Non-governmental organizations

Report of the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations on its 2017 regular session

New York, 30 January to 8 February and 24 February 2017

Summary

At its 2017 regular session, held from 30 January to 8 February and on 24 February 2017, the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations had before it 524 applications for consultative status, including 235 applications deferred from earlier sessions. Of the non-governmental organizations submitting those applications, the Committee recommended 269 for consultative status, deferred 221 for further consideration at its resumed session in 2017 and closed without prejudice consideration of the 31 applications of non-governmental organizations that had failed to respond to queries over two consecutive sessions of the Committee. The Committee also had before it five requests for reclassification of consultative status; it recommended granting two of those requests and deferred its consideration of the other three. The Committee considered seven requests for a change of name, took note of six of those requests and deferred one. It also had before it 450 quadrennial reports, of which it took note of 352. The Committee heard 15 representatives of the 198 non-governmental organizations that attended the session.

The present report contains seven draft decisions on matters calling for action by the Economic and Social Council.

By draft decision I, the Council would:

- (a) Grant consultative status to 269 non-governmental organizations;
- (b) Reclassify the consultative status of two non-governmental organizations;
- (c) Note that the Committee decided to take note of the change of name of six non-governmental organizations;

Applications closed

6. At its 15th meeting, on 8 February, the Committee decided to close without prejudice consideration of the applications of 31 NGOs that had not responded to the Committee's questions despite three reminders sent to the organizations (see chap. I, draft decision I (e)).

İstanbul Fikir Araştırmaları Derneği

7. At its 5th meeting, on 1 February 2017, the Committee considered the application of the non-governmental organization İstanbul Fikir Araştırmaları Derneği. The representative of Turkey reminded the Committee members about the letter (see annex I) it had circulated previously regarding the dissolution of the organization through a decree with force of law, which had been approved as law by the Turkish parliament and whereby the legal personality and activities of the organization had ceased to exist. She requested the Committee to recommend closing consideration of the organization's application.

8. The representative of the United States of America enquired whether there would be time for the organization to respond before the Committee made its decision, in line with what had been done in the past. In response, the Turkish representative reiterated that the organization had ceased to exist and had no legal personality. The representative of India added that the Committee had had a detailed discussion on the issue and that if an organization was closed, there would be no one to contact.

9. The representative of the United States stated that, as mentioned on prior occasions, her country was gravely concerned about the crackdown on civil society and agreed to close an application only if the NGO was suspected of having links to terrorism. She expressed her delegation's concern that the NGO had not been given the opportunity to respond and that the Committee should therefore wait instead of rushing to make a decision.

10. Following these statements, the Committee decided by consensus to recommend the closure of the application.

Ilankai Thamil Sangam

11. At its 6th meeting, on 1 February 2017, the Committee considered the application of Ilankai Thamil Sangam. Assuming that there were no objections, the Chair gavelled the recommendation to grant special consultative status to the NGO. However, the representative of China had requested the floor to ask the NGO to explain its position with regard to the issue of Tibet Autonomous Region of China.

12. Since the Chair had already gavelled the recommendation, several Member States took the floor to voice their concerns about the appropriate time necessary for Committee members to consider an application and for the Chair to gavel the recommendation. The representatives of Greece and the United States maintained that, in accordance with the rules and procedures, once a decision was gavelled, it could not be taken back, while the representatives of Cuba and China stated that the speed with which the decision had been gavelled had not allowed sufficient time for the interpreters to finish translating the Chair's statement.

13. The representative of the Russian Federation stated that there should be a few seconds' delay between the time when a recommendation was made by the Chair and the actual gaveling of the decision so as to avoid rushing into a decision. The representative of India suggested that the Committee should not challenge the integrity of a Member State, and therefore China's question should be accommodated.

14. Given the lack of consensus among Committee members, the representative of China stressed that the problem had been caused by a technical error and, therefore, his country was obliged to ask for a vote, to give its delegation the opportunity to pose its question to the organization. The representative of the Russian Federation urged Member States to be flexible and avoid resorting to a vote on the issue. The representative of the United States stated that, in the past, the gavel had always served as the final ruling and the Committee could not go back to revisit decisions.

