REPORT OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL ON THE IMPLEMENTATION OF PARAGRAPH 6 OF SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 997 (1995) OF 9 JUNE 1995

I. INTRODUCTION

1. In resolution 997 (1995) adopted on 9 June 1995, the Security Council affirmed that the restrictions imposed under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations by resolution 918 (1994) applied to the sale or supply of arms and matériel specified therein to persons in the States neighbouring Rwanda, if that sale or supply was for the purpose of the use of such arms or matériel within Rwanda. It called upon the States neighbouring Rwanda to take steps, with the aim of putting an end to factors contributing to the destabilization of Rwanda, to ensure that such arms and matériel were not transferred to Rwandan camps within their territories. It requested the Secretary-General to consult the Governments of neighbouring countries on the possibility of the deployment of United Nations military observers, and to consult, as a matter of priority, the Government of Zaire on the deployment of observers, including at the airfields located in eastern Zaire, in order to monitor the sale or supply of arms and matériel. It further requested the Secretary-General to report to the Council on the matter within one month of the adoption of the resolution. The present report is submitted in response to that request.

II. MISSION OF THE SPECIAL ENVOY OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL TO RWANDA AND NEIGHBOURING COUNTRIES

2. I appointed Mr. Aldo Ajello as my Special Envoy to carry out the consultations requested by the Security Council. He visited the neighbouring countries from 20 to 28 June 1995, accompanied by the senior political adviser of the United Nations Assistance Mission for Rwanda (UNAMIR) and a military assistant to its Force Commander, and met with the following senior government officials: in Burundi, Mr. Sylvestre Ntibantunganya, President, Lt. Col. Sinzoyiheba Firmin, Minister of National Defence, Mr. Nicolas Mayugi, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation, Lt. Col. Bayaganakandi Epitace, Administrator General of the "Police de l'air, des frontières et des étrangers", Mr. Audifax Ndabitoreye, Administrator General of National Documentation; in Rwanda, Major-General Paul Kagame, Vice-President and Minister of Defence; in Uganda, Mr. Kintu Musoke, Prime Minister, Mr. Ben Mbonye, Secretary of Defence; in the United Republic of Tanzania, Mr. David Cleopa Msuya, First Vice-President and Prime Minister, Mr. Richard Mariki, Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Home Affairs; and in Zaire, Mr. Kengo wa Dondo, Prime Minister, Admiral Mavua Mudima, Vice-Prime Minister and Minister of National Defence, Mr. Diur Katondi, Vice-Minister of International Cooperation. He also met with my Special Representatives in Burundi and Rwanda. He reviewed the current situation in the region, with particular reference to repatriation, reconciliation and reconstruction in Rwanda, with representatives of United Nations agencies and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and with members of the diplomatic corps in Rwanda. In addition, he visited Rwandan refugee camps in the Goma area of North Kivu in eastern Zaire. He was briefed on various aspects of the refugee situation, including security, by representatives of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR).

3. In his meetings with officials of the neighbouring countries, my Special Envoy emphasized the Security Council's great concern over increasing reports of military activities that threatened to destabilize Rwanda.

4. The Special Envoy's consultations confirmed that the countries concerned shared some important common points of view. All reiterated their support for efforts to prevent the resumption of armed conflict in Rwanda, to ensure the return and resettlement of its refugees and to promote lasting reconciliation. They stressed the link between stability in Rwanda and the situation in the subregion generally and referred to the negative impact the Rwandan crisis was having on humanitarian and environmental conditions. The uncontrolled circulation of arms, including to civilians and refugees in the subregion, was seen as a major cause of destabilization, especially in Rwanda and Burundi. At the same time, measures needed to be taken to halt and reverse the drift towards conflict in the subregion by enhancing inter-State confidence-building, such as the recent decision by the Defence Ministers of Burundi, Rwanda and Zaire to conduct joint military patrols along their common borders. There was agreement that a broader approach, with the involvement of Rwanda and its neighbours and the support of the international community as a whole, would offer better opportunities for a lasting solution to the Rwandan crisis. The authorities in the neighbouring countries expressed the wish to receive concrete assistance from the international community to help them both to deal with the main problems that had followed the conflict in Rwanda and prevent any repetition of such conflict.

5. Officials in Rwanda welcomed the Security Council's initiative in proposing the deployment of military observers in neighbouring countries and characterized it as a step in the right direction. However, they emphasized the need to bring to justice those who had masterminded the genocide. That was required not only to end impunity but also to facilitate genuine reconciliation and promote security by helping to eliminate arbitrary and individual measures of vengeance.

