I. Constitutional, political and legal issues

1. The United States Virgin Islands is an organized, unincorporated territory of the United States of America. Under the Organic Act of the Virgin Islands (1936), its revision in 1954 and subsequent amendments to the Revised Organic Act of 1954, the Territory has a legislature, also known as the Senate, which is a unicameral body comprising 15 senators elected to a two-year term by popular vote. Executive power is vested in the Governor, who, since 1970, has been elected by popular vote to a four-year term on the same ticket as the Lieutenant Governor. The Governor is limited to two consecutive terms. With the advice and consent of the Legislature, the Governor appoints the heads of the executive departments and has the power to approve or veto legislation and issue executive orders.

2. In the gubernatorial elections of November 2014, Kenneth Mapp, an independent, was elected Governor and Osbert Potter was elected Lieutenant Governor. The terms of office of the Governor and Lieutenant Governor will expire in November 2018, when the next gubernatorial elections are to be held. The Territory also elects a delegate to the United States House of Representatives, who is able to vote in committees. The Democratic Party candidate, Stacey Plaskett, won the election held on 8 November 2016 and was elected to her second term as delegate. The Territory's senatorial elections were also held on 8 November 2016. The senators and the delegate to Congress can serve unlimited two-year terms.

3. The Territory's judicial system has a district court, a superior court and a supreme court, of which the last-mentioned became operational in January 2007. The Supreme Court is the appellate court that hears appeals decided by the Superior Court. Its establishment eliminated federal judicial involvement in purely local legal matters. In December 2012, the President of the United States signed House of Representatives Bill No. 6116 authorizing direct review by the United States Supreme Court of decisions made by the Supreme Court of the United States Virgin Islands. The legislation was sponsored by the Territory's congressional delegate.

4. Since the revision to the Organic Act of the Virgin Islands by the Government of the United States in 1954, there have been four attempts to replace it with a local constitution approved by the people of the Territory that would organize the internal mechanisms of government. Although the United States Congress authorized the adoption of a local constitution in 1976 under United States Public Law 94-584, none of the four attempts made were successful.

5. As previously reported, on 26 May 2009, the Fifth Constitutional Convention adopted a proposed constitution of the United States Virgin Islands by a two-thirds vote. It was submitted to the Governor on 31 May 2009. In a preamble and 19 articles, the 27-page text included provisions on a bill of rights; principles, branches and subdivisions of government; Virgin Islanders; elections; education; youth; taxation, finance and commerce; economic development; public health, safety and welfare; culture; environmental protection; referendums and recalls; and the creation of a political status advisory commission. Further details can be found in previous working papers.

6. On 26 February 2010, the President of the United States submitted the proposed constitution to Congress, endorsing the conclusions reached by the United States Department of Justice that several features of the proposed text warranted analysis and comment, including: (a) the absence of express recognition of United States sovereignty and the supremacy of federal law; (b) provisions for a special election on the territorial status of the United States Virgin Islands; (c) provisions conferring legal advantages on certain groups defined by place and timing of birth, timing of residency or ancestry; (d) residence requirements for certain offices; (e) provisions guaranteeing legislative representation of certain geographic areas; (f) provisions addressing territorial waters and marine resources; (g) imprecise language in certain provisions of the proposed constitution's bill of rights; (h) the possible need to repeal certain federal laws if the proposed constitution were adopted; and (i) the effect of congressional action or inaction on the proposed constitution.

7. On 11 September 2012, the Governor signed Act No. 7386 establishing and convening a body called the Fifth Revision Convention, formed by the 30 delegates elected to the Fifth Constitutional Convention and five attorneys. The Fifth Revision Convention was convened on 1 October and mandated to ratify and approve, no later than 31 October and by a two-thirds majority vote of all the delegates, the final revised draft constitution consistent with the nine issues identified by the Government of the United States (see para. 6). The Act established that, if the Fifth Revision Convention agreed upon a proposed revised draft constitution by the deadline, the President of that body should have it submitted to the Governor and to the President of the United States. In case of the non-adoption of the text, both the Fifth Constitutional Convention and the Fifth Revision Convention would be dissolved and the Legislature of the United States Virgin Islands would have full authority to address the Territory's constitution. As reported in previous working papers, however, the outcome of the Fifth Revision Convention was surrounded by controversy and has continued to remain unclear. In January 2013, in his State of the Territory address, the Governor expressed the hope that the Territory would find "the means and courage that will lead us from the Organic Act to a Virgin Islands constitution".

