iii. Initiatives undertaken by ACWF in support of the Millennium Development Goals (specifically in China)

MDG 1: Eradicate extreme poverty and hunger

Action: ACWF carried out anti-poverty efforts among women by providing training on new agricultural technology and new products, offering micro-credit services, organizing the surplus of women labor in the rural areas, finding employment in urban areas in an orderly manner, and providing other services such as policy counseling and legal services. From 2003 to 2006, 2 million women were helped out of poverty through such efforts.

MDG 2: Achieve universal primary education

Action: ACWF launched the Spring Bud Project to help those girls with financial difficulties to complete primary education and 9-year compulsory education. From 1989 when the project was started to the end of 2006, the project has raised more than 600 million RMB Yuan (equivalent to 80 million United States Dollars), built 410 Spring Bud schools and sponsored 1.7 million girls with their schooling.

MDG 3: Promote gender equality and empower women

Action: ACWF carried out training on gender mainstreaming, made great efforts in advocating the basic state policy of gender equality, and more than 1 million people took part in our training from 2003 to 2006. ACWF also carried out various projects such as "Women Starting New Careers",

"Women Poverty Alleviation" and "Women Community Services" to promote women's employment and re-employment.

Action: ACWF launched the Project of Water Cellars for Mothers in 2000. Through the project, more than 90,000 rain-collecting wells have been constructed and 1,100 small water-supply projects have been completed in the northwestern China, an area known for its lack of water, benefiting nearly 1 million local people.

Other Relevant Activities: ACWF has been taking an active part in the Beijing + 10 process to promote the full implementation of Beijing Platform for Action (BPFA) and outcome documents and international experiences sharing. #### 2. Defence for Children International

(Special; 1991)

Part I: Introduction

Defence for Children International (DCI) is an independent non-governmental organization (NGO) that has been promoting and protecting children's rights for over 25 years. On a regional, national and local level, DCI is active through its associated members and national sections in 48 countries across the globe. All national sections and associated members design their programs according to the specific needs and priorities of the children in their respective countries, focusing on various areas of work, including juvenile justice, child labour, child participation and children in armed conflict, among others. On the international level, through its International Secretariat, based in Geneva, Switzerland, DCI focuses on lobbying, research, networking and advocacy work, as well as providing technical assistance and capacity-building to its national sections and other partners.

International Focus on Juvenile Justice: On 4-5 July 2005, DCI held its triennial International General Assembly in Bethlehem, Palestine. There were two key outcomes of this meeting. First, a new International Executive Council composed of 8 members, was elected for a three-year mandate.

Second, DCI's General Assembly agreed that on an international level, the strategic priority of the DCI movement for the next three years would be the issue of juvenile justice, with particular attention to the situation of children in conflict with the law.

In collaboration with the staff of DCI's International Secretariat, the newly elected Executive Council developed an International Strategic Plan of Action on Juvenile Justice (2006-2008) which reflected the movement's new priority area. The overall aim of this Plan of Action is "to make the situation of children and juvenile justice in the world known internationally, promoting actions that aim to include juvenile justice as a priority item on political agendas on an international, regional and national level and which aims to strengthen national juvenile justice systems, guaranteeing the rights of children and adolescents in conflict with the law".

Throughout 2006, DCI was able to implement a significant part of its Plan of Action on Juvenile Justice. This included for example: preparing and disseminating reports on the 42nd and 43rd Sessions of the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child (15 May–2 June 2006, and 11–29 September 2006 respectively, in Geneva, Switzerland); providing input to and planning the follow-up of the Committee's General Comment No. 10 on Children's Rights in Juvenile Justice (CRC/C/GC/10); participating actively in key networks including the Interagency Panel on Juvenile Justice and the NGO Advisory Panel to the United Nations Study on Violence Against Children; and producing a bi-monthly newsletter on juvenile justice. DCI also organised a "Regional Consultation on Juvenile Justice in Africa", held from 1 to 5 November 2006 in Nairobi, Kenya. Key outcomes of the meeting included the training of African DCI sections on the preparation of alternative reports to the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child.

International Child Labour Programme: On the international level, DCI has also continued to be active in the area of child labour. For a three year period (2004-2006), the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs supported an International Child Labour Programme, involving several of DCI's National Sections, predominantly from the Latin American and African regions. The main objective of the Programme was to reduce the number of working children through education alternatives and inclusive education. The Programme was coordinated by DCI's national section in Costa Rica, with DCI's International Secretariat providing a platform for research, advocacy, monitoring, networking and information sharing at the international level.

