The occupied Syrian Arab Golan

The Council of the League of Arab States at summit level,

Having studied the memorandum of the Secretariat-General and the report of the Secretary-General on Joint Arab Action,

Affirming the resolutions of Arab Summit conferences, of which the last was resolution 338 (Khartoum, 29 March 2006) of the 18th ordinary session,

Resolves

1. To affirm the firm support and backing of the Arab States for Syria's just and rightful demand to recover the entire occupied Syrian Arab Golan up to the line of 4 June 1967, on the basis of the principles of the peace process and resolutions of international legitimacy and pursuant to achievements within the framework of the Peace Conference launched in Madrid in 1991;

2. To reaffirm all its resolutions, of which the last was 338 (Khartoum, 29 March 2006), stipulating the rejection of all measures taken by the Israeli occupation authorities aimed at changing the legal, natural and demographic status of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan and to consider Israeli measures designed to reinforce its control as illegal, null and void and a violation of international agreements, the Charter and resolutions of the United Nations, in particular resolution 497 (1981) of the Security Council and resolution 27/61 (1 December 2006) of the 61st session of the General Assembly affirming that Israel's decision of 14 December 1981 to annex the occupied Syrian Arab Golan is illegal, null and void, without legal force and represents a grave violation of Security Council resolution 497 (1981);
3. To reaffirm that the occupation of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan since 1967 represents a continuing threat to peace and security in the region and the world;
4. To condemn Israeli practices in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan in respect of the seizure of land and water resources, the building of a dam near the town Quneitra to steal water and deprive Syrian farmers of the most important source of water for the irrigation of their farms and watering of their cattle, the construction and expansion of settlements and transporting of settlers thereto, the exploitation of natural resources, the construction of projects, the most recent of which was the announcement of a tender for the sale of ten zones in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan for the establishment of vineyards and wineries, and the imposition of an economic boycott on the agricultural produce of the Arab population and forbidding its export;
5. To affirm the Arab position of full solidarity with Syria and Lebanon, standing with them in confronting the continuing Israeli aggression and threats, considering any aggression against them as aggression against the Arab nation, and to condemn the economic sanctions imposed on Syria;
6. To support the steadfastness of the Arab population of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, standing beside them in their resistance to the Israeli occupation and its repressive practices and their determination to hold on to their land and Syrian Arab identity; to affirm the need to apply the Fourth Geneva Convention (1949) to the inhabitants of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan; and to condemn, on the basis of the principles of international law and tenets of international legality, the Israeli occupation authorities for their gross violations of all the rights of the Syrian inhabitants, young and old, living under occupation in the Golan, resulting in the displacement and expulsion of thousands, the pillage of their lands, the separation of families and the consequences of this situation on the lives of the children and their education, in addition to numerous other violations of children's rights in contravention of international obligations arising from the international Convention on the Rights of the Child;

To condemn the practices and provocations of the Israeli occupation forces against the inhabitants of the Syrian village of Ghajar in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan, with the aim of partitioning it, displacing its inhabitants and constructing a separation wall between the inhabitants and their lands and livelihood. Israel's forcible transfer of the civilian population to the southern part of the village is a violation of international humanitarian law, especially the Fourth Geneva Convention and, according to article 7 of the Statutes of the International Criminal Court, “a crime against humanity”, falling within its jurisdiction and punishable. Any partition is designed to infringe Syrian sovereignty over the village. The international community is called upon to assume its responsibilities to pressurize Israel to stop it from partitioning the village, put an end to the humanitarian, social and economic suffering of its inhabitants labouring under the occupation and support Syria in reserving its right to take whatever measures are necessary to prevent partition of the village;

8. To uphold the resolutions of international legality requiring non-recognition of any situation resulting from Israeli settlement activity in the occupied Arab lands, considering this to be illegal activity from which neither right nor obligation arises and that the establishment of settlements and the housing of settlers therein represents a serious violation of the Geneva Conventions, a war crime under the First Protocol additional thereto and a violation of the principles of the peace process which require that all Israeli settlement activities in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan and the occupied Arab territories be terminated;
9. To urge the international community to uphold the resolutions of international legality rejecting Israeli settlement activity in the occupied Syrian Arab Golan by condemning the practices of the Israeli Government, which declared its intention on 31 December 2003 of establishing seven new settlements, expanding existing ones, doubling the number of settlers and allocating the approvals necessary to implement this, contrary to the peaceful Arab and international approaches aimed at achieving a just and comprehensive peace in the region on the basis of the resolutions of international legality and the Arab Peace Initiative adopted by the Beirut Summit (2002);
10. To condemn the policy of the Israeli Government which has wrecked the peace process and led to the continued escalation of tension in the region and to call upon the international community, in particular the sponsors of the Madrid Peace Conference and the European Union, to induce Israel to apply the resolutions of the United Nations on full Israeli withdrawal from the occupied Syrian Arab Golan and all occupied Arab territories to the line of 4 June 1967.