8. According to the administering Power, in March 2016, the Office of Insular Affairs of the Department of the Interior awarded the University of the Virgin Islands $250,000 to establish the Office of Self-Determination and Constitutional Development. The Office works with the Centennial Commemoration Commission (established for the purpose of formulating plans and making preparations to commemorate and celebrate in 2017 the 100th anniversary of the transfer of the Virgin Islands from Denmark to the United States) and other stakeholders across the territory to address the issue of self-determination. Major duties and responsibilities include political status and constitutional education, research and development, universal public education and complementing activities of the Commission.

II. Budget

9. In his State of the Territory address on 30 January 2017, the Governor outlined major financial, managerial and infrastructure improvements to be implemented. He noted that on the one hand the Territory's economy was stronger than ever and growing, but on the other there was a need to address the cash flow issues in the public sector. The Governor submitted to the thirty-second Legislature a five-year plan to eliminate structural deficits by 2021, which had also been submitted during the thirty-first Legislature, and urged the Legislature to enact the proposed reforms. The Governor also referred to the work of the Transfer Centennial Commission, including lecture series, parades, festive street parties, concerts, craft and cultural events.

10. The Governor of the United States Virgin Islands submitted the executive budget request for 2017 to the Legislature on 27 May 2016. The grand total of the fiscal year 2017 budget of the Government of the United States Virgin Islands is $1.35 billion in current year expenditure and debt service. This is funded with $1.16 billion from local funds and $193.5 million from federal grant funds. The local funds portion is composed of expenditure and debt service totalling $844.9 million from the General Fund, $112.8 million from other local funds and $203.4 million from funds not subject to annual appropriations. The $844.9 million General Fund expenditure budget — the main operating budget of the Government of the United States Virgin Islands — includes a proposed expenditure of $715.5 million for executive departments and agencies, $60.9 million for the Legislature and the judiciary combined and $68.5 million for long-term (gross receipt tax bonds) debt service.

11. Since its submission, the proposed budget for fiscal year 2017 has been significantly affected by the decisions of the three municipal bond rating institutions — Moody's Investment Services, Standard & Poor's Global Ratings and Fitch Ratings — to downgrade various government bonds of the United States Virgin Islands to below investment grade. The rating agencies attributed the downgrades to growing concerns regarding weakened economic conditions, declining coverage and revenue trends, a continued reliance on issuing long-term debt to finance operating deficits and significantly underfunded pension liabilities. According to the administering Power, the Administration of Mr. Mapp has developed a five-year deficit-reduction plan that contains various revenue-generating initiatives and austerity measures. The plan is expected to address the forecasted budget gap for fiscal year 2018, and beyond, and the underfunded pension liabilities.

III. Economic conditions

A. General

12. According to the United States Virgin Islands Bureau of Economic Research, macroeconomic indicators for 2016 show the Territory's economy is emerging from the deep contraction wrought by the recession, which was intertwined with the closing of the oil refinery, but the pace of progress has been slow, subpar and uneven. In the labour market, non-agricultural wage and salary jobs averaged 37,613 for the first half of fiscal year 2016, just marginally lower than the 37,894 jobs for the same period in 2015. The Territory's unemployment rate has fallen by 1.9 per cent, from its peak 13.4 per cent average in fiscal year 2012 to an 11.5 per cent average for the first six-months of fiscal year 2016, its lowest level since April 2012. However, according to the administering Power, the improvement in the unemployment rate may not only be the result of workers finding jobs, but owing to discouraged workers leaving the labour force.

13. According to the administering Power, the economy will continue its present course of slight improvements, with the major contributions coming from the tourism, the manufacturing and the construction sectors. In addition, several initiatives are being undertaken by the Government, such as highway infrastructure improvements, energy improvements and waste-water treatment improvements, that will assist in the recovery. However, according to the administering Power, a strong recovery of private sector demand, including consumer and investment spending, is required to give momentum to the recovery and bring the economy back to its pre-recession growth.