15. The Committee voted to overturn the Chair's decision by a roll-call vote of 12 to 4, with 2 abstentions. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 18 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Azerbaijan, Burundi, China, Cuba, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Mauritania, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Russian Federation, Sudan, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Against:

Greece, Israel, United States of America, Uruguay

Abstaining:

South Africa, Turkey

Absent:

Guinea

16. Following the vote, the representative of China repeated his question to the NGO, requesting the organization to explain its position with regard to Tibet Autonomous Region of China and to clarify its relations with the Dalai Lama and his separatist movement.

Hazar Strateji Enstitüsü Derneği

17. At its 7th meeting, on 2 February 2017, the Committee considered the application of Hazar Strateji Enstitüsü Derneği. The representative of Turkey stated that her country had previously informed Committee members, and had also circulated a letter (see annex I), about the dissolution of the organization through a decree with force of law, which had also been approved as law by the Turkish parliament and whereby the legal personality and activities of the organization had ceased to exist. She requested the closure of consideration of the organization's application. The representative of the United States took the floor to express her delegation's concern that the NGO had not been given the opportunity to respond and that the Committee should therefore wait until the following Tuesday instead of rushing to make a decision.

18. In response, the representative of Turkey maintained that, as a long-standing member of the Committee, her country valued and observed the rules of procedure and the practices of the Committee, but that in the present case, since the organization had been dissolved and its legal personality no longer existed, the expressed request did not apply. The representative of the United States in turn stated that her country wanted to be on record expressing its concern about the global crackdown on the participation of civil society and reiterated calls to follow proper procedures in the Committee.

19. Following these statements, the Committee decided by consensus to recommend the closure of the application.

Christian Solidarity Worldwide

20. At its 9th meeting, on 3 February 2017, the Committee considered the application of Christian Solidarity Worldwide. The representative of China posed a question to the organization requesting further information about its participation in the universal periodic review of the Human Rights Council.

21. The representative of Greece took the floor to state that his country attached major significance to promoting religious tolerance and countering any discrimination based on religion or belief. He stressed the importance of defending religious freedom in response to the rise of religious extremism in various parts of the world and the subsequent targeting of persons belonging to religious minorities.

22. He stated further that the NGO had over three decades of experience in advocating for freedom of religion and had engaged regularly with United Nations mechanisms to provide valid, evidence-based analysis. It had applied for consultative status eight years ago, in 2009, but a decision on the application had been deferred for 14 sessions, during which the organization had been asked more than 80, often repetitive, questions. The representative stated that, since the NGO had consistently cooperated with the Committee and responded in a timely and comprehensive manner to all the questions, consultative status should be recommended. He therefore requested a vote on the application, pursuant to rule 59 of the rules of procedure of the Economic and Social Council. He added that Greece would vote yes and encouraged all delegations to join him.

23. The representative of Cuba stated the Committee should not be forced to make a decision, since the organization had not yet fulfilled the requirements for consultative status under Council resolution 1996/31. He recalled that the organization had been requested to explain its relationship with Christian Solidarity International and that, although the organization maintained that it had separated from Christian Solidarity International in 1999, no documentation had ever been provided as proof. He recalled further that the organization had not provided the Committee with basic documents such as a constitution, financial statements and a certificate of registration. With a view to clarifying matters relating to its functioning, establishment and election of members, and in order to verify information published on the organization's website and about its local partners, the Committee had found it necessary to request the NGO to clarify these matters on several occasions, and in many cases, more than three times. He stated that the response had been evasive and, even when there had been a response, Christian Solidarity Worldwide had indicated that it would not answer those questions. He contended that that was a break with past practice followed by the Committee under resolution 1996/31. He therefore maintained that his delegation was not in a position to make a decision and, as a result, would vote against the proposal.

24. The representative of Uruguay took the floor to state her support for granting status to Christian Solidarity Worldwide, noting that the organization complied with all the necessary requirements for consultative status in accordance with resolution 1996/31. She stated that the organization promoted freedom of religion and thought in all forms and that redundant questions were being posed to block the NGO from being granted status.

