1959 will contribute at the same level as in previous years, it is estimated that UNRWA will be able to reach the target figure for the two minimum budgets, representing relief and first priority rehabilitation.

13. As UNRWA's mandate does not at present run beyond 30 June 1960 and the future of the Agency will be considered and decided at the fourteenth session of the General Assembly, the Director of UNRWA has submitted to the General Assembly a budget for the first six months of 1960 only (A/4123, annex G). He has, however, included a plan of expenditure for the whole year. The Negotiating Committee has communicated to Governments a summary of the budget estimates prepared by the Director showing requirements of $19.4 million for the first half of 1960 and $38.7 million for the whole year should the Agency be continued. These estimates provide principally for continuation of basic relief and education services at existing standards, together with a modest expansion in the Agency's education and vocational training programmes and certain essential improvements in camps.

PROGRAMMES OF THE UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES

14. At its thirteenth session, the General Assembly adopted resolution 1284 (XIII) in which it inter alia, appealed to Governments of States Members of the United Nations and members of the specialized agencies to support the High Commissioner's programme, either through financial contributions or through offers of resettlement or both.

- 15. The High Commissioner, in appealing for funds in 1959, had been authorized by the UNREF Executive Committee to draw attention either to the programme estimated at $4.7 million or to the one estimated at $6 million, as considered by the Committee. The amount of $4.7 million was recommended on the assumption that $3.7 million might be financed from governmental contributions and the remaining $1 million met from private sources. It was recognized that, if resources to a level of approximately $6 million could be made available to the High Commissioner in 1959, it would be possible to meet additional pressing needs of refugees in particular to intensify the camp clearance programme and to provide permanent solutions for a larger number of non-settled refugees living outside camps.
- 16. By 31 October 1959, the High Commissioner had received in governmental pledges, promises and payments a total of $3,818,481 in respect of his 1959 programme, including contributions totalling $762,058 stated by their donors to be for the World Refugee Year
- 17. At its first special session, held between 15 and 19 June 1959, the Executive Committee of the High Commissioners's Programme discussed budgetary requirements for 1960 and adopted a financial target of $12 million, including $4.7 million in regular allocations and $7.3 million in special World Refugee Year allocations. A detailed break-down of this allocation is given in the report of the Executive Committee (A/4104/Rev.1, appendix II, para. 51).

WORLD REFUGEE YEAR

- 18. The General Assembly at its thirteenth session endorsed the proposal for a World Refugee Year to begin in June 1959 (resolution 1285 (XIII)). The aims of the World Refugee Year, in terms of the resolution, are inter alia: (a) to focus interest on the refugee problems, to encourage additional financial contributions from Governments, voluntary agencies and the general public, and (b) to encourage additional opportunities for permanent refugee solutions.
- 19. The Negotiating Committee has followed with interest the response of Governments to this worldwide effort to help resolve the refugee problems. As the World Refugee Year has only been in operation for about fou. months, it is too early to forecast the final results, but already many Governments have announced definite additional support to refugees and, at the end of October 1959 more than sixty Governments had indicated their intention to participate in one way or another in promoting the aims of the World Refugee Year. This special endeavour for refugees has undoubtedly facilitated the work of the Negotiating Committee this year by stimulating interest in the problems of refugees and by encouraging financial support of the agencies dealing with these problems. The Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the World Refugee Year, has, at meetings of the Negotiating Committee, reported personally on the year's progress and has kept the Committee constantly informed of developments. The Committee would wish to pay tribute to the Secretary-General and to his personal representative for the results so far achieved and to record its appreciation of their close co-operation with the Committee.

20. The Committee would also wish to refer to the statement made by the President of the General Assembly (824th meeting) in which he pointed out that, however encouraging the beginning of the World Refugee Year might be, its success was by no means assured. Its ultimate success, as stated by the President, still depends on the concrete response that has yet to be made known by the Governments that have been called upon to participate.

Ad hoc COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE ASSEMBLY

- 21. At its thirteenth session, the General Assembly decided (resolution 1296 A (XIII)) that an ad hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly, under the chairmanship of the President of the session should be convened as soon as practicable after the opening of the fourteenth session, where pledges of voluntary contributions for the two refugee programmes for the following year would be announced. The General Assembly further decided that, in order to ensure maximum attendance, as great advance publicity as possible should be given to the meetings of the ad hoc Committee and they should be so scheduled that no other meetings were held at the same time.
- 22. The Secretary-General in his communication of 14 July 1959 called the attention of Governments to resolution 1296 A (XIII) and urged them to give particular and immediate consideration to the question of their contributions so that at the meeting of the ad hoc Committee they would be able to announce their financial support of the two refugee programmes.
- 23. The Negotiating Committee, referring to the fact that consideration of the annual report of the Director of UNRWA (A/4213) and of the Secretary-General's proposals for the continuation of United Nations assistance to Palestine refugees (A/4121) beyong 30 June 1960 have been placed on the agenda of the Special Political Committee, has informed Governments by letter of 7 October 1959 that it considers it desirable that the item be considered and the future of the Agency decided before the pledging conference for the refugee programmes takes place. No definite date has, therefore, yet been set for the conference, but it is expected that it will be late in November.
- 24. In his statement on the World Refugee Year, referred to in paragraph 20 of the present report, the President of the General Assembly has also drawn attention to the forthcoming meetings of the ad hoc Committee, and has urged all Members of the Assembly if they had not already done so, to give the most careful consideration to the contributions they will make and announce at the pledging conference for the refugee programmes.
- 25. The Negotiating Committee will issue as an addendum to the present report a review of the outcome of the conference. It is hoped that on the occasion of World Refugee Year many Governments will find it possible to contribute significantly to the refugee programmes and that sufficient funds will be made available for the solution of many problems of refugees and for the relief of distress of others. As the Committee was re-established for another year, particularly to assist in raising funds for the two refugee agencies, the General Assembly may wish to decide in the light of the results of the conference, the need for extending the mandate of the Committee, which expires at the close of the fourteenth session of the General Assembly.

26. The Committee would like to record its gratitude to the many delegations that have responded to its appeals for financial support of the agencies with which it is concerned and also to the directors and staff of the various agencies involved, which, in addition to their own fund-raising efforts, have so fully co-operated with the Committee.

[Original text: English] [29 February 1960]

- 1. The Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds in its report to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session (A/4267) indicated that it would issue as an addendum to the report a review of the results of the meetings of the adhoc Committee of the Whole Assembly to be held during the fourteenth session for the announcement of contributions to UNRWA and to the programmes of the UNHCR. In the light of these results, the Committee would make its recommendations on the continuation of the procedure of a special pledging conference for the two refugee programmes as well as on the extension of the mandate of the Committee itself.
- 2. On account of the late date at which the Pledging Conference was held it was not possible for the Negotiating Committee to issue the addendum to the report in time for the General Assembly to consider it at its fourteenth session. Instead, the Chairman of the Negotiating Committee presented to the Fifth Committee (757th meeting) a supplementary oral report on the Committee's recommendations for future action and these recommendations were endorsed by the General Assembly in resolution 1440 (XIV).
- 3. In order to complete the record, the Negotiating Committee has decided to issue the annexed statement of the financial contributions announced by Governments at the meetings of the ad hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly held on 10 December 1959. The statement lists the contributions pledged to UNRWA and to the programmes of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees as well as the special contributions announced for the World Refugee Year. A summary of the results is given in the following paragraphs.

United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East

4. According to the budget estimates submitted by the Director of UNRWA to the General Assembly (A/4213, annex G), approximately $38.7 million would be required for the 1960 programmes of the Agency. Of this, nearly $34 million would be needed for the normal programmes of relief and general education, while the balance would be used for expansion of the self-support programme, mainly through increased vocational training and improvements in the general educational system-such as the provision of more university scholarships-and through a programme of individual grants and loans to help to finance small-scale agriculture and commercial enterprises. At the Pledging Conference contributions totalling $29.9 million were announced by thirty Governments to UNRWA. Of that amount, approximately $18.3 million were for the 1960 programmes while the balance was for the last half of 1959. If it is assumed that Governments which have not yet pledged for the year 1960 or for the second half of 1960 will, in due course do so at their usual rates, it is reasonable to foresee possible total receipts for 1960 of approximately $33 to $34 million; in other words, financing for the normal programmes of relief and education would practically be assured, but no funds would be available for an expansion of the self-support programmes. The Director of UNRWA has indicated his intention of using contributions received through the World Refugee Year for this latter programme and has expressed the hope that they will be generous.

Programmes of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees

5. The financial target approved for the budgetary requirements of the programmes of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees for 1960 by the Executive Committee for the High Commissioner's Programme is $12 million, including $4.7 million in regular allocations and $7.3 million in special World Refugee Year allocations. The programmes are the Far Eastern programme, the programme for camp clearance, the fund for special hardship cases, the programme for non-settled refugees living outside camps, particularly those in the handicapped category. the programme for new refugees in Greece, the emergency account for individual cases and the programme for legal assistance (A/4104/Rev.1, appendix II, para. 51). At the Pledging Conference, contributions totalling $5 million were pledged by twenty-nine Governments to the High Commissioner's programmes. Of that sum, $3,368,979 was for 1960, including $529,251 special World Refugee Year contributions, towards the regular programmes. In addition, contributions totalling $472 667 were announced for the programme for refugees from Algeria and $27,315 to UNHCR for Chinese refugees in Hong Kong.

World Refugee Year

- 6. At the Pledging Conference for the two refugee programmes, Governments were invited to announce not only the financial contributions which they would make to one or both of the United Nations refugee programmes, but also to describe more generally the various ways in which their countries-the Governments, voluntary organizations and/or private persons-were participating in the World Refugee Year in response to the General Assembly's resolution 1285 (XIII). At the Conference, a total of nearly $7 million was pledged by Governments as additional contributions on the occasion of World Refugee Year. Targets for fund-raising announced by various national committees and/or non-governmental organizations totalled several times this figure. The formation of national committee, composed often of representatives of nongovernmental organizations and private persons for the purpose, inter alia of raising funds from the general public and to which Governments have often contributed is a typical method of participation in the World Refugee Year. 1/In most cases, the final decision as to how the various funds raised will be allocated has not yet been made but it is fair to assume that a significant portion will eventually be used for the benefit of the refugees under one or the other of the two United Nations programmes.
- 7. The Committee would also wish to refer to the statement made by the Secretary-General at the Pledging Conference in which he pointed out that "... if the various undertakings in progress or being considered are actually fulfilled, many refugees will find their problems solved and others will have been very greatly helped. Secondly, there are no grounds for complacency: if the World Refugee Year is really to be remembered as a helpful endeavour, it must be seen as a first, and not a last, effort pointing to a more effective and humane approach to refugee problems everywhere".
- 1/ For the complete record of the participation of Governments in the World Refugee Year, targets set by national committees etc., see Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourteenth Session, ad Hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly, first and second meetings.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English] [4 December 1959]

- 1. At its 757th meeting held on 3 December 1959, the Fifth Committee considered the report of the Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds (A/4267). In addition to the report, the Fifth Committee had before it a draft resolution (A/C.5/L.597 and Add.1) submitted by Argentina, Canada, Lebanon, New Zealand and Pakistan.
- 2. The Chairman of the Negotiating Committee, Mr. Arnould (Canada) introduced the Committee's report. Referring to the procedure of holding meetings of an ad hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly for the announcement of contributions to the two refugee programmes, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) and the Programme of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), the Chairman explained that it had this year been necessary to adopt a procedure different from that followed in previous years. As the future of UNRWA was being reviewed by the General Assembly, the Negotiating Committee was of the opinion that it would not be desirable to hold the Pledging Conference for UNRWA until the Agency's future had been decided. It had considered the possibility of separate sessions for the two refugee programmes, but had decided in favour of a joint conference at which Governments would also report on their countries' efforts for the World Refugee Year. This would emphasize the importance of the Conference and mark the occasion of the World Refugee Year. He had now been informed that the date of the Conference had been tentatively fixed for 9 December 1959 pro-
- vided that the item concerning UNRWA had been completed by that time.
- 3. Owing to the late date of the Conference, it would not be possible for the Negotiating Committee to submit to the fourteenth session a supplementary written report analysing the results of the Conference and making its recommendations on the continuation of the procedure of a special pledging conference for the two refugee programmes, as well as on the extension of the mandate of the Committee itself. The Negotiating Committee had, therefore, authorized him to present an oral supplementary report.
- 4. As regards the meetings of the ad hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly, the Negotiating Committee, on the basis of the results of such meetings held in previous years, considered that this procedure had proved its usefulness, and would recommend its continuation. The Negotiating Committee had wished to reiterate the rules for the Conference set out in paragraph 21 of its report, namely: (1) that the meetings should be held as early as practicable in the session; (2) in order to assure maximum attendance as great advance publicity as possible should be given to them, and (3) they should be so scheduled that no other meetings were held at the same time, and it hoped that these rules would be reaffirmed by the General Assembly.
- 5. Concerning the continuation of the mandate of the Negotiating Committee, which expires at the close of the fourteenth session, the representatives of UNRWA, UNHCR and of UNICEF had expressed the hope that the services of the Committee would continue to be available to them next year. The Committee itself was of the opinion that it had a useful function to perform and taking into account the wishes of the agencies with which it was concerned, decided to recommend that the Negotiating Committee should be re-established for another year. If this recommendation were endorsed by the General Assembly, it would be the intention of the Committee to continue its series of visits to the permanent delegations. The Chairman of the Negotiating Committee stressed, however, that the continuance of the Committee would not in itself discharge the General Assembly from its responsibility for ensuring the financial support for the agencies created by the Assembly to meet a recognized need.

6. The representative of Pakistan, in introducing the joint draft resolution stated that it recommended the continuation of the procedure of convening an ad hoc Committee of the Whole Assembly for the two refugee programmes, and that these meetings be held as early as possible after the opening of the General Assembly when many Ministers for Foreign Affairs were still in New York, which would ensure attendance at the meetings at the highest level. The draft resolution also recommended that the Negotiating Committee be reestablished for another year.

- 7. The question of UNRWA was still before the General Assembly, but from the discussion so far it was evident that assistance to the refugees in some form or another would be continued, a majority of the delegations having requested that the UNRWA mandate be continued.
- 8. The result of the voting on the draft resolution, a separate vote on the phrase "but members of one or more of the specialized agencies" in operative paragraph 2 of part A having been requested by the representatives of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, was as follows: The phrase "but members of one or more of the specialized agencies" in operative paragraph 2 of part A was adopted by 44 votes to 8, with 4 abstentions. The draft resolution as a whole was adopted by 48 votes to none, with 8 abstentions.

Recommendations of the Fifth Committee

9. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions:

[Text adopted by the General Assembly without change. See "Action taken by the General Assembly" below.]

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 846th plenary meeting on 5 December 1959, the General Assembly adopted draft resolutions A and B submitted by the Fifth Committee (A/4334, para. 9). For the final texts, see resolutions 1440 A (XIV) and 1440 B (XIV) below.

At the same meeting the President of the General Assembly appointed a Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds to serve until the close of the fifteenth session of the Assembly. The Committee is composed as follows: Argentina, Brazil, Canada, France, Lebanon, New Zealand, Pakistan, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and United States of America.

Resolutions adopted by the General Assembly

1440 (XIV). REPORT OF THE NEGOTIATING COM-MITTEE FOR EXTRA-BUDGETARY FUNDS

A

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds (A/4267) appointed at the thirteenth session of the General Assembly,

Decides that:

- 1. An ad hoc Committee of the whole Assembly, under the chairmanship of the President of the session, shall be convened as soon as practicable after the opening of the fifteenth session, where pledges of voluntary contributions for the refugee programmes for the following year would be announced;
- 2. States not Members of the United Nations, but members of one or more of the specialized agencies, shall be invited to attend the meetings of the ad hoc Committee for the purpose of announcing their pledges to the refugee programmes;

3. In order to ensure maximum attendance, as great advance publicity as possible shall be given to the meetings of the ad hoc Committee and they shall be so scheduled that no other meetings are held at the same time.

846th plenary meeting, 5 December 1959.

В

The General Assembly,

- 1. Requests the President of the General Assembly to appoint a Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds consisting of not more than ten members, with the same terms of reference as those laid down in Assembly resolution 693 (VII) of 25 October 1952, to serve from the close of the fourteenth session to the close of the fifteenth session of the Assembly;
- 2. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifteenth session the item entitled "Report of the Negotiating Committee for Extra-Budgetary Funds".

846th plenary meeting, 5 December 1959.

Collection of contributions as at 14 September 1959: report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[16 September 1959]

- 1. In compliance with Financial Regulation 5.7, and e request made at the 672nd meeting of the Fifth mmittee at the thirteenth session of the General sembly, a statement on the collection of contribuns to the United Nations budget and assessments the United Nations Emergency Force Special count, containing the following tables, is annexed:
- I. Collection of contributions to the United Nations budget for 1959 (including the adjustments of advances to the Working Capital Fund);
- Collection of arrear contributions for the years 1956, 1957 and 1958;
- Collection of assessments to the United Nations Emergency Force Special Fund Account for 1959;

IV. Collections of assessments to the United Nations Emergency Force Special Account for 1957 and 1958.

Each of these tables shows: (a) the amounts payable by Member States as of 1 January 1959; (b) the amounts collected during the periods: January-March, April-June, July-14 September 1959; (c) the balances outstanding on 14 September 1959, and (d) the comparable totals for 1958.

2. As at 14 September 1959, the contributions payable by Member States for the years prior to 1957 have been paid in full, and for 1957 the amounts outstanding represent in all cases less than the total contributions due for that year. At the present time therefore, no Member State is in arrears in the payment of its financial obligations to the Organization to the extent that Article 19 of the Charter would apply.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English]
[12 November 1959]

- 1. The Fifth Committee, at its 710th meeting held in 28 September 1959, and at its 717th meeting held in 9 October 1959, considered the item entitled "Scale of assessments for the apportionment of the expenses of the United Nations: report of the Committee on Contributions". The Fifth Committee had before it he report of the Committee on Contributions A/4112) and a report of the Secretary-General A/C.5/778) on the collection of contributions as at 4 September 1959.
- 2. The Chairman of the Committee on Contribuions, in introducing the Committee's report, paid a ribute to Mr. Arthur S. Lall, who had been Chairman of the Committee for six years. He drew attention to he two main questions dealt with in the Committee's eport:
- (a) The assessment of the new Member State, the Republic of Guinea;
- (b) Consideration, under General Assembly resolution 1308 B (XIII) of 10 December 1958, of the possibility of making available to Member States the tatistical and other information at the Committee's lisposal.

Assessment of the Republic of Guinea

- 3. The Chairman explained that the Committee on Contributions had taken into account the excepionally difficult situation of the new Member State and had recommended that its assessment should be he minimum of 0.04 per cent. The existing United Vations scale of assessments was approved by the General Assembly (resolution 1308 A (XIII)) for the hree years 1959, 1960 and 1961 and, rather than revise he three-year scale, the Committee had recommended hat the assessment of Guinea should be additional to he existing scale of 100 per cent. Should the Commitee have to consider the assessment of other new Members before the next review of the scale to be indertaken in 1961, the inclusion in the scale of the issessment for Guinea could be re-examined. In the ight of the General Assembly's decisions in respect of the Member States admitted in 1955, 1956 and 1957, he Committee had recommended that Guinea should contribute for 1958—the year of its admission to nembership—one-ninth of the assessment for the full
- 4. The representative of Guinea, referring to the conomic difficulties of his country as a newly independent State, asked that it be exempted from any contribution to the United Nations. His request was supported by the Ethiopian delegation. After an explanation by the Chairman of the Committee on Contributions that the General Assembly had established a minimum assessment of 0.04 per cent for all Member States, and that the Committee had no authority to exceed it, the representative of Guinea accepted the Committee's recommendations for its assessment.
- 5. The Fifth Committee approved unanimously the issessments recommended for the Republic of Guinea.

- AVAILABILITY OF THE DATA AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE COMMITTEE ON CONTRIBUTIONS
- 6. The Chairman of the Committee on Contributions explained that under General Assembly resolution 1308 B (XIII) the Committee had considered the possibility of making available to Member States, on their request, the statistical and other information at its disposal. As the statistics on estimates of national income were not strictly comparable for all Member States, the Committee had to take into account the varying quality of the available data and, before arriving at its final assessments, to make, in the case of each country, a detailed study of all relevant statistical and other economic data at its disposal. The conversion of the national income estimates into a common currency unit also presented various difficulties affecting the comparability of the data. The material was complex and drawn from many sources, and since a full report of the Committee's deliberations could not be given, publication of the basic material might be misleading and entail discussion of intricate and controversial issues which could not readily be resolved in a committee of more than eighty members. For that reason, the General Assembly had appointed the Committee on Contributions, a small group of experts. The Committee had, however, proposed (A/4112, para. 23) that Member States which so desired should be given access to the background documentation on the basis of which their own assessments had been established.
- 7. At the 717th meeting of the Fifth Committee, the following draft resolution (A/C.5/L.568) was submitted jointly by Ecuador and Venezuela:
 - "The General Assembly.
 - "Considering the wish expressed by certain Member States that their representatives should have access to the statistical and other information at the disposal of the Committee on Contributions,
 - "Having examined the report of the Committee on Contributions in this connexion (A/4112, section IV),
 - "Considering that while in principle the material at the disposal of the Committee on Contributions should be available to all Member States, there are practical difficulties, as pointed out by the Committee, in the way of general disclosure of the information in question,
 - "1. Notes with approval the suggestion by the Committee on Contributions that all the statistical and other factual information pertaining to the assessment of any individual Member State should, on its request, be made available to that Member; and
 - "2. Recommends that the Committee on Contributions review this matter periodically, so that, as far as the Committee deems it feasible, any future requests for information from representatives of Member States wishing to acquaint themselves with other statistical information and supplementary material used by the Committee as a basis for its recommendations may be granted."

- 8. In introducing the draft resolution, the representative of Ecuador recalled the reasons which, in 1958, had prompted certain delegations to request that consideration be given to the possibility of making an arrangement whereby Member States might, on their request, acquaint themselves with the material on which the Committee on Contributions based the scale of assessments. The proposed arrangement for making available to Member States the information on which their own assessments had been based constituted a step forward. Under that arrangement, however, a Member State whose assessment had been increased would not be able to compare its own assessment with that of another country whose economic situation might be similar. The Committee had advanced cogent arguments for not making available to all Member States the whole of the material at its disposal, drawing attention in particular to the practical difficulties involved and to the fact that the Committee had been granted discretionary power in the evaluation of any of the relevant factors. Account had been taken in the draft resolution of all those points.
- 9. A number of delegations expressed support for the draft resolution as representing a reasonable compromise that met the requirements of certain delegations and paid due regard to the observations of the Committee on Contributions. Other delegations stressed that the establishment of the scale was a complex matter involving not only statistical material but also factors of judgement. Without reference to those factors, the material at the disposal of the Committee might be misleading, and, as the Committee on Contributions had pointed out, there would be no practicable method of acquainting Member States with all the considerations that guided it in the preparation of the scale. Furthermore, as the material was voluminous, it might prove difficult for Member States to undertake a sufficiently detailed study of the data, and they might reach conclusions based on inadequate information. The complexity of the task was one of the main reasons why it had been entrusted to the Committee on Contributions, a small group of experts whose competence and impartiality had always been recognized. There was the further consideration that, were access to all the material to be authorized, Member States might be reluctant to continue supplying confidential information to the Committee on Contributions. That would have an adverse effect on the work of the Committee and, in the last analysis, on the scale of assessments. For those reasons, many delegations favoured the existing system, which had worked satisfactorily for many years.
- 10. Some delegations, while not opposed to the draft resolution, had certain reservations with regard to the wording of the third preambular paragraph and the second operative paragraph. They were not convinced that it would be desirable to adopt the principle that the material at the Committee's disposal should be made available to all Member States. The phrase in operative paragraph 2 "as far as the Committee deems

- it feasible" might also be open to differing interpretations. In reply to questions raised, the Chairman of the Committee on Contributions pointed out that if the principle laid down in the third preambular paragraph was adopted, Member States might insist on the principle and assume that it was for the Committee or Contributions to solve the practical difficulties.
- 11. In the course of the discussion, several ora amendments were proposed and drafting suggestions made in connexion with the third preambular paragraph and operative paragraph 2 of the draft resolution. The representative of Ecuador agreed, on behalf of the sponsors, to the following revised text of the two paragraphs:

Third preambular paragraph

"Considering that while it would be desirable i the material at the disposal of the Committee or Contributions could be made available to all Mem ber States, there are practical difficulties, as pointed out by the Committee, in the way of general dis closure of the information in question."