14. General economic indicators were mixed for the first six months of fiscal year 2016 compared with the same period in fiscal year 2015. On 14 December 2016 the Bureau of Economic Analysis released estimates of gross domestic product (GDP) for 2015, in addition to GDP estimates by industry and compensation by industry for 2014. According to these estimates, after declining for four consecutive years, the Territory's economy grew in 2015: real GDP increased 0.2 per cent in 2015 after decreasing 1.0 per cent in 2014.

B. Tourism

15. The Saint Thomas and Saint John districts experienced a decline of less than 1 per cent of air arrivals during the first half of the 2016 fiscal year (326,632 visitors compared with 327,636 visitors reported in fiscal year 2015). The Saint Croix district showed a strong 9.2 per cent increase in air arrivals (increasing to 77,244 visitors from 70,737 visitors recorded in fiscal year 2015). In contrast, cruise ship passengers to the Saint Thomas and Saint John districts fell by 2 per cent, from 1,155,741 to 1,132,368. The island of Saint Croix also had fewer cruise ship passengers coming to the island's shores, 109,869 cruise ship passengers, compared with 121,344 in fiscal year 2015.

C. Manufacturing and construction

16. According to the United States Virgin Islands Bureau of Economic Research, there was an average of 607 manufacturing jobs in the first six months of fiscal year 2016, compared with 611 reported in the same period for fiscal year 2015, a marginal loss of less than 1 per cent. Businesses in this sector include manufacturers, concrete firms, distilleries and small firms producing goods. These establishments have an average workforce of 20 employees.

17. According to the administering Power, on 31 December 2015, the Governor signed into law the thirty-first Legislature's ratification of the operating agreement between the Government of the United States Virgin Islands and Limetree Bay Terminals, a subsidiary of ArcLight Capital Partners, for the sale of the former Hovensa facility on Saint Croix. Limetree Bay Terminals hosted the grand opening of its oil storage terminal on 12 September 2016. The company expects to operate the oil storage terminal at full capacity, 32 million barrels, in the future. Currently, only 13 million barrels are stored there, with Sinopec and Freepoint Commodities, another ArcLight partner, purchasing most of them. Limetree is expected to hire 80 employees initially, with 80 per cent of the workforce to comprise residents of Saint Croix. According to the Bureau of Economic Research, the company is looking into the possibility of restarting refining operations, albeit on a smaller scale.

18. According to the Bureau of Economic Research, since the closure of the refinery in 2012, rum production has taken over as the strongest performer in the Territory's manufacturing sector. The rum industry consists of two companies. Both distilleries have a combined capacity to produce 29 million proof gallons of rum per year. Rum produced in the Territory is exported to the United States primarily in bulk and sold to local and regional bottlers for sale under a variety of brands. Shipments for the first six months of fiscal year 2016 totalled 8,136.6 proof gallons compared with 9,669.8 proof gallons for the same period in 2015.

D. Trade, transportation and utilities

19. The United States Virgin Islands has some 1,250 km of roadways. The Territory also enjoys one of the most natural deep-water harbours in the Caribbean and is strategically located along the Anegada Passage, a key route for ships bound for the Panama Canal. The Territory has five major docking facilities, which can accommodate cruise ships and some naval vessels. Three of the docks are on Saint Croix: South Shore, Gallows Bay and Frederiksted. The other two are on Saint Thomas: the facilities operated in Crown Bay by the Virgin Islands Port Authority, a semi-autonomous government agency, and the Islands-owned West Indian Company.

20. The Water and Power Authority has continued its efforts to diversify its energy portfolio and modernize the plants' infrastructure. The utility's efforts have led to a reduction in power costs to both commercial and residential ratepayers. The United States Virgin Islands allows net metering of small distributed resources, and 15 MW of distributed solar capacity now provide 13 per cent of the midday peak demand. The Territory also has two commercial-scale solar projects, each about 4 MW, at Estate Donoe on Saint Thomas and Estate Spanish Town on Saint Croix. Two 3-MW projects are currently under construction.

21. The Authority launched a $150 million project in 2013 to convert its electric generating stations to use propane instead of residual and diesel fuel oils. It aims to cut its imported fuel costs by 30 per cent. In recent years, generating fuel surcharges have driven the average price of electricity paid by consumers as high as 50 cents per kWh, five times the average in the United States.

