Overall orientation

23.1 The overall purpose of the programme is to ensure the timely, coherent, coordinated and principled response of the international community to disasters and emergencies and to facilitate the transition from emergency relief to rehabilitation and sustainable development. The legislative authority and mandate for the programme are derived from General Assembly resolution 46/182, in which the Assembly set out the guiding principles of humanitarian response and reinforced earlier decisions and resolutions adopted by the Assembly and by the Economic and Social Council concerning humanitarian assistance and the leadership role of the Secretary-General in responding to natural disasters and other humanitarian emergencies. This mandate has been confirmed and broadened through the normative developments of resolution 46/182 over the past 25 years.

23.2 The Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs is responsible for the implementation of the programme and the achievement of its objectives. The strategy for implementing the programme revolves around the following: the development and promotion of a common policy on humanitarian issues for the United Nations system and its partners; the mobilization and coordination of assistance in humanitarian emergencies; the mobilization of United Nations capacity to expedite the provision of international humanitarian assistance; the strengthening of climate change adaptation, sustainable development and environmental policies and practices to reduce risks of disasters; advocacy on humanitarian issues; and the availability of timely information on emergencies and natural disasters. The principal responsibility for implementation of disaster risk reduction activities resides with the inter-agency secretariat of the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction. The Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs works closely with entities in the United Nations system to aid the transition from relief to rehabilitation and development. The Office also advocates for and contributes to stronger preparedness for more timely humanitarian assistance in emergencies through regional cooperation in accordance with its mandate.

23.3 To accomplish its mission, the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs is committed to working towards greater gender equality. In line with Economic and Social Council resolution 2013/16, the Office will implement an accountability framework for gender equality to enhance and accelerate gender mainstreaming. The Office also ensures that a gender perspective is fully integrated into humanitarian activities and policies through tools such as the gender toolkit, the Inter-Agency Standing Committee Gender Handbook in Humanitarian Action and the Gender Standby Capacity (GenCap) project roster and advisers.

Subprogramme 1 Policy and analysis

(b) Improved ability of humanitarian agencies to respond effectively to the needs of affected populations during disasters and emergency situations, including the transitional phase from relief to sustainable development	Percentage of inter-agency evaluation recommendations implemented by humanitarian agencies
(c) Increased capacity of United Nations humanitarian coordinators to integrate the protection of civilians guidelines into humanitarian response planning	Percentage of humanitarian response plans that meet established guidance on addressing protection concerns

Strategy

23.4 Substantive responsibility for the subprogramme is vested in the Policy Development and Studies Branch in New York.

23.5 The Policy Development and Studies Branch in New York will continue to identify emerging humanitarian trends and challenges, building harmonized policy positions among humanitarian agencies based on international humanitarian law, human rights and the guiding principles contained in the annex to General Assembly resolution 46/182.

23.6 The Policy Development and Studies Branch will support the intergovernmental process on humanitarian issues, including by providing policy analysis on humanitarian issues and providing policy advice to country and regional offices of the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and the broader humanitarian system, taking into account the specific needs of the affected population, recognizing that giving appropriate consideration to, inter alia, gender, age and disability is part of a comprehensive and effective humanitarian response. The Policy Development and Studies Branch will work to increase the number of humanitarian policy priorities in the report of the Secretary-General on strengthening coordination that Member States discuss in the annual Economic and Social Council and General Assembly humanitarian resolution negotiations, in order to increase the likelihood of such priorities being adopted as resolutions. The Policy Development and Studies Branch will lead the development of inter-agency policies, guidance and analytical tools, as well as policy development with other partners, for delivery against humanitarian needs. In this regard, the Policy Development and Studies Branch will carry out policy analysis of emerging global challenges and trends; issue analytical publications providing recommendations for strengthened humanitarian assistance; hold high-level policy forums; and brief humanitarian stakeholders on humanitarian issues. It will also continue to work to ensure progress in mainstreaming a gender perspective into humanitarian assistance, and to preserve the operational space for principled humanitarian action, consistent with the 2006 note from the Secretary-General providing guidance on integrated missions. The Policy Development and Studies Branch will continue to develop aides-memoires and analytical tools for political actors, such as Member States and peacekeepers, to use during crisis management to help ensure consideration of key humanitarian concerns. In addition, the Policy Development and Studies Branch will contribute to the development of training programmes and standard operating procedures to ensure that staff and other actors in emergencies are aware of key humanitarian policies, methodologies and processes and are able to apply them flexibly and appropriately in varied contexts. The Policy Development and Studies Branch will identify best practice and innovative concepts that should be disseminated widely to inform and guide policy, operational decisions and crisis management.

