I. Introduction

1. The purpose of the present report is to seek funding for the first year of the biennium 2018–2019 for 35 special political missions, in connection with actions taken or expected to be taken by the General Assembly and/or the Security Council on the basis of requests from Member States and/or recommendations of the Secretary-General.
2. Two new missions were established by the Security Council in 2017, namely, the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia (see Council resolution 2366 \(2017\)) and the Panel of Experts on Mali (see Council resolution 2374 \(2017\)).
3. On 31 December 2016, the mandate of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Myanmar was concluded. One mission was terminated in 2017, namely, the United Nations Mission in Colombia, the mandate of which concluded on 25 September 2017, in accordance with Security Council resolution 2366 \(2017\).
4. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 71/274, on the proposed programme budget outline for the biennium 2018–2019, a biennial provision in the amount of $1,109.6 million is included under section 3, Political affairs, of the proposed programme budget for 2018–2019 for special political missions (see A/72/6 \(Sect. 3\)). The utilization of the provision for 2018 and its balance is contained in annex I to the present report.

A. Status of the extension or renewal of mandates

B. Missions established, completed or discontinued in 2017

7. On 31 December 2016, the mandate of the Special Adviser on Myanmar was concluded.
8. On 5 September 2017, in its resolution 2374 \(2017\), the Security Council established a sanctions regime in relation to the situation in Mali, including a travel ban and an asset freeze. The Council also established a sanctions committee and a panel of experts.

9. The mandate of the United Nations Mission in Colombia, established by the Security Council in its resolution 2261 \(2016\), concluded on 25 September 2017. The Mission met its overall objectives of monitoring and verifying the definitive bilateral ceasefire and cessation of hostilities between the Government of Colombia and the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia — People's Army (FARC-EP), as well as the laying down of arms.

10. On 26 September 2017, the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia, established pursuant to Security Council resolution 2366 \(2017\), commenced its activities, which are focused on the verification of the implementation by the Government of Colombia and FARC-EP of the political, economic and social reincorporation of FARC-EP; the implementation of personal and collective security guarantees; and comprehensive programmes on security and protection measures for communities and organizations in the territories.

C. Organization of the reports on the budgets of special political missions

11. As in the past, the budget proposals for special political missions for 2018 are organized in thematic clusters, while the budgets for larger missions, namely, UNAMA and UNAMI, are presented in separate addenda to the present report.

12. In order to reflect more comprehensively the type of missions under each cluster, the cluster names have been revised and are presented as follows:

(a) Thematic cluster I: special and personal envoys, advisers and representatives of the Secretary-General (A/72/371/Add.1);

(b) Thematic cluster II: sanctions monitoring teams, groups and panels, and other entities and mechanisms (A/72/371/Add.2);

(c) Thematic cluster III: regional offices, offices in support of political processes and other missions (A/72/371/Add.3);

(d) UNAMA (A/72/371/Add.4);

(e) UNAMI (A/72/371/Add.5).

13. With regard to the proposed budgets for UNSMIL and the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia (both under cluster III) and the proposed budget for the Panel of Experts on Mali (cluster II), in order to ensure that the budget proposals for 2018 are responsive to developments on the ground and that the missions will be appropriately resourced to respond to the latest developments, these missions are presented under separate addenda.

14. Efforts continue to be made to adapt and follow as closely as is practical the format and presentation of budgets for peacekeeping operations in presenting the budgets for special political missions.

15. Similar to the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2018–2019, indicators of achievement that have only numerical performance measures continue to be presented in tabular format. The presentation of performance measures in tabular format has been enhanced to include information across four years (2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018), compared with the three years presented in the proposed budgets for special political missions for 2017, to allow for the comparison of longer-term trends. For indicators of achievement that have performance measures that are qualitative and formulated in text form, the presentation format of the proposed budgets for 2016 has been maintained (see A/70/348 and addenda).

D. Performance information for 2017

16. UNSOM contributed to the successful completion of the 2016–2017 electoral process that established the new Federal Government and two houses of the Parliament. During the reporting period, UNSOM focused on continuing State-building and peacebuilding efforts across the country, taking into consideration the changing political landscape with regard to all federal member states. UNSOM supported the new Government in mapping out political processes over its four-year tenure, revolving around the advancement of the federalism agenda, constitutional review, and conflict resolution and reconciliation. UNSOM also played a key role in coordinating international community support for the political process and for its overall engagement in Somalia, including in the security and rule of law sectors, in particular for the development of a comprehensive approach to security and for the establishment of a new policing model for Somalia. As part of its human rights mandate, the Mission continued to carry out monitoring and capacity-building.

17. The Office of the Special Envoy for the Great Lakes Region continued to lead, monitor and report on the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Region. During the reporting period, the Office contributed to regional efforts to advance the implementation of the Nairobi Declarations; resolve the situation of the Sudan People's Liberation Army in Opposition fighters currently in the Democratic Republic of the Congo; address the threat posed by the Allied Democratic Forces and other armed groups; and implement durable solutions for former combatants stationed in camps in the eastern part of the country. Furthermore, together with the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Office provided good offices to assist with the implementation of the 31 December 2016 political agreement, intended to pave the way for credible and peaceful elections in the country.

18. Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2248 \(2015\), a United Nations mission in Burundi was established in Bujumbura in January 2016 to support the efforts of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Conflict Prevention, including in Burundi, to work with the Government of Burundi and other concerned stakeholders in support of an inclusive inter-Burundian dialogue and national efforts to build and sustain peace. During the reporting period, the mission carried out tasks mandated in Security Council resolutions 2279 \(2016\) and 2303 \(2016\), which included supporting the inter-Burundian dialogue process, held under the auspices of the East African Community and through the East African Community mediator and facilitator, by providing technical and substantive support to the dialogue. On 5 May 2017, the Secretary-General appointed the former President of Burkina Faso, Michel Kafando, as his Special Envoy (Burundi) to succeed the Special Adviser.

19. During the reporting period, Uganda and South Sudan withdrew their troops from the African Union Regional Task Force, which is fighting the Lord's Resistance Army, and the United States of America ended the mandate of its special forces supporting the Regional Task Force. In the light of the renewal by the Peace and Security Council of the African Union of the mandate of the Regional Task Force until 22 May 2018, taking into account the need to realign the concept of operations of the Regional Task Force with the latest developments on the ground, UNOCA will work with regional partners, including the African Union, to review and revise the United Nations regional strategy to combat the threat of the Lord's Resistance Army.

20. In its resolution 2349 \(2017\), the Security Council called upon UNOCA, UNOWAS and the United Nations Office to the African Union to redouble their support for Governments in the region, as well as subregional and regional organizations, to address the impact of violence carried out by Boko Haram and Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) on peace and stability in the Lake Chad Basin region. UNOWAS also continues to advance the objectives of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel, including through its liaison cell in Nouakchott, which focuses on supporting the work of the Group of Five for the Sahel.