25. The representative of China made a statement before the vote, stating that his country maintained an open attitude towards applications for status from NGOs and had had an open and frank meeting with the organization. He pointed out that NGOs should comply with the requirements under resolution 1996/31, especially with respect to the purpose and principles of the Charter of the United Nations. He stressed that China's position with regard to the NGO was not based on considerations regarding freedom of belief or religion but on holding the organization to the criteria established in the resolution. Accordingly, his country would vote no because he believed that the organization was clearly not in compliance.

26. The representative of India agreed with China, stating that, while freedom of religion was a fundamental right in the constitution of India, the NGO had not provided satisfactory responses that fulfilled the requirements under resolution 1996/31. Therefore, his delegation would vote against granting status so that the NGO could be requested to answer further questions.

27. The Committee voted against the proposal by Greece to grant status to the NGO by a roll-call vote of 11 to 4, with 1 abstention. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 16 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Greece, Israel, United States of America, Uruguay

Against:

Burundi, China, Cuba, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Nicaragua, Pakistan, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Abstaining:

Russian Federation

Absent:

Azerbaijan, Guinea, Mauritania

28. Following the vote, the representative of Greece made a statement to express his deep disappointment that the Committee had decided not to grant consultative status to the organization. His delegation was convinced that the organization's contribution to the Council would be crucial on issues of freedom of religion or belief. He expressed his country's serious concern about the growing trend in the Committee to defer important and credible organizations for several sessions despite the fact that they had diligently answered all the questions posed and engaged constructively with members of the Committee. In that respect, he reiterated his country's long-standing position that the Committee should facilitate the access of NGOs to the United Nations and not obstruct them by deviating from the guiding principles laid down in resolution 1996/31. He stressed his country's particular concern regarding the delaying tactics used to defer applications through repetitive questions or inquiries that went beyond the information required under resolution 1996/31, and he hoped that the NGO would be granted consultative status by the Council at the soonest time possible.

29. The observer for the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland took the floor to thank the representative of Greece for calling for a vote on the organization's application and all who had voted in favour. He stated that, since the organization had first applied in 2009, its application had gone through 14 sessions since 2010, during which it had diligently provided answers to 80, often repetitive, questions and had participated in the Committee's question-and-answer sessions on three occasions. He therefore maintained that there did not seem to be any questions left to be asked. He concluded by stating that the organization had fulfilled all the requirements under resolution 1996/31 and hoped that the Council would grant it status, given that the organization's work was rooted in the Charter of the United Nations and in article 18 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Inimõiguste Instituut

30. At its 10th meeting, on 3 February 2017, the Committee considered the application of the non-governmental organization Inimõiguste Instituut. The representative of the Russian Federation requested the NGO to explain how, in implementing a project to protect the human rights of the Crimean Tatars, it was able to justify working with individuals who had been accused of blowing up electric lines connecting Crimea in the winter and who were therefore considered terrorists.

31. The observer for Estonia requested the floor to state that her country considered civil society to be a vital partner that offered data and other information that would otherwise be overlooked. She stated that the organization was the oldest NGO in Estonia and had been working on human rights issues in Estonia and around the world for many years. She expressed regret that its application had been postponed yet again for unclear reasons and urged the Committee to grant status to the organization. The request was seconded by the observers for Hungary and Finland and by a representative of the European Union, who all stated that the organization was doing commendable work and urged the Committee to fulfil its core mandate and recommend consultative status to the NGO.

32. The representative of the Russian Federation repeated his question to the NGO and asked that it be transmitted for a response.

Mittetulundusühing Fenno-Ugria Asutus

33. At its 10th meeting, on 3 February 2017, the Committee considered the application of the non-governmental organization Mittetulundusühing Fenno-Ugria Asutus.

34. The representative of the Russian Federation stated that in Karelia, in the Russian Federation, where the NGO also worked, regional authorities had drawn attention to the fact that many events organized by the organization could be classified as promoting separatism. He added that his Government was currently evaluating the activities of the NGO in order to make a decision. He went on to pose new questions to the NGO, stating that it had not responded satisfactorily to an earlier question posed by his delegation, particularly regarding the Fenno-Ugric people who were now stateless.

