1. African Youth Movement

Special, 2006

I. Introduction

African Youth Movement engages the services of talented African youths, in particular disabled and marginalized young people, to address water resources management, climate change adaptability and environmental sustainability at the rural level through dialogue among different stakeholders.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The Movement works with country networks through workshops, partnerships and online surveys to: (a) raise awareness of disaster risk and related health and environmental issues; (b) support informed decision-making capabilities; (c) implement actions to achieve effective disaster risk reduction and sustainable health; (d) facilitate partnerships between stakeholders; (e) provide leadership training to youth; and (f) strengthen the advocacy efforts of local governments.

II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

From January 2008, through the Views from the Frontline project, the African Youth Movement developed a detailed report on disaster zones across Nigeria and presented it at the Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction in Geneva in June 2009.

A. Participation in the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary entities

None.

B. Cooperation with United Nations bodies

The Movement is a representative of the Global Network of Civil Society Organizations for Disaster Reduction, which collaborates with the United Nations International Strategy for Disaster Reduction.

C. Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals

In 2006, the Movement re-initiated grass-roots participation and management for rural water-related risks in Ebo Itu-Mbonsuo, Nigeria, aimed at providing sustainable and safe water for drinking, farming and other domestic and public uses. The project includes awareness and education programmes and capacity-building for local support infrastructure. The initiative's contributing to the achievements of the Millennium Development Goals related to poverty, health and gender.

2. AFS Inter-Cultural Programs

Special, 1974

I. Introduction

AFS Inter-Cultural Programs is an international voluntary, non-governmental, non-profit organization that provides intercultural learning opportunities. The majority of the work focuses on enabling secondary school students to live abroad with local host families and attend school overseas for a year.

Aims and purposes of the organization

AFS is a people-to-people movement, primarily engaged in facilitating intercultural educational exchange for over 12,000 participants annually. It has a network of more than 40,000 volunteers worldwide and operates through national member organizations in 52 countries. Programmes include immersion in local cultures and languages and community service projects.

II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

AFS has developed a relationship with the Alliance of Civilizations, aimed at supporting, through a network of partnerships, the development of projects that promote understanding and reconciliation among cultures and, in particular, between Muslim and western societies. On 27 October 2007, the organization hosted a world peace forum in New York City for almost 800 participants. Also in 2007, it sponsored a petition for a global expansion of youth exchange programmes; a petition presentation ceremony was held at the United Nations on 6 June 2008.

A. Participation in the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary entities

The President and Chief Executive Officer of the organization was invited to speak at the Second Forum of the Alliance of Civilizations, held in Istanbul on 6 and 7 April 2009. The organization sponsored luncheons at United Nations Headquarters in May 2006 and June 2008 to inform and update United Nations staff and AFS alumni, including Jan Eliasson, President of the General Assembly at its sixtieth session, about its accomplishments.

B. Cooperation with United Nations bodies

AFS promotes and collaborates with many other non-governmental organizations on United Nations-sponsored commemorations, such as International Volunteer Day, and supports project seminars, workshops and education on human rights.

C. Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals

None.

3. Amman Center for Human Rights Studies

Special, 2006

I. Introduction

Amman Center for Human Rights Studies is an independent, regional, scientific advocacy centre for studies, research and training on issues pertaining to human rights and democracy. Its activities are carried out either independently or in cooperation with local, Arab and international non-governmental organizations in Jordan, the Middle East and North Africa.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The Center aims to strengthen its role as an independent regional human rights institution; monitor compliance with human rights in Jordan and the Arab world; educate the Arab public about its legal, political and civil rights; review local laws and legislation to ensure compatibility with international principles and standards; and strengthen partnerships with similar institutions everywhere. It has conducted over 500 training courses on various human rights issues and on international agreements and international law. It has also published extensively on human rights issues in the Arab world.

II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

The Center, together with other Jordanian human rights organizations, submitted a report on the human rights situation in Jordan to the Human Rights Council for the universal periodic review and composed a report to shadow the Government's report submitted in the context of the review. It held numerous workshops on the universal periodic review process in Erbil, Iraq, to help Iraqi non-governmental organizations prepare their reports.

A. Participation in the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary entities

The Center attended the workshop and public event on the universal periodic review organized by the Human Rights Council in Geneva from 8 to 11 December 2007. It also organized a workshop on the universal periodic review in Geneva from 9 to 12 February 2008.

B. Cooperation with United Nations bodies

Activities included the conduct of educational training courses for journalists in 2007, with financial support from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP); training courses, on human rights, with United Nations agencies, in 2006; training courses on elections and youth political participation in 2007, with UNDP; a training course for journalists on human rights reporting in 2006, in cooperation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees; and the implementation of a project on the empowerment of women and youth in the electoral process in Iraq in 2006 and 2007 to build the capacity of Iraqi non-governmental organizations and train election observers, conducted in cooperation with the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq and the United Nations Office for Project Services.

C. Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals

In the context of gender equality and the empowerment of women, the Center organized, in Jordan, discussion sessions on women's rights to mark the sixtieth anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

III. Additional information

The Amman Center for Human Rights Studies has published reports and books on, inter alia, the electoral systems of the world, press freedom in Arab countries, juvenile justice and human rights and the criminal justice system, as well as annual reports on the death penalty in the Arab world.

4. Baptist World Alliance

Special, 1974

I. Introduction

Baptist World Alliance is a global movement of Baptists established in London in 1905 at the first Baptist World Congress.