21. In December 2016, a strategic review of the key priorities of UNIOGBIS was conducted, key conclusions of which were endorsed by the Security Council in its resolution 2343 \(2017\). The strategic review carried out in December 2016 emphasized the need for UNIOGBIS to refocus its existing efforts towards political capacities in support of the good offices and political facilitation role of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, and recommended the streamlining of its management structure. UNIOGBIS is in the process of implementing the recommendations of the strategic review.

22. A strategic assessment of UNSMIL was conducted in May and June 2017 to help to adjust the concept of operations and structure of the Mission to the changing realities on the ground and to continue to support the political process. Those efforts will include a phased ramping up of the rotational presence of international staff in Libya while maintaining an office in Tunis. UNSMIL has been working on a new strategy that was announced by the Secretary-General and his Special Representative for Libya during the high-level segment of the seventy-second session of the General Assembly.

23. In Colombia, the consolidation of the ceasefire and cessation of hostilities that followed the signing of a peace agreement between the Government of Colombia and FARC-EP on 24 November 2016, and the historic completion of the laying down of weapons, represented major milestones in peace implementation. The strong commitment of the parties kept the peace process on track despite numerous challenges.

24. The United Nations Mission in Colombia, authorized by the Security Council in its resolution 2261 \(2016\), initiated its one-year mandate on 26 September 2016 and has since verified the ceasefire, which has held remarkably well since its signing. The Mission has also monitored the movement of more than 7,000 FARC-EP members to the 26 assembly zones and points, verified the laying down of individual weapons and conducted operations to verify the destruction of 750 arms caches, as FARC-EP had begun its transition to a legal political movement. On 10 July 2017, following a request by the parties, the Council adopted resolution 2366 \(2017\) establishing a follow-on mission to verify the reintegration of FARC-EP members and the implementation of security guarantees for the group and for conflict-affected communities. The activities of the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia commenced in full on 26 September 2017 following the completion of the mandate of the United Nations Mission in Colombia. By supporting the crucial reintegration phase, this second mission can play an important role in helping to consolidate peace in Colombia. In addition, the Council, in its resolution 2381 \(2017\), authorized the Verification Mission to support the monitoring of the temporary bilateral ceasefire between the Government of Colombia and the Ejército de Liberación Nacional (National Liberation Army), which entered into force on 1 October 2017.

25. The reporting period witnessed a high level of activity and unprecedented progress, but also serious challenges in talks between the Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot leaders, facilitated by the Office of the Special Adviser on Cyprus. In January 2017, in parallel to the bicomunal negotiations and marking a historic phase in the Cyprus talks, the Secretary-General opened the Conference on Cyprus. The Conference aimed to discuss the sixth and last chapter of the negotiations on security and guarantees, with the participation of the guarantor Powers (Greece, Turkey and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland) and in the presence of the European Union as an observer.

26. As of October 2017, the Special Envoy for Syria had held four rounds of intra-Syrian negotiations in Geneva on the basis of Security Council resolution 2254 \(2015\) and the Geneva communiqué of June 2012. The Office of the Special Envoy established a technical consultative process so that experts of the negotiating delegations could identify commonalities on the agenda and better prepare for formal negotiations. The Office continues to host the International Syria Support Group task forces on ceasefire and humanitarian access and facilitate the participation of Syrian women and civil society in the talks through the Syrian Women's Advisory Board and the Civil Society Support Room.

27. In Iraq, the completion of the military campaign in Mosul, Tall Afar and Hawijah sharpened the expectations and role of UNAMI to focus on a number of pressing issues, in consultation with the Government of Iraq, including: promoting a solution to outstanding issues between Baghdad and Erbil following the referendum in the Kurdistan region of Iraq and disputed territories on 25 September 2017; facilitating efforts to reach a process of national and societal reconciliation; assisting the development of processes for holding elections; supporting accountability and justice for human rights violations and war crimes; and advising on security sector reform as well as assisting in the voluntary, dignified and safe return of 3 million internally displaced persons to liberated areas through stabilization and reconstruction efforts.

28. On 15 June 2017, the Security Council adopted a presidential statement on Yemen (S/PRST/2017/7) calling upon all parties to engage constructively with the latest proposals of the Special Envoy for Yemen with regard to: (a) increasing commercial and humanitarian shipments through Red Sea ports, including new arrangements for the management of Hudaydah port and city; and (b) resuming government salary payments and preserving essential government services in all areas of the country. The Special Envoy has continued to engage with the parties in line with the presidential statement and with a view to reviving political negotiations.

29. A strategic review of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) reaffirmed the need for continued good offices by the Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for Lebanon and UNIFIL to preserve the cessation of hostilities and make progress towards a permanent ceasefire, including by exploring confidence-building measures. The Office has continued to support the efforts of the Government of Lebanon to increase the presence of the Lebanese Armed Forces, including on its borders and in South Lebanon, as part of advancing the extension of State authority and consolidating the country's stability.

30. UNAMA continued to implement its good offices mandate in support of peace and reconciliation efforts; supported donor coordination; continued to provide assistance to the electoral management bodies; supported regional initiatives to enhance economic, political and security cooperation; reported on human rights; and advocated for the implementation of the national action plan for the implementation of Security Council resolution 1325 \(2000\) in Afghanistan. On 22 June 2017, the Independent Election Commission of Afghanistan announced 7 July 2018 as the date for parliamentary and district council elections, for which the Government has formally requested continued United Nations electoral assistance. UNAMA also provided support for the revision of the penal code, which was passed by legislative decree on 4 March 2017 and will enter into force on 15 February 2018.

31. The United Nations Regional Centre for Preventive Diplomacy for Central Asia continues to work with the five Central Asian Member States to identify areas in which it can support ongoing regional cooperation efforts, and provides a platform for dialogue on some of the most pressing challenges to regional peace and security. On 16 September 2017, the Secretary-General appointed Natalia Gherman as the new Special Representative and Head of the Regional Centre.

32. In relation to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the Security Council introduced new measures.

E. Operational environment and key policy issues related to special political missions

1. Operational environment

33. The operational environment for special political missions remains particularly challenging and continued to deteriorate in some areas in 2017. Across the world, special political missions continue to be deployed to some of the most volatile security situations and are mandated to confront a number of complex peace and security challenges. At the same time, there is growing acknowledgement of the critical contribution that those missions can make. From Special Envoys working to resolve violent conflicts, such as in the Syrian Arab Republic or Yemen, to regional offices serving as platforms for preventive diplomacy in Central Africa, Central Asia and West Africa, to offices supporting difficult but critical political processes, such as in Guinea-Bissau, Libya and Somalia, special political missions remain an indispensable tool in the broader peace and security work of the United Nations.

2. Complexity of mandates and flexibility to deliver

34. Special political missions have continued to play diverse and critical roles in the work of the United Nations in the area of international peace and security, addressing a wide range of different mandates and designed flexibly to respond to the needs of each specific situation.