The Council of the League of Arab States at Summit Level
19th Ordinary Session
Riyadh, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia
28-29 March 2007

The Riyadh Declaration

We, the leaders of the Arab States assembling at the 19th ordinary session of the Council of the League of Arab States at summit level in Riyadh, capital of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, on the 28th and 29th days of March 2007,

Pursuant to the principles and intentions of the Charter of the League of Arab States and other Arab charters, including the Document of the Covenant, Accord and Solidarity and the Document of Development and Modernization in the Arab World,

Drawing inspiration from religious and Arab values which reject all forms of extremism, fanaticism and racism, and desiring to strengthen the Arab identity, entrench its civilizational and cultural foundations and maintain its human mission of openness in the light of the challenges and dangers facing the Arab nation which threaten to redraw the situation in the region, dissolve the Arab identity and break the bonds which bind us,

Affirming the pressing need to recover the spirit of Arab solidarity, protect joint Arab security, promote Arab economic, social and development action, commit diligently and sincerely to Joint Arab Action and fulfil the demands of support for the League of Arab States and its institutions,

Declaring our determination to strive diligently to protect the Arab identity, bolster its foundations and secure allegiance to it in the hearts and minds of children, teenagers and young men and women, given that Arabism is not a racial or ethnic concept but rather a common cultural identity, with the Arabic language as its means of expression and of preserving its heritage, and a shared civilizational framework based upon spiritual, ethical and human values, enriched by diversity, plurality, openness to other human cultures and keeping pace with rapid scientific and technical developments, without dissolution, fragmentation or loss of distinctiveness,

We therefore resolve:

- To give the utmost priority to the development of education and educational curricula in the Arab world to deepen shared Arab allegiance, respond to the needs of development, modernization and sustainable growth, entrench the values of dialogue and inventiveness and secure the principles of human rights and the active and positive participation of women;
- To develop joint Arab action in the fields of education, culture and science by bolstering existing institutions, according them the importance they deserve and the human and financial resources they need, particularly in relation to the development of scientific research, the joint production of books, programmes and materials for children and teenagers, the launching of an extensive translation enterprise from and into Arabic and the promotion of Arabic in all fields, including telecommunications, information technology, the media, the Internet, science and technology;

- To spread the culture of moderation, tolerance, dialogue and openness, reject all forms of terrorism, fanaticism and extremism, all exclusionary racist trends, campaigns of hatred and defamation and attempts to cast doubt on our human values or violate our religious beliefs and what we hold sacred, and to warn against employing doctrinal and sectarian plurality for political purposes aimed at partitioning the Arab nation, dividing its States and peoples and igniting destructive civil discord and strife;
- To secure effective Arab solidarity in order to contain crises and settle disputes between Member States by peaceful means, within the framework of a proactive Arab Peace and Security Council as resolved at previous Arab summits, to develop dialogue with the neighbouring States of the region on the basis of unified and defined Arab positions, to revitalize the institutions of joint Arab security protection and affirm its terms of reference as stipulated in Arab charters, and to endeavour to meet Arab defence and security needs;
- To affirm the option of a just and comprehensive peace as a strategic choice for the Arab nation and to affirm the Arab Peace Initiative which charts the proper course for reaching a peaceful settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute on the basis of the principles and resolutions of international legitimacy and the principle of land for peace;
- To affirm the importance of the region being free of all weapons of mass destruction, without double standards and selectivity, warning against starting a dangerous and destructive nuclear armaments race in the region, and affirming the right of all States to acquire peaceful nuclear energy in accordance with international authorities and the inspection and control regime based thereon.

The dangerous situation which has overtaken our region, with Arab land seen as fair game for pillage, Arab energies and resources squandered and Arab identity, allegiance and culture declining, requires us all to engage in an honest and thorough self-examination. All of us – leaders, officials and citizens, fathers, mothers and children – are partners in designing our own destiny and preserving our identity, culture, values and rights. The grave crises they pass through only increase the faith and resolve of great and vigorous nations. When it closes ranks and strengthens its joint action, the Arab nation is capable of achieving the security, dignity, well-being and prosperity it deserves.

Riyadh, 29 March 2007

Address of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Abdullah bin Abdulaziz Al Saud of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, to the opening session

In the Name of God, the Merciful and Compassionate,
Prayers and peace upon our Prophet, Muhammad,

Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses, the Leaders of the Arab nation,
Brothers,

May the peace and blessings of God be upon you.