Operative paragraph 2

- "Recommends that the Committee on Contributions review this matter periodically so that, at the discretion of that Committee, any future requests for pertinent information from representatives o Member States wishing to acquaint themselves with other statistical information and supplementary factual material used by the Committee as a basis for its recommendations may be granted."
- 12. The representative of the United Arab Republic suggested the addition of the phrase "subject to the consent of the countries concerned" after the words "at the discretion of that Committee" in operative paragraph 2. The amendment was considered unneces sary by the representative of Ecuador, since it must be assumed that the Committee on Contributions would consult with Member States before releasing confidential information supplied by them in connexion with their assessments.

DECISION OF THE COMMITTEE

13. At the request of the representative of India the third preambular paragraph and operative paragraph 2 of the draft resolution were voted on separately. The third preambular paragraph, as amended was adopted by 42 votes to 16, with 8 abstentions Operative paragraph 2, as amended, was adopted by 41 votes to 14, with 10 abstentions. The draft resolution as a whole, as amended, was adopted by 44 votes to one, with 20 abstentions.

Recommendation of the Fifth Committee

14. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions:

[Text adopted by the General Assembly without change See "Action by the General Assembly" below.]

ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

At its 838th plenary meeting, on 17 November 1959, the General Assembly adopted the draft resolutions submitted by the Fifth Committee (A/4270, para. 14). For the final texts, see resolutions 1373 A (XIV) and 1373 B (XIV).

Resolutions adopted by the General Assembly

1373 (XIV). Scale of assessment for the apportionment of the expenses of the United Nations

Α

The General Assembly Resolves that:

- 1. For the years 1959, 1960 and 1961 the assessment or Guinea shall be 0.04 per cent, which shall be in addition to the scale of assessments of 100 per cent contained in paragraph 1 of General Assembly resoution 1308 A (XIII) of 10 December 1958, and shall be applied to the same bases of assessment as for all other Member States;
- 2. Guinea, which became a Member of the United Nations on 12 December 1958, shall contribute for the year of admission to membership an amount equal to one-ninth of 0.04 per cent applied to the net budget or 1958;
- 3. The advance to the Working Capital Fund by Guinea, under regulation 5.8 of the Financial Reguations of the United Nations, shall be 0.04 per cent of the total amount of the Fund and shall be carried as an advance additional to the authorized level of the Fund pending the inclusion of the rate of assessment or Guinea in the scale of 100 per cent.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November, 1959.

В

The General Assembly,

Considering the wish expressed by certain Member States that their representatives should have access to the statistical and other information at the disposal of the Committee on Contributions,

Having examined the report of the Committee on Contributions in this connexion (A/4112, part IV),

Considering that, while it would be desirable if the material at the disposal of the Committee on Contributions could be made available to all Member States, there are practical difficulties, as pointed out by the Committee, in the way of general disclosure of the information in question,

- 1. Notes with approval the suggestion of the Committee on Contributions that all the statistical and other factual information pertaining to the assessment of any individual Member State should, on its request, be made available to that Member;
- 2. Recommends that the Committee on Contributions review this matter periodically, so that, at the discretion of that Committee, any future requests for pertinent information from representatives of Member States wishing to acquaint themselves with other statistical information and supplementary factual material used by the Committee as a basis for its recommendations may be granted.

838th plenary meeting, 17 November 1959.

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[2 October 1959]

- 1. In accordance with paragraph 7 of General Assembly resolution 519 A (VI) of 12 January 1952, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a note by the Secretary-General (A/4163) submitting the audit reports for the year ended 31 December 1958 relating to expenditure by specialized agencies of technical assistance funds allocated from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance.
- 2. The total of allocations (and other credits) made during the year under review from the Special Account to organizations participating in the Expanded Programme amounted to $33,914,242. In addition, an amount of $2,091,100 was available to the United Nations from the Organization's regular budget, bringing the total funds available to all the participating organizations to $36,005,342. Obligations were incurred during the year to a total of $33,960,894, excluding costs charged to funds provided by recipient Governments for local costs. The excess of available funds over obligations incurred thus amounted to $2,044,448 which, together with savings and miscellaneous income of $794,426, results in a total balance as at 31 December 1958 of $2,838,874.

3. The following table shows the proportion which administrative and operational services costs have borne to total obligations (excluding obligations against local costs assessments) incurred during the year 1958 by the several participating organizations:

b/ Including amounts in respect of the International Telecommunication Union and the World Meteorological Organization. Figures also include obligations incurred against funds made available from the United Nations regular budget.

- 4. It should be noted that the percentages shown above, which relate (except in the case of the United Nations) solely to expenditures charged to allocations from the Special Account, are not entirely meaningful as indices of the administrative overhead of technical assistance activities. This is because the facilities provided to the programme from the regular budgets vary from organization to organization. In addition, in the context of a growing integration of the regular and expanded programmes, which is a prerequisite for their effectiveness, the identification of the extra costs attributable to the Expanded Programme not only appears somewhat illogical but, in practice, is becoming increasingly difficult, artificial and time-consuming.
- 5. Having regard to these circumstances, and on the basis of recommendations made by the Advisory Committee (A/3832 and A/4130), the Economic and Social Council, at its twenty-sixth and twenty-eighth sessions, has taken the following decisions (resolutions 702 (XXVI) of 31 July 1958 and 737 (XXVIII) of 30 July 1959):
- (a) All participating organizations should consolidate in their regular budgets all administrative and operational services costs of their Expanded Programme activities, and should arrange for a consolidated review of the total budget by their respective legislative organs;
- (b) Allocations from the Special Account towards the administrative and operational services costs of the organizations would be made in lump-sum amounts (which would be treated by the organizations as income in aid of the regular budget);
- (c) For 1959, the lump-sum allocations would be in amounts not exceeding the corresponding allocations for 1958; 1/
- (d) The lump-sum allocations for subsequent years would be as follows: $1/\sqrt{}$
- (i) For 1960, in amounts not exceeding the corresponding 1959 allocations;
- (ii) For 1961, in amounts which shall be half-way between the 1960 allocations and the equivalent of 12 per cent of 1959 project allocations including local cost assessments;
- (iii) For 1962, in amounts equivalent to 12 per cent of the 1959 project allocations including local cost assessments.
- 6. One of the consequences of these measures is to bring the totality of the administrative overhead of an organization in respect of all of its programmes (including the Expanded Programme) under effective legislative review, in one piece, by the appropriate bodies of the organization. Incidentally, also since the administrative and operational services costs of Expanded Programme activities will no longer be separately identified, an analysis of the kind reflected in the table under paragraph 3 above will become inappropriate. Significance will attach rather to an analysis of the total administrative arrangements and - overhead of each organization in support of all its operational activities. This kind of analysis will doubtless be undertaken by the budgetary bodies of the participating organization and will also be covered in the annual report of the Advisory Committee on the administrative budgets of the specialized agencies.

- 7. Reference is made in the audit reports in respect of the ILO and WHO to the fact that the Technical Assistance Board (TAB) finance manual had not been kept currently up to date. The external auditor has also raised the question of the scope of the detailed material to be included in the manual. On the first point, the Advisory Committee understands that a complete revision of the manual was issued in April 1959 and that arrangements have been made to keep the organizations currently informed of all revisions. As to the scope of the material for inclusion in the manual, the Committee is informed that, inasmuch as internal financial procedures vary among the organizations, it is necessary in the interests of uniformity to include sufficiently detailed rules in the TAB manual.
- 8. The Advisory Committee would suggest that efforts should be made in the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination and TAB to obtain greater uniformity in the financial rules that are applied to the regular programmes in the different organizations. The Committee would also reaffirm its previous view 2/that, so far as practicable, the TAB financial rules and procedures might be brought more closely into line with those followed in respect of the regular programmes.
- 9. The external auditor of FAO has pointed out that, although on an over-all basis obligations incurred remained within allocations and other available funds, obligations in respect of "general earmarkings" (i.e., generally convertible currencies) exceeded the relevant allocations by $55,645. The Advisory Committee understands that while FAO has agreed with TAB that a recurrence of this situation should be avoided, under decisions of the Technical Assistance Committee, no distinction is made between currencies in respect of earmarkings.
- 10. As regards the problem of unliquidated obligations, to which attention was drawn in 1958, 3/ the Advisory Committee understands that the participating organizations have agreed in TAB that there should be a more careful and conservative estimating of the amounts needed to meet unliquidated obligations. Evidence of this approach is found in the fact that the trend of the last few years showing an increase in unliquidated obligations from year to year has now been reversed. Thus the funds set apart at the end of 1958 for unliquidated obligations of prior years amounted to a total of $5,497,497 as compared with $6,012,540 at the end of 1957.

^{1/}The Council also decided on exceptional treatment in certain cases (see resolutions cited).

Note by the Secretary-General

- 1. In accordance with the requirements of General Assembly resolution 519 A (VI) adopted on 12 January 1952, there are submitted herewith the audit reports for the year ended 31 December 1958 relating to expenditures by the specialized agencies of technical assistance funds alocated from the Special Account. Paragraph 7 of the resolution reads as follows:
 - "Calls on the specialized agencies participating in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance to provide, in their regular budget documents, information concerning their estimates for the expenditure of technical assistance funds; and to transmit to the General Assembly, for examination and approval, the audit reports relating to expenditure of technical assistance funds allocated from the Special Account after approval of the appropriate audit reports by the general conferences of their agencies or by such other authorities of the agencies as are constitutionally authorized to approve them."
- 2. Attached to the present document is a combined statement (annex 1) showing the status of funds of all the participating organizations under the Expanded Programme as at 31 December 1958, which summarizes the separate audited financial statements submitted by the specialized agencies, together with similar information regarding the transactions of the United Nations as a participating organization in the Programme and the cost of the Technical Assistance Board secretariat.
- 3. The audited financial statements of the specialized agencies are attached as annexes 2 to 8; these comprise for each agency the financial statement showing the status of its funds, in the forms prescribed by the Technical Assistance Board, bearing the certificate of the external auditors, and the relevant audit report submitted to the general conference of the agency concerned. As in previous years, the detailed supporting schedules furnished by the several agencies, to which references are made in the financial statements, are not included in this submission but are made available to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions.

- 4. The audit reports of the following agencies for the year 1958 have been approved by their general conference:
- (a) The International Telecommunication Union, on 11 June 1959;
- (b) The World Meteorological Organization, on 4 May 1959;
- (c) The International Labour Organisation, on 18 June 1959;
- (d) The International Civil Aviation Organization, on 9 July 1959;
- (e) The World Health Organization, on 22 May

The audit reports for the years 1957 and 1958 relating to the accounts of the Food and Agriculture Organization will be submitted to the tenth session of the FAO Conference to convene in November 1959. The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization's audit report for 1957 was approved by the Executive Board on behalf of the UNESCO General Conference on 3 December 1958; the report for 1958 will be submitted for approval at the next session of the UNESCO General Conference, which will be held in November 1959.

- 5. The audited financial statements of the United Nations as a participating organization in the Expanded Programme are presented in the financial reports and accounts for the year ended 31 December 1958.² Also included in the same document are financial statements in respect of the secretariat of the Technical Assistance Board, as well as a statement (schedule H) showing the status of the Special Account as at 31 December 1958.
- 6. A consolidated statement which reflects the financial transactions of the Expanded Programme as a whole is attached as annex 9.

AUDIT CERTIFICATE

The financial statements relating to the net allocations made to the International Labour Organisation in connection with the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance for Economic Development of Under-developed Countries for the year ended 31 December 1958, have been examined in accordance with the directions of the undersigned. All the information and explanations required have been obtained, and this is to certify, as a result of the audit, that, in the opinion of the undersigned, the above Statement and the related schedules of project costs, operational services and administrative costs are correct, subject to the observations in my report.

AUDIT RELATING TO THE OPERATIONS OF THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION UNDER THE EXPANDED PROGRAMME OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR THE YEAR 1958

- 1. I certify the correctness of the statement submitted by the International Labour Organisation showing the status of the Special Account for the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance as at 31 December 1958.
- 2. The balance to be returned to the Special Account for the Technical Assistance Programme amounted to $472,222, of which $255,000, representing supplies and equipment ordered prior to 30 November 1958 but not delivered before 31 December 1958, will be re-allocated to the International Labour Organisation for 1959. The net surplus for 1958 was consequently $217,222 of which $147,042 arose out of savings on the liquidation of the obligations of prior years, of receipt of miscellaneous income and exchange adjustments.
- 3. In 1958 there were savings on unliquidated obligations for 1956 amounting to $148,288. These savings are made up as follows:

	Unliquidated obligations at the end of 1956 $	Savings as at 31 December 1958 $
Experts	168,988 196,018 12,002	84,874 74,313 4,867
	377,008	164,054
Less:
Exchange and other adjustments		15,766
NET SAVINGS		148,288

The savings under the item "Experts" relate to savings on the provisions for annual leave ($36,078), income tax ($13,390) and travel and various expenses ($35,406).

The savings in the obligated amounts relating to fellows and worker trainees were made up as follows:

Savings due to:

Cancellations	35,900
Changes in duration	18,576
Changes in study programme	19,837
Total	74,313

4. Accounts receivable and other credit balances amount to $27,369. Three trust funds, made available by the Governments of Iran, of Tunisia and of Venezuela to be used for Technical Assistance projects to be carried out by the Organisation in accordance with requests received from those Governments, have been credited to this account.

The situation of these funds is as follows:

	Government of Iran $	Government of Tunisia $	Government of Venezuela
Balance available as at 1 January 1958 Received during 1958	43,774 14,257	18,371 50,000	246,200
Disbursements during 1958	58,031 33,253	68,371 43,956	246,200 3
Balance as at 31 December 1958	24,778	24,415	246,197

As at 31 December 1958, this account also included a credit of $2,562 representing balances of gifts destined to various projects of the Andean Indian Programme.

5. The total unliquidated obligations at the end of the year 1958 were composed as follows:

	Balance in respect of 1957 $	Balance in respect of 1958 $	Total $
Fellows and worker trainees Experts and seminars Equipment delivered but not paid	160,240 88,064 7	217,713 195,067 4,848	377,953 283,131 4,855
Total	248,311	417,628	665,939

Experience gained during recent years enabled the Organisation to reduce the provisions for unliquidated obligations relating to 1958 thereby reducing the savings likely to be reported in subsequent years.

- 6. The administrative and operational services costs represent 14.5 per cent of the obligations incurred. The corresponding proportion for the year 1957 was 14 per cent.
- 7. When the United Nations Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance was started it soon became apparent that some basic financial rules would be required for the programme. Consequently, a TAB financial manual was developed in co-operation with participating organizations. This manual contained only rules such as were required to carry out the various resolutions of the United Nations relating to the Special Account and the decisions of the Economic and Social Council, and TAC. The manual was later expanded to include decisions of TAB in respect of financial matters.

During the course of my examination of the ILO technical assistance accounts, I have occasion to refer to this manual from time to time. I noted that during 1958 the manual then in use was the 1957 manual but that various articles had been revised during the year 1958. These revisions were finally circulated in a document dated 3 February 1959, more than one month after the close of the year to which the financial rules applied.

Quite apart from the difficulties which this situation produces for the agencies concerned, I consider it to be an unsatisfactory situation for me in carrying out my audit of the accounts during the year. I urge that TAB bring up to date its finance manual and keep it up to date so that it will be available during the financial year to which it applies and not after the closing of the financial year.

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT OF THE EXTERNAL AUDITOR TO THE CONFERENCE OF THE FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION ON THE ACCOUNTS OF THE REGULAR PROGRAMME FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1958

Allocation of administrative and operational services costs between regular and expanded technical assistance programmes

In previous reports my predecessor commented on the problem of the proper allocation of headquarters and regional costs between the regular and technical assistance programmes. He mentioned that the broad conception of the Technical Assistance Board's regulations was that the administrative and technical services of the participating agencies should be available for the Technical Assistance Programme and that only the identifiable additional costs involved should be recovered from technical assistance funds. This method of allocation created a special problem for FAO because its technical assistance programme was exceptionally large in relation to the regular programme, with the result that a disproportionate share of the actual costs fell to be borne by the regular programme budgets.

This basis of allocation continued in use throughout 1958. Following consideration by the United Nations Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and by the organizations concerned, however, ECOSOC adopted resolution 702 (XXVI) dated 31 July 1958 which provided that, for 1959, allocations from the Expanded Programme Special Account for administrative and operational services costs of the participating organizations would be met in the form of lump-sum amounts which should not exceed, and should preferably be less than, the corresponding amounts allocated for 1958. For subsequent years these lump-sum amounts may not be exceeded unless the allocation for project costs proposed for any participating organization vary by more than 10 per cent from the 1959 allocation for the same purpose. The resolution also requested the Advisory Committee to consider whether or not the regular budgets of participating organizations should assume all, or a specific part of the administrative and operational services costs of the Expanded Programme.

F

REPORT OF THE EXTERNAL AUDITOR TO THE CONFERENCE OF THE FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION ON THE ACCOUNT OF THE EXPANDED PROGRAMME OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1958

- 1. Part III of the accounts of the Food and Agriculture Organization for the year ended 31 December 1958 consists of the statement of account of the technical assistance funds allocated to the organization, together with the related schedules of project, operational services and administrative costs. The statement and schedules are in the form prescribed by the Technical Assistance Board.
- 2. My examination has been carried out in conjunction with my audit of the accounts of the regular programme of the organization and in accordance with the financial regulations of the organization and the statement of principles governing audit procedure annexed to those regulations. I have also examined the reports of the Internal Auditor, the effectiveness of whose work during the year has materially facilitated my own examination. In accordance with the arrangements made between the Technical Assistance Board and the Joint Panel of Auditors of the United Nations, a certified copy of the statement and schedules, and a copy of this report, have been sent to the Board. A copy of that part of my report on the regular programme which refers to the allocation of overhead costs between the regular and technical assistance programmes has also been sent to the Board.
- 3. In the course of my examination a number of questions have been raised with the organization and answered satisfactorily. The subjects dealt with below alone appear to call for separate mention in my report.

Analysis of 1958 allocations, obligations and contractual commitments

4. Article 16.1 of the Technical Assistance Board manual on financial policies and procedures provides:

"Each participating organization shall keep its relevant obligations at all times within (i) funds earmarked to it for its current year's programme (ECOSOC resolution 521 (XVII), (ii) the amounts re-allocated for firm contractual commitments as at 30 November of the previous financial year, and (iii) the Working Capital and Reserve Fund authorizations for contingency purposes. Limitations by currencies shall be observed."

Statement I of the EPTA account shows that the over-all excess of allocations and other available funds over the obligations incurred was $309,274. The following analysis of allocations, obligations and contractual commitments shows, however, that obligations in respect of "general earmarkings" (i.e. generally convertible currencies) exceeded the relevant allocations by $55,645.

			Restricted dirocutions
Allocations	General earmarkings $ 7,524,300	Contingency allocations $ 363,311	Brazilian services $ 92,921	Danish $ 115,200	USSR $ 285,00 0	7;otals 8,380, 732
Re-allocation for 1957 contractual commitments					214,351	281,041
Obligations	7,590,990 7,646,635 ¹	363,311 333,365	92,921 92,921	115,200 90,873	499,351 188, 7 05	8,661,773 8,352,499 ¹
Contractual commitments	(55,645) 19,317	29,946 —		24,327	310,646 277,294	309 ,27 4 296,611
Balances	(74,962)	29,946		24,327	33,352	12,663

² After deducting $592,543 for local cost allocations.

- 5. Under article 14.1 of the Board's manual, all unobligated funds in the hands of participating organizations as at 31 December revert to the Special Account. This article provides, however, for sufficient funds to be reallocated to organizations, within the final figures of unobligated funds in their hands at 31 December, to enable them to honour their contractual commitments in respect of orders for supplies and equipment placed by 30 November but still undelivered at 31 December. To this end, participating organizations are asked to submit to the Board statements showing their contractual commitments by project and the currency group in which the respective obligations were incurred. The analysis in paragraph 4 above shows that contractual commitments in respect of "general earmarkings" (generally convertible currencies) amounted to $19,317 but that as obligations had exceeded the relevant allocations there was no balance under this head available for reallocation.
- 6. The TAB have approved, subject to audited accounts, reallocations in respect of these and other contractual commitments amounting in all to $296,611 out of the over-all balance of unobligated funds in their hands at 31 December 1958 ($309,274). I observe, however, that this unobligated balance was composed of currency holdings made available only for restricted purposes, and the carry-over of contingency allocations which under article 14.1 (vi) would normally revert to the Special Account.

Ex gratia payments and statement of losses and writes-off

- 7. I have examined the circumstances in which the ex gratia payment of $578 was made during 1958 and the losses and writes-off totalling $4,168 which are listed in the financial report accompanying these accounts. I have no comments to make upon them.
- 8. I wish to record my appreciation of the willing co-operation of the officers of the organization during my examination.

REPORT OF THE EXTERNAL AUDITOR ON THE STATEMENT SHOWING THE STATUS OF ALLOCATIONS TO THE UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION AS AT DECEMBER 1958

- 1. The statement is in the form set out in annex IV to the Technical Assistance Board Finance Manual, as revised by the Board's circular letter TAB/CM/901/ADD.1 dated 3 February 1959.
- 2. Allocations from contributions and other available funds in 1958 were $4,590,866, compared with $4,604,348 in 1957, and the balance reallocated in 1958 was $1,738,406, compared with $1,500,750 in 1957. Income from allocations and reallocations therefore increased from $6,105,098 in 1957 to $6,329,272 in 1958, an increase of three per cent. As the statement shows, the excess of allocations, etc., over obligations was $881,577, being approximately 14 per cent of the total allocations for the year. Obligations amounting to $897,559, however, had been cancelled as at 31 December 1958 because goods or services had not been received or rendered by that date. Before this adjustment the contract commitments actually entered into by the organization exceeded the unobligated balance of $881,577 by $15,982. This over-commitment was due to a shortfall of $37,137 in total income consequent on lower earnings from local costs, allocations for which were, on reassessment, reduced by the Technical Assistance Board after the close of the year of account.
- 3. About 32 per cent ($2,053,554) of the allocations, etc., in 1958 consisted of certain specified currencies for which utilization targets were prescribed by the Technical Assistance Committee. Obligations in the specified currencies recorded during 1958 in respect of projects to which these allocations related amounted to $2,050,813 of which $1,501,966 represented contractual commitments entered into in 1957 or earlier, the funds for which were reallocated in 1958. Obligations amounting to $754,426 were cancelled owing to the non-delivery of goods by 31 December 1958.
- 4. The net loss on exchange during the year was $29,379 as shown in the statement: of this figure $19,554 resulted from the devaluation of the French franc from 420 to 494 to the United States dollar with effect from 29 December 1958.

