The PRESIDENT (interpretation from Arabic): I call on the Rapporteur of the First Committee, Mr. Pablo Emilio Sader of Uruguay to introduce the reports of the First Committee in one intervention.

Mr. SADER (Uruguay), Rapporteur of the First Committee (interpretation from Spanish): It is a particular pleasure and honour for me to address the plenary meeting of the General Assembly and to inform the Assembly that the First Committee successfully concluded its work in an atmosphere free of confrontation, reflecting the changes that have taken place on the international scene since the end of the cold war. The approach taken by delegations was constructive and cooperative, making it possible for a spirit of compromise to prevail throughout the meetings of the First Committee at the forty-sixth session. The members of the Committee focused mainly on issues which were ripe for consideration at the multilateral level and which yielded fruitful results.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,
First Committee)

A few statistics may illustrate the spirit of cooperation and concession. This year, 48 draft resolutions and decisions were submitted, 3 of which were later withdrawn, in comparison with the 54 that were submitted during the forty-fifth session. This constitutes a notable decrease from the forty-second session, when 79 drafts were submitted.

There was also a major change in the voting patterns the voting patterns and a growing willingness to accept differing positions, not pressing certain issues to a vote, and making every effort to achieve a consensus.

Thus the 22 drafts adopted without a vote represent a percentage increase, from 50 per cent last year to 60 per cent at this session.

In connection with disarmament-related issues, this was a year in which new and important issues were considered that seem to be destined for future development. This and other elements contributed to making this session qualitatively different from past sessions.

The first fact we can note in the general debate of the First Committee is that a spirit of widespread satisfaction was observed at the unprecedented progress achieved by the two major nuclear Powers in reducing their nuclear arsenals.

Furthermore, the subject of transparency in armaments, which was dealt with under the agenda item "International Arms Transfers", became the issue that was negotiated and debated most intensively during this session. The outcome of these long negotiations was a draft resolution calling, inter alia, for the establishment of a universal and non-discriminatory register of conventional weapons, including data on international arms transfers, information on stocks of military equipment, on acquisition of military equipment and relevant policies. Taking into account the innovative and sensitive nature of this item and the diverging views on it, this draft resolution may be considered to be one of the most significant of the forty-sixth session of the General Assembly.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,

Under the same item, "International arms transfers", it is significant also that for the first time a draft was introduced in which the Secretary-General was requested, inter alia, to make available information provided by Member States on illicit arms transfers, and States were called upon to eradicate this scourge.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,
First Committee)

As in previous years, nuclear disarmament issues had a prominent place on the First Committee's agenda. One third of all the resolutions on disarmament deal with such nuclear-related issues as non-proliferation, a nuclear-test ban, nuclear-weapon-free zones, security assurances for non-nuclear-weapon States, on nuclear-arms freeze and a ban on the production of fissionable material for nuclear weapons.

Taking into account the circumstances surrounding the Gulf War and its aftermath, many delegations expressed concern about nuclear proliferation and emphasized the need for universal accession to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, an instrument that has become even more relevant since the accession to the Treaty, or the declaration of intent to accede to it, by China, France, South Africa, Lithuania, the United Republic of Tanzania, Zambia and Zimbabwe. Many delegations also called for strengthening the safeguards system of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

It is appropriate to mention that this year, for the first time, the draft resolution on implementation of the Declaration on the Denuclearization of Africa was adopted without a vote. Another agenda item that was the focus of special attention dealt with nuclear tests. After 20 years of submitting two separate draft resolutions on this item, this year, for the first time, it was possible to achieve a single text on the cessation of all nuclear tests. Likewise, particularly noticeable this year was the increased emphasis on conventional and regional disarmament, which was reflected in the adoption of a number of draft resolutions on these items. The favourable political atmosphere for the speedy conclusion of a convention on the complete prohibition of chemical weapons was reflected in a draft resolution adopted without a vote, in which the Conference on Disarmament is urged to resolve outstanding issues so as to achieve a final agreement at its 1992 session.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,

Judging from a process begun a few years ago, it can be said that the First Committee made even further progress towards a more practical decision-making procedure, geared towards achieving practical results in specific matters. With the progressive consolidation of the new international situation and the prevailing atmosphere of cooperation, it may be said that there has been an automatic rationalization of the Committee's work. As was pointed out by the Chairman of the Committee in his concluding statement, pertinent suggestions have been submitted as to the procedure to be followed for the consideration of disarmament and international security issues in order to rationalize the Committee's work even further (A/C.1/46/PV.45, p. 16). In this regard, the Chairman announced that consultations would be held in New York and in Geneva with a view to making progress in this area at the forty-seventh session of the General Assembly.