III. RESPONSE OF THE NEIGHBOURING COUNTRIES TO THE PROPOSED DEPLOYMENT OF UNITED NATIONS MILITARY
OBSERVERS IN THEIR RESPECTIVE TERRITORIES

6. There were mixed reactions from the Governments of neighbouring countries to the proposal to deploy military observers in their respective countries. Some questioned the utility, relevance and feasibility of the proposed deployment, arguing that it was in Rwanda that international observers should be stationed in order to help to create a climate of confidence that would encourage the refugees to return home and thus reduce the danger of destabilization from refugee camps. It was also stressed that effective political measures to remove fear and suspicion in refugee communities and the countries of asylum were necessary. Even the countries that supported the proposed deployment saw the initiative as essentially a political first step by the international community to underscore its concern over the possible destabilization of Rwanda by military means.

7. The Government of Burundi welcomed the Security Council's initiative. However, President Ntibantunganya said that the creation in Rwanda of conditions conducive to the safe return and resettlement of the refugees could help to deny to the hardliners who wanted to destabilize the country the possibility of arguing that return by force was the only viable option. He welcomed recent statements by the Government of Rwanda that opened up possibilities for contact with the refugees and invited them to visit the country to assess conditions and encourage others in the camps to return home.

8. The Government of the United Republic of Tanzania refused to consider the deployment of military observers in its territory. It suggested instead that the United Nations should strengthen its military presence in Rwanda to ensure that refugees could return home safely and in dignity, and noted that the main obstacle to the return was not in the neighbouring countries but in Rwanda. It felt that the Council's proposal addressed only a minor problem while ignoring the major one. It was ready to consider the deployment of military observers only in a wider context. It suggested the following measures to promote repatriation of refugees and reduce threats of armed action against Rwanda from the refugee camps: the Rwandan Government should issue a public statement declaring unequivocally that it wanted to see all refugees return home; the Government should declare a general amnesty for all Rwandans except "a few who would be tried" for having masterminded the genocide; the Government should accept the deployment inside Rwanda of international observers, who would help to create a climate of confidence by monitoring the situation throughout the country to promote respect for human rights and prevent incidents like that at Kibeho, which tended to hinder repatriation while generating new refugees; and the international community should assist the Government with the smooth resettlement of returnees.

9. Uganda neither objected to the Security Council's proposal nor demonstrated enthusiasm for it. It was sceptical about the effectiveness of such deployment and what it could achieve. It stressed that, instead of tackling the effects of the crisis, the Council should address its causes and identify the countries that were providing support for the delivery of weapons and military training to the former Rwandan government forces. It reaffirmed its commitment to do its best to consolidate peace in Rwanda and to ensure the peaceful return of the refugees.

10. The Government of Zaire, while expressing support for any effective action that could prevent the destabilization of Rwanda, reiterated its strong denial of recent accusations that it was aiding the former Rwandan government forces with arms and training to enable them to attack Rwanda. It pointed out that it had called for an international commission of inquiry under United Nations auspices to investigate the allegations and clarify the situation conclusively. It had welcomed millions of refugees from Rwanda and Burundi in accordance with applicable international conventions despite the resentment of its own population, which had called for the immediate and unconditional repatriation of the refugees. Instead of being criticized, Zaire felt that it should be assisted by the international community to cope with the immense ecological, socio-economic, security and political burdens imposed on the Government and the country by the refugees.

11. Zaire's views were also conveyed to me in a letter dated 23 June 1995, in which Prime Minister Kengo wa Dondo pointed to his country's contribution, in response to a request by UNHCR, of 1,500 troops, who are deployed for security protection in the Rwandan refugee camps, and to its unilateral action in disarming the former Rwandan government forces soldiers who had fled to Zaire. These actions were evidence of Zaire's cooperation and its determination to prevent insecurity in the camps and the destabilization of Rwanda from Zairian territory.

12. My Special Envoy's visit to the refugee camps in the Goma area suggested that the relocation of camps farther away from the borders with Rwanda could facilitate efforts to curb the threat of destabilization. However, the huge costs and logistical difficulties of such an operation, as well as the fear that it would be resisted by the population of the countries of refuge, have prevented concrete action in this regard. Government officials in Zaire explained that to move the refugees further inside their territory could be seen by the population as implying, that rather than the repatriation, which the population had called for, the refugees were being resettled for a longer and perhaps permanent stay in Zaire. The Tanzanian authorities, citing recent attempts by thousands of Rwandan refugees in Burundi to enter Tanzanian territory, criticized any effort aimed at transferring refugees from one country of refuge to another.

IV. CONCLUSION

13. There is growing recognition in the Great Lakes region not only of the urgency and gravity of the risks confronting the countries of the region but also of the need for the Governments concerned to take individual and collective measures to address these dangers. While many of the Governments consulted by my Special Envoy took the view that the primary responsibility lay with the Government of Rwanda, there was general acknowledgement also of the value of action at the regional level. However, the Special Envoy's consultations indicated that in some countries there was strong opposition to the deployment of United Nations observers as proposed in Security Council resolution 997 (1995). While I am in the region in the coming days, I shall explore further the positions of the Governments concerned.