AUDIT CERTIFICATE

The above statement showing the status of funds of the International Civil Aviation Organization, relating to the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, has been examined. I have obtained all the information and explanations required and certify, as a result of the audit, that the statement and the related schedules of project costs, operational services costs and administrative costs, are in accordance with the accounts maintained by the organization and are, in my opinion, correct.

(Signed) Watson SELLAR
External Auditor

- 1. The report on the audit of technical assistance accounts is not included in the audit report on the general accounts of the Organization because the Technical Assistance Board financial manual directs that the "external audit relating to the Expanded Programme shall be reported separately from that of the regular programme activities of the participating organizations".
- 2. The Secretary-General submitted a financial statement for the year ended 31 December 1958, showing the status of funds allocated to the International Civil Aviation Organization for the purposes of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. This statement has been examined and certified as being in accordance with the accounts maintained by the Organization and, in my opinion, is correct.
- 3. An interim examination was made of the accounts in November 1958, while the year-end audit was conducted in February 1959. The various classes of transactions were, as in previous years, test-checked to the extent necessary to establish the correctness of the accounts and fairness of presentation in the financial statement and supporting schedules. All explanations required were provided and it is again recorded that the audit was facilitated by the co-operation extended by officers of the Secretariat.
- 4. Allocations to the Organization for the year 1958 are listed in the statement as being $1,287,500; in addition a $66,063 balance from 1957 was reallocated to the Organization for equipment purchased in 1957 but undelivered as at 31 December. The amount available was therefore $1,353,563. There may be adjustments in this total when the 1958 account-closing confirmation is received from the Technical Assistance Board, but it seems reasonable to assume that, if any, these will be minor.
- 5. Obligations incurred amounted to $1,284,496 after offsetting $142,371 provided by recipient Governments as a contribution to experts' expenditures incurred locally. These local cost contributions were in previous years paid in to the central TAB account in New York to defray certain of the local experts' allowances, such as project service allowances, local travel, etc. In 1958, however, the loal cost share was paid direct to the participating agencies as part of the total allocation. A three-year analysis of obligations incurred is:

Project costs:	1956 $	1957 $	1958 $
Personal services	730,114 115,938 130,448 36,556 25,726	736,015 174,885 138,019 80,968 9,078	1,021,006 137,517 67,804 36,064 15,141
Less: local cost allocations*	1,038,782	1,138,965	1,277,532 142,371
	1,038,782	1,138,965	1,135,161
Operational services costs	27,221	29,395	25,732
Administrative costs	114,408	123,971	123,603
	1,180,411	1,292,331	1,284,496

^{*} Local cost allocations were credited to income in 1956 and 1957.

- 6. It will be observed that obligations incurred for personnel services in 1958 increased considerably as compared with previous years. This is due to two factors; the first being the implementation of the new conditions of service for experts as from 1 January 1958, which caused a considerable increase in expert costs; the second reason is the fact that, as mentioned above, the local cost share is for the first time reflected in the project costs shown in this statement. The major decrease in the listing is in fellowship payments. This was dictated by financial considerations rather than by any change in policy. It is also noted that, despite the impact of rising costs, obligations incurred on account of operational services and Headquarters administration were $4,000 less than those incurred in 1957. As a matter of fact, the $149,335 outlay was $16,000 less than the TAB allocations for the year.
- 7. All obligations charged in the year conform with the definition in the Technical Assistance Board finance manual:
 - "'Obligations' represent contracts or purchase orders which resulted or will result in a legal liability for payment of services rendered or goods received by 31 December of the current financial year and, in respect of fellowships, the full cost of completion of fellowships awarded before 31 December of the current financial year; provided that the fellow has been nominated by the requesting Government and accepted by the organization concerned and that a formal letter of award has been issued to the requesting Government, the actual placement of the fellow prior to 31 December in this sense not to be an essential consideration."

Of the 1958 obligations, a total of $74,010 remained unliquidated at the close of the year, of which $6,020 was with respect to fellowships.

- 8. By way of information, a total of $27,384 of 1957 obligations remained unliquidated at 31 December 1958, with $20,347 in connection with fellowships.
 - 9. The Technical Assistance Board finance manual includes the following direction:

"The participating organizations shall submit to the Board, as soon as audited accounts of the preceding year are available, a statement of supplies and equipment ordered on or before 30 November but not delivered as at 31 December of that year. The statement should identify those orders by project and show the currency group in which the respective obligations were incurred."

The listing prepared in conformity with this direction, and totalling $66,160, was verified in the audit.

10. The 1958 financial statement shows allocations exceeded to the extent of $76,206. This may be regarded as a technical or bookkeeping position, because at the financial year-end the organization had $134,359 in bank accounts which might have applied against the $76,206 item. However, in so doing, some local financial inconveniences as well as exchange losses might have resulted. For those reasons, no audit exception is taken to the accounting treatment.

REPORT ON THE AUDIT RELATING TO THE OPERATIONS OF THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION UNDER THE EXPANDED PROGRAMME OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR THE YEAR 1958

1. My examination has been carried out in the same way as my audit of the accounts relating to the regular budget of the organization. In this connexion I would point out the following:

When the United Nations Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance was started, it soon became apparent that some basic financial rules would be required for the programme. Consequently, a TAB finance manual was developed in co-operation with participating organizations. This manual contained only such rules as were required to carry out the various resolutions of the United Nations relating to the Special Account and the decisions of the Economic and Social Council and the TAC. The manual was later expanded to include decisions of the TAB in respect of financial matters.

I have noted a tendency to include in the TAB finance manual rules to govern the day to day financial operations of the individual agencies. Such detailed operations are normally covered by the agencies' own financial rules. In the case of WHO, such financial rules have existed practically since the inception of the organization and have been confirmed by the Executive Board and reported to the World Health Assembly; they apply to all funds received and disbursed by the organization. Whilst recognizing the need for a TAB finance manual to deal with the problems peculiar to the Special Account for the Expanded Programme, I consider it to be undesirable to include any such detailed items in the manual for which rules are already in force in the individual agencies, and which could lead to confusion and possibly to conflict in their application.

- 2. The administrative and operational services costs charged against the Expanded Programme represent 11.9 per cent of the total obligations incurred. The corresponding percentage for 1957 was 11.8 per cent.
- 3. Of the unliquidated obligations as at 31 December 1958, amounting to $791,000, $528,850 represent fellowships. The total amount of unliquidated obligations relating to fellowships, as originally calculated, was reduced subsequently by 10 per cent as a result of the experience gained during past years.
- 4. As can be seen from exhibit IV the balance to revert to the Special Account of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance amounts to $180,905. Of that amount $159,485 will be reallocated to WHO in 1959 in order to cover the costs for supplies ordered before 30 November 1958 but not delivered before the end of that year. Consequently, the net surplus for 1958 is in practice reduced to $21,420, or 0.3 per cent of the total allocations.

Allocation of the administrative and operational services costs of technical assistance between the budge of the regular programme of technical assistance and the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: Englis [24 June 195

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, in its 1958 report on the question of the allocation of the administrative and operational services costs of technical assistance between the Regular and the Expanded Programme budgets (A/3832), recorded the following conclusions and recommendations:
- (a) That each participating organization should consolidate in its regular budget the presentation of all its administrative and operational services costs;
- (b) That there should be a consolidated review of the total administrative and operational services costs by the legislative bodies of the organization;
- (c) That, if the Expanded Programme Special Account must bear a part of the total administrative and operational services costs, there should be an appropriate lump-sum credit to the regular budget from the Special Account:
- (d) That, for 1959, allocations from the Expanded Programme Special Account in respect of these costs should be made in the form of lump-sum amounts which, barring any major change in programmes, should not exceed the corresponding 1958 allocations;
- (e) That there is scope in the participating organizations for further efforts towards a gradual reduction of the total costs of administering their regular and Expanded Programme activities;
- (f) That the Advisory Committee will keep under review the problem whether any part of the total administrative and operational services costs should be financed from the Expanded Programme Special Account, and, if so, how this part can be determined, as a lump sum, on the basis of a simple formula; and that the long-term need for such a formula as well as its character we depend on whether or not the entire administrative a operational services costs are to be borne on the regular budgets of the participating organizations, a problem which requires further study in the face of the wild divergence of views held on this point by the seve organizations.

2. At its twenty-sixth session, the Economic and Soc Council, having studied this question in the light of 1 Advisory Committee's conclusions and recommendation adopted resolution 702 (XXVI) of 31 July 1958.

In its further consideration of this matter, the A visory Committee took note, in particular, of operatiparagraphs 1, 2 and 3 of section I, and operative pargraph 1 of section II of that resolution.

- 3. At its 1959 summer session, the Advisory Co mittee had before it a note submitted by the Secretar General to the Technical Assistance Committee (TAC/83 and Add.1 and 3) containing the observatic and decisions of the participating organizations in resport the contents of Council resolution 702 (XXVI).
 - 4. The total problem resolves itself into the followin
- (a) The inclusion of all administrative and opertional services costs of an organization in the reguloudget of that organization, with an appropriate lum sum credit to that budget from the Special Account;
- (b) The assumption of these costs by the reguloudget, without any credits from the Special Account
- (c) In the absence of (b) above, the determination of the amount of the lump sum on the basis of a simp practical formula.

- . As regards paragraph 4 (a) above, the Advisory nmittee notes that nearly all the participating organions have expressed their readiness to adopt such a solidated presentation of the costs in question. The siderations which initially prompted the Committee nake this recommendation were outlined in detail in 1958 report (A/3832, paras. 5-10).
- . On the question mentioned in paragraph 4 (b) ve, there appears to be a considerable divergence of vs among the organizations. The United Nations scational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has ressed its willingness to do this gradually, as and en requested by the Council; the other organizations not find themselves able to take a similar position /TAC/83).
- . The Advisory Committee believes that the point at le transcends considerations of mere budgetary technes and procedures; it is a question involving a berate decision of policy which can be taken only by Governments that are assessed to finance the regular gets of the organizations.
- . In the absence of such a decision by Governments, ecomes necessary to pursue the point mentioned in agraph 4(c) above.
- . It appears to the Advisory Committee that, in the sent circumstances, there are at least three possibilities egards such a formula:
- a) The allocation of a somewhat arbitrary, fixed ount to each organization, which would be close to lump-sum credit allocated in 1959;
- b) A special formula of the type suggested earlier pehalf of the Food and Agriculture Organization of United Nations (FAO), (A/3598, paras. 67-69), ch would take account inter alia of the size of the anization's Expanded Programme allocations in relato its regular budget;
- c) A flat, common percentage of project allocations ne organization.
-). The formula in paragraph 9 (a) above, besides ig arbitrary and inflexible, would tend to perpetuate sent conditions without encouraging administrative ew and reform with a view to keeping administrative operational services costs as low as possible and thus timizing the amount of resources available for project lementation. Any special formula of the type set out aragraph 9 (b) above would be difficult to apply and Id involve the need for continuous review and modiion. It would also seek to differentiate between orizations on the basis of their internal administrative ctures and procedures, in respect of which certain ments would have to be made. The relationship zeen the size of the regular budget and that of the cations from the Special Account cannot always be sidered as an index of the relative capacity of the ilar budget to provide administrative support. In e cases the regular budget may be largely an adminisve and servicing budget; in others, it may include a tantial portion of funds for technical or operational grammes, grants or subsidies.
- . In these circumstances, the Advisory Committee eves that a formula as cited in paragraph 9 (c) above, flat, common percentage of project allocations offers nple and practical method of determining the lump-credits to be made from the Special Account.

- Naturally, such a percentage formula would be appropriate only within a reasonable range in respect of the size of programmes; it might provide too little for very small programmes and too much for those substantially above general current levels in the case of the larger participating organizations.
- 12. The Advisory Committee would suggest the use of project allocations alone (rather than the total of allocations for direct project costs and for administrative and operational services costs) as the basis for the percentage formula. It will prove simpler to determine the succeeding year's lump-sum payment for "overhead" costs by relating it to the proposed allocation for projects, which is determined first. Furthermore, the Committee would interpret project allocations as the total money allocated for projects from the central account, whether drawn from voluntary contributions and general resources of the Expanded Programme or from local costs assessments. It is assumed for this purpose that the entire allocation from local costs assessments is related to direct project costs rather than to "overhead".
- 13. The proportions which administrative and operational services costs (or allocations, in respect of 1959) bear to project costs (or allocations), as defined above, are given in respect of the years 1958 and 1959 in annex I to the present report. Having regard to the data in that annex, the Advisory Committee considers that, barring substantial changes in the size of the programme, the lump-sum payment to each organization towards its administrative and operational services costs should be brought down eventually to the equivalent of 12 per cent of its project allocations. This would mean that for every 100 units of proposed project allocations an additional 12 units would be provided for administrative and operational services costs. In terms, therefore, of total allocations of funds (by this illustration, 112 units), overhead would represent some 10.7 per cent.1 The Committee would indeed suggest, as a further objective to be achieved in due course, that "overhead" payments could be reduced so that they represented no more than 10 per cent of total allocations to the participating organizations. This would correspond to 11.1 per cent in terms of project allocations alone.
- 14, The fixing of the percentage allocation below the approximate current level would, in the Committee's view, promote care in the administration of projects and a continuous review of the procedures and expenditures in this regard, in order to achieve maximum efficiency and economy in the administrative aspects of the Expanded Programme.
- 15. The Advisory Committee appreciates that a 12 per cent objective (in terms of project allocations) might not be achieved in all organizations within the next few years, and, further, that some measure of flexibility might be needed in the application of the formula to organizations with small budgets. Nevertheless, the Committee is encouraged to suggest this objective by the fact that the corresponding percentage in UNESCO is well below 12 per cent in 1958 and 1959. If the approach suggested in this report is acceptable, the Economic and Social Council would wish (a) to specify a period within which all organizations would be governed by a percentage formula, and (b) to make appropriate provision for the flexibility of application suggested above.

¹ The corresponding percentages for 1958 and 1959 are given in annex II to the present report.

I. Introduction

Nature of the inquiry and terms of reference of the Advisory Committee

. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Igetary Questions met from 23 to 26 March 1959 at headquarters of the International Atomic Energy ency (IAEA) in Vienna, on the invitation of the ector-General of the Agency. The invitation was exded within the arrangements approved in 1954, and ffirmed in 1955 by the General Assembly (resolutions (IX) and 972 (X) and the Fifth Committee (A/1, para. 10 and A/3098, para. 8).

. In terms of the arrangements cited above and of the visions of article XVI of the Agreement between the ited Nations and the Agency, the Advisory Committee 1 consultations with the Director-General on various ters relating to administrative and budgetary coination. The Committee desires to record its grateful reciation of the co-operation and assistance which it gived from Mr. Sterling Cole, Director-General of EA, the Deputy Director-General for Administration, ison and Secretariat and other officials.

(2) Nature of the present report

. The present report follows generally the lines of the visory Committee's special studies of the several speized agencies; however, in view of the fact that the ency's participation in the Expanded Programme of thnical Assistance is of recent origin, there is less pe at this stage for an administrative appraisal of the ization of Expanded Programme funds within an grated programme of activities. Nevertheless, the visory Committee has paid attention to the organizatal administrative arrangements which have been initial in this regard, and their relationship to similar angements under other programmes of the Agency.

. The Advisory Committee will submit later a condated report in which it intends to formulate its genlocolusions and recommendations on administrative budgetary co-ordination between the United Nations the other organizations, with particular reference to mical assistance matters. Meanwhile, the Committee attempted to identify and summarize in this report tain basic factors relating to IAEA, which largely uence and determine what is practicable by way of pperation and co-ordination in the administrative and lgetary fields.

Nature and Structure of the International Atomic Energy Agency

Establishment, composition and purposes of IAEA

. The IAEA is an autonomous inter-governmental anization established under the auspices of the United tions, in terms of a statute which entered into force 28 July 1957 after having been unanimously approved 26 October 1956 by the Conference on the Statute, 1 at United Nations Headquarters and attended by ity Governments. The Agency's relationship with the ited Nations is governed by an Agreement which was oved by the General Assembly on 14 November 1957 solution 1145 (XII)) and by the General Conference the Agency on 23 October 1957. The Agency comsed seventy members as at 30 April 1959.

See document A/4172 in this fascicle.

- 6. The basic objectives of the Agency (article II of the statute) are "to accelerate and enlarge the contribution of atomic energy to peace, health and prosperity throughout the world", and to "ensure, so far as it is able, that assistance provided by it or at its request or under its supervision or control is not used in such a way as to further any military purpose". In order to fulfil these objectives, the Agency is authorized to undertake a variety of functions which may be summarized as follows:
- (a) Dissemination and exchange of information, knowledge and skills relating to the peaceful uses of atomic energy, and encouragement and assistance to research in that field:
- (b) Assistance to members in obtaining materials, services, equipment and facilities to meet the needs of research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes;
- (c) Preparation and establishment of safeguards to ensure that materials, services, equipment, facilities and information made available by the Agency are not used to further any military purpose; establishment of standards of safety for protection of health and minimization of danger to life and property; application, in accordance with the Statute, of these safeguards and standards of safety.

(2) Structure of IAEA

- 7. The Statute provides for two directing authorities—a General Conference and a board of Governors—with an appropriate staff of the Agency, headed by a Director-General (see annex I).
- 8. The General Conference, consisting of representatives of all members, meets in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as may be convened. The General Conference may, inter alia, discuss any questions or matters within the scope of the statute and may make recommendations to the Members of the Agency or to the Board of Governors on any such questions. Apart from the election of ten members of the Board, however, its powers of unilateral decision on substantive questions are limited to matters specifically referred to it for that purpose by the Board. Several important matters, such as the annual budget, reports to the United Nations, and agreements with the United Nations and other organizations, require the approval of both the General Conference and the Board of Governors. ³
- 9. The Board of Governors is composed of twenty-three Member States which are appointed in accordance with a procedure set out in article VI of the statute "to carry out the functions of the Agency in accordance with [the] statute, subject to its responsibilities to the General Conference as provided in [the] statute" (article VI para. F). The Board is organized in such a way as to be able to function continuously and to meet as often as may be necessary. All major policy decisions between the annual sessions of the General Conference are taken by the Board to which the Director-General has to report every two months all major developments in the work of the Agency.

(3) Special position of the Board of Governors

10. It will be seen from the preceding brief account of the structure of the Agency that the Statute accords a special position to the Board of Governors.⁴ The Board of the Agency is vested not only with legislative and policy-making functions, but with responsibilities of an executive and administrative character, which, in the United Nations and some other organizations, normally belong to the chief administrative officer. Thus the Board is authorized to "carry out" the functions of the Agency; the Board is also responsible for the submission of an annual budget to the General Conference and the exercise of borrowing powers on behalf of the Agency, subject to rules and limitations approved by the General Conference. The Director-General, who is appointed by the Board of Governors with the approval of the General Conference for a term of four years, is "under the authority and subject to the control of the Board". The role played by the Board in elaborating and supervising the implementation of the programme of work of the Agency is indicated by the fact that the Board held seventy-one meetings during 1958.

³ Statute of IAEA, article V, paras. A, D, E (5-7) and article VI, para. A (3).

⁴This also obtains in ICAO, with respect to its Council. A major difference between the two bodies is that the ICAO Council has a non-voting, salaried president.

11. The Advisory Committee has previously, in the case of the international Civil Aviation Organization drawn attention to the risk of overlapping of administrative responsibilty and authority between the governing body of an organization and its chief administrative officer.⁵ While strong reasons probably dictated the arrangements stipulated in the Statute of the Agency, the same risk of overlap and of unclear definition of areas of responsibilty would seem to exist in the Agency also. It is possible that, with the passage of time, the Board will meet less frequently and will increasingly concentrate its attention, in respect of administrative matters, to questions of major importance.

12. It is of interest to note in this regard that in 1959 the Board plans to meet only once every three months as compared with the bi-monthly meetings of 1958. Nevertheless, this reduction in frequency of the meetings of the Board is largely explained by two factors. In the first place, the Board has set up a number of committees which will hereafter carry out much of the preparatory work on questions before the Board. Secondly, the preparatory stage of the Agency, which no doubt required frequent meetings of the Board, is coming to a close.

(4) Committees of the Board of Governors

13. The only permanent subsidiary organ that has been established so far by the Board of Governors is the Scientific Advisory Committee composed of seven scientists nominated by the Director-General with the concurrence of their Governments and appointed by the Board.⁶ In addition, however, the present Board has established the following committees composed of States members of the Board itself:

	M	lember
(a)	Committee to advise the Director-General on the Permanent Headquarters
(b)	Committee on Agreements for the Supply of Fissionable Source and Other Materials	9
(c)	Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations	8
(d)	Technical Assistance Committee ⁷	17
(e)	Administrative and Budgetary Committee	13

⁵ Official Records of the General Assembly, Thirteenth Session, Annexes, agenda item 50, document A/3861, para. 19.
⁶ The present members of the Scientific Advisory Committee,

⁷ This committee should not be confused with the Technical Assistance Committee (TAC) of the Economic and Social Council

14. While the existence of the several committees r simplify the task of the Board itself, it will not necessa reduce the programme of meetings in the Agency or workload of the Agency in terms of documentation other meetings services. It is also likely that the great and more frequent the number of meetings of organs subsidiary organs, the greater the pressure on the Sectariat as regards preparatory work. The Advisory Comittee trusts that the situation will be kept under rev in the light of experience with the working of the arrangements.

(5) Structure of the secretariat

- 15. The organizational structure of the secretariat the Agency (see annex II) reflects the considera varied tasks in which it is engaged, and provides for main departments, each under an official at the Dep Director-General level. Four of the departments deal with the substantive aspects of the Agency's activities with fifth, and largest, is concerned with administratiliaison and secretariat services.
- 16. The Director-General is assisted in the task co-ordinating the work of the secretariat by an indepartmental committee which meets weekly and cons of the Director General as the chairman and all Deputy Directors-General. In addition, a Technical Plining Committee, composed of the Deputy Director General, meets regularly in order to discuss exist scientific programmes and to plan future programm. There are also a number of other internal committ which assist in specific fields of activity.
- 17. The Advisory Committee naturally has a spe interest in the arrangements in the secretariat relating administrative, financial and servicing functions. The Department of Administration, Liaison and Sectariat provides these "staff and housekeeping" servicit is also concerned with the general area of liaison; advisory services. The organizational structure of the department is shown in annex III to the present rep
- 18. At the present time the administrative part of secretariat may appear to be somewhat too large by or parison with the substantive and technical services. T is partly due to the fact that the Agency has found much less easy to develop its technical services to the full strength since technical personnel, qualified in field of atomic energy, limited in numbers as they are not easily spared by their countries for internation work. The Advisory Committee has noted two points this regard. In the first place, intensified efforts are be made by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services, even for standed by the Agency to secure the services are the services and the Agency to secure the services are the services and the Agency to secure the services are the services are the services and the services are th
- 19. Apart from the representative of the Direct General at United Nations Headquarters, the Agency no offices away from its headquarters. However, Agency makes considerable use of the field offices other related services of the United Nations and specialized agencies in servicing its field missions a generally, in its work. With the further development its activities, the Agency may feel the need for a gree degree of assistance in the field. Such need, when it ari can, in the Advisory Committee's view, be largely met the assignment of individual officials of the Agency isting field offices of other organizations of the United ations family.