The last - and certainly not the least important - item that I should like to highlight with regard to the disarmament agenda is the widespread recognition of the broadened concept of security, which emerged during the general debate and in the treatment of the item on the relationship between disarmament and development. This concept is reflected in the words of the Under-Secretary-General for Disarmament Affairs, Mr. Yasushi Akashi, in the statement he made before the First Committee:

"Arms control and disarmament now constitute essential parts of the complex process of consolidating peace, together with peace-keeping, diplomatic mediation, judicial settlements and other efforts for enhancing international cooperation. What is needed is a sustained well-coordinated and non-compartmentalized approach to new global issues.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,
First Committee)

"The international community has to espouse a multidimensional approach to peace and security in which the military aspect will not dominate but will be considered in relation to other priorities such as development, welfare, environment and the protection of human rights."

(A/C.1/46/PV.4, pp. 3 and 4)

In connection with agenda items 67 and 68, the encouraging developments that have taken place over the past years have clearly prompted the international community to seek new, constructive and imaginative ways of dealing with the subject of international security in all the aspects to which I referred a few moments ago. In many statements made during the general debate on international security, emphasis was placed on new opportunities and challenges confronting the United Nations in this changing stage of history - a stage characterized by a decrease in the global tension that prevailed in past decades and by the emergence or re-emergence of localized conflicts of different types, be they national, ethnic or religious.

A number of ideas put forward in the general debate involved practical measures to enable the Organization to play its proper role as a key in the new collective security system that seems to be emerging, for example, in such areas as the maintenance of international peace, the prevention of conflicts, the peaceful settlement of disputes, the promotion of economic and social development, and the promotion and protection of human rights.

Many delegations referred to the need for strict observance of the principles of international law, in particular, those principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations, in the designing of a new system of world security. Moreover, particular importance was attached to regional security forums in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter, as they are part of, and complement, the broader overall concept.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,

In connection with the question of Antarctica - agenda item 66 - it can clearly be seen once again from the thrust of the discussion this year that there is a shared conviction that, in the interests of the entire human race, Antarctica should continue to be used solely for peaceful purposes, and should not be the arena or object of international discord. Special emphasis was placed on the need to preserve and protect the fragile Antarctic environment and its ecosystems. In this regard, it was noted that the Madrid Protocol concluded last October constitutes a significant step in this direction. None the less, it should be pointed out that the debate in the Committee and the subsequent roll-call vote on the draft resolutions reflected persisting differences of opinion, for example on the functioning of the Antarctic Treaty system, human activities in Antarctica and the participation of South Africa in consultative meetings. Consequently, this year once again, it was not possible to reach a consensus on this item.

In its consideration of the 22 agenda items allocated to it, the First Committee followed its usual procedure, which consists in organizing its work in three broad phases corresponding to groups of items, namely, disarmament questions (items 47 to 65), the question of Antarctica (item 66) and questions relating to international security (items 67 and 68). At this plenary meeting of the General Assembly, it is my honour to introduce the First Committee's reports on these agenda items, contained in documents A/46/661 to 681.

Lastly, I should like to express my appreciation to all those who contributed to the success of the work of the First Committee. First of all, special thanks go to to the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. Robert Mrosiewicz for his excellent leadership, political skill and knowledge of disarmament and security items, which were decisive aspects of his sterling leadership.

(Mr. Sadar, Rapporteur,
First Committee)

I should also like to express my appreciation to the Vice-Chairmen, Mr. Sedfrey Ordonez and Mr. Ahmet Nazif Alpman, who discharged their responsibilities with exceptional skill.