35. The observer for Hungary requested the floor to make a statement in support of the NGO, stating that her Government supported the application of the NGO, which was not only active in Estonia but also in Hungary and Finland, and that its activities fell within the competence of the Council. She explained that the organization cooperated closely with Hungarian organizations such as Reguly Társaság, Magyarok Világszövetsége and the Hungarian-Estonian Association (Ungari Eesti Selts) and that it was doing commendable work in preserving the small Finno-Ugric indigenous cultures and languages. She stated that the organization was an example of one that should clearly be recommended for consultative status and whose application had been pending since 2013. Given its established record of activities that were aligned with the goals of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, she urged the Committee to fulfil its core mandate, as set down by the Council, and defend and uphold the guiding principles of resolution 1996/31 by recommending consultative status for organizations such as Mittetulundusühing Fenno-Ugria Asutus.

36. The representative of the United States reminded the Committee that members had heard not only from Estonia but also from Hungary, Finland and the European Union, who had voiced their support for the application, which had been pending a decision since May 2014. She reiterated that, since indigenous issues were taken up regularly at the United Nations, it was important to have an organization that contributed to constructive discussions on those issues.

Green Light Project

37. At its 11th meeting, on 6 February 2017, the representative of the Islamic Republic of Iran stated that, on 1 February 2017, the Committee had granted status to the organization Green Light Project, which was registered under the name of Robert Benton, its beneficiary. He added that it seemed that the name was being used as a cover-up to obtain status for another organization with no links to the Green Light Project or its beneficiary. The application and the supporting documents submitted to the Committee indicated that the organization that the Committee had granted status to was “Green Light Project, Inc.” Moreover, the Green Light Project had clearly indicated in the application form that it had no affiliates.

38. The representative of the Islamic Republic of Iran maintained that such dishonesty and dubious behaviour might constitute a fraudulent act intended to betray the trust of Member States and harm the integrity of the work of the Committee. He stated that his understanding was that the organization to which the Committee had granted status on 1 February was the “Green Light Project” and not any other entity. He added that his delegation would continue to monitor the work and performance of the NGO and its compliance with the provisions of resolution 1996/31.

B. New applications for consultative status and new requests for reclassification

39. The Committee considered item 3 (b) of its agenda, new applications for consultative status and new requests for reclassification, at its 2nd to 6th, 13th and 14th meetings, held from 30 January to 1 February and on 7 February 2017. The Committee considered a total of 289 new applications for consultative status.

New applications recommended

40. Of the 289 non-governmental organizations whose new applications had been received, the Committee recommended that the following 195 should be granted consultative status with the Council (see chap. I, draft decision I, para. (a)):

IV. Strengthening of the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the Secretariat

49. At its 1st meeting, on 30 January, the Committee jointly considered agenda item 5, Strengthening of the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, and agenda item 8, General voluntary trust fund in support of the United Nations Non-Governmental Organizations Informal Regional Network, and heard oral reports made by the Secretariat.

50. The Branch highlighted the lack of adequate resources to deliver on a steadily increasing volume of work, including the processing of applications and quadrennial reports from NGOs every year, as well as the related support for the Committee's paperless system. Particular urgency was emphasized for the current session, given the fact that the workload of the Branch in 2017 far exceeded its capacity to deliver on its commitments with no concomitant increases in its resources. Under the circumstances, the potential for a backlog in the submission of applications had increased significantly, leading to inordinate delays for NGOs in obtaining consultative status with the Council, as highlighted by the Director of the Office for Economic and Social Council Support and Coordination of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs in his opening statement, as well as by the Under Secretary-General for Economic and Social Affairs in a letter to the Chair of the Committee. The Committee was therefore encouraged to consider ways to support the Branch's efforts to enable it to fully meet its obligations under resolution 1996/31.

V. Review of the methods of work of the Committee: implementation of Council resolution 1996/31, including the process of accreditation of representatives of non-governmental organizations, and Council decision 1995/304

51. Based on a request from the representative of China to turn off the live video feed of the question-and-answer segment of the Committee session on 6 February 2017, a provisional, compromise solution, reached by consensus, was found according to which the screens in the conference room would display the applications from the NGOs considered. In the future, the Committee would consider the issue at a meeting on the methods of work so that the Committee can work effectively on the matter at the beginning of its next session. The solution reached for the current session was transitional.