20. During the past year, the resources of the secreiat have been supplemented by panels of experts to al with specific questions as well as by the scientists ovided by Governments, at no or nominal cost, for short ssions. The Advisory Committee understands that this ter arrangement has proved extremely useful to the gency, especially in the first year of its operation, hough an indefinite continuation of the arrangement the present scale cannot, in the view of the secretariat, taken for granted. The Committee is informed that the gency may have to assume gradually the cost of obtaint these or similar services.

III. Scope of the Programmes of Work of the Agency

(1) General

- 21. The Agency's programmes of work are financed at the present time through three different means, although the method of financing does not correspond with a clear line of differentiation in the nature and scope of the programmes. The three methods are: (a) the regular budget of the Agency, financed by assessed contributions; (b) the operational budget financed by voluntary contributions and (c) the Special Account of the United Nations Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance.
- 22. A break-down of the estimated expenditures in 1959 from three different sources of financing is given below:

	Regular budget	Operational budget	Expanded Programme	Total
General policy:
Conference and Board	897		_	897
Administrative and general expenses	1,253	_		1,253
Programme activities: Scientific information and conferences	550	_	_	550
Regulatory activities	1,050	_		1,050
Technical assistance	1,475	1,100	400b	2,975
Supporting technical facilities		400		400
	5,225	1,500	400	7.125

^{*} This covers programmes of a broad "technical assistance" character. See para. 26.

b This figure is minimal. Following an initial allocation of $200,000, the Agency was advised that, on the basis of demonstrated needs, additional funds bringing the Agency's share up to $500,000 could be made available from the Contingency Fund of the Executive Chairman of the Technical Assistance Board (TAB)

(2) Programmes under the regular budget⁸

- 23. The programmes financed from the regular budget the Agency cover scientific information and conferces, regulatory and standard-setting functions and a r amount of what may be called "technical assistance" the broad sense of the term.
- 24. The work in respect of scientific information, semurs and conferences is generally related to the Agency's sponsibilities concerning the dissemination and exange of information in fields having to do with the aceful uses of atomic energy. More particularly, the gency's efforts are also directed to preparing the ground r specific activities connected with its regulatory nctions.
- 25. Under article XII of its Statute, the Agency has tain responsibilities both for the establishment and ministration of safeguards against diversion to mility purposes of materials, services and facilities made ailable by it, and for the elaboration of international alth and safety standards as concerns atomic radiation. camples of matters falling within the latter function are development of regulations relating to third party ks resulting from atomic radiation, questions relating to the transportation of isotopes, waste disposal in international waters, and the protection of the environments of reactors.

The term "regular budget" is used here, as it is generally lerstood in United Nations organizations, to denote the basic lget which is financed by assessments on all member States in ordance with a scale normally determined by the supreme islative body of the organization concerned. The correspond-budget in IAEA is called the "administrative" budget, a newhat misleading term on which the Advisory Committee nmented in 1958 (document A/4016, paras. 6 and 8). Beging with the 1960 budget, the IAEA secretariat is proposing the of the term "regular budget" instead.

- 26. A substantial portion of the regular budget is concerned with assistance to member States in the broad sense of the term. This assistance takes varied forms. It includes conferences and symposia which indirectly assist member States through the subsequent dissemination of the scientific information disclosed at such meetings. It includes exploratory missions by staff members and consultants to member States for the purpose of studies preliminary to the preparation of an Agency project and for work in the actual preparation or such projects. The staff of two secretariat divisions (Exchange and Training of Scientists and Experts, and Economic and Technical Assistance), financed entirely from the regular budget, are devoted to the administration of fellowships and special projects which are financed from the special operations budget. On the other hand, there are no funds in the regular budget itself for the provision of experts on specific projects in a member State or for fellowships and training facilities.
- 27. There is obviously some difficulty in the Agency in classifying expenditures according to a clear definition of technical assistance owing, in part, to the fact that a substantial part of the Agency's basic programme has itself the broad character of assistance to member States.

(3) Programmes under the operational budget

28. In 1958, the operational budget, which was relatively small at $125,000, was devoted exclusively to the exchange and training of scientists, that is the award of fellowships. Out of a total number of 287 applications for fellowships received in 1958, awards were made in 210 cases, representing some 73 per cent. A major part of the $1,500,000 that has been set as a target for 1959 will also be expanded on fellowships.

- 29. An amount of $400,000 was also approved in the 1959 budget for the construction of functional laboratory facilities needed to carry out activities in connection with the Agency's statutory functions.
- (4) Agency participation in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance
 - 30. Beginning with 1959, the Agency participates in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. Following an initial allocation of $200,000, the Agency has been advised that on the basis of demonstrated needs. a ditional funds bringing the Agency's share up to $500,00 could be made available from the Chairman's Contigency Fund. Expenditure in 1959 is estimated as at April at a minimum figure of $400,000, mostly on fellow ships.

(5) Fields of activity covered by IAEA programme 31. The distribution of expenditures in 1958, the ir tial year of operations, among fields of activity is show in the following table:

- ^a The figures include salaries and wages, common staff costs, staff travel, consultants and other temporary staff, seminars and me ings, hospitality, contractual scientific services, scientific and technical supplies and equipment. They do not include common service and supplies or permanent office equipment and furniture.
- 32. While a considerable acceleration of the programme is expected in 1959, no radical changes are likely to take place in the general pattern of distribution of the expenditure among the several fields of activity. Nevertheless, it is anticipated that there may be a relatively greater increase in such fields as scientific information, meetings and seminars, and reactors.

IV. Development and Integration of IAEA Programmes

(1) General

- 33. The procedures for the formulation, review, approval and implementation of programmes of work are virtually indentical for all programmes regardless of how they are eventually financed. All work programmes and projects are consequently included in a general way in the single annual document on the programme and budget submitted by the Board of Governors to the General Conference.
- (2) Procedures for the implementation of programmes
- 34. The standard procedure for the planning of the Agency's scientific and technical operations other than fellowships usually consists of a number of steps:
- (a) Initial planning by divisions, in response to the annual budget call issued in December of the second year preceding the programme and budget year in question; and review within the technical departments concerned;
- (b) Review by the Inter-Departmental Planning Committee, consisting of the heads of the technical departments, to ensure the technical soundness, feasibility

- and integration of the work programme. (The secretar of this committee is provided by the budget office, and t head of the Department for Administration, Liaison a Secretariat attends the meetings in an advisory capacity
- (c) Review and approval by the Director-Genera Inter-Departmental Committee, consisting of the Director-General and the heads of all departments;
- (d) Submission to the Board of Governors, and view by the Administrative and Budgetary Committee the Board;
- (e) Submission to the General Conference, and view by the Programme, Technical and Budget Comittee of the Conference;
- (f) Approval by the General Conference in the a tumn of the year preceding the programme and budayear in question.
- 35. Although these procedures appear somewhat e borate, it is understood that they are much simpler practice. One point which is worthy of comment is th as a result of leaving the initiative for programme form lation with individual divisions, it becomes necessary integrate into a programme elements that are separate conceived, as distinct from working out detailed pla within a general plan of work which in broad outline already envisaged. However, any resulting disadvanta is appreciably reduced, in terms of implementation programmes, by the further attention that is given to a development of actual plans of implementation within a framework of the approved programme. This second review of programmes is dealt with in the succeedi section of the present report.

-) Procedures for the implementation of programmes 36. Within the framework of the annual programme d budget, specific technical assistance projects are anned initially without regard to the eventual source finance. The decision whether to use funds from the erational budget, or to seek financing under the Exnded Programme,9 is taken subsequently in the light of ailable resources, and considerations such as a request a recipient Government that a project should be anced from Expanded Programme funds. The steps
- volved in the implementation of a specific project are: (a) Development of detailed plans of implementation the division concerned; and departmental review of (\bar{b}) Notification of plans to the Director-General's ter-Departmental Committee;

- (c) Submission of major projects to the Board of overnors for its specific approval, with a preliminary view, where appropriate, by the Board's Committee on echnical Assistance;
- (d) Execution of plans by the division or divisions
- 37. The procedure, reflected in step (c) above, for view and approval by the Board of Governors and its ommittee on Technical Assistance may need to be idied further in order to establish clearer criteria to termine which projects require submission to the ard.

(4) Fellowships

38. A special procedure has been devised for the award fellowships, by which the Division of Exchange and aining is basically responsible for the administration the fellowships programme, but makes full use, nerever appropriate, of other technical divisions. wards of fellowships are made by the Director-General the advice of the Head of the Department of Training d Technical Information and in accordance with genal rules approved by the Board of Governors. In this gard, the procedure differs from that relating to other chnical assistance projects which are subject to detailed view and approval by the Board.

39. The Advisory Committee has gone into the details the procedures for the selection of fellows; while these ocedures generally follow the practices of other intertional organizations, they may need to be strengthened order to ensure that available funds are utilized most ectively for training in advanced atomic science, most ated to the various national needs.

(5) Other projects

- 40. Special procedures have also been established in gard to the formulation and implementation of other rts of the Agency's programme such as fuel supply ojects, conferences and seminars, and research conicts. The Advisory Committee has received detailed inrmation on these procedures, and has no comments to er thereon at the present time.
- 41. As regards exploratory missions, the Advisory mmittee understands that such missions in future will carefully planned on the basis of the over-all proamme of the Agency and that their composition will such as to reduce to a minimum the need for including ministrative and servicing staff.
- Integration of the Agency in the country-programming procedures of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance
- This procedure presumably is limited to 1959, pending the olication to the Agency of the country-programming prolures of the Expanded Programme. See also paragraphs 42

- 42. The fact that the Agency had only recently begun participating in the Expanded Programme precluded it from following the usual country-programming procedures (Economic and Social Council resolution 542 B (XVIII) of 29 July 1954) in formulating its 1959 programme to be financed from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme. Consequently, the 1959 programme has been developed on the basis of requests received direct from member States and the recommendations of the preliminary assistance mission or missions and the exploratory missions. No distinction has been drawn in respect of examination of requests between projects financed from the Special Account and those financed out of the Agency's own resources. The Advisory Committee understands that for this purpose the fullest possible use has been made, of the TAB resident representatives and of the regional offices of the specialized agencies.
- 43. The Advisory Committee notes further that the Agency considers its full and speedy integration in the country-programming procedures as most desirable and that it wishes to use the services of the TAB resident representatives to the fullest extent possible. The Committee is, however, informed that this process may be somewhat slow owing to two factors: (a) the lack or slow emergence in the less developed countries of a body of law and of administrative arrangements and practices regulating the peaceful uses of atomic energy; and (b)the absence of regional offices of the Agency. While the first factor is largely dependent on Governments, any retarding effect of the second factor can be overcome by the utilization of TAB resident representatives, by the visits of exploratory missions, and, if necessary, by the assignment of Agency personnel to existing regional offices of sister organizations.

(7) Co-ordination and integration of programmes

- 44. It will be seen from preceding paragraphs that the procedures followed in the Agency for the development and implementation of programmes greatly facilitate the integration of the severally financed activities. Programme co-ordination between the Agency, on the one hand, and the United Nations and the specialized agencies, on the other, is sought not only through formal agreements but, and even more importantly, through close co-operation at the working level on a continuing basis. The Advisory Committee understands that this is particularly effective in respect of the Agency's programme of meetings and seminars, which is circulated to all interested organizations sufficiently in advance to avoid duplication of effort and to facilitate joint sponsorship and, in some cases, joint financing. On the other hand, the Committee learns that it has not been possible as yet to discuss with other agencies the feasibility of joint efforts in the matter of laboratories and research.
- 45. The Agency also maintains close working relationships with various regional inter-governmental agencies and with international non-governmental organizations in the field of atomic energy.10

¹⁰ In accordance with a resolution adopted by the General Conference at its first special session, the following six intergovermental organizations were invited to attend the second governmental organizations were invited to attend the second session of the General Conference: Commission for Technical Co-operation in Africa South of the Sahara (CCTA); European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN); European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM); Joint Institute for Nuclear Research; Organization of American States (OAS); European Nuclear Energy Agency of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC). Action is pending on the grant of consultative status to some twelve international propagation. grant of consultative status to some twelve international nongovernmental organizations.

V. Administrative aspects of Agency programmes

(1) General administration

- 46. Reference has already been made at various points in the preceding sections to certain of the administrative aspects of the work of the Agency, and more particularly to the organization of the secretariat and the machinery within the secretariat for dealing with various administrative matters. Attention has also been drawn to the size of the administrative set-up in relation both to the total programme of the Agency and to the technical requirements of that programme. It is hoped that over the next few years the administrative arrangements in the secretariat will remain somewhat stable, and that any expansion of the establishment will be confined largely to certain technical divisions. In many cases, and particularly in respect of the exploratory missions mentioned in paragraph 26, it may be difficult to isolate what may be termed administrative and servicing costs as distinct from direct assistance to a member State. Continuing attention would need to be devoted to ensuring that semioperational activities do not involve unduly heavy administrative cost and servicing.
- 47. The distribution of established posts in the Agency by organizational segments is shown in annex IV to the present report.
- 48. The Advisory Committee notes also that in the organization of the administrative, financial and servicing segments of the secretariat, the Agency has been able to utilize the experience of other United Nations organizations through secondment of officials from those organizations. While this has facilitated the work of the Agency, especially in the initial stage, it may not have encouraged the Agency, in some instances, to attempt new and more rational procedures in administrative and financial organization and control.
- 49. The Advisory Committee has inquired into the arrangements and procedures followed in such matters as personnel recruitment, staff services, organization and methods, executive officer functions including departmental administrative work, conference services, communication and records, purchase, procurement and transportation, and maintenance of premises. While these procedures largely follow those traditionally in effect in other international organizations, the Committee has gained the impression that there is in the Agency a relatively greater degree of centralization of administration.
- 50. Reference has been made in paragraph 18 above to the difficulty of recruiting appropriately qualified scientific and technical personnel. In order to minimize this difficulty, the Board of Governors has granted authority to the Director-General to pay, in exceptional cases, a special annual allowance not exceeding $1,800. The Advisory Committee understands that recourse has been made to this provision only in six cases so far, and even in those cases not up to the full amount of the allowance.
- 51. As regards documentation, the Advisory Committee notes that the Board of Governors has decided to have only summary records of its proceedings, although any member may at any time request the inclusion of a particular statement. The committees of the Board have dispensed with summary records and bring out only a record of decisions or recommendations. The Administrative and Budgetary Committee, however, produces a substantial report on the budget as initially developed by the Director-General, in which its views on the variou questions within its competence are set forth in detai

(2) Administrative support for technical assistance projects

- 52. The administrative servicing of a technical assist ance project covers various stages, from the receipt of the request from the Government, through the recruit ment and briefing of experts or fellows and servicin in the field, to the final report on the project. In the Agency, the Division of Economic and Technical Assist ance, in the Department of Technical Operations, has primary responsibility for the evaluation of the project request, and the working out of such details as the number of experts required, their qualifications, the approximate duration of the project, equipment required, if any and type of reporting by the project personnel. The division relies on advice from the competent technical departments and divisions in determining the technical soundness of a project.
- 53. The Administrative Office of Technical Assistance, in the Department of Administration, Liaison an Secretariat, is responsible for co-ordinating all nor substantive aspects of projects as well as for liaiso with the central organs of the Expanded Programmand with Member States in regard to project agreement: the acceptance of personnel and financial and administrative support.
- 54. In addition to the Economic and Technical Assist ance Division and the Administrative Office of Technica Assistance, there is also an Inter-Departmental Co ordinating Committee for Technical Assistance,11 whic is responsible for continuing review and co-ordination c all technical assistance activities, including recommenda tion to the Director-General of a chief of project t direct the field work of each technical assistance grou or team; selection and recruiting of experts and the men bers of the field teams, subject to prior approval of th Director-General; assuring the sound management c each project, and the preparation and review of report and projects for submission to the Director-Genera Furthermore, as mentioned in paragraph 38 above, th administration of the fellowships programme is the re sponsibility of the Division of Exchange and Training
- 55. While it would appear that the division of respor sibilities among the units mentioned above is somewhat vague and complex, the Advisory Committee has bee assured that in actual practice these arrangements have worked smoothly. The inter-departmental committee act as a single point of contact for co-ordinating all substantive aspects of the Agency's technical assistance activities. Similarly the Administrative Office of Technical Assistance constitutes a single administrative service to provide to all departments, mainly through the committee, co-ordinated administrative support for all technical assistance activities of the Agency. The Advisor

¹¹ This committee is composed of:

⁽a) The Director of the Division of Economic and Technic Assistance (Chairman);

⁽b) The Head of the Administrative Office of Technic Assistance;

⁽c) One member designated by the Deputy Directory-Gener for Research and Isotopes;

⁽d) One member designated by the Deputy Director-Gener for Exchange and Training;

⁽e) The Director of the Division of External Liaison;

⁽f) The Director of the Division of Budget and Finance;

⁽g) The project officer in respect of the project in questio

Committee is informed that by establishing these two organizational units, the Director-General relieved the departments from the burden of much administrative detail and eliminated the need, within the departments, of special administrative units dealing with technical assistance.

56. The Advisory Committee is nevertheless inclined to the view that some simplification of the machinery, and in particular of the functions covered by the Economic and Technical Assistance Division, the Administrative Office of Technical Assistance and the Division of Exchange and Training, should be possible in the light of experience, as less formal lines of co-ordination and better understood procedures are established.

(3) Administrative and operational services costs

- 57. The question whether the Agency should seek a lump-sum reimbursement from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme in respect of the administrative and operational services costs of the Agency's share of that programme will be considered by the Board of Governors at its session to be held in June 1959. Such costs in respect of the 1959 programme of some $400,000 are estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000.
- 58. The Agency has so far provided in its regular budget the administrative support necessary for its operational programmes financed by voluntary contributions. Thus, for 1959, the entire amount of $1.5 million in the operational budget will be devoted to programme activities, the necessary administrative services being provided by the Agency secretariat, which is wholly financed from the regular budget.

(4) Co-ordination with the United Nations and the specialized agencies

- 59. The Secretariat of the Agency participates in the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination and its subsidiary bodies with a view to having continuing co-ordination with other organizations of the United Nations system. The Agency has made good progress in following common staff and financial regulations, with only such modifications as are necessary because of statutory requirements, as well as the established practices in the United Nations in respect of various other administrative matters.
- 60. A unique feature in the practical arrangements in respect of co-ordination between the United Nations and the Agency is the designation by the Secretary-General of a permanent representative at the head-quarters of the Agency in Vienna. The Agency is similarly represented at United Nations Headquarters by a resident representative of the Director-General. These arrangements may be considered useful in the early stages of the organization of the Agency.
- 61. Another point that merits special mention concerns the provisions in the Agreement between the United Nations and the Agency, in respect of budgetary and financial arrangements. These provisions (resolution 1145 (XII), annex, article XVI) do not envisage, as do the agreements between the United Nations and most of the specialized agencies, 12 the possibility of an eventual incorporation of the Agency's budget in an over-all consolidated budget for the United Nations and related organizations. As against this, however, the Agreement with the Agency includes a special provision on coordination (article XI), which is not present in the agreements between the United Nations and the specialized agencies.

VI. FINANCIAL AND BUDGETARY CONTROL AND PROCEDURES

(1) General comments

- 62. In its report on the 1959 administrative budget of the Agency, the Advisory Committee expressed the view that there might be a need to re-examine, in the light of experience, the somewhat complex funding arrangements in the Agency, with a view to the adoption of simpler financial and accounting procedures (A/4016, para. 10 and note 27). The complexity of the arrangements is basically attributable to the stipulations in the Agency's Statute, and until appropriate amendments to the Statute can be considered, there appears to be little that can be done to simplify the present funding arrangements.
- 63. The Advisory Committee understands that the Agency has under consideration the question as to whether advances may be made from the Working Capital Fund of the Agency to finance operational programmes which are funded by voluntary contributions, pending receipt of those contributions. The Working Capital Fund, which is based on the scale of assessments in respect of the regular budget, is directly related to that budget. At the same time, the problem which gives rise to the need for working capital in regard to the regular budget exists also for the operational budget, and has to be met if an effective operational programme is to be implemented. It may be possible, over a period of years, to build up a working capital or reserve fund related to the operational budget in order to meet the problem of cash availability for operational programmes.
- 64. In the light of the foregoing financial aspects of the Agency, it would be useful to include in the bimonthly reports of the Director-General to the Board of Governors adequate information on the financial situation and operations of the Agency.

2. Procedures for budget review and approval

- 65. Under article XIV of the Statute of the Agency, it is the responsibility of the Board of Governors to submit to the General Conference the annual budget estimates for the expenses of the Agency. To facilitate the work of the Board in this regard, the estimates are initially prepared by the Director-General and cover both the regular and the operational budgets. If the General Conference does not approve the estimates, it returns them together with its recommendations to the Board which then submits revised estimates to the Conference for its approval.
- 66. The principal steps in the preparation of the budget and its execution are reflected in the procedures for the planning and implementation of the programmes of the Agency, which have been outlined in section IV above.
- 67. The initial estimates in respect of the regular budget are developed by the budget office on the basis of schedules submitted by the various divisions. Estimates of common staff costs are made in consultation with the Division of Personnel, and estimates for general supplies and permanent equipment in consultation with the Division of Conference and General Services. The estimates are then reviewed successively by the Deputy Director-General for Administration, Liaison and Secretariat and the Director-General's Inter-Departmental Committee, and are subsequently incorporated in the initial draft of the programme and budget of the Agency. The programme and budget, as considered and approved by the Board of Governors, is submitted by the Board to the General Conference.

- 68. In its examination of budgetary questions, the Board of Governors is assisted by its Administrative and Budgetary Committee, which consists of thirteen member States drawn from the Board.
- 69. Expenditures under the approved budget are controlled through allotments issued on a quarterly basis by the budget office, under the authority of the Deputy Director-General for Administration, Liaison and Secretariat. Any transfers between budget sections which may become necessary in the course of the year are submitted, with the necessary supporting justification, by the Director-General to the Board of Governors for its prior approval.
- 70. The budget and the plans of expenditure in respect of programmes financed from voluntary contributions are developed and reviewed in accordance with the procedure, indicated in section IV above, for the development, review and approval of the related programmes.
- 71. As regards the operational budget, authority to incur obligations is given to the Director-General by the Board of Governors, periodically in the course of the year, on the basis of detailed plans submitted by the Director-General, in the light of requests received from Member States and the actual level of the General Fund. Through these authorizations, the Board determines the allocation of voluntary funds to the different operational programmes of the Agency.

