Special, 2003

Introduction

The Movement for a Better World is a Catholic international organization with 650 members based in 32 nations worldwide.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The Movement is committed to the promotion activities related to the building of a “better world”. The main course of action of the Movement is: (a) to be identified in a process of spiritual and cultural formation of single and corporate consciences, in order to create the conditions for people and communities to understand the complexity of the present situation of the world; (b) to develop the instruments to react to the challenges that are posed to the future of mankind; and (c) to elaborate projects with objectives related to the transformation of society and the making of a better world.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

See “Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals” below.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

- Sixteenth session of the Commission on Sustainable Development: review session on drought and desertification (5-16 May 2008)
- Seventeenth session of the Commission on Sustainable Development (4-16 May 2009)

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

See “Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals” below.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

Initiatives included:

(a) Preschools in Côte d’Ivoire (Goal 2). the Movement for a Better World of Côte d’Ivoire has promoted the financing of 11 special preschools located in 10 rural villages. The preschools give hospitality to 1,200 children between 3 and 6 years of age. The possibility of a preschool learning process has consistently increased the percentage of children who manage to complete primary school. That percentage has increased from 4 to 80. Experience has shown that, since such schools were established, children who have entered primary school manage to continue the learning process as they have the language tools (knowledge of French) needed to understand the teachers during the lessons and avoid an inevitable isolation.

(b) Telematic project for the promotion of literacy of women in Peru (Goal 3). the objective is to offer women who have not had the possibility of accessing an education system a way to literacy with interactive methods that assist in developing their critical consciousness and empower them to participate in the development of their communities, by cultivating their personal and cultural values, through a dialogue based on respect and acceptance of differences, and the rejection of any type of discrimination, as a way to a just and peaceful society through solidarity. The experience is taking place, with the attendance of dozens of women, in the Mountains of San Genaro in the suburbs of Lima. Many more wish to learn; however, excessive work, in addition to caring for their children without a husband, oblige women to make do with their timeframes and possibilities;

(c) Corporation of the New Society of the North-east region of Colombia (Goal 8). this organization, created by the Movement through one of its bishops, promotes specific programmes for development through solidarity of the whole northern region of Santander. The corporation envisions this goal through the active participation of public and private institutions, international organizations, base communities, women's groups, youth and children's groups, as well as the production, cultural and educational sectors, all with the goal of a new society that promotes dignified life conditions for citizens.

2. National Committee for UNIFEM (Japan)

Special, 2007

Introduction

The Japan National Committee for the United Nations Development Fund for Women (UNIFEM) was inaugurated in 1992.

Aims and purposes of the organization

To support the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women) by raising funds and publicizing its activities in Japan.

Significant changes in the organization

On 17 June 2008, the Japan National Committee for UNIFEM (now UN-Women) was successfully accredited with the privileged status of "authorized non-profit organization" in Japan, which allows donations from our supporters to be tax exempted. This gave us an important momentum towards increasing support from private sectors and individuals. The status has been renewed and extended until 30 June 2015. Companies and individuals alike favourably recognize this status. Shiseido Co., Ltd., which has been supporting the Committee for more than five years, generously contributed over 2 million yen in 2010. Chuo Roudou Kinko (Chuo Labour Bank), which started a social contribution programme whereby depositors can donate their acquired points depending on the amount in their bank account, kindly chose the Committee as one of its recipients. Such contributions by private companies to the Committee through their civil society-related activities are on an increasing trend. The name of the Committee will be changed from the "Japan National Committee for UNIFEM” to the “Japan National Committee for UN-Women” in 2011 in line with the merger of UNIFEM with three United Nations agencies and the establishment of UN-Women. In accordance with this change, the Committee is now working on the necessary legal procedures as well as on the amendment of its charter.

The National Council of German Women's Organizations is a member of the Vienna-based non-governmental organizations Committee on the Status of Women, the Vienna Alliance of NGOs on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and the Vienna NGO Committee on Ageing. One of the priorities of the National Council in this area is lobbying for the implementation of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women. In addition to this, the Council lobbies actively for the Beijing Platform for Action, for the final documents of the United Nations World Conferences of the 1990s, for the Millennium Development Goals, for Security Council resolutions 1325 (2000), 1820 (2008), 1888 (2009) and 1889 (2009), as well as for other relevant United Nations conventions and resolutions. The Council is a member of an alliance of German NGOs celebrating the tenth anniversary of the adoption of Security Council resolution 1325 (2000) in 2010. The Society is a national NGO, and its activities and programmes are developed in Romania. The Society’s Constitution by-law, reviewed in 1999, affirms, inter alia, the non-profit nature of the organization.

The Society’s statutory purpose is to protect and promote human rights and fundamental freedoms as they are reflected in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the international and regional instruments to which Romania is a party. The Society’s leading body is the General Assembly. The organization has a co-presidential structure, who are elected by the vote of the General Assembly for a period of four years. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

Over the past four years the contribution of the Society has been especially visible in specific activities to promote human rights in the Human Rights Council, in relation to United Nations Special Rapporteurs and, less directly, in the development agenda of the Economic and Social Council. Aspects related to promoting respect of human rights for all, in terms of civil, political, economic, social, cultural and systematic character of infringements on some categories of rights, were included in the document provided to the Universal Periodic Review process applicable to Romania. The document provided to the Human Rights Council gave an account of the experience acquired by the Society in the field of human rights, focused on guaranteeing human rights and the regime of international treaties in the constitutional system and Romania's obligations under the treaty bodies, such as the Human Rights Council, the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women, the Committee against Torture, the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on Migrant Workers. The financing is aimed at providing: direct legal assistance to the victims of torture and their families; information (decoded and adapted to specific situations) and education on the functionality of national and international institutions, especially regarding human rights issues reported in categories pertaining to arrest/detention (adults, minors, migrants, refugees, stateless persons); difficulties which the clients of programme are confronting with their peoples' attempts to ensure that their rights are acknowledged; and access to complaint mechanisms and special procedures of the United Nations system (on torture, degrading treatment, ethnic discrimination, discrimination against women and domestic violence).