In my name and that of the Saudi people, it is a pleasure to welcome you and wish you success in your deliberations. I thank His Excellency Umar Hasan Ahmad al-Bashir, President of the Republic of the Sudan for his efforts during his presidency of the summit last year.

Dear Brothers,

The Arab League was established over 60 years ago as a nucleus for genuine Arab unity – united armies, united economies, united political goals and, above all, united hearts and minds.

There is no doubt that the question which poses itself to us is: What has been achieved from all this? The answer is revealed by our current situation which confirms that we are as far away from unity today as we were on the day the League was established.

Dear Brothers.

In wounded Palestine, a resolute people are still suffering subjugation and occupation, deprived of their right to an independent State. As you all know, our Palestinian brothers gathered in Mecca, in the vicinity of the Holy Mosque and, by the grace of God, successfully put an end to their differences and agreed upon the declaration of a Government of National Unity. In the light of this positive development, it became essential to put an end to the iniquitous blockade imposed on the Palestinian people as soon as possible to enable the peace process to get underway in an atmosphere free from repression and coercion, allowing it to successfully achieve its goal of the establishment of an independent Palestinian State.

In beloved Iraq, blood is being shed between brothers in the shadow of an unlawful foreign occupation and odious sectarianism which threatens civil war. In Lebanon, once a model of coexistence and prosperity, the Arab nation stands paralysed as its streets turn into hotels and civil strife is about to bear its teeth.

In the Sudan, Arab lethargy has led to foreign intervention in its affairs. In Somalia, hardly does one civil war end before another begins. All of this goes on and we are unable to aid our brothers.

The question is: What have we been doing throughout these years to solve all this? I do not want to cast blame on the Arab League. The League is a body which reflects our situation just as it sees it. The real blame lies with us, the leaders of the Arab nation. Our endless disagreements and refusal to unite has made the Arab nation lose its confidence in our credibility and lose hope in its present and future.

Dear brothers,

Disunity is not our fate and backwardness is not our inevitable destiny. Almighty God has bestowed dignity upon us and favoured us with intelligence to distinguish between truth and falsehood and conscience to know good from evil. All we need to do is purge our minds of fear and apprehension so that a man feels for his brother man only love and friendship and wishes for him only the good he desires for himself.

Despite reasons for despair, I have hope. Despite reasons for pessimism, I hold fast to optimism. Despite difficulty, I aspire to ease.

The first step on the path to deliverance is that we restore confidence in ourselves and in each other. If confidence is restored, credibility will be restored along with it and if credibility is restored, the winds of hope will blow across the nation. At that time, we shall not allow powers from outside the region to chart the region's future and only the flag of Arabism shall fly on Arab land.

The Holy Koran states: God shall not change a people's condition until they change what is in themselves. I call upon you, beginning with myself, to a new beginning where our hearts are united and our ranks are closed. I invite you to embark upon a path which shall only end when the Arab nation has realised its hopes of unity, honour and prosperity. And what is that for the power of the Almighty and the resolve of faithful men?

May the peace and blessings of God be upon you.

Address of Mr. Amre Moussa, Secretary-General of the League of Arab States, to the opening session

President of the Summit, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Abdullah bin Abdulaziz Al Saud,

Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

The convening of the 19th Arab Summit in Riyadh, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, sends a clear message which is that the regular, annual convening of the Arab Summit has become an established mechanism for the management of Joint Arab Action since its adoption in Cairo in 2000. It has also been imposed by the urgent need for coordination and solidarity in the face of the enormous challenges facing the Arabs at a time of unprecedented tension in the modern history of the Middle East and Arab world.

I would like to congratulate the Kingdom and the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques on assuming the Presidency of the Summit. With his wisdom, strength of character and unwavering stances he is, as we have known all along, capable of vigilant leadership on the path ahead, of awakening determination and of sharpening resolve in the face of the clear challenge to the nature and, indeed, the very existence of the Arab nation.

I express appreciation to His Excellency Umar Hasan Ahmad al-Bashir for his outstanding efforts and vigorous management since assuming the Presidency of the Arab Summit in the last Arab political year. Under his leadership, Sudanese diplomacy faithfully assumed responsibility for monitoring implementation of the resolutions of that summit amidst difficult circumstances in which dangers and challenges multiplied for the Sudan itself, the adjacent region of the Horn of Africa and throughout the Middle East.

President of the Summit, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

At the start of the new Presidency, allow me to present you with a statement of account on Joint Arab Action in the year between the Khartoum Summit of last May and now.