35. In Libya, the Syrian Arab Republic and Yemen, for example, special political missions continue to work to encourage political solutions. In Afghanistan, Iraq and Somalia, missions have worked to help to build resilient institutions, including through electoral and institutional support. Special political missions with regional mandates, including the three regional offices for West Africa and the Sahel, Central Africa and Central Asia, have worked to identify risks early and enable coordinated, coherent and effective responses. All special political missions work increasingly closely with regional and subregional organizations, both directly and through the strategic partnerships agendas.

36. In the above-mentioned cases and others, the complex mandates, structures and operational profile of special political missions were adapted to the specific demands of each situation. As conflicts evolve, both in terms of their political dynamics and the security situation, missions must adjust to the realities on the ground if they are to carry out their mandates successfully.

37. The experience of the recently concluded United Nations Mission in Colombia is a case in point, responding to the request from parties for support for their peace process in a manner that was quick, flexible and tailored to the particularities of the Colombian situation. The Mission's full operational insertion within a tripartite mechanism including the two parties to the peace agreement was innovative and contributed to strengthening confidence in the process, which in turn facilitated the management of a complex mandate in difficult and remote terrain, without impinging on the Mission's independence. Its successor, the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia, will build on this partnership and on the continued support of the international community, having commenced its activities on 26 September 2017.

3. Strengthening conflict prevention

38. Special political missions are among the most important set of preventive tools available to the United Nations. Regional political offices are widely recognized as effective forward platforms for preventive diplomacy, while Special Envoys, Representatives and Advisers help national and international actors to resolve a wide variety of issues, from territorial questions to regional conflicts, constitutional and electoral crises, reunification negotiations and peace talks.

39. Special political missions sustain preventive efforts across a range of disciplines, such as disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, security sector reform and human rights, to help to prevent and resolve conflict, support complex political transitions and sustain peace, in coordination with national actors and United Nations partners. In that way, they pursue the immediate objective of mitigating the triggers and effects of violent conflict, while also seeking to consolidate peace and move towards the longer-term goals of prevention and sustainable peace.

40. The work of special political missions therefore goes hand in hand with the Secretary-General's agenda in which prevention is a core theme that cuts across the work of all parts of the Organization. This is based on the understanding that there is a need to refocus the work of the United Nations towards preventing the outbreak of crises, given their grave costs, in terms of human lives lost and suffering, as well as the undermining of institutions and setbacks to societies' resilience and efforts to advance sustainable development.

4. Women and peace and security

41. Special political missions play an increasingly important role in the implementation of the women and peace and security agenda. In their areas of deployment, missions spearhead many of the United Nations-led efforts to promote women's participation in peace processes and to mainstream gender into the Organization's political and conflict prevention work. Gender advisers, including both international and national positions, are active in a number of special political missions. Recent deployments included gender advisers to the Offices of the Special Envoys for Syria and the Great Lakes Region and the United Nations Mission in Colombia, while UNAMI deployed a Women's Protection Adviser to work on conflict-related sexual violence.

42. The deployment of dedicated gender expertise has had a catalytic impact on the capacity of special political missions to effectively mainstream gender into their work, as well as that of Headquarters. Since 2014, all reports of the Secretary-General to the Security Council on the work of special political missions have text on gender and women and peace and security and data disaggregated by sex, and more than half have also included recommendations specific to women and peace and security. To enable greater oversight, transparency and accountability on peace operations and issues relating to women and peace and security, in 2016 the Council established an Informal Expert Group on Women and Peace and Security, which, during the reporting period, met with the senior leadership of special political missions to discuss the situation of women in Afghanistan, Iraq, Yemen and the Lake Chad Basin region.

43. In February 2017, the Department of Political Affairs, in close coordination with the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, the Department of Field Support and the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), convened the first joint workshop for gender advisers in Entebbe, Uganda. The workshop brought together 39 gender advisers and focal points from field missions and UN-Women country offices. The workshop helped to strengthen cooperation on women and peace and security matters among those entities and allowed participants to exchange ideas, good practices and lessons learned for effective implementation of the women and peace and security mandate.

44. Special political missions have continued to foster an increase in the number of women participating in peacemaking efforts, as well as transparency on the gender makeup and dynamics of such efforts. UNSMIL, for example, has begun systematically collecting and updating data on women's participation in the political dialogue and the Government of National Accord. The efforts included a study on women's leadership that provided baseline data on women in decision-making positions within the current governance structures in Libya.

45. The United Nations Mission in Colombia has facilitated dialogue spaces for women's organizations and members of the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism, which includes members of the Government, FARC-EP and United Nations observers. Women's involvement in the work of the Mechanism has contributed to building confidence in the peace process among both the members of the Mechanism and local communities.

46. In the Syrian Arab Republic, the Syrian Women's Advisory Board to the Special Envoy for Syria has continued to work to ensure that gender perspectives are considered throughout the political process. Since 2017, the Office of the Special Envoy has been systematically tracking the number of women in the delegations participating in the intra-Syrian talks, their substantive roles, gender dynamics and how they advance the implementation of the women and peace and security agenda.

47. In 2017, UNIOGBIS provided support to the training and establishment of four regional women's mediation networks, which will be integrated into local peace structures that traditionally have been composed of mostly male, religious and elder chiefs of the communities. The UNIOGBIS training programme aims to build the capacity of 145 women in total for such networks.

5. Electoral assistance

48. Special political missions continue to respond to the evolving nature of electoral mandates. In particular, during the reporting period, the Department of Political Affairs, as the General Assembly-mandated focal point for electoral assistance, increasingly received requests for targeted, medium- and long-term expert assistance aimed at supporting and strengthening the existing capacities of national electoral institutions. In addition, the Department received requests for advice on creating an environment conducive to credible elections. United Nations technical assistance and capacity-building activities were often provided in parallel with preventive diplomacy and other conflict prevention activities of the United Nations to encourage consensus with regard to establishing the legal electoral framework, focusing on inclusion and non-discrimination and encouraging broad participation. Special political missions that have electoral mandates continue to ensure that all United Nations electoral assistance policies and activities are gender sensitive and include key components that promote women's political participation.

For example, in Afghanistan, the Department of Political Affairs advised the electoral management bodies and conducted one needs assessment review and several advisory missions in 2017, providing support in the design of a new project document for United Nations electoral support.

6. Safety and security

49. The environments in which a significant number of special political missions operated during the reporting period remained highly volatile and were in many areas marred by pressing security challenges, including active and ongoing military conflicts. While field-based special political missions continued to feature prominently among the mechanisms employed by the United Nations to support the facilitation of peace agreements and their implementation, those circumstances were factored significantly into their overall field posture, requiring continuous attention and, on many occasions, significant investments to minimize the risk exposure of United Nations personnel, operations and assets.

50. Most of the United Nations personnel employed by the special political missions are based or operate in areas of high-intensity conflict, including situations in which United Nations personnel are directly targeted, including by terrorist or extremist groups. Those environments include Afghanistan, Iraq, Somalia, the Syrian Arab Republic and Yemen. Also, non-field-based personnel, such as experts supporting the work of the Security Council, are often deployed to volatile environments.

