Seventieth session Agenda item 139 Human resources management

Composition of the Secretariat: staff demographics

Report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the report of the Secretary-General entitled "Composition of the Secretariat: staff demographics" (A/70/605), which covers the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015. The report was submitted pursuant to various General Assembly resolutions concerning human resources management, the most recent of which were resolutions 66/234, 67/255 and 68/252. During its consideration of the most recent composition report, the Advisory Committee met with representatives of the Secretary-General, who provided additional information and clarification, concluding with written responses received on 23 February 2016.

2. The report presents demographic statistical data on the global staff of the Secretariat, including staff movements, and on staff subject to the system of desirable ranges. The Advisory Committee notes that the previous composition report of the Secretary-General and the related observations of the Advisory Committee remain before the General Assembly for consideration (see A/69/292 and A/69/572, paras. 125-151).

Trends analysis

3. In previous reports, the Advisory Committee has pointed to the need for greater trends analysis in the composition report, which would identify the reasons for different patterns within the staff demographics, in particular those emerging since the issuance of the previous report, to help the reader to grasp the meaning behind the statistical data and tables (A/67/545, para. 138, and A/68/523, para. 5). In paragraph 13 of its resolution 68/252, the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to supplement the information presented in the composition report with additional analysis of demographic trends and possible underlying reasons for those trends.

4. In his most recent report, the Secretary-General reiterates his belief that, in order to respond to the General Assembly's request, the reporting period should be adjusted to allow sufficient time for data analysis (see A/69/292, para. 3, and A/70/605, para. 3). The Secretary-General reiterates his proposal to report data on the composition of the Secretariat on the basis of the calendar year of 1 January to 31 December, with a cut-off date of 15 March of the following year, to allow the Office of Human Resources Management time to collect data from other departments and offices for a more detailed analysis. The time available to collect the data would therefore be extended from 2 to 10 weeks, which would improve the quality of the information available to the Office. As a result of the change in the reporting period to the calendar year, the time available for analysis of the trends would also be extended significantly, after which the Secretariat report would be finalized for subsequent submission to the General Assembly for its consideration.

5. In practical terms, the Secretary-General proposes that the report to be presented to the General Assembly at its seventy-third session would cover the demographic data for the period from 1 January to 31 December 2017, with a data cut-off date of 15 March 2018. The reporting period for the seventy-first session, covering the period of 1 July 2015 to 30 June 2016, would remain unchanged (A/70/605, para. 3).

6. The Advisory Committee recalls that it does not object to the proposed change in the reporting cycle and the cut-off date for the demographic data included in the composition report, while stressing that the data for the sixmonth transitional period (July-December 2016) should be reflected in the report to be submitted to the General Assembly at its seventy-second session, in a format that facilitates comparisons with past and future periods. The Committee stresses that amending the reporting cycle and the cut-off date will not in themselves improve the analytical quality of the report.

7. In terms of trends, in his report the Secretary-General provides data on staff demographics over a five-year period, from 2011 to 2015 (see A/70/605, table 2). In particular, the Secretary-General points out that over that period (a) the number of staff of the Secretariat and related entities in the United Nations system has increased by less than 1 per cent, from 75,442 to 76,115 staff members; (b) the number of Secretariat staff decreased by 6 per cent from 43,747 to 41,081 staff members; (c) in the Secretariat, the ratio of staff in the Professional and higher categories to total staff increased from 28 per cent to 31 per cent, while the ratio of staff in the General Service and related categories to total staff decreased from 62 per cent to 59 per cent.¹ Upon enquiry, the Advisory Committee was informed that the average number of applicants per job opening across all categories had increased from 163 to 212 over the same five-year period. The Advisory Committee notes that the trends reported by the Secretary-General in his most recent composition report are similar to the trends already highlighted by the Committee in its observations on the prior composition report, reflected in the table below.

¹ The ratio of the Field Service category of staff has remained at approximately 10 per cent since 2011.

Trends reported in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions contained in document A/69/572 and in the report of the Secretary-General contained in document A/70/605

8. The Advisory Committee reiterates its recommendation that the General Assembly request the Secretary-General to undertake an analysis of trends and to explain the possible reasons for certain trends, including the impact of recent human resources reforms. These details should be reflected in future reports.

Growth in senior-level appointments

9. The report of the Secretary-General also indicates that a total of 166 staff members of the Secretariat were serving at the levels of Under-Secretary-General and Assistant Secretary-General as at 31 June 2015 (see A/70/605, tables 6 and 7). Upon enquiry, the Advisory Committee was provided with statistical information indicating that the number of Secretariat staff serving at these levels has increased by 19.4 per cent over the past five years (from 139 staff members in 2011 to 166 in 2015). This increase has to be viewed in contrast to the overall 6 per cent decrease in the staff population of the Secretariat over the same period. A list of the highlevel positions as at 31 January 2016 is contained in annex I. The Advisory Committee was also provided with data concerning the number of high-level positions at all the United Nations common system entities, with year-on-year changes between 2010 and 2014. The Committee notes that the Secretariat is one of only two entities (the other being the United Nations Development Programme) where there has been significant growth in the number of high-level positions; the overall number of high-level positions remained static in the other entities of the United Nations common system (see annex II).