22. In April 2016, the Authority began commissioning propane fuel for the Saint Croix Estate Richmond facility. Once testing and other procedures are completed, the plant will begin the introduction of liquefied petroleum gas into retrofitted units. In November 2016 the commissioning process began at the Randolph Harley power plant in Saint Thomas. The units have been permitted to use three fuel types: oil, propane and natural gas for the generation of electricity. It is anticipated that the usage of liquefied petroleum gas will result in a 30 per cent reduction in utility costs for ratepayers.

23. In terms of communications, the Territory has some 59,000 telephones, 8,700 Internet hosts (a computer connected directly to the Internet) and a number of radio and television broadcasting stations.

E. Agriculture and fisheries

24. Historically, sugar cane and, to a lesser extent, cotton were the main sources of revenue for the Territory's economy. Currently, the agricultural sector is very small and comprises mainly fruit and vegetable cultivation and cattle-raising.

25. According to the administering Power, the Territory's Department of Agriculture has submitted grant applications to establish a farm-to-school programme within the Department and to make farmers markets accessible to recipients of the supplemental nutrition assistance programme. If successful, the Department will begin to build the capacity needed to increase the availability of locally grown food in the school lunch programme. It will also seek to partner with the United States Department of Agriculture Food and Nutrition Service and the Virgin Islands Department of Human Services to conduct a training programme with a small group of qualified farmers on how to use the electronic benefits transfer card reader for smartphones or stationary card readers. If successful, local farmers and fishers would have access to the market of supplemental nutrition assistance programme recipients.

IV. Social conditions

A. Labour

26. According to the United States Virgin Islands Bureau of Labor Statistics, there were 42,752 persons employed in civilian jobs during the first six months of fiscal year 2016 (19,378 in Saint Croix and 23,343 in the Saint Thomas and Saint John districts). This is a 2.3 per cent increase from the 41,802 persons employed for the corresponding period in fiscal year 2015. The territorial jobless rate was 11.5 per cent. The rate for Saint Croix was 11.4 per cent while the rate for Saint Thomas and Saint John was 11.5 per cent. The unemployment rate reflects the number of persons actively pursuing employment. The average salary in the Territory was $39,258 in 2016. Total private sector annual salary wage was $34,088. Total public sector average annual salary was $52,572. Public sector jobs comprise of 29 per cent of total non-agricultural jobs.

27. According to the United States Virgin Islands Self-Sufficiency Standard and Impact of the Minimum Wage Proposal, a project managed by the Bureau of Economic Research and published on 25 March 2016, the Governor signed Bill No. 31-0236 into law on 23 March 2016, increasing the Territory's minimum wage to $8.35 per hour to take effect in 90 days, $9.25 per hour by January 2017 and $10.50 per hour by January 2018. The Territory has now joined 29 states and the District of Columbia, that offers a minimum wage above the current federal minimum of $7.25. According to an impact assessment conducted by the Bureau of Economic Research, an estimated 14,416 workers, or about 37 per cent of the territorial workforce, would receive a pay raise resulting from the passage of this bill.

B. Education

28. Education in the United States Virgin Islands is compulsory and free for all children between 5 and 16 years of age. The Territory's Department of Education comprises a state-level education agency and two local education agencies, one for the Saint Thomas-Saint John district and the other for the Saint Croix district. Each district has two high schools and three middle schools, the Saint Thomas-Saint John district has nine elementary schools and the Saint Croix district has eight. The official total enrolment for the 2015/16 school year was 13,806 students: 6,561 in the Saint Croix district and 7,245 in the Saint Thomas-Saint John district. The University of the Virgin Islands has campuses on Saint Thomas and Saint Croix and a combined full-time and part-time student body of some 2,500 students.

29. According to the administering Power, during the 2015/16 school year, the Department of Education continued to implement the common core state standards, more correctly referred to as the college and career readiness standards, and the employee effectiveness system. The standards were developed to foster academic achievement for students while the employee effectiveness system supports improvements in instruction. The three priorities for the Territory are: student achievement, organizational culture and climate and employee effectiveness. The college and career readiness standards are intended to level the playing field for students to guarantee that they will be on par with other students nationally and globally. The standards outline specific learning goals of what a student should know and be able to do at the end of each grade.