(3) Procedures of financial control

72. All funds are subject to allotment control. Individual allotments are made with respect to project type activities such as seminars, panels of experts and all technical assistance projects. Procurement transactions in excess of $1,000 are reviewed by a Contract Review Committee. All travel plans are reviewed and recommendations thereon made to the Director-General by a Travel Co-ordination Committee. Manning tables are maintained, and proposed temporary assistance employment is reviewed by the budget office. Similarly, proposed publications are reviewed and recommendations are made thereon to the Director-General by a Publications Committee. The employment of consultants can be authorized only by the Deputy Directors-General and, if the employment is of a long-term character, by the Director-General himself. Permanent equipment is con trolled through numbered tags or machine serial numbers and periodic inventories.

(4) Other matters

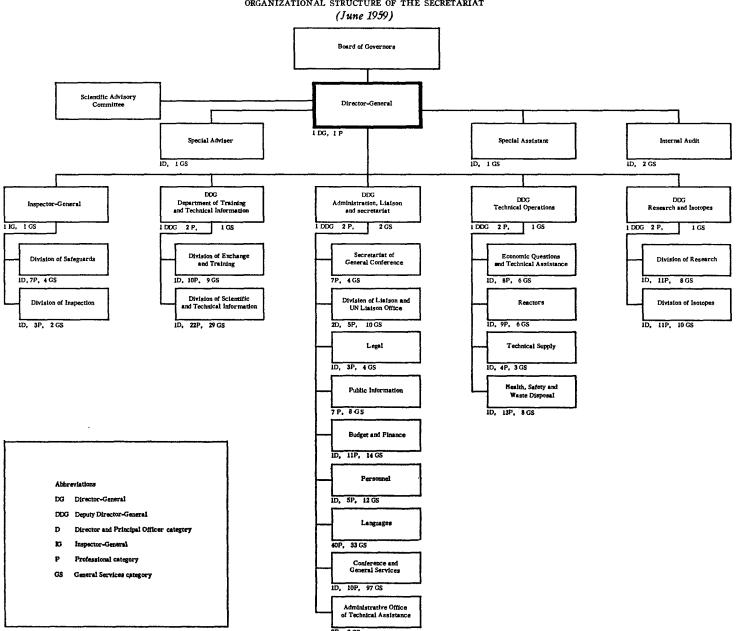

- 73. During its consultations with the Director-Gen eral, the Advisory Committee also considered the fol lowing four specific points, which the Director-Genera had raised with the Committee:
- (a) Interpretation and application of the Agency' financial regulation 5.03;
 - (b) The external audit of the accounts of the Agency
- (c) The establishment or perfection of a clearing system within the United Nations family for currency utilization;
- (d) Representation allowances and hospitality funds Points (a) and (d) were raised at the specific reques of the Board of Governors of the Agency; in addition point (a) was to be an item on the agenda of the Apri 1959 meeting of the Board.
- 74. The Advisory Committee has expressed its view on points (a) and (d) in a communication which the Chairman of the Committee sent on its behalf to the Director-General on 2 April 1959.
- 75. As to point (b), the Advisory Committee can ap preciate that the arrangement providing for a three member Board of Auditors for the Agency, following the situation in the United Nations, is somewhat cum bersome and expensive. The Committee notes in this regard that the normal arrangement in a specialized agency is to have one external auditor. One special and practical reason for the creation of a Board of three members in the United Nations was to have a reasonable division of the substantial total audit work in the Organi zation covering a number of offices in different parts of the world.
- 76. The Advisory Committee would suggest that the legislative organs of the Agency should give serious con sideration to an amendment of the financial regulation to provide for a single external auditor for the Agency
- 77. Where point (c) is concerned, it would appea that the Agency has a special problem in securing and managing a number of different currencies. The problem involves far more than issues of a mere financia and exchange nature, and it would be useful to isolate the administrative elements of the question from it broader policy aspects. The Advisory Committee accordingly believes that the matter merits further investigation and study at the inter-secretariat level, perhaps through the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination, and, in necessary, later at the legislative level.

I. Introduction

- 1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and 3udgetary Questions met on 13 and 14 April 1959 at he headquarters of the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) at Geneva on the invitation of the Secretary-General of that organization. The invitation vas extended within the arrangements approved in 1954, and reaffirmed in 1955 by the General Assembly and the 7ifth Committee (A/2861, para. 10).
- 2. The Advisory Committee took the opportunity in erms of the arrangements cited above and generally of he provisions of Article 17, paragraph 3, of the United Nations Charter, as well as of the relevant provisions n the Agreement between the United Nations and ITU, o enter into close consultations with the Acting Secreary-General of ITU on various matters of administrative and budgetary co-ordination. The Committee desires o record its grateful appreciation of the co-operation and assistance which it received from Mr. G. C. Gross, Acting Secretary-General of ITU, and other officials.

II. NATURE AND STRUCTURE OF ITU

- (1) Establishment, composition and purposes of ITU
- 3. The International Telegraph Union was founded n Paris on 17 May 1865. In 1885, its telegraph regulations were expanded to include the international telephone service; and in 1906, as a result of the International Radio-Telegraph Conference in Berlin, the Union became the administrative organ to assist in achieving he purpose of both the International Telegraph Conference and the International Radio Convention. In 924, an autonomous body, the International Telephone Consultative Committee (CCIF), was established, which n 1925, in Paris, became affiliated with the Union as a consultative body with a permanent specialized secreariat of its own.
- 4. In 1925, in Paris, and in 1927, in Washington, espectively, the International Telegraph Consultative Committee (CCIT) and the International Radio Conultative Committee (CCIR) were established and affilited with the Union as consultative bodies without pernanent secretariats. This was followed by the Telecomnunication Convention of Madrid, which was signed on December 1932 as the result of two conferences held oncurrently, a Telegraph and Telephone Conference ind a Radio Conference, under the auspices of the International Telegraph Union. The convention entered into orce in January 1934, abrogated the previous radioelegraph and telegraph conventions, and established the nternational Telecommunication Union (ITU) and a Bureau at Berne to replace the International Telegraph Jnion and its Bureau.
- 5. On 2 October 1947, at Atlantic City (United States of America), a new International Telecommunication Convention was signed which reorganized ITU, created new permanent organs, including the Administrative Council¹³ and the International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB), and established permanent secretariats or the CCIT and the CCIR. Also, in 1948 the Bureau of ITU was transferred from Berne to Geneva.
- 6. The Atlantic City Convention was superseded by he International Telecommunication Convention which vas signed at Buenos Aires on 22 December 1952 and secame effective on 1 January 1954. This Convention
- ¹³ Prior to 1947, the Bureau of ITU was under the supervision of the Swiss Federal Council during the intervals between Pleniotentiary Conferences.

- made provision for the ultimate amalgamation of the CCIT and the CCIF into one committee, the International Telegraph and Telephone Consultative Committee (CCITT), which came into being on 1 January 1957.
- 7. The International Telecommunication Union, which comprises ninety-five members and five associate members as at 1 June 1959, is a specialized agency of the United Nations in accordance with an agreement between the two organizations, which entered into force on 1 January 1949 after approval by ITU on 4 September 1947 and by the United Nations General Assembly on 15 November 1947 (resolution 124 (II)).
- 8. The purposes and objectives of ITU are: (a) to maintain and extend international co-operation for the improvement and rational use of telecommunication of all kinds; (b) to promote the development of technical facilities and their most efficient operation with a view to improving the efficiency of the telecommunication services, increasing their usefulness and making them, so far as possible, generally available to the public; (c) to harmonize the actions of nations in the attainment of those common ends. To this end, ITU effects the allocation of all radio frequency spectrum and registration of the radio frequency assignments in order to avoid harmful interference between radio stations of different countries, to promote measures to insure safety of life at sea and in the air, and to maintain rates as low as possible.

(2) Structure of ITU

- 9. The present structure of ITU (see annex I) dates back essentially to the Atlantic City Convention of 1947 and reflects the historical factors mentioned in the preceding section.
 - 10. The organs of ITU are:
 - (a) The Plenipotentiary Conference;
 - (b) The Administrative Conferences;
 - (c) The permanent organs:
 - (i) The Administrative Council:
 - (ii) The General Secretariat;
- (iii) The International Frequency Registration Board (IFRB);
- (iv) The International Consultative Committee on Telegraph and Telephone;
 - (v) The International Radio Consultative Committee.
- 11. The Plenipotentiary Conference, which is in a sense the supreme organ, meets in principle every five years although in practice the recent sequence has been 1947, 1952, 1959. It alone is competent to revise the Convention, but it is not responsible for the drafting or approval of certain sets of international administrative regulations¹⁴ dealing with technical problems of telecommunications, which complete the Convention and which have the same force and duration as the Convention.
- 12. The Plenipotentiary Conference also has the duties of considering the report of the Administrative Council, establishing the basis of the budget of the Union and fixing a budget ceiling, establishing the basic salary scales of staff, approving the accounts, and electing the members of the Council.

¹⁴ These administrative regulations are: Telegraph Regulations, Telephone Regulations; Radio Regulations; Additional Radio Regulations.

- 13. The Ordinary Administrative Telegraph and Telephone Conference and the Ordinary Administrative Radio Conference normally meet every five years, preferably at the same time and place as the Plenipotentiary Conference, and are responsible for the review, approval, and periodic revision of the relevant administrative regulations. In addition, the Administrative Radio Conference elects the members of the IFRB and reviews the activities of that Board. Apart from the ordinary administrative conferences, extraordinary administrative conferences and special conferences may be convened under certain circumstances and for specific purposes. (See article 10, paras. 5 to 9, of the Convention.)
- 14. The Administrative Council is composed of eighteen members of ITU, elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference and holding office until a new Council is elected. Each member of the Council appoints, to serve on the Council, "a person qualified in the field of telecommunication services". The Council, which normally meets once a year, acts on behalf of the Plenipotentiary Conference, within the powers delegated to it, and is responsible, inter alia, for the effective co-ordination of the work of ITU, for appointing the Secretary-General and two Assistant Secretaries-General of ITU,15 for reviewing and approving the annual budget, and for various matters relating to administrative and financial activities. The Administrative Council works through a number of committees of the whole: committee on finance; committee on personnel; committee on relations with the United Nations; committee on verification of accounts; a drafting committee and a working group on frequencies.
- 15. The General Secretariat, which is a successor to the Bureau of the old International Telegraph Union, is essentially an administrative and servicing organ and does not include the entire corps of salaried officials of the whole Union. Certain organs (IFRB, CCITT and CCIR) have their own specialized secretariats, though these specialized secretaries do not by themselves have the status of an organ. The General Secretariat is headed by the Secretary-General. A chart showing the relationship between the General Secretariat and the specialized secretariats is given in annex II.
- 16. The International Frequency Registration Board consists of eleven salaried members, designated by eleven members of ITU who are elected by the ordinary Administrative Radio Conference. The composition, duties and working arrangements of IFRB are defined in the Radio Regulations, while the provisions concerning its composition and a summary of the duties are repeated in the Convention. IFRB is assisted by a specialized secretariat of its own, working under the direction of the Chairman. In practice the chairmanship rotates annually among the members. Meetings of IFRB are held at least once a week. Though all members participate in all determinations and recommendations, there is a degree of concentration or specialization by individual members in particular phases of the work.
 - 17. The CCITT and the CCIR on which each member

15 These appointments, when made, normally continue until retirement. The post of Secretary-General and one post of Assistant Secretary-General have been vacant since 19 June 1958 and 1 January 1959, respectively.

16 Inasmuch as an Administrative Radio Conference has not been held since 1947, persons designated by the members elected at that time still hold office; where an initially designated individual has ceased to serve, his substitute has been named by the member concerned.

- and associate member of ITU is entitled to participate, are governed by provisions in three different instruments: the Convention, the general regulations and the relevant administrative regulations. Each consultative committee works through the medium of a Plenar Assembly, which normally meets every three years, studgroups set up by the Plenary Assembly, a salaric Director who is appointed by the Plenary Assemble for an indefinite period, a small specialized secretaris under the Director, and laboratories or technical installations set up by ITU.
- 18. The structure of ITU has been dealt with at son length, although briefly in relation to the complexity of the composition, functions and interrelationships of the several elements, because of its direct impact on the organizational, administrative and financial aspects of ITU activities.
- 19. Several points are worthy of note in this regard. In the first place, ITU as it exists now would seem thave the character more of a federation of somewhat autonomous units, each engaged in international cooperation in a particular aspect of telecommunication than of a unified organization responsible for an integrated international effort in the field of telecommunications as a whole. The long history of the developmer of the different technical elements of telecommunication and the varied stages at which these elements became the subject of international co-ordination explain, in par much of the present structure of ITU.
- 20. Flowing from the above, there appears to be multiplicity of legislative authority and direction accompanied by a number of more or less independent secre tariats. Within these limitations, however, some effor has been made to co-ordinate the several units and thei activities with reference to their administrative and finan cial aspects. Thus under the internal regulations approve by the Administrative Council, there has been established a Co-ordination Committee consisting of the Secretary General, the Assistant Secretaries-General, the Chairma and Vice-Chairman of IFRB, the Director of CCIT and the Director and Vice-Director of CCIR. The Cc ordination Committee, in which administrative and finan cial policy matters of interest to any member of th Committee are discussed, is advisory to the Secretary General.
- 21. While the Co-ordination Committee serves a use ful but limited purpose, the basic problems which th complexity of the legislative and secretariat structurentails do not seem to have been adequately met unde existing arrangements from the point of view of the sound and economic administration of the Union' activities.¹⁹

¹⁷ In addition, "a recognized private operating agency" whicl wishes to do so may also participate in these committees (articl 7, para. 3, of the Convention).

7, para. 3, of the Convention).

18 In the case of the Radio Consultative Committee (CCIR) there is also a Vice-Director appointed by the Plenary Assembly

19 It may be noted in passing that there are in ITU (which is 1959 has an establishment of 81 in levels subject to internationa recruitment) seventeen posts which are filled through election of appointment by a legislative organ, with the base salaries indicated below:

		salary (in Swiss francs)	in US dollar
1	Secretary-General	58,000	13,551
1	Director, CCITT	56,000	13,084
1	Director, CCIR	56,000	13,084
11	members, IFRB	56,000	13,084
2	Assistant Secretaries-General	49,000	11,449
1	Vice-Director, CCIR	49,000	11,449

22. The structure of ITU, both at the legislative and he secretariat levels, would seem to be unique in the Jnited Nations system. Given the historical circumstances as well as other factors, it has not seemed ossible, as in some other highly technical fields of international co-operation, to develop an integrated organizaion in the telecommunication field. It must be mentioned iere that, despite the complexity of structure and orcanization, the Union has done much valuable work over period of almost one hundred years. A greater degree of rationalization of the structure of ITU and of the ecretariat, without any loss of the long and useful xperience of the past, should not prove unduly difficult. t would, in the Advisory Committee's view, lead to a etter and more economical administration of ITU acivities, facilitate relationships with other international rganizations, and permit ITU to play an even more contructive role in international co-operative endeavours.

III. REGULAR PROGRAMME AND BUDGET

(1) Nature and scope of the activities of ITU

- 23. The activities of ITU, other than its work under the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, are argely of a standard-setting and regulatory nature. Thus FRB effects an orderly recording of frequency assignments made by the different countries and maintains the ecessary records including the Master International requency Register. All countries must notify ITU of the frequency assignments they make; these notices are xamined by ITU with respect to conformity to the elevant rules and regulations and the probability of armful interference with other frequencies in use. In addition, ITU furnishes advice to members and associate tembers with a view to the operation of the maximum racticable number of radio channels in those portions of the spectrum where harmful interferences may occur.
- 24. Similarly, CCITT and CCIR also perform essenally advisory functions. In the telegraph and telephone eld, the work of CCITT covers the study of technical perating and tariff questions and the issuance of approriate recommendations. In the field of radio communition, CCIR is responsible for the study of technical idio questions and operating questions, the solution of hich depends principally on considerations of a technical radio character and for making appropriate recomendations.
- 25. An indication of the financial scope of the activies of ITU is available in the following table in which e shown the expenditures for the years 1954 to 1958 at the estimated expenditure for 1959.

Total expenditures under ordinary, extraordinary and publications budgets (1954–1959)

	United States dollars
1954	1,327,292
1955	1,290,884
1956	1,684,933
1957	1,470,639
1958	2,534,616
1959 (estimated)	3,147,353

(2) Budgetary arrangements and procedures²⁰

- 26. The expenses of ITU are classified into "ordinary" and "extraordinary" expenses. The latter cover, broadly, all the costs pertaining to all conferences, except services of the Administrative Council; the costs of each conference are shared not by all the members of ITU, but only by those members and associate members who attend, or who had expressed the intention of attending, that conference. In other words, each conference has a separate budget and accounts, the expenses being borne by the participants.
- 27. Ordinary expenses are borne by all members and associate members and shall include, in particular, the expenses pertaining to the meetings of the Administrative Council, the salaries of the staff and other expenses of the General Secretariat, of the International Frequency Registration Board, of the International Consultative Committees, and of the laboratories and technical installations created by ITU.
- 28. In addition to the ordinary and extraordinary budgets, there is also a publications budget, which provides for printing costs, part of the cost of preparing the manuscripts, and the cost of distribution, in respect of ITU documents. All documents are issued on a sale basis, and, in principle, the publications budget is a self-supporting, non-profit budget.
- 29. The ordinary expenses of ITU are subject to an annual "budget ceiling" which is established by each Plenipotentiary Conference and is in effect until the next Conference. The relevant protocol in 1952 fixed an amount (equivalent in United States dollars: $1,421,729) increasing by about 1 per cent for each year from 1954 to 1957/1958; at the same time the Administrative Council was given a limited discretion, in defined circumstances, to authorize annual ordinary budgets exceeding the "ceiling" by not more than stated amounts or stated percentages. Owing to the increase in staff emoluments, the ordinary budget in 1958 reached the figure of 7,505,450 Swiss francs as compared to an original "ceiling" figure of 6,085,000 Swiss francs in Protocol IV to the Convention of 1952.
- 30. Between Plenipotentiary Conferences, the annual budgets are subject to the approval of the Administrative Council, acting within the limitations prescribed by the Conference. However, because of the special nature of the "extraordinary expenses", the Council's control over the extraordinary budget is in practice largely transferred to individual conferences and meetings themselves. In recognition of this situation, the Council has adopted a resolution (No. 83, as modified) which provides that each conference shall set up a finance committee to approve the budget of that conference and to review, so far as it is possible before the conference ends, the actual expenditures and accounts of the conference. In certain circumstances, the finance committee of a conference can authorize increases in the conference budget over the amount approved by the Council.
- 31. The policy governing the pricing of ITU documents, as set forth in article 13, paragraph 7, of the 1952 Convention, provides that the sale price of documents shall be fixed by the Secretary-General, in collaboration with the Administrative Council, bearing in mind the fact that the cost of publication must be covered by the sale of the documents. Following this, detailed procedures for the compilation of the publications budget have been laid down in the financial regulations of ITU. Although the publications programme is intended to be a non-profit operation, the pricing policy that has in practice been followed is open to question inasmuch as it has led, largely through over-pricing, to the accumulation of a reserve of nearly 1 million Swiss francs. Over-pricing, besides being a loss to Governments which are the principal consumers of the publications, is not in the interests of promoting the development and wide dissemination of technical information in the telecommunication field.

- 32. The presentation of three different sets of estimates, as the Advisory Committee has stressed in the past,21 renders an appraisal of the over-all budget and programme difficult, and the consolidation of these three parts in one budget would have significant advantages. Also, the fragmentation of the budget with a ceiling applicable to only one of the three parts encourages complicated inter-locking of estimates between the budgets and, sometimes, an unhealthy recourse to the other two parts, through subsidies and refunds, for costs that cannot be managed within the "ceiling" on the ordinary budget. Furthermore, the provision by which costs of conferences would be apportioned only among participants may tend to discourage participation in important meetings. These arrangements also make each conference a self-contained, and even independent, process of international co-operation among its participants, which detracts from the structural unity customarily pursued by international organizations.
- 33. In these circumstances, the Advisory Committee can only reiterate its view that there should be a fresh effort to revise the present financial arrangements with a view to the adoption of a budget form calculated to present a clear picture of all the expenses and activities of ITU.
- 34. The Plenipotentiary Conference in 1952 discussed certain proposals for a consolidated budget, and asked the Administrative Council to study the problems presented by the introduction of a consolidated budget and to report to the next plenipotentiary conference. The Advisory Committee understands that the forthcoming Plenipotentiary Conference (October 1959) will review this matter.

(3) Financial controls and audit

- 35. The budget itself virtually allots the credits and fixes the manning table for the regular staff. An internal procedure for the control of commitments to be incurred is laid down in an administrative instruction issued by the Secretary-General. It provides for the verification of credits available, justification of expenses, and identification of the accounts to which expenses should be charged.
- 36. Although the financial service of ITU applies certain pre-audit controls, there is no internal post-audit. The Advisory Committee formed the impression that an internal audit system would provide a useful strengthening of ITU's financial procedures, although the view of the secretariat was that having regard to the size of ITU and the proportion of expenditure arising from salaries and allowances, the cost of an internal audit system might not be justified in terms of the results which it could achieve. The Advisory Committee believes that in any event, the internal financial procedures of ITI might be reviewed to advantage.

37. As regards external audit, there is provision fo an audit of ITU's accounts, from the point of view o arithmetical and accounting accuracy, by the Swiss Gov ernment authorities and for a further examination o such accounts by a committee of the Administrativ Council. As early as November 1951, the Advisory Com mittee, while not questioning the financial advantage an quality of the existing arrangements, expressed the view that "the system cannot be regarded as providing, in strict sense, for an external audit and the benefit of cor structive criticism which can be derived therefrom". A that time the Committee suggested that "the Council ma wish to consider the advantages which might accrue fror the type of joint audit system approved by the Genera Assembly for the United Nations and specialized ager cies. (A/1971, para. 65) In any event, the Advisor Committee would see advantage in a broadening of th scope of the audit.

(4) Contribution scales and payment of contributions

- 38. The Convention provides that ordinary expense are to be borne by all members and associate member while extraordinary expenses relating to conferences at to be borne only by the participants in the conference. Contributions are assessed on a "unit basis". The Corvention lays down fourteen "classes" of contributor corresponding to units of 30, 25, 20, 18, 15, 14, 10, 8, 4, 3, 2, 1 and ½. Each contributor is free to choose hown class, so that the total number of units in the scal depends upon the choices made. Members and associat members must choose their class before the Conventio comes into force, but they may at any time decide t move to a higher class.
- 39. While contributions covering estimated ordinar expenses are payable in advance, conference expense thus far have been collected after the conference account are closed. Outstanding contributions towards ordinar expenses bear interest as from 1 January of the financity year to which they relate, at 3 per cent per annum for the first six months and 6 per cent per annum thereafte. Amounts due for extraordinary expenses bear intereas from thirty days after the date when ITU sends of the revelant accounts. The Convention does not provid any other sanctions for defaults in payments.
- 40. The experience in regard to the collection of cortributions can be considered generally satisfactory, a may be seen from the following table.

	Percentage of contributions paid in advance, i.e. before I January	Percentage of contribution paid by 31 December
1954	57.71	94.29
1955	60.61	95.56
1956	70.95	91.12
1957	62.55	96.34
1958	59.59	97.04
1959

The Advisory Committee is informed that in receivears the collection of contributions to the extraordinal nudget has also been generally satisfactory. For example, 10 per cent of the expenditure for 1958 meetings had seen recovered by 15 June 1959.