As you know, the Arab agenda is based on four key items:

- The strategic, political and security situation in the region and the major problems associated with this, at the forefront of which are Palestine and the Arab-Israeli conflict, the tragedy of Iraq, the divisions within Lebanon, the problems of the Sudan, the difficulties in Somalia, the nuclear situation in the region and the violent onslaught against the Arab nature and identity;
- The development situation and Joint Arab Action in its economic and social frameworks;
- The reform movement in Arab societies;
- Reform of the structures of the Arab League and the strengthening of its mechanisms.

In my report, I will deal with each of these items with a concision which will not, I trust, be unseemly. However, details may be found in my report which you have before you.

As regards the strategic and political situation in the region, the Arab world, the surrounding Islamic world and, in fact, most of the world sees in the continuation of the Arab-Israeli conflict and its essence, the Palestinian issue, the core of the problem and the source of tension in the entire region. A pertinent question might be asked here: What must we do in the face of shockingly biased international policies which influence Israel's extremist policy of thwarting the chances for a just peace? This bias has caused the paralysis of the peace process. It is a situation which makes us work determinedly for and to demand reconsideration of this policy, if there is to be a stable peace in the Middle East. The absence of honest mediation has done great damage to the chances of bringing about a qualitative transformation in the regional situation. Nonetheless, we are currently pursuing diplomatic activity which will, we hope, lead to the peace process being restarted. We hope it will be successful, particularly because we are in decisive race against time, given the continuation of Israeli practices to change the geographic and demographic situation in the occupied Arab territories.

We hope that it will not be simply wasted activity with vicious circles emerging once again, and we find ourselves after a while in the same situation and all we have done is to give Israeli policy the time it needs to impose a new fait accompli in the occupied territories to use in argument against us, whether with regard to Jerusalem, its environs or the occupied territories in general.

Vigilance is required now more than at any time in the past, followed by a necessary process of assessment over the coming weeks and months to enable us to discuss the path that must be taken, if the present efforts fail or are clearly ineffective, which is a very real possibility.

The Arabs have prepared themselves to enter into a peace process to end the Arab-Israeli conflict, as developments in recent weeks have borne witness. At the forefront of Arab achievements is the Mecca Agreement, held under the generous sponsorship of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, to offset a dangerous situation facing the region. Related to this is the Palestinian agreement to establish a Government of National Unity which we salute and wish every success in furthering Palestinian action toward achieving a just peace within the framework of the Arab Peace Initiative. Here, I salute the European nations which have taken the proper and bold decision to recognise and deal with the new Palestinian Government. Foremost among these is Norway, represented here today by its Minister of Foreign Affairs. I demand an end to the unjust economic blockade imposed upon the Palestinian people which only serves the goals of the foreign occupation.

The Arab goal is clearly demonstrated by the Arab Peace Initiative to which all Arabs are committed and which forms the framework of their acceptance and the necessary conditions for comprehensive peace, including the demand for an end to the military occupation of the Palestinian territories, the Syrian Golan and Lebanese Shebaa Farms and the establishment of future relations with Israel under conditions of comprehensive peace and a viable Palestinian State.

If Israeli policy wants the Arabs to amend their initiative into something which, in the end, consists of Arab concessions for nothing in return and to cede rights to Israel without corresponding obligations – following the racist proposal for the exclusion of land and people and the focus on the demand for normalization – it will not only cancel the initiative but also prevent peace.

It may be correct to assert that Israeli public opinion's ignorance of the Arab Peace Initiative is exploited by Israeli politicians and that we must exert additional efforts to inform and convince both them and their allies. King Abdullah II of Jordan explained this clearly and plainly in his wide-ranging address to the U.S. Congress. But the negative Israeli response is: Amend it first. We say to them: If you accept it first and come to the negotiating table, perhaps we can arrive at a just solution acceptable to all, consistent with international law, the resolutions of the Security Council and the principle of land for peace.

We are at a crossroads. We either move toward a genuine and acceptable peace, for which we are ready or continue in a situation – indeed, a worsening situation – of maximum tension, for which many are prepared.

Moving on to Iraq, the tragedy is enormous. However, the Arab position has been clear from the first moments of the collapse of the previous regime: to assist the new Iraq to overcome the great crisis that was clearly on the point of occurring upon the outbreak of war in March 2003. Despite the considerable doubts surrounding the true aims of that war, the Arab order agreed that the Transitional Governing Council set up at that time would occupy Iraq's seat at the League of Arab States, as an act of acceptance of Iraq and safeguarding of its nature and future. The new situation was thus accorded legitimacy, albeit controversial. The Arab order then proposed the path of national reconciliation as a way of escape from the crushing crisis in the country. This promised progress at the time had it not been for negative forces which strove to destroy all the opportunities for reconciliation to keep Iraq suffering from sectarianism and confessionalism and, in consequence, suffering the bloody manifestations of national division.