Of course, I should like to express my thanks to the Under-Secretary-General for Disarmament Affairs, Mr. Yasushi Akashi, and to the Under-Secretary-General for Political and Security Council Affairs, Mr. Vasilii Safronchuk, for their very important contributions to our work.

(Mr. Sader, Rapporteur,
First Committee)

I should especially like to thank the Secretary of the Committee, Mr. Sohrab Kheradi, upon whose great experience the Committee was able to rely in all aspects of its work, substantive or procedural.

Finally, Mr. President, I express my gratitude to all the members of your staff, most especially in this context to Mr. Sattar, Ms. Mackby, Ms. Cooper and Ms. Amaritnant.

The PRESIDENT (interpretation from Arabic): If there is no proposal under rule 66 of the rules of procedure, I shall take it that the General Assembly decides not to discuss the reports of the First Committee that are before the Assembly today.

It was so decided.

The PRESIDENT (interpretation from Arabic): Statements will therefore be limited to explanations of vote.

The positions of delegations regarding the various recommendations of the First Committee have been made clear in the Committee and are reflected in the relevant official records.

May I remind members that under paragraph 7 of decision 34/401 the General Assembly agreed that "When the same draft resolution is considered in a Main Committee and in plenary meeting, a delegation should, as far as possible, explain its vote only once, that is, either in the Committee or in plenary meeting unless that delegation's vote in plenary meeting is different from its vote in the Committee." (decision 34/401, para. 7)

May I remind delegations that, also in accordance with decision 34/401, explanations of vote are limited to 10 minutes and should be made by delegations from their seats.

(The President)

Before we begin to take action on the recommendations contained in the reports of the First Committee, I should like to advise representatives that, unless they have already notified the Secretariat otherwise, we are going to proceed with the voting in the same manner as was done in the First Committee. This means that where recorded or separate or roll-call votes were taken, we shall do the same. I would also hope that we can proceed to adopt without a vote those recommendations that were adopted without a vote in the First Committee.

Before we proceed to the consideration of the reports of the First Committee, I should like to inform Members that, despite the Fifth Committee's efforts to consider the relevant programme-budget implications of four of the First Committee's recommendations, it has not been able, due to its heavy workload, to conclude its review. These draft resolutions are as follows: under agenda item 58, Implementation of the Declaration on the Denuclearization of Africa, the draft resolution entitled "Implementation of the Declaration", which appears as draft resolution A in the report (A/46/671) of the First Committee on this item; under agenda item 60, General and complete disarmament, the draft resolution entitled "Transparency in armaments", which appears as draft resolution G in the report (A/46/673) of the Committee on this item; under agenda item 61, Review and implementation of the Concluding Document of the Twelfth Special Session of the General Assembly, the draft resolution entitled "United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa, United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific and United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean", which appears as draft resolution C in the report (A/46/674) of the Committee on this item; and, lastly, under agenda item 65, Implementation of the Declaration of the Indian Ocean as a Zone of Peace, the draft resolution that is the only recommendation of the First Committee contained in its report (A/46/678) on this item. Consequently, action on those four draft resolutions will be postponed until Monday, 9 December 1991, in the morning.

Draft resolution A is entitled "Third Review Conference of the Parties to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction". The First Committee adopted draft resolution A without a vote. May I take it that the Assembly wishes to do the same?

The PRESIDENT (interpretation from Arabic): Next we turn to draft resolution B, entitled "Chemical and bacteriological (biological) weapons: measures to uphold the authority of the 1925 Geneva Protocol". Draft resolution C was adopted (resolution 46/35 C).

The PRESIDENT (interpretation from Arabic): I call on the representative of Egypt for an explanation of vote.

Mr. ERFAN (Egypt): I have asked to speak to explain my delegation's position with regard to the resolution entitled "Chemical and bacteriological (biological) weapons", which appears as draft resolution C in document A/46/672, just adopted by the General Assembly.

My delegation has decided to go along with the consensus on this resolution. However, it expresses its reservation concerning paragraph 8 of the said text, which calls upon "all States to consider declaring their intention to become original States parties to the convention ..."

While we have been and still are committed to serious and constructive negotiations in the Conference on Disarmament on a convention banning chemical weapons, we maintain that - from the legal point of view as well as from the standpoint of security considerations - making declarations to the effect of adhering to an international legal instrument before it is concluded and its final form and content are known is not binding and as such is unnecessary.

