Overall orientation

2.1 The objective of programme 2 is the maintenance of international peace and security, to be achieved by assisting Member States, at their request, to resolve potentially violent disputes or conflict peacefully, in accordance with the principles of the Charter of the United Nations and under the direction of the General Assembly and the Security Council. The Security Council has primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, while the Department of Political Affairs has substantive responsibility for the programme. To help Member States prevent armed conflict, the Department of Political Affairs deploys the tools of preventive diplomacy, peacemaking and peacebuilding, including in partnership with a range of international, regional and other organizations.

2.2 The strategy of the Department embodies the recognition that inclusive political solutions provide the best foundation for a durable peace. The strategy is designed around 11 subprogrammes that prioritize prevention of armed conflicts; affirm the primacy of political solutions to existing and potential conflicts; promote the pacific settlement of disputes; foster partnerships for prevention and resolution of conflict and peacebuilding; promote women's participation and empowerment; and endeavour to ensure that the different tools at the disposal of the United Nations are fit for purpose.

2.3 The Department will continue to provide political advice and analysis to the Secretary-General and the United Nations system; strengthen its early warning capacity, and reinforce its support to special political missions, including special envoys and regional offices, as well as peacekeeping operations, especially in the areas of mediation and elections, and to resident coordinators working in complex political situations. The Department will also focus on providing electoral assistance to Member States, work closely with the Peacebuilding Commission and the Peacebuilding Support Office on post-conflict peacebuilding and provide mediation support to the United Nations system and, as requested, to Member States and regional and other organizations. The Department will maximize the use of its network of regional offices and special political missions as one of its tools for conflict prevention and mediation.

2.4 In order to reflect the experiences of the last few years and to better capture the increased emphasis placed by the General Assembly on mediation support, subprogramme 1 has been split into two complementary subprogrammes that share similar strategic objectives. The first subprogramme will focus on the prevention, management and resolution of conflicts and will be the responsibility of the regional divisions in the Department. The second subprogramme will focus on policy and mediation support and will be the responsibility of the Policy and Mediation Division. This will serve to further clarify the programmatic structure under programme 2 and to reflect the structures that are in place in the Department.

2.5 The Department will continue to provide substantive support to policymaking organs, such as the Security Council and its subsidiary bodies, the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People, and will continue to implement the Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. The Department will continue to strive to reinforce the capacity of Member States and regional and other organizations for preventive diplomacy, good offices and non-military measures to prevent potentially violent disputes from escalating into conflicts, as well as to resolve violent conflicts. It will do so while fully respecting the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of Member States and the principle of non-intervention in matters that are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of States. It will also respect the principle of consent, which is an essential element for the success of such efforts. In addition, the Department will endeavour to enhance its capacity with regard to the political aspects of peacebuilding, as approved by the relevant intergovernmental bodies.

2.6 The Peacebuilding Support Office will continue to support the work of the Peacebuilding Commission, manage the Peacebuilding Fund and foster collaboration among United Nations system entities to promote the coherence of peacebuilding efforts. The Office will support the work of the Commission by preparing analytical background documents and briefing notes to facilitate and guide its engagement and its interaction with the United Nations system and other stakeholders. The Office will also promote collaboration among United Nations system entities to ensure enhanced support for the work of the Peacebuilding Commission and to promote a coherent approach to peacebuilding through the capturing of lessons learned from the United Nations system engagement in countries emerging from conflict. The Peacebuilding Fund will contribute to consolidating peace by funding projects designed to respond to imminent threats to the peace process, build or strengthen national capacities to promote peaceful resolution of conflict, stimulate economic revitalization and re-establish essential administrative services. Women's participation and gender equality will remain a strong, cross-cutting focus of all of the work streams of the Peacebuilding Support Office.

2.7 The United Nations Register of Damage Caused by the Construction of the Wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory was established by the General Assembly to serve as a record, in documentary form, of the damage caused to natural and legal persons by the construction of the Wall by Israel in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in and around East Jerusalem. The Register of Damage is a subsidiary organ of the General Assembly under the administrative authority of the Secretary-General.

2.29 The Peacebuilding Fund contributes to sustaining peace by funding projects and programmes designed to respond to threats to peace, build or strengthen national capacities to promote peaceful resolution of conflict, stimulate economic revitalization and re-establish essential administrative services. The Office will provide support for conflict analyses and closely follow the design, implementation and evaluation of strategic peacebuilding initiatives. The Office will ensure that the relevant entities of the United Nations system participate in the review of proposals and ongoing monitoring of Fund-supported initiatives to improve system-wide coherence and promote capacity for peacebuilding.

The Joint United Nations-African Union Framework for an Enhanced Partnership in Peace and Security translates this cooperation into the following four areas: conflict prevention and mediation, responding to conflict, addressing root causes and continuous review and enhancement of the partnership with the African Union. The Office will work with the African Union Commission on the implementation of the Joint Framework in line with Security Council resolutions 2167 (2014) and 2033 (2012) and General Assembly resolution 67/302.

2.32 The Office works closely with United Nations Headquarters, peacekeeping operations and special political missions in Africa and, in so doing, enhances United Nations peace and security relations with the African Union. Furthermore, it provides support to United Nations good offices initiatives in eastern Africa, in coordination with the African Union and the respective subregional organizations.

2.33 In addition, the Office seeks to consolidate the partnership with the African Union in the planning and management of peace operations and the development of institutional capacities to prevent, manage and resolve conflict. In this regard, the Office coordinates its work with other United Nations actors, including by chairing the peace and security cluster of United Nations offices, funds and programmes working with the African Union. The Office also participates in donor and partner coordination mechanisms in Addis Ababa.