10. The Advisory Committee has previously expressed its concern over the apparent upward shift in the grade structure of the Secretariat (see A/68/7, para. 102, A/69/572, para. 134, and A/70/7, para. 88). Despite increasing demands on the Organization, the Committee does not believe that this should necessarily translate into an upward trend of senior positions, since that may lead to fragmentation of leadership responsibilities and diffused accountability. Therefore, the Committee expects that greater efforts will be undertaken to ensure that before presenting proposals for high-level positions a review of existing functions and structures is undertaken to minimize any possible overlap in the functional responsibilities at the senior level of the Organization.

11. In this connection, the Advisory Committee recommends that the General Assembly request the Secretary-General to explain his practice and policy on senior appointments in his next overview report on human resources management reform and the measures taken in that regard.

The Advisory Committee also notes that there were 21 high-level appointees 12. serving on one-dollar-per-year contracts (of both fixed-term and temporary durations) in the Secretariat's population of Under-Secretaries-General and Assistant Secretaries-General as at 30 June 2015, compared with 17 such appointees with the same status as at 30 June 2014 (see A/69/292, table 9, and A/70/605, table 9). The Advisory Committee was informed, upon enquiry, that the number of senior staff serving on that type of contract increased to 23 as at 15 February 2016. The Committee further notes that the guidelines regarding the use of such contracts requested by the General Assembly in paragraph 63 of its resolution 67/255 have still not been finalized. The Advisory Committee expects that the guidelines concerning appointments on one-dollar-per-year contracts will be issued without further delay, as requested by the General Assembly in its resolution 67/255. The Committee also points out that the provision for such high-level appointees is not devoid of costs to the Organization, bearing in mind the requirements for administrative support, additional staff and operational costs, including those related to office space and travel. This should be taken into account when deciding to appoint individuals using this contract modality.

13. The Advisory Committee also wishes to recall paragraph 64 of General Assembly resolution 67/255, in which the Assembly requested the Secretary-General to inform the Advisory Committee, on a regular basis, concerning, inter alia, one-dollar-a-year contracts. The Committee notes with concern that the Secretariat has not been complying with this requirement and stresses that all provisions of General Assembly resolution 67/255 must be observed in the future.

Permanent and continuing appointments

14. The Secretary-General indicates in his report (A/70/605) that over the past five years the ratio of permanent and continuing appointments to the entire staff population of the Secretariat has increased from 16 per cent in 2011 to 23 per cent in 2015, while the ratio of fixed-term appointments to total staff has decreased from 79 per cent in 2011 to 71 per cent in 2015.² According to the Secretary-General, this change is due mainly to the one-time exercise to convert staff to permanent appointments and the first continuing-appointment exercise. The Advisory

 $^{^2}$ The ratio of temporary appointments to total staff increased slightly, from 5 per cent in 2011 to 6 per cent in 2015.

Committee was informed that, pursuant to paragraph 56 of General Assembly resolution 65/247, which set out the modalities for granting continuing appointments, including the eligibility criteria, the Secretariat is required to conduct annual reviews subject to the availability of contracts within the appropriate post envelope. The Office of Human Resources Management conducted the first annual review for the year 2012, which was concluded on 30 September 2014. The second annual review, for 2013, commenced on 1 December 2015 and is anticipated to conclude no later than 30 November 2016. The Committee reiterates its opinion that the ratio of permanent and continuing appointments to total staff should be closely monitored so as to ensure the appropriate balance in the overall global workforce of the Secretariat (see A/69/572, para. 14).

Workforce planning

15. The Advisory Committee has, on a number of occasions, pointed to the need for systematic workforce planning (see A/63/526, para. 9, A/65/537, para. 9, A/67/545, paras. 12 and 13, and A/69/572, paras. 17-20). In paragraph 16 of its resolution 68/252, the General Assembly urged the Secretary-General to develop a workforce planning system as a matter of priority and to present it to the Assembly at its sixty-ninth session.

16. In this connection, on the related issue of the practice of employing former staff beyond retirement, the Advisory Committee sought and was provided with a table listing the staff members aged 65 years or older appointed during the period July 2014-June 2015 (see annex III).

17. The Advisory Committee also recalls that, while the previous overview report on human resources reform had detailed the workforce planning activities undertaken thus far (A/69/190, paras. 27-33), the Committee was informed, in the context of its review of the most recent composition report, that the Organization is reviewing the approach taken to workforce planning in the light of the new mobility framework. A workforce planning approach specifically tailored to the framework is under development (see also A/70/254, paras. 47-49). While acknowledging the need for an adapted approach as a result of the new mobility requirements, the Advisory Committee considers that workforce planning is a broader exercise encompassing additional goals such as succession planning, rejuvenation, outreach and so on. The Committee expects therefore that a fully developed strategy concerning the development of a robust workforce planning system will be included in the next overview report on human resources management reform, so that the General Assembly can consider related proposals without further delay.