Regional and National Programmes: During this reporting period DCI's national sections and associated members were continually active at the national and regional level, on diverse issues, including child rights education, child soldiers, child labour and juvenile justice among others.

In May 2004, DCI launched a Regional Programme on Juvenile Justice in Latin America. The programme involves 8 Latin American sections (Argentina, Bolivia, Colombia, Chile, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Paraguay, Uruguay) and aims to strengthen the enforcement of national legislations that respect articles 37 and 40 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child; develop projects with alternative measures to the deprivation of liberty, especially probation, mediation victim-offender and community work; and train juvenile justice professionals.

Geographical distribution of DCI's national sections and associated members: Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Paraguay, Mexico, Uruguay, Albania, Belgium, Czech Republic, France, Italy, Netherlands, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Switzerland, Serbia, Angola, Benin, Burundi, Cameroon, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Gambia, Ghana, Mauritius, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Togo, Uganda, Israel, Lebanon, the Occupied Palestinian territories, Australia, Thailand, Japan, Pakistan, Sri Lanka.

Part II: Contribution of DCI to the work of the United Nations 2003-2006

i) Participation in the work of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies

During the period under review, through its International Secretariat in Geneva and its permanent representative to the United Nations in New York, DCI participated in and contributed to the work of the United Nations, particularly in matters concerning the promotion and implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989).

In particular DCI spearheaded several initiatives to raise awareness of the issue of juvenile justice and its importance within the human rights framework, during the 61st and 62nd Sessions of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights (14 March–22 April 2005 and 13–27 March 2006 respectively, Geneva, Switzerland). During the 61st Session, on 6th April 2005, DCI co-organised a parallel event entitled: How can Juvenile Justice be brought onto the international agenda?" During the 62nd Session, DCI submitted a written statement under item 13, entitled "Children in Detention", drawing attention to the large number of children behind bars, and the inhumane and degrading conditions in which they are frequently held.

DCI has been closely involved with the work of the United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, with a view to highlighting key problems within juvenile justice systems, and supporting efforts for an international response. During the 11th Session (18–25 April 2005, Bangkok, Thailand), DCI's main recommendation to develop National Action Plans directed at reducing the number of children in detention was fully adopted at the three regional preparatory meetings prior to the Congress, and was included, in part, in the Bangkok Declaration. DCI submitted one official written statement "Don't forget the Children". DCI also presented the following oral statements: "Making standards work: fifty years of standard-setting in crime prevention and criminal justice" – agenda item 7; "Death penalty for juveniles" – during workshop 2 on Enhancing Criminal Justice Reform; "Youth at risk in large cities in Latin America, Asia and Africa" during workshop 3 on Strategies and Best Practices for Crime Prevention. DCI also took the initiative to submit a joint written statement on behalf of child-rights based NGOs, highlighting the ways in which children can be involved with criminal justice and crime prevention; for example as victims, witnesses, children in conflict with the law, or children of imprisoned parents. DCI co-convened a parallel event entitled: "Protecting the Rights of Children in Conflict with the Law".

During the 14th and 15th Sessions of the United Nations Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice (23–27 May 2005 and 24–28 April 2006 respectively, in Vienna, Austria), DCI continued with the lobbying efforts initiated during the 11th Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice. In particular, during the 14th Session, DCI read an oral statement on the issue of children in conflict with the law, recalling the fact that the Bangkok Declaration had not fully taken into consideration DCI's initial proposals.

As a result of DCI lobbying efforts, changes were made to the resolution "Providing technical assistance for prison reform in Africa and the development of viable alternatives to # imprisonment" (Resolution 2006/22), so that the "special needs of women and girls in prison" were acknowledged.

DCI's International Secretariat also follows very closely the sessions of the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child. DCI staff attended the 35th – 43rd sessions on a regular basis, taking note of the relevant discussions in order to prepare summaries for its national sections and other NGO partners (12 January-7 February 2004, 17 May-11 June 2004, 13 September-8 October 2004, 10-28 January 2005, 16 May-3 June 2005, 12-30 September 2005, 9-27 January 2006, 15 May-2 June 2006, 11-29 September 2006 respectively). Particular focus was given to DCI's priority themes on the international level i.e. child labour and juvenile justice. Through this activity DCI helped to ensure that the concerns and recommendations of the Committee were widely disseminated among the NGO community and other actors at national and international level.