51. Those contexts present an increasing and direct challenge to the Organization's ability to "stay and deliver". The Department of Political Affairs and the special political missions periodically engage with the Department of Safety and Security to review risk management strategies in order to adapt and minimize their impact on mandate delivery. In order to address the above-mentioned issues, over the past several years the Organization has implemented a number of mitigation measures for ensuring the security of special political mission personnel and assets in the field in order to enable missions to stay and deliver. Examples include the deployment of United Nations civilian security personnel, increased cooperation with regional partners that have capacity on the ground (such as the African Union with the African Union Mission in Somalia), the deployment of guard units provided by Member States, and the employment of private security companies where appropriate and in accordance with relevant General Assembly resolutions.

52. In volatile environments, a heightened risk of attack against United Nations personnel may lead to a reduction in mission movements, coupled with a heavy static security posture. Heightened security measures, while necessary, may limit the options for outreach, thereby reducing direct engagement with local communities. In order to strike the right balance, members of the senior management of the special political missions are implementing, where applicable and in coordination with the respective country teams, the programme criticality framework developed by the High-level Working Group on Programme Criticality to allow for informed decision-making with regard to acceptable risk for United Nations personnel.

53. In terms of budgetary impact, given that special political missions often deploy to or operate in highly volatile security environments, the security-related costs, including those incurred as a result of the implementation of required security mitigation measures, constitute significant components of their budgets. Every effort is made to ensure that such mitigation measures are in accordance with the nature of the mandate and the specificity of the environment in which the special political missions operate in order to preserve the safety and security of United Nations personnel, assets and operations.

7. Partnerships and cooperation

54. Collaboration and communication with regional and subregional organizations are critical to the success of the United Nations in preventing conflict and sustaining peace. The preventive role of special political missions should always support, not serve as a substitute for, regional and local efforts to achieve peace. Working in tandem with regional and subregional organizations can improve the collective knowledge, analysis, reach and influence in the conflict prevention, mediation and peacebuilding efforts of the United Nations. Moreover, regional actors are often better positioned to detect potential crises early and to mobilize coordinated international responses. Partnerships between the United Nations and regional organizations must therefore be based on the principles of transparency, mutual accountability and comparative advantage, including in terms of the identification of leading and supporting operational roles, burden-sharing and the sequencing of activities and deployments.

55. During the past year, significant progress has been made in strengthening the partnership between the United Nations and the African Union in conflict prevention, mediation, peacekeeping and peacebuilding. The United Nations Office to the African Union continued to play a catalytic role in the partnership while servicing the Departments of Political Affairs, Peacekeeping Operations and Field Support of the Secretariat. The Security Council adopted decisions, most notably resolution 2320 \(2016\), to enable timely responses to disputes and emerging crises in partnership with the African Union, while the Peace and Security Council of the African Union, in its communiqués of 29 September 2016 and 30 May 2017, commended the significant progress over the past five years and reiterated the need to render that cooperation increasingly predictable, systematic and strategic. In January 2017, the Secretary-General delivered his first address to the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the African Union, taking the opportunity to renew the commitment of the United Nations to enhance this important partnership on the basis of solidarity and respect.

56. On 19 April 2017, the Chairperson of the African Union Commission, Moussa Faki Mahamat, and the Secretary-General convened the first United Nations-African Union Annual Conference to discuss the most pressing peace and security issues in Africa, and to help enhance political coherence and facilitate, as much as possible, convergence in decision-making. At the occasion, the Chairperson and the Secretary-General signed the Joint United Nations-African Union Framework for Enhanced Partnership in Peace and Security, which provides a comprehensive strategic vision for a stronger partnership to address the peace and security challenges across the continent.

57. The African Union member States have also started implementing the decision relating to the Peace Fund endorsed by the twenty-seventh Ordinary Session of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government, held in Kigali in July 2016, with regard to greater self-reliance and burden-sharing for African Union peace efforts, especially the funding of 25 per cent of the costs of its peace support operations by 2020. The decision is critical to enhancing the capacity of the African Union to effectively partner with the United Nations in addressing peace and security challenges in Africa. The Secretary-General therefore welcomed the decision and encouraged the Security Council to actively support the process by agreeing on sustained, predictable and flexible mechanisms to support African Union peace operations.

58. The partnership between the United Nations and the European Union on peace and security is characterized by strategic and operational cooperation, underpinned by a policy framework in place since 2003 and facilitated by the United Nations Liaison Office for Peace and Security in Brussels. The foreign and security policy of the European Union, as outlined in its global strategy adopted in June 2016, identifies the United Nations as a core partner and seeks close coordination, particularly in countries where Common Security and Defence Policy missions operate alongside United Nations peace operations, such as in Libya and Somalia. The European Union Political and Security Committee held its annual informal meeting with the Security Council in June 2017, where conflict prevention emerged as a top priority for both organizations, in particular with regard to mediation, security sector reform and the prevention of violent extremism. This discussion built on the third iteration of the United Nations-European Union dialogue on conflict prevention, which was held in March 2017.

59. The United Nations Liaison Office for Peace and Security in Vienna, established in October 2016 with extrabudgetary funds, has led to a marked improvement of coordination between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), fostering closer links with key parts of the OSCE secretariat and the Chairperson-in-Office. The Liaison Office also services the Departments of Peacekeeping Operations and Field Support, enabling the effective channelling of support and best practices of the three entities to the OSCE secretariat on a broad range of issues, and vice versa. Operationally, the United Nations continues to cooperate closely with OSCE in its role, together with the European Union, as Co-Chair of the Geneva international discussions, a unique framework that brings together the United Nations, the European Union and OSCE in a conflict prevention and resolution mechanism to help to address one of Europe's protracted conflicts. Since 2011, the role of the United Nations in this configuration has been fulfilled by the United Nations Representative to the Geneva International Discussions.

60. With many special political missions operating across the Middle East and North Africa, cooperation between the United Nations and the League of Arab States remains critical. The United Nations has continued working with the League towards the opening of a United Nations liaison office in Cairo, following the 24 September 2016 signing by the Secretaries-General of both organizations of the protocol of amendment of the text of the cooperation agreement between the United Nations and the League of Arab States. The United Nations continues to pursue dialogue with the Organization for Islamic Cooperation (OIC) and, in May 2017, the Department of Political Affairs and OIC held a senior-level brainstorming session on the political and security situation in the Middle East in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, with the participation of regional special political missions and peacekeeping operations, as well as representatives from Headquarters. Another brainstorming session on Africa is planned for the end of 2017. The three entities have also collaborated on a number of electoral initiatives, including the training of electoral staff, the management of electoral databases and the holding of institutional memory and knowledge-sharing events for electoral practitioners.

61. In addition to those partnerships, the United Nations will continue to work ever more closely with other regional and subregional organizations, including through liaison presences, such as the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization and the Southern African Development Community.

