3. Nature Conservancy*

(Special consultative status granted in 1996)

This report provides information on the work that The Nature Conservancy has been doing in the last three years with the United Nations bodies and other specialized agencies. The Nature Conservancy has worked a great deal with the United Nations, especially UNDP and UNEP, attending meetings, supporting partners and creating joint-level efforts. The mission of The Nature Conservancy is to preserve plants, animals and natural communities that represent the diversity of life on Earth by protecting the lands and waters they need to survive.

The Nature Conservancy has cooperated with many different UN bodies and other agencies and attended a variety of UN meetings. For instance, the Organization's representatives attended the SPAW Protocol SBSTTA Meeting in August 1999 in Havana, Cuba as well as the SPAW Protocol COP in Kingston Jamaica, February 2000. TNC was also invited to make a special presentation on its Eco-Regional Marine Priority Setting Plan for the Central Caribbean at the UN Informal Consultative Process of the Ocean and the Law of the Sea, in New York City in May of 2000. Other examples of UN related activities The Nature Conservancy has been involved in include:

1) A UNEP contract to do CAMPAM (Association of Marine Protected Area Managers of the Caribbean) members training at Parque del Este in the Dominican Republic. The goal of the Training of Trainers program is essentially to build a cadre of Caribbean marine protected area managers who are able to design and deliver quality training programs that will result ultimately in improved MPA management in the Caribbean. Participants for the course were selected by UNEP/CAR-RCU on the basis of training experience and responsibilities relative to marine protected area (MPA) management, as well as a commitment to conduct in-country training activities as follow-up to the Training of Trainers (TOT) course.

The course was attended by 15 MPA managers and stewards from 8 countries (Dominican Republic, Cuba, Mexico, Honduras, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Colombia and Venezuela) selected by UNEP-RCU.

2) The Nature Conservancy's representatives have helped produce a Funding Guide for Caribbean Protected Area Managers which is being jointly published by TNC and UNEP.

3) TNC obtained a UNEP-GEF mid-size grant ($750 thousand) for 6 countries (Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama, Paraguay and Peru). The objective of this project is to catalyze science-based decision making and conservation action on landscape management alternatives in five important ecoregions of Latin America. To achieve this objective the project would support the following activities:

(a) Compile critical information on the status and threats to biodiversity (in a variety of forms, including thematic maps, satellite images, and ecological, biological, and socioeconomic databases);

(b) Use data collected to prioritize critical areas for biodiversity conservation in each of the ecoregions; and

(c) Develop landscape management plans for 1 to 2 sites per ecoregion. Detailed information allows policy-makers to make decisions based on proposed limits of ecological and biological importance, geopolitical divisions (States, provinces, etc.), highways, population centers, possible threats, etc. Therefore, this project will provide the basic and critical information required to take action for conservation.

4) TNC is assisting UNDP and UNEP with Block B preparation for a Central Caribbean GEF grant proposal on marine and coastal area management.

* Report is being issued without formal editing.

5) TNC has supported NGO participation at NGO-GEF Consultations prior to each GEF Executive Council Meeting (from 1996-1999). Over a dozen NGOs, mostly from Latin America and the Caribbean were sponsored to attend these meetings and learn about GEF issues and procedures.

6) TNC is working with UNESCO and the United Nations Foundation on ways in which World Heritage natural sites could receive significantly greater financial and technical support.

4. South North Development Initiative*

(Special consultative status granted in 1996)

South North Development Initiative was granted Special Consultative Status in 1996. The following pages describe South North's mission, activities, countries of operation and joint efforts made in conjunction with a variety of UN-related bodies and initiatives both in the US and in the countries where South North works to promote economic and social development. It is South North's hope that we can continue to build upon the strong relationship we have enjoyed with the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies.

Introduction

South North's Mission is to establish local venture capital funds (LVCs) as a widely used and accepted mechanism for social and economic development in Latin America and Southern Africa. LVC funds are designed to become permanent engines of growth by promoting entrepreneurship, supporting the development of a diversified private sector, creating jobs, and reducing poverty while simultaneously generating a return on investment. Funders and recipients alike are struggling with the fundamental question of how to ensure that development strategies are sustainable. The resource needs for social and economic development in the poorest countries of the world exceed conventional funding sources such as traditional national and international capital markets, international aid, multilateral development loans, and philanthropic contributions. New resources, financial vehicles, and partnerships must be found and developed to increase wealth and living standards in developing countries since the demand for capital far outstrips supply.

Small and medium-sized businesses in emerging economies offer the greatest employment opportunities to low-income, disenfranchised and minority groups. They are flexible in production, have the potential as training ground for managerial skills and provide rich personal relations. SME ownership by the residents of a community results in community-based economic decisions, greater stability of employment, and better community development.