41. ITU has no working capital fund. Annual budget surpluses and sundry other balances are placed in a eserve account; although the financial regulations of .TU authorize the use of this account to finance current ash requirements, the account has not normally constiuted a cash reserve. The Secretary-General of ITU has ilso authority to borrow from the Swiss Government when the organization needs cash; interest is payable on such borrowings at 4 per cent per annum. Although at one ime borrowings from the Swiss Government were neavy,22 in recent years there has been little need to porrow for ordinary expenses, owing largely to the high proportion of annual contributions received in advance. However, since extraordinary expenses are not covered n that way, borrowings are usually necessary to finance my heavy conference programme.23

(5) Conditions of service in ITU

- 42. With regard to salaries, allowances, and social security and pension benefits, ITU is not part of the United Nations "common system". Its salary scales and allowance rates differ from those of the United Nations and it has a different grading structure. Thus posts corresponding to the professional category have lower salary scales and lower allowances than in the common system.²⁴
- 43. ITU has an autonomous pension arrangement which at present entails the existence of three separate Funds: one which in effect is limited to staff employed before 1949; a second for permanent staff recruited since 1949, but which would be extremely onerous for ITU were it not for the fact that the majority of staff recruited in recent years have been kept on a "temporary" basis and excluded from the Pension Fund; the third being the Savings Fund in which non-permanent officials are placed. About one-half of the total staff of ITU is in the Savings Fund which provides certain widows' and disability pensions but which provides "savings capital" in lieu of retirement pensions. While generalization is difficult, in view of the existence of three separate schemes, it would nevertheless seem that (a) the death and disability benefits are much better in ITU than in the United Nations, and (b) the ITU scheme provides much better retirement benefits for permanent officials who enter at later ages. 25 It may be noted also that the three funds are administered by a Management Board which is composed wholly of officials of ITU.
- 44. Members of IFRB are not members of any of the ITU superannuation funds. Instead, ITU pays to a personal account for each member a sum equal to 15 per cent of the annual salary. The member should also pay at least 5 per cent of his salary to this account. The total may be used by the member to make any insurance arrangements which he deems appropriate; he may not use the credits in his account for any other purpose until his service on IFRB has ceased.

- 45. In 1957, the Administrative Council decided in principle that ITU should adopt the conditions of service of the United Nations common system, and certain transitional measures were authorized effective 1 January 1958. It is expected that concrete proposals to implement the decision of principle will be considered by the forthcoming (October 1959) Plenipotentiary Conference.
- 46. Given certain elements in the ITU salary and pension system which are less favourable and other elements which are more favourable than in the United Nations common system, any attempt to assimilate conditions of service in ITU to those of the common system should relate to the entire range of the system. There would be serious difficulty if the effort were directed at retaining the more advantageous elements concurrently with the improvement of the less favourable ones. The Advisory Committee trusts therefore that participation in the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund will accompany any move in ITU to adopt the United Nations salary and allowance system.

IV. Participation of ITU in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance

- 47. While the normal work of ITU under its ordinary, extraordinary and publications budgets is almost wholly of a regulatory nature,26 ITU participates in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance in order to provide technical aid for the development of national telecommunication systems. ITU has a special arrangement with the United Nations by which it deals only with the technical aspects of its projects under the programme, with administrative, financial and other servicing arrangements provided by the United Nations. Thus ITU discusses with the requesting Government (usually with the national telecommunication administration) the technical details of the project and, after the project is approved through normal country-programming procedures, ITU makes recommendations regarding the selection of the necessary experts or fellows. The United Nations obtains the Government's approval of the candidatures, assesses salaries in consultation with ITU, and provides all further administrative and financial services to the project.
- 48. During the operation of the project, ITU provides the necessary technical guidance as well as assistance in the preparation of any technical studies and reports.
- 49. Under the Secretary-General of ITU, a senior counsellor, whose salary is paid out of the ITU budget, is responsible for all technical assistance matters. He is assisted by a small technical assistance unit, consisting of two professional officials and a secretary, the related costs being financed from the Special Account allocation. In addition, about ten senior officials of ITU devote varying proportions of their time to technical assistance activities by providing information and making comments on the technical matters related to their own field of activity.

²³ The total of outstanding advances at present is of the order of 1.5 million Swiss francs, which is considered more or less as a current operating need.

²⁶ A special joint committee on technical assistance of the CCIR and CCITT made a number of recommendations in 1957 most of which were not complied with, as they could not be financed by ITU. However, a recommendation providing for an inter-administration exchange of technical handbooks and films has been followed up.

50. The Advisory Committee understands that these arrangements have worked satisfactorily from the point of view of ITU, and have at the same time been economical to the programme as a whole. Nevertheless, as the Committee is informed, in order to simplify the management of ITU technical assistance activities, the possible transfer to ITU of the related administrative functions will be considered by the Plenipotentiary Conference of 1959.

51. The extent of the assistance given by ITU under the Expanded Programme is reflected in the following table of ITU expenditure under the programme during the period 1951-1958:

Table 3

EXPENDITURES UNDER THE EXPANDED PROGRAMME OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE (1951-1958)

	1951	1952	1953	1954	1955 United States	1956 s dollars	1957	1958	Total
Project costs		-	129,172	161,869	205,257	248,267	273,901	356,589	1,375,055
al services costs	_		11,129	13,875	12,842	14,712	20,828	24,839	98,225

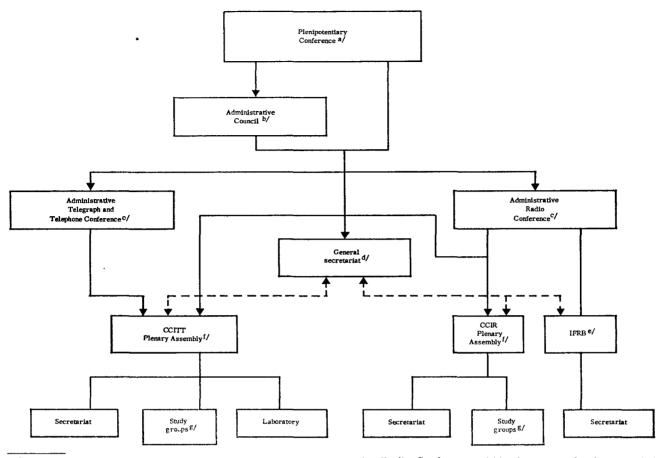

- 52. The Technical Assistance Board has, in 1959, approved the setting-up of the first regional project in the telecommunication field under the Expanded Programme. The project, which is a joint ITU-United Nations (Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East) project, is designed to assist the countries of the Asia and Far East region in developing their telecommunication systems.
- 53. As regards the legislative review of ITU's Expanded Program activities, the Administrative Council is provided, at its annual spring session, with a report on these activities for the current year. While this procedure keeps the Council informed of ITU's technical assistance work, it makes it difficult for the Council to relate that work to the activities under the regular budget for the same year.
- 54. The Advisory Committee understands, in regard to the interest of ITU in the United Nations Special Fund, that the Administrative Council has authorized the Secretary-General of ITU to co-operate fully and actively in the work of the Fund.

V. Co-ordination with other organizations

- 55. The International Telecommunication Union cooperates with the United Nations and several of the specialized agencies which have common interests with ITU. Such collaboration is particularly close with ICAO and WMO, which have special and important interests in the field of telecommunications. In addition, ITU has frequent contacts with UNESCO, which is interested in the role of telecommunications in connexion with freedom of information. ITU expects to establish close relations also with the new Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization.
- 56. It will be seen from earlier sections of the present report that, for various historical reasons, ITU is some-

- what distinct from the United Nations and almost all of the specialized agencies in regard to such matters as financial regulations, staff regulations, and salary, allowance and pension systems.
- 57. As regards administrative co-ordination, the participation of ITU in common arrangements of other Geneva organizations is limited to the United Nations Joint Purchasing Service and the inter-organization arrangements regarding such questions as the rates of pay for temporary conference staff. ITU makes little or no use of the conference and internal printing facilities of the United Nations in the Palais des Nations, as these are considered by the Union to be too expensive apart from the fact that the different location of ITU also creates some difficulty. Although every effort should be made to keep the expenditures of ITU as low as possible, the use of facilities external to the United Nations system constitutes a direct outgo for the Governments of the system as a whole. On the other hand, the use of facilities within the system, even at slightly higher rates of reimbursement, constitutes only a transfer from one pocket to another for the member States, although it is equally important that the operating costs of the facilities should be in the interests of economy for the system as a whole. The Advisory Committee will keep this matter under review, with a view both to the economical operation of the facilities in the Palais and to the development of closer co-operation among the Geneva organizations in the use of these facilities.
- 58. The Advisory Committee understands that construction work for the new ITU headquarters building at Geneva, the foundation stone of which was laid in May 1958, began in May 1959. The building should be ready for occupancy during the summer of 1961. The new headquarters building is being constructed by the Canton of Geneva under arrangements agreed upon between the Canton and ITU, and will be leased to ITU with an option to purchase.

I. Introduction

(1) General comments

1. Over the period 1956 to 1959 the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions undertook, at the headquarters of the various organizations which participate in the United Nations Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance,²⁷ special studies of matters relating to administrative and budgetary co ordination between those organizations and the United Nations, with particular reference to the operation o the Expanded Programme and has submitted detailed reports on such matters to various sessions of the Genera Assembly.²⁸

²⁷ The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Monetary Fund, the Universal Postal Union and the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization, are not participating organizations of the Expanded Programme.

See also in the present fascicle the studies concerning IAEA (A/4135) and the ITU (A/4148).

(2) Nature of the special studies

- 2. These special studies were based on resolution 884 IX) of 14 December 1954, by which the General Asembly invited the attention of the specialized agencies o the recommendations and suggestions contained in he report of the Advisory Committee on the administraive budgets of the specialized agencies for 195529 and he views expressed on this subject in the Fifth Comaittee at the ninth session of the Assembly (481st meetng). The relevant report of the Fifth Committee A/2861, para. 10) included an authorization to the Advisory Committee "to respond favourably to any nvitation received from a specialized agency to continue t the headquarters of such agency the study of adminstrative and budgetary co-ordination between the United Vations and the specialized agencies, including the quesions (on technical assistance matters) raised in its first eport to the ninth session of the General Assembly $(\hat{A}/2661)$. At the tenth session of the General Assembly, he Fifth Committee reiterated this authorization (A/3098, para. 8).
- 3. The Advisory Committee interpreted the mandate which it received from the General Assembly and the Fifth Committee as calling for a broad over-all review of the general problems of administrative and budgetary 20-ordination, giving particular attention to the operation of the Expanded Programme. Accordingly, each of the special reports has been directed particularly to the problem, in the organization under study, of the utilizaion of the Expanded Programme funds within a total integrated programme of activities, taking account, at the same time, of considerations of an over-all administrative and budgetary character. The main effort has been to identify and summarize those basic factors which particularly influence and determine what is practicable in the way of co-operation and co-ordination in the administrative and budgetary fields. These factors relate, in the main, to the structure of the organization, the scope of its programmes and the procedures followed as regards the development, review, approval and implementation of its programme and budget.
- 4. The special studies, in the Advisory Committee's view, constitute in themselves a useful element in the study of co-ordination among the members of the United Nations system, since they represent a first attempt to bring together, from a single, consistent vantage point, detailed information, based on an on-the-spot study, on the administrative, budgetary and programming procedures in the several agencies. At the same time, it has been the Advisory Committee's desire, in undertaking these studies, to submit to the Assembly, as it is now doing, an over-all report containing its conclusions and recommendations in regard to co-ordination generally and to the operation of the Expanded Programme in particular.
- 5. The Advisory Committee is aware that the studies have been spread over a substantial period of time, which has also resulted in the submission of the over-all report somewhat later than might have been anticipated in 1954 and 1955. On the other hand, the Committee has found it necessary to fit in this work with its regular and continuing responsibilities, and to take account of the circumstances of individual organizations. Furthermore, as regards the over-all report, the Committee has preferred to let some time pass after the issuance of most of its special reports in order to facilitate constructive discussion in the General Assembly and elsewhere of the comments contained in those reports as well as appropriate action by the organizations concerned.

(3) Application of priorities

6. The Advisory Committee has also attempted, alongside the preparation of the special reports, to isolate two major points. The first concerns the application of priorities in the context of constantly increasing budgets. The importance of this point, which has engaged the attention of the General Assembly for several years in the past, emerged even more clearly during the Committee's special studies. It appeared to the Committee that, with an increasing measure of international action in the economic and social fields, the basic issue was one of facilitating and regulating this growth in an orderly and meaningful fashion, so that a maximum return from increasing outlays might be assured. It was therefore necessary, in the Committee's view, to undertake an appraisal of the scope, trend and probable cost of the programmes which might be undertaken by the United Nations and the specialized agencies in the economic and social fields during the ensuing period of five or six years. The Advisory Committee raised this problem in its report on the 1957 budgets of the specialized agencies³⁰ and the General Assembly, by resolution 1094 (XI) of 27 February 1957, set in motion the developments leading to the programme appraisals for the period 1959-1964 which are currently being made under the auspices of the Economic and Social Council. The Committee hopes that its special reports, when examined in connexion with these five-year appraisals which are due to be completed during 1960, will prove complementary and helpful to the Council's over-all study of programmes for the next five years.

(4) Allocation of administrative and operational services' costs

7. The second issue which the Advisory Committee isolated in advance has to do with the allocation of the administrative and operational services' costs of technical assistance between the regular budgets of the organizations and the Special Account of the Expanded Programme. This question has since also engaged the attention of the Technical Assistance Committee and the Economic and Social Council. Some progress on this point was made in 1958 when, acting on the recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/3832) as generally endorsed by the Technical Assistance Committee,31 the Economic and Social Council adopted resolution 702 (XXVI) of 31 July 1958. By this resolution, the Council requested the participating organizations to take the necessary steps to enable (a) the consolidation in the regular budgets of the organizations of all administrative and operational services expenses, and (b) the consolidated review of these expenses by the legislative bodies of the organizations. It was also decided that the allocation from the Special Account towards these costs in 1959 for each organization would be in the form of a lump-sum amount which would not exceed the corresponding allocations in 1958; generally similar provisions were made in respect of subsequent years also.

²⁹ Official Records of the General Assembly, Ninth Session, Annexes, agenda item 43, document A/2835.

³⁰ Ibid., Eleventh Session, Annexes, agenda item 49, document A/3489, paras. 6 and 7.

³¹ Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, Twenty-sixth Session, Annexes, agenda item 8, document E/3175.

- 8. The Advisory Committee has since studied this question further, and has suggested (A/4130) that, barring substantial changes in the size of the programme, and subject to a measure of flexibility of application, the lump-sum contribution from the Special Account to the regular budget of an organization towards meeting its administrative "overhead", should be brought down, over the next few years, to 12 per cent of the project allocations to the organization.
- 9. One of the reasons for this series of recommendations is the fact that with the growing integration of programmes—which is a desirable and, indeed, essential development—it is increasingly difficult to identify that portion of the total administrative overhead of an organization that may be attributed to its Expanded Programme activities. For the same reason, and in view of the changed approach to this problem, the Advisory Committee has not dealt in the present report with the question of the identifiable administrative costs of the Expanded Programme activities of the organizations, although the matter was covered, subject to its limitations, in the Committee's special studies and the related individual reports on the organizations.

(5) Other related reports

10. The present report should be read in conjunction, not only with the reports on the individual organizations, but also with the several reports which the Advisory Committee has made since 1954 on the subject of the Expanded Programme and of co-ordination between the United Nations and the specialized agencies.³² The present report should be considered in the light also of the fact that the Advisory Committee annually examines in detail, and reports on administrative and budgetary matters relating to the United Nations, including the administration of the Organization's technical assistance programme, as well as its relationships with the specialized agencies.³³

II. EXPANDED PROGRAMME OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

(1) General comments

11. The Advisory Committee's 1954 report on the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance (A/2661) was directed mainly to an overall examination of the general administrative procedures and expenses of that Programme. Following consideration of this report by the Technical Assistance Committee of the Economic and Social Council and by the Council itself (resolution 584 B (XX) of 23 July 1955) and the Advisory Committee's comments on the results of the Council's consideration,³⁴ it was found that certain points in the earlier study merited further examination. The mo important among these points related to the arrangemen and procedures within the participating organizations respect of technical assistance. Accordingly, emphasis have placed in the special studies and in the present r port on the practices obtaining within individual organizations.

(2) Central direction of the programme

- 12. The Advisory Committee desires, however, 1 offer at this point some observations as regards the cer tral administration and direction of the Expanded Programme. A practice has been established in recent year by which the Technical Assistance Committee request the Advisory Committee to examine the annual budge estimates of the central administrative costs of the Programme, covering the expenses of the Technical Assistance Board secretariat, its field offices and certain join administrative costs. In undertaking this annual review the Advisory Committee will continue to examine the administrative practices in respect of the over-all direction of the Programme, as distinct from the administration of the Programme within each organization.
- 13. In its consultations at the headquarters of the par ticipating organizations, the Advisory Committee ha confirmed its earlier impression that the organizations arrangements for the Expanded Programme, which in clude the Technical Assistance Board, have a tendenc to duplicate the machinery which exists, in the Adminis trative Committee on Co-ordination and its subsidiar bodies, for the co-ordination of the activities of th United Nations and its associated agencies. The Com mittee has, of course, noted with interest that some effor has been made to overcome the disadvantages inherent in these arrangements by the ACC taking a more positiv role in regard to the over-all direction of the Expander Programme. The Committee nevertheless continues to believe that neither the best interests of the organization and of Member Governments nor the administrative effi ciency and co-ordination of their activities, will be served by undue emphasis, at all levels of the organizationa structure and of the machinery for co-ordination, on the differences in the source and method of financing of the regular budgetary programmes, on the one hand, and o the Expanded Programme, on the other. This is all the more so for two reasons. In the first place, as will be seen from later sections of the present report, the work o: the organizations in the economic and social fields, regardless of source of financing, is increasingly becoming predominantly operational in character, with emphasis on direct assistance to individual Member States of groups of Member States. Secondly, along with a growing identity of the memberships of the organizations and contributors to the Special Account of the Expanded Programme, the patterns of contributions to the regular budgets and the Special Account may be tending to become increasingly similar.

(3) Legislative direction of the programme

14. The Advisory Committee would like to make one other comment about the central direction of the Expanded Programme. For various reasons, arrangements for the legislative authority and control of the Expanded Programme have been developed in such a way that a subsidiary organ of the Economic and Social Council is vested with administrative and budgetary responsibilities which, in respect of the regular programmes of the Organization in the economic and social fields, are not assigned to the Council itself. Thus, while legislative authority for administrative and budgetary matters in respect of basic programmes belongs exclusively to the General Assembly and its Administrative and Budgetary (Fifth) Committee, similar authority in respect of the Expanded Programme rests largely with TAC. Even where the General Assembly is involved, as in the matter of confirmation of allocations made by TAC, the Fifth Committee has no defined responsibilities in regard to the programme. It may be argued that, together with an integration of programmes and of programming procedures, there should also be an integration of administrative and budgetary procedures at the legislative level. Some progress has been made towards such integration by the present arrangements for the review of various administrative and budgetary aspects of the Expanded Programme by the Advisory Committee. Further progress in this matter would seem to lie in the direction of associating the Administrative and Budgetary Committee of the General Assembly with the legislative review of those aspects.

III. GROWTH AND SCOPE OF REGULAR AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAMMES

- 15. Annex I to the present report includes information on the expenditures of each organization, for the years 1951 to 1959: (a) under the regular budget of the organization; (b) on activities of a "technical assistance" nature within the regular budget; and (c) under the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance.
- 16. Both the amount and relative size of the expenditures under the Expanded Programme, by comparison with the regular budget, vary from organization to organization; and so does the proportion of regular budget funds spent on activities of a "technical assistance" nature as distinct from the more traditional activities of the organizations (regulatory and standard-setting functions, collection and dissemination of statistics, and research, studies and reports). Nevertheless, two broad conclusions emerge from the tables in the annex. First, the total activities of the organizations include strikingly large operational programmes, and secondly, technical assistance financed from regular budgets has been increasing over the years and this trend is likely to continue.

IV. INTEGRATION: GENERAL COMMENTS

- 17. In its earlier report (A/2661), the Advisory Committee expressed concern that the participating organizations, with few exceptions, tended to the view that Expanded Programme activities should "pay their way," with the Special Account of that Programme meeting all the related administrative costs as well. The Committee has studied further the situation in this regard in each of the participating organizations, and its findings and observations have been submitted in its individual reports on the organizations. While it is not intended to try to repeat or summarize here those detailed observations, certain basic information on the procedures followed in the several organizations is brought together to provide a basis for drawing meaningful conclusions. The problem of integration of activities is dealt with in three phases: the planning, review and approval stages; implementation at headquarters; and implementation in the field.
- 18. The term "integration" has come to be used, in international organizations, rather loosely to indicate a number of different connotations, and sometimes synony-

- mously with the concept of co-ordination. It is therefore necessary at this point to define the particular sense in which the term "integration" is used in this report in the three contexts mentioned in the preceding paragraph:
- (a) "Integration" as applied to the planning, review and approval of programmes is intended to denote the simultaneous planning of a consolidated and rational total programme, regardless of the fact that different elements in that programme are to be financed from different sources, and the simultaneous review of this consolidated programme by a legislative body.
- (b) "Integration" at headquarters is used to indicate the unification of the organizational arrangements at the headquarters of an organization in respect of its regular programme, on the one hand, and the Expanded Programme, on the other, and a similar unification of administrative and financial arrangements and procedures, as well. This type of integration also covers the fullest utilization of existing facilities, and, naturally, facilitates integration at the planning stage (i.e., paragraph 18 (a) above) as well as at the stage of execution.
- (c) "Integration" in the field similarly denotes unification and consolidated use of the organizational arrangements in the field, and of such programming, administrative and financial facilities and responsibilities as are assigned to the field offices. This concept also covers the maximum utilization of the offices of the TAB resident representatives as well as of the existing field facilities of the organization itself, and, naturally, facilitates integration at the planning and execution stages.

V. Integration: Planning and review of programmes

(1) Summary of agency procedures

- 19. The activities of the organizations under the Expanded Programme are planned, reviewed and approved in accordance with the procedures for country programming set forth in Economic and Social Council resolution 542 B II (XVIII) of 29 July 1954. The application of these procedures to the programmes of the organization follows broadly the same general pattern, although in some cases certain further emanations of these procedures have been adopted in order to achieve better co-ordination with the formulation and review of regular programmes.
- 20. The procedures for the planning and review of regular programmes vary among the organizations. These procedures in respect of each organization are described in the individual special reports of the Advisory Committee; a brief outline is given below, with an indication of how co-ordination between the regular and Expanded Programme activities is attempted at the planning and review stages.
- (a) ILO: Much of the work under the regular budget consists mainly of standard-setting or legislative work, and research and information, with only limited activities of a direct "technical assistance" nature. The regular programme is developed on an annual basis, within long-term policies laid down by the International Labour Conference and by the Governing Body with the assistance of a number of advisory committees and of the International Labour Office. Expanded Programme activities are conceived as practical extensions of basic functions and as a logical and useful complement to the standard-setting work. On this basis, there is a good measure of co-ordinated planning of activities within the secretariat, with each substantive division participating or assisting in the formulation of all ILO activities in its field. The field offices of the ILO also play an important part in the planning of both regular and Expanded Programme work affecting their respective geographical regions. Nevertheless, owing largely to the differing time-schedules in the planning, and in the discussions relating to the planning, of the two programmes, neither the Governing Body nor the Conference is provided with proposals for a consolidated and integrated programme of work covering all activities.