C. Public health

30. The Territory's Department of Health maintains facilities on Saint Thomas, Saint John and Saint Croix. It also maintains a long-term care facility on Saint Thomas. Outreach efforts include educational, preventive and treatment services using clinics and subdivisions for maternal and child health, family planning, environmental health, sexually transmitted infections, HIV and tuberculosis, mental health and substance abuse. The Department administers 33 activity centres and 16 federal programmes under the auspices of the Office of the Commissioner and the divisions dealing with fiscal affairs, support services, public health services and health promotion and statistics.

31. As at 29 November 2016, the Department of Health announced the confirmation of 807 cases of Zika virus in the United States Virgin Islands. The Department also reported that it had been preparing for additional cases in the Territory and taking steps to educate the public on how to protect themselves from mosquito bites to prevent the virus from spreading further. According to the administering Power, those efforts have garnered the Department praise for its Zika virus prevention outreach and education. The types of activities and collaborative models used by the Department led the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to prepare a guidance handbook for the states on the mainland. It is also worth noting that the Zika virus prevention, outreach and education team (with members from both the United States Virgin Islands and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) have been invited to present the Territory's Zika prevention activities at forums, as well as to produce articles for publications.

D. Crime and crime prevention

32. In his State of the Territory address for 2016, the Governor noted that an across-the-board assessment of all law enforcement operations in the Territory had been undertaken and that the final assessment of the police department and all law enforcement agencies had been completed and issued. In his view, violent crime remained unacceptably high and a more comprehensive strategy was required to combat and reduce crime. The Government was stepping up recruitment efforts and technical resources, and crime prevention technology tools had been purchased. He also announced that the New York Police Department had agreed to accept and train police officers from the Territory at the New York Police Academy.

33. According to the administering Power, the Virgin Islands Police Department will be creating community partnerships (such as the Citizen Integration Team and Project Peace Initiative) for fiscal year 2016/17. It will be engaging with and implementing the National Network for Safe Communities strategies in short order. The Department will identify the offender population, targeting out the outlier groups and deploying specific and focused intervention strategies to address those offenders. The Department will also be supporting rehabilitation initiatives in hopes of deterring recidivism and as a means of providing alternatives for those presently involved in criminal activity.

V. Environmental protection and disaster preparedness

34. In December 2015, the Virgin Islands Territorial Emergency Management Agency conducted the first-ever full-scale maritime response exercise to test the first responder capabilities in managing a major incident at sea. The exercise was set in Pillsbury Sound, the body of water between Saint Thomas and Saint John. The scenario included an explosion aboard a ferry carrying 60 passengers on an excursion to Saint John. The first responders and emergency managers were evaluated on on-site incident management, marine search and rescue operations, communications, emergency operations centre management, on-scene security and protection, triage and pre-hospital treatment and medical surge capacity. More than 20 local and federal agencies participated.

35. In March 2016, the first high school Teen Community Emergency Response Team completed training offered by the Agency in partnership with the Saint Croix Rescue Academy. Thirty-three students from Saint Croix Educational Complex High School volunteered to join the ranks of the Teen Community Emergency Response Team and are now trained in basic disaster-related response skills, fire safety and suppression, light search and rescue, disaster medical operations and team organization. The students completed cardio-pulmonary resuscitation training as part of the programme and received a certification card from the American Heart Association.

36. On 16 October 2015, the Governor signed an executive order to prepare the Territory for the impacts of climate change. It provides for the launch of a territorial climate change initiative and facilitates close cooperation among the federal Government, the Government of the Territory, the private sector, civil society and the wider community.

37. The executive order establishes a Virgin Islands climate change council, which will function as a coordinating mechanism, receiving the full cooperation of all public sector institutions and instrumentalities, and work with federal and local agencies, academic and research institutions and the private and non-profit sectors. It will also designate a public institution or network of institutions, as necessary, to host and manage the data and tools required for decision-making regarding public information and climate adaptation. Furthermore, it provides for the establishment of an Internet-based portal to support the integration of those data.

38. According to the administering Power, in March 2016, the Office of Insular Affairs of the United States Department of the Interior awarded the United States Virgin Islands a $828,050 grant to support and spur its efforts to develop a robust multi-sector climate adaptation strategy and coordinated framework to carry out its goals and objectives. The grant will fund five full-time project positions for two years and cover direct operating costs for one year.