The path to a solution in Iraq may be embarked on if all influential and relevant forces acknowledge that the situation requires not only security measures but a political solution. The point is not the number of soldiers but the objective nature and usefulness of the rapprochement.

The division and clash between Shi'ah and Sunna in Iraq and policies seeking to ignite or exploit these, unaware of their tragic dimensions, could ignite a terrible regional conflagration from which no-one in Iraq, in the region or overseas will emerge victorious.

This is the basis for the Arab strategic resolution that the salvation of Iraq is, in the first place, an Iraqi national responsibility. We shall follow with concern the policy which emerges to bring together the various Iraqi political forces, without exception. While the salvation of Iraq is an Iraqi national responsibility, it is also, at the same time, the responsibility of the Arabs and the neighbouring States to help it to cross over to the shores of peace and an international responsibility to cooperate to achieve that.

While we in the Arab world understand that others have interests in Iraq, it must be understood by those others that the Arabs have enormous interests in and with Iraq, and that the solution rests in reaching a common understanding to protect the future of a single, free Iraq, launching it forward toward wider horizons on a foundation of genuine democracy and free from sectarianism and confessionalism, in the light of a constitution on which all are agreed and which is safeguarded by all.

In this respect, the position of the League of Arab States is clear from its resolutions, the last of which was the one put before this Summit by the Council of Ministers on the criteria which a solution to the situation requires. Moreover, the League of Arab States is ready to restart the inclusive reconciliation conference held under its auspices in November 2005, on the basis of the two fundamental documents agreed upon by all Iraqi factions in Cairo in 2005 and, subsequently, 2006, when the last meeting of the committee representing all tendencies was held at the Arab League to resume consideration of restarting the reconciliation process. The two documents contain the key points on which the Iraqi political, religious, governmental and opposition players are agreed and is considered an important basis for the process of Iraqi reconciliation. These documents are official and historic documents of the League of Arab States and, as the starting point for agreement between the various Iraqi groups, regardless of ethnicity, sect or religion, will form the basis for the continuation of Arab political action.

In addition, action from now on shall require joint effort within the framework of the Arab League in cooperation with the United Nations, the Organization of the Islamic Conference, the neighbouring States and all other concerned international bodies. Re-launching the process of Iraqi national accord has become a pressing need and we shall work to implement it in accordance with the resolutions you adopt.

As regards Lebanon, so dear to us all, the situation remains hostage to agreement between its political leaders and the balance between their demands and entitlements. We shall certainly continue our Arab efforts to achieve this on the basis of a basket of proposals put forward by the Arab League, together with their possible development and the efforts of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and the concerned Arab States. These involve the setting up of a court to uncover the truth about the terrible crime which took the life of Rafiq al-Hariri and his companions, which is a just demand, and the establishment of a Government of National Unity to steer the country through the storms currently battering it, which is a national demand, in addition to preparing for the forthcoming presidential and parliamentary elections.

Moving on to the Sudan and to Darfur in particular, the situation is tied to the following:

1. The speedy launch of the political process and widening of the basis of the Abuja Peace Agreement on Darfur to include non-signatories;
2. Cooperation between the United Nations, the African Union and the Sudanese Government in relation to the deployment of the peacekeeping forces in accordance with the agreement reached in Addis Ababa;
3. The importance of linking the developmental dimension with the political aspect in addressing the issue of Darfur, convene a dialogue conference between the people of Darfur, bolster the development and compensation funds and incorporate Darfurians into the institutions of the Federal Government;
4. Avoidance of the increasing tendency to adopt sanctions and coercion as a means of imposing solutions, as these lead to the incitement of the parties against one another and a complicating of the situation. Mutual understanding between the parties to the conflict is an important basis for arriving at permanent and stable solutions. I am very pleased to see that the new Secretary-General of the United Nations, to whom I wish every success in his important task, understands the difficulties of the Darfur issue and the importance of the three main parties – the United Nations, the African Union and the Sudanese Government – reaching an understanding;

5. Enabling the humanitarian organizations to perform their important and necessary work and the importance of these organizations focusing upon their enormous task and not involving themselves in the political situation.

The Arab League has not been unaware of the need to contribute to an improvement of the humanitarian situation in Darfur and has sent a number of medical and food missions. During my visit to Darfur, I noticed an Arab humanitarian presence in the displaced persons' camps but this still needs to be increased and given more support, particularly by Arab civil society, in order for it to play a greater role in alleviating the human suffering of the people of Darfur.