Gender

18. The Secretary-General indicates in his report that the ratio of female staff to total staff slightly increased, from 33 per cent to 34.4 per cent, between 2011 and 2015 (see A/70/605, table 2 and paras. 20-22). In terms of the efforts made by the Organization to close the gender gap, the Advisory Committee was further informed that in 2012 the System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women was established to monitor the implementation of gender parity and that it was the first inter-agency accountability framework for gender equality. In January 2014, the Department of Field Support launched a senior women talent pipeline initiative, which seeks to identify and support highly qualified external women candidates and encourage them to apply to P-5 to D-2 level vacancies in field operations. To date, eight women from the pipeline have been selected and over 15 have been rostered in various occupational groups at senior levels. The Secretariat also now utilizes the human resources management scorecard to monitor each department, office, mission and regional commission with respect to individual gender targets. Senior managers' compacts with the Secretary-General are also used to establish annual targets on gender parity and set responsibility for their achievement. Short lists and recommended lists for positions up to the D-2 level are expected to include among the minimum three names of qualified and suitable candidates at least one female candidate. The Advisory Committee intends to keep the matter of achieving gender balance in the Secretary-General to redouble his efforts in this regard and to report thereon, including on any targeted outreach initiatives, in the next overview report.

Geographical representation

19. With regard to staff subject to the system of desirable ranges, the report indicates that as at 30 June 2015 there were 3,001 Secretariat staff members with geographical status pursuant to General Assembly resolution 65/247. Between 2011 and 2015, the number of unrepresented and underrepresented Member States decreased from 20 to 18 and from 56 to 37 respectively; at the same time the number of overrepresented Member States increased from 7 to 22 (A/70/605, table 18). Upon enquiry, the Advisory Committee was provided with updated information on the effect of the new scale of assessment for the period 2016-2018. The Committee was informed upon enquiry that selection decisions are made in accordance with article 101.3 of the Charter, which provides that paramount consideration should be given to the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity. However, the Outreach Unit of the Strategic Planning and Staffing Division continues to collaborate with the agencies, funds and programmes, as well as with departments of the United Nations Secretariat, to target applicants from unrepresented and underrepresented countries by raising awareness about jobs at all levels across all occupational groups at all duty stations. It also actively promotes the young professionals programme to nationals of unrepresented and underrepresented countries. Moreover, career opportunities at the United Nations are promoted through electronic media such as Facebook, Weibo, Twitter and Linkedin; virtual career fairs; radio; targeted videos; as well as through in-person visits to universities and professional associations.

20. With regard to proposals to increase the representation of developing countries in the Secretariat, in accordance with paragraph 47 of General Assembly resolution 67/255, the Advisory Committee was informed that in determining the most suitable candidate, efforts are made to strengthen the overall capacity of management teams with a view to bringing together the best possible blend of experience and competencies. While increases in the representation of developing countries have occurred in recent years, the Secretary-General recognizes that the ratio of posts occupied by the nationals of these countries to the overall staff population has not changed significantly.

21. The Advisory Committee recalls the provisions of General Assembly resolution 67/255 with respect to improving the representation of developing countries in the Secretariat. Furthermore, the Committee recalls its comments, contained in paragraphs 115-124 of its report on human resources management

(A/69/572), on the proposed amendments to the system of desirable ranges, which are pending consideration by the General Assembly.³

22. On a related matter and in the context of its current review, the Advisory Committee sought and obtained a table containing an overview of staff demographics of the Secretariat as at 30 June 2015 by the five regional groupings (Africa, Asia-Pacific, Eastern Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean and Western Europe and Other States). A summary of that table is contained in annex IV.

Other issues

23. With regard to new appointments, the report of the Secretary-General indicates that from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, 179 Secretariat staff members, having gone through the selection process, were appointed to posts subject to geographical distribution. During the same period, 76 Secretariat staff members were appointed through a national competitive examination or the young professionals programme (A/70/605, para. 45).

24. In terms of movement of staff, the report of the Secretary-General indicates that over the reporting period, from a population of 26,894 staff administered in the Integrated Management Information System and Umoja, the movements of staff included 4,406 appointments and 4,378 separations.⁴ The United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic was the biggest recruiting field entity, with 170 appointments and 26 separations; the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti was the biggest downsizing entity, with 77 appointments and 202 separations (see A/70/605, tables 14-16). The Advisory Committee was informed, upon enquiry, that between 2010 and 2015 the percentage of the staff population in non-field operations increased from 45.6 per cent to 49.4 per cent, while the percentage of the staff population in field operations decreased accordingly. The Committee was also informed that the total number of Secretariat staff in New York had increased between 2014 and 2015 from 6,410 to 6,545 (the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, the Department of Management and the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs being the fastest growing entities in New York).⁵

25. Subject to its comments and recommendations above, the Advisory Committee recommends that the General Assembly:

(a) Take note of the report of the Secretary-General on the composition of the Secretariat: staff demographics (A/70/605);

(b) Endorse the proposed change in the reporting period for future reports on the composition of the Secretariat, starting with the report to be submitted to the General Assembly at its seventy-third session.

⁵ The Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Department of Management had a net increase of 30 staff each, while the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs increased by 34 staff. The Advisory Committee will further discuss the issues related to staff movements in its upcoming report on the implementation of the mobility framework.
