Tribute to the memory of the victims of the terrorist attacks in Paris

The President: At the outset of the meeting, I should like, on behalf of the members of the Security Council, to express our profound sadness and deep outrage at the horrendous terrorist attacks that took place in Paris on the evening of 13 November. These attacks led to the loss of so many precious lives, and a huge number of casualties. To the families of the victims, both French and from 19 other countries, at this point, and to the people and the Government of France, the Security Council expresses its heartfelt sympathy and condolences. These and other recent attacks, including the terrorist attacks in Beirut on 12 November, have affected countries and people from all over the world. The members of the Security Council offer their sympathy and condolences to all of the countries affected.

I now invite Council members to rise to observe a minute of silence in tribute to the memory of the victims.