23.7 Moreover, the Policy Development and Studies Branch will support and promote the efforts of Governments of affected countries, upon their request, and those of other agencies, with the approval of the Government concerned, to assist and protect internally displaced persons. Support will be given for the establishment of effective planning capacity for the management of the transition from relief to reconstruction and development. In addition, efforts will be made to ensure that lessons learned from past experience are applied to the strengthening of future humanitarian assistance activities. Regular briefings will be conducted with Member States on these activities.

The Programme Support Branch will support humanitarian coordinators and humanitarian country teams in implementing the humanitarian programme cycle by providing normative guidance, training and support to the field. The Programme Support Branch also facilitates the conduct of simulations to collect good practices and enhance learning with the aim of ensuring that the humanitarian response is needs-based, prioritized and strategic. The Programme Support Branch will ensure that intersectoral themes, such as resilience, gender and accountability to affected people, are mainstreamed within the humanitarian programme cycle by integrating them into normative guidance and tools. In addition, the Programme Support Branch will promote standards and innovations throughout the humanitarian programme cycle by developing and refining common tools, definitions or systems for the Inter-Agency Standing Committee.

23.12 The Partnerships and Resource Mobilization Branch will aim to initiate and enhance sustainable partnerships to facilitate principled and timely humanitarian response, support the mobilization of resources from new actors in support of humanitarian operations and promote strengthened and broadened relationships with Member States and regional organizations on policy and operational issues. In addition, the Partnerships and Resource Mobilization Branch will further support public-private collaboration, including strengthened collaboration with the World Economic Forum.

23.13 Finally, the Coordination and Response Division, the CERF secretariat and the Funding Coordination Section in New York and the Programme Support Branch and the Partnership and Resource Mobilization Branch in Geneva will continue to work towards the improvement of humanitarian coordination structures at the country, regional and international levels, in support of national efforts. Strategy

23.14 Substantive responsibility for the subprogramme is vested in the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction and its secretariat.

23.15 The International Strategy for Disaster Reduction is mandated by the General Assembly in resolution 56/195 to serve as the focal point in the United Nations system for the coordination of disaster reduction and to ensure synergies among the disaster reduction activities of the United Nations system and regional organizations and activities in socioeconomic and humanitarian fields.

23.16 The Third United Nations World Conference on Disaster Risk Reduction in 2015 adopted the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction 2015-2030, which was endorsed by the General Assembly in resolution 69/283. The Sendai Framework, successor to the Hyogo Framework for Action,¹ sets out expected outcomes, goals and priorities for disaster risk reduction through 2030. It requires broadening the focus of risk reduction work to include preventing the accumulation of new risk. It aims to guide the multi-hazard management of disaster risk in development across all sectors.

¹ Hyogo Framework for Action 2005-2015: Building the Resilience of Nations and Communities to Disasters (A/CONF.206/6 and Corr.1, chap. 1, resolution 2).

23.17 In resolution 69/283, the General Assembly requested the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction to facilitate and support the implementation, follow-up and review of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction. The Assembly called upon all stakeholders to engage in collective efforts to make the world safer from the risk of disasters in the decades to come for the benefit of the present and future generations. In resolution 70/204, the Assembly acknowledged the importance of the work of the agencies, programmes and funds of the United Nations system and other relevant institutions in disaster risk reduction and the substantial increase in demands on the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction.