- (b) FAO: The regular programme of FAO consists essentially of research, studies and information in the several fields of interest to the organization, the promotion of national action in these several fields and the adoption of international policies, particularly with regard to agricultural commodity arrangements. Although the Constitution of FAO provides, as a function of the organization, the furnishing of such technical assistance as Governments may request, there is no specific element for technical assistance in FAO's regular budget. The regular programme is formulated on a biennial basis within the general provisions of the Constitution and the decisions and directives of the Conference. The draft programme and budget, as prepared by the Director-General, include estimates, for the first of the two years of the biennial period in question, of the administrative and operational services costs chargeable to the Expanded Programme, while information on the projects to be financed under that Programme is given in respect only of the year preceding the budget period, inasmuch as information concerning the programme for the two years would not as yet be available. The programme and budget document is reviewed by the Council of FAO with the assistance of its Programme and Finance Committees either jointly or separately and, subsequently, by the Conference. The regional representatives submit to headquarters their proposals for incorporation in the regular programme of work and budget for the future period on the basis of the recommendations of the regional conferences and in the light of their visits to member countries. They also make suggestions regarding activities to be proposed to individual Governments for inclusion in their future technical assistance country programmes.
- (c) UNESCO: A substantial part of UNESCO's regular programme consists of "special activities" which, broadly speaking, are in the nature of technical assistance. Specific mention should be made in this regard of the Participation or Aid to Member States Programme. UNESCO's draft programme and budget proposals are formulated some twenty months in advance of the beginning of the financial period to which they relate. Nevertheless, it is understood that, even at the initial planning and review stages, every effort is made to ensure coordination between regular and Expanded Programme activities:
- (i) First, the over-all budgetary allocations to the various programme disciplines under the regular budget are determined, bearing in mind the possible funds likely to be available under the technical assistance programme. This ensures a proper balance between various programmes taken as a whole.
- (ii) Regional technical assistance activities are planned as an integrated part of the various projects under the regular budget.
- (iii) Allocation of funds under the Participation Programme is made, bearing in mind the necessity for a higher allocation to fields for which technical assistance funds are not applicable, such as certain programmes in the field of cultural activities.

(iv) The draft proposed programme and budget which is sent to Member States, the United Nations and specialized agencies includes a projection of country and regional programmes of technical assistance in the various programme fields. This has the advantage of presenting the total amount of funds likely to be available for the various programme areas, irrespective of the source of funds.

Consequently, both the Executive Board when it reviews the draft programme and budget for the succeeding financial period as well as Member States have an opportunity to examine and develop the programme as a consolidated whole, covering both the regular budget as well as technical assistance.

(d) WHO: The regular annual programme of WHO since 1957 has been developed within the framework of the second general programme of work covering the period 1957-1960, in which, apart from the international, world-wide services of WHO, special emphasis is maintained on the provision of assistance for the development of national health services. Accordingly, a substantial portion of the regular budget is devoted to activities of a technical assistance nature. Preliminary planning in respect of the programme for any year is undertaken by the headquarters secretariat and the regional offices some two years in advance, on the basis of consultations with Governments and, as appropriate, other agencies. This is followed by the preparation of draft programme and budget estimates by each regional office in respect of its region, and by Headquarters in respect of central activities, all within firm target figures set by the Director-General. The relevant portions of the draft programme and budget are then examined by the regional committees and transmitted to headquarters, together with their comments and recommendations. (Each regional committee is composed of the representatives of the member States and associate members of the region.) The programme and budget estimates, which include the regional programmes consolidated and proposed by the Director-General, are submitted to and reviewed by the Executive Board in January of the year preceding the programme and budget year, and subsequently by the World Health Assembly. In order to overcome the difficulty caused by the differing time-tables for the regular and Expanded Programmes and by the differing financial basis and programming procedures of the two programmes, WHO has made arrangements under which the regional offices undertake with Governments preliminary, though purely tentative, consultations in regard to the planning of Expanded Programme projects pari passu with the planning of projects under the regular budget. Such consultations assume, for purposes of tentative planning, that the level of funds available in the programme year concerned would remain approximately the same as in the current year. Similar consultations are simultaneously held also in respect of the parts of the programme of WHO financed from other extra-budgetary funds. These procedures have made it possible to integrate within the general structure and work of the organization, projects financed from the different sources of funds, and also to make available to the legislative organs and member Governments of WHO comprehensive information on all programmes proposed for a given year, even though the material relating to the technical assistance programme is of a tentative nature.

(e) In the case of ICAO, ITU and WMO, the annual regular programme, consisting almost wholly of standard-setting and regulatory work, is established by the appropriate governing body under general work programmes for a longer period approved by the supreme legislative body of the organization. Generally speaking, there is little legislative consideration or discussion of Expanded Programme activities simultaneously with regular programmes of work for the same period.

(2) Progress of integration

- 21. It will be seen from the foregoing analysis that some progress has been achieved in several agencies in the integration, within a single planning and review process, of technical assistance and other programmes. At the same time, in the view of the Advisory Committee, there is scope for further efforts in this regard, so that governing bodies may have the opportunity to participate adequately in the task of relating technical assistance to regular programmes and vice versa.
- 22. It has been represented that the problem mentioned in the preceding paragraph is rendered difficult by the following considerations:
- (a) For any given year, the Expanded Programme is planned on a firm basis generally six to twelve months later than the regular programmes; in some cases, where the regular budget is on a biennial basis, the time-gap is still longer in respect of the programmes for the second year of the biennial period;
- (b) The voluntary character of contributions to the Expanded Programme gives rise to fluctuations in the level of available resources;
- (c) Under the revised procedures for the allocation of funds on the basis of country programmes, the requests which Governments will include in those programmes cannot be foreseen.
- 23. While there is some validity in the above argument, the difficulties in the situation are by no means insuperable, provided certain adjustments and modifications of procedures are entertained. The consideration at point (b) above should not affect the possibility of tentative planning, of the kind developed in WHO, of the programme on the basis of an assumed level of available funds. Considerations (a) and (c) are closely related and might be met through the gradual evolution of procedures directed towards appropriately advancing provisional planning of technical assistance programmes so as to coincide with the planning of projects financed from the regular budget and, indeed, from any other source. Such an approach is also likely to encourage recipient Governments to entertain a greater measure of advance planning of their own country programme requests. There would be advantage also in a consideration by the TAB and TAC of the possibility of providing for some degree of long-term planning in advance within the framework of the country programme procedures.

(3) Longer-term planning of programmes

24. The fact that a significant proportion of the total programme is made up of continuing projects would facilitate, and indeed justify, this approach. Present procedures, rigidly adhered to, have probably entailed unnecessary effort in the annual re-programming of continuing projects, which occasionally gives rise also to the possibility of an interruption of the project before it is completed.

- 25. A further reason for, and advantage of, longer-term planning lies in the direction of administrative improvements and a greater degree of co-ordination, both of programmes and of administrative structures and procedures. No doubt such longer-term planning should provide for some flexibility to adjust programmes to meet changing requirements and to facilitate proper co-ordination with related programmes.
- 26. The Advisory Committee has accordingly noted with interest the efforts that are being made in TAB and TAC towards a simplification of the procedures in this regard, and particularly the proposals which TAB has recently submitted to TAC (E/TAC/84) concerning two-year programming and the provision for continuing projects.
- 27. As regards legislative review of programmes, while there exists separate machinery (TAB, TAC, ECOSOC and the General Assembly) for review and approval of the Expanded Programme as a whole, the responsibility for relating each organization's activities under that Programme with its regular programme and vice versa, and for ensuring the technical soundness and integrity of all programmes, must rest with the legislative bodies of that organization. It is therefore gratifying that governing bodies of the several organizations are devoting increasing attention to the review of activities under the Expanded Programme, even if such review does not take place simultaneously with their examination of regular programmes.

(4) Administrative and budgetary review of programmes

- 28. Governing bodies have also been faced with increasingly difficult tasks in administrative and budgetary fields, especially as a result of the separate lines of legislative review and control, not merely as regards programming functions but also in respect of administrative expenses, that have evolved for differently financed programmes. There was a tendency in earlier years to consider that every financial source which provides for operational programmes must also pay its own administrative overhead more or less independently of existing administrative services, with the result that a separate pocket of administrative organization and expenditure was considered appropriate for each programme. This, in turn, led to the establishment of a separate line of legislative authority for the review and control of each such group of administrative expenditure, even where it formed a part, often difficult to identify, of a total overhead. This phase of the problem of legislative review has been met fairly satisfactorily with the request of the Economic and Social Council (resolution 702 (XXVI) of 31 July 1958) that the regular budget should include also the cost of administering Expanded Programme activities, with an appropriate lump-sum credit to that budget from the Expanded Programme as a contribution towards the total overhead. This practice, which nearly all the organizations have agreed to adopt, will encourage and facilitate a meaningful legislative review of total organizational and administrative costs of each organization by its appropriate legislative bodies.
- 29. The examination of questions relating to total administrative organization and expenditure calls for expertise and experience of such matters as they affect or arise in international organizations. While the review by governing bodies of these issues appears to meet essential needs in regard to the proper execution and administrative control of programmes, machinery to help those bodies and other legislative organs in this task, including qualified expert committees, is often inadequate. This point is of particular importance in specialized organizations inasmuch as the governing bodies of those organizations tend to have serving on them individuals who are qualified in the specialized field of the organization concerned but may sometimes be less experienced in administrative and financial matters.

VI. Integration: implementation at headquarters of organizations

(1) Summary of agency procedures

- 30. In its individual reports on the participating organizations, the Advisory Committee has described the organizational, administrative and financial arrangements and procedures in each organization in respect of the conduct of its activities under the Expanded Programme. The Committee has also indicated the extent to which these arrangements and procedures coincide, or are co-ordinated, with similar arrangements and procedures under the regular budget.
- 31. In order to lend meaning to the Committee's overall conclusions in this regard, a brief note on the situation in each organization follows:
- (a) ILO: The organizational arrangements at headquarters place on each substantive division responsibility for the technical aspects of the entire work of the International Labour Office which falls within its field of competence, whether such work is financed from the regular or Expanded Programme budget. The technical aspects in question cover such phases of technical assistance as technical advice on projects, assistance in the establishment of project and job descriptions and in the selection of experts, advice to the experts during the execution of projects, and review of experts' reports. The internal co-ordination of secretariat responsibilities in regard to technical assistance is ensured through the Programme Board 36 which is advisory to the Director-General. Necessary personnel, budgetary, accounting and other services are provided by the normal administrative, financial and other services of the Office, strengthened as appropriate. The residual responsibilities in regard to the Programme have been vested since 1957 in a separate Field Services Division (eighteen posts) which is merely a servicing unit. Thus the Division provides a secretariat to the Programme Board, assists the Deputy Director-General in attendance at TAB and related meetings, channels and processes reports from the field, co-ordinates the work of the field offices and the briefing of experts. These headquarters arrangements are supplemented by five field offices (see annex II) which play an important part in the planning, implementation and evaluation of both regular and Expanded Programme activities in their respective regions. Under the direction of headquarters, and in liaison with TAB resident representatives, they give advice, both of a general and a technical character, to the Governments concerned, thus enabling the latter to formulate their requests for assistance on the basis of national priorities.
- (b) FAO: Following the 1958 reorganization of the secretariat, each technical division is responsible for an integrated programme of work covering both technical assistance and regular world-wide functions, with the over-all responsibilities of programming under all programmes placed in the Programme and Budgetary Service in the Office of the Director-General. This Service is responsible also for the central functions relating to participation in the Expanded Programme such as attendance at TAB and related meetings and central reporting functions. The function of liaison between headquarters and the field with respect to all activities of FAO is the responsibility of the Director of the Programme and Budgetary Service and is carried out, within that Service, by the Field Operation Liaison Branch. The headquarters units receive much functional assistance from the five regional offices (and three suboffices) and forty-eight country representatives of FAO (see annex II). The regional offices, which are kept informed of the activities in the countries within their region by the respective country representatives, are responsible for following the development and execution of FAO activities and relationships in the areas assigned to them. All necessary personnel, budgetary, accounting and other services in respect of Expanded Programme activities are performed by the relevant regular services of the organization, strengthened as appropriate.

- (c) UNESCO: Since the Advisory Committee's special study of UNESCO in May 1956 (A/3166) and following suggestions made therein, efforts have been made for close co-ordination within the secretariat as regards the implementation of the several programmes. The substantive programme departments are responsible for advising and co-ordinating the activities both under regular and technical assistance programmes. Similarly the various administrative bureaux provide the necessary administrative services for both programmes. The dayto-day administration of the technical assistance programme is entrusted to the Bureau of Relations with Member States which works closely with programme departments on substantive matters and with administrative bureaux on administrative questions. Furthermore, to ensure more efficient co-ordination between the Participation Programme and technical assistance activities, the administration of the former is also entrusted to the Bureau of Relations with Member States. This has the advantage of closely inter-linking the aid offered under the two categories, drawing on the advice of programme departments on technical and substantive questions.
- (d) ICAO: The general principle accepted by the ICAO Council concerning the administration of the Expanded Programme is that the funds of that Programme should be used to pay for its administration, and that no appreciable burden should be placed on the staff provided under the regular budget. This principle is reflected in the fact that, apart from accounting functions, all other administrative responsibilities are concentrated in a separate Technical Assistance Bureau (fifteen posts, including two outposted in Beirut) which is financed from the Special Account. Even in respect of accounting functions, the staff involved (five posts), while administratively forming part of the regular Accounts Section, are paid out of Special Account funds.
- (e) WHO: The offices and divisions, including the regional offices, in the basic structure of WHO are responsible for all activities within their respective fields, including activities under the Expanded Programme. The operation of Expanded Programme projects entails an increase in the workload of the various offices and services, at headquarters and in the regions, in addition to which there are some centralized accounting, reporting nd liaison functions at headquarters exclusively related the Expanded Programme. The Organization's central esponsibilities resulting from its participation in the expanded Programme are dealt with by the substantive rganizational units at headquarters. The augmented orkload of the offices and services is met by supplementary staff financed in part from the organization's dministrative and operational services allocations under the Expanded Programme.

(f) ITU and WMO deal only with the technical spects of their projects under the Expanded Proramme, with administrative, accounting and other ervicing arrangements provided by the United Nations. The responsibilities of ITU and WMO under this sysm, including the central functions of liaison with TAB and the United Nations (Bureau of Technical Assistance perations, formerly the Technical Assistance Administration), are carried out by a small technical assistance nit (four posts in ITU and six posts in WMO).

(2) Progress of integration

- 32. For organizations where the regular programme id not include any operational element of the technical ssistance type, participation in the Expanded Proramme meant the beginning of a new type of activity. In nese organizations and, to a less extent, in some others s well, the technical assistance programme was initially onceived as a somewhat independent operation, with a eparate structural and administrative arrangement ithin the organization. Over the years, an effort has een made often because of the need for co-ordination nd integration of the different types of work, to achieve unified system of services for the regular and Expanded 'rogramme activities. Naturally, this effort has met with reater success in organizations whose basic work under neir regular budgets is itself operational and where the expanded Programme means additional resources for n expansion of existing operational activities. In these ases, the question has mainly been one of identifying ne additional workload and expenditure that may be ttributed to the Expanded Programme.
- 33. It may be seen from the brief descriptions of the rrangements in each organization that there has not lways been an adequate measure of integration, at the eadquarters secretariat level, as between the regular nd Expanded programmes. Such integration, in the dvisory Committee's view, should be governed by the ollowing desiderata, subject of course to flexibility of pplication and adoption to the circumstances of indiidual organizations:
- (a) All substantive programme functions and responibilities related to assistance projects and their technical apport at headquarters should be vested in the relevant abstantive divisions.
- (b) Normal personnel, budgetary, financial and accunting functions in respect of the Expanded proramme should be handled by the regular administrative nd financial services of the organization.
- (c) There should only be a relatively small unit to take are of the strictly operational and liaison responsibilities icluding those relating to communication with Governments and resident representatives, participation in TAB and other central organs of the programme, and central eporting functions.
- 34. The Advisory Committee's approach in this matter as been governed by the twin principles laid down by the Economic and Social Council in resolution 222 A

- (IX) of 15 August 1949 that "the work undertaken by the participating organizations under the Expanded Technical Assistance Programme should be such as to be suitable for integration with their normal work" and that "within the wide range of activities envisaged, the participating organizations should practise concentration of effort and economy [and] ensure the fullest use of any existing facilities". Indeed these objectives can only be achieved through the evolution of unified services for all activities. For example, to take the case of a substantive or servicing division, the fullest use of its facilities can be ensured, not by the creation of a new unit to do some additional, more or less similar, work, but by first assigning such work to the existing division and then strengthening that division, if necessary, to meet any extra workload that cannot be absorbed within existing facilities.
- 35. With a growing measure of integration of the programmes themselves, which is essential for their maximum effectiveness, it has become increasingly difficult to identify the extra costs of servicing the Expanded Programme activities. This is also one of the reasons for the Advisory Committee's earlier recommendation for a consolidated presentation of all overhead costs, with an appropriate lump sum contribution towards those costs from the Expanded Programme Special Account.

(3) Procedures for financial control

36. The procedures for financial control of Expanded Programme activities are generally similar in all organizations to those applied in the case of their respective regular budgets, largely because most of the organizations have their basic financial regulations patterned after those that apply in the United Nations. Internal financial control in the organizations seems satisfactory as to technical assistance allocations as well as regular funds.

VII. Integration: implementation in the field

(1) Summary of agency procedures

- 37. Participating organizations have a wide range of responsibilities at the field level in regard to the Expanded Programme, including discussions with officials of recipient Governments in connexion with technical planning and content of projects, the provision of substantive support to projects and experts and their technical supervision, and the necessary function of administrative support and servicing. These responsibilities are fulfilled in a variety of ways, some of which may involve unnecessary expenditure, depending upon the manner in which technical assistance activities have been evolved in the organization, the nature of the regular programme and of the basic structure of the organization, the availability of the organization's own facilities in the field, the willingness of the organization to use the services of TAB resident representatives as well as the limitations to such use, and the degree of centralized control which the organization desires to exercise over its projects.
- 38. The situation in this regard in each organization is outlined below in brief terms; for details, reference may be made to the Advisory Committee's individual special reports. To some extent, the point has been covered, in passing, in the earlier sections of the present report. A list of the field offices of the specialized agencies is given in annex II to the present report.
- (a) ILO: The five field offices of the ILO play a significant part in the planning, implementation and evaluation of both regular and technical assistance programmes in their respective regions. Normally, discussions with officials of the recipient countries on planning of projects are held by officials of the field offices, who also exercise a broad supervision of projects and experts in their respective regions.

Full use is generally made of the services of TAB resident representatives in co-ordinating negotiations with the technical Ministries of Governments, and, more particularly, in co-ordinating the final consultations with the responsible planning unit of the Government concerned. In a number of countries it has been the practice for the resident representative to participate with the ILO field office in all discussions, while in others the resident representative has, by mutual agreement, confined his direct participation to the final stage of negotiations with the responsible government co-ordinating unit.

The administrative servicing of a project in the field is provided by the field office concerned or by the office of the resident representative. It is customary, where major regional projects such as the Andean Indian project are concerned, for a considerable amount of administrative support to be given by the field office in the region. In the case, however, of individual country projects, such support is normally provided through various channels: ILO headquarters, the interested field office, and the office of the resident representative.

The ILO has another and wider field organization in the network of branch offices (twelve) and national correspondents (thirty-two, most of the latter being employed on a part-time basis). The system of branch offices and national correspondents is non-operational in character, and was instituted in 1919 in order to maintain liaison with the Government, employers' organizations, and workers' organizations in the countries concerned and to keep ILO headquarters informed of local developments in the social and economic fields. At present, the branch offices also assist in certain duties related to the Expanded Programme, such as the recruitment of experts and the placement of fellows and trainees.

The Advisory Committee had expressed some doubt as to the need for two separate organizational structures in the field. The ILO has already suppressed the posts of correspondents in cities where a field office exists (Lima and Mexico City). The organization will keep the general question under review, and it is hoped that more integrated arrangements may be evolved to meet essential field responsibilities.

(b) FAO: Since the Advisory Committee's study of FAO, there has been a strengthening, as foreshadowed in that study (A/3598, paras. 30-32), of the regional offices of FAO largely through the outposting of additional technical staff to those offices. Attention has been drawn in paragraph 31 (b) above to the responsibilities of these offices and of the FAO country representatives for following the development of FAO activities and relationships in their respective areas. The strengthening of the regional structure is based on the Director-General's conclusion that, while the basic technical work of FAO can best be performed at a world centre, much of the direct advice and assistance to Governments can be provided most effectively and expeditiously on the basis of close local associations with member countries. As a result, the regional representatives now have closer association with member States, prepare, for consideration at headquarters, forward regional programmes of work, and actively participate in the negotiations relating to country programmes and in the review and evaluation of FAO projects in the region.

Where FAO has no country representative the TAI resident representative acts as its representative in respec of all technical assistance matters. In countries wher there are both TAB resident representatives and FAC country representatives, close contact and co-ordination is maintained at the programming and implementation stages. Certain administrative functions are performed in all countries by the TAB representatives on behalf of FAO.

- (c) UNESCO: UNESCO has one regional office a Havana which plays an important role in the implemen tation of the programme in the field, particularly in con nexion with the Education and Teacher-Training majo project for Latin America. The four field science co operation offices have not been able until now to play a active a role since their work has been related primarilto the execution of the natural sciences programme Nevertheless, steps are being taken to use their service more and more in the development of country pro grammes of technical assistance both at the planning and at the execution stages. The field science co-operation offices play an increasingly important role particularly in the case of training courses and seminars in the natura sciences and social science fields, held under the auspice of the technical assistance programme. The introduction of the biennial technical assistance budgets will facilitat better planning and integration of the regular and techni cal assistance programmes through the science co-opera tion offices. It is also understood that adequate measure will be taken to ensure closer co-ordination between UNESCO chiefs of missions and TAB resident repre sentatives, as appropriate.
- (d) ICAO: The five regional offices of ICAO, which are essentially functional offices of the Air Navigation Bureau of ICAO, do not normally participate in the planning or implementation of technical assistance projects; they have assisted in the programming of such projects on occasion but only where a representative from headquarters has not been able to visit a country Preliminary consultations with Governments concerning the technical aspects of ICAO projects are held by the respective country chiefs of mission of ICAO. ICAC also uses the services of TAB resident representative when a representative of ICAO is unable to visit a country to discuss the programme.

Administrative services in the field are provided, i the main, directly from ICAO headquarters.