F. Reporting requirements related to special political missions emanating from the General Assembly or from the recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

1. Contribution of extrabudgetary resources to mandate implementation in special political missions

62. Extrabudgetary funds continue to be used for surge requirements for good offices, crisis situations and the expansion of missions. The resources have also been critical for support for inter-mission activities and for visits by desk officers and senior officials to special political missions. It is expected that $18.7 million in extrabudgetary resources will be available for special political missions in 2018, compared with $24.3 million in 2017. Mission-by-mission details are provided in annex III to the present report.

63. In Cyprus, extrabudgetary resources were used to provide surge support to the Office of the Special Adviser to provide technical assistance and support the peace talks.

64. For various missions, extrabudgetary resources enabled Headquarters personnel to visit special political missions away from Headquarters, thereby enabling the development of closer working collaboration and integration. The visits have enabled Headquarters personnel to meet with United Nations and non-United Nations interlocutors, in particular Member States, and develop a better understanding and analysis of the context in which special political missions operate and how they can be better supported to implement their mandates.

65. In 2017, the Office of the Special Envoy for the Sudan and South Sudan benefited from extrabudgetary resources for consultancy services and for the provision of temporary administrative support. This support was aimed at responding to the increase in activities regarding the internal situation in the Sudan, as well as bilateral relations between the Sudan and South Sudan, which required enhanced attention and follow-up by the Office. Furthermore, following the outbreak of violence in July 2016 and the stalled peace process in South Sudan, the Office had to intensify its engagement in coordination with relevant stakeholders in the region.

66. In Somalia, UNSOM utilized extrabudgetary resources to organize workshops with women and youth as part of the constitutional review process and follow-up. Extrabudgetary resources also supported advocacy campaigns related to the inclusion of women in the political process, including in relation to the parliamentary elections.

67. The Office for Disarmament Affairs provides support to the work of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1540 \(2004\) by raising extrabudgetary funds that are used to organize national and regional events to enhance the capacity of States to implement their obligations under resolution 1540 \(2004\) and to assist States in their efforts through effective partnerships with relevant international and regional organizations and civil society, including industry and academia.

68. In 2017, extrabudgetary funds for the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate are being used to fund follow-up workshops and relevant initiatives aimed at promoting the implementation of Security Council resolutions 1373 \(2001\), 1624 \(2005\) and 2178 \(2014\) for national law enforcement officers, prosecutors and judges on bringing terrorists to justice, the freezing of assets, addressing the illicit movement of cash and bearer negotiable instruments across borders, information and communications technology and counter-terrorism.

69. Extrabudgetary funds have been used to meet material and technical needs in support of the mandate of the OPCW-United Nations Joint Investigative Mechanism, in the form of translation capacity (1 P-3 position and 1 consultant). In 2017, one position of Security Coordination Officer (P-4), which is proposed to be established in 2018 and to be funded from the assessed budget of the missions, was funded using extrabudgetary resources in view of the critical and immediate need. Moreover, extrabudgetary funds have been used and will continue to be used to cover all operational costs relating to investigations, including investigative equipment, materials and supplies, official travel to meet with government representatives and experts, field deployments to the Syrian Arab Republic and the region, the engagement of technical experts and consultants on the subject of chemicals and munitions, and the contracting of specialized services, such as satellite imaging and forensic analysis.

70. In Iraq, extrabudgetary resources enabled the United Nations to facilitate a scenario-planning exercise with representatives of civil society in anticipation of the liberation of Mosul and supported initiatives aimed at engaging various community representatives in peacebuilding. This improved understanding of the situation inside Mosul and the key concerns of communities for the post-ISIL period, and allowed UNAMI to better understand how it could support the Iraqi authorities in preventing further violence.

2. Kuwait Joint Support Office

71. The Kuwait Joint Support Office has its origins in the security imperatives of reducing mission personnel in Iraq and Afghanistan. Given its links by land to Iraq, Kuwait has been used since the establishment of UNAMI, more than a decade ago, as a substantial administrative and logistical hub for the Mission. In 2010, following a dramatic increase in the security threat to United Nations personnel in Afghanistan, it was decided that the existing facilities in Kuwait would be leveraged to relocate a number of UNAMA functions.

72. Furthermore, it will be recalled that in its resolution 65/259, the General Assembly noted the intention of the Secretary-General to establish a support office in Kuwait for UNAMA and requested the Secretary-General to explore possibilities for cost-sharing between UNAMA and UNAMI. Accordingly, the Kuwait Joint Support Office has since expanded to support the United Nations Regional Centre for Preventive Diplomacy for Central Asia, the Office of the Special Envoy for Yemen and the Office of the Special Envoy for Syria.

73. The Kuwait Joint Support Office remains a critical element of the support structure in the Middle East and Asia for the Department of Field Support. Pending the consideration and implementation of the global service delivery model target end state, disaster recovery and business continuity requirements for the United Nations Secretariat, the Support Office provides a staging platform, for existing client missions, from which to meet unavoidable demands on field missions and for developing a shared service platform that might be better integrated with other service providers in due course. While the dependency of functions on location has always been the primary determinant of the functions that can be carried out in Kuwait, the significance of security imperatives associated with Iraq and Afghanistan has meant that at times functions that would be best performed in situ have been relocated to Kuwait for lengthy periods.

74. The importance of the Kuwait Joint Support Office platform for back-office support for administration in finance and human resources has highlighted the advantages of service integration for both missions. The platform supports up to 1,937 core clients in UNAMA and UNAMI in such areas as administrative personnel management service, accounts maintenance, accounts payable and receivable processes, claims processing, and billing and invoicing processes.

75. More recently, the Secretariat has sought the approval of the General Assembly for the Kuwait Joint Support Office to lend support to the centralization of payroll hubs for national staff and uniformed personnel in field operations for monthly payroll services for non-core clients, namely, the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo, the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan, UNIFIL, the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force and the United Nations Global Service Centre.

76. Separately, the General Assembly has approved, through various budgets, the establishment of a shared approach between UNAMI and UNAMA for other functions to be located in Kuwait, but outside the framework of the Kuwait Joint Support Office, including auditing and conduct and discipline. UNAMI continues to maintain stand-alone functions in Kuwait, while UNAMA is now in the process of limiting its presence in Kuwait to shared functions. Because of its history and wider capacities, UNAMI provides host entity support to all staff located in Kuwait.

3. Nationalization of positions

77. In line with the request by the General Assembly in its resolutions 61/276 and 66/264 for greater utilization of national staff, the Department of Field Support advises missions to review functions performed by international staff in the Professional and Field Service categories and by United Nations Volunteers, which would provide an opportunity to contribute to national capacity-building, and propose conversion of the relevant staff to the National Professional Officer and Local level categories commensurate with the requirements of the mission and its mandate. Furthermore, during the planning process, efforts are being made to ensure that national positions are included to the largest extent possible in the staffing proposals of missions.