23.18 The International Strategy for Disaster Reduction will: (a) coordinate, monitor and review the implementation of the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction; (b) inform risk-sensitive decision-making through applied knowledge and understanding of risk; and (c) build resilience by catalysing action on the part of stakeholders. The International Strategy for Disaster Reduction will continue to support national Governments, cities and local communities in managing risk through the mobilization of partners, and to advocate for risk-informed development in the public and private sectors through its broad networks of national platforms, parliamentarians, local governments, donors, financial institutions, businesses, scientists and civil society and community organizations, all of which are essential in reducing disaster risk.

23.19 The United Nations funds, programmes and agencies will continue to support the development and implementation of disaster risk reduction programmes at the regional and national levels. As lead coordinator of the United Nations Plan of Action on Disaster Risk Reduction for Resilience, the International Strategy for Disaster Reduction will continue to provide substantive support to the Secretary-General and the United Nations governance bodies. It will also continue to engage the United Nations system entities through all relevant coordination mechanisms and functions, including the United Nations Chief Executives Board for Coordination and United Nations resident coordinators, to ensure coherence within the strategies and programmes of the United Nations system.

23.22 Emphasis will be placed on ensuring the timely dissemination of information on the situation in countries affected by emergencies and disasters, including the identification of resource requirements, to relevant partners; activating emergency, disaster-response and preparedness tools to reduce the impact of emergencies and disasters; expanding the United Nations Disaster Assessment and Coordination teams in different regions; standardizing operational procedures for international urban search and rescue teams through the International Search and Rescue Advisory Group; further strengthening and diversifying the rapid response and surge mechanisms and improving coordination among the various mechanisms; and strengthening national and regional civil-military and military-military coordination, upon the request of Member States, for more efficient and coherent support to humanitarian relief operations, by implementing the United Nations civil-military coordination training programme. Emphasis will also be placed on increasing the extent to which the acute environmental impact of disasters is identified and addressed during the response phase, as well as on strengthening coordination in the field of humanitarian logistics and preparedness through expanded cooperation with relevant partners.

Subprogramme 5 Humanitarian emergency information and advocacy

23.24 The Communications Services Branch will continue to support the Emergency Relief Coordinator, other high-level officials of the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and the humanitarian community in advocacy aimed at encouraging Member States and parties to conflict to put humanitarian principles, as set out in General Assembly resolutions 46/182 and 58/114, into practice, and through advocacy centred around international humanitarian law, the protection of civilians in armed conflict, the access of aid workers and their safety and security. Sustained efforts will continue to be made on advocacy aimed at maintaining the distinction between civilians and combatants.

23.25 The Communications Services Branch will also seek to develop further strategies to highlight forgotten emergencies and natural disasters, especially through agreed upon key messages targeting audiences through national and international media utilizing its web platform (see www.unocha.org) and by advocating independently or jointly with non-governmental organizations, civil society groups and academic institutions to highlight humanitarian crises. The Communications Services Branch will support country-specific communications responses through support in developing country- and region-specific advocacy and communications strategies, guidance and back-up. The Communications Services Branch will also provide services, including press releases, media alerts, interviews and public briefings, op-eds, crisis communication and advocacy strategy design, designed to amplify country-specific strategies and messages, thereby strengthening overall humanitarian advocacy.

23.26 Another vital aspect of the subprogramme is to provide timely and reliable information on unfolding emergencies and natural disasters in support of decision-making and humanitarian action on the ground. The Information Services Branch will further strengthen the systems for collection, analysis, dissemination and sharing of humanitarian information through expanded networks, including broadcast coverage and reach. This includes updating and improving its principal websites, namely ReliefWeb, Humanitarian Response and related web services of the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs. Partnerships with other members of the humanitarian community for information-sharing, coordination and standardization will be further enhanced. The Information Services Branch will also help establish common field information services to offer a better knowledge base for the humanitarian community.