VI. Relations with international organizations and partners

39. The United States Virgin Islands is an associate member of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean. The Territory has observer status with the Association of Caribbean States and with the Alliance of Small Island States, which serves as a platform to promote action on environmental issues, including climate change. According to information provided by the administering Power, the United States Virgin Islands received acceptance as a territorial Government with observer status at the Organisation of Eastern Caribbean States in 2009.

40. The British Virgin Islands and United States Virgin Islands are making progress to strengthen their ties in areas of mutual interest, following the seventh meeting of the Inter Virgin Islands Council, held on 2 September 2016 in Saint Thomas. The Premier and Minister of Finance of the British Virgin Islands, and Governor of the United States Virgin Islands led their respective delegations of Government officials to report to the Council and further discuss areas of shared interests. During the meeting, reports were received from the standing committees on law enforcement, pleasure boating and sports fishing, cultural preservation, tourism, energy and utilities, health, mutual disaster preparedness and assistance, as well as education. Also discussed was the update on progress made regarding cooperation for British Virgin Islands musician work permits.

VII. Future status of the Territory

A. Position of the territorial Government

41. Developments regarding discussions on the future status of the United States Virgin Islands are reflected in section I.

B. Position of the administering Power

42. In a letter dated 2 November 2006 addressed to the delegate of American Samoa to the United States House of Representatives, the Assistant Secretary of State for Legislative Affairs elaborated on the position of the Government of the United States. In his letter, he indicated that the status of the insular areas regarding their political relations with the federal Government was an internal United States issue and not one that came under the purview of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples. He also noted that the Special Committee had no authority to alter in any way the relationship between the United States and those territories and no mandate to engage the United States in negotiations on their status. He further noted that, at the same time, in accordance with its obligations under the Charter of the United Nations to provide regularly to the United Nations statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social and educational conditions in the Non-Self-Governing Territories, the federal Government submitted annual updates on United States territories to the Special Committee as a demonstration of the cooperation of the United States as an administering Power and as a corrective to any errors in information that the Special Committee might have received from other sources.

43. According to the administering Power, on 23 February 2016, the Assistant Secretary for Insular Areas of the United States Department of the Interior hosted a panel discussion in Washington, D.C., on self-determination in the United States Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Guam. The panel included territorial experts and officials from the United States Department of the Interior and the State Department, who provided an updated context for federal policymakers and for a new generation to learn about the status of self-determination in the respective territories, as well as to understand their rights with regard to self-determination under federal and international law. The panel experts reaffirmed the administering Power's position that under the United States Constitution, only the United States Congress has the plenary power to dispose of and make needful rules and regulations respecting the territories. It was also re-established that it is the administering Power's policy that the territories have three distinct options for exercising self-determination: continued territorial status, statehood or independence.

VIII. Action taken by the General Assembly

44. On 6 December 2016, the General Assembly adopted resolution 71/118 without a vote, on the basis of the report of the Special Committee for 2016

(A/71/23) and the subsequent recommendation by the Fourth Committee. In that resolution the Assembly:

(a) Reaffirmed the inalienable right of the people of the United States Virgin Islands to self-determination, in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations and with General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV), containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples;

(b) Also reaffirmed that, in the process of decolonization of the United States Virgin Islands, there was no alternative to the principle of self-determination, which was also a fundamental human right, as recognized under the relevant human rights conventions;

(c) Further reaffirmed that it was ultimately for the people of the United States Virgin Islands to determine freely their future political status in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Charter, the Declaration and the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, and in that connection called upon the administering Power, in cooperation with the territorial Government and appropriate bodies of the United Nations system, to develop political education programmes for the Territory in order to foster an awareness among the people of their right to self-determination in conformity with the legitimate political status options, based on the principles clearly defined in Assembly resolution 1541 (XV) and other relevant resolutions and decisions;

(d) Welcomed the proposal of a draft constitution emanating from the Territory in 2009, as a result of the work of the United States Virgin Islands Fifth Constitutional Convention, for review by the administering Power, and requested the administering Power to assist the territorial Government in achieving its political, economic and social goals, in particular the successful conclusion of the internal Constitutional Convention exercise;