VI. Consideration of special reports and complaints by Member States

52. At its 1st meeting, on 30 January 2017, the Committee took up agenda item 7, Consideration of special reports. The representative of Turkey referred to a letter dated 23 January 2017 (see annex II) that had been circulated previously to members of the Committee and that contained a request for the withdrawal of status of three Turkish organizations in consultative status with the Council. The organizations had been closed on the grounds of having membership in, or affiliations or connections with, the Fetullahist Terrorist Organization (FETO), which had staged the failed coup attempt of 15 July 2016 against the constitutional order of Turkey. Stating that the purpose of her delegation's intervention that day, as well as of the circulated letter, was to notify the Committee about the current legal status of the organizations concerned, namely Kimse Yok Mu, Gazeteciler ve Yazarlar Vakfi* and Türkiye Isadamları ve Sanayiciler Konfederasyonu, she added that the relevant decree with force of law regarding the closures had been issued on 23 July 2016 and approved as law by the Turkish parliament. As a result, the three organizations had been dissolved. Accordingly, their legal personality and activities as such and, hence, the basis for their consultative status, had ceased to exist. The representatives of Azerbaijan, India, Pakistan and Burundi voiced their support for the request from Turkey.

53. The representative of the United States took the floor to request that more information be solicited from the NGOs before continuing the discussion, citing the seriousness of the charges, and suggested following the rules of procedure and past practice of the Committee. In providing information regarding past practice, the Secretary of the Committee explained that there had been a similar request regarding an NGO in consultative status two years earlier. At the time, the Committee had agreed to seek clarification from the NGO concerned before proceeding to a recommendation to withdraw its consultative status, which it did a week later, after receiving a response. The difference in the present case, he clarified, was that an immediate withdrawal of status of the NGOs was requested.

54. In support of the request from Turkey, the representative of China expressed his view that the explanation from Turkey was sufficient to justify the request for withdrawal since the three NGOs no longer conformed to paragraph 2 of resolution 1996/31. The representative of the United States responded that the question was not about substance but precedent. She noted that, in the case of the Journalists and Writers Foundation, the dissolving of an organization was not a technical matter, and since the NGO was now registered in the United States, it did still exist. She added that Turkey had also refused to provide any details of the non-governmental organization's links to terrorism. Her delegation, therefore, did not agree with the technical arguments and would continue to oppose the motion.

55. The representative of the Sudan supported Turkey's request. The representative of Cuba acknowledged the serious allegations and thanked the Secretary for the precedent cited, which had involved an NGO that did not belong to a country of one of the members of the Committee. However, in the present case, the country involved was a member of the Committee and could brief it directly. The situation was therefore different.

56. The representative of Turkey took the floor to explain that the three organizations had been closed following a legal decree in Turkey, reiterating that they no longer had "legal personalities" and therefore had no basis for maintaining consultative status. She added that, with regard to the organization referred to by the representative of the United States, at the time of application and when granted consultative status, it had been registered only in Turkey, with its headquarters in Turkey. She added that, since the basis for awarding consultative status had been its registration in Turkey, and since that registration no longer existed, its status should be withdrawn immediately.

57. In its statement supporting Turkey, the representative of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela stated that it was standard practice for an NGO to be registered in a given country and to notify the Committee when it relocated to another country.

* The English translation of which is Journalists and Writers Foundation.

58. That statement was followed by a renewed request from the representative of the United States for more information from the NGOs and to follow the rules of procedures and precedent. She thereby objected to the request from Turkey. The representative of the Sudan maintained that, since the NGOs no longer existed, the Committee must move directly to a vote.

59. The Chair explained that a vote had been requested to recommend the withdrawal of status of all three organizations to the Council, at which point the representative of the United States requested a point of order, assuming that the initial proposal was to move immediately to withdrawal of status, to which the United States had already objected. She requested the Chair to clarify whether the Committee should vote now or solicit information from the NGOs first in accordance with paragraph 56 of resolution 1996/31, quoting from the resolution that the NGO “shall be given written reasons for that decision and shall have an opportunity to present its response”.