Before I conclude the subject of the Sudan, I find myself duty bound to note that the strenuous appeals have been made to the Arab States and Arab finance and investment funds to contribute to the development of Southern Sudan. In this connection, the Arab League has opened an office at Juba, in Southern Sudan, to assist with the implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement signed on 9 January 2005 and to coordinate Arab development aid for Southern Sudan.

The Arab States' preoccupation with external challenges and pressures and the increasing number of regional issues does not mean they should leave the issue of the unity of the Sudan to its own fate without an active Arab role backed up by development and investment projects, making Sudanese unity an attractive option for the people of Southern Sudan.

Last but not least, the situation in Somalia continues to be a cause of great anxiety. Under the Sudanese Presidency, the Arab League exerted the utmost efforts to encourage the Somali parties to reach peaceful solutions and Khartoum witnessed a number of rounds of Somali talks under the auspices of the Arab League. However, events moved in a different direction and the matter today requires combined international, regional and Somali efforts to address the situation on the following bases:

1. The bolstering of Somali legitimacy and support for the regime headed by President Abdullahi Yusuf;
2. Support for the African Union resolution to dispatch peacekeeping troops in support of legitimacy, the movement toward normalization of life there and the withdrawal of Ethiopian forces and affirmation of respect for the sovereignty of Somalia over its own territory;
3. The importance of dialogue and reconciliation between the political forces in Somalia and support for the Government in steering matters toward this important stage in the process of establishing the new Somalia;
4. In preparation for the above and to help bring it about, to call for a conference on the reconstruction of Somalia, in respect of which I am confident that the Arab States shall not be absent or their investments, hesitant.

On this occasion, I welcome President Mwai Kibaki, President of the Republic of Kenya and Chairman of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development and Prof. Alpha Oumar Konaré, President of the African Union Commission. I affirm the joint desire of the Arab and African sides to draw up the necessary recommendations to foster Afro-Arab cooperation and remove the obstacles to progress on new bases and with a comprehensive vision of the different areas of cooperation to be sanctioned at the earliest opportunity and the highest political level between the two close and interacting parties, the Arab and African.

While addressing political issues, I draw attention to the efforts of the United Arab Emirates to recover sovereignty over its three occupied islands and find a peaceful solution to that dispute in accordance with the principles and tenets of international law.

At the end of my report on the security and political situation, I would like to draw attention to two issues. The first of these is the nuclear issue in the Middle East. The view of the Arab League remains as established by the summit, summit resolutions and the resolutions of official councils, on the basis of:

- Opposition to the existence of any military nuclear programmes in any regional State, without exception;
- Rejection of the proposition which accepts the possibility of the existence of one acknowledged or unspoken military nuclear programme but refuses to accept another, demanding its condemnation and the imposition of sanctions;
- The right of all States Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons to acquire nuclear technology, the right to nuclear know-how, the right to right nuclear science and to cooperate toward the acquisition thereof;
- The need to make the entire Middle East a nuclear weapons-free zone – and without exception, otherwise there is no rationale for such a zone;
- Dialogue and negotiations are the way to address these issues, as has happened and is happening in other regions, without coercive measures which do not necessarily serve goals consistent with the requirements of regional security.

In the context of the strategic and security theme in the region, attention must also be drawn to the outrageous campaign against the distinctive cultural identity of the Arab nation, relying on the hostile assertion of the inevitability of a clash of cultures to sow the seeds of doubt concerning everything Arab or Muslim. It has become a regional and international political and security problem, threatening the security of the region and world stability, instead of being an open area for dialogue and free and constructive interaction with the other.

In the light of all these challenges which pose a serious threat to the security of the region, you resolved at the Khartoum Summit to establish the Arab Peace and Security Council, within the framework of the League of Arab States, with the task of monitoring these and other issues and their security implications. The Council, which is ready to become operative after securing the stipulated number of ratifications by Arab States, will give peacekeeping operations in the Arab world their proper status and role. The Council will also be responsible for the management of dispute resolution between Arab States, in addition to being in permanent session and having competence to coordinate with the Security Council and the African Union Peace and Security Council, thereby shifting the organization onto another level in respect of prompt action to prevent the deterioration of problems and outbreak of war.

President of the Summit, the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, Your Majesties, Excellencies and Highnesses,

As for the development theme, I am pleased to draw attention to the positive movement with regard to the Greater Arab Free Trade Zone and to the fact that there has been a not inconsiderable jump in the flow of trade between the Arab States.