It is the understanding of the Government of Egypt that this paragraph is confined to asking States to take this matter into consideration, and is thus without prejudice to the right to undertake necessary legal measures before the signing and to decide whether to adhere to this instrument when it is concluded.

The PRESIDENT (interpretation from Arabic): We have thus concluded our consideration of agenda item 59.

The Assembly will now consider the report of the First Committee (A/46/673) on agenda item 60, entitled "General and complete disarmament".

(The President)

I call on the representative of Argentina for an explanation of vote before the voting.*

Mr. PELAEZ (Argentina) (interpretation from Spanish): In the last round of negotiations between Argentina, Brazil and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), which took place in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, on 1 November 1990, a comprehensive safeguards agreement was initialled in accordance with the Presidential Declaration of Foz do Iguaçu, Brazil of 28 November 1990, which was circulated as document A/45/809.

Our agreement with this text was transmitted to the Director General of IAEA, and it was requested that the Board of Governors of the Agency should study the above-mentioned agreement during its meetings that began in Vienna on 5 December 1991, with a view to its adoption.

This framework agreement submits all nuclear facilities and materials of those countries to the safeguards of the IAEA, allowing for complete transparency on the part of Argentina and Brazil, and confirming that the use of this source of energy by both countries is exclusively for peaceful purposes. In this context, Argentina has decided to support the draft resolution contained in document A/C.1/46/L.11 entitled "Prohibition of the production of fissionable material for weapons purposes", contained in the report of the First Committee (A/46/673).

Mr. PADILLA (United States of America): The United States has asked to speak to reiterate that it did not participate in the First Committee's consideration of draft resolution C on the relationship between disarmament and development. The First Committee adopted draft resolution F without a vote. May I take it that the Assembly wishes to do the same?

Draft resolution F was adopted (resolution 46/37 E).

The PRESIDENT: The Assembly has concluded this stage of its consideration of agenda item 61.

The Assembly will now consider the report (A/46/675) of the First Committee on agenda item 62, entitled "Review of the implementation of the recommendations and decisions adopted by the General Assembly at its tenth special session".

The Assembly has before it four draft resolutions, A to D, recommended by the First Committee in paragraph 13 of its report. In this connection, the Assembly also has before it an amendment to draft resolution A submitted by Austria and contained in document A/46/L.38.

I now call on the representative of Austria to introduce the amendment.

Mr. STELZER (Austria): My delegation would like to propose an amendment to draft resolution A, "Report of the Disarmament Commission", which was submitted to the First Committee in document A/C.1/46/L.3.

Operative paragraph 6 of the draft resolution now reads:

"Recommends that the Disarmament Commission, at its 1991 organizational session, adopt the following items for its consideration at the 1992 substantive session".

An amendment has become necessary because the four items listed in operative paragraph 6 were adopted by the 1991 organizational session of the Disarmament Commission, which took place on 3 December. We therefore propose, as an amendment, that operative paragraph 6 should read:

(Mr. Stelzer, Austria)

"Notes with satisfaction that the Disarmament Commission, at the 1991 organization session, adopted the following items for its consideration at the 1992 substantive session".

The PRESIDENT: I shall put the four draft resolutions to the vote one by one. After all the decisions have been taken, representatives will again be given an opportunity to explain their votes.

We turn first to draft resolution A, entitled "Report of the Disarmament Commission".

The Assembly has also before it an amendment contained in document A/46/L.38 which, if adopted, would replace the introduction to operative paragraph 6 of draft resolution A.

In accordance with rule 90 of the rules of procedure, the Assembly will first take a decision on the amendment contained in document A/46/L.38. May I take it that the Assembly wishes to adopt this amendment?

The amendment (A/46/L.38) was adopted.

The PRESIDENT: We shall now consider the draft resolution as a whole as amended.

Draft resolution A was adopted by the First Committee without a vote. May I take it that the General Assembly wishes to do the same?

Draft resolution A, as amended, was adopted (resolution 46/38 A).

The PRESIDENT: Now we turn to draft resolution B, entitled "Comprehensive programme of disarmament".