As a focal point for the international movement, DCI's International Secretariat also makes efforts to keep its national sections informed of relevant UN discussions, recommendations and decisions made in Geneva, Switzerland. For example, the Secretariat attended the 37th session of the United Nations Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (6-24 November 2006, Geneva, Switzerland). It paid particular attention to the discussions on Albania and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, where DCI has national sections. A report of the proceedings was prepared and developed into an article for the bi-monthly child labour newsletter, and shared with these national sections.

ii) Cooperation with United Nations bodies and/or specialized agencies

- 1) United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child In 2006, the Committee on the Rights of the Child began drafting a General Comment No. 10 on Children's Rights in Juvenile Justice (CRC/C/GC/10). During the drafting process, DCI played a lead role in coordinating the input of other NGOs and relevant experts to the General Comment, in addition to contributing its own feedback and expertise.
- 2) Interagency Panel on Juvenile Justice Established by Economic and Social Council Resolution 1997/30, the Interagency Panel on Juvenile Justice aims to coordinate technical advice and assistance provided by international organizations to United Nations Member States. The Panel consists of several United Nations agencies and NGOs including: UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund), UNODC (United Nations Office for Drugs and Crime), Terre des Hommes, and Save the Children. DCI communicated regularly with Panel members in 2005-2006. At the Panel's 2005 annual meeting (22-23 March 2005, Vienna, Austria), it was agreed that in order to have a permanent coordination and follow up of the Panel's activities it would be necessary to have a secretariat. DCI's International Secretariat was requested to coordinate the Panel's secretariat and supervise the Panel's Coordinator. In December 2006, DCI began to organise the establishment of the Secretariat and recruitment of a Coordinator.
- 3) NGO Advisory Panel to the United Nations Study on Violence against Children Through the Panel, and as part of the activities of DCI's International Child Labour Programme, DCI contributed to the Study's chapter on "Child Labour and Work Conditions". Notably, DCI called attention to the violence that is inherent to certain activities in which children participate, such as child domestic labour. In November 2006, the DCI Child Labour Desk published a special edition of its international newsletter dedicated to the Study, thus contributing to the promotion and dissemination of its key recommendations worldwide.

iii) Initiatives undertaken by DCI in support of internationally agreed development goals MDG Goal 2: Achieve Universal Primary Educations; Target: Ensure that children everywhere, boys and girls alike, will be able to complete a full course of primary schooling. DCI Actions: i) Publication, distribution and training on a handbook on "Inclusive Schools and Child and Adolescent Child Labour" – 250 copies; ii) Inclusive Education Project in Cameroon, Ecuador, Paraguay, and Togo, in a total of 12 schools; iii) Global Campaign on Inclusive Education, and its direct relation to the reduction of Child Labour – "No Kids Without Education"; iv) Publication and dissemination of a guide on "How We Can All Make a Difference" (dedicated to the role of States, schools and teachers, parents and community, and children and youth) iv) Activities in Support of Global Principles: (i) Global Action Week, 24 – 30 April 2006 DCI's national sections in Togo, Cameroon, Paraguay and Ecuador organised several local events in support of Global Action Week – "Every Child Needs a Teacher"; (ii) DCI commemorated the 4th World Day against Child Labour, 12th June 2005 which focused on children working in small scale in mining and quarrying labour, worldwide.

The JCLU was founded in 1947, the year the new Constitution of Japan was promulgated. The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) played an important role in founding the JCLU. The JCLU is affiliated with the International Commission of Jurists (ICJ) and the International League for Human Rights (ILHR).

Membership is open to anyone who agrees with the JCLU's purposes and is willing to work for the improvement of human rights situations. The JCLU currently has about 600 members, about 70% of whom are lawyers engaged in private practice, and others include citizens of various professions such as scholars, journalists, and students. The JCLU is financed by membership dues and unconditional donations from its members and outside supporters. The Board of Directors is comprised of 45 members. Currently, the JCLU is comprised of 15 committees, and has a chapter in Osaka.

JCLU has benefited greatly from the special consultative status because it has been able to strengthen its activities to protect and promote human rights in the global context. In the past four years, the JCLU's structure on decision-making and finance was virtually unchanged. Although the membership is open to everyone beyond borders, the board of directors is composed of Japanese citizens. Despite the management on slender budget, JCLU has established cooperation with other international NGOs. The executive board members evaluate the financial stability of JCLU, and conclude that JCLU has a solid financial basis and that the JCLU's activities have contributed to enhancing the human rights following the United Nations Charter and the guidelines of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations (ECOSOC).