I am also pleased to note progress in the negotiations on liberalization of the trade in services between a number of Arab countries, in addition to the substantial activity, led by the Secretariat-General, to address issues of the Arab services sectors, particularly those relating to transport, tourism, electricity interconnection, sustainable development and industrial and agricultural development. In this regard, the Arab agricultural development strategy has been put before the Summit.

In the detailed report presented to you, you will find detailed measures relating to Arab cooperation in the areas of the environment, sustainable development, housing, urban planning, meteorology and energy. In fact, activity extends to other economic sectors, such as computing, databases, telecommunications and information technology.

In this respect, Arab economic and social cooperation received a substantial boost from the Egyptian-Kuwaiti initiative put before this Summit proposing that a special Arab Summit be held on economic, development and social issues to formulate practical programmes and mechanisms to foster and strengthen Arab development strategies which will have fast and direct benefits for Arab citizens and foster economic integration between the Arab States. Welcoming this initiative, I suggest that the Economic and Social Council of the League of Arab States be charged with preparing for this summit.

In another respect, I am extremely pleased to inform the Arab leaders that your resolution at the Khartoum Summit on the modernization of education has been implemented. This topic has been of personal interest to me and I am honoured to submit to this session a detailed report representing the sum of the untiring activity carried out over the past year, with the participation of specialized Arab and international organizations, such as ALECSO, the Arab Bureau of Education for the Gulf States (ABEGS), the Islamic Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (ISESCO), UNESCO and UNICEF, in addition to the Secretariat-General of the League of Arab States which organized a number of intellectual gatherings of experts in different specializations related to education. Arab and international reports which evaluated the situation of education in the Arab States were reviewed.

The report raises a significant number of recommendations aimed at modernizing the education system in the Arab world and creating several institutions, at the forefront of which are the Arab Quality Assurance and Accreditation Network in Education and the Arab Observatory for the Development of the Arab System of Education. The report also includes analytical studies and recommendations on the development and modernization of the different levels of education.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

In addition to the initiative on the modernization of education, work is well underway to implementing the substance of the reform documents adopted at the Tunis and Algiers Summits. We commend and welcome the significant step taken by Mauritania to bring about and consolidate the democratic process and we are following with interest the current political, economic and social reform activity in the Arab world, at the forefront of which are laws to empower women and enable the development of civil society.

In the area of reform, I would like to note that the benefits from the steps taken by the Arab States on the path of reform will multiply and be increasingly noticed by the Arab citizen, when combined with the doubling of efforts to fight corruption in all its forms. We anticipate that anti-corruption indicators in the Arab States, monitored by a number of international organizations and institutions, will rise to the level of States which have successfully combated this phenomenon which has a negative impact on development.

There is still much that people are expecting and, indeed, deserve in the area of modernization and development. Hopes are tied to an on-going and bold process. We are in the 21st century, a century with its own features and aspirations and the Arabs shall not remain outside history if we develop and evolve. Development is what the overwhelming majority of Arab citizens are calling for, as reflected in the historic documents adopted by the Tunis Summit (May 2004).

Last but not least, I come to the reform of the structures of the Arab League. A comprehensive reform process was launched which included the creation of new institutions. At the forefront of these is the Interim Arab Parliament whose first anniversary we celebrated last December and which is becoming the legislative arm of the institutions of Joint Arab Action. In addition, there is the Arab Peace and Security Council, the empowerment of the Economic and Social Council and bolstering of its powers of oversight of all joint Arab development activities, and the opening-up of doors to the participation of civil society. The Secretariat-General has been modernized, its working methods developed, its level of performance enhanced and a number of important, new areas have been highlighted in the Arab League agenda, such as issues relating to the peaceful use of nuclear energy, the dialogue of civilizations, the Arabs of the Diaspora, sustainable development, climate change, the greenhouse effect and its impact on the environment and natural resources in the Arab world.

A framework has been set up and strengthened for regulating joint Arab cooperative relations with various influential blocs, entities and States, including the African Union, IGAD, the Latin American States, the European Union, China, Russia, India, Japan, Turkey and other active international and regional players.

In conclusion, I would like to welcome the guests who are joining us today at the opening of the Summit proceedings. In particular, I would like to mention the President of Pakistan, Pervez Musharraf, the President of Kenya, Mwai Kibaki, the Prime Minister of Malaysia, Mr. Abdullah Badawi, the Prime Minister of Turkey, Mr. Recep Tayyip Erdogan and the Vice-President of Indonesia, Mr. Jusuf Kalla, in addition to the Secretary-General of the United Nations, Mr. Ban Ki-moon, President of the African Union Commission, Prof. Alpha Oumar Konaré, the Secretary-General of the Organization of the Islamic Conference, Dr. Ekmeleddin Ihsanoglu, the European Union High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Mr. Javier Solana, the President of the 61st session of the United Nations General Assembly, Sheikha Haya Rashed Al Khalifa, the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of Iran and Norway and the representatives of Russia, Spain, China, India, Indonesia, Japan, Portugal, Slovenia and Cuba.