60. The representative of the Sudan stated that there could be two votes, the first on whether the Committee should vote on the request by the representative of the United States, followed by a second vote on whether to withdraw the consultative status.

61. Following these statements, a vote was called to postpone action as requested by the United States. The proposal to postpone the vote was rejected by a roll-call vote of 14 to 2, with 2 abstentions. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 18 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Israel, United States of America

Against:

Azerbaijan, Burundi, China, Cuba, Guinea, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Mauritania, Nicaragua, Pakistan, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Abstaining:

Russian Federation, Uruguay

Absent:

Greece

62. Following the vote, the Committee proceeded to vote to withdraw the consultative status of the three organizations, one by one. On the first organization, Kimse Yok Mu, the request by Turkey to withdraw its consultative status was recommended by a roll-call vote of 16 to none, with 2 abstentions. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 18 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Azerbaijan, Burundi, China, Cuba, Greece, Guinea, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Mauritania, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Russian Federation, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Abstaining:

United States of America, Uruguay

Absent:

Israel

63. Before proceeding to the next vote, the representative of the United States expressed her delegation’s concern about the global crackdown on civil society organizations and the closing of civic space, explaining that the United States only opposed accreditation or the revocation of accreditation of NGOs based on concerns of terrorism or related criminal activities. In the case of the previous vote, even though she was concerned about the decision to not follow precedent, her delegation had abstained, since the NGO was no longer operational and no longer held registration in any Member State.

64. Before the third vote, the representative of Turkey explained that the vote was to withdraw the consultative status of the organization under its Turkish name, Gazeteciler ve Yazarlar Vakfı, as listed in document E/2015/INF/5, as well as in the report of the Committee on its 2012 regular session. The representative of the United States stated that the NGO should be called the Journalists and Writers Foundation, as listed in the database of the Non-Governmental Organizations Branch. The representative of the United States expressed her country's regret that the Committee had not had more time to review the letter presented on the Journalists and Writers Foundation and that the NGO had not been allowed to respond to the allegations made in the letter. She continued that the NGO could not be closed on technical grounds because it was registered in the United States and continued to operate from its headquarters in New York. She listed a number of events that the NGO had recently participated in from its New York headquarters and again asked for more time to hear from the organization. The representative of Turkey stated that, since the basis for the organization's consultative status, namely, its registration in Turkey, had ceased to exist, its consultative status should accordingly be withdrawn, adding that it also had no legal personality as such. The representative of Turkey also stated that the name of the organization under which it had been granted status in 2012 was in Turkish and that the English phrase was a translation; therefore, for the sake of clarity, the original name of the organization should be reflected, with the English translation in parentheses.

65. Following these statements, the request by Turkey to withdraw the consultative status of Gazeteciler ve Yazarlar Vakfı* was recommended by a roll-call vote of 16 to 2, with 1 abstention. Of the 19 members of the Committee, all were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Azerbaijan, Burundi, China, Cuba, Greece, Guinea, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Mauritania, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Russian Federation, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Against:

Israel, United States of America

Abstaining:

Uruguay

66. In moving to the next vote, on Türkiye Isadamları ve Sanayiciler Konfederasyonu, the representative of the United States took the floor to once again express her delegation's concern about the global crackdown on civil society organizations and the closing of civic space. She further explained that the United States only opposed accreditation or the revocation of accreditation of NGOs based on concerns of terrorism or related criminal activities, but even though she was concerned about the decision to not follow the precedent, the United States would abstain, since the NGO was no longer operational.

67. The request by Turkey to withdraw the consultative status of Türkiye Isadamları ve Sanayiciler Konfederasyonu was recommended by a roll-call vote of 16 to none, with 2 abstentions. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 18 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

* The English translation of which is Journalists and Writers Foundation.

In favour:

Abstaining:

Absent:

68. Following the vote, the Chair stated that the NGOs concerned should be provided written notification as expeditiously as possible, to which the representative of Turkey objected, maintaining that since these organizations had been dissolved, they did not legally exist and that, as a result, the referenced paragraph of the resolution did not apply. She added that the report of the Committee would also serve as the official declaration of all the decisions taken by the Committee. The representative of the United States insisted that the Committee follow paragraph 56 of resolution 1996/31, emphasizing that the organizations should be provided written reasons and that the Council was the only body authorized to change the procedures it itself had laid down.