78. Encouraging the use of national capacities has been a core area of focus in human resources management in peace operations; national selection guidelines and nationalization guidelines are currently under development by the Field Personnel Division of the Department of Field Support. To provide a consistent approach, an overarching framework is being formulated to provide the principles and tools to support the use and development of national staff capacities in peace operations. Peace operations utilize several categories of personnel: international staff, locally recruited staff, United Nations Volunteers and other non-staff capacities, such as government-provided personnel, consultants and individual contractors. The goal is for each phase of the mission to evolve the staffing mix and employ a different blend of staff. Peace operations rely heavily on internationally recruited staff, in particular during start-up, emergencies and downsizing, but as missions evolve, they should improve the mix between international and locally recruited staff to contribute to national capacity-building and nationalization.

4. Methodology for the calculation of standard salaries for special political missions

79. The international staff costs for the 2018 budgets of special political missions have been calculated according to the methodology set out below.

80. The following factors were utilized in determining the standard international staff position salaries for 2018 for each special political mission (Professional or higher, Field Service and General Service categories):

- (a) Latest effective salary scales of 1 January 2017 (ST/IC/2017/3);

(b) Average step for each grade level based on the actual step of incumbents as at 30 April 2017;

(c) Post adjustment multiplier for 1 August 2017.

81. For the standard common staff costs, the percentage of common staff costs to net salaries was determined on the basis of the actual expenditure of common staff costs to net salaries (including post adjustment) for the period from 1 January 2016 to 30 June 2017.

82. In accordance with the standing practice for the budgets for special political missions, no standard salaries were developed for national staff positions in special political missions for 2018. The estimates of national staff costs are based on the actual level and step for salaries and historical expenditures for common staff costs in a particular duty station.

5. Ratios for vehicles and information technology equipment

83. In line with the United Nations environmental goals for 2020, the Department of Field Support is currently focused on the adoption of new measures to minimize the environmental footprint of transportation assets while considering a strategy to transform the overall composition of the vehicle fleet to embrace more environmentally friendly and cost-effective vehicles. As previously reported by the Department and noted in the report of the Secretary-General on the overview of the financing of the United Nations peacekeeping operations (see A/71/809, para. 93 and annex I), the review and optimization of mission vehicle fleets, with a particular emphasis on light passenger vehicles, is an ongoing priority initiative of the Department. The overall aim is to rightsize the global light passenger vehicle fleet on the basis of operational requirements, resulting in fleet numbers below respective mission ceilings on the basis of staffing numbers and vehicle ratios in line with the Standard Cost and Ratio Manual vehicle ratios. In addition, the introduction of new, smaller and more efficient vehicle types through system contracts will result in mission fleets that are more fit for purpose. Executive communications were disseminated to field operations between 2015 and 2017 in which the priority of the overall initiative was emphasized and the operations were prompted to provide detailed transition plans to rightsize their respective mission vehicle portfolios and institute the more efficient use of surface transport resources.

84. To initiate the transformation of the fleet of the Department of Field Support, field and political missions were required to hold regular Vehicle Establishment Committee meetings, with the following main agenda items in particular: (a) revision of light passenger vehicle entitlements, which are currently based on established ratios, with the aim of rightsizing the light passenger vehicle component of the vehicle establishment on the basis of actual demand rather than fixed ratios; (b) implementation of mobility management strategies: missions will be required to implement applicable mobility management strategies to achieve multiple economic and environmental benefits from the more efficient use of transport resources within the mission's area of responsibility; and (c) replacement of four-wheel-drive vehicles. As the last step, missions will be required to conduct an analysis to identify tasks and activities performed by the mission's units and offices in which lighter, more fit-for-purpose vehicles could be used. In this regard, the Department is also reviewing the role of the current standards, performance and utilization patterns of the light passenger vehicle component to streamline its fleet.

85. Going forward, the Department of Field Support will continue to underline the guidance on substantially changing the vehicle-to-personnel ratios, which act as a ceiling for a mission's vehicle holdings, to further reduce the number of vehicles.

Vehicle allocations in family duty stations will be reduced to strict operational requirements, with any personal use subject to liberty mileage charges.

86. To further encourage the Department of Field Support initiative, the acquisition of new light passenger vehicles is under greater scrutiny and control. While limited numbers of such vehicles may still be procured to replenish ageing fleets, in line with operational requirements, oversight of the write-off of greater numbers of vehicles meeting age, mileage or condition criteria is expected to reduce the number of vehicles globally once reviews and transition plans are finalized. However, most vehicle acquisitions should be suspended in 2018, with a focus on the redistribution of available stock across the missions.

87. The Department of Field Support also implemented a robust and regular system of reviewing missions' light passenger vehicle holdings against their authorized holdings. Owing to the ongoing process of mission drawdown, staffing review exercises and/or changes in the mandates of missions, the authorized holdings of missions are being reduced every year. The reduction of the light passenger vehicle fleet is directly associated with the reduction of the number of staff present in the mission area. This drawdown, which in almost all cases is completed at the end of a given financial year, is the starting point to initiate the write-off and disposal procedures of the vehicles, which, owing to the lead time to complete such procedures, extend in most cases beyond the end of the financial year.

88. The Department of Field Support has reviewed the vehicle and information technology equipment holdings of special political missions and aligned such holdings, where possible, with the standard ratios it has established and promulgated in the Standard Cost and Ratio Manual. In that context, the holdings of vehicles and information technology equipment have been proposed on the basis of the proposed personnel incumbency levels planned for 2018, rather than on the full authorized level of personnel. Table 1 provides ratios on vehicles for all special political missions that have vehicle holdings. Table 2 provides ratios for information technology equipment for all special political missions.

89. The total proposed computing device holdings for special political missions is 8.6 per cent higher than the standard allocation, owing mainly to the higher-than-standard holdings in missions such as the Office of the Special Adviser on Cyprus, the Office of the Special Envoy for Yemen, UNSMIL, UNSOM and the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia, which require such equipment for training facilities, Internet cafés, information technology maintenance services, CarLog systems for vehicles and fieldwork.

6. Air operations

90. In paragraph 33 of its report on estimates in respect of special political missions (A/69/628), endorsed by the General Assembly in its resolution 69/262, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions requested improvement in the presentation of information on air operations, including flight hours and costs under previous and current contracts. Accordingly, annex IV to the present report provides, by mission, information on appropriations and expenditure for 2016, the approved budget for 2017 and the proposed budget for 2018 for air operations as well as actual flying hours for 2016 and budgeted flying hours for 2017 and 2018. In 2017, the total resources approved for air operations amount to $40.1 million, with planned utilization of approximately 5,900 flying hours (4,500 for fixed-wing and 1,400 for rotary-wing) for 10 special political missions. In 2018, an amount of $45.7 million, representing an increase of $5.6 million (14 per cent), is proposed for 6,500 flying hours (4,100 for fixed-wing and 2,400 for rotary-wing) for 11 special political missions. Air operations resources for UNAMI, UNAMA and the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia represent 67.9 per cent of such resources in 2018.