A. Aims and purposes of the organization

The Alliance has six continental unions or regional fellowships: the Asia-Pacific Baptist Federation, the All Africa Baptist Fellowship, the Caribbean Baptist Fellowship, the European Baptist Federation, the North American Baptist Fellowship and the Union of Baptists in Latin America. The Alliance unites Baptists for fellowship and worship and responds to people in need through projects and activities aimed at the attainment of self-sufficiency and sustainable development, including in the areas of agriculture, health and education.

B. Significant changes in the organization

In 2008, a division on freedom and justice was established to oversee the Alliance's relationship with the United Nations.

II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

The Baptist World Alliance observes Human Rights Day. It also advocates the rights enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

A. Participation in the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary entities

B. Cooperation with United Nations bodies

The Alliance focuses on the HIV/AIDS pandemic, attaching priority to development projects and education, as well as the mapping of a project undertaken with the guidance of the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS.

C. Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals

The Alliance has been working in the context of the Micah Challenge to promote efforts to achieve the Millennium Development Goals by 2015. It has also sponsored several conferences and created opportunities for peacebuilding and reconciliation among Baptists and others.

III. Additional information

In 2009, the Baptist World Alliance issued a formal response, expressing agreement, to A Common Word Between Us and You, a letter written by 138 Muslim leaders and scholars, appealing to Christians and Muslims to work towards peace and religious freedom. The Alliance's member bodies around the world also develop projects and actions in human-rights-related areas, including education, women's and children's rights, economic and social justice, peace and reconciliation and hunger relief.

5. Center for Oceans Law and Policy

Special, 2002

I. Introduction

The Center for Oceans Law and Policy at the University of Virginia School of Law supports research, education and discussion on legal and public policy issues relating to the oceans.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The Center sponsors annual conferences, publications and lectures, and keeps archives of ocean documents, including one of the world's largest collections of materials relating to the law of the sea. The Center founded the Rhodes Academy of Oceans Law and Policy 15 years ago and continues to sponsor it.

II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

The Center has published a six-volume set of commentaries on the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 1982 that are regularly cited by the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea and scholars around the world as an authoritative history of the Convention.

A. Participation in the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary entities

The Center has regularly attended meetings of the United Nations Open-ended Informal Consultative Process on Oceans and the Law of the Sea at United Nations Headquarters.

C. Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals

Goal 1. The organization promotes gender equality through interventions to reduce domestic violence and the sexual abuse of women and girl children. It has trained women as paralegals to assist victims of violence. It also conducts education and awareness programmes on that issue, organizes microcredit groups to promote economic independence and enhance women's decision-making power, organizes training to improve the skills of women entrepreneurs, promotes girls' education by providing educational assistance to poor families to prevent school dropout and conducts preschool classes, with a special focus on girl children, so as to motivate children and encourage parents to enrol them in schools.

17. Youth Empowerment Alliance

Special, 2002

I. Introduction

Youth Empowerment Alliance was established in 1999 as an international non-governmental organization focusing on the creation and implementation of projects to enhance the lives of children.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The primary goal of the Alliance is to empower children and young people by strengthening child participation programmes, supporting the enforcement of legal remedies that impact the lives of children and providing other opportunities for a healthy childhood. The Alliance is an advocate for the Convention on the Rights of the Child, and works with Member States, non-governmental organizations and private companies to incorporate its principles into policies for children, including in the areas of migration, adoption, juvenile justice, child labour (including trafficking and exploitation), children's rights, education, social development, academic research and legal theory.

II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

Youth Empowerment Alliance implemented the Africa Works project, which developed the Economic EcoSystem, aimed at transforming poor rural communities from charity-based economies to thriving, sustainable cooperative communities by putting in place all components of the supply chain prior to the start of a project. The Alliance organized a workshop for ministers of communication policy throughout Asia to discuss the vital role of young people in developing solutions in the context of the Millennium Development Goals, in cooperation with the Soong Ching Ling Foundation and the All-China Youth Federation in China and the United Nations Department of Public Information. It created public service print and broadcast advertisements, including with a local NBC affiliate in the United States, to promote children's issues. The Alliance worked with the State Attorney's office in Florida to create the Rap against Violence, to deter young people from joining gangs and engaging in gun violence. The project, renamed Battle 4 Life, won a national award from the United States Department of Justice and will be implemented nationally by the Alliance.

A. Participation in the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary entities

A representative of the Alliance spoke at the fourth World Summit on Media for Children and Adolescents, held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in April 2004, and the Alliance was instrumental in creating, with UNICEF, the Youth Charter that was presented as an outcome of the conference. Representatives of the Alliance also spoke at the Arab World Film Festival for Youth, held in Cairo in March 2006, and at the PLAN International youth media conference on the role of youth in the world, held in Bamako in June 2006.

B. Cooperation with United Nations bodies

The Alliance organized a day of study on the Convention on the Rights of the Child, providing all research materials, preparing a draft optional protocol and making a presentation, in Geneva on 30 May 2008, with a view to encouraging the Committee to consider the creation of an individual complaint mechanism for the Convention. It is currently serving on the working group of NGOs to develop an optional protocol three to the Convention and an individual complaint mechanism. It is also serving on the Committee to encourage the United States to ratify the Convention. It was a speaker and workshop leader at the fifth World Summit on Media for Children and Adolescents, discussing the role of youth media in social change, in cooperation with UNICEF, in March 2007.