I wish the conference every success and may the peace and blessings of God be upon you.

Communiqué of the meeting of regional and international organizations on the peace process in Darfur

Pursuant to the generous invitation of the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, King Abdullah bin Abdulaziz Al Saud, a meeting on the issue of Darfur was held on the margins of the Riyadh Summit on 28 March 2007. The meeting brought together His Excellency Umar Hasan Ahmad al-Bashir, President of the Republic of the Sudan, Mr. Ban Ki-moon, Secretary-General of the United Nations, Prof. Alpha Oumar Konaré, President of the African Union Commission and Mr. Amre Moussa, Secretary-General of the League of Arab States. His Royal Highness Prince Saud Al Faisal, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and Dr. Lam Akol, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of the Sudan also took part in the meeting.

The meeting discussed all aspects of developments in the Darfur issue. The Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques urged the different parties to expedite implementation of the Abuja Peace Agreement on Darfur and the understandings reached between the United Nations, African Union and Sudanese Government in Addis Ababa and Abuja. He affirmed the need to intensify cooperation between the United Nations, African Union and League of Arab States to reach a comprehensive and speedy settlement of the conflict and end the human suffering in Darfur.

In the light of the presentation given by the Sudanese President and the contributions of the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the President of the African Union Commission and the Secretary-General of the League of Arab States, the meeting reached agreement on a number of practical measures to surmount the obstacles preventing prompt implementation of the Abuja Peace Agreement and the understandings reached subsequently in Addis Ababa and Abuja. These measures included working to bring the movements which have not signed the Abuja Peace Agreement into the peace process in order to speed up efforts toward national reconciliation. They also included calling upon the three-member committee consisting of the United Nations, African Union and Sudanese Government to meet urgently at expert level to reach agreement on the heavy support package, expedite agreement on appointing the joint representative to the United Nations and African Union to supervise implementation of the peace agreement in Darfur, and end the limitation on the size and weaponry of the African forces, as well as dealing with logistic and technical support, monitoring, financing and ways of United Nations involvement in support of the third phase of this process, in accordance with the understandings between the United Nations, African Union and Sudanese Government.

Participants welcomed the agreement signed in the Sudan on 28 March 2007 between the Sudanese Government and United Nations on facilitating the access of humanitarian aid to civilians in Darfur and the work of humanitarian organizations.

Communiqué of the meeting of regional and international organizations on Somalia

His Royal Highness Prince Saud Al Faisal convened a meeting on the margins of the Summit, attended by Their Excellencies the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the Secretary-General of the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC), the President of the African Union Commission, the Secretary-General of the League of Arab States, the European Union High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy and the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Kenya, to discuss a joint way forward on the issue of Somalia.

Following a thorough discussion of the issues involved, the group came to the following consensus:

- The situation in Somalia is becoming increasingly urgent. While resolution is primarily the responsibility of the Somalis themselves, the international community must monitor developments closely to study the assistance required to achieve this goal;
- The rapid expansion of the forces of the African Union Mission to Somalia (AMISOM) is vital to provide security and allow an early withdrawal of the Ethiopian forces. It is important to ensure that there is no gap between the departure of the Ethiopian forces and the deployment of AMISOM forces;
- National reconciliation is the key to resolving the crisis and it must be inclusive to succeed. Accordingly, a National Reconciliation Conference must be well prepared for and include all relevant Somali groups;
- Security, proper conference preparations and inclusive representation remain important requirements for achieving progress in the reconciliation process. The effort which will commence on 16 April 27 must be the start of a process to achieve these goals;
- The 3 April meeting at the headquarters of the League of Arab States in Cairo of the Contact Group plus OIC is an opportunity to start the discussion on these issues. It should formulate a clear strategy for promoting an inclusive reconciliation process which includes a clear timetable for moving the process forward quickly;
- Achieving progress in Somalia will allow the Security Council to take prompt measures to establish a peacekeeping force to replace AMISOM on the basis of a precisely worded mandate to avoid past mistakes in Somalia and to start training a national security force to bear responsibility for security;
- A solution to the Somali crisis will require a sustained effort on the part of the Somalis and the international community. If agreement is reached, members of the group taking part in this meeting may contribute the necessary funds and call upon the international community to contribute also.