91. The increase in resources in 2018 is due mainly to the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia, which commenced activities in September 2017 and is funded through the use of unspent balances of the United Nations Mission in Colombia and a commitment authority, pending the approval of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. Excluding the resources for that mission, an amount of $37.3 million is proposed for the remaining 10 special political missions.

7. Security services

92. In its resolution 69/274 B, the General Assembly recalled paragraph 44 of the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/69/628/Add.2) and requested provision of information on the use of private security companies in all budgets for special political missions. Accordingly, annex V contains information on security-related resources reflected in the proposed budgets for 2018.

8. Expert panels for recruitment

93. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions requested that information on the expert panels for recruitment to special political missions be provided in the context of the 2018 report (see A/71/595, para. 57). Expert panels established by ST/AI/2010/3 of April 2010 need to convene in 2018 to assess and recommend candidates who have applied for generic job openings for positions in field missions in order to reduce the administrative burden on individual hiring managers and enhance the quality and integrity of the recruitment process by centralizing the assessment. To that effect, the Department of Field Support anticipates that funding from both the peacekeeping missions and the special political missions will be required for the recruitment/rostering process. The funding will cover the costs of travel and the daily subsistence allowance for panel members and occupational group managers. Each mission would include its share of funding under the official travel class. The 2018 budgets for special political missions include resources in the amount of $270,000, which are apportioned on the basis of the number of authorized international positions for 2017 of the respective missions.

9. Travel

94. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions requested that information on official travel be provided in the context of the 2018 report (see A/71/595, paras. 30 and 32), including: (a) an explanation for the variance between the proposed resources for 2018 and the approved resources for 2017; and (b) compliance rates of special political missions with the policy of 16-day advance booking of tickets, including reasons for low compliance and measures taken to ensure compliance with and fulfilment of the 70 per cent target.

Accordingly, annex VI includes information on the approved resources for 2017 and proposed resources for 2018 for official travel, including a summary explanation for the variance, and annex VII includes information on the rates of compliance of special political missions with the policy of 16-day advance booking of tickets.

95. With respect to the low rate of compliance of special political missions with the policy of 16-day advance booking of tickets, the special political missions acknowledge the observations and recommendations of the Advisory Committee and the need to put additional measures in place. In that regard, missions have taken the following actions: (a) broadcast messages and continuous sensitization of all personnel on the mandatory requirement to submit travel requests at least 21 calendar days prior to the commencement of travel; (b) provide justification with supporting evidence for travel requests that did not meet the mandatory deadline of 21 calendar days prior to travel; and (c) continuous follow-up with various stakeholders (such as Governments and United Nations country teams) to receive confirmation of meetings and conferences in a timely manner.

96. In addition, some missions have assigned dedicated travel and shipment approvers in the Office of the Chief of Mission Support to oversee travel issues, including increased engagements with the travel unit in regional service centres, where applicable. Some missions have also developed travel projection sheets, which are reviewed regularly by heads of units for early clearance and planning purposes.

97. Full compliance with the policy depends on external factors. Such factors encompass the frequent shift in mission security and political environments; the necessity to respond to sudden or escalating crises; interruptions arising from distinct logistical arrangements for travel that require special flights or escorts, leading to last-minute bookings for commercial travel; last minute requests for revisions to meeting schedules and participant lists with multiple stakeholders, such as regional governments, intergovernmental partners and civil society organizations, outside the control of missions and often at short notice; and late notifications from the organizers of training and learning activities.

10. Backstopping support to special political missions at Headquarters

98. As requested by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ibid., para. 51), annex VIII contains consolidated information on positions at Headquarters for backstopping support funded from special political mission budgets. In 2017, a total of 35 such positions (1 D-1, 6 P-5, 16 P-4, 6 P-3 and 6 General Service (Other level)) are funded from special political missions. In 2018, it is proposed that a total of 39 positions (1 D-1, 7 P-5, 17 P-4, 7 P-3 and 7 General Service (Other level)) at Headquarters for backstopping support be funded from special political mission budgets.

99. All special political missions rely on Headquarters for backstopping support. Annex II contains information on the lead department for substantive support and the departments providing administrative support to the 35 missions with proposed resources for 2018. The Department of Political Affairs currently leads and provides substantive backstopping to 32 of the 35 special political missions, ensuring regular and effective communication between missions and the United Nations system in New York, ensuring regular liaison with Member States through permanent missions and preparing a wide range of substantive material, including briefing material for the Security Council and regular reports of the Secretary-General, among a wide range of functions. Administrative support is provided by the Executive Office of the Department of Political Affairs for 13 of those missions, while the Department of Field Support provides logistical, technological and administrative support to 17 missions based in the field. In addition, two missions, the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General (Burundi) and the Panel of Experts on Yemen, are jointly administered by the Departments of Political Affairs and Field Support. The Department of Field Support provides support to special political missions from within its existing capacity at times of increased strain on a mission's capacity, including in the areas of human resources, finance and budget, conduct and discipline, logistics and information and communications technology. The Department of Management of the Secretariat provides administrative services covering procurement, financial management and human resources functions in support of special political missions. Special political missions also rely on Headquarters support in thematic and operational areas such as military and police planning/force generation, rule of law and security institutions, constitution-making, electoral assistance, mediation and good offices.

100. While the resources included in the budgets of special political missions for backstopping support are fundamental for the Secretariat to provide support to special political missions, regular budget and extrabudgetary resources are often also required to provide adequate support.

11. Support provided by host countries

101. Annex IX contains information on support provided by the host country to special political missions, as requested by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ibid., para. 47).

II. Analysis of budget performance and resource requirements of special political missions

A. Budget performance for 2016–2017

102. The total appropriation for 2016–2017 for the 35 special political missions presented in the present report (inclusive of missions discontinued during 2016–2017 and the provision for the share of special political missions in the budget of the Regional Service Centre) amounts to $1,229.8 million. The estimated expenditure amounts to $1,225.4 million. The anticipated underexpenditure of $4.4 million (0.4 per cent) is due mainly to underexpenditure in the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General (Burundi) (cluster I), the Panel of Experts on Yemen, the implementation of Security Council resolution 2231 \(2015\) and UNSMIL (cluster II) and UNAMI, offset in part by projected overexpenditure, mainly under the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia, which commenced activities in September 2017 and is funded through the use of unspent balances of the United Nations Mission in Colombia and a commitment authority, pending the approval of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. Significant variances are shown in tables 3 and 4.

B. Proposed resources for 2018

103. The total estimated resource requirements for 2018 relating to the 35 missions covered in the present report and its addenda amount to $641.1 million (net of staff assessment), inclusive of the provision for the share of special political missions in the budget of the Regional Service Centre. Overall, the resource level for 2018 reflects a reduction of $2.7 million (0.4 per cent) compared with the approved resources for 2017. Mission-by-mission estimates, requirements by expenditure component and the number and level of positions are presented in tables 8, 9 and 10, respectively.