Part II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

JCLU had the honor of being given the special consultative status with the ECOSOC in 2003. This is the first quadrennial report of the Centre to the United Nations. JCLU frequently issues advice, memoranda, and opinions on specific human rights cases relating to activities of the national and local government, the Diet, and the courts of Japan. In addition, it has acted as a leader in movements for new domestic legislation and ratification of the international human rights treaties by the Japanese Government. Member attorneys are active in a broad range of human rights litigations involving the freedom of religion, freedom of information, post-war compensation, environmental pollution, refugees, and serious criminal cases. JCLU organized the committee for freedom of expression, foreigners' human rights, corporate activity and human rights, human rights for mentally disabled people, information disclosure and protection of individual information, and healthcare and human rights. Also JCLU organizes seminars, meetings and symposiums, conducts research, and publishes reports, books and newsletters. By utilizing those committees, JCLU monitored the implementation of international treaties, provided relief for the human rights violation cases, and strongly submitted proposals for legislation policies.

JCLU has been active in international convention. JCLU attended the United Nations Non-Governmental Organization Committee and was involved in drawing counter reports to the compliance assessment of United Nations reports and government reports related to Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW), International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD), Convention on the Rights of the Child, Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR). By doing so, JCLU submitted amendments for human rights to government agencies and organized public meetings with the concerned organizations. Also, JCLU had talks with the special reporters who came to Japan and observed the meetings of United Nations Human Rights Council and other agencies to share the information in Japan. This contributed to the emergence of the specific problem solving plans. The detailed activities by JCLU are as follows.

JCLU took the leadership in the domestic consensus building for Japan's government report assessment at CEDAW in 2003. JCLU submitted the reports on 27 January, 2 May and 20 November in 2003, and sent the representative to the conference from 30 June to 18 July 2003 in New York. JCLU succeeded to receive the favorable recommendation and recorded the government negotiations for follow-up activities. JCLU was engaged in the activities to achieve the judicial remedy for wartime slave labors victims and addressed its policy at the Sub-Commission on Promotion and Protection of Human Rights on 6 August 2004 in Geneva. At the World Summit on Information Society (WSIS) from 15 to 18 May 2005 in Tokyo, JCLU attended the prep conference and has been organizing the projects to eliminate information gap in Japan.

In 2006, a member of JCLU attended the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (CAT) from 5 to 8 May in Geneva. Before that, JCLU submitted the report on 28 February to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Japan (MoFA); and after CAT, JCLU received the favorable recommendation as a result of lobbying. JCLU worked on the counter report to the report of Japanese government under ICCPR, released in 2006. JCLU was the manager in the Japanese NGOs network for this project and facilitated the members sharing and gathering information, for example, arranged study meetings and sent mail magazines.

JCLU worked closely with MoFA for the assessment on the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination. In the relation to the collaboration with MoFA, JCLU addressed the draft model law on anti-discriminatory in 2006. JCLU had discussions on the report on social and cultural rights by the Japanese government with the government and published the basic materials on the subject in 2006, translated in Japanese, to promote its campaigns.

After the United Nations Global Compact in 2000, JCLU called for active involvement of domestic corporations in corporate social responsibilities (CSR) and provided the Guideline for CSR by JCLU on 18 November 2006. JCLU analyzed the CSR of all 11 Japanese multi-national automakers by scrutinizing their annual CSR reports and released the result to the public. Additionally, in 2006 JCLU claimed the post-war compensation for kidnapping to the Japanese government and the companies involved in.

Part III. Initiatives undertaken by the organization in support of internationally agreed development goals.

JCLU Supported the Formal Visit of the Commission on Human Rights (CHR) 's Special Rapporteur on Contemporary Forms of Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance to Japan that was held from 3 to 11 July 2005 in Tokyo and other places in Japan, in cooperation with the International Movement Against All Forms of Discrimination and Racism (IMADR), (See E/CN.4/2006/16/Add.2, January 24 2006.) (See A/61/335.)

Our NGO groups organized "the First Public Forum on the United Nations Reform" on 30 August 2005 in Tokyo, Japan. The Public Forum was organized by the Japan NGO Network on United Nations Reform and the Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The Japan NGO Network consists of three NGOs, including JCLU. "The Second Public Forum on the United Nations Reform" was held on

2 February 2006 in Tokyo, Japan, with MoFA in cooperation with United Nations Information Center. Also we organized "the Third Public Forum on the United Nations Reform" on 25 July 2006 in Tokyo, Japan. JCLU Submitted a Joint Proposal by NGOs on United Nations Reform to United Nations Non-Governmental Liaison Service in response to an invitation of Chairperson of the United Nations General Assembly on 28 June 2005, as a member of Japan NGO Network on United Nations Reform.