Since its founding in 1991, South North and its international network of partners, associates, professional volunteers, and successful venture capitalists have worked to reduce unemployment and poverty through economic empowerment in Southern Africa and Latin America. Working to promote, develop, and implement local venture capital funds, South North's aim is to enable small and medium-sized businesses to become self-sustaining while generating profits that benefit the community. Local partners provide the leadership role in launching the LVC funds, while South North plays a catalytic, advisory, promotional and supportive role in the process. By making use of a global network of, knowledge, resources and expertise, South North is able to maintain low operational costs relative to output. South North also uses its experience to empower through education the local entrepreneurs as well as encourage the legislative foundation and the consistent legislative agendas needed for local venture capital funds to exist and be successful. South North raises two kinds of support: social investment capital for the creation and expansion of local venture capital funds, and general operating support to provide technical and managerial support to the funds and to provide educational and legislative reform initiatives to encourage the widespread acceptance and creation of local venture capital funds as a mechanism for social development.

* Report is being issued without formal editing.

Since South North Development Initiative (SNDI) has been accepted by ECOSOC in 1996, our geographical membership has expanded to include Ecuador, Mozambique, Lesotho, Mexico, Uruguay, Brazil, Zimbabwe, Peru, South Africa and Argentina. In addition to its global expansion South North has band together with the Synergos Institute (9 East 69th Street, New York, NY 10021, Telephone: 212-517-4900, Fax: 212-517-4815, E-mail: synergos@synergos.org, Website: <http://www.synergos.org>), an NGO with consultative status, on several projects in Latin America between 1996-1999.

Participation on UN Meetings, Cooperation with UN bodies and Other Activities

South North has assisted the United Nations Development Programme in projects such as, Project No. ARG/97/029I, "Promoción de Fondos de Riesgo para Pequeñas Empresas." This program was set up to generate employment and eradicate poverty, through the implementation of local venture capital for small businesses, with the aspiration of bettering the overall economic condition as well as the standard of living of the low income sectors. What it did was serve as a learning experience that would yield high returns in years to come.

Later, projects FO/ARG/99/002/A and FO/ARG.99/003/A were a continuation of the learning process that was necessary to start local venture capital funds in such countries as Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay, Ecuador and Peru. South North spent three intensive years (1998-2000) travelling, learning and disseminating its experiences so that it could foster much needed funds in these countries. Two examples of funds that were initiated by South North during this period would be Mendoza (Argentina) and Impulsar (Ecuador).

As a result of these generous contributions, South North not only gained invaluable experience but was able to present a multitude of reports to the United Nations Development Programme regarding the economic as well as social climates in the countries at the time. South North presented to the United Nations Development Program in 1999, Phase I — Feasibility Reviews for: Namibia, Panama, Venezuela, Mozambique, Ecuador, Argentina, Peru and Botswana.

Continuing its efforts to create local venture capital funds, South North Development Initiative and Fomento Social in association with Mexico's largest commercial bank Banamex sought to establish Fideicomiso, Fondo Para el Desarrollo de Proyectos Productivos en las Zonas Rural de Republica Mexicana (Development Fund for Productive Projects in Rural Zones of Mexico). The fund's goal was to bring sustainable economic development to peasants in the Oaxaca and Chipas provinces. Two million dollars were set aside for technical assistance, management and marketing training for the small to medium-sized businesses in which the fund would invest. However, SNDI was not limited to Latin America.

In 1995, the Zimbabwe Progress Fund (ZPF) was established with the help of South North Development Initiative and The Synergos Institute, which remain involved to date. Later the UNDP-Zimbabwe gave a generous contribution to ZPF. The Zimbabwe Progress Fund is a Zimbabwean venture capital Company which has been providing equity capital and management support for the development of indigenous businesses. Investment in the ZPF with help to overcome severe economic inequalities by facilitating the transfer of ownership of productive assets to indigenous management and employees.

South North has also, during 1996-1999, sent a mission to Nicaragua invited by the United Nations to learn about how to develop in Latin America and offer our experience in Local Venture Capital (LVC). Additionally, South North dispatched another mission to Colombia, again invited and funded by the UNDP. From this mission we explored the feasibility of creating a fund in Colombia, but were discouraged by the constant guerrilla warfare and narco-trafficking. Both missions were to promote LVCs, educate and advocate for investment instruments that might foster development.

The Executive Director of South North attended the Annual Session of UNDP/UNFPA Executive Board, which took place in New York on 18 June 1999 to discuss the WNDP's role in private sector development in Africa.

South North Development Initiative continues its mission today in the year 2002. Hard work and experience has improved our on going dedication to Southern Africa as well as Latin America. We look forward to continuing our work in line with the United Nations and ECOSOC as we enter into a new phase, the second decade, here at South North.

The Database has been produced jointly every two years. Versions of the database were produced in 1996, 1998, 2000 and recently in 2002.

The Foundation's involvement in this seminal project results from its profound Commitment to the concept of sustainable development through shared ideas. This Best Practices Database, unique in its kind, not only catalogues proven solutions that have been developed by local authorities, community leaders, governmental agencies, non-governmental organizations and experts on human settlements, but it indexes them using common criteria and reporting formats, standardizing this important information in a powerful, relational database. The Database is available via multimedia CD-ROMs and on the Internet on www.bestpractices.org.