(e) WHO: WHO, alone of the specialized agencies has special regional organizations established by it Constitution as an integral part of the organization. Th Health Assembly has defined six geographical areas an established six regional organizations, consisting of regional committee, composed of representatives of th member States and associate members in the region, an a regional office, to meet the special needs of each suc area. The regional committees meet annually to supervis the work of the regional offices, to plan programme within the region, to tender advice to the central organiza tion, through the Director-General, on matters of wide than regional significance, and to formulate policies gov erning matters of an exclusively regional character. I addition to the regional offices, there is a network o zonal, area and field offices covering the territories o most member States. The work of the organization i thus decentralized, with the regional offices as the primar centres of action with regard to the activities in the field Reference has already been made in paragraph $20 \ (d)$ above to the role of the regional and other field offices in the development of WHO programmes. The decentralized structure of WHO has also tended to diminish the organization's dependence on TAB resident representatives.

A considerable amount of technical support and practically all the administrative services required for projects, experts and fellows are provided by the appropriate regional office.

- (f) ITU and WMO have no field offices, and usually rely on TAB resident representatives for both programming discussions and the provision of administrative support which originates from the United Nations. Technical discussions relating to projects are undertaken by visiting officials of the organizations.
 - (2) Progress of integration and use of Technical Assistance Board resident representatives
- 39. In its 1954 report (A/2661, paras. 13-16), the Advisory Committee referred to the inadequate use of the services of TAB resident representatives and to the duplication of effort and expenditure involved in the dual system resulting from the use of resident representatives side by side with agency regional representatives. The Committee has noted from its special studies that the TAB resident representative system is now better understood and that the facilities offered by that system are utilized to an increasing extent at various stages of the technical assistance process, such as project planning, co-ordination of total country programmes, and project execution and evaluation. There are, no doubt, varying practical limitations to such use, especially at certain of the stages. Thus, the organizations consider it necessary to have their own expert representatives attend to technical aspects of programming and ensure the proper relationship between their Expanded Programme projects and their regular programmes, the latter not being within the responsibility of the TAB representatives.
- 40. The use of the services of resident representatives by an organization is also influenced by the nature and extent of the field structure which that organization already has, or finds it necessary to develop, in respect of its regular programmes. In this connexion, the Advisory Committee has noted that, with the shift of emphasis to programmes of direct assistance, there has been in all international organizations including, on the economic and social side, the United Nations, a strengthening of permanent organizational arrangements in the field. In many cases, existing regional offices, which in the past might have been designed essentially for undertaking research, studies, information and liaison, have increasingly acquired operational responsibilities. The character of national development plans and of internal governmental arrangements in regard to such plans may also influence the nature of the field structure of international organizations.
- 41. It is of interest that in recent years, following an expansion in the geographical coverage of the Expanded Programme, there has also been an increase in the number of TAB field offices from twenty-three in 1954 to thirty-four (see annex II) in 1959. In addition, supplementary services are furnished by five liaison offices and four correspondents (see annex II).
- 42. Given these developments, which are not without justification, emphasis should be placed on evolving a constructive unity of effort as between resident representative offices and agency regional and field offices. Care should be taken to avoid maintenance of separate agency offices and personnel in the field merely to perform functions which could appropriately be undertaken by resident representatives and their staffs. Such functions cover, in particular, the purely administrative responsibilities relating to the Expanded Programme. In this regard, it is interesting to note that the United Nations itself has found it desirable to review and rationalize its total field structure.

(3) Shift of emphasis to regional activities

- 43. The general expansion and strengthening of field apparatus in many of the organizations reflects a shift of emphasis to regional "approaches" in meeting the urgent problems relating to economic and social development of under-developed countries. The same trend is evident in other extra-budgetary programmes of the United Nations such as the United Nations Children's Fund and the United Nations Special Fund, although the latter is at present using TAB facilities in the field.
- 44. It appears to the Advisory Committee that, while the regional trend mentioned above may be valid and indeed useful, independent attempts by each of the organizations to provide regional facilities through the setting-up of networks of field offices may prove both uneconomical and confusing. They will also result in a situation where a Government seeking assistance from the United Nations system will be faced with a need which, in terms of time and cost, may be disproportionate to the assistance requested—to meet and deal with officials of a variety of international organizations in its territory. The co-ordination and efficient use of staff and facilities "in the field" appears to be one of the major administrative and budgetary problems of concern to the General Assembly in the next several years. In its inevitable bearing on co-ordination of the planning and execution of programmes, and of their content, the problem would hold an interest for the Economic and Social Council.

VIII. Co-ordination in general, and miscellaneous matters

(1) General comments

45. Any approach to the problem of co-ordination among the United Nations and its specialized agencies, whether as regards programmes or administrative and budgetary matters, is necessarily conditioned by the fact that each of the organizations is essentially autonomous. On the other hand, it is this very consideration that renders effective co-ordination among them both important and urgent to the success of their endeavours, severally and collectively. This need has been amply recognized in the United Nations Charter, which includes appropriate provisions for co-ordination between the United Nations and the several agencies in regard to programmes (Articles 57-60, 62-64, 66) as well as administrative and budgetary matters (Article 17, para. 3). The importance of the need to unite, in freedom, in a common endeavor of international co-operation is equally underlined in the constitutions of the specialized agencies as well as in the agreements between them and the United Nations. Accordingly, the emphasis should not be solely on the autonomy of the organizations, but also, to an equal extent, on a unity of effort, through effective action economically undertaken, towards common objectives.

(2) Importance of co-ordination at the national level

46. Axiomatic as the above consideration is, it derives added meaning in the fact that, for all practical purposes, all the organizations have essentially a common membership. The programmes and policies which the organizations individually adopt and pursue are determined by practically the same group of Governments, albeit gathered in different assemblies. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that the representatives of a Government speak with a single voice in the several organizations and take mutually consistent positions. The importance of such co-ordination at the national level has been emphasized by the General Assembly (resolution 125 (II)), the Economic and Social Council (resolutions 590 A (II) (XX)), 630 A II (XXII and 694 B I (XXVI)) and the Advisory Committee (A/3166, para. 35), and it cannot be reiterated too often.

(3) The question of a "consolidated budget"

47. The early awareness of the difficulties in the way of achieving fully effective co-ordination among the organizations is also probably reflected in the fact that the agreements between the United Nations and the specialized agencies provide, in some cases, (FAO and UNESCO) for consultations "concerning appropriate arrangements for the inclusion of the budget of the Organization within a general budget of the United Nations", and, in some others (ILO, ICAO, WHO and WMO) for consultations "concerning the desirability of making appropriate arrangements" for the same purpose.

48. The inclusion of the budgets of all the organizations in a consolidated budget of the United Nations would, of course, have contributed to a solution of the complex problems of co-ordination among them. On the other hand, such a concept was probably not very close to the considerations that governed the specific forms in which the specialized agencies were established, and could not be expected to become a reality so soon after the autonomy of the agencies had been accorded recognition. During the sixth session of the General Assembly, the Joint Second and Third Committee and the Fifth Committee, meeting jointly, considered a Norwegian proposal³⁷ which would have the Secretary-General study and report on the constitutional and practical problems in connexion with the adoption of a consolidated budget. The Committees reached the conclusion that "while study of the subject might be in some ways desirable, the time was not yet ripe for action in the matter. They considered that, while continuing their current efforts towards improved budgetary co-ordination, the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee should, at an appropriate time, give attention to the question and place it before a future session of the General Assembly.38 In 1952, the Advisory Committee studied this question further and expressed the view that "it would be premature to place the question before the General Assembly at its current seventh session", and that it would keep the question under continuous review. The Committee also recorded its opinion that, "irrespective of the precise date when the question is again brought before the Assembly, the long-term view of member States on the advantages of comprehensive budgeting will be largely influenced, and indeed may be determined, by the position taken by the executive heads of the United Nations and the specialized agencies in respect of common services and the co-ordination of services."³⁹ Since 1952, no further consideration has been given to the question of a consolidated budget.

(4) Progress in co-ordination through other means

49. Although the development of a consolidated budget, which might appear to be the simplest approach to co-ordination if other considerations were not present. has not been pursued further, some progress has been made, through alternative means, in a number of matters. Those means have included some measure of co-ordination at the national level and of mutual co-operation among legislative bodies of the several organizations, the efforts of the Economic and Social Council, and, of course, the co-operation and effort of the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the executive heads of the agencies. Among the more important matters, on the administrative and budgetary side, which have been the subject of varying degrees of co-ordination are the financial regulations and procedures of the organizations, including a common classification for expenditures and a joint system of audit; the regulations affecting staff, including a common salary, allowance and leave system; the Joint Staff Pension Fund and common provisions in regard to social security for staff; the development of common services, especially at Geneva; common public information undertakings; and a number of other questions of day-to-day administrative co-operation.

(5) Administrative and budgetary co-ordination at the legislative level

50. In recent years, problems of co-ordination have become broader in scope and more varied and complex in nature, with the proliferation and expansion of the programmes of international organizations. Apart from programmes financed from the regular budgets, the United Nations and the specialized agencies participate in the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance under somewhat complex procedures in respect of programming as well as general and financial administration. In addition, the United Nations undertakes other extrabudgetary activities in the economic, social and humanitarian fields, including, in particular, the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, the programmes of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and the United Nations Special Fund. Some of the specialized agencies also have similar substantial extra-budgetary programmes outside the Expanded Programme, such as the malaria eradication programme of WHO, the special programme of WHO financed by the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, the desert locust programme of FAO, and the joint support programme of ICAO for the provision of air navigation facilities and services in certain areas.

51. Even in the case of the programmes of the United Nations alone, complex procedures have developed, at all levels, including the legislative, resulting in a need for an intensified effort towards co-ordination. For various reasons, it has perhaps proved necessary for the legislative direction of these several programmes to be dispersed among different organs and subsidiary organs. Reference has been made in paragraph 14 above to the particular situation which exists as regards the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. The legislative direction of the Expanded Programme, including administrative and budgetary responsibilities, is vested, to a large extent, in a subsidiary body of the Economic and Social Council, subject only to the broad authority of the General Assembly. A similar situation prevails in regard to other programmes in the economic and social fields such as the United Nations Children's Fund and the United Nations Special Fund. While the Economic and Social Council functions as a point of programme co-ordination for these different activities and the activities in the economic and social fields carried on under the regular budget of the Organization, such a central point of coordination, at the inter-governmental level, is lacking on the administrative and financial side.

³⁸ Ibid., document A/2107, para. 45.

³⁹ Ibid., Seventh Session, Annexes, agenda item 26, document A/2287, paras. 47 and 49.

52. In the case of the regular budget, and economic and social programmes financed from that budget, administrative and budgetary responsibilities belong exclusively to the General Assembly on the recommendation of its Fifth Committee. This principle that the General Assembly alone has authority in respect of budgetary and financial matters does not appear to have been maintained in regard to programmes outside the regular budget. Certain administrative and budgetary responsibilities in respect of extra-budgetary programmes are vested essentially in subsidiary organs of the Economical and Social Council or in other subsidiary bodies. This has naturally resulted in a situation where the Fifth Committee of the General Assembly has had little to do, regularly and as a matter of course, with the administrative and financial aspects of these programmes, except for the review of the related audit reports. Indeed, out of a total 1958 expenditure of the order of some $190 million,40 the Fifth Committee was called upon to exercise direct responsibility, at the legislative level, in regard to the administrative and financial aspects only of some $90 million worth of activity.

(6) Co-ordination at the secretarial level

53. At the inter-secretariat level, the ACC41 has been faced with the need to concern itself to a greater degree than heretofore with broad programming issues. To this end, the ACC has undertaken a review of its machinery and procedures "in order to increase in every way possible the effectiveness of the contribution it can make to the work of the [Economic and Social] Council and the governing organs of the specialized agencies.42 In its twentythird report to the Economic and Social Council,48 the ACC has indicated the steps which it has taken, or proposes to take, with a view to adapting its machinery and procedures more effectively to the goal cited above.

54. In this connection, the Advisory Committee has observed that it is becoming more and more difficult to differentiate between a point of administrative and budgetary co-ordination and what is essentially a matter of programme co-ordination. Furthermore, as a result of the expansion and diversification of programmes, not only are secretariats harder pressed to keep themselves informed of what each is doing and to co-operate and collaborate with one another, but Governments are faced with an increasingly difficult task in keeping their many ministries and departments advised of the different activities, of relating programmes one to another, and of formulating meaningful judgements. The more varied the programmes and the machinery for their control and administration, the more difficult it is for Governments to participate effectively in them and to benefit by such participation.

(7) Expansion of conference and meeting programmes

55. A related point, which is a matter of concern to member states and the organizations alike, is the growing number and size of international meetings. This problem will increasingly become more and more complex unless efforts are made to meet it now through careful advance planning. Such planning should, as for as possible, be done by the several organizations in concert so that there is an even spread from year to year of the total meetings programme of all the organizations. This is important, not only for the most effective utilization of the combined facilities of the organizations, but also in relation to the arrangements for effective national representation at meetings. At present, owing to the plethora of meetings in the United Nations family of organizations, even countries with plentiful resources in trained personnel are finding it difficult to provide adequate, qualified representation. The General Assembly has made a major effort to meet this problem in resolution 1202 (XII) of 13 December 1957 by which the Assembly, inter alia, invited "all organs of the United Nations as well as the specialized agencies to review their working methods and the frequency and length of sessions in the light of the present resolution and of the growing volume of meetings, the resulting strain on available resources, and the difficulty of effective participation of members."

(8) Problem of currencies

56. The Advisory Committee desires also to refer in the present report to a specific point of inter-agency coordination, namely, the problem of currencies. Insufficient attention may have been paid in the past to this problem which, in any case, has assumed major importance only in recent years, with the growth of programmes financed from voluntary contributions in numerous currencies. The Committee is aware that a considerable amount of co-operation has been developed among the organizations, on an informal basis, in regard to the availability, exchange and use of funds in different currencies. On the other hand, there might be advantage in more regular arrangements to facilitate the most efficient and economical use of moneys in different currencies that are available to the several organizations. The Committee has noted, in this connexion, that occasionally, in the past, certain non-dollar expenditures of the Expanded Programme had to be met through the purchase of the appropriate currencies against dollars, even though it might have been possible to secure those currencies from within the United Nations system through a more regular pooling of currencies.

All 1959 figures represent budget credits, allocations or estimated expenditures, as appropriate.

^a In addition, the ILO spent $502,355 in 1951 and $276,181 in 1952 on a special migration programme financed outside the regular budget.

b In addition, there are extra-budgetary expenditures in respect of funds operated by the ILO in trust for requesting Governments—1957: $47,025; 1958: $87,209; 1959 (credit): $167,800.

• The increases since 1955 are due primarily to the initiation of the "Participation in the activities of member States" programme.

d Apart from the regular budget and the Expanded Programme, WHO had expenditures under extra-budgetary funds amounting to between $2 million and $2.5 million annually during the period 1951 to 1956. Such expenditures increased to $3.4 million in 1957 and $7.8 million in 1958 because of the special malaria eradication programme.

I. Introduction

1. In accordance with its terms of reference the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the administrative budgets or budget estimates for 1960 of the following specialized agencies, whose agreements with the United Nations provide for transmittal of their budgets for review by the General Assembly: 44 International Labour Organisation; Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations; United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization; International Civil Aviation Organization; Universal Postal Union; World Health Organization; International Telecommunication Union;

⁴⁴ Under the relevant agreements with the United Nations, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the International Monetary Fund are not required to transmit their budgets for examination by the United Nations.

World Meteorogical Organization; Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization.

- 2. The Advisory Committee has also examined the administrative aspects of the 1960 budget of the International Atomic Energy Agency, which has been transmitted in accordance with article XVI, paragraph 3, of the relationship agreement between the Agency and the United Nations (General Assembly resolution 1145 (XII) annex).
- 3. The Advisory Committee offers, in paragraphs 4 to 24 below, comments on certain general questions related to the 1960 budgets of the several agencies. In addition, specific points arising in respect of the budgets of individual agencies are dealt with in subsequent paragraphs. A consolidated summary of appropriations or estimates by main heads of expenditure, compared with the corresponding figures for 1959, is also presented for each of the agencies.

II. SPECIAL STUDIES OF ADMINISTRATIVE AND BUDGETARY CO-ORDINATION

- 4. In accordance with the wishes expressed by the Fifth Committee (A/2861, A/3098) and the General Assembly at its ninth and tenth sessions in 1945 and 1955 (resolutions 884 (IX) and 972 (X)) and in response to invitations received from the organizations concerned, the Advisory Committee, during the years 1956 to 1959, undertook special studies of the administrative and financial arrangements and procedures of the ILO, FAO, UNESCO, ICAO, WHO, ITU, WMO and IAEA, with particular reference to their activities under the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. These studies, which were undertaken at the respective headquarters of the organizations, are the subject of separate reports, which the Advisory Committee has submitted to the General Assembly at its eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth sessions. 45 In addition, the Committee has presented to the General Assembly at its current session an over-all report on the special studies as a whole (A/4172).
- 5. The Advisory Committee's reports on the individual agencies have also been considered by the respective legislative organs. The executive heads of the agencies and, where appropriate, the legislative bodies, have taken specific action on a number of points raised in the reports.
- 6. Two important questions affecting all the organizations have, moreover, been dealt with on a co-ordinated basis by the Economic and Social Council. The first relates to a forward appraisal of programmes and the second concerns the problem of the administrative and operational services costs of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance.

III. PROGRAMME APPRAISALS FOR THE PERIOD 1959 TO 1964

- 7. Considerable progress has been made in respect of the forward appraisals of programmes in the economic, social and human rights fields, which the Economic and Social Council initiated at the request of the General Assembly (resolution 1094 (XI) of 27 February 1957). The guiding principles for the appraisals which are to cover the scope, trend and cost of the programmes to be undertaken between 1959 and 1964 were outlined in Council resolutions 665 C (XXIV) of 1 August 1957 and 694 D (XXVI) of 31 July 1958.
 - 8. The United Nations has already presented its ap-
 - ⁴⁵ See footnote 28 above.

- praisal report (E/3260 and Add.1); the specialized agencies concerned will submit their reports before the end of 1959. The Committee of Five, appointed by the Economic and Social Council (resolution 694 D (XXVI)), will collate the separate appraisals and prepare a consolidated report for consideration by the Council at its thirtieth session in 1960.
- 9. The Advisory Committee will await with interest the consolidated appraisal report as well as the consideration of that report by the Council. At this stage, however, the Committee would like to recall its understanding of the basic purpose of the appraisals, namely, the provision, with due regard to the constitutional position of the specialized agencies, of "a five-yearly framework of total international effort in the economic and social fields, within which generally individual agency programmes for the period may be developed, so as to ensure a balanced and meaningful over-all effort at a minimum cost consistent with the attainment of stated objectives" (A/4032, para. 11). The objective is thus a planned and orderly development of a total balanced programme embracing the several fields of activity instead of separate formulations of a number of programmes each of which is conceived somewhat independently in terms of the needs and possibilities in the particular field.
- 10. There are, in the Advisory Committee's view, three general considerations of importance which should govern such forward planning. In the first place, there should be established, within each major field of activity, an order of priorities among the several elements of the programme in that field and, particularly, in respect of new projects to be undertaken. Secondly, in each major field, there should be an identification of declining areas of work with a specific indication of those existing items which should be eliminated. Thirdly, the over-all appraisal should reflect a conscious exercise of judgement as to the most desirable and practicable balance among the several fields of work that constitute the total programme.
- 11. It should not be automatically assumed in this connexion that a healthy growth and development of programmes will inevitably give rise only to a substantial continuing increase in costs. A healthy growth should indeed imply the elimination of worn-out and non-essential elements, so that a part, at any rate, of the cost of new projects should be offset by savings in existing programmes. In this respect, the Advisory Committee trusts that the appraisal reports will go beyond the mere listing of needs and hopes. It will be important also to include information and judgements on the practical organizational and administrative machinery and techniques by which projects must be carried out.

IV. Administrative and operational services costs

12. The Advisory Committee has separately reported in detail on the developments in regard to the problem of the allocation of the administrative and operational services costs of technical assistance between the regular budgets of the organizations and the Special Account of the Expanded Programme (A/4130, A/4172 and Corr.1, A/4229). As a result of decisions taken by the Economic and Social Council (resolutions 702 (XXVI) and 737 (XXVIII)), on the recommendation of the Advisory Committee, practically all the participating organizations have consolidated the costs in question in their regular budgets, with a lump-sum allocation in each case from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme, as an income in aid of the budget. Barring substantial changes in the size of the programme, the lump-sum allocations for 1962 are to be in amounts equivalent to 12 per cent of 1959 project allocations including local costs apportionments. Transitional, and in the case of certain organizations, exceptional provisions have been made for the years prior to 1962.

13. It is anticipated that, except in the case of UNESCO, future lump-sum allocations will fall short of the costs heretofore charged to the Expanded Programme. The organizations have accordingly indicated that they are making arrangements to include in their regular budgets any excess expenditure not covered by the lump-sum allocations. The Advisory Committee would urge that the present occasion of the change-over to the new system should be utilized to institute in each organization a fresh review of the total administrative arrangements and overhead for all operational activities, so that there would be an over-all increase in efficiency coupled with maximum economy. The Committee hopes that such reviews will be undertaken in the light of its individual reports on the agencies as well as of its overall report on this subject (A/4172 and Corr.1).

V. General appraisal of 1960 budgets

14. The gross totals of the 1960 budgets or budget estimates of the several agencies and the United Nations are shown in the following table, together with the appropriation figures for 1959 and actual expenditure figures for each of the years 1955, 1956, 1957 and 1958:

15. The 1960 appropriations or estimates of the nine specialized agencies and of IAEA amount in the aggregate to some $65 million (including generally the administrative and operational services costs of technical assistance), or about 4 per cent more than the corresponding 1959 appropriations. Thus, in descending order of absolute amounts, the increases relate to WHO ($1,244,734, or 7.94 per cent), IAEA ($618,000, or 11.83 per cent), ILO $457,407, or 5.00 per cent), UNESCO ($372,036, or 2.79 per cent), FAO ($251,801, or 2.39 per cent), ICAO ($243,910, or 5.52 per cent), WMO ($115,541, or 21.41 per cent), UPU ($48,605, or 7.94 per cent), and IMCO ($18,000, or 7.56 per cent). In the case of ITU, the 1960 estimates are lower by $724,290, or 26.95 per cent, than the 1959 appropriations, mainly because the 1959 budget included substantial amounts in respect of the ITU Plenipotentiary Conference, the Administrative Radio Conference and a Plenary Assembly of the International Radio Consultative Committee. On the other hand, the 1960 estimates of ITU are provisional and may be revised in the light of the decisions of the Plenipotentiary Conference currently in session.

- 16. In respect of each agency, an indication of the main factors contributing to the increase (or decrease) in the 1960 budget, by comparison with 1959, is given in section XI of the present report.
- 17. The Advisory Committee has already commented in its report on the 1960 budget estimates of the United Nations (A/4170) on the increases in those estimates by comparison with the 1959 appropriations.

^a The 1960 appropriations or estimates include administrative and operational services costs of technical assistance, with offsetting lump-sum allocations from the Special Account of the Expanded Programme. The 1958 and 1959 figures have been adjusted, where necessary, to include similar costs of those years. (For details on the agencies, see paras. 26-89 below; in regard to the United Nations, see A/4110, Estimates of income.)

[•] The 1960 estimate will be revised in the light of decisions to be taken by the Plenipotentiary Conference now (November 1959) in session.

Estimates only; excludes possible revisions before adoption of the budget and supplementary estimates during 1960.