104. The estimated resource requirements for 10 special political missions under cluster I reflect an overall decrease of $1.1 million (2.2 per cent) compared with the approved budget for 2017, mainly for the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General (Burundi) ($1.1 million) and for the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region ($0.6 million).

105. The estimated resource requirements for the 14 special political missions under cluster II reflect an overall increase of $4.2 million (11.2 per cent) compared with the approved budget for 2017, owing to proposed establishment of the Panel of Experts on Mali ($1.3 million) and the proposed increase in resources for the OPCW-United Nations Joint Investigative Mechanism ($1.6 million), the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team pursuant to resolutions 1526 \(2004\) and 2253 \(2015\) concerning ISIL (Da'esh), Al-Qaida and the Taliban and associated individuals and entities; and the Office of the Ombudsperson established pursuant to resolution 1904 \(2009\) ($0.6 million), and the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate ($0.5 million).

106. Similarly, the estimated resource requirements for the nine special political missions under cluster III reflect an overall increase of $88.2 million (42.2 per cent) compared with the approved budget for 2017, due mainly to the proposed resources related to the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia ($73.6 million), which commenced activities in September 2017, and the proposed increases in resources for UNSMIL ($11.0 million) and UNSOM ($2.3 million).

107. The estimated resource requirements for UNAMA and UNAMI are lower than the approved budget for 2017 by $23.8 million (14.5 per cent) and $6.5 million (5.5 per cent), respectively. The summary of variances between the approved resources for 2017 and the proposed resources for 2018 for the missions continuing into 2018 are provided in tables 5 and 6.

108. The provision for special political missions under section 3, Political affairs, of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2018–2019 is $1,109.6 million, taking into account the share of special political missions for Umoja and other efficiencies of $14.8 million. The provision does not take into account three missions, namely, the Panel of Experts on Mali, the OPCW-United Nations Joint Investigative Mechanism and the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia; resources for those missions would therefore be considered in addition to the provision for special political missions.

109. In the guidance for the preparation of the 2018 budgets for special political missions, missions were requested to identify reductions amounting to 50 per cent of the target reductions of $14.8 million for the 2018–2019 budget period for Umoja and other efficiencies.

110. For the 32 special political missions that were included in the provision for special political missions for 2018–2019, resources in the amount of $560.7 million are proposed for 2018, excluding the provision for the share of special political missions in the budget of the Regional Service Centre. This reflects a reduction of $15.5 million (2.7 per cent) compared with the approved budget for those 32 special political missions for 2017.

111. With the exception of UNAMA, special political missions did not attribute reductions related to Umoja or other efficiencies. UNAMA reflects a reduction of $698,900 (net of staff assessment), made possible from efficiencies that the Mission plans to bring about in 2018. The proposed reduction is a result of, inter alia, the efforts of UNAMA to apply the anticipated Umoja efficiencies presented in the eighth progress report of the Secretary-General on the enterprise resource planning project (A/71/390) to individual day-to-day operations. The Umoja efficiencies set out in the eighth progress report were based on the Organization's experience with the system, anticipated future changes, including future roll-outs, a global review of end-to-end processes, the retirement of legacy systems and improvements to business process and planning capabilities. Efficiencies were expressed, inter alia, as the dollar value of a full-time equivalent, where applicable. Further information on the approach is provided in the foreword and introduction to the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2018–2019.

Positions

112. The total number of civilian positions by cluster is summarized in table 7. The number, category and level of civilian positions for each mission are provided in table 10.

113. It is proposed that the number of civilian personnel for ongoing and new missions be increased from 3,755 to 3,865, reflecting an overall increase of 110 positions. That increase reflects the proposed establishment of 416 positions (2, 10 and 404 positions under clusters I, II and III, respectively) and a net reduction of 306 positions in UNAMA and UNAMI. Those changes result from: (a) net increases due to the proposed establishment of the United Nations Verification Mission in Colombia (393), the proposed establishment of the Panel of Experts on Mali (3), UNSOM (8), the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate (6), UNIOGBIS (2), the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Yemen (2), UNSMIL (1) and the OPCW-United Nations Joint Investigative Mechanism (1); and (b) net decreases under UNAMA (291) and UNAMI (15). A summary of all changes in the number and level of positions is provided in annex XII.

114. In its resolution 71/272 B, the General Assembly endorsed the recommendation of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions contained in paragraph 17 of its report on the proposed contribution of the United Nations Secretariat to the cost-sharing arrangement for the resident coordinator system (A/70/7/Add.48) that the operational support costs for Deputy Special Representatives of the Secretary-General who also serve as resident coordinators and/or humanitarian coordinators should be shared. The staffing of six special political missions for 2018, namely, UNIOGBIS, UNSOM, the Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for Lebanon, UNSMIL, UNAMA and UNAMI, includes Deputy Special Representatives of the Secretary-General who also serve as resident coordinators and/or humanitarian coordinators. The salaries and common staff costs related to those positions are budgeted at 50 per cent of the total cost.

115. Those Deputy Special Representatives of the Secretary-General are dual- or triple-hatted and serve as resident coordinators, humanitarian coordinators and/or resident representatives in complex, multidimensional peace operations. They work under the authority of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and also report to the Administrator of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the Emergency Relief Coordinator on resident coordination and humanitarian coordination issues, respectively.

116. The Deputy Special Representatives are to coordinate the field activities of the respective United Nations country team in accordance with the mission's strategic and operational peacebuilding objectives with maximum efficiency and effectiveness. The costs incurred in carrying out those functions are absorbed equally by the field operation and UNDP, in line with the financing arrangements entered into by the two entities through a memorandum of understanding.

117. UNDP pays the salary, allowances and benefits of the Deputy Special Representatives for the period of their appointment with a peace operation, in accordance with UNDP regulations and rules. The Department of Political Affairs/ Department of Peacekeeping Operations and UNDP equally share the expenses relating to the salary, allowances and benefits of the Deputy Special Representatives.

118. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions requested that comprehensive information on vacancy rates in special political missions be provided in the 2018 report (A/71/595, para. 46 (b)). Accordingly, information on the approved vacancy rates for 2017 and the proposed vacancy rates for 2018, as well as actual vacancy rates for 2017, are provided in annex X. The proposed vacancy rates for 2018 take into account the actual average vacancy rates in 2017. In general, the proposed 2018 rates reflect the actual average vacancy rate for the period from January to July 2017. In some cases, they further take into account the significant increase in recruitment in 2017 and the anticipated onboarding of additional staff before the end of the year. In cases where the average vacancy rate for civilian staff positions in the period from January to July 2017 was nil, a rate of 5 per cent is proposed, taking into account the possible turnover of existing staff.

119. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions requested that information on positions that have been vacant for two years or longer be provided in the 2018 report (ibid., para. 17). Accordingly, information on positions that have been vacant for two years or longer as at 30 April 2017 is included in annex XI.