69. At its 2nd meeting, on 30 January 2017, the Committee continued the discussions from the first meeting. The representative of Turkey took the floor to state that paragraph 56 of resolution 1996/31 did not apply with regard to communicating the decision of the Committee to withdraw status to the organizations concerned because the organizations had ceased to exist and did not have any legal standing.

70. In response, the representative of the United States reiterated that no decision to the effect that the organization did not exist had been taken in the 1st meeting and that the decision in the morning had been to recommend that the Council withdraw accreditation. In turn, the representative of Turkey quoted paragraph 15 of the resolution, which stated that the granting, suspension and withdrawal of consultative status, as well as the interpretation of norms and decisions relating to that matter, were the prerogative of Member States exercised through the Council and its Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations. She added that the Committee had discussed the issue and had already taken a decision on it through its procedural vote in its previous meeting.

71. The representatives of India, Pakistan and Azerbaijan questioned the rationale for contacting entities that were no longer in existence.

72. The representative of the United States emphasized that the Committee's role was to make a recommendation only. Ultimately, it was for the Council to take a decision. He stated further that the decision taken earlier by the Committee had not been that the three organizations no longer existed, particularly with respect to one of the organizations, but had been solely on the withdrawal of status. He therefore urged the Committee to follow due process all the way through, as articulated in the resolution, since resolution 1996/31 was being applied to the organizations for purposes of seeking to withdraw their status, and by the same token, the procedural elements of 1996/31 must also be applied.

73. In response, the representative of China took the floor in support of Turkey, stating that there was no need to revisit the decision taken earlier, while Cuba added that there seemed to be a "legal void" in the resolution with regard to NGOs that had ceased to exist. The representative of the United States once again took the floor to state that his position was that the question discussed in the earlier session was not relevant to the question of allowing NGOs to respond after a recommendation for withdrawal of status, but rather had concerned whether to take an immediate decision on such withdrawal. He also disagreed about there being a legal void in the resolution, reiterating that, as a subsidiary body, the Committee was not competent to override the provisions of a Council resolution.

74. The representative of Turkey maintained that paragraph 15 was quite clear about the prerogative of Member States on the interpretation of norms and decisions related to the granting, suspension and withdrawal of status, adding that a majority of Member States were leaning towards that interpretation, and requested that the matter be put to a vote. On a point of order, the representative of the United States stated that if it was a proposal to overrule a resolution of the parent body, namely, the Council, then it was beyond the competence of the Committee to make such decisions. The representative of Turkey responded that paragraph 15 provided Member States, through the Committee and the Council, the prerogative to decide on such matters.

75. Citing inconsistency with paragraph 56 of the resolution, the representative of the United States said that it contradicted the authority of the Council and moved to challenge the competence of the Committee to take the action that Turkey proposed. The Committee voted against the motion by a roll-call vote of 14 to 2, with 1 abstention. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 17 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Israel, United States of America

Against:

Azerbaijan, Burundi, China, Cuba, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Mauritania, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Russian Federation, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Abstaining:

Uruguay

Absent:

Greece, Guinea

76. The Committee then proceeded to a vote on the motion from Turkey which stated that “The NGO Committee decides that it cannot contact or communicate with the three organizations whose legal status has ceased to exist and, based on that, whose consultative status had been recommended to be withdrawn in the morning session of the Committee”. The Committee voted in support of the motion by a roll-call vote of 13 to 2, with 2 abstentions. Of the 19 members of the Committee, 17 were present and voting. The voting was as follows:

In favour:

Azerbaijan, Burundi, China, Cuba, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Mauritania, Nicaragua, Pakistan, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of)

Against:

Israel, United States of America

Abstaining:

Russian Federation, Uruguay

Absent:

Greece, Guinea

77. In explaining his vote, the representative of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela stated that his delegation had voted in favour of the proposal in order to be consistent with the votes taken earlier in the session on those NGOs. He explained that his country's vote did not violate resolution 1996/31 because he believed that there was a legal void in the resolution and the Committee was acting in accordance with its mandate.
